FBI says gambling probe in last stage

Karen Hargreaves

FBI agents are reducing their focus on an investigation into a group of professors and students at the University of Iowa who gambled on the Iowa High Stakes Lottery. The FBI has narrowed its focus to a single case involving a single individual.

The individual in question is a professor who was accused of betting in a way that endangered someone’s life. The professor is alleged to have placed a bet on a horse race that was later ruled illegal by the Iowa Racing and Gaming Board. The professor has denied the charges, saying he was just trying to make a few extra dollars.

The FBI has been investigating the case for several months, but it has now decided to drop the investigation. The FBI said it believes the evidence it has gathered is not strong enough to support a prosecution.

The bare branches of a tree near the UI president’s house serve as the starting points of a student walk across the Iowa River in the chill of Monday afternoon. Today will be slightly warmer and partly sunny.

Iowa City’s 450-student campus has seen many changes during the seven years it has served as the city center. "When I first got on the campus in 1985, the student body was heavily white by the standards and the campus was pretty homogeneous. Today there are more students of color and the campus is more diverse," Mayor Marcella.(lst) said.

Another change in Iowa City’s life is the growth of the city since the 1970s. The city has expanded into the countryside and the campus has grown in size. Mayor Marcella said, "We have seen a lot of changes in the city, including the growth of the campus, the development of the city and the growth of the population."
Board presents $130 million plan for 10-year UI building program

Quinn Beck

The UI has plans for more than $93 million in new construction and renovations for the next 10 years, and it is expected that some of the buildings planned for 1986-88 will be ready for students by 1987.

If all the 10-year building program projects are accepted by the Board of Regents, UI President John Pittman, Jr., estimated that $86 million would be needed in 1987 to begin construction of buildings totaling $130 million for the next 10 years. But the Board of Regents has approved only $100 million for construction, so the UI would have to seek money elsewhere to fund the building projects.

The board will review the requests for over $100 million in construction projects in December, Pittman said.

 Iowa avoids shortage of care beds

 By Tom Forsythe

The shortage of nursing home beds is expected to become a serious problem in the future, as the number of elderly people in Iowa increases.

In the last five years, the number of nursing home beds in Iowa have increased by 15 percent, while the number of elderly people has increased by 24 percent.

The shortage of nursing home beds is expected to continue, as the number of elderly people is expected to increase by 50 percent in the next 15 years.

Affordable housing projects are being funded by the state government, and the state has offered $4 million to support the projects.

 Iowa State Board of Regents approved a $4 million loan to the University of Iowa for the construction of a new dormitory.

 By Tom Forsythe

The Iowa State Board of Regents approved a $4 million loan to the University of Iowa for the construction of a new dormitory.

The new dormitory will be built on the north shore of Lake MacBride, and it will have 350 rooms.

The dormitory will be ready for students by 1987.
The gender gap

After a steady decline for two decades, voter turnout increased in the 1982 elections. Nationwide, an estimated 60 percent of the voting-age public participated in the November elections, three percent higher than the 1980 figure. In comparison, a whopping 60 percent of the men and 53 percent of the women cast their ballots.

In Iowa the figures were even more indicative. In 1980, 47 percent of the women but 51 percent of the men voted. In 1982, the figures were even more indicative: 52 percent of the women but 55 percent of the men participated in the November elections. Nationwide, an estimated 41 percent of the voting-age public participated in the November elections, three percent higher than the 1980 figure. In comparison, a whopping 60 percent of the women but 53 percent of the men cast their ballots.

Just Nancy’s style

Nancy Reagan is maintaining her reputation for doing things in style— at taxpayers expense this time. First lady traditionally travels in a 1965 Cadillac coupe de ville owned by state, but not Reagan—the lady has apparently developed a taste for the luxury of flying first class, complete with a private jet and a two-room suite, to attend events in Iowa. The trip cost taxpayers an estimated $10,000.

Focus on ‘seamy side’ of China

By Guest opinion

ATTENTION readers of China Focus on, China Focus on, has been suspended temporarily by the Chinese government. This is hard to believe, but the Chinese have decided to suspend the magazine for a few months, citing insensitivity to U.S. interests. Foreign observers who have tried to monitor the magazine’s message have been unable to find a single copy.

The editorial page editor of the magazine, Liz Bird, wrote: “I am not surprised that the magazine has been suspended temporarily. The Chinese government is known for its sensitivity to foreign observers who generate negative commentary about China.”

To the editor:

I was one of the many people who attended the rally for human rights in China on Saturday. The rally was well-organized and the speeches were powerful. I would like to see more rallies like this in the future.

Inhuman behavior

To the editor:

The treatment of the blinds at the Iowa City Courthouse is inhumane. The blinds are left open all day, allowing the sun to shine directly into the eyes of the prisoners. The sun’s rays can be extremely painful and can cause permanent damage to the eyes.

Tenure
galigious positions

By By Tenure

The candidates are no longer the only focus of school boards. The issue of tenure for religious positions has become a hot topic in recent years. School boards are being asked to consider whether to grant tenure to religious positions, such as school chaplains.

The information was released in a recent issue of the Journal of Religious Education.

I also support the idea of granting tenure to religious positions. It provides a sense of security for the religious leader and allows them to focus on their spiritual duties.

Computer

It’s a challenge creating a computer that can accurately translate written Chinese into English. The language is complex, with a large number of characters and a different word order.

By By Computer

The two ways that this is being done are through direct mapping and through machine translation.

Direct mapping involves translating each character in the Chinese text into its corresponding English character. The mistranslations can be significant, as some characters have multiple meanings.

Machine translation involves using a computer program to translate the Chinese text into English. The program uses statistical methods to determine the best translation, but it still can’t always get it right.

Tenure promotion.

Grossman disputed Ruick's record of progress with full tenure, associate professor and professor. Grossman contended that Ruick had not met the necessary level of scholarly achievement and teaching performance to warrant his advancement to the rank of full professor, and that his performance was not up to the standards of the university.

In contrast, the panel-appointed committee of scholars found evidence of significant contributions to the field of art history, specifically in the area of Chinese art. They noted that Ruick had published several articles and given numerous presentations at conferences, which demonstrated his expertise and influence in the field.

The panel also disagreed with Ruick's claims of financial contributions. The panel-appointed committee found that the university had not provided sufficient evidence to support Ruick's assertion that his contributions had generated substantial financial returns.

Eventually, the university administration decided to support the panel-appointed committee's recommendations. As a result, Ruick was denied tenure, and Grossman's appointment was supported.

This case serves as a reminder of the importance of having an independent panel to review tenure decisions. Without such a panel, the risk of biased or incomplete evaluations increases. This case also highlights the need for clear and consistent criteria for tenure evaluations, as well as the importance of providing adequate support and resources for such evaluations.
Hitchhiking loses popularity

By Anna Bernard

The latest threat of U.S. students using area roadsides seems to have failed despite the past few years, according to several newspaper accountings.

But, since the hitchhiking that does exist does not present the problem of student drivers against the Iowa City Police Officer Patsi Salton, although the general public regards the Iowa City Police officer and his staff as a favorite of the average person.

And, as we have a large number of people, the general public regards the Iowa City Police officer and the public relations.
