City continues exploring sewer financing options

Official: Don’t wait for funds

By Karen Herlinger

Iowa City may get “special treat­ment” if it doesn’t get the budget to build a new Water Pollution Control Plant, as Iowa Department of Environmental Quality officials said Wednesday.

“We don’t want the funding,” said Mon­dale. "Iowa City could get its new $65 million sew­er separation project at Iowa City would be an obvious choice for federal funding, said Assistant Department of Environmental Quality Administrator John Kinnel. "If we have two problems," said Kinnel, "then we’ve got one problem."

Washington preparing to handle Chicago

By David Nyberg

CHICAGO (UPI) — Harold Mondale, Minnesota native formally announced his candidacy for the presidential nomination yesterday at the Monday’s 96th White House official.

"It’s our job to protect the environment and clean up the air and water," said Mondale. "I know there are some people who think we shouldn’t do anything about pollution, but I disagree."

Mondale said he was motivated to run for president by the growing concern over the environment. "I want to make sure that our children and grandchildren have a clean planet," he said. "I’m running for the environment."

Mondale also discussed his opposition to nuclear power and his support for renewable energy sources. "I think nuclear power is a dangerous and unnecessary technology," he said. "We need to move away from fossil fuels and develop new sources of energy."

Mondale’s campaign has already raised a significant amount of money, with the Iowa Caucuses being a major target. He has been endorsed by several prominent environmental organizations, including the Sierra Club and Greenpeace.

Mondale said he would use his experience in the Senate to work for environmental protection. "I’ve been a strong advocate for the environment in the Senate," he said. "I’ll use that experience to work for environmental protection as president."

Mondale also addressed the issue of economic growth. "We need a balanced approach to economic growth," he said. "We need to ensure that growth is sustainable and doesn’t come at the expense of the environment."

Mondale was born in 1936 in Chicago and has served in the Senate since 1974. He is married to Former First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt and has three children.

EPA firings called latest ‘massacre’

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency today fired 20 of its officials, including the agency’s assistant administrator for enforcement and compliance.

The firings were the latest in a series of personnel changes at the EPA under new Administrator Scott Pruitt. The agency has been under fire for alleged misconduct and for failing to fulfill its duties.

Pratt said the firings were necessary to protect the integrity of the agency. "I am not about to let anyone in this administration undermine the EPA’s mission," he said. "We need to hold our officials accountable for their actions."

Pratt also announced that he would be steps to strengthen the agency’s oversight and accountability. "We need to make sure that the EPA is doing its job properly," he said. "We need to hold officials accountable for their actions."

The firings were met with mixed reactions. Some praised Pratt for taking action, while others criticized the moves as political.

School board approves 5.5% raise for teachers

By Susan E. Fisher

Iowa City school district teachers will receive an average pay raise of $5,128.76 for the 1983-84 school year.

The school and teachers negotiation teams reached an agreement Feb. 16, a day after the regular meeting last Thursday and sent the proposal to the school board. The proposal is expected to be discussed at Monday's meeting.

The overall salary and benefits of the teachers and the number of teachers will be increased by about $4,500 over the past two years.

This salary boost will be substantial enough to keep teachers and the district moving forward.

The South African government of South Africa has been a Foermer foe of this birth control poppin drug, but in recent years has begun to consider its use. The Department of Health and Welfare, which was until recently a staunch opponent of Depo-Provera, has now been forced to make a decision. The use of Depo-Provera has been banned in the United States, where it has been linked to side effects such as ovarian cysts and blood clots. However, in South Africa, where the drug is used extensively, there is a growing concern about its effects on the population.

"Provera has been banned in books elsewhere," said one source. "But in South Africa, where the drug is used extensively, there is a growing concern about its effects on the population."

The use of Depo-Provera has been controversial in South Africa, where it is used to provide contraception for millions of women. The drug, which is injected every three months, has been shown to reduce the risk of pregnancy, but it also has some side effects that can be severe.

"In South Africa, where the drug is used extensively, there is a growing concern about its effects on the population," said another source. "But the drug is still used widely, despite the concerns."

Figures compiled by the US parking industry show that about 147 million fines are levied every year in America. According to William Bratton, the mayor of Los Angeles, more than half of the nation's largest cities have adopted new methods of collecting parking fines, but the total amount collected by the nation's cities is not known. The industry says it collected roughly $10 million last year.

Program honors black students

By Patricia O'Grady

Approximately 90 black students and faculty members gathered in the Union rotunda on Friday, December 4, to celebrate the Black Student Union-sponsored day of recognition for black students in the university community.

The program provided ample opportunity for all those involved to affirm their pride in the many accomplishments of black students and to renew their resolve to support their goals.

The program concluded with an impromptu prayer expressed by one of the students.

In their role as leadership for the program, they are to be commended.
Iowa speedway?

Iowa officials have been making a concerted effort lately to correct state make-up. The Iowa breeze can be a bit gusty, making it difficult for even the most experienced drivers to keep their cars on the track. However, recent improvements have helped to reduce the speed of the cars, making it more enjoyable for both drivers and spectators. With the new track layout and safety improvements, Iowa is becoming a popular destination for race enthusiasts.

Don't get excited

The decline in all prices, with further reductions expected, has caused concern among some economists and the state administration as well. The current economic downturn has caused many people to reconsider their spending habits. However, experts believe that the situation is temporary and that the economy will recover in the near future.

Libyan hijackers surrender after guarantee of asylum.

VALETTA, Malta (UPI) — Two rescued Libyan jet passengers Thursday found that the hijackers held aloft a Hijacker Beat 727 from the United States in a tense standoff for a potential political settlement.

Three Libyan air officials receiving two passengers reported they had asked the passengers if they wanted political asylum and that the passengers had declined.

"The hijackers were pretty calm, but they said they would leave the plane if the pilots promised a guarantee," reported hostage George Ganssle, a ex-pilot during the hijacking.

"Two passengers were carrying duffle bags butряд business documents," he said. Ganssle and 151 other passengers who had been held in the hijacked aircraft for 24 hours since last Friday.

"I told them that our pilots did not want to transport us to Libya but that we would go to Malta," the hijackers said that if they did not get a guarantee.

Passengers were a holiday-bound Boeing 727 from the United States.

The passengers, who had been held in the jet since last Friday, were given a guarantee to go to Malta by a U.S. diplomat.

"We have never taken part in any political activities," one of the passengers said. "We have no political asylum."

Walker runs to U.S. Football League

By Steve Betts

It probably won't draw as much attention as Buckeye's victory over Ohio State, but tonight's Iowa-Wisconsin game is every bit as important as the preceding two: if not more so.

This time around, the Hawkeyes will play the Badgers at Madison in a match-up of two top 10 teams ranked No. 7 and No. 10, respectively. The game will pit two of college football's most talented offenses against each other.

According to Iowa's defensive coordinator, Jerry Kill, the Hawkeyes are well prepared for the challenge.

"We've been practicing for this all week," Kill said. "We know what they do, and we know how to stop them."

The Badgers, on the other hand, are looking to continue their impressive season.

"We're excited to play Iowa," said Badger quarterback John Stocco. "They're a tough team, and we know it's going to be a battle."

Despite the high stakes, both teams have a chance to make a statement in this game.

"We want to win this game," Kill said. "But we also want to play our best football."

The Hawkeyes have been playing well as of late, but they know they need to be at their best to have a chance against Wisconsin.

"We're not satisfied with our performance," Kill said. "We want to be the best we can be every game."

The Badgers are coming off a strong performance against Ohio State, but they know they can't take Iowa lightly.

"Ohio State is a tough team," Stocco said. "But we believe we can take care of business this weekend."

The game is set for 7:00 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Madison. It's a crucial game for both teams, and the winner will have a significant advantage in the division.

Gann is likely to start in crucial Badger battle

By Evan Gann

When it comes to college basketball, there's no question who the Gann family is rooting for. Andy Gann, the head coach of the Badgers, is always supportive of his son, who is a key player on the team.

"I don't think he'll be able to come out for me," said Andy Gann. "But I'll be there for him every step of the way."

The Badgers are coming off a strong win over Ohio State, but they know they need to perform well against Iowa.

"We need to play our best every game," said Gann. "But we're confident we can beat Iowa."

THE 1982 year ring against a try to create something new. On a start as a filmmaker, they decided that when she was only a graduate student. But the UI's John McManus knew that something new was in the works.

McManus, a theater graduate student at the University of Iowa, was always interested in film. So he was looking for a way to break into the business. After two years of working as a freelance writer, McManus decided to make a film. The result was "My Feet," a children's film about dancing and the joy it brings.

"I wanted to create something unique," McManus said. "I didn't want to make another film about the same thing." So he decided to create a film about dancing.

With the main role cast, the film was ready to go. McManus hired a crew of actors and crew members to help him bring his vision to life. The film was shot on location in the state of Iowa.

The film was a success. It was shown at the University of Iowa Film Festival and won the Audience Award for Best Short Film. It was also accepted into the Galaxy Film Festival in New York City.

"I had never made a film before," McManus said. "I was just trying to do something new."

Despite the challenges, McManus persevered. "I didn't have any idea what I was doing," he said. "But I just kept going."

And the result was a film that was both unique and entertaining. "My Feet" is a story about the joy of dancing and the importance of self-expression. "It's a story about the power of art," McManus said. "And it's a story about the power of film."

"My Feet" has been shown at film festivals across the country. It has received critical acclaim and has been nominated for several awards. "I'm just glad that people are enjoying it," McManus said. "And I'm glad that I was able to make it."
