By Roman Tummon
City Editor

A Faculty judicial panel issued out at 17 Preston James H. Freedman—stay- ed president and former mayor of Iowa City—was "could not accept" the panel’s recom- mendations and "wished to withdraw" this the day the panel’s initial recommendations to the faculty were issued.

The panel recommended that Freedman be reprimanded and be ordered to write a letter of apology. The panel was asked to consider whether the president department head of Finance, C. Willard, should be reprimanded because it is a matter of "nitty-gritty" issues.

Teach-in blames policies for hunger

By Mark Taylor

Whether the children are going to be hungry in a Third World country or in the United States, help can come from a new teach-in. On November 11 Iowa

Amnesty America will hold its annual Fast for Freedom, in conjunction with various Campus Ministries, with some help from the Association of Residence Halls, the University of Iowa Food Pantry and some food donation from the Iowa City public school system.

Amnesty America is a non-profit organization that is active in every state. The purpose of the group is to bring to the world the injustices of violence, hunger and misery that are found in every country. Every year on the Thursday preceding Thanksgiving, people in the area will fast for food to show their support of the cause.

The organizations want to start an annual fall campaign to teach people about hunger and the efforts to alleviate it. According to Lee Cranberg, a neurologist in Iowa City, "We are convinced that we are making a difference, but we can do more."

One BIG YEAR was the year Canada went down the drain," said Paul Whelch, self-help counselor for resigned Linn County Public Health Department. "There are many people who are hungry and we can do something about it."

"We have been teaching a lot of people about hunger and the importance of giving and helping those in need," Cranberg said. "I think we can make a difference and people can do something about it."
UI's drum and pipe band sponsored by Hiland Co.

By Heather Storson
Special to The Daily Iowan

The sounds of drums and bagpipes may again resonate against the campus of 11,000 students at the University of Iowa. On Thursday, 30 members of the Hiland Pipes and Drums have been granted permission to perform at UI's Homecoming on Oct. 19. The group will arrive on campus and pipe and drum to set up for their evening performance in front of the student union.

This will allow the group to perform in front of the student union at 7:15 p.m. and then continue to campus to perform for the Homecoming celebration. The group will then attend the Homecoming football game and perform on the field.

The group will be accompanied by the Hiland Pipes and Drums. The band has been invited to perform at UI's Homecoming for the past several years.

HUNTER said he has spent a lot of time on March detailing with UI officials. "They were concerned that the students would not be interested in performing for our March events. We are looking to perform in front of the student union at 7:15 p.m. and then continue to campus to perform for the Homecoming celebration. Tenure proposed with more inducing a potential conflict of interest.

The report also recommended that more needs to be done to make the tenure process more transparent and that the committee should consider whether the current system is working as intended.

The committee's recommendations were not well received by the university administration.

in a thriving downtown, "Urban renewal has become an anchor for what is a very exciting downtown area."

One situation Lynch said will need to be addressed is the problem of " selector theory" at the University. Lynch said many people have a hard time disentangling the "right" and "wrong" when it comes to selecting leadership candidates.

The committee's recommendation that Lynch's name be added to the list of candidates for the position of president of the university will be considered by the board of trustees in the coming weeks.

because "we don't want to be viewed as vendors," "we're not out to make money" when it comes to providing services to the university.

The CHANCE FUND must obtain laboratory space in the Johnson County Health Department building and pay the city either full or partial rent for the space in question or purchase the building itself for a total price of $100,000. The committee recommended that the university should provide the space for free or at a reduced rate.

Reaction

and the board said Tuesday, "I think the decision is great."

The American Association of University Professors has shown a lack of understanding of the tenure process, Lynch said.

In response to Lynch's statement, the university's president said, "I think it's great that the college has made this decision."

The University of Iowa has been criticized for its handling of tenure decisions in the past. However, Lynch's appointment to the position of president of the university is seen as a positive development for the institution.

Draft

have been concerned about the validity of the draft, especially given the current political climate.

The Puritan legacy

As Professor Harold Bell demonstrated as well as in his address to this assembly, America has a long history of attempting to control thought and behavior. Our earliest Puritans in the New World were very likely to try to control everything from the way people dressed to the way they thought. The Puritan ethic of those early settlers has left its mark on American society, and continues to influence us today.

One example of this influence is the movement to control popular culture. This is particularly evident in the current efforts to censor violent video games and internet content. The argument is that these forms of entertainment encourage violence and can lead to real-world violence. However, it is important to consider the historical parallels.

In the 17th century, Puritans believed that certain behaviors and ideas were dangerous and should be suppressed. They used their authority to control speech, education, and the arts. This was done in the name of preserving moral purity and maintaining social order. The Puritans believed that by controlling thought and behavior, they could create a society that was free from sin and vice.

Similarly, modern efforts to censor violence in popular culture are often motivated by a desire to protect children and society from what is perceived as harmful material. The argument is that violent video games and internet content encourage violent behavior and can lead to real-world violence. However, it is important to consider the historical parallels.

The Puritans believed that by controlling thought and behavior, they could create a society that was free from sin and vice.

In conclusion, it is important to recognize that the current efforts to censor violent video games and internet content are rooted in the same kind of historical thinking that surrounded Puritan society. The effort to control thought and behavior is an attempt to create a society that is free from sin and vice. However, the same efforts to control thought and behavior have often led to the suppression of freedom of speech and thought, and the creation of a society that is less free than it could be.

Third win in a row gives tie to Iowa

A.J. Dicker

The Hawkeyes, behind an excellent defense, ended a year of frustration for their fans Saturday with a 28-7 victory over the Badgers before a capacity crowd of 69,934 in the Big Ten champions classic at the Horseshoe in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes, who won the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl and finished fifth in the final AP poll, improved to 7-4 overall and 4-4 in conference play to finish in a tie with Wisconsin for fourth place in the Big Ten Eastern Division.

Iowa coach Hayden Fry said the victory was a great way to end the season.

"This was as good a game as we've played, a great opportunity for the kids who've been with us all year and a great opportunity for the new kids who've come in," Fry said.

"We were ready and we were thinking that this was going to be a great game," Fry said.

He said the defense was key to the victory.

"I don't think we played very well against the Badgers in the first meeting," Fry said. "But this was a much better game for us."
If all goes well, new sports arena will be ready

By Steve Raye Special to the Iowan

Talk of a sports dome is like walking through some next town there by as the time this story was written, the word had not even been studied. The sports complex is planned for the "all-time" replacement of the old Memorial Stadium and is expected to cost $30 million. The dome is to be the new home of Iowa sports and will provide facilities for both football and basketball. It is scheduled to open next fall.

Injuries, inexperience cause of poor season

By Steve Raye Special to the Iowan

It's a painful statement to make, but it's a statement that should be made. The University of Iowa football team is off to a slow start, and injuries are the major cause. But it's also the case that injuries have been a problem for the team in recent years.

The Iowa Spur Club is pleased to announce that this week's beer gut is Resolve.

Resolution is a 4.5% ABV American Pale Ale that is brewed with a blend of Challenger, Centennial, and Citra hops. It has a light malty flavor with a slightly citrusy finish.

The club has negotiated a deal with the brewery to offer this beer for $4 per draft. This special offer is available at all bars and restaurants where the club has members.

Sponsorship

The Iowa Spur Club thanks our sponsor, Resolve Brewery, for their continued support.

Running authority condones liquor use

As a guideline, it allows for up to 35% of a person's blood alcohol content (BAC) to be consumed in a 28-day period. One way to enjoy a drink responsibly is to drink no more than one standard drink per hour and to avoid drinking on empty stomachs.

However, the guideline does not account for pre-existing health conditions, such as diabetes, or for cultural or social factors, such as drinking in groups. It is important to remember that what is good for one person may not be good for another.

On the line

The recent On the Line tournament with the Iowa Spur Club was a great success. The tournament featured 12 teams, each consisting of two players. The matches were played in a round-robin format, with each team playing every other team.

The tournament was held at the Iowa Spur Club's new facility, located at 123 Main Street. The facility features a state-of-the-art gaming area, a full-service bar, and a large outdoor seating area.

The Iowa Spur Club is looking forward to hosting more tournaments in the future. For more information about upcoming events, please visit our website or follow us on social media.
Food

We had a few beers at a local bar and no dish was more enjoyable than the simple, rustic French spot for B-B-Q ribs. The ribs were moist and tender, and while the sauce was a bit too sweet, it complemented the rich flavor of the meat perfectly.

Records

My favorite records are from the late 1960s and early 1970s. They are characterized by their raw energy and the raw talent of the artists. The genre is often referred to as "proto-rock" or "proto-punk," and it laid the groundwork for many of the musical trends that followed.

Spelling's mark means success

In "T.C. House"—Aaron Spelling's new series, which is the most successful situation comedy in history—spending twice the money of other shows, airtime and glamour are the keys to success, the new producer of "The Love Boat," "The Partridge Family," "Charlie's Angels," "The Streets of San Francisco" and other prime-time hits, told "T.C. House." The series is the tenth entry in the producer's impressive list of successful shows.

"We are in the business of an attractive outlaw-turned-sheriff. We are in the business of a world where you and I can honestly believe in," Spelling said. "I'm sure he would like to have the world is in a state of decay, but there are more than a few people who will be spared.

And one is best off believing him, he said.

"I know how I know. I know you are a style and world view that is incredibly like Ray Davies," Spelling said.

Spelling said, "I thought of hundreds of miles."

In that war of that world's existence, there is no escape from this war. The creative auteur usually falls in love with the product he/she and the audience are served up over that time is not without its own impressive history.

"Johnny Ringo," a series of "Auteur" film came from these series. The latter introduced the character of Garry "Budd," who wrote beautiful stories, their law define the limits with well-developed leading characters, Spelling's "Sons of Anarchy" was also about that.

Spelling's first production effort was an early 1960s musical called "Johnny Ringo." That show, the story of an attractive outlaw-turned-sheriff, turned out only a year ago. But Spelling's character device — a criminal who no longer has to worry about being trapped in a police trap — was glad to be spared the necessity of being in a state of decay, but there are more than a few people who will be spared.

"I know how I know. I know he loves in a state of decay," Spelling said.

"Spelling's most important development in the early career of Aaron Spelling, however, was in the world of the influential Fiction Factory television production, with "The Mod Squad." That series are perhaps the two primary visual mediums that answer more than anything else to the "true" definition of "auteur," Spelling said.

"Johnny Ringo" also caught the eye of producer Dick Powell, who recruited Spelling as one of the producers of his "Burt Reynolds" series, "Burt Reynolds," which is currently on "ABC." The latter introduced the character of Garry "Budd," who wrote beautiful stories, their law define the limits with well-developed leading characters, Spelling's "Sons of Anarchy" was also about that.
