Judge's ruling: Ul must contact 'Mrs. X'

But Supreme Court issues staying order

By Suzanne Johnson

Just hours after a Johnson County District Court Judge ruled that the UI Hospitals must mail a letter to a potential bone marrow donor in an attempt to save the life of a leukemia victim, the Iowa Supreme Court granted the state a staying order.

Johnson County District Court Judge L. Vern Robinson ruled Monday morning in favor of William Head, a leukemia victim who filed a petition for mandatory injunction to force the UI Hospitals to reveal the name of a woman - referred to only as "Mrs. X" - in February.

Mrs. X was typed for platelets during an effort to save the life of her late son, a leukemia victim. She is the best match for Head, who is in need of a bone marrow transplant. If Head does not receive the transplant within the next five weeks, doctors say he will die

Mrs. X was sent a form letter by UI Hospitals in December 1982, but when there was no response, UI employee Mary Anne Fyfe telephoned her.

During the phone conversation, the California woman declined to participate in the bone marrow transplant program. The UI Hospitals then refused to release her name to Head or to send her a second letter containing further details about the urgency of the

PETER RILEY, one of Head's attorneys, said the case is being dealt with as speedily as possible, and this small delay won't matter. "You know, a week or two isn't going to make a whole lot of, you know shouldn't make a whole lot of difference."

In Monday's ruling, Robinson states what the case "is and what it is not." He determined that this case did not

Dear Mrs.

We have been contacted by a leukemia patient who is in need of a bone marrow transplant. We were asked to search our records to ascertain if those records reflected a potential donor. Our records indicate that you are a potential donor. This does not mean that you would be a suitable donor, as further tests would need to be run to determine that. It only means that you are potentially a suitable donor.

The purpose of this letter is to inquire if you would wish to consider becoming a donor to this individual if further tests proved you were suitable.

The individual is not a patient in our hospital or the state of lowa. Our only connection with the matter is in response to a broad inquiry to many hospitals, as suitable donors are very limited in number in cases such as this.

We have not, and do not intend, to voluntarily disclose your name in response to the inquiry.

May we hear from you at your early convenience, as in matters such as this, time is of the essence.

We are enclosing for your convenience a self-addressed. stamped envelope.

This is a sample of the letter Judge L. Vern Robinson ordered the UI Hospitals to send to potential bone marrow donor "Mrs. X."

Hardest part of operation: Find a donor

Monday, Jan. 28, 1980: Cindy Collier, 28, receives an injection of bone marrow, a blood-like substance that UI doctors hope will cure her disease acute granulocytic leukemia.

The next day, UI Hospitals officials call a press conference to announce that a team of four doctors has completed the first human bone marrow transplant at the UI, joining only eight other hospitals in the country.

Friday, May 2, 1980: Collier dies of pneumonia, one of the primary causes of death among marrow transplant

Even though the UI's first bone marrow transplant ended with only operation, said to be a possible cure for leukemia, has skyrockted. Two years ago, only nine hospitals offered the service. A recent survey showed that now 48 hospitals in the United States conduct marrow transplants - and more plan to offer them.

THE OPERATION Collier underwent is similar to the one leukemia victim William Head came one step closer to Monday. District Court Judge L. Vern Robinson ruled Monday that the UI Hospitals must inform "Mrs. X" an unidentified potential marrow donor that there is a victim who needs her type of bone marrow.

That victim is Head, a 26-year-old student at Louisiana State University. The UI is appealing Robinson's ruling. Despite the complexity of the lawsuit, the ethical questions it raises and the fact the UI Hospitals refused to say anything about bone marrow transplants Monday, the operation itself is rather simple. In fact, the recipient need not see the inside of the operating room.

American executive kidnapped in Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) - Gunmen kidnapped an American oil company executive on his way to work Monday, ambushing his automobile and killing two bodyguards with submachine gun fire, police said.

Kenneth S. Bishop, 56, an executive with Texas Petroleum Co., a Texaco subsidiary, was pulled from his car by unidentified gunmen and shoved into one of two automobiles used in the abduction, national police reported.

A Texaco spokesman in Harrison, N.Y., confirmed the abduction of Bishop, assistant division manager for exploration at Texas Petroleum, and said the company "deeply regrets this

Bishop, of Huntington Park, Calif., is the third American - and the second Texas Petroleum executive - to be kidnapped in the past 10 years. A Texas Petroleum vice president was killed while in captivity in 1979.

One of the kidnappers' cars cut off Bishop's vehicle in an exclusive residential area in the north of the city, about a mile from the Texaco offices, police said.

GUNMEN STEPPED out of a second car and opened fire with submachine guns, killing Bishop's two Colombian bodyguards, retired military men, police said. Bishop was dragged into one of the cars and driven away, they who was able to see from close up all the details of the kidnapping and she would be the only person who could later identify the persons involved, if we are lucky," the official said.

State security agents and police immediately launched a city-wide search for the kidnappers.

In 1978, the leftist M-19 guerrilla group kidnapped Texas Petroleum vice president Nicolas Escobar and shot him to death the following year at a socalled "people's prison."

Before the Senate committee action, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would take

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., was defeated, 18-6, in his amendment to focus much of the bill's money in cities, counties and towns where the average unemployment was higher than the national average the past year. Hatfield said making the targeting specific would "add to bureaucratic delay."

Evans pushes plan for federal funding

If U.S. cities are willing to pick up a larger percentage of the costs in a sewer plant construction cost-sharing program, Iowa City may find a way to secure funding for its $50 million wastewater treatment facility.

Iowa City Neil Young concert is canceled

By T. Johnson Staff Writer

The Neil Young concert, which was to have been the first non-sporting event to take place in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, has been canceled.

The concert, originally scheduled for last Sunday, was postponed after Young collapsed during a performance in Louisville Friday night.

In the interim, everyone involved in the promotion of the concert had been, in the words of Tom Fesenmeyer of the Office of Campus Programs/Student Activities, "on pins and needles' waiting to find out if the concert could be rescheduled

'They (the Student Commission on Programming and Entertainment) put in a lot of work on this thing," Fesenmeyer said. "The first show in any hall is a lot of running around - a monumental task.'

SCOPE was co-promoting the concert with Contemporary Productions. More than 13,000 tickets had been sold to the concert. Approximately $110,000 will have to be refunded, according to Cindy Thrapp of the UI business office. Refunding will begin today at noon at the Field House box office.

SEEMINGLY EVERYONE in town spent Monday waiting for definitive word whether the concert could be rescheduled. According to Jeff Conner, SCOPE director, the booking agent attempted to reshuffle the tour to preserve as many dates as possible. The March 10 show in Ames has not, to Conner's knowledge, been affected.

The box office of the Union doublescheduled staff for today to handle the calls for information, according to Barbara Farley of the ticketing office.

"We only advertise one phone number, so that helps," Farley said. "We've been busy every minute. The phone's been ringing all afternoon. I just sit here and answer the phone all day. If I have to go to the bathroom or something, there'll be a problem."

SCOPE will not take a sizeable loss on the ill-fated concert. Promotional expenses will be covered by the booking agent, according to Kevin Taylor, coordinator of the Office Campus Programs/Student Activities. There are, however, some expenses involved in getting ready for any concert in the arena that will not be immediately recovered.

'WE'VE GOT $1,000 worth of Tshirts for security people," Conner said. He explained that the T-shirts were a fixed-expense that would have been necessary for any concert in the See Concert, page 5

Public hearing slated on school tax

By Susan E. Fisher Staff Writer

Although the Iowa City school district has proposed to lower its tax rate, property owners will be paying about 1.4 percent more in school taxes if the 1983-84 budget is ap-

The school board will hold a public hearing on the budget during its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the district's central offices, 509 S. Dubuque St.

According to the proposed budget, a homeowner would pay about $450 for school taxes next year on home with an assessed value of $50,000. That's about $6 more than the homeowner would have paid this year.

The district is proposing to budget $25.7 million for the 1983-84 school year. If approved, next year's budget would be about $300,000 or 1.2 percent more than this year's budget.

ALTHOUGH the property owner has to foot a larger tax bill, Iowa City Community School District's proposed budget actually lowers the property tax rate by 2.3 percent. This fiscal year, $13.71 were paid in school taxes for every $1,000 of taxable valuation allowed by the state. Under the proposal, $13.39 for every $1,000 goes toward the school funds.

The fact that tax bills will be higher can be attributed to a 3 percent increase in the taxable value of property. The increase, approved by the State Department of Revenue, will allow 67.2 percent of the assessed value of residential and commercial property to be taxed in the 1984 fiscal year, which begins in July.

In addition, the school system expects to draw upon taxes assessed on new proper-

The College of Medicine is the only UI college that refuses to consider foreign students for admission, according to Virginia Gross, UI assistant director for foreign student admis-

THOMAS TAYLOR, coordinator for student affairs and curriculum in the medical school justified the longstanding policy by saying: "We do not admit students on foreign visa, because of the pressure for admittance of U.S. nationals. He said 574 applicants are vying for 175 spots in the college's entering class

But Bashiri apparently is not alone in his plight. "It is not rare to encounter foreign students who want to go to med school," said Gary Althen, UI foreign student adviser.

Thomas agreed with Bashiri's assessment of the frustration caused by the policy. "We have on occasion talked to individuals on their own behalf or more often for a relative in a foreign country. We have had to be pretty discouraging to them," Thomas

April agenda set for Riverfest fun

By Robyn Griggs

Riverfest will be expanded this year to include more educational activities and a week of events, directors said Monday.

The large, experienced staff completed the schedule of events Sunday, and are actually "about a week or two ahead of schedule from last year," Cathy Leahy, assistant director said.

In addition to making Riverfest a week-long celebration, Director Dave Diers said, "We seem to be a little more diverse than in the past. I feel we're bettering ourselves as far as getting to the needs of what everybody wants."

Some of the diversity will come from the educational events scheduled to take place during the week, Tom Petersen, assistant director, said. Examples of these are "spruced up" tours of the campus, psychology demonstrations, and tours of Hancher Auditorium, The Daily Iowan offices, the Health-Sciences Library, and others.

The week will kick off on Sunday, April 17, with a "big surprise," the directors said. Riverfest sponsored activities will continue through Saturday, April 23

EARLY IN THE week a trivia contest, held by a national organization, will be held in the Union Wheelroom. An air guitar contest is also in the works, Petersen said.

The Pentacrest events, which formerly kicked off the week, will be held Thursday and Friday from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Duane and Floppy of "The Floppy Show" based in Des Moines will entertain children from the local elementary schools Thursday on the Pentacrest. In addition, the Scottish Highlanders, UI jugglers, and some mime acts Dave Adams, author of The Hitchhiker's Guide To The Galaxy and Restaurant At The End of the Universe, will be featured Thursday night as the second annual Riverfest speaker. A faculty tea, a new event that students and faculty are invited to participate in, will be held before the lecture.

Riverfest will also be offering bar specials Thursday night in the form of a "pub crawl," ending in an after-hours party in the Union Wheelroom. Live entertainment will be featured at the party and admission will be $1.

Casino Night will be held Friday night in the Union Wheelroom, with student organizations running game tables. A $1 admission will also be charged for this event, with proceeds going toward the Ronald McDonald House.

THE ANNUAL River Run. which Petersen said has been a, "really popular event" in the past, will begin 8 a.m. Saturday. A one mile "Fun Run" has been added to the 10K and 5K races this year. Registration for the races is tentatively set for the end of March, Petersen said. In addition, a racquetball tournament will be held in the Field House.

The main concert will take place at 11 a.m. Saturday. The Riverfest staff hopes to have four local bands performing on the Union field and two music tents on the west side of the river. Student entertainment and a Thieves Market will be featured along the river banks.

The Riverfest staff has extended invitations from local celebrities in the area, including several reporters and Gov. Terry Branstad. "One of our main goals is to get celebrities from the area to come," Petersen said, "We're real curious to see who responds.'

Wellness program offered at UI

By Tom Buckingham

Wellness is "an approach to life that takes a more active role in helping yourself," according to Kathy Staley, a UI counseling service member and a coordinator of the "Issues in Wellness" program that will be held today and Wednesday at the Union.

The program will feature a series of speeches and seminars given by members of the UI faculty, counseling service, social services, and various members of the community, addressing the topic of "wellness" from a physical, psychological, and spiritual

"WE'RE TRYING to get people to develop a new lifestyle. To develop a pro-active lifestyle rather than a reactive one. We're not going to run to the doctor every time we're sick, rather we're going to help ourselves," Staley

Too often people are unaware of or unwilling to take part in simple programs and exercises that can help prevent the mental and physical maladies that afflict them, Staley said.

Instead, the "pill-popping" mentality still holds strong in the minds of many. The idea that people can abuse themselves in whatever way they wish and all that will be necessary to restore them to health are convenient medicines, with no changes in lifestyle.

But the awareness of just how devastating a physical or mental breakdown can be is convincing people to follow a preventive approach, Staley

Jogging is an example of a physical "wellness" activity, that has become popular, she said.

One of the reasons the decision was made to make "wellness" the issue for this spring's annual counseling-center program was the increasing amount of interest in self-help and preventive techniques, she said.

"TEN YEARS AGO we couldn't Wednesday.

and popular and we're excited about doing it."

The current economic slump is a contributing factor in the interest shown in the program, Staley said, both because self-help treatment can save money that may have gone to a professional, and because it gives people the feeling they are in charge of their lives.

A person cannot control whether he is laid off from his job, but he can control his physical and psychological shape and prevent unproductive behaviors from occurring.

"It's an area where you can have some control, as compared to other areas of your life," Staley said. The program will be held today from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and half of the day

Comparable worth

The issue is "not whether the two jobs are essentially the same, but whether the predominantly female job is paid less than the predominantly male job because the incumbents are primarily female." This statement, made recently by Winn Newman, special counsel for minority and women's rights for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union, sums up the argument for "comparable worth" - paying women the same wage for doing jobs that are comparable in value to those usually done by men.

In the 20 years since the passage of the Equal Pay Act, a once novel idea - that women doing the same job as men should receive the same wage - has become accepted. Yet in 1983, women on average still earn 59 cents for every dollar earned by men. The reason, of course, is that in spite of some social change, many jobs are still done primarily by one sex or the other, and that the "male" jobs consistently pay more.

Newman, speaking to a symposium in Des Moines recently. cited a study made in San Jose, Calif., which showed, for example, that predominantly female librarians were paid less than men doing jobs that required an eighth grade education, and female supervisors with higher degrees earned less than male street sweepers.

It is just this sort of inequality that has led the Iowa House to approve a study of state employment and the concept of comparable worth, a move that should be commended.

It isn't exactly a great step — studies like this have been produced and ignored all around the country. And at a time when money is tight and unemployment high, many will probably object that this kind of legislation is something we cannot afford.

But if equality is to become a reality and not just a nice idea, we have to afford it. The kind of pay structures we have now serve to perpetuate the position of women as an "underclass," who find it harder than ever to break out of the "poverty trap," and who suffer the most in times of recession.

Perhaps ideally, society will one day change so that no jobs will be "male" or "female." But for that to happen, everyone must have a genuine choice between comparable jobs at comparable wages - let's hope this study isn't filed away or dismissed as unrealistic, but is treated as the high priority it is.

Domino theory again

In their efforts to persuade Congress to send more military aid to El Salvador, despite its continuing human rights violations, the Reagan administration has revived the domino theory.

The domino theory reached the height of its popularity during the Vietnam war. The theory is that if one country falls to communist insurgents - then Vietnam, now El Salvador - the other countries in the area will, like dominoes, fall soon after. There is a certain superficial logic that appeals to the senses; everyone can visualize all those dominoes lined up — nudge one and down they all fall.

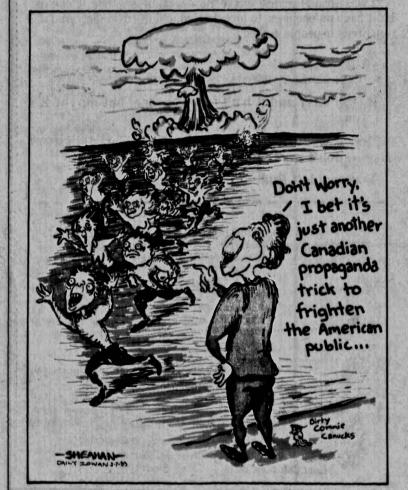

But the lessons drawn are only superficial and visual. Dominoes fall when one is pushed because they have been set up that way. In the real world, governments fall because they have lost the support of the people. Neighboring governments will fall not because they are contiguous, but because they too have lost the support of their people — if they have been set up to fall.

El Salvador is in trouble not because it is near leftist Nicaragua, receiving guns from Cuba through Nicaragua, but because the government is arresting, torturing and killing innocent civilians and because the division between the few rich and middle-class and the many poor is wide - just as in the Somoza regime in Nicaragua and the Batista regime in Cuba before their

When parents have lost children to a government's secret police and cannot feed the rest, they will not support that government. The solution is not to send more arms — government troops in El Salvador out-number the guerrillas 22,000 to 5,000 — but to change the line-up. The solution is for governments in the area to stop killing their own innocent citizens and to create jobs that allow the people to feed and clothe and shelter and educate themselves and their children and to vote in free elections.

The lesson of the domino theory is that governments in the same area fall not because they are in the same area, but when the same conditions prevail. They fall if they've been set up to fall by poverty and oppression.

Holy ballot box! To the batpolls!

O HERE WE ARE, one year away from the government control George Orwell described in 1984, and it looks like we're going to be without Big Brother. Instead, we're stuck with the insidious, mind-shrinking MTV.

People still have the freedom to vote, and the right to run for political office (provided you have enough cash on hand). That's how the BAT party came into existence - we had a few extra bucks and no new ideas, so we thought we had a damn good chance of winning political office. Some people think we must have an in-depth campaign attack planned, and that it took us considerable time and thought to get our names on the ballot. Hardly. It only takes $25 (collateral against election fraud), 50 signitures (to prove you can bug people to death) and an IQ of 70 (which is currently recommended for entry to the UI), and any Jack or Jill can run for a seat on the UI Student

Other politicians say they're out to represent the people. We quote our honorable opponent Dave Diers of the Representative Choice platform -

"We want to bring the Student Senate back to the students." Come on, Dave. We don't know about you, but we're out there for personal gain and fame. Average Joe Students couldn't tell you the first thing about Student Senate and they don't want someone bringing the senate to them. They've got enough problems with midterms, finals and

ON TOP OF THAT, Joe is apathetic, something the BAT party is proud of. We're apathetic, too. We were going to have a full slate, but the rest of our members were too lazy to get the required 50 signitures. Now we want to take the senate away from the students and put it into the hands of some truly incompetent politicians — the BATs.

Since most parties have a platform instead of small boxes, we decided to get together and build one ourselves. Now, this isn't an exhaustive platform, and we highly recommend that students who wish to add to our ideas write letters to the editor, and we'll probably assimilate your suggestions. Of course, if they're practical and necessary, we'll disregard them.

1. Our education platform has undergone serious changes since we last suggested eliminating all dull and boring classes, since this would leave the UI without an educational system. Instead we plan to institute the Reverse Grading Procedure, where teachers take the tests and the students lecture for hours on subjects that have no pertinence to the "real world." We hope to eliminate the migration of professors to the higher-paying private business sector through the use of new mindcontrol drugs that BAT party members are currently experimenting with. And the problem of overcrowded classrooms will be handled by random BAT-death squads, concentrating on students inside Phillips Hall.

2. OUR MOST expensive platform is the planned filling of the Iowa River. This will provide us with more space to throw our frisbees on, make crossing the river a lot easier, and provide the Burge Dining Room with a year's supply of carp dinners. Of course, you're wondering about the ducks. We hope to be able to integrate them into our planned Bat Wildlife Preserve at City Park, or else Burge will have a year's supply of duck soup.

3. No one, we repeat, no one will be allowed to tape irritating red leaflets (even for those all-important fraternity events) to the sidewalks under fear of the BAT-death squads. However, because we are a mildly allow these people to tape the leaflets to their faces and lie down on the

4. If elected, we will write a column every month telling you, our constituents, just how much we have not accomplished. We don't know anything about the senate, but neither do you. 5. BAT particulars - the Iowa fight song will be changed to the Batman theme; the Iowa basketball team will be required to wear bat uniforms; President Freedman will henceforth be known as Commissioner Freedman; Vice-President Remington will be called Alfred, the butler; the Old Capitol will be turned into a BAT bar, where groovy Batmen (wearing their preppy BAT-zod shirts) and funky Batchicks can go for a bat time.

6. WE PROMISE to listen to any student, no matter how ignorant, for at least 10 seconds. After that, we reserve the right to inflict bodily harm to the said constituent. 7. All "scientific creationists" will be placed in a special section of the UI wired with explosives that will later be tripped by monkeys. We ran out of research funds (beer.

money), so our platform ends here after an evening of exhaustive soul searching. We hope you'll contribute.

Even if all five members of the BAT. party win, we won't have a majority in the Senate, so most of our plans will probably be thwarted by self-serving politicians with little insight into real problems.

A number of people have claimed that we're in this election just for laughs. No way. We're in it for power, too. Besides, if the administration that runs this country can put on a comedy act, what's the harm in a few smallminded college students making mincemeat pie out of an unimportant office like student senator?

Cuba, Nicaragua must blame selves

OR MORE THAN 20 years it pear to. Cuba and Nicaragua spend the revolutionary government. They would the press and broadcast media, and has been the policy of the United States to harass the Cuban government with almost all available means short of invasion by U.S. forces. Cuban products have been banned, sales to Cuba are forbidden, tourists have been discouraged and recently prohibited from visiting Cuba, loans not only from the United States, but from international agencies have been ended or discouraged, and so forth.

There have been pinpricks by the CIA, and even hints of military action, causing Castro to mobilize his people to guard the beaches. Nicaragua has similarly been the object of economic and political pressure since the Reagan administration apparently decided to do whatever it might to destabilize or at least discomfit the Sandinista

The Cuban and Nicaraguan governments have naturally complained about the harassment, as loudly as they could raise their voices, at home and abroad; and they have received a good deal of sympathy as victims of the They feel directly threatened, or ap-grateful for the blessings of the the police to intimidate voters, use of largest fractions of their national product on defense of all countries in this hemisphere and have the largest armies, relative to population, plus a large part of the work force in militias. They lament having to divert to defense the resources they would like to devote to improving the lives of their

YET THESE TWO countries could very easily and quickly end all threat hostile action by the United States and embargoes and other discriminations against them. They could do this without giving up their socialism, that is, state control of the economy, or any of their social achievements. They would not even have to cease helping anti-oligarchic forces in Central America. They would have to violate none of their declared principles.

Indeed, they would need only to fulfill their basic promises. They would have only to give their people an opportunity to demonstrate what Castroites and Sandinistas and their friends repeatedly assure the world: that the hostility of their powerful neighbor. large majority of the people are state control of the economy, ability of have only to hold free and open elections to show the world that they in fact represent the people, or at least the nonaffluent who are most of the people. If they did this, the U.S. case against > them would collapse. Even if some illintentioned people in Washington wanted to continue to hurt them, Congress and public opinion would not permit anti-Cuban or anti-Nicaraguan measures. On the contrary, there would be great pressure to help the governments in their valiant fight for education, health, and a decent standard of living for the masses. The troubles the Cuban and Nicaraguan governments would be over, at least in regard to relations with the United States.

THE CASTROITES and the Sandinistas are doubtless aware of this. Yet they do not like even to talk about letting the people, who supposedly love them, convincingly express that love. This is more remarkable because even in an outwardly free election the governments of Cuba and Nicaragua would have very large advantages - some ability to manage the electoral process. They refrain even from holding pseudodemocratic elections, useful as these might be not only for their image in the world but for legitimacy at home. That these governments refuse to consider what would seem an easy way out, promising an end to the danger of U.S. invasion they claim to fear and many more benefits, amounts to a confession that their rule is based on force and fraud. Of course they are not alone in this; most of the governments on earth rest more on force and fraud than on the willing consent of the governed, although the majority do not make such a show of love for the masses. And the character of the governments of Cuba and Nicaragua does not necessarily mean that hostile measures against them are wise or justified. But when the leadership of Cuba and Nicaragua shout their indignation against U.S. policies, they have themselves to blame.

Booers and sitters

To the editor:

This is in response to K.C. Pringle's letter concerning the poor showing of sportsmanship at a recent basketball game (DI, Feb. 21). Pringle was appalled by the disrespect shown to our 'guests' as they were introduced to the crowd.

I, too, think that booing is one of the highest forms of disrespect that an individual may show, and that it is immature and embarrassing.

Having been a spectator at many sporting events in recent years I have come to the conclusion that the Hawkeye fans will go to practically any lengths to show their team spirit. Some of these "lengths" may appear to be extreme to the common folk, but our teams have known their fans were there to support them be it a good or bad outcome.

To offer another spectator's view, I wish to comment on the "non-fan." This is a person who comes to an event and proceeds to make everyone around her or him miserable. Here we are, trying to show our support by cheering or applauding and someone is cursing us because of it. There doesn't seem to be any happy medium.

What I am trying to say is, don't totally berate the "booers." They may be a bit unorthodox in their habits but at least they are behind their team. What I consider to be a lot more tasteless is for someone to donate large sums of money for a choice seat and simply sit in that seat doing nothing. That is truly unsportsmanlike Steve Ives

Student health To the editor:

Why is Student Health even here? I can't understand why they open their doors in the morning when they don't have a person that wants to help you

On Feb. 23, a friend of mine and I went to student health. We got there at 8:35 a.m., and at 9:20 we finally left, without ever seeing a doctor or a nurse. I know that Student Health can become a busy place, but there were three patients waiting to get help.

What irritated me was the fact that we saw the doctors strolling around the office drinking coffee and chatting among themselves. These people were hired to serve the students, not the coffee pot. I'd like to see Student Health get their act together, because it really is a fine institution when it is on the ball. Gail Ganske

Keep it nice

To the editor:

I am a student currently living on the dorm side of the Mayflower - and enjoying it. I have found the Mayflower to be an excellent alternative to the average style of dorm life at the UI. However, I hope that my feelings will not be changed by the university's recent purchase of the apartment complex.

The Mayflower is currently the only dorm on campus with an indoor pool and sauna, and up until now the management has been able to keep both of them in pretty good condition. I trust that the university will be able to keep the pool area in equally good shape when they take over the building. No one enjoys swimming in algae and the remnants of Saturday night's excursion downtown.

It is also common knowledge to most students living in the Mayflower that there is an insect problem. This is due to the large number of students doing their own cooking. As it stands now, one has little problem in having his room sprayed quickly and free of charge. Hopefully, just because the university got a "steal" on the purchase of the Mayflower they will not let its condition go to the Pilgrims. Kendric Rollins 1110 N. Dubuque

Gifts not coerced

I would like to respond to the critical publicity directed at the bone marrow

One of my daughters lost the battle against leukemia a few years ago at age 21. We, too, were planning for al bone marrow transplant; our family was tissue-typed; and we were lucky to find a match in one of her sisters. But she died during a relapse before a transplant could take place.

The frustrations of fighting an incurable disease and the emotional trauma of losing a child can only be understood by one who has experienced them. People deal with grief in different ways. I'm coping with my loss by participating in the program; but maybe "Mrs. X" has different feelings. Maybe it's too painful for her to even consider. I know it recalls memories of all the endless visits to the hospital; the futility of the time, expense and effort of fighting a losing

My heart goes out to her and also equally to William Head. Mrs. X is a potential "donor" and should not be pressured. To donate means "to make a gift of," and a gift should be completely voluntary.

It was an unfortunate mistake that Head was told of a potential donor, but it would be an even bigger mistake if the program was permanently harmed by this. Let's not let it destroy the hopes of leukemia victims and their families by stifling the progress the research program has made and continues to make. Joan McMains

Marrow from a donor must match the recipient's marrow exactly. In general, an individual has a 40 percent chance of having a brother or sister who is compatible. Reagan urged to justify defenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of conservatives, worried by the popularity of the nuclear freeze movement, urged President Reagan Monday to release secret data about Soviet military capabilities to justify his defense policies.

Members of a group called the Coalition for Peace Through Strength, meeting at the White House, urged Reagan to take new steps to convince the public his policies are justified by a dangerous imbalance between U.S. and Soviet forces.

"The president's probably the best salesman that I know," said Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala. "But in order to sell something, you have to present the facts. We feel very strongly that the facts have not been presented.

Conservative activist Paul Weyrich suggested Reagan make a televised speech to reaffirm his commitment to a military strong enough to meet the Soviet threat.

Restating the case for his program, Reagan insisted a stronger military posture is the only way to achieve nuclear arms reductions.

"Our modernization programs give our arms proposals greater strength," he said. 'We know the Soviets will not negotiate seriously unless they see such programs as the MX and the Pershing (missile) deployment actually under way.'

THE CALL FOR release of more detailed evidence of what Reagan has called "a massive" Soviet military buildup came as the administration prepared to release a new assessment of Soviet capabilties.

White House aides said Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger will present Reagan with the updated report, "Soviet Military Power," today.

"There's a general feeling that more information should be made available, and it's an allied view as well," National Security Council staff member Robert Sims told reporters.

Reagan was urged to "win over the hearts and minds of the nuclear freeze advocates" by placing additional facts before the public, Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala.,

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan is "of like mind," but cautioned there are constraints posed by the possible disclosure of intelligence sources and methods

Rep. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who raised the declassification issue, acknowledged possible security risks, but said, "We believe the American people need to know more of the facts ... concerning the threat they face."

DICKINSON, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said he is concerned that the public recognize the Soviets now have missiles "substantially" more accurate than those in the U.S. arsenal and are continuing to make technological ad-

Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., one of those who met with Reagan Monday, said the political debate in this country has not given enough attention to "the huge amount of (military) hardware and development that currently exists in the Soviet Union."

Additional information about Soviet military capabilities must be declassified, he said, "so the American people will be able to judge for themselves what needs to be done to ensure peace throughout the policy "out of step" with the public's wishes, leaders of the freeze movement undertook a massive lobbying effort Monday in preparation for a key vote later this week.

"We think we now have the votes to win" when the House Foreign Affairs Committee considers the resolution Tuesday and the House takes up the issue later this month, Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., said.

"The debate is going to be very heated and very controversial," Markey said. "But I believe the message will be clear. The people of this country believe the time to freeze is now and then work on serious talks about the reduction in nuclear weapons.

Legislative update

RANDALL KEHLER, national coordinator of the Nuclear Weapons Freeze campaign, said about 5,000 people from around the country were coming to Washington from 45 states to participate in seminars and meet with elected officials Monday and today.

The resolution to be taken up by the House Foreign Affairs Committee this week is similar to one it approved in the last Congress. That resolution failed to win House passage last Aug. 5 by just two votes, 204-202.

The freeze lobbyists, who traveled to Washington at their own expense, also plan a mass rally on the steps of the Capitol today.

There is indeed a popular mandate in America for a U.S.-Soviet nuclear weapons freeze," Kehler told reporters. "That mandate was expressed last November at the polls when we had the closest thing to a national referendum that this country has ever seen with over one-third of the entire U.S. electorate voting on the freeze proposition and over 60 percent voting in favor of it."

HE DREGS OF Hollywood are bad enough without the cavalry of sequels, and sequels of sequels, and sequels of sequels of sequels that charges into movie theaters every month. The Sting II is a ponderous horseman in this cavalry, a nightmare of a movie that shows just how low on talent studios must be.

Arts and entertainment

The original Oscar-winning film had writing that was so caught up in itself you never did catch on to just who was stinging whom. What it did have was charm - empty charm ultimately, but there is a lot to be said about charisma in troubled times. The screenwriter of that Sting - David S. Ward - is also, amazingly enough, the

this much brain atrophy really occur in This ill-begotten sequel is so utterly lacking in originality that it's not hard to see why Mac Davis was attracted to it. (I have never forgiven him for making the horrid Cheaper to Keep Her nor will I.) Davis, looking puffy and more empty-headed than usual, plays Jake Hooker - originally the Robert Redford part - with all the dopey, one who has penned the follow-up. Can hillbilly appeal he's capable of. Redford should sue.

DAVIS IS down on his luck six years after the original sting, and is reduced to fleecing fleecers who fleece him in kind. Jackie Gleason plays Fargo Gondorff - originally the Paul Newman role - the veteran con artist who, from a jail cell, entices Davis into yet another scam. (Aren't you just jumping with excitement?)

Gleason, who was reduced to meandering around the grounds of his mansion like a lost dinosaur in The Toy, gets a slightly meatier role here - if you call raising eyebrows and smirking

Hollywood stings audience again with bad sequel meat. His plan is to bilk shady dealer Karl Malden out of a million or so in a fake boxing match. Malden, in a bid to endear himself to audiences the world over as a lovable buffoon, is so heavyhanded in his attempt at light comedy that he makes Mac Davis look like a veritable Chaplin.

> THROWN LIKE so much sorghum into this molasses-like plot is Oliver Reed, who resurrects the role played earlier by Robert Shaw - Doyle Lonnegan, the original stingee. Reed, whose heavily-lidded eyes and almost complete lack of movement may incline you to swear he's in a coma, is out motion his own little counter sting. Cleverness, however, has nothing to do! with it. He just sits back and waits for Gleason to do all the setting up.

Teri Garr, in a turn as a con man's con man (person?), does at least offer variety. She plays a badly written woman's role among a sea of badly written men's roles. Stay vulnerable and stick close to Dusty, Teri; it'll do: you better in the long run.

Sting II is a movie meant only for masochists. If you like to suffer, be bored and pick the lint from betweenyour toes, you'll like it. And you'll deserve to be stung.

'Crucible' lacks stage interaction

By Lisa Norton cial to The Daily Iowan

HE CRUCIBLE by Arthur Miller is such a good play that it is able to withstand even the pressure of a poor production. Save for a few fleeting moents in Wednesday night's show, the wa City Community Theater's performance of this classic is about as provocative as vanilla pudding.

Those few moments, however, emain in one's memory as vibrating. intense pieces of a mood strong enough draw one into the story; but not strong enough, unfortunately, to hold one's attention and to bring the show ogether.

The Crucible is a story about the insidious nature of evil and the rulnerability of man's goodness in the ace of that evil, as it explores the wellknown witch hunts, trials and hangings f 1690s Salem, Mass.

Theater

The play, first performed in 1953, was seen by many as a parody of the McCarthy-era witch hunts, and well it may have been. But whatever its hidden references, they added or detracted little from the weight of the play's message, which came through loud and clear in Wednesday's performance, despite all the production's weaknesses.

THE ACTING was, at best, pretty. There is nothing more boring than five or six persons simply standing on stage, doing nothing but standing and watching their fellow actors and actresses act. This was the case in a number of scenes throughout the show. The players did not react when spoken to they just recited their lines - and of-

This is a play full of emotion, and one would think it would wrench at the hearts of those playing in it. Yet there was little honest pain, grief or sorrow displayed on stage Wednesday.

Loren Teggatz as John Proctor, however, deserves special mention for his amazing ability to render - from the barren emotional landscape around him - remarkably human scenes.

Jeanne Osborn was believable in her role as Rebecca Nurse, adding a muchneeded depth to the show. Donita Devance as Tituba was also a spark of life on stage. When she spoke her words rang with honest feeling.

AND PAUL DONELLY as Rev. John Hale, created a pulsating aura around his character, which made him somewhat despicable but all the more real. Sadly, this quality was lacking from most of the other central charac-

Another unsettling aspect of the production was the glaring discrepancy between the costuming and the language. The distinct impression was conveyed through the costumes that the time was 1950, yet characters continued to speak in the dialect common to 17th-century Massachusetts. If an effort was being made to restructure Miller's original setting, then one would assume the language would change to conform to that new setting also. It didn't, and this critic is still bewildered.

The production was directed by David A. Willis; set design by Michael D. Woodson; lighting by Charles D. Pin; and costumes by Jean M. Podhajsky Woodson.

The Crucible will play March 8-12 at p.m., and March 13 at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the door or by calling the box office at 337-

Virago grabs second in tourney

NBA strike could be 'catastrophe'

Despite key injuries and only three indoor practices, the Virago women's soccer team captured third place at the Third Annual Ottumwa Indoor Soccer Tournament last Saturday.

Luther College finished first and Ottumwa took second Team representative Chris Kennedy said indoor soccer is much more dangerous than playing outdoors and during the tournament, Virago lost two players due to knee and ankle injuries.

CAMP STAFF WANTED for CF Lincoln/Camp Lake Hubert, a ampus March 7th and 8th st

"I'M JUST telling my team we're going to have to take it one match at a time and each guy has to do the job he's capable of doing," Chesboro said. "A couple will have to beat somebody they aren't supposed to beat and if they don't do that, then we're not going to be in contention. But by no means should Iowa State, who advanced eight wrestlers to the tournament, be counted out of the team race. The Cyclones, boosted by the return of 177-pound All American Perry Hummel, may, in fact, make a bigger impact on the tournament than

Nichols said that Hummel, who has been bothered by a wrist injury most of the season, is "much better. It appears the two weeks (between tournaments) have helped him out." The fact Iowa crowned nine titlists in the Big Ten tournament didn't surprise Nichols. "They've dominated the conference for so long, it wasn't a shock to me," he said. The six-session tournament in the Myriad Convention Center, starts Thursday with the preliminary round at 10 a.m., and ends with the finals Saturday night. It is the first time the tourney has ever been

If members of Iowa's wrestling team are as confident as their coach, Dan Gable, the Hawkeyes should have little trouble snaring their sixth-consecutive national title this week in Oklahoma

Although Gable admits he's always a "bit edgy" at this point in the season, he says individuals concern him more than the team title.

"Honestly, I think we will win it." Gable said. "I just get nervous about lowa individual wrestling records

ON MONDAY, Amateur Wrestling News, regarded as the "bible" of collegiate wrestling, picked Iowa, which advances 10 wrestlers into the tourney, to win the title. So did two Oklahoma newspapers. Even Tommy Chesboro, the coach of No. 1 Oklahoma State -Iowa's main opposition in wrestling this year-thinks Iowa is going to win.

"Iowa is the favorite," Chesboro said. "They've got more high seeds and more potential high seeds than I do. If they score like their possible seedings, they ought to be a definite favorite.'

It was Oklahoma State who slapped the Hawkeyes, rated No. 2 most of the season, with a 27-23 dual meet loss back on Dec. 18. It was Iowa's only loss this season and ended a Hawkeye home are Hawkeyes expecting top seeds.

winning streak of 55 dual meets.

"On paper, Oklahoma State might be favored," Gable said. "They beat us in the dual, but this is a tournament."

THE HAWKEYES are expected to snare three No. 1 seeds when a committee in charge of such matters reveals its picks Wednesday afternoon.

"I won't have all 10 seeded." Chesboro said. "What points we some at 126, 142 and 177 (pounds) will be: bonus to us."

Oklahoma Stats will probably have two No. 1 seeds in 118-pounder Rand Willingham and 167-pounder Mile

Freeps frolic to easy IM win, 53-31

By Robert Ryser

The Freeps advanced to the finals of the intramural coed basketball tournament, after defeating the Wild Pooters in the Game of the Week, Monday night in the Field House.

Peggy Murphy and Sara Loetscher, the No. 1 singles player on the Iowa women's tennis team, led the women's side of the attack in the first and third quarters for the Freeps. The men, who played the second and fourth quarters, supplied the bulk of the scoring,

In the first period, Judy Becker, the ball handler and main catalyst of the Wild Pooters, made a 17-foot basket to give her team its first and only lead. Murphy tied the score on the other end for the Freeps, and as the game's intensity picked up, so did the margin of end of the first quarter, the Freeps led,

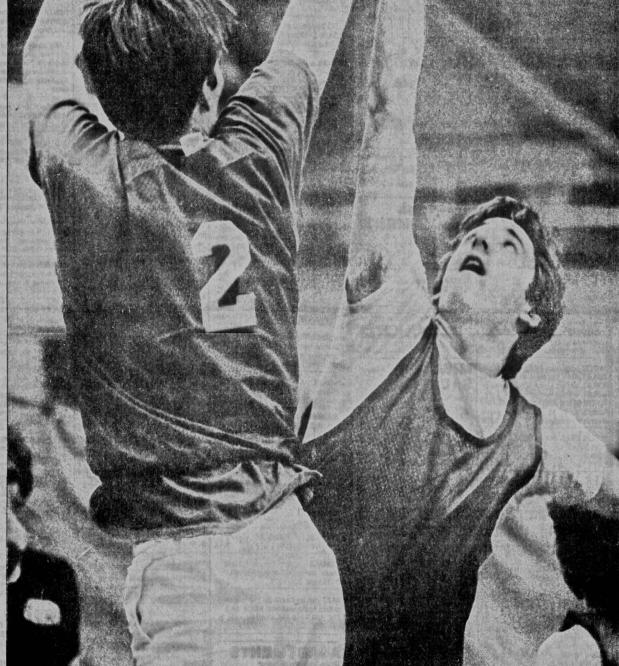

THE MEN OF the two respective teams came onto the court and seemed to set the pace for the rest of the game

Due to the competitive and rough nature of the game, the Freeps and Pooters got plenty of chances at the line. In the first two minutes of the second quarter, the Freeps ran the score to 13-9. The only thing keeping the Pooters in the game at this point was their 5-for-6 free throw shooting.

A tip-in at the buzzer gave the Freeps a 10-point halftime lead, 21-11, and gave the cheering women another chance at each other. A steal by Loetscher, which led to an easy lay-up for Murphy, opened the third quarter action. The Freeps ran off ninestraight points before the Pooters could retailate with a basket midway through the period.

WITH 3 MINUTES, 15 seconds left and the Freeps ahead, 30-13, the Pooters were still hustling up and down the court, diving to save loose balls out
