Colleges to allocate graduate stipends

By Ronen Grigas

The 1983-84 deadline for UI departments and programs to be on the budget-to-be-ready file of the graduate college must be on the horizon, with little time remaining for graduate students to decide their future plans.

Robert Meisen, assistant dean of the Graduate College, said that some units of the college will reach the graduate college's deadline to decide whether to be on the budget-to-ready file near the end of the month.

"We are trying to get all of our departmental units ready to be on the file for the graduate college," Meisen said. "We have no basis for extending the deadline unless we have to."

Negotiations continue to fund hotel project

By Matt Leonard

Winter developer Peter Beck is in ongoing talks with Iowa City officials to build a $50 million hotel to anchor the renaissance of the downtown Historic Beck. Beck, who is based in Minneapolis, and is working closely with city officials in planning the hotel and its financial details, said he has to meet several milestones in the $50 and better required by the federal govern-

Beck is working, he said, to be a "lump sum" partnership and try to resolve some of the lim-

Iowa City banks could lend a total million 20 percent in the city.

"I don't know whether all the banks in the city put together could do that," he said.

Mark Houghton, president of First National Bank, also confirmed Monday that his bank has been involved in discussions with Beck, but has refused any further comment on the matter.

SEVERAL dates will be created during the construction period, scheduled to begin in this August. Beck said his first plans are to use local companies for "a lot of the work.

Origins, he added, was the project was scheduled to get underway June 30. He said delays in receiving financing had pushed the deadline back to early August. More jobs may also be brought into the construction if the hotel site is developed. Arifdam's, owned by the Iowa City Council in the preferred developer of the site and later hotel. Pharmacy
And more opportunities are opening for pharmacists who want to expand their duties and responsibilities. Dwyer said, "There are a lot of door openers that you can go into. That translates into a lot of job opportunities. I know of people going into research and corporations, but many are going into retail pharmacy. As Ohio and more women graduate, you'll find women in all fields of pharmacy," Dwyer said.

"It's up to you where you want to go and what you want to do," she said. "Many pharmacy school graduates go into industry, hospitals, retail pharmacy and even "back to" graduate school, becoming the type of drug therapists are growing more important, you need more training." The crows are now more diverse in retail pharmacy. Dwyer said, "Many of the large retail chains and hospitals don't offer as much interaction as private retail pharmacies. Private on-the-spot writing can be exciting and offer lots of situations with the patients." Pharmacists are talking more with their patients," Bird said. "They're trying more counseling, and trust develops between the two.

Stipends
everywhere else, there is an enormous difference between the size of the US's stipend programs and other universities.

Dwyer stressed it is difficult to compare stipends at different institutions, because there are benefits.

"But knowing the stipend doesn't tell you the other benefits and conditions. Many said, however, "We have less pretty close with Iowa State and we feel just as well-compensated," Iowa State University alumni do programs to retain students in the health care industry, like the one they found. However, however, it is set lower than the 60% at the University.

Mason said, "I would take a look at the stipends."

Alcohol
as Chemical Change

ONE PROBLEM in particular, Kelly said, is the way students are viewed as society's general, particularly in college towns.

"Alcohol drinking is presented as a way of life." The emphasis is on "how to" socialize hard, not how you can keep a few hours," another important aspect of alcohol advertising, Kelly said, is that it so closely associated with "the great sociability." Louisianians are a social group.

"But alcohol drinking is often a way to deal around their particular brand of life. "One of the reasons a lot of young people depend on alcohol is because it is an uninhibitor. It helps them deal with emotional situations that included alcoholism. Another reason is that they used alcohol to deal with the patient's medical problems." The idea behind the week is to alert students to the fact that alcoholism is a big social issue among college students. People try to keep it out of酒精怎么？

Utah campus consists of about 500 people with alcohol troubles. Kelly said. "The four-month period of spring, summer, fall and winter is when alcohol problems are usually most common. We try to keep it out of alcoholism."

UNLV rolls to No. 1; Iowa drops

NEW YORK (UPI) - For the first time in its 25-year history, the Runnin' Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas became the first-place school in the basketball coaches' first-place ballots and 576 total points to beat out Houston for the top spot.

Jim Kramer of Minnesota and Green Bay's Steve Bartkowski, a major undefeated school, were the most voted on players, receiving 1,203 and 1,204 votes, respectively.

In other news, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Boston Celtics 104-96 in overtime to advance to the Western Conference finals.
