The Blue Cross plan would provide hospitals with an incentive to operate efficiently by allotting them a lump sum of money at the beginning of the year. instead of reimbursing their costs at the end of the year as is now the policy.

"It should have the effect of constraining the rate of costs," said Kenneth Yerington, director of financial management and control at the UI Hospitals. Though more guarded in his appraisal of the plan, Gary Nielsen, director of fiscal management for Mercy Hospital in Iowa City, said he thought it would have "some positive impact on health care," but also stated his belief this potential impact has been "overstated."

"What Blue Cross proposes is a prospective payment system. To me that means rate setting," Nielsen said. "In the past, rate setting hasn't been as effective as it was though to be."

PRELIMINARY DOUBTS due to the volume and complexity of the plan seemed to subside after a meeting Friday where local hospital executives heard Blue Cross consultant Henry Miller explain this "major shift" in the company's method of payment. "I think Dr. Miller has done an

Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for finance, said Monday that operational requests for the 1983-1985 biennium are "very realistic and in some respects modest."

THE ASKINGS include all costs to the UI except salary increases, which will be presented in March, Bezanson said. For 1983-84, the proposed budget is outlined as follows (salary figures are current, not proposed): • Faculty and institution officials' salaries - $84.6 million. Professional and scientific staff

Building repairs — $1.5 million.

• Essential program adjustments -$1.4 million.

The total UI 1983-84 proposed budget is $164,225,000. Of that, no fuel cost increases were anticipated because of favorable coal bids the UI received, Bezanson said. Supplies and services include laboratory materials, instructional supplies, paper, telephones and all incidental costs.

> TUITION INCREASES at the UI, estimated to generate $1.8 million in 1983-84, will offset some of the increased costs in the proposed budget. The total income from student fees is figured at $44.6 million for the year. UI President James O. Freedman will present the UI portion of the budget askings at the hearing in Des Moines. Bezanson said he expects Freedman will focus on the vitality fund request, an attempt to make faculty and professional and scientific staff salaries competitive with those at comparable institutions.

We've singled that out in a comparatively modest group of askings," Bezanson said. "Good people are

City studies affirmative action proposal

By Doug Herold Staff Writer

Employees of women- and minorityowned businesses in Iowa City are reacting with qualified enthusiasm to a proposal that would promote city use of their firms.

The Iowa City council currently is considering a program that would encourage city purchases from the companies. If the program is successful, minority- and women-owned firms would make up 3 percent of the city's contracts.

"It's a good move and recognizes the principles of affirmative action. While some people might not want to have them (affirmative action policies) they are there to address a long history of oppression," said Don Mikelson, president of the Iowa City chapter of the National Association for the Advance"But the city is just the city," says Don Mikelson. "They can encourage principles within the community, but they can only enforce what happens out of city hall."

ment of Colored People.

"But the city is just the city," he continued. "They can encourage principles within the community, but they can only enforce what happens out of city hall."

What happens at city hall, however, is important to workers at the The Iowa City Women's Press Inc. Manager Barb Wagner said the firm may be looking for more contracts if the program is implemented. For the past six months, the publishing house has been vying for city jobs, but has been underbid.

"WE WOULD REALLY like to get some of their business," said coworker Lisa Smith.

For black businessman Haywood Bell, the program would have more symbolic meaning than practical application in Iowa City, where there are fewer minority-owned businesses than in places such as Des Moines or Waterloo. Bell, president of B & B Engineering, said he believes "in principle and in general that the effort would be commendable."

Three years ago, B & B Engineering entered the market with a subcontract for city sewer work. The job was awarded. Bell said, because of an affirmative action clause in the Environmental Protection Agency grant that funded the work.

Women- and minority-owned businesses will have to rely on local policies like the one proposed in Iowa City because federal grant requirements have been diluted, he said. B & B is a small firm, according to Bell. It cannot afford to compete for city contracts with larger firms that have the ability to bid lower.

NANCY COMBS, president of the Iowa City/Johnson County Chapter of the National Organization for Women. said she was "very pleased to see a new direction taken by this city, although they may have to go a little out of their way" to find the com-

Once the companies are found, though, it will expand their market, according to Dennis Hoyle, acting president of R and N Information Systems. Hoyle, son of former UI Affirmative Action Director Classie Hoyle, said the program "would be generally helpful in establishing these businesses."

'They would be open to the more lucrative public contracts. It would be helpful for the community and would expose them to a variety of contractors.

City Rights Specialist Phyllis Williams and a city intern have compiled a list of minority and womenowned businesses in the Iowa City area for use by the council. As defined by Assistant City Manager Dale Helling, the program would encourage those companies to submit bids on goods and services.

Brooks' execution cleared

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court Monday night refused to stay the execution of Texas death row inmate Charlie Brooks, clearing the way for him to be executed by lethal injection at 12:05 a.m. this morning.

The Supreme Court was the last known hope of a reprieve for Brooks. He lost three appeals earlier Monday for a delay of his execution.

Reagan pushes MX plan

WASHINGTON - President Reagan spearheaded an intense, day-long lobbying effort Monday aimed at winning congressional approval of $988 million for the MX missile. Aides and congressional leaders predict a close vote, with debate on the MX clouded by opposition to the "dense pack" basing plan recommended by Reagan. Proponents of the plan say it will "send a signal" to the Soviet Union, while detractors say it is technically flawed and useless.

Reactor won't be restarted

WASHINGTON - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Monday it is postponing indefinitely a decision whether to allow restarting of the undamaged Three Mile Island Unit 1 reactor, which has been closed four years.

The company that owns the reactor has encountered strong community opposition to its plans to restart the plant. Nearby residents voted against a restart by a 2-1 margin in a non-binding referendum last May 18.

Abortion rules considered

WASHINGTON - Health officials are proposing rules to make it more cumbersome and expensive for federally-funded clinics to offer both family planning aid and abortions, government documents show.

The proposed guidelines would require such agencies to have separate entrances and personnel if they also perform abortions. An estimated 21 clinics, 44 hospitals and nine other agencies now do both. Planned Parenthood says the guidelines would increase costs "sharply" and are a Reagan administration attempt to ban legal abortion.

Debris delays probe into cause of blaze

By Mary Tabor Staff Writer

City

An investigation into the cause of Friday night's fire that threatened to engulf half a block of downtown Iowa City cannot be made until construction contractors clear out the debris, according to officials at the Iowa City Fire Department.

"The building is unsafe to enter," Fire Marshal Larry Kinney said Monday. He indicated it will be several days before investigators can even get into the scorched structure to search for clues.

Monday afternoon dirty water spewed from the basement of Dean's women's clothes store and Micky's bar and grill and ran down South Dubuque Street. Micky's employees said the water reached the top of their boots. It was up to "four feet at one time," said Kenneth Irving, Iowa City Fire Department battalion chief.

HE AND A FEW firefighters picked through some of the wreckage Monday for equipment left behind Saturday morning

Irving said Burger Construction Co. will start demolishing the building Wednesday. The fire deaprtment will work with them and stop the work along the way if they need to examine some point.

Micky's will not reopen for six or seven weeks, according to Longou Aziz, kitchen manager for the establishment. He said he could make no estimate of the damage yet.

Also assessing the damage Monday was Gerald Seiffert, owner of the building north of Comer's and Lind's Printing Service. He and a group of contractors and insurance adjusters toured the charred remains of Aardvark's Bazaar.

"It will be a week or so before we can get the figures on losses. It depends on how much heat the south wall has had." he said

Gifts of beef, energy possible in certificate

By Paul Boyum Staff Write

To shed some light on the subject of gift-giving this holiday season, Iowa Electric Light & Power of Cedar Rapids has come up with a bright idea. Now, instead of giving grandma a new sweater to keep her warm you can give her a gift of energy

The "I Care Card" is an energy gift certificate customers can purchase in denominations from $5 to $100 which can be applied to any Iowa Electric gas or electricity bill. The card is Iowa Electric's entry into the growing number of gift-certificate-oriented products and services that can't be wrapped or wouldn't keep under a Christmas tree

Horace Webb, Iowa Electric vice president for corporate affairs, said the certificates were introduced Nov. 29 and sales were good the first week. Webb said his company's energy gift certificates were the first of their kind in the country

Iowa Electric serves northern Johnson County and the Hills area, bill if someone requested it.

"WE WOULD JUST write a letter to the person you wanted to give the gift to, telling them they'll be credited on their next bill," Hoogerwerf said. "We have had a couple requests to do this." The Iowa Beef Industry Council has a different idea in mind for a stocking stuffer. They are trying to promote "Iowa corn-fed beef" by offering beef gift certificates "because you just can't leave five pounds of prime rib to rot under a Christmas tree," said Mark Fischer, marketing representative for the council

The beef gift certificates have been sold for the last seven years, Fischer said, and he expects sales this year to top $50,000. The certificates come in denominations of $5, $10 and $20 and grocery store or meat locker.

Calls to several Iowa City restaurants indicate the certificates aren't being widely used in this part of the state. Michael Gay of the Gay Locker Company said he doesn't recall f the beef certificate Dorothy O'Brien, owner of the local McDonald's restaurants, said she was unaware of the promotion and was unsure what the redemption policy would be at McDonald's.

Maher agrees with UNI's opposition to Reagan's wage issue. "I think we should speak out on things like that," she said. UI Student Senate President Patty Maher gid Monday she agrees with the stand taken

But Roger Meyer, press secretary of Congressman Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, said the proposal has little chance of being proposed as legislation to be voted on by this lame duck Congress.

"IT'S A LONG WAYS to being brought to the floor," he said Monday. And because all legislation which remains unpassed by the end of this Congress's last session "dies," he sees no possibility of it being voted on until the members of the next Congress are sworn

Reagan's proposal is designed to help alleviate the nation's faltering economy by lowering the $3.35 minimum hourly wage and give employers the incentive to hire more

Lower minimum wage issue debated teenagers during the summer Meyer said he has not talked about the issue with Evans because of the remote possibility of the proposal's being voted on at this time. But members of the UNISA said Evans' not taking a stand on the wage issue is news to them. They polled most of Iowa's Con-gressional representatives about the issue and Evans told them he favors the proposal, "but hopes to ensure rights of teenagers."

"Well, he's improved since yesterday," said Rusty Martin, UNISA president, of Evans' position as Meyers stated it.

"WE DIDN'T WANT it to slip by," Martin said, as legislation often does during lame duck sessions of Congress. "More ridiculous bills have been passed" during that time, he observed.

"President Reagan has cut our financial aid, decreased job opportunities for young people and has now proposed a bill which would throw students above the age limit out of work. Maybe he thinks his is helping us. He isn't," Martin's press release said.

The UI will not lower its wages even if legislation allowing it is passed, said Mark Warner, UI associate director of student financial aid.

"The UI has always been ahead of the minimum wage," he said. Currently the UI pays $3.50 an hour, 15 cents above minimum wage, and Warner does not think the UI would lower wages.

Iowa City Mayor Mary Neuhauser called the proposal "a drastic step backward in this country.

"I certainly wouldn't support something like that. I can't see that there would be any great advantages in it at all."

The current economic hard times are putting a heavy stress on families that tould cause an increase in the number of runaway children, according to the directors of two local agencies that deal with runaways.

Jim Swaim, director of United Action for Youth, said "there's definitely some relaion between the economy, domestic violence, and family stress. And whenever here's family stress, there's an increasing chance for runaways."

Ken Kuppy, director of the Iowa City Crisis Center, said that the number of unaways is "going up slightly because of the added stresses of the financial situa-United Action for Youth handles about 20-Ørunaways a year, Swaim said. The Iowa City Crisis Center handles 10 or less runaways a year, according to Kuppy. Should the number of runaways increase. lowa City is not prepared to handle the roblem, said Kuppy. "There's not a whole lot of places to go." The Crisis Center has only one bed available for a runaway. THE PROBLEM is somewhat alleviated by the fact that most of the runaways return to their parents, said Swaim. If they don't want to return home, then United Action for Youth sends them to the Department of Social Services, as is required by the state juvenile code.

The vast majority of the children that run away from home do so because of conflicts with their parents, said Kuppy. "It's usually a communication problem, although occasionally it's because of sexual abuse

Iowa City is fortunate in that very few local runaways simply disappear, as so often happens in other cities. Most of the children get in contact with an agency in town, and when they do "they are chan-nelled into something," said Kuppy, such as the Department of Social Services or a foster home. Standard police procedure is to hold an unidentified child until "we can run down their name," said Knock.

The advent of colder weather will decrease the number of runaways temporarily, because children are frightened to leave home in the dead of winter. "We do get a few when school's in session, or when the weather's cold, but most of them are in the summer," said Kuppy. "It's a little easier to go somewhere in the summer," said Knock.

REFERRING to President Reagan's recent signing into law of a bill that will allow the FBI to use children's fingerprints to help identify missing or dead children, Kuppy said it isn't very important as far as Iowa City is concerned. "It sounds more like a big-city problem to me. I'm more concerned about what happens in our pond."

Knock said though, that "in some aspects, it would help." The only other way police can identify children now is if they are carrying some identification, which they usually aren't, or if they will give their names. However, many of the runaways refuse to give their names, or give false names, and it makes their identities "very hard to trace down."

Famous lovers live on in hearts of UI students

By George Randels Special to The Daily Iowan

What do Rhett Butler and Scarlet O'Hara, Romeo and Juliet and Pebbles and Bamm-Bamm have in common? They are all pairs of famous lovers used as pseudonyms in a letter-writing exchange between N200 Currier Hall and the 5th floor of Stanley Hall, which culminated in a party last month.

Each Currier Hall participant received a name and the matching name was assigned to a woman on the 5th floor of Stanley Hall. There were 32 pairs of "lovers" in all, and real names and room numbers were kept secret until the party. The "lovers" paired off for about five minutes to get acquainted and then all joined in for a wine and cheese Party. The famous lovers' letters idea was a

'brainstorm'' between N200 Floor President Chris Columbia, Jenifer Nordenson, Stanley 5th RA, and Marie Callas, Stanley 2nd RA.

"This whole thing is great," Colum-bia said. "It's the biggest event on the floor so far as participation goes." The pairs of "lovers" exchanged letters for about three weeks before the

"THE LETTERS were kind of a joke," said Kim Pieters (alias Laura Spencer of General Hospital). "We rote in character how much we were in love and missed each other. He (John Evans, alias Luke Spencer) wrote 'Gotta go, they're after me' at the end of each one.

"We also wrote a few things about ourselves," she said. Bob McGee (Spencer Tracy) and Jane Radabaugh (Katharine Hepburn) had a little more trouble with the contents of their letters, however. "I have never seen a Spencer Tracy movie," McGee said. "I didn't know what he was like. Since they were supposed to be in love, I wrote mostly garbage.

Radabuagh said her letters were mostly mush - the string-along and play-along type - and that the letters contained no personal information.

"Just played on the famous lovers idea," she said.

Radabaugh, McGee, Columbo and the rest of the "lovers" seemed to agree that the whole exchange was a successful.

"It was a good idea for girls to be able to meet some other guys," said Radabaugh, "especially since Stanley is a girls' dorm."

DESPITE trying to keep true iden-tities a secret by depositing the letters to be exchanged in the Currier head resident's office, there was a leak, Nordenson said.

"It was through a rhetoric class," she said. "They ended up having some classes together, of all things." DI Classified Ads are great little workers

Hillcrest preschoolers celebrate Christmas early world news

By Jeff Beck Staff Writer

Christmas came early - literally for 19 kids who participate in a local Headstart program in Hillcrest.

Santa arrived with a sleigh and several moving carts full of toys for the youngsters, compliments of the residents of Hillcrest.

Beginning in October, Hillcrest residents began to work with officials from the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program Headstart preschool to plan the second annual Christmas party for the children in the federally-funded preschool program.

Conceived by Head Resident Barry Mills last year, the event grew in size this year with more money being raised and more children participating in the program.

This year $97 was raised for the 19 children - four more than were involved last year. One or a combination of two floors sponsored each youngster.

Clothes and toys - chosen after the children's parents had filled out suggestion forms - were passed out by Santa to the youngsters, whose parents met low income requirements for the Headstart program.

Hillcrest residents raised money for the party through donations, bake sales, a skate-a-thon and a variety of other events, according to Tracy Baker, who coordinated the effort this vear.

blond, mop-topped little boy. "I'm Spider Man," said Carl after for the boy or girl their floor sponsored, outnumbering the children by putting on the mask of one of his about 10 to one "It's great. This is for kids and I favorite superheroes. But the parents were also obviously haven't seen this many people at a party all year," Dianne Stoddard, pleased; more pleased with the prac-

another Hillcrest resident said. "They tell me they really enjoy doing it for the kids Hillcrest worked really hard to put this on," said Sue Gourley, a family worker for Johnson County. Christmas music emanated from a piano in the corner and choruses of 'Rudolf the Red Nose Reindeer," "Jingle Bells," and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town'' soon broke out.

The kids began their evening meeting their hosts, accepting rides on students' shoulders and finding their stockings, and supplies of cookies, punch and candy canes.

"It's nice to see them have fun. It feels fun to give and it gets us in the Christmas spirit," Beth Jackson, a Hillcrest resident, said.

THE ARRIVAL of Santa Claus' sleigh, pulled by resident assistants wearing twigs for antlers, highlighted the evening. Santa, known as former Stanley Head Resident Steve Pilchen, distributed the presents with numerous greetings of "Merry Christmas" and tical gifts than their children were. "Most of the kids have brothers and sisters. It really helps out the family when they don't have to deal with buying boots or a coat for one child," Baker said.

As young Rashmi sat in the center of a circle of her sponsors blowing soap bubbles, her mother said, "I think she enjoys it. That's most important. I'm enjoying it because of her.'

"He's probably getting more than he could from us," admitted the mother of a boy named Nicky.

GOURLEY SAID, "It's fantastic. It helps 19 children and their parents enjoy Christmas I hope they can do it in the future.'

In all there are 65 children who participate in the local Headstart preschool program centered in Iowa City. About 30 attend on a part-day basis, going twice a week.

Of the 30 part-day students eligible for the Hillcrest party, 19 participated in the party with parents making the decisions.

Steve Pilchen, as Santa, passes out gifts in Hillcrest Main Lounge to children from the local Headstart program.

Ceremony to honor Pearl Harbor dead

HONOLULU (UPI) - A moment sunken hull of the Arizona, the bodies before 7:55 a.m. today, a shipyard of 1,178 men remain entombed. For whistle will be sounded at Pearl Harbor, bringing all activity at the Pacific military base to a standstill. The whistle, to be followed by a moment of silence to honor the fallen, will mark the 41st anniversary of the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

Only the whistle, a gunfire volley from an honor guard and a Hawaii Air National Guard fly-over will echo across the now-still waters of Pearl Harbor.

Private memorial services will be held aboard the USS Arizona Memorial to honor persons killed in the bombing, which plunged the United States into World War II.

Joseph K. Taussig Jr., deputy assistant secretary of the Navy, who was severely wounded on the USS Nevada during the attack, will give the keynote address at the ceremony.

many years, the count was one less, but an urn containing the ashes of a former crewman, who asked to be buried with his former shipmates, was lowered into the hull last year.

In less than two hours that Sunday morning 41 years ago, the United States' Pacific Fleet was laid in ruins. A precision three-wave attack by a combination of Japanese torpedo planes and dive bombers, followed by horizontal bombers and another wave of dive bombers, swooped down on "Battleship Row," inflicting heavy casualties.

Of the 96 ships in the harbor, 18 were sunk or heavily damaged. Nine battleships were hit, but six were repaired and took part in action in the defeat of Japan.

The three that were destroyed include the memorialized Arizona USS Utah, which was being used as a target ship and remains where she sank, and the Oklahoma, which was raised and sunk again off Honolulu to clear the harbor. In addition, 92 Navy aircraft were destroyed and 31 damaged. The Army Air Corps lost 96 planes and had 128 damaged The loss of lives totaled 2,403, nearly half of them Navy personnel. The Army had 218 killed, Marines 109 and civilians 68. The wounded total reached

The main issues and answers: • Why did the Israelis let the Christian Phalange into the Palestinian refugee camps of Sabra and Chatila? Who gave the order?

The militiamen were sent in to clean out the 2,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas the Israelis thought were still in the camps after inesses about the massacre. the August-September evacuation of west Beirut by 14,000 Palestinian fighters.

Defense minister Ariel Sharon allowed the Phalange to enter on the basis of a June 15 cabinet decision calling for the militiamen to aid Israeli forces. Sharon did not inform Begin or the Cabinet of his orders until the Phalange were in the camps.

• Didn't anyone fear the Phalange would avenge the Sept. 14 assassination of their leader, Lebanese Presidentelect Beshir Gemayel, by slaughtering Palestinians at the camps?

Begin testified: "The president-elect was murdered and we all saw the killing that broke out and therefore assumed there could be acts of revenge by everyone." But, "we saw (the Phalange) as a regular military unit which would not deviate from its task and which would not carry out atrocities.

Israel's Northern Commander Maj. Gen. Amir Drori said: "Everyone, somewhere in his mind, thought about this possibility" of a massacre.

Deputy Prime Minister David Levy heard about the assault during a Sept. 16 cabinet meeting. He warned the Phalange were capable of slaughtering but Begin testified he did not hear him. No one else heeded the warning.

Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Rafael Eitan warned at the meeting the Phalange were "sharpening their knives."

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir disregarded the warning. • When did the Israelis discover a massacre occurred?

As early as Thursday night, only hours after the militiamen went in, Brig. Gen. Amos Yaron, commander of Israeli forces in Beirut, had reports from his officers that civilians were killed. He told Drori the next morning and Drori ordered the operation halted at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

The same morning, Israeli military intelligence got a report that 300 civilians were dead. An intelligence officer testified he passed on the report to Avi Dudai, Sharon's top aide. Dudai denied receiving the report.

After Drori ordered the operation stopped, Yaron allowed in Phalange reinforcements. Eitan arrived in Beirut in the afternoon after Drori called. Eitan and top Israeli officers met with Phalange commanders at 4 p.m. Friday.

Yaron said Eitan allowed the Phalange to remain in the camps until 5 a.m. Saturday.

Communications Minister Mordechai Zippori called Shamir at noon Friday to say the Phalange were 'carrying out a slaughter." Shamir testified Zippori used the expression "running amok" and not "slaughter." Shamir testified he did not act on the warning.

escaped without injuries," he said in a telephone interview

A group of San Sebastian parents who visited El Mundo newspaper in San Salvador said they would seek assistance from the Red Cross to convince the rebels to release their children.

Red Cross officials were not immediately available for comment.

The guerrillas' Radio Venceremos earlier said the army and air force have been pounding civilian areas in the war-torn Morazan province, "leavictims." It gave no other information on the alleged attacks.

One officer in Morazan's capital, San Francisco Gotera, said the guerrillas fabricated the charges about army attacks on civilians to draw attention away from "their defeat and also the inability to hold small villages."

ANOTHER OFFICER in San Francisco Gotera said army troops overran six guerrilla camps and killed or wounded at least 50 rebels in the past week during the Morazan offensive. He said the army suffered six dead isting payment system which allowed insurance rates to increase this year at an average of 27 percent for group plans

"It's only natural there would be questions," said Sheri Vohs, Blue Cross public affairs spokeswoman. Blue Cross got a chance to respond to those questions Friday at a meeting sponsored by the Iowa Hospital Association.

Over 100 of Iowa's 135 hospitals were represented at the "positive working meeting," according to Blue Cross spokesman Cliff Gold

"The questions were good. The answers were good. No one lost their temper," he said. "When you're asking a hospital to make a major shift in the way they've always been paid, you expect a negative reaction, but the hospitals have just taken a wait-andsee attitude.

"I didn't get the sense there was hostility in the questions, just some concern about getting down to the specifics," Yerington said.

THE MOST controversial point of the plan was the elimination of depreciation as a financial requirement of hospitals provided by the prospective payments, Gold said. According to the plan, depreciation will be replaced by a capital facilities allowance.

"Depreciation should be replaced by an approach that provides funds to hospitals at a rate that is related to need. At the same time, however, it is important to recognize that Iowa has excess hospital capacity," the Blue Cross report states.

"The approach used to arrive at plant capital costs must recognize the need to eliminate excess capacity without impeding the necessary replacement and advancement of the state's hospital system," the report continued

Yerington said the replacements for the depreciation allowance, or what the UI Hospitals refer to as the growth and development factor, "appear equitable."

THE NEW PLAN proposes not to pay any hospital costs attributable to medical research. This provision appears to apply specifically to the UI Hospitals. Yerington said Medicare and Medicaid have never covered medical research and he saw this as an 'appropriate exclusion.

Under the new plan, small and large hospitals are dealt with separately. Large hospitals, those with over 100 beds, must submit a detailed yearly budget review.

"Blue Cross indicated that about 80 percent of their total payout goes to 20 percent of the hospitals in Iowa." Yerington said. "We understand that you can't expect the largest hospital in the state not to be reviewed.

Village's handgun ban upheld

CHICAGO (UPI) - A federal appeals court Monday upheld the village of Morton Grove's ordinance prohibiting the sale and possession of handguns.

A panel of judges from the 7th Cir-cuit U.S. Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 the ban does not violate either the Illinois or the U.S. Constitution

The opinion, written by Judge William J. Bauer, quoted the Second Amendment to the U.S. Constitution: 'A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be abridged." "According to its plain meaning,"

Bauer wrote, "it seems clear that the right to bear arms is inextricably connected to the preservation of a militia.

The Illinois Constitution does not prohibit a ban on gun ownership, he said, and Illinois municipalities have a constitutional right to ban ownership or sale of items determined to be dangerous.

Curb landlords' greed

Greed is an ugly thing and nowhere is it more evident than in the Jowa City housing market. Rents charged by Jowa City landlords have been among the highest in the state for more than a decade. Taking advantage of the burgeoning UI enrollment, many landlords are gouging students for artificially high rates. Money that should be used for education is instead lining the pockets of entrepreneurs.

This costs us all. Students have to take out government loans, not to defray the costs of education, but merely to pay their rents. In other words, all of us as taxpayers are subsidizing local landlords in their quest for more money. The shortage of housing means landlords can ask whatever price they want, and there is little a person can do but pay.

Pete Grady, former director of the Protective Association for Tenants, has come up with an alternative. He suggests the city adopt a fair rent ordinance requiring the establishment of a maximum rental value for all housing units. This would make Iowa City the first town in the state to have such a law.

Most city officials appear to be against such an ordinance. Councilor John Balmer said "It's unproper and it's out of context of what city government should be involved in." He and other officials hope the problem will "work itself out" in the free market. They are wrong; as Grady has noted, increasing UI enrollment has turned the situation into a "landlord's market". A rent control policy is sorely needed in Iowa City. Landlords have been taking advantage of students for too long, and with the UI enrollment predicted to increase even further, something must be done soon. Grady's proposal makes sense - we hope city officials will act before more students get burned.

Money talks

Last week's vote by the U.S. House of Representatives to exempt state-regulated professionals from Federal Trade Commission antitrust authority deserves condemnation. But equally disturbing is the influence exercised over Congress by such professions through lobbying and campaign contributions.

The bill, which passed the House by a 245-155 vote, lifts the FTC's authority over all professionals licensed by the states (most notably doctors, lawyers and dentists). In effect, it means there will be no federal regulation of the business and trade practices of the exempted professions. And because most state licensing boards are usually made up of professionals from the fields they oversee, there is legitimate concern that antitrust and consumer protection laws may not be properly enforced.

Avoiding the appearance of conflict of interest is one good reason to keep federal authority over state licensing boards, but many congressmen apparently don't see it that way. Common se, a public interest lobbying group, suggests that Congress's blind spot may be caused by the enormous campaign contributions of groups such as the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association, and the prolonged, intense lobbying those groups engaged in to get favorable legislation enacted. Common Cause last week said the AMA and ADA contributed more than $3 million to congressional campaigns in the last two elections, and their contributions to those congressmen voting for the FTC bill averaged $10,875 in the last election, compared to average contributions of $4,352 to those representatives voting against the bill. The Iowa congressmen voting for the bill - Republicans Tom Tauke and Cooper Evans and Democrat Neal Smith - received $8,500, $7,000 and $2,400, respectively, from AMA and ADA in the last election. Of those voting against the bill, Democrats Tom Harkin and Berkley Bedell received $250 each from the medical groups, while Republican Jim Leach refuses all political action committee contributions. From these figures, it is not safe to say that money buys votes in Congress - but it seems to speak very loudly. Unfortunately, the consumers who will be hurt if this bill becomes law do not have the money to amplify their voices in Washington.

Rally: what was and wasn't said

By Janet McNaughton

CTOBER'S TAKE Back the Night program and the events surrounding it have received considerable many would say sufficient - attention in The Daily Iowan. However, it has largely been attention distorted by prejudice and a seemingly willful disregard for facts. Now that the dust has settled, it is interesting to review what was said - and not said - about it. Apart from Sandi Wisenberg's column (DI, Oct. 25), the paper's editorials and stories focused on the rally's exclusion of men and the media and on the alleged assault of a DI reporter. As the majority of the letters printed in the DI show, the result was to divert public concern away from the purpose of TBTN into peripheral issues.

The nature of the response confirms Adrienne Rich's comment that "The deliberate withdrawal of women from men has almost always been seen as a potentially dangerous or hostile act, a conspiracy, a subversion, a needless and grotesque thing, while the exclusion of women from men's groups is rationalized by arguments familiar to us all, whether the group is a priesthood, a dining club, a fishing expedition, an academic committee, or a Mafioso rendezvous." (Of Women Born: Motherhood as Experience and Institution)

THE CRITICISM aimed at TBTN suggests that the decision to make the rally a gathering for women only was more disturbing to the DI and its readers than the violence against women that we gathered to speak out against. This ordering of priorities is the reverse of what it should be, no matter how one feels about the rally and its organization.

If, as critics of the rally claim, an injustice was done to men by abridging their access to the park for three hours of one evening, it is a relatively minor injustice compared to the sexual harassment, rape, incest and battering suffered by women at the hands of men every day. Consider: whether a woman has herself been a victim of rape or assault, the fear of these things governs her movement. She can never walk through College Green Park or any other part of Iowa City after dark without considering the possibility of being attacked. This is psychological terrorism, perhaps the most insidious injustice there is.

One of the most frequent criticisms of TBTN was that it alienated men supportive of women's rights. This position was advanced by Derek Maurer, who has repeatedly referred to TBTN as an event that excluded part of the community (DI, Oct. 21, Oct. 27, Nov. 18), and by Liz Bird, who also regretted that "the women's movement may be retreating into self-absorption" (DI, Oct. 29).

THESE CRITICISMS might be just if the rally had been the only event in the TBTN program. It was not. On the night of the rally a meeting in the Union's Wisconsin Room was set up by the rally's organizers for supportive men. The organizers reserved the room, found discussion leaders and provided materials for discussion, including a sheet addessing the question of men and the TBTN program. It is unjust to say that the organizers were self-absorbed and indifferent to the need for men to address the issue of violence against women when they arranged a meeting specifically for

I question the sincerity of those "supportive" men who feel alienated by the rally. Men who came to the rally were informed of the meeting in the Union and asked to attend if they wished to show support. Any man who insisted on staying at the rally to show his support was refusing to respect the wishes of the women he claimed to support. Insisting on giving "support" in a way that is not appreciated is not to support, but to harass.

It may be that Maurer and Bird felt that TBTN should not have been split into two sex-segregated events. If so, they should have said that. To ignore the Union meeting while criticizing the exclusion of men from the rally was simply to misrepresent the TBTN program.

BUT WHY WAS the meeting in the Union ignored? Why was no reporter sent to cover it? Lack of knowledge of the meeting cannot be the answer, as the organizers held press conferences on the Saturday of the rally and also the following day. Can it be because this meeting took place "offstage" and did not promise a sensational story? Or is it possible that the DI staff was so incensed because women deliberately chose to withdraw from men for three hours that they intentionally cast the rally in a discrediting light?

There is, unfortunately, some evidence for both of these hypotheses in the DI's coverage of the assault alleged to have taken place at the rally. As of Nov. 1, Paul Boyum reported that "no formal charges have been filed" by News Editor Tim Severa. Yet his earlier story included five quoted or attributed remarks that refer to "violence" or "beating up" as though the facts had already been established (DI, Oct. 27).

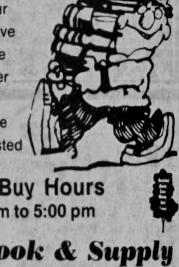

The DI has exploited the shock value of Severa's story, quoting more than once his claims that he was beaten and his life threatened, even within the article stating that he had not yet filed charges. As the letters to the editor show, this inflammatory and misleading reporting has left some readers with the misinformation that charges were filed (G.D. Smith and S.C. Swisher, DI, Nov. 5) and that the alleged assault had been proven (E. Fleming, DI, Nov. 5). There has been, however, no proof other than Severa's word that he was assaulted, and given his record of harassing a former girlfriend, (DI, Nov. 1), this is not reliable evidence.

THE MOST RECENT jab at TBTN, Hoyt Olsen's tasteless parody, 'Scholars, take back the library," also betrays a bias against the program and a disregard for the issues (DI, Dec. 1). While it is not clear whether Olsen is using the situation at the library to mock TBTN or vice versa, his column implicitly equates rape, an act of physical and psychological aggression, with noise, which is no more than an irritation. It is a good example of why the TBTN organizers did not welcome journalists.

Sandi Wisenberg's column and parts of Liz Bird's column show that Olsen's callousness is not shared by the entire DI staff. However, the paper's coverage of TBTN has been misrepresentative and sensationalistic, and it must take responsibility for that. It is the media's right to criticize, but their first job is to inform. In letting its criticisms of the rally color its coverage of the entire TBTN program, the DI obscured the serious issue of violence against women addressed by TBTN, which is a disservice to all its readers, male and female alike.

McNaughton is Scholar-in-Residence at Cornell College, Mount Vernon.

Greeks merit praise

According to the stereotype, campus greeks are a type of mindless and selfish sub-human species. They are perceived as either jocks or preppies whose main concerns are sports, clothes and the next mixer rather than school work and their fellow beings.

Anyone who has worked with fraternity and sorority members knows better. Ask Lary Belman, chapter director of the Johnson County Red Cross. Last spring he requested help from the greek system in raising money for his organization - the local Red Cross has been troubled by budget concerns for the past few years. Hope Truckenmiller of the Alpha Phi sorority had an idea. She organized a penny drive after reading about a similar project at another university. After one month of collection efforts by campus fraternity and sorority members, more than $2,100 in pennies was raised.

The Red Cross is very pleased at the results. Belman said he hoped the greeks might be able to raise $400, but is overwhelmed by the response. And the money couldn't have come at a more opportune time. The recent downtown fire again found the Red Cross in action. Not only did it furnish food and drink to the local firefighters combatting the blaze from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m., but it has also provided temporary housing for those whose apartments were gutted by the flames.

Campus greeks have again shown their mettle by their latest success at raising funds for a good cause. The Red Cross certainly appreciated their efforts, as should we all. Members of the university's fraternities and sororities are to be commended for a job well done.

Letters

Devoted non-virgin To the editor:

I would like to correct two errors made by Craig Wyrick in "'Rocky Horror' veils morals well" (DI, Nov. 12): his definition of a virgin and the moral of the movie.

I have seen Rocky Horror (RH) 51 times. Wyrick said that a virgin is someone "who has never seen RH." That used to be true about three or four years ago. But, now, the basic rule is that you have to see RH at least 10 times in order to become devirginized. If, however, you see RH in a theater where it plays regularly, the audience will still call you a virgin until you have seen RH at least 50 times. Basically, if you're from an area where RH rarely or never plays and you've seen it 10 times, then you can consider yourself devirginized.

In addition to being incorrect about the definition of a virgin, Wyrick was also incorrect about the moral of the movie. He said, "according to director Jim Sharman: 'Sexual anarchy is not meant for this world, and humans were not meant to engage in all forms of sexual perversity.'" To begin with, Richard O'Brien created the play, not Jim Sharman; so O'Brien is the only one who really knows the moral. If the moral is what Sharman said, then the movie had the exact opposite effect. Furthermore, if Sharman's moral is correct, why did O'Brien create Shock Treatment (a sequel to RH)? I've seen Shock Treatment twice, and the movie has the same kind of lines and some of the same characters as RH. If O'Brien had wanted to get Sharman's moral across, I think he would have tried a different approach.

I don't think there really is a moral to the movie. Instead, I think that RH serves two purposes: to have a good time (by relieving tension) and to let you be anyone you want to be. However, if there is a moral, it would have to be that you can be as crazy as you want and you will still be accepted at RH Denise Goff

Hope for peace

To the editor: Nov. 29 was the 35th anniversary of the UN General Assembly resolution to partition Palestine into a Jewish and a Palestinian Arab state. A war for control of Palestine began the very next day in 1947 when the Jews were attacked in major cities.

On May 14, 1948, the Jews proclaimed the independence of the state of Israel in their part of Palestine. But Jordan occupied and, in 1950, annexed most of the other part, while Egypt occupied the rest.

Seven of the 11 member nations of the UN Special Commission on Palestine supported partition, and the partition passed by a majority of 33-13, with the support of the United States and the Soviet Union. There were 11 abstentions, including the British, who had governed Palestine since the end of World War I. Most Jews in Palestine also accepted the partition plan, but the Arabs did not. They were opposed to partition, to further Jewish immigration and to a Jewish state in any part of Palestine

1982 is no different in that Israel is still embroiled in conflict with some of its neighbors. As an American Jew, I support further negotiations in the Middle East, where armed confrontations often displace mediation.

If recognizing the legitimate rights of the Palestinians requires sacrifices by Israel, it would be worth it, I believe, for a guarantee of safety. Specifically, wouldn't Israel's withdrawal to its pre-1967 borders be a bitter but worthy sacrifice if it brought a guaranteed peace? Quentin Pitluk

Equal pay To the editor:

Women have overcome many obstacles in their fight for equality in the working world, but there is a long way to go. According to Jeffrey L. Sheler of U.S. News and World Report, in 1980 women earned 63 percent of what men earned, or about $204 per week. He found that one of the reasons for the low percentage is the large concentration of women (70 percent) in low-paying jobs such as clerical, sales, service, and factory jobs. The percentages for the professional fields are higher than the average percentage. This shows that women should not be afraid to aim their career goals for the professional fields, even though they are not 100 percent in either.

Employers would say that they hire men and women at the same wage, but the question is whether they stay the same after 10 or 20 years. Columbia University conducted a study with graduates who got Masters degrees in business administration between 1969 and 1972. They found men and women were hired for similar jobs at nearly equal pay but by 1979 men were in higher positions and outearned women by an average of $14,000 a year.

Men need to start thinking of women as fellow employees, not as weak and helpless women. The solution of forcing attitudes to change is up to the lawmakers in Washington. I do not think they need to make up another amendment to the Constitution. What they need to do is strengthen the laws they already have for discrimination.

This letter is to all women who are working for a menial wage or for the women who have not ventured into the working world but are concerned about when they do. We need to stand up and show men that we can do a man's job and should be paid for a man's job. Mary Crosheck Route 2, Oxford

Insensitivity

To the editor:

I write in regard to the front page headline "Sewer project, retarded facility both get funds" (DI, Nov. 23). This headline suggests gross insensitivity on the part of The Daily lowan for those of us who have long been concerned with the lack of respect shown to the mentally handicapped by the rest of society.

The mentally handicapped have been treated as second-class citizens in America long enough. Now your paper, however unintentionally, has given them second-billing to a sewer project.

Before anyone assumes I am overreacting, in the place of "retarded facility" place "elderly facility" or 'day-care facility" or "Women's Resource Center.' Andy Dvorak

Heavy flooding hits St. Louis suburbs

VALLEY PARK, Mo. (UPI) - The rainswollen Meramec River forced about 18,000 people to evacuate their homes in the St Louis suburbs Monday, some of the stranded desperately signaling for help with bedsheets draped out windows.

The Meramec, which was to crest late Monday 20 feet above flood stage downstream at Arnold, produced the most severe flooding in the Mississippi River Valley.

Flooding for five days in Missouri has forced the evacuation of 24,500 people and damaged at least 13,000 homes, officials said. Illinois, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi also were hit.

Farther north, winter weather turned from rain to snow and dumped three inches of snow in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The Missouri Emergency Management Agency said 10,000 of the damaged homes were in St. Louis County, one of 15 counties declared a disaster area by Gov. Christopher Bond, who made an aerial survey Monday.

At Arnold, the surging river washed away two days of levee construction by hundreds of volunteers. Fifteen inmates of the mediumsecurity state prison at Pacific helped in the sandbagging.

Evacuations that began Sunday left the St. Louis suburbs of Valley Park, Times Beach and Pacific nearly deserted. Many people also were forced from their homes in Fenton, Eureka and Union

RED CROSS WORKER Ron Olschwanger said some left their homes in a near panic.

"Many people left so rapidly that they forgot the medicine they needed," he said. "We are sending paramedics in boats into flooded areas to get it."

High water was receding on Arkansas rivers where Gov. Frank White made another helicopter tour of flood and tornado ravaged areas where five people died last week. Damage was estimated at $100 million.

Senate opposition hopes to prevent Radio Marti

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Foes lambasted a Reagan administration project to broadcast radio programs to Cuba as "stupid" and "macho" and warned Monday they will use every possible means to prevent its passage in the Senate.

"This bill is a dead duck," said Sen. James Exon, D-Neb. "The quicker we realize this is a dead duck, the better off we'll be."

Exon threatened to filibuster against the measure - a particularly powerful pledge considering the approaching holidays and the already-crowded agenda of the lame-duck session

He and other Midwestern senators, concerned that "Radio Marti" would create interference problems for Iowa radio station WHO - where President Reagan made his name as a broadcaster in the 1930s - argued against a move to waive procedural rules and report the bill to the floor.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the waiver does not concern the merits of the project nor the money. "It is simply on a technical point," he said.

THE SENATE committee approved a bill Sept. 9 authorizing $7 million for creating the station, named after the famed Cuban patriot, which would beam Spanish-language news and entertainment to Cuba from the Florida Keys. The House passed a similar bill Aug. 10 that authorizes $7.5 million. The administration asked for $10 million for the project. "Radio Marti is another of those macho approaches in which we will again end up shooting ourselves in the foot," Exon said. Raising the specter of a filibuster, he declared, "There are those of us who will stand on this floor as long as is necessary to see that this is not passed.

Sens. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and Edward Zorinski, D-Neb., also criticized the project.

"Let's be clear about this, so when the chickens come home to roost we will be clear about who laid the egg. This is a stupid idea,' Zorinksi said.

Stoops wins Roy Carver MVP award

By Steve Riley Staff Write

Senior strong safety Bobby Stoops is the recipient of the Roy J. Carver Most Valuable Player Award for the 1982 Iowa football team.

Stoops, the defensive signal caller, was instumental in helping Iowa led the Big Ten in total defense. He racked up 65 total tackles during the season and was named to the Associated Press All-Big Ten team.

"It's been such an honor to play here at the university, and it speaks for the coaching staff and my teammates," he said. "So many kids in the world don't get the chance to play football, and I feel real fortunate.

Stoops, a Youngstown, Ohio native, said his favorite fans are his parents. 'My dad is a high school football coach and often on Friday nights after a foot-ball game, they'll leave at 11 at night and get here just before our game on Saturday," he continued.

TWO OTHER major awards were presented at the banquet. Junior wide receiver Jack Von Rutenberg was named winner of the Forest Evashevski Scholastic Achievement Award. Von Rutenberg, a pre-med student, has accumulated a 3.73 grade point average in his years at the UI. "I'm just glad the coaching staff has given the student athlete the chance to get an education," said the Waunakee, Wis. native. "This is a class program and it can only get better in the future.

The Coaches Appreciation Award, given "to the player that contributes to the team but is not publicly recognized as such," was given to scout team quarterback Charlie Humphreys.

"I CAME TO Iowa my s more

A guest speaker at the banquet was Art Gregory, the chairman of the Peach Bowl team selection committee. Gregory had a lot to say about Iowa fans and the Tennessee football squad.

"I would be remiss if I didn't comment on the fan following of this fine football team," Gregory said. He added that requests for tickets and accommodations in Atlanta have been going well.

He told the crowd of about 500 Hawkeye loyalists that Tennessee is no pushover. "Let me say this about Tennessee,". he said. "Don't sell them short." He noted that the Volunteers have beaten Orange Bowl bound Louisiana State.

MASTER OF ceremonies and WHO Sports Director Jim Zabel also announced awards and honors to a total of 15 Hawkeye gridders. Eddie Phillips, Norm Granger, Dave Strobel, Jame Erb, Larry Station, Reggie Roby, Mark Bortz, Bobby Stoops, Brett Miller, John Alt, Jon Roehlk, Owen Gill and Dave Browne all received one award or another during the season.

Some of the best gymnasts in the world will meet the Hawkeyes as Iowa will host the Japanese College All-Stars tonight at 7:30 in the Field House. The meet, sponsored by the United States Collegiate Sports Council, will feature the top seven collegiate gymnasts from Japan in an exhibition dual meet with the Hawkeyes. The international competition will be the first ever for the Hawkeye program.

lowa Coach Tom Dunn is looking at the meet as both a cultural and sporting event. "This meet will basically be to entertain," Dunn said. "I'm not too critically concerned with Dunn listed a pair of juniors, Joe Leo and Bob Leverence, on the pommel horse and Stu Breitenstine in the floor exercise as having the best chances of placing in the meet. Former Iowa gymnast Kelly Crumley also will compete for the Hawkeyes, and should have a chance of placing in several events.

AN INTERESTING match-up will likely take place in the final event, the horizontal bar, where both the Hawkeyes and the Japanese are the strongest. "The audience will see some really exciting, daring horizontal bar work from both teams," Dunn said, "Both teams are very talented in that area.

THE HAWKEYES will likely post their highest score of the year tonight, with a combination of NCAA and international rules being used. In international competition, only allarounders are allowed to compete.

The Japanese will follow the international rules while Iowa will be allowed to enter six men on each event, with the top five scores counting, rather than the five-man limit that the NCAA imposes. Iowa also will be entering more than nine-men limit that NCAA rules allow.

'Basically, this will help to even up the meet," Dunn said. "Competing in the meet will be exciting for our gymnasts, it should inspire them to do their best. I really don't think they think of this as a pressure meet, it's more just for fun.

The Hawks were trailing, 9-6, going

NEW YORK (UPI) - Junior running back Herschel Walker, the player most responsible for leading top-ranked Georgia to within one victory of its second national championship in three seasons, was a unanimous selection Monday to UPI's 1982 All America college football team.

Iowa punter Reggie Roby and defensive tackle Mark Bortz were named to the second team

Walker, making the team for the third straight year, heads an offensive unit which includes Stanford quarterback John Elway and running backs Eric Dickerson of Southern Methodist and Mike Rozier of Nebraska.

Walker is one of two Bulldogs named to the first team. Terry Hoage, the nation's top pass interceptor with 12, led the voting for defensive backs, while Rozier is joined by his key blocker, center Dave Rimington, the two-time winner of the Outland Trophy.

IN BALLOTING by 120 sports writers and sportscasters from around the country, Walker was the only unanimous selction among the 24 firstteam players, while Rimington, who also made the team last year, was Michigan's acrobatic wide receiver. Anthony Carter, also became a twotime All America as the versatile senior, who holds nearly every school receiving and scoring record, was named on 93 ballots. Brigham Young junior Gordon Hudson, the nation's No. 4 pass catcher, is the tight end.

Joining Rimington on the front line are Southern California's Don Mosebar and Pittsburgh's Jimbo Covert at the tackles and Southern California's Bruce Matthews and Arkansas' Steve Korte at the guards.

MIDDLE GUARD George Achica gave Southern California three players on the first team, as the 6-foot-5, 260 senior was named on 59 ballots.

Arkansas' Billy Ray Smith became a two-time All America as he was named the top defensive end on 84 ballots. Vernon Maxwell of Arizona State is the other end, with Mike Pitts of Alabama and Rick Bryan of Oklahoma at the tackles.

By Steve Riley Staff Writer CHICAGO - Granville Waiters, the

²¹-year-old Ohio State basketball cen-ter who looks like he's upwards of 30, has been presented a challenge by his coach, Eldon Miller. "Granville is not allowed to make any mistakes for us this season," said Miller, believed to be exaggerating. The truth is that Waiters is probably allowed to make some basketball mis-takes — on a minimal level. Nevertheless, Miller's words un-derscore how important it is that the 6foot-11 senior center have a productive That is, with the loss of the Big Ten's

the Buckeyes' second leading reboun-der last year behind Kellogg, averaging just over five per game. "We expect Granville to be a better player for us in every phase of the game," Miller said

BESIDE THE loss of Kellogg, the Ohio State roster remains intact from last year's surprising 21-10 team. That record came after the squad was picked to finish seventh in the Big Ten.

leading rebounder and Most Valuable Player - Clark Kellogg. Waiters was The experience has paid off in this young season as the Buckeyes have notched wins over the Yugoslav national team, Cal State-Chico and Florida.

Another returner vital to the Bucks success is 6-7 forward Tony Campbell. Before this season, Miller regarded Campbell as "the greatest athlete I've freshman Clinton Smith and 6-7 senior ever coached." If the junior's teamleading, 23-point average so far this season is any indication, he should soon be one of the greatest players Miller has ever coached.

THE OTHER forward starter is rugged 6-8 sophomore Joe Concheck. He was ineligible (too few academic hours) last year for all but seven games.

"We believe he can make a strong contribution to our team in the areas of scoring, rebounding and on defense,' Miller said. So far he hasn't scored and rebounded much with 3.0 and 0.5 averages.

Competing for playing time at the inside spots will be two 6-9 freshmen, Alan Kortocrax and Keith Wesson, 6-5 Mitch Haas.

The backcourt consists of four veterans. One starter at guard is 5-11 sophomore Troy Taylor, who is in-terchangeable in Ohio State's line-up with another 5-11 sophomore, Ron Stokes. Both were starters on the same high school team.

STOKES AND Taylor have the same assets - quickness, ball handling and defensive abilities. But they also have the same downfall. Stokes shot only .419 from the field; Taylor shot a miniscule .389. Taylor has been the Buckeyes' second leading scorer in the first three games with a 12.0 average. Senior Larry Huggins is the other starter at guard. A tough defensive player, the 6-3 Huggins is also very diverse. "Larry plays everywhere but center," Miller said. "He's a natural second guard, but we're going to use him for however he can help the team.

The guard court is Ohio State's strength. "Our greatest strength is that we have good experience in the back court," Miller said. "Our four top guards (including 6-2 sophomore Dave Jones) are back from the 1982 team and three are only sophomores. We should get steady and more consistent play from our backcourt."

The Buckeyes, Iowa and Indiana appear to have the most experience in the Big Ten. If the Bucks' conference games go anything like last year's, the experience will be helpful. Six games went into overtime, and 18 were decided by five points or less.

NEW YORK (UPI) - With No. 1 Georgia leading the way, the top five college football teams held their positions Monday following the final regular-season balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

In the only move within the Top 10, Texas, a 33-7 winner over Arkansas last weekend, jumped three spots to No. 7 while the Razorbacks slipped to No. 12.

The national champion will be announced Sunday, Jan. 2 at 5:30 p.m. when UPI releases its final ratings for the 1982 season.

In other games Saturday, Florida upset

3 from No. 14 to No. 20 while the Gators, 8-3, rejoined the top 20 at No. 19. Nebraska, which fell behind 13-0 to Hawaii, rallied for 37-16 triumph to remain No. 3.

SUGAR BOWL-bound Georgia, 11-0, and the only unbeaten and untied major college team, received 34 first-place votes and 593 points from Board, while Penn State, 10-1 * and shooting for its first national title when the Nittany Lions meet Georgia on New Year's Night in New Orleans, collected three first-place votes and 549 points.

Nebraska had the remaining three first-of the 42 coaches on the UPI Board voted in final regular-season balloting.

Cotton Bowl-bound Southern Methodist, 10-0-1, remained fourth, followed by Rose Bowl-bound UCLA, No. 6 Pittsburgh, Texas, No. 8 Washington, No. 9 West Virginia and No. 10 Oklahoma.

LAST WEEK, West Virginia was ranked eighth and Washington ninth.

Arizona State led off the second 10, up two spots from last week, followed by No. 12 Arkansas, No. 13 Louisiana State, No. 1-

Show ratings surprise networks

By Jeffrey Miller Arts/Entertainment Editor

With the November sweeps period over and the new year looming nigh, the networks and their closest followers are looking over the new season. And, according to facts and figures released in Variety over the past two weeks, what they are finding is not exactly what they had hoped for.

• There's good news and bad news for NBC and its much-vaunted Thursday night schedule. The good news is that the lineup of "Fame," "Cheers," "Taxi" and "Hill Street Blues" is indeed making a difference. The bad news is that the network it's helping is CBS.

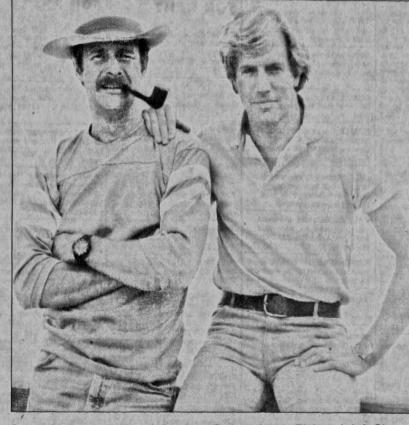

That network's "Magnum, P.I." has always had strong ratings. But its jump to fifth place this season was completely unexpected. Whether that leap is the result of a national outbreak of lust for Tom Selleck or because of "Magnum's" increasingly interesting reliance on its characters' military backgrounds for its storylines remains to be seen. But thanks to "Magnum," "Fame" not only won't live forever - it may not return next year.

EVEN MORE surprising, however, has been the success of "Simon and Simon," a thoroughly lackluster detective series that has jumped from 50th place last season to eighth place this year. Scheduling changes (last year, the show was broadcast on Tuesday night) have obviously played a part in its rise, but the resistance of the audience to NBC's "quality" sitcoms has also been important.

To be fair, "Hill Street Blues" has held its own throughout the year, and "Fame," "Cheers" and "Taxi" have shown increased ratings through November. And though their ratings are low, those shows have the right demographic profiles for their spon-

More and more, NBC's Thursday night gamble seems the final flowering of specialized TV: Esquire magazine next to ABC's TV Guide and 'CBS' Soldier of Fortune. It may not sell the most, but it gets its desired audience better than anything else.

• For every surprise success story, Tike those of "Magnum" and "Simon and Simon," there are also surprise failures. Among those this year: CBS' "Alice" (from sixth place last year to 58th this), the victim of a schedule change (it has been lifted, but will likely be back); ABC's "Joanie Loves Chachi" (from fourth to 53rd), the victim of Garry Marshall's egomania and "Magnum, P.I."; and "Dukes of Hazzard" (seventh to 33rd), the victim of cast changes. • Meanwhile, new shows have been holding their own. Among the Top 30 hits: CBS' "Newhart" (sixth place), CBS' "Gloria" (17th place, although rumors are circulating that it may be lifted because of a feud between the show's producers and "Archie Bunker's" Carroll O'Connor, who has a lot of pull with network bosses), and NBC's "Knight Rider."

ABC's "9 to 5" and CBS' "Cagney and Lacey," though technically not new series, have also done well in their first full season

• The networks' switch to beefcake programming (or "Pecs and Buns") this fall has largely failed, however. A few shows - NBC's "Knight Rider," ABC's "Matt Houston" - have made it, but mostly because of other factors (the neato car of the former; the Aaron Spelling touch of the latter)

BOTH RAIDERS of the Lost Ark ripoffs (ABC's "Tales of the Gold Monkey"; CBS' "Bring 'Em Back Alive"), though, seem to be going off to die; NBC's "The Devlin Connection" has already been unhooked; "Remington Steele" looks shaky.

And while ABC's "The Fall Guy" is doing better than ever, NBC's "Chips," featuring P & B hall-of-famer Erik Estrada, is falling farther and farther behind "Matt Houston."

Women are watching and enjoying men on prime time TV, to be sure the popularity of "Hill Street Blues" and its male heroes indicates that. But it appears once again that the networks have underrated the intelligence of most women: most of the other P & B heroes make any of "Charlie's Angels" look like Susan Sontag.

One can only assume that most female viewers have enough sense to forego the attempts the networks' musclebound stars make at acting or, in some cases, talking. A Chippendale's calendar accomplishes the same end, and you don't have to put up with the noise.

Finally, a few words in praise of Joan Rivers. Though we were never crazy about her hyped-up screaming on "Hollywood Squares" or any number of comedy/variety shows, she has become in the past couple of years an artist at interviewing celebrities: her stints as guest host on the "Tonight" show are frequently the only reason for staying up.

Rivers has acquired a great deal of humility since her time hopping from couch to couch promoting her colossal flop Rabbit Test. With no respect whatsoever now for the stars who come to boost their careers, Rivers does interviews that don't resemble Johnny's gentle prodding or Merv/Mike's cooing as much as they do a loud Legionnaire badgering someone in a Vegas lounge - which is, let's be honest, the only way to handle most of the people who appear on talk shows.

LAST WEEK, for example, Rivers told Nancy Dussault ("Too Close for Comfort") that her fiance had bought her a "cheap" engagement ring ("What is that — four prongs and a mirror?") and then demanded to know what kind of birth control she used: asked Joan Collins who her best lay was; told Valerie Bertinelli that everyone knew that the National Enquirer was telling the truth about her marriage to Eddie Van Halen; and engaged in a fifteen-minute-long battle with Betty White over their sex lives.

There are those who find such questions to be offensive either in their content or in their lack of concern for the guest. But Rivers' questions merely lay on the table everything that Johnny/Merv/Mike cloak in their leers and asides to the camera.

And Rivers alone seems to be aware that "celebrities" are different from you and me only as long as they are able to pull off the illusion of being important. When Nancy Dussault's engagement ring can be called cheap ("You should said: 'Get outta here with that' "), when Brooke Shields can be enjoined not to become "a cheap tramp," when the source authority for all questions used is the Enquirer, the whole idea of "celebrity" is shattered. In reducing "stars" to somewhat stupid human beings who eat, drink and fool around too much, Joan Rivers may be the first radical talk show host we've ever had.

She may even be more important than Phil Donahue.

Travis eventually becomes involved in genetic experimentation, criminal corporate activities and skid row dereliction before a movie director comes along and saves his body, if not his soul.

O Lucky Man! has some of the scariest and funniest scenes of any movie ever (the coffee tasting and "chocolate sandwich" scenes, for two), great performances throughout (from McDowell, Ralph Richardson, Helen Mirren, Rachel Roberts and Arthur Lowe), and an utterly brilliant ending.
