Local home building starts rise

By Allen Seidner Special to The Daily Iowan

During the first two months of 1983, Iowa City issued more residential building permits than almost every city in eastern Iowa, according to Iowa Development Commission data.

Iowa City issued 14 permits for the construction of single-family, duplex and multi-unit residential buildings in January and February of this year, while during the same period two years ago, only five residential permits were issued.

The economic base and employment opportunity provided by the UI distinguishes Iowa City from economic problems faced by other eastern Iowa cities. "The university is a good, stable base. It is not about to pack up and move to another city," said city Housing and Inspection Services Director Michael Kucharzak.

"ALL OF THE TOWNS in eastern Iowa are dependent on agriculture with the exception of Iowa City," said Kenneth Haas, of F.W. Dodge, a firm that provides contractors with information on upcoming construction opportunities.

Student enrollment will increase to 33,000 before leclining in 1986, according to the latest UI projections. Enrollment for the fall 1982 semester was 28,140.

Ken Moll, associate vice president for academic affairs, said the UI will need to hire additional staff members to accommodate the expected increases. 'We have not been expanding staff, but we have not been contracting (staff) either."

Unlike residential building, most UI construction plans will not be implemented because of increasing student enrollments, but can be attributed to detoriating old buildings that need to be renovated or replaced.

"The presence of more jobs in the university creates more jobs in the local economy," Moll said. According to UI estimates, more than 4,100 temporary jobs will be created by the construction - including 1,650 actual construction jobs.

THE ADDITION OF a new wing at UI Hospitals "is the one area in which there will be an increase in (permanent) staff," said Mary Jo Small, assistant vice president for finance. She said the new space will require a larger housekeeping staff.

The staff increase "will be dictated by patient need," said Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for finance

In addition increased enrollment projections, lower interest rates and the mild winter weather have attracted building contracts to Iowa City. The warm winter weather gave building contractors a jump on their spring construction, Kucharzak "It takes six to 18 months" to complete construction on a new dwelling, Kucharzak said. If housing units are to be completed before the fall rental season, construction on them must begin soon. Of all Iowa cities east of Des Moines, only Davenport issued more residential building permits than Iowa City. The Davenport department of building permits issued 15 permits during January and February 1983.

"THE PEOPLE IN the (construction) business are a little optimistic about the future," said Clyde W. Short, Building Inspections Director in Davenport. Short said the increase in construction in Davenport, however, is confined to residential building. "The industrial area is all depressed," he said

Although Des Moines supports a population nearly four times greater than that of Iowa City, only 11 residential building permits were issued in the period. During January and February 1981, Des Moines issued more than twice as many permits.

Reagan: Salvador requires more aid

> WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan, asserting U.S. security is at stake on the battlefields of Central America, called on a reluctant Congress Thursday to give El Salvador another $110 million in emergency military aid.

The president pledged in a major foreign policy speech he will not 'Americanize'' the war in El Salvador, but hinted that if Congress does not approve the full aid package, he may send in more U.S. advisers.

"Central America is simply too close

UNI faculty awarded 7% hike in 1984

By Paul Boyum

University of Northern Iowa faculty will receive a 7 percent salary increase in 1984-85 following a salary freeze in the first year of the biennium, an arbitrator has decided.

Collective bargaining between UNI's United Faculty union and the state Board of Regents ended Thursday not bound by the contract at UNI," said when arbitrator Neil Gundermann which took the regents' postion on unsettled issues of salary and health insurance eligibility. Gunderman's award is in line with the contracts settled by the state. earlier this year with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the state policemen's association, said Peter Pashler, mediator for the Iowa Public Employment Relations Board.

Legislature later this month

AT A MEETING in Des Moines Tuesday, Regents President S.J. Brownlee told faculty and staff representatives from the three state universities that salary guidelines at ISU and the UI are not tied to contracts negotiated with UNI faculty.

'Brownlee has said the regents are UI Faculty Senate President Donald Heistad, who attended Tuesday's meeting. "We certainly hope the regents and the governor are not influenced by it. I would hope and expect that there will be a moderate salary increase in the first year (for UI faculty) and I'm encouraged by the award given to UNI faculty in the second year." For UNI faculty, the arbitrator's award represents a defeat. When con-tract negotiations began last October, United Faculty asked for consecutive salary increases of 20 percent and 12 percent. Those figures dropped to consecutive 9 percent increases and then, entering arbitration hearings, to 3.5 percent and 4.5 percent. Joe Flynn, chief negotiator and spokesman for the regents, said he was pleased by the award. "He sided with the regents and we think his judgment is correct."

and the strategic stakes are too high for us to ignore the danger of governments seizing power there with ideological and military ties to the Soviet Union," Reagan said in a major foreign policy address to the National Association of Manufacturers.

The businessmen applauded only twice during the long speech.

"It is not nutmeg that is at stake in the Caribbean and Central America. It is the United States' national security," the president said.

Reagan said the new military funds he seeks for El Salvador would be part of a package of $298 million in military and economic aid for the region. Of the total. $163 million would be shifted from aid funds already appropriated elsewhere.

Members of Congress predicted a tough battle, especially in the Democratic-controlled House.

SEN. DAN QUAYLE, R-Ind., a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, said Reagan "will probably get most of what he asks for" but Congress might add conditions opposing U.S. combat troops, calling for improved respect for human rights and "maybe a certification requirement on how the aid is used."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said there is a "strong feeling the president has gone too far" in the request for El Salvador.

"I can't conceive of (the request) passing the House under the present circumstances," O'Neill said. He said any move to increase the number of advisers "wouldn't get through the House" either.

But House Republican leader Bob Michel said Reagan is correct "for giving us a charge" in Congress on how to See Aid, page 6

IN HIS REASONS for siding with the regents, Gunderman said in his award: "According to the testimony of state Comptroller (Ron) Mosher, the state will be facing difficult financial times. especially during the 1983-84 fiscal year ... Even if one assumes the most optimistic scenario, the state's economic outlook is bleak."

Opinions are sharply divided on how the arbitrator's award will affect UI faculty salaries. Thursday, Fred Hallberg, United Faculty spokesman, accused the state and the regents of trying to destroy the collective bargaining unit at UNI by continually giving higher percentage pay increases to faculties at the UI and Iowa State University.

UNI faculty received 8.8 percent salary increases in both years of the 1981-83 biennium. United Faculty representatives maintain and UI officials acknowledge that faculty here and at ISU received salary increases of at least 10 percent during the same period.

Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for finance, said the regents have historically determined salary needs for ISU and the UI independent of the contract settled with United Faculty. The regents are expected to make salary recommendations for non-union state university employees to the Iowa

PASHLER SAID THE contract award will not "make or break anyone. Three or four percentage points within the context of two years isn't going to change anything substantially. I'm unequivocally convinced that there are very serious financial problems in this state. It is a big problem, not a small

Last-ditch efforts to negotiate a contract ended Wednesday afternoon after the parties failed to agree on a percentage increase for 1983-84. United Faculty proposed a 1.5 percent increase for 1983-84 and a 5.5 percent increase for the second year along with an improved health insurance package and higher minimum salaries.

The regents, after consultation with state leaders, decided they could not accept the first year salary figure. "We just couldn't figure out a way to get it to work within the context of the proposal," Pashler said.

CEDAR FALLS - Rusty Martin has been doing a lot of serious thinking about life lately - that is, what it would be like to spend part of it in prison

If the United States wins its court case against the University of Northern Iowa senior, he may be imprisoned for resisting draft registration. He said he wants to be prepared for the worst, "If that's possible." The government has appealed Martin's case. "Really it's hard to say

The issue, he said, is "dramatic," and the hours of debating it have helped him get a firmer grip on his beliefs. "Now my ideas are a lot more as a radical. Instead, "I'm using common sense."

When he announced his intentions to publicly burn his draft registration card, Martin said he found himself in an isolated corner on the UNI campus. After his freshman year, he spent a summer at the Catholic Worker House in Des Moines, where he established a support network.

One afternoon that summer, Martin was scraping paint off the Catholic Worker House. As he scraped, he talked candidly with a man who went to prison for nine and a half months instead of going to the war in Vietnam. The man, Steve Marsden, was a draft resister during the 1960s. Because he went to prison in lieu of combat, "He showed me that it was possible to stand up for what you believe," Martin said.

The UNI student burned his draft registration card in front of the U.S. Post Office in Des Moines Jan. 22, 1980. That day he set himself up as one of 14 men in the United States who would be targeted for prosecution.

THREE YEARS LATER, Martin said, "I didn't realize it would become a central part of my life." His critics say he is "self-righteous." See Martin, page 6

Carter chastises Begin

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter, in a sharp rebuke of the Begin government, said Thursday President Reagan's Middle East peace plan is compatible with the Camp David accords.

For the second straight day, Palestinians in Israeli-occupied lands threw rocks and burned tires to protest Carter's visit. The former president earlier met in occupied Gaza with Rashad Shawaa, the deposed mayor of Gaza.

Militia battles Lima workers

LIMA, Peru — About 15,000 troops firing tear gas and guns battled rock-throwing workers Thursday in a day-long nationwide strike that paralyzed the capital and left at least four people dead, 20 injured and 200 in jail, police said.

Unconfirmed reports said two other people died in clashes.

Watt cuts off Kuwait

WASHINGTON — The U.S. government will stop Kuwait from buying U.S. oil and gas interests on federal land, and will investigate whether the country can keep its current holdings, Interior Secretary James Watt said Thursday.

The decision by Watt declares Kuwait a "non-reciprocal nation" under the federal Mineral Leasing Act because it "is discriminating against U.S. citizens and corporations" seeking to hold petroleum interests in the Persian Gulf country.

Crop program modified

WASHINGTON — President Reagan promised Thursday to sign legislation to remove a major tax problem facing farmers who enroll in the government's new crop reduction program. His announcement followed final congressional approval of the tax bill by only a few hours and came just one day before the deadline.

No word on lawsuit brought against city in dog shooting

By Suzanne Johnson

Although a guit filed in T

Although a suit filed in December 1982 over a pregnant wolf-dog hybrid shot to death by an Iowa City police officer was sketchy, information has continued to trickle in since that time.

Randy Harrison, of 941 N. Dodge St., brought the $13,385 suit against Iowa City, saying Iowa City police officer Edward Schultz was negligent in shooting his dog Katsic.

The petition filed by Harrison's attorney, Maurine A. Braddock, states, "The shooting was unprovoked and unnecessary because the plaintiff's pet was lying down and facing away from Officer Schultz at the time."

In the suit, Harrison complains that Schultz followed too drastic a course of action. Instead, he states, the dog should have been trapped, tranquilized or impounded.

Where Katsic was shot, its breed, and what provoked Schultz to shoot her remained a mystery since attorneys and Iowa City police have refused to comment on the case.

BRADDOCK STILL refused to discuss any aspect of the case Thursday — even when she expects the case to come to trial — but Bruce L. Walker, who is representing the city, said 18 months is the average amount of time that passes before civil cases in Johnson County are tried.

A letter added to the file from James Berg, a Minnesota man who owned both of Katsic's parents, states that Katsic's purchase value was $60. In the Car damaged in hit and run

A hit-and-run accident Thursday in a UI Hospitals parking lot left a blue Pontiac Firebird with $1,300 in damage to the right front end, according to Iowa City police records. The car is owned by Lavon Boyenga, 916 Roosevelt St.

Damage: A truck or car drove through the east doors to the new addition of City High School causing $1,000 damage, Wayne Jarrard, the school's physical plant director, reported to police Thursday.

Theft: Two custom-made fender skirts were taken from the 1977 Pontiac Bonneville of Carl Sweeting, 1409 Sycamore St., on Thursday, police reports stated. The two skirts are valued at $163.

Vandalism: The left rear tire on a 1982 Honda belonging to Thomas Baker was slashed and the rear windshield wiper was ripped off, the owner reported to UI Campus Security Thursday. Damage to the car, which was parked in the lower lot at the UI College of Law, was estimated at $150. suit, Harrison asks for $8,385 actual damages to compensate for the dog's value, her litter of unborn pups, and costs for licensing, housing, feeding and transportation.

Schultz related his account of the shooting in a taped interview, the transcript of which now appears in the case file. He said he was called twice to a house on North Summit Street "where a large dog was attacking rabbits in a cage."

When he responded to the second call, Schultz took a .22 bolt-action rifle, expecting that he might have to shoot the dog. From Katsic's size and coloration, he assumed she was "at least partially wild."

"MY FIRST feelings when I saw the dog was, if that is a dog, he's crossed with a coyote, because he had the exact coloration of a coyote or something on that order and he had the fluffy tail that a coyote has."

Schultz said he wanted to shoot the dog quietly and discreetly, before he drew a crowd. He thought Katsic was potentially dangerous, and showed no signs of domestication.

"I just decided that the dog had given me no indication that it was domestic. An animal that large and that wild-looking could and would be very dangerous. I've seen too many people ... that have been bitten severely by dogs and I just didn't think that that dog needed to be around."

Schultz admitted that Katsic was lying down when she was shot. "She didn't know exactly where I was at, and she was lying down, and I shot her through the head, and she just laid her head down on the ground and died."

Courts

A woman who took her two children from her ex-husband's home and hid them was sentenced Tuesday to 60 days in the Johnson County Jail.

Leslie G. Yoder pleaded guilty Tuesday to violating a custodial order by taking Maria and Magdelena Oberschachtsiek Dec. 21, 1982 without permission, according to Johnson County District Court records. The children were taken from the Iowa City home of their father, Walter Oberschachtsiek,49, who died Feb. 20.

Yoder, who has been given credit for time previously served, will spend 29 days in jail.

Construction of a new UI College of Law building will be in the works this summer if the Iowa House of Representatives agrees with a Senate decision made earlier this week.

Awareness sessions slated to discuss incurable disease

By Kirk Brown Staff Writer

What used to be called senility, the progressive deterioration of brain cells which occurs primarily in elderly people, is now known by the medical profession as Alzheimer's disease, an incurable illness

Because many people are unaware that the condition is a disease rather than a simple characteristic of old age, a series of public education workshops and the creation of a local support group for victims of the disease and their families is slated for April and May

"Alzheimer's disease is a deteriorating illness which results in the death of brain cells. The disease is slow but progressive and there is no cure," said Geri Hall, a UI clinical nursing specialist.

"The disease has three main stages," Hall said. 'The first stage is the loss of intellectual functions such as the loss of judgment and the inabilty to control inhibitions. This is followed by the patient's loss of personality in which they become more withdrawn from society, and the final stage is the loss of the person's sense of purpose when their attention span is considerably shortened and they are ncapable of finishing even the most simple activities."

HALL SAID MEDICAL professionals have estimated that 5 percent of all people over the age of 65 are afflicted with the disease with the number rising to 15 percent for people over 85.

Alzheimer's disease is a major problem not only for the people who are afflicted with the illness but also for their family members, she said.

"In the latter stages of the disease the patients are unable to recognize family members, forget how to talk and are even unable to recognize themselves in the mirror - it is a tragic disease.

Hall and other concerned professionals from the Iowa City area have planned a series of workshops beginning April 10 and continuing for five weeks through May 8. Medical, psychological, family, legal and financial aspects of Alzheimer's disease will be discussed at the programs, which will be held at the Iowa City Senior Center.

Hall said the public meetings are being held to help both the victims and their families cope with the

"In the past there have been a couple of serious problems in dealing with Alzheimer's disease," Hall pointed out. "It has been very difficult to diagnose because many of its symptoms, such as depression, confusion and psychosis, may occur in the elderly for other reasons like high blood pressure or heart disease.'

"ANOTHER MAJOR PROBLEM is that the disease is not treatable and it is sometimes very difficult to care for the person at home," Hall added. Hall cited examples in which people suffering from the disease have "just wandered off from their homes." One case she mentioned involved an elderly Ottumwa man who set out in his car on a 150-mile drive and was found by authorities a few days later after he had driven nearly 4,000 miles.

Hall said although there is no treatment yet for Alzheimer's disease, research is being conducted at the UI by the division of neurological behavior.

Dr. Antonio Damasio, a professor in the department, said research is being conducted into several different areas of the disease.

Vern Robin-son ordered the UI Hospitals last Monday to mail a day when the Supreme Court can first hear what this case is about.'

The hearing in the Supreme Court chambers Monday morning has been scheduled not to review the entire case, but to decide whether the temporary stay will continue, thus determining the fate of the second letter to Mrs. X.

After the ruling, an appeal filed by the state resulted in a stay order, which has allowed the UI to refrain from sending the letter. Deputy Attorney Appel said, "The question of extending the stay, I General Brent Appel has since filed a motion to conbelieve, will be the only issue (discussed). Either decision by the court - to grant or to deny the stay's extension - will have negative implications, according to Riley.

curfew. 'At around 10:25 p.m. the steps in front of the dorms would be lined with girls saying good-bye to their boyfriends so they'd make the 10:30 p.m. curfew," according to Mary Ellen McKinsey, a 1956 resident of an IU residence hall.

House mothers issued pink slips to late offenders. Accumulation of too many slips resulted in disciplinary action, which usually involved contacting the woman's parents.

Weekend curfews were extended to 12:30 a.m., but the strict visitation rules were still enforced. "People didn't look the other way," McKinsey said. Men weren't allowed in women's rooms "except for your dad or brother bringing in a suitcase." Women weren't allowed in men's rooms and could only be in their lounges if a chaperone was present.

"They figured they couldn't control the boys so they controlled the girls - and that ultimately affects the boys," McKinsey said. Women who left the dorms for a weekend were given a yellow sign-out slip and a post card was sent to their parents. Men had no curfews or sign-out

Unemployment claims drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) - New claims for unemployment benefits plunged to 460,000 in late February, the lowest total for any week in almost a year and a half, the Labor Department said Thurs-

The seasonally adjusted drop of 42,000 in the week ended Feb. 26 was the seventh decline in the first nine weeks of the year. It brought new applications for state jobless benefits to the lowest level since Sept. 12, 1981.

Less than half of the unemployed qualify for the state benefits, however, and weekly trends in applications are not always a reliable guide to the direction of total unemployment, which the department measures once a month.

The national unemployment rate for February remained at the January level of 10.4 percent despite drops in initial claims for jobless benefits.

Many analysts believe that some recalls of previously laid-off workers, particularly in the automobile and steel industries, are slowly moderating the nation's unemployment problem. MOST LEADING forecasters in and out of government foresee the unemployment rate dropping below 10 percent before the end of the year.

The total number of people receiving both state and federal jobless benefits was 6,209,800 before seasonal adjustment for the earlier week ending Feb. 19, the department said Thursday. This was a decline of 287,300.

The number of people in every state receiving further special supplemental benefits under recent federal programs that extend payments another 16 weeks was 954,200, a decrease of 20,200, the department said.

The 10 states with the most unemployment among people covered by state benefits were West Virginia 10.6 percent, Alaska 8.8 percent, Idaho, 8.1 percent, Oregon 7.9 percent, Pennsylvania 7.8 percent, Michigan 7.1 percent, Mississippi 7.1 percent, Kentucky 7 percent, Washington 7 percent and Arkansas 6.9 percent

A ruling that the law denying student financial aid to those who do not register for the draft, drew accolades from panelists at a discussion on "Drafting the University to Enforce the Law," Thursday afterne

The last in a series of three sessions sponsored by the Association of Campus Ministers on Registration and Military Service was held before an audience of a dozen or so concerned students.

'Ithink it's a vital issue, especially with the current passing of the draft regulation coming into effect July 1," said event moderator Sally Smith of the ruling made Thursday. A federal judge in St. Paul, Minn., granted a preliminary injunction which blocked enforcement of a law requiring students to register for the draft to be eligible for federal financial aid.

U.S. District Judge Donald D. Alsop opposed the law, saying a student complying with the law but signing a document against his will was self-incrimination.

RESPONDING TO THIS action, Joe losbaker, guest speaker and Student Coalition Against Registration and the Draft member, was pleased, saying the law is unconstitutional.

'This all means it (the law denying financial aid to draft resisters) won't come to a grinding halt," but Iosbaker said the ruling shows the effect of widespread opposition to the law.

Philip Hubbard, UI vice president for student services, said the UI received from the U.S. Department of Education a preliminary outline of proposed action for college financial aid offices.

The financial aid offices were informed that Title IV loans would be unobtainable by students refusing to register. "The Title IV's are the essential components of student financial aid," Hubbard said.

According to the report Hubbard received, student financial aid applications would be expanded so students must indicate whether they are male, female, too old for the draft, too young for the draft, already in the armed services, or registered for the draft. "We don't know how that could happen. We've already started to process our applications for next year," Hubbard said.

In a return letter to the Department of Education, Hubbard said the UI answered that "it would complicate the process of financial aid distribution" if the UI is forced to comply with the law.

HE SAID IT WOULD cost the UI money to enforce this due to the increase in staff to carry out the duty and to handle the increase in mail to uninformed students.

John Baker, student senator, said the draft law could "discourage students from applying for financial aid." He also said the UI should not be involved in enforcement of the law, but should hold a "neutral position."

Iosbaker said this law is not in favor of education and does not belong on a college campus, Baker agreed, saying,"I don't see enforcement of registration as a mission of the school."

When asked about the sexism of the new law, Iosbaker said the Supreme Court has already "ruled in the interest of national security, sexism is okay."

Hubbard said about 500 students could be prosecuted if the law is carried out at the UI. This would mean the 500 students would be unable to receive financial aid. "It is very difficult to have anything to give them other than Title IV," Hubbard said.

The first two meetings dealt with the questions of law and the questions of conscience. "This is the most critical issue, although they are all critical," Smith said of Thursday's meeting.

While he admits that may have been the case a few years ago, Martin said his goal now is "to organize everyone who agrees with me. I'm not trying to convert anyone."

Martin said he did try to change his father's political views, though. To some extent, he may have succeeded. "My dad isn't a Republican anymore, but he isn't a Democrat either.

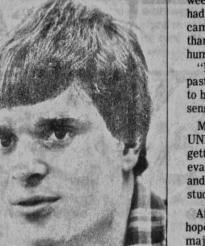

Martin is currently enrolled in an interpersonal relationship skills class. "People tell me that's one area I need to work on."

The Newell, Iowa, native said he has changed a lot since he began his bout with draft registration. He has focused on a career and he knows the way to get what he wants is through electoral politics.

His younger brother, James, said Rusty is still the same person who was captain of his high school football team and chapter president of the Future Farmers of America. "He's an easy-going guy. But when it comes to politics and goals, he's pretty determined.'

MARTIN GAVE the UNI Student Association an identity, according to Lori Meek, former editor of the Northern Iowan, UNI's student newspaper. "UNISA

had always suffered from image problems But there were personality conflicts between Meek and Martin. Because Martin had become so absorbed in his work, "He came across as more rough and insensitive than he intended to. He overlooked the human element," Meek said. "I think he has really grown a lot over the past two years," she continued. "He seems to be making a conscious effort to be more sensitive.

Martin will end two years of service to UNISA as president next month. "I'm getting nostalgic now," he said. He is reevaluating the goals he set two years ago and recognizing the problems inherent in student government.

After graduation in December, Martin hopes to work as a political organizer. "My major education has came from involvement with student government - from spending two years trying to motivate people," he said.

And now Martin is waiting for an opportunity to make a difference. If he goes to prison, "there's always a chance he could have a bad experience," Marsden said, speaking from his experience. But Marsden is quick to add, "I don't expect there will be anything he can't deal with."

Senate will discuss new funding criteria

By Kristine Stemper Staff Writer

During the last meetings before the UI Student Senate elections next week, senators considered four pages of amendments to their Budget Protocol Act which will determine the criteria future senates use when funding student'organizations.

The basis for the amendments results from a complaint filed against the senate two years ago with the UI Human Rights Commission after the UI Right to Life Commmittee received no funding from the senate.

The need for neutral criteria, to help senators fund groups in a more unbiased manner, comes from the commission's recommendation that the senate not consider a group's ideology when funding them.

'It's going to change the budget process completely," said senate President Patty Maher. "It will probably make it (funding groups) go a lot more smoother, and make it clearer to groups why their funding was cut."

'The only problem I see with it is that it's very impersonal and doesn't allow much room to take individual groups' needs into consideration," she

Included in the list is the provision that groups will not receive funds if they are able to get funding elsewhere, if they have lied to the BAC about their group's characteristics, if the group is 'viable," and several others.

A second section of the amendments states that groups "are guaranteed an equal opportunity to apply for and receive funds. (Also) funding shall not be denied on the basis of ideology espoused by the group or its members." Ideology "is one of the central issues of the student senate right now," said Sen. Ann Richards, also a member of the ad hoc committee. Whether we fund on the ideologies of a group ... is a very basic question. We might have to leave the question of ideology to the next senate," she said, because of the little time the current senate has to come to an agreement on

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a Senate Foreign Relations Committee member' and candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination said Reagan appears to be repeating steps that led to the Vietnam War.

"If Ronald Reagan follows further the path trod by Lyndon Johnson the next step will be sending in more military advisers and then the next step could be Americans in combat in El Salvador," Cranston said,

Pressure for Reagan to clarify the U.S. commitment to the government of El Salvador has built for the past several weeks as the administration warned that government forces face a crisis in the civil war with leftist insurgents.

"HOW BAD IS the military situation? It is not good." he said. "For the moment, at least, (the guerrillas) have taken the tactical initiative just when the sharply limited funding Congress has so far approved is running out."

Reagan originally asked $60 million in 1983 military aid for El Salvador, but

The president warned that without U.S. assistance, the nations of Central America and the Caribbean could fall victim to the "domino theory," once used as the rationale for sending U.S.

"If guerrilla violence succeeds ... El Salvador will join Cuba and Nicaragua as a base for spreading fresh violence to Guatemala, Honduras, even Costa Rica," he said. "The killing will increase and so will the threat to Panama, the Canal and ultimately Mex-

The witch is dead?

Ding, dong, the Wicked Witch is dead!

The resignation of Anne Burford as head of the Environmental Protection Agency is cause for celebration. Her administration of that agency has been not only irritating and less-than-fully competent, it has been antithetical to the intent of Congress in creating the EPA in the early 1970s. Her hostility to the federal government's role as enforcer of environmental laws was, and no doubt still is, as great as President Reagan's own.

Burford did not come out of nowhere to her appointment as top administrator at EPA. As a lawyer and state legislator in Colorado she repeatedly sided with oil, gas and mineral interests in disputes over mining and drilling rights. Her hostility to federal regulations made her the perfect candidate for her position in the Reagan administration, and in the end it was her continuing loyalty to that frightening creed that brought her down.

The way in which Burford was hounded from office was not pretty, but neither was the mess she made of this country's apparatus for enforcing its environmental laws. Most administrators fight for greater funding of their agencies -Burford fought for drastic cuts in the EPA budget. Most administrators seek to hold onto the brain-trusts they inherit -Burford presided over an exodus of qualified experts and long-time EPA employees. A wise government administrator seeks to educate the public about her or his agency's activities and programs - Burford ordered the destruction of hundreds of thousands of documents and reports compiled with that aim in mind, even after they had been printed and distributed to regional EPA' offices.

But in The Wizard of Oz, the joy in Munchkinland over the Wicked Witch of the East's death was naive, for the Wicked Witch of the West lived on. So there is still Interior Secretary James Watt, and there is still Reagan's quest to curtail the federal government's ability to regulate corporate activity.

It is to be hoped that this whole debacle over EPA has impressed upon the president the strong support that environmental laws and regulations enjoy in Congress and among the people of this country. Let him choose wisely in naming Burford's replacement, or let him pay the consequences.

Words of a gum-chewing Gandhi

T WAS THE OTHER day, when I was taking a walk through Iowa City. The streets were strangely empty. Near the Old Capitol Center, I suddenly halted when I heard a soft cough by my side. Turning around, I perceived the great Mahatma standing in the shadows, dressed in his typical dhoti and holding the walking stick in his hands. I was so overcome with emotion I could not speak. However, it was the Mahatma who opened up the conversation.

"What ho! What ho! What ho!," said the Mahatma. "How goes life?" Well, it was really a shock to me. I had read and heard so much about the good-humored Mahatma, but this shook me. I mean, if you'd seen Gandhi, you'd agree with me that the Mahatma is far from speaking in such a manner.

"Mahatma," I cried, my voice full of emotion. "I can't believe it's you. It simply can't be true.'

'My dear chap!" said the Mahatma reprovingly, "This is me, in flesh and blood. Maybe my dhoti's not ironed properly. That nincompoop ... ! Anyway, what do you think?

Your dhoti is perfectly alright, oh, Mahatma," I cried. "I just cannot believe my good luck. I am so fortunate to meet the great man who showed the way to the millions of this world."

THE MAHATMA CHUCKLED. He seemed to consider it funny. "You know why my great soul is humored? It was what you said about me showing the way to the millions. As a matter of fact, I'm lost now. Could you show me the way?"

Digressions

Sunil Padiyar

I was really moved: the great Mahatma seeking my help! I got down on my knees and ventured to hold his hands in mine and explain my gratitude. Before I could move an inch, the Mahatma jumped two feet in the air. "Do not, I pray, do not come near me, young man," cried the Mahatma. "I am supposed to confront an audience in a few minutes. If you think I would allow your dirty hands, which I distinctly see coated with several layers of chocolate candy, to touch the beautiful me, you are mistaken."

"Of course not, oh, Mahatma," I said in utmost humbleness. "It is just that I went out of my mind on seeing you. There are so many things I want to talk with you about, like for instance

"I know, I know," the Mahatma tuttutted sympathetically. "I would really love to, but I simply don't have the time." He stopped to look at his wrist and his expression turned to one of annoyance. "That idiot Attenborough," he cried, "he's even taken my watch away. Real life simulation, he called

The Mahatma wrung his hands in despair. Next moment, he had removed something from the inner recesses of his dhoti, which I perceived to be a bar of chewing gum. "Give it to the Americans to make good gum!" he said and happily started chewing.

1 FELT DIZZY and my knees weakened. This was very unlike the Mahatma I had hitherto heard and read about. As I stood dumbly groping for words there was a sound of pattering feet around the corner and Richard Attenborough came puffing up. "Ah, there you are, you irresponsible idiot," said Attenborough. "If I had a gun I'd have shot you again and made history."

"How dare you talk like that to the Mahatma," I said, angrily. "As regarding your threat ...

Now it was Attenborough's turn to jump a few feet off the ground. "Who is this punk?" he demanded.

"Just a young man I met on the way, Richard," said the Mahatma. "I guess I understand what his problem is. He's got the impression that I am Gandhi the real Gandhi, I mean.

"That's really great, Kingsley," said Attenborough. If this punk thinks you're Gandhi, just imagine how the audience at the Iowa Memorial Union will swallow it up. Let's be on our way, we've already lost time, thanks to your sudden inspiration to walk to the Union, leaving your Rolls behind. Our promotional tour for Gandhi seems set to be a big success.'

Ben Kingsley — or the great Mahatma himself?

he departed with Attenborough - and I stood gaping, hanging on to the swaying Iowa City Transit sign-board.

"Toodle-Oo," said Ben Kingsley as Padiyar is a UI graduate student.

Giving Senate back to the students

By Tony Almquist

ERHAPS THE best Student enate article in this campaign was "To the Batpolls," by D.W. Ebhard (DI, March 8) who, in a wonderfully irreverent way, raised a major problem confronting UI students - apathy.

But the real problem is not apathy but the Student Senate itself, which is self-serving and not addressing your needs. Students are not apathetic, but they have concerns other than those the senate has addressed. How many collegiate lives were enriched by the senate's concern for the problems of Rusty Martin or Jim Hessburg at the inversity of Northern Iowa The senate, instead of acting to improve internal UI conditions, has reacted to external events that have no direct influence on us. This is not 'progressive" behavior; it is reactionary. We don't need representatives who react; we need senators willing to act and build. Students are most concerned with college, one needs money. Programs for higher education - not just tuition aid, but grants to improve colleges themselves - must be expanded. We as students must exert pressure on our state and national representatives to student leaders who are willing to take the initiative in mobilizing student action - not just at election time, but all the time.

us have adequate and reasonably priced places to live. Under the present Progressive administration of Patty Maher, the Senate Housing Committee has been allowed to die - it must be revived. We must resist the proposition of rent controls; one only has to see the abysmal housing situation in New York City to see the result of rent controls.

WHAT MUST BE done in Iowa City 1. Academic survival. To survive in is for senate to work with city government to develop incentives to increase housing supply. Let's create more housing and let landlords compete against each other - it should be a joint project of the Senate Housing and City Relations committees to work 3. Maintaining academic standards at the UI, which is recognized as near the top in many fields when ranked with other schools. This leadership 2. Housing. We must ensure that all of must be maintained through paying our didate for Student Senate.

faculty salaries competitive with other institutions, government and industry, and we must make the facilities on our campus adequate for student needs. Finally, we must try to protect academic freedom - the freedom to pursue research in any area that may directly or indirectly improve the welfare of society.

This agenda for reforming the senate is brief but wide-reaching. We must elect representatives who know and share our concerns, not those who use it as a forum to promote views that are not shared by a majority of their constituents. We can make senate an effective, action-oriented body that serves us instead of the personal condidates that will make it truly a Student Senate.

Justice in the open

JUMP, QUEEN BURFORD. JUMP! JUMP!

There is much truth to the argument that the workings of our judicial system are a well-kept secret - that although we are the globe's most litigious people, the large majority of the public is ignorant about the functioning of the court system.

A 28-member coalition of media organizations - including the Associated Press, United Press International, CBS, NBC and PBS - says the situation can be remedied by allowing radio, television and photographic coverage of federal court proceedings. To a large degree, they are right.

There are few reasons for not allowing such coverage. Technological advances have yielded small, lightweight audio equipment, and portable television cameras that require no additional lighting. In short, media coverage can be carried on without in-court disturbance. And a recent Supreme Court decision found no evidence that the broadcasting of cases in a state court would deprive a defendant of a fair trial. More than 40 states, including Iowa, have removed bans on cameras and microphones in courtrooms.

Recent reporting on state court proceedings - for example, the Erin Fleming-Groucho Marx Estate controversy in California, and the William Head-University Hospitals conflict here in Iowa City - demonstrates that media coverage can be tastefully done, and is more informative and engaging than viewing an artist's rendering of the courtroom scene. Even the newly-aired "People's Court," in an admittedly crass manner, is an effective introduction to courtroom procedure.

The media coalition has urged that the Judicial Conference of the United States - a rule-making body consisting of federal district and appeals court judges, and chaired by Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger - adopt such changes for federal courts. Their recommendation should be followed.

As the states have demonstrated already, there are no compelling reasons for denying media coverage in courtrooms, and any step toward making the American judicial system less mysterious, less imposing, and more accessible to the public should be welcomed.

Your choice

The Student Reform Party seems to be basing much of its campaign on an attempt to deny funding to gay organizations. Several objections could be raised about SRP statements on how gays are "pocketing" your tuition money (after all, gays pay tution too shouldn't they be able to get some back for their organizations?). But it may be more instructive to note what the SRP isn't talking about.

For instance, they don't have much to say about rising tuition costs and the falling quality of our education at this overcrowded, underfunded institution. They don't seem to have a plan to fight for financial aids. Their main concern about the high cost of housing seems to be that someone might do something to control it. And while they are extremely concerned about the greedy gay groups, they neglect to inform us that the total amount these groups "pocketed" from your tuition this year was about 4 cents per student.

The choice March 15 seems clear. You can vote for the SRP and maybe save yourself 4 cents, or you can vote for Progressives '83 and get a senate that wants to unite, not divide, students to deal with the real problems that face

Bruce Hagemann Progressives '83.

Some new ideas

To the editor:

There is an intriguing new group of students in UI politics this year. The party consists of a diversity of students; some have served on senate before, others have not. The party is called the Representative Choice party. They are taking a firm stand on issues that will affect students and student funds, such as mandatory student fees. RC candidates do not stress issues that have no bearing to the students financially or educationally. No student issues will be blown out of proportion. No sensationalism.

The RC party believes that the students should be informed of the issues that will decide how their funds will be allocated. RC holds a position that The Daily Iowan should have the privilege to print a summary of each senate meeting. The Student Senate should be obligated to account for its actions to the student body.

In another instance, the DI could help involve the students in senate affairs to a greater degree. RC proposees to list voluntary positions on eight existing senate subcommitees in the DI. These would be open to any responsible student who would like to participate in UI student government. Third, the RC party would like to organize a lobby that would meet in

Des Moines to bring further recognition to students for the cause of the maintenance or increase of the financial aid system in Iowa.

The issues listed above are just a few new ideas important to Representative Choice. Each goal would give each student at the UI an informed advantage. You've got to know how your mandatory fee is being used before you can question its use. The choice is the students'. It's the Representative Choice for Student Senate.

Peter Savlin Representative Choice

Representative choice To the editor:

I congratulate the BATs. They placed the Student Senate in proper perspective. "Average Joe Student couldn't tell you the first thing about Student Senate." And we don't want to hear its problems. That's what's wrong with the senate. That's why we need change. They spend $140,000 of our money each year - that's megabucks if you're poor like me. Their problems? They're there to solve mine. Believe it or not, that's what the Representative all those who aren't wealthy Choice slate and myself wants done.

Let's open up the senate. Air its dirty linen in public. Make each senator accountable to Joe Average. Let's hear where the money goes. We can have biannual financial statements published like those corporate types. We want value for our $140,000. Also make them work a little. Have them pounding doors of the administration and Office of Campus Programs. Let the "Brass" know what we want in this university. We want to be heard, but no one is listening.

Yes, BATs, "We want to bring the Student Senate back to the students." And we are not doing it for fame or personal gains. You see student senators are not paid and nobody knows them anyway Gerard Ng

Funding needed

To the editor:

In the current Student Senate race, the Student Reform Party, probably the most conservative party running, has opposed funding for the work of certain social issue groups.

The SRP, in a leaflet toting the appropriate question, "So why vote?" proposed the party's first "reform," stating that mandatory fees shoud be denied to political groups.

The 1982 senate also felt it was a good idea, so much so that in Bill 82-16, Section 6.32, they mandated that "no mandatory student fee funds may be allocated to any political or politicallyaffiliated group.

The most important part of SRP's "reform" is what they are failing to tell students. Specifically, the SRP is suggesting that certain groups of their choice be denied senate discretionary funding. They assert that these groups should rely on their individual constituencies for donations. This is the same type of fallacious and discriminatory logic that Students for Traditional American Freedoms is famous for. To force groups to rely on their constituency for funding leaves unrepresented.

In the same leaflet, SRP claims that discretionary funds should go to groups that "represent students, not ideologies." This is meaningless rhetoric. People are represented by their names or their photos. Their thoughts, their ethics, and their most deeply held beliefs, however, are represented by their ideologies. To suggest that these ideologies be disallowed is to suggest the unthinkable: the stifling repression of the personal beliefs of UI students.

The enemy at the UI is not student groups, and most certainly not overfunded groups. The enemy is stagnant apathy toward pressing social problems. Denying funding to the socially aware students who are willing to work for the student body only feeds that apathy.

Funding for these groups is crucial and must be continued. To ignore the work done on behalf of the student body by these groups is to ignore the needs of all UI students.

Sexist language

To the editor:

Now that Jim Musser has established that the Hawkeye-Carver Arena is a virgin, I'm left wondering who will be the deflowerer "popping the rock 'n' roll cherry of the House that Lute Built" (DI, March 4). The crowd? Neil Young? Or maybe his guitar?

Musser's sexist terminology reinforces a negative image of sexuality, particularly women's, by the use of the word cherry. The term "to pop" is violent, aggressive and reinforcing of society's image of a macho male.

Sexist language is often subtle but the implications run deep. It denies womankind's existence and contributions and is dehumanizing to women and men.

Coleen Hanrahan

Possible solution? To the editor:

Wouldn't it be more sensible for all people who are concerned that "Mrs. be contacted regarding tissue transplant to go and be tested themselves for compatability? A drive to find a new donor would also probably be quicker than relying on the courts. And more moral than "volunteering" someone else. Caroline Dieterle

Anne Burford speaking about her resignation Thursday.

Former EPA chief says she's not bitter

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Anne Burford, without bitterness but fighting back tears, said Thursday she resigned as head of the Environmental Protection Agency because "it was getting to the point where I couldn't do my job anymore.

"I resigned because I felt I had become the issue," Burford said in her first public comments since her resignation. "It's hard to lead a normal life when there are people camped in your front yard." Burford told reporters jammed into the ballroom of a downtown hotel, "I'm not a bitter person." But because of the controversy over the EPA's toxic waste cleanup program, "It was getting to the point where I couldn't do my job anymore," she said. Burford, 40, dubbed the "Ice Queen" for her coolness under pressure, never cried during her 15-minute news conference but verged on tears, especially when she talked about President

Reagan. 'That man is a fine man. He is right for this country. I'm proud to have worked for him and I'll be proud to work for him again," said Burford.

Reagan accepted Burford's resignation Wednesday, praising her "unselfishness and personal courage.

ASKED IN AN interview with ABC News whether she was too loyal to the president, Burford said, "If I had a fault - if I had a fault, I would like to have it be known that that fault is loyalty." Burford was held in contempt of Congress Dec. 16 for following Reagan's orders and refusing to give agency files to Congress. Asked whether she was a scapegoat, Burford said: "I've never claimed victimization and I'm not going to claim it now."

The former Colorado state legislator and corporate attorney from Denver would not say what job she will seek next. The White House said she will be named to a part-time position on a commission or board.

When asked of her plans, she was interrupted by her husband, Robert Burford, director of the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management.

'Take a honeymoon, that's what she'd like to do," he said.

The couple was married Feb. 20 at the height of the controversy. Burford immediately went to Times Beach, Mo., to announce the government's buyout of a town contaminated by dioxin.

Senate 'squanders' on jobs bill action move in the Senate Thursday to repeal the scheduled tax withholding on interest and dividends jeopardized passage of a multibillion-dollar jobs and recession-relief bill.

The Senate, facing next Tuesday's expiration of unemployment compensation funds, "squandered" the day, lamented Republican leader Howard Baker, as he called a halt to the debate in late afternoon.

He earlier had predicted passage of the jobs bill late Thursday, then said late sessions would be possible today and Saturday. An aide said leaders will negotiate with opponents of withholding before the Friday session in an effort to clear the way for a vote on the House-passed jobs bill.

Over heavy opposition from the Republican leadership - and the threat of a presidential veto - Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., introduced an amendment to the $3.7-billion jobs bill that would repeal the scheduled July 1 withholding of 10 percent of interest and dividends.

SENATE GOP LEADER Howard Baker warned that Reagan had told him he would "seriously consider" vetoing the jobs measure if a withholding repeal were attached.

Senate Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., who supports withholding, threatened to filibuster against repeal, even if it jeopardizes the jobs bill and the emergency money for states to keep paying unemployment compensation. 'Let the poor people who need jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A sudden votes to prevail, and the Senate and hove in the Senate Thursday to repeal House leadership would have to work to eliminate the repeal provision when the bill goes to a conference committee that will have to reconcile the Senate bill with the more expensive House

The overall bill provides the $5 billion needed to replenish the federal trust fund from which unemployment claims are paid. That fund will be exhausted Tuesday. AMID THE withholding dispute, the Senate wrangled over where to put new jobs that would be created under the recession-relief package.

The Senate tentatively decided to target one-third of the $3.2 billion jobs money to the 21 states with the most severe unemployment. On a vote of 50-49, the Senate reversed Wednesday's test vote against targeting jobs to the 15 hardest hit states, when sponsors added six more states to the target category. At least one more vote was scheduled on the issue Opponents argued that many states

Texas is one example - have huge numbers of unemployed and big con-centrations of jobless but are ineligible for targeted funds because their statewide rate is too low. Kasten is leading a juggernaut sparked by the financial industry in opposition to the withholding tax.

Withholding was approved last year as a way of keeping people from avoiding taxes on interest and dividends, an amount that could total $20 billion over five years.

Dole has threatened to legislate new taxes against financial institutions in retaliation for their powerful lobbying efforts against withholding.

White House aides mum on Burford resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan and his aides will move "as fast as we can" to find a replacement for Anne Burford at the Environmental Protection Agency, and curb the fallout from her resignation, a White House aide said Thursday.

As they sought to assess the political impact of Burford's resignation as EPA administrator, White House aides went to lengths to avoid additional comment on the controversy:

'We think it serves no useful purpose," said deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

Communications director David Gergen similarly declined to speculate on who might be recruited to take over the agency, which is under investigation by Congress and the Justice Department

Gergen said there is no timetable for announcing a suc-cessor, but added, "I think there's interest (at the White House) in moving as fast as we can on it."

The talent search was being handled by Helene von Damm, director of presidential personnel, who said the number of candidates was 'under 10." But she indicated her staff is continuing to receive names of potential candidates.

EPA documents mushroomed into a major controversy.

"NOBODY LIKES what happened to her," one presidential aide said, but indicated Reagan had to cut his losses. The aide said the prevailing attitude at the White House was, "let's get this behind us and take care of the business at hand.'

Other aides Believe the resignation lifted a cloud that developed as the White House became increasingly preoccupied with handling the EPA affair and containing the political damage.

Speakes said he expected the White House to consult with members of Congress, key Republicans and private industry in selecting someone to take over at EPA. He said there are no specific plans to seek the advice of environmental groups, with which Reagan has been at odds since the start of his presidency.

The Boston Globe quoted White House aides as saying the two men likely to shape the future of EPA were acting chief Deputy Adminstrator John Hernandez and James Mahoney, executive vice president of Environmental Research and Technology Inc., of Concord, Mass, one of the leading environmental consulting companies in the world.

Only Tim Riley, the Hawkeyes' 118 pounder lost, that being an overtime match decided on criteria to Iowa State's John Thorn, 4-4, 1-1. Led by 158pounder Jim Zalesky, who scored three falls in three matches, the Hawks advanced nine wrestlers into Friday's quarterfinal round. Both Iowa State and Oklahoma State advanced seven wrestlers.

But Thursday's two sessions were scarred by controversy in a 167-pound bout between Iowa's Rico Chiapparelli and Yales' Colin Grissom. Chiaparelli, using a late flurry and two penalty points in the third period, scored an 11-

Hawkeye NCAA hopes dwindling

By Melissa Isaacson Assistant Sports Editor

If the Hawkeyes would have held off the Michigan Wolverines Thursday night, instead of losing, 66-60, it would have been easy to overlook the Hawkeyes' obvious problems.

But this one wasn't an upset, nor was it a bad break. It was just another loss, and it dropped the Hawks to 9-8 and a tie for fifth in the Big Ten, while at the same time reducing their NCAA hopes Iowa Coach Lute Olson had said Tuesday that the Hawkeyes would have to win their last two games against Michigan and Michigan State to have a chance at the NCAA tournament. Thursday night, however, he changed his tune.

think we forced the ball that much, but we couldn't make anything. Let's not take anything away from Iowa. They played very well."

Iowa, now 7-19 overall, closes out of the cellar," she said.

That was Michigan forward Peg Harte's sole comment following the Iowa women's basketball team's 72-50 drubbing of the Wolverines Thursday night at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Iowa took control of the ballgame at the 16 minute mark of the first half, reeling off 14cosecutive points to take a 22-10 lead. From that point on, the Wolverines could get no closer than 10 points.

The victory pulls the Hawkeyes out of sole possession of last place in the Big Ten and into a tie with Michigan at 2-15, and avenged an earlier loss at Ann Arbor, Mich.

"I'VE SAID ALL along that I don't see how anybody can be talking about this or that or the other thing," Olson said. "How can you speculate about that?'

Free throws have been haunting the Hawkeyes all season and it was just a matter of time before it broke them completely. Thursday night in Ann Arbor, it broke them completely.

"It doesn't do any good to talk about it," Olson said. "You have to just step up and do the job."

Iowa went 10-for-19 from the foul line, missing the first shot on four oneand-one attempts, while Eric Turner, uh rather the Wolverines, connected on 21-for-28.

ONCE AGAIN, A small quick guard killed Iowa as Turner, whose 30 points led both teams and brought his total against Iowa this year to 62 points, was 15-for-19 from the free throw line. And when Turner wasn't shooting or getting fouled, he was passing off to someone else who shot or got fouled.

"It's a good feeling when you can have one of your better games against one of the better teams in the league," Turner said.

There were few bright spots for Iowa but one of them had to be the play of Bob Hansen, who finished with a career high 25 points playing the entire 40 minutes

ments, particularly on the boards, pulling down 10 rebounds. Five Payne turnovers, however, tended to diminish that performance as Hawkeye mistakes tended to diminish their performance all evening.

THE GAME STARTED bad and got better for both teams as turnovers marred the first ten minutes. But Iowa hung onto the lead the entire first-half, taking its biggest advantage at 26-18 on a Hansen steal and basket.

The Hawks were even on a legitimate roll at one point, as a Payne behind-the-back pass to Hansen which resulted in a slam even drew some Michigan applause.

But the second half was frigid for the Hawks as they suffered through about a seven-minute scoring draught that enabled Michigan to come from seven points down to six points ahead.

"Our guys showed some great poise," said Michigan Coach Bill Frieder. "When (Tim) McCormick was tired, we were able to sustain things while he was on the bench. We played with much more intensity than a week ago."

IOWA WAS BEATEN on the boards, 34-31, and shot 45 percent from the field compared to 47 percent for the Wolverines.

Word is going around that this year's Big Ten women's Gymnastics Championships meet is "up for grabs". Whether or not there is any truth to this rumor is yet to be determined, but it is a fact that seven of the eight teams competing this weekend at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena have scored above 170, and seven all-around gymnasts have registered a score of 35.00 or better during the season. With Ohio State, Minnesota, Michigan State and Illinois, the top four seeds, lumped together, and the bottom four seeds, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa, not far behind in season average scores, it appears hard to find a favorite.

MINNESOTA, LED BY the returning Big Ten all-around and floor exercise champion Robin Huebner posted the highest score in the conference this year, 180.30, but lost to Ohio State earlier in the season. The Buckeyes also defeated Michigan State, Mar. 5, posting their season high, 179.55.

"It's always hard to tell with a meet like this, " said Iowa Coach Diane Chapela, "but, judging by the scores they've been getting this year, it should be between Minnesota and Ohio State (for the title).

of the year," said Cox. "I'm really impressed with Tracy Rinker's consistency throughout the year, she's competing quite well."

Rinker, who was the uneven bars champion last year, is seeded first on the balance beam with a 9.4 and fourth on the uneven bars (9.25).

The Buckeyes have also had outstanding performances from Susan Filardi and Mary Jo Gonyias, two freshmen who are highly seeded this weekend.

"Gonyias has been very consistent all year. so I would like for her to do well," Cox said.

GONYIAS IS seeded second in all-around (36.45) and tied for fourth with teammates Rinker and Temple on the uneven bars. Filardi is seeded first in vault with a 9.5 and tied for first on the floor exercise with Minnesota's Huebner at 9.5.

Huebner, who is also the top all-around and uneven bar seed, with a 36.85 and 9.65 respectively, was named the Big Ten's Gymnast of the Month for the second consecutive month in February, and is rated 25th in the nation as rated by the National Statistical Service for Gymnasts.

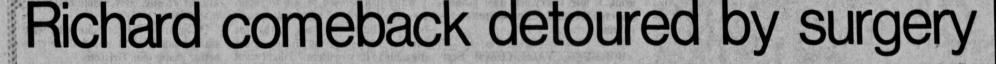

"We really want to win the Big Ten this year," said Gopher Coach Katalin Deli. 'There have been many years when we had the opportunity and talent to win it but it always got away from us. If we hit our routines, we can go over 45 in all the events." The main routine Indiana will have to hit is the balance beam, according to Coach Mike LaFleur.

HOUSTON (UPI) - Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard underwent six hours of elective surgery Thursday to bypass a clogged artificial artery that leads to his left leg - his third major operation since suffering a stroke in 1980

Dr. Williams S. Fields of the University of Texas medical school, Richard's chief physician, said the 33-year-old former All-Star right-hander came out of the operation in good shape

"He's doing very well. There's good blood flow to the leg and very good pressure being observed in his foot," Fields said.

Richard, who is continuing a 21/2-year uphill climb to return to the major leagues, decided to undergo the latest surgery even though the doctors told him he would not need it except to pitch baseball again.

"HE WAS NEVER in any danger. Had it not been that he was a baseball pitcher, we wouldn't have done this at all," Fields said. Fields said although the 4-inch dacron artery segment in Richard's lower left abdomen had clogged with blood clots, restricting primary blood flow into his left leg, the leg had developed adequate alternate blood flow.

Fields said the clotting that led to the operation Thursday had nothing to do with the clotting of a right shoulder artery which caused Richard's collapse July 30, 1980, during a practice at the Astrodome.

The doctor said he did not know why the dacron graft, implanted by a University of California medical school team in San Francisco in October 1980, had clotted.

ONE OF THE TWO 4-inch dacron grafts placed by the California team remains in an artery going to his right leg and Fields said it was functioning perfectly.

The California doctors took the two sections of natural artery - one from each leg artery and used them together to bypass the damaged artery in Richard's right shoulder. Fields said the surgery would sideline Richard for at least six weeks.

Hawkeye track gem does it all

By Steve Riley

It should be known that Bruce Jenner wasn't the only gem of a multi-event athlete to grace Lamoni, Iowa. The 1976 Olympic decathlon champion was a member of the track team at Graceland College in Lamoni at the same time a future Iowa pentathlon/heptathlon star, Kathy Gillespie, was growing up in the southern Iowa town. That's about as far as comparisons between Jenner and the Hawkeye track ace go, except for the fact that one of the glamor boy's Graceland teammates, who was also Gillespie's coach - Terry Yee - encouraged her to pursue the multi-events. "I started out as a high jumper,' Gillespie said. "But my high school coach got me into the multi-events. When I was getting started in the multi-events, he wrote him (Jenner) a letter and Jenner sent me an autographed picture and a letter back.

"COACH YEE was always there to encourage me," she continued. "He got me headed in the right direction." It was on this path that Gillespie found herself competing in the Drake Relays heptathlon as a high school girl. It led her to instant college stardom she placed second in the national hep-

SINCE THEN she has won the Big Ten pentathlon title and would compete in the NCAA meet in the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome if the event were included.

She said she was a bit awed by some of the athletes in Toronto. "There were some athletes up there that I'd always heard about and read about," she said. "It's neat to see people like that, but it's just as neat to be able to compete with them."

The 5-foot-7 sophomore said she met Daley Thompson, the world-record holder in the decathlon from Great Britain, "and I just had to get my picture taken with him.

Although she admits to looking up to certain stars, she adds: "When you see them in real life, you realize they're just normal people like yourself. In general, people tend to put great athletes on a pedestal, but that isn't always right. That's why I try to get to know people closely; to show them I'm just a normal person.'

GILLESPIE POSSESSES the quality that perhaps is most highly soughtafter in a multi-event athlete - a positive attitude.

'Of any athlete I've ever coached," said Assistant Coach Mike Strong after a recent meet, "Kathy has the best attitude. It's just superb."

"I think I have a real good attitude," Gillespie echoed. "You have to be able to go from event to event and not thinkabout the one before if you do poorly. It's tough.

The schizoid practice of jumping from event to event suits Gillespi fine. "Sometimes it gets frantic but I don't know any other way I'd rather have it." she said.

This season, Gillespie says she is able to work harder on her specialty after teammate Chris Davenport's decision to attempt the multi-events. "I really enjoy working with Chris. She can help me in certain areas, and I can help her in certain areas."

When Bruce Jenner won the gold medal at the 1976 Olympics, he was referred to as "The World's Greatest Athlete." So, following logic, does that make Gillespie "Iowa's Greatest Athlete?

"No, I don't think so," she said. "I guess I've really never thought about it. I'm well-rounded; that's why I guess I'm in it.'

Mary Mol and Vivien McKenzie of the Iowa track squad venture to the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome this weekend to compete in the NCAA Championships.

Actually, according to most coaches, the term NCAA Championships for this year's meet is a misnomer. "It's really a national invitational," said Iowa Assistant Coach Mike Strong. It is the first-ever coed meet, so the IOWA COACH Jerry Hassard says the format was changed to shorten the meet. "The rationale for it is it's a combined men's and women's meet, and because it is an indoor meet there have to be some restrictions made on numbers of performers," he said. "It has to do with the time schedule.

"I think a lot of coaches, when they feel the reality of it, when the athletes don't make the meet, they're going to

Jenny Spangler ran 10 minutes, 13.04 seconds in the two-mile, but the cutoff was 10:11.89. "I think that's just killing her that she didn't make it," Hassard said. "The thing I'm upset about is that they (the NCAA meet organizers) don't have a standard for the athletes to shoot for, and if we'd have had one, I'm quite sure she would have made it."

Another major change, which particularly hurt the Hawkeyes, is the deletion of the pentathlon. Sophomore Kathy Gillespie would have been a contender for the title.

Sophomore sprinter Elaine Jones, a transfer student from Michigan State, would have easily qualified for the meet, but she is ineligible under NCAA transfer rules.

Variety of musical groups to be featured this weekend

Riverboat Ragtime Revue, a delightful cruise on the "River Queen" that recaptures turn-of-thecentury American song, comedy and dance, will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday in Hancher Auditorium.

Sparkling ragtime piano, brilliant banjo and virtuoso clarinet music preserves the authenticity of an era in which classical American songs grew out of and away from cotton fields, churches and music halls into minstrel and vaudeville shows.

The songbirds of the "River Queen" will warble winsomely such well-known tunes as "Swanee River," "Give My Regards to Broadway" and "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?" Snazzy River." ragtime dances and snappy comic routines accompany the musical merriment.

And among the passengers on the "River Queen" is the white-suited Mark Twain, who amuses and informs his audience with classic commentary on 'Smoking and Other Bad Habits'' and "Concerning Congress." Twain will be played by Donald King Cowan, who is one of the foremost impersonators of the irascible writer

Tickets for the Riverboat Ragtime Revue are priced at $3.50, $2.50, $1.50 and $1 ($2 more for nonstudents) and are available at the Hancher box office.

The Iowa Brass Quintet will present a varied program of music at 8 tonight in Clapp Recital Hall. Quintet members John Hill (trombone), Paul Anderson (horn), Robert Yeats (tuba), David Greenhoe and Barbara Deur (trumpets) will begin their performance with a contemporary work written in the baroque style by Malcolm Forsyth entitled "The Golyardes' Grounde."

The quintet will also perform Victor Ewald's "Quintet No. 3," a work to be performed entirely on conical instruments that create a fluid, lyrical line, and Domenico Scarlatti's "Baroque Sonatas."

The second half of the concert includes William Boyce's "William Boyce Suite," Lawrence Moss's "Flight" and Calixa Lavallee's humorous "La Rose Nuptiale." The concert is free and open to the public.

After last weekend's Neil Young debacle, popular music lovers should feel doubly happy over the array of performers in the area this weekend.

• Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers with special guests Nick Lowe and Paul Carrack will be performing in the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids at 8 p.m. Saturday night. Petty, who was just featured in an MTV special, is one of the most fluent and active current spokespersons of an American pop music sensibility that recalls sources as various as the troupe celebrates 25th

Like Rodney Dangerfield, the Old Gold Singers feel like they go through a lot for very little respect. But the UI musical troupe hopes things change this year as they celebrate their 25th anniversary.

The Singers are a 22-voice song and dance chorus backed by a seven-piece instrumental ensemble. Their shows consist of pop show, jazz and dance tunes performed with original choreography. Most members of the troupe are people who don't major in music. This has been a trademark of the Singers since their beginnings in 1957, when the UI Alumni Association and the School of Music decided to form a group specifically for those not music majors. Today, the School of Music alone operates the troupe, and three music majors are members. From its inception, the troupe was intended to represent the UI in all sorts of social functions, and in 25 years, the Singers have performed at fundraisers and events sponsored by civic organizations all across the state. They also perform several con-

Byrds and Bruce Springsteen. Besides, the guy can really put on a show.

Lowe, one of the stalwarts of the old Rockpile as well as a solo artist of no small repute, and Carrack, formerly of Ace and Squeeze, are as accomplished representatives of British pop as Petty is of American. Their band, you can be sure, will kick out the tunes with all the efficiency and good spirits of their previous groups.

 Nicolette Larson performed with both Neil "I've Been to Hollywood, I've Been to Redwood, But I Can't Go to Iowa City" Young and Commander Cody before embarking on a solo career in the late 1970s. She has one certified smash single ("Gonna Take a Lotta Love," written by Young) and several albums to her credit. Her stage appearances have always received good notices, and you'll be able to see why at 7 and/or 10:30 p.m. Saturday at Maxwell's.

· Finally, as Liz Bird noted yesterday, three of 'old time music's" biggest names are coming to the UI campus this weekend in a concert for the Friends of Old Time Music

John Hartford is perhaps best known for penning the song "Gentle on My Mind," but he is beyond compare as a writer and performer of songs that combine country, bluegrass and gospel music with a patently bizarre sense of humor. The last time we saw John, he was really into river songs (having just obtained his steamboat pilot's license at the time); what he's into now, we won't dare guess.

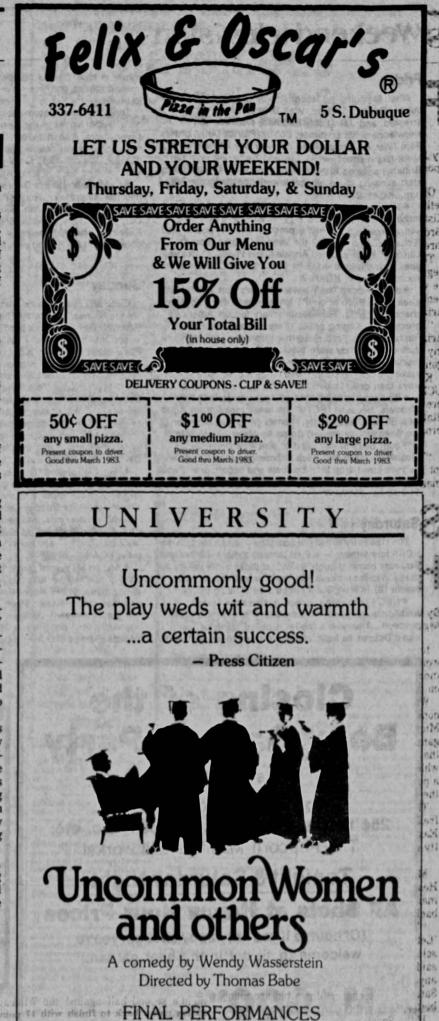

Benny Martin is a veteran country music performer who got caught up in the early stages of rock 'n' roll. Being more adept at incorporating black and urban music into the hillbilly tunes of early 1950s country music than most, Martin wound up with a contract owned by Col. Tom Parker, who also managed a fellow named Elvis. Martin and the King toured together in the mid-1950s, and Martin has lived to tell, sing and play (on guitar and fiddle) the tale. Vassar Clements has come to personify bluegrass and country fiddling. Thanks to his work on the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's Will the Circle Be Unbroken, Clements' amazingly fluid and quick style came to the attention of both country and rock fans. Clements is a picture of grace on stage: smoking a pipe, wearing around-the-house clothes, he can whip through "Orange Blossom Special" so cleanly and smoothly that you won't know where the music is coming from.

These three greats will be joined by the Echo Mt. Boys, a Cedar Rapids bluegrass group that is coming to be recognized as one of the midwest's finest. All this for only $2 tomorrow night at Macbride Auditorium.

certs out of state, According to business manager Alice Lutze, demand for the Singers is high, with calls coming in regularly requesting appearance dates.

IN THE PAST, the Singers have performed at Harold Hughes' inauguration as Governor of Iowa in professional singer - Simon Estes, one of the world's foremost bass-baritones, who was a member of the Singers in 1962-1963.

The Old Gold Singers perform on campus at least three times a year: at the Fall Festival, the Cocoa and Carols Christmas program and the upcoming Swing Into Spring celebration, with an annual tour of the state during spring break as an extra benefit.

Belushi case probe concludes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The grand jury investigating the drug overdose death of John Belushi held its final session of testimony Thursday. Prosecutors have said they will seek a criminal indictment when the panel completes its hearings.

No witnesses were seen going into or leaving the the grand jury room, which has a private back door to protect the secrecy of the hearings. Deputy Dis-trict Attorney Michael Montagna told reporters during a lunch break that he could not comment on the hearing or what witnesses appeared.

Montagna said earlier in the week that he would definitely ask the grand jury Thursday to return an indictment on narcotics charges against Cathy Evelyn Smith, and raised the possibility a murder grand jury proceedings.

Cathy Evelyn Smith, a Canadian citizen living in Toronto, told the National Enquirer in an interview published last June that she injected Belushi with the fatal "speedball" of cocaine and heroin shortly before his March 5, 1981 death.

Montagna said last week he "would expect some sort of criminal charges to be filed" in the Belushi investigation, adding the charges could come within a week of his final grand jury presentation.

Previously, Montagna said Smith could face second-degree murder charges if prosecuted, but he has since refused to elaborate, citing the secrecy of

When the going gets tough, the tough get going - right out of "Dallas." Tonight, Walt Driscoll (Ben Piazza) is arrested, and J.R. (Larry Hagman) disavows any knowledge of his existence; Bobby (Patrick Duffy) orders Pam (Victoria Principal) to disavow any knowledge of Mark (John Beck), while J.R. and Katherine (Morgan Brittany) scheme to have Holly (Lois Chiles) and Bobby start avowing some biblical knowledge of each other. 8 p.m., KGAN-2.

In tonight's season closer of "Falcon Crest," the murderer of Carlo Agretti is revealed - and he/she takes someone else down in the process. Is it the power-mad Richard (David Selby)? the vengeful Lance (Lorenzo Lamas)? the threatened Angela (Jane Wyman)? Our vote goes with the ignored Julia (Abby Dalton). Find out for yourself. 9 p.m., KGAN-2.

• If you missed The Weavers: Wasn't That a Time! last week at the Bijou or on IPT last weekend, here's one last chance to see it. This documentary follows America's greatest folksinging group (Pete Seeger, Lee Hays, Ronnie Gilbert, Fred Hellerman) from the McCarthy era, during which they were blacklisted, to their triumphant reunion in 1980 at Carnegie Hall. A funny, sad and moving tribute to people who made a difference in more ways than one. 11 p.m., IPT-12.

• It's a tough choice at 11:30 if you're watching The Weavers, because "SCTV" this week looks pretty good. "Hill Street Blues"" Betty Thomas (a former member of the Second City troupe) drops by Melonville to star in"South Seas Sinner" and to visit Phil Donahue. Meanwhile, Stan and Yosh Schmenge (John Candy and Eugene Levy) drop their clarinets and accordions to host the Miss Leutonian Beauty Pageant. "De viener ish" 11:30 p.m., KWWL-7.

Saturday

The Hawks try to nail the Spartans - and a berth in the NCAA tournament - in East Lansing tonight. Sharm and Bob stay home, though, so we get those awful yokels on the syndicated network. Oh, my? Oh, well. 6 p.m., WOC-6 (cable 16). (KWWL-7 will not be broadcasting this game.)

 NBC's prime time newsmagazine shows have traditionally flopped; nonetheless, if at first you don't succeed This year's model is called "Monitor," with Lloyd Dobyns as host, and it promises to be somewhat lighter in tone than its competition, with more human interest stories and less Mike Wallace run-and-gun journalism

Tonight's main feature looks good - a story on nonphysical harrassment, a crime that's only legally so in seven states. Also included: stories on a Gypsy tribe that runs home repair scams and California horseradish farmers. We call that "news you don't have to grapple ith" around here. 9 p.m., KWWL-7.

· Chicago boy Bruce Dern joins his fellow Windy Cityites Tim Kazurinsky, Gary Kroeger, Brad Hall and Julia Louis-Dreyfus tonight on "Saturday Night Live." And Dernsie is in turn joined by long-time "SNL" favorite Leon Redbone, who might even (we hope) sing the Budweise commercial. For all you do, Leon 10:30 p.m., KWWL-7.

Sunday

Gene and Rog grapple with four new films tonight on "At the Movies," including The Pirates of Penzance and Betrayal. Rex the Greek predicts that both will like both and that the stinker of the week will be Spring Fever Place those bets now. 5:30 p.m., KCRG-9.

 ABC presents the pilot for a new science newsmagazine called "Search" tonight. Sounds neat right? Well, maybe. Tom Snyder examining hearing loss from loud rock music might be fun ("Well, what the heck, sir, turn it all the way up. HA HA HA ha ha!"); Jim Bouton examining the physics of spitballs sounds OK, too. But couldn't ABC find a woman to discuss premenstrual syndrome? And if not, then why that nattering ninny David Frost? Hmph. 6 p.m., KCRG-9.

 Why CBS shifted "Newhart" to Sunday night is beyond us - the show had a good audience where it was, and fit in much more with the "sophisticated" Monday sitcoms than the Sunday Lear screamathons. But here "Newhart" now rests, and here it will stay. Tonight, Dick (Bob Newhart) screws up Kirk's (Steven Kampmann) insurance claim - and here comes Mr. Lie Detector. 8:30 p.m., KGAN-2, WHBF-4.

 And on MTV, lead singer Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones, lead singer and bassist Paul McCartney of Wings, guitarist and singer Peter Townshend of the Who and lead singer Robert Plant of Led Zeppelin converse with hosts James J. Jackson and Martha Quinn. An interesting and enlightening discussion of oral sex, addictive drugs and loud music. 10 p.m., MTV cable-1

Ready for one hell of a contest? Horribly wrong answers welcome

By Jim Musser Special to The Daily Iowan

"The sun's gonna shine ... tomorrow/Bet your bottom dollar there's tomorrow." Yecch! Did you ever wonder why it is that some records bring back pleasant memories while others just bring back your lunch?

The Right Reverend Jerry Falwell knows. It's because the former are made right here on earth and the latter are forged in the raging fires of Hell.

Sometimes these satanic forces comply with truth in packaging guidelines, as in the cases of Black Sabbath, Lucifer's Friend, Styx and Rick Wakeman. Wait a minute...Rick Wakeman? Well, I guess that just underscores the next point. Because that sly old Beelzebub more often than not uses innocuous, harmless-sounding names on his Records From Hell (hereafter referred to as RFHs).

Names like The Starland Vocal Band, Lobo, Toto, Barry White, Rush, Helen Reddy, Paul Anka and Paul Williams. The very foods we eat - Bread, Hot Tuna and Meatloaf. Even the names of our cities and states

And then - people buy them!

We've all done it at least once - bought a record so vile, so odious that it simply can't be listened to. This article marks the first in a series of reviews of some of the most rancid, thoroughly unredeemed garbage ever committed to vinyl. And you can take your part in lashing back by entering the First Ever Records From Hell Contest (hereafter referred to as the FERFH Contest)

HERE'S ALL you have to do:

1) On a standard sheet of notebook paper (no Spiral, please), fill in each of the following 20 award categories (be sure that the numbers match up - many questions could have the same answers.) 2) Put your name, address and phone number on the same sheet.

3) Send to: The Doc of Rock's FERFH Contest, The Daily Iowan, Room 201 Communications Center, Iowa City, Ia. 52242; and then

4) Wait a very long time.

You can even cheat if you want. Good Luck (There are no right answers - only wrong ones. In most cases, ties will be broken by the offending single or LP that runs the longest.)

1) The Fearless Sgt. Barry Sadler Jump and Die Medal - To the worst military- or politically-oriented single.

2) A Scented Ginsu Cheese Cutter - To the single or LP most likely to clear any room. 3) A Telly Savalas "Who Loves Ya, Baby?

4) Plastic doggie-doo on a whirling fan blade - To the band and record that most blatantly took advantage of their fans' faith by dumping hideous dreck/outtakes under the guise of "new" product.

5) The Alright, Already - The Whole World's Singing - Will You Stop Now? Award - No crowding, please. The absolute worst Barry Manilow song. Ever. Sorry, limit one per entry.

6) The Olivia-Wayne-Newton-Elton-John-Denver "Have You Never Been Mellow?" Award - Given to the song or album that asks the stupidest musical question.

7) A commission in Ginger Baker's Air Force — To the perpetrator of the all-time worst drum solo (redundant, I admit). 8) A Hawaiian Punch - To the worst record that's a little bit country AND a little bit rock 'n' roll (Hint: the less of each, the better.) 9) Your Mind in a Brown Paper Bag (Within) - OR - A Cake Left Out in the Rain (choose only one) - Name a song with the most unfathomable psychedelic lyrics. (May they never find that recipe again.). 10) A manhole cover autographed by Grace Slick - Write down the RFH with the most appropriate title - if you can only remember its name.

11) Do What?!? - Name a band that's uglier than The Grateful Dead. If you can't think of one, leave blank and go on to the next one - we'll understand.

12) A stuffed Neil Diamond shirt and a Gino Vannelli chest wig - Swell prizes, eh? He's pretentious. He's boring. He croons. He suffers. He loves you. Name the drip. 13) A can of alphabet soup - To the most hideous band to be known primarily by an acronym. Lots of contenders.

14) A jade Mayor Jane Byrne Secret Decoder Ring - A toughie. Pick the most disgusting band to emerge from the Windy City of Big Shoulders (or its 'burbs). Your st nave at h long, frizzy perms AND the lead singer ing. C'mon, dudes, let's get it on (in the must wear Spandex pants.

15) The And Honey, I Miss Watching Scotty Grow Dept. — Name a performer (besides Bobby Sherman and John Cougar) with a stupider haircut than Bobby Goldsboro.

16) Did they have Space Food Sticks in Plan Nine From Outer Space? - Name the most moronic science fiction rock band or rock concept. Quickly. As Klaatu could probably tell you, it isn't such a long time from 2112 to the year "2525."

17) A Yellow Ribbon tied tightly 'Round Your Old Oak Tree - Name, if you can, five songs more nauseating than these: "Feelings," "You're Having My Baby," "Seasons In The Sun," "You Light Up My Life" and "Muskrat Love."

18) A beach-front condo in Black Oak, Arkansas - To the most wretched group in the history of the universe. Take your time here.

19) A chance to discuss the artistic merits of Dan Fogelberg's Captured Angel With DI A/E Editor Jeffrey Miller - Name the LP with the lousiest album jacket artwork. And you haven't lived 'til you've seen Mac Davis sucking toes on the back of Midnight Crazy.

20) The I Know It's Only Pandering, But I'll Do It Award - To the worst song or album with the words "rock 'n' roll" in the title.

THAT'S IT. Remember that, unlike the objects of our scorn, neatness and originality count here. Lists will be compiled and especially funny and/or stupid entries will be singled out for ridicule.

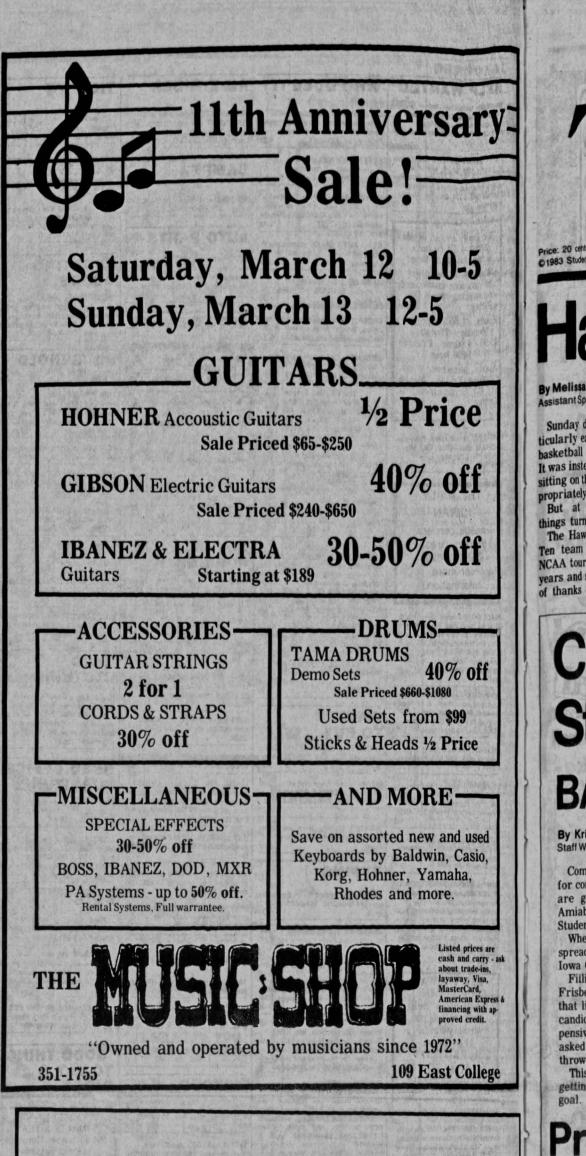

The whole affair will culminate near the end of this semester with a record-breaking Gala Awards Ceremony at Jasper's upstairs bar, featuring bad music played continuously on lousy turntables (with lousy needles); drawings for beer, horrible records, industrial earplugs AND T-shirts and buttons bearing the nifty RFH logo; specials on a variety of sickening beers (warm, if you like) and generally rude behavior.

Enter as often as you like. Members of Journey and REO Speedwagon, in addition to employees of The Daily Iowan and Jasper's, are ineligible.

If you know of a particularly stupid/painful record that you want considered ior review, bring it by to the DI office. It will be returned, given away or broken, according to the owner's wishes. And don't worry about condition - RFH's generally benefit from scratches, warps and surface noise

(Special thanks to the mighty Lee Sandberg, who came up with the ultradeath logo.)

So there it is, folks - a thoroughly

100tsie P - 10 the crummest "live" record. (Achtung! Mark, Don and Mel.)

members with crummy contest that ou can t win for morning, now).

Psychic: Don't hypnotize witnesses

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) - The Amazing Kreskin, an ESP and mentalist performer, Thursday said he is opposed to the use of hypnotism on crime witnesses because it encourages them to "mis-remember" details.

Kreskin discussed the criminal applications of hypnotism at a news conference and then joined Davenport Police Chief Ken Conlon in a game of hide-and-seek for a bottle of Pepto Bismol at the 11-story Blackhawk Hotel.

Kreskin, who said he has been asked to help more than 80 crime cases this year, said he is "very much against" hypnotising witnesses in hopes they might remember more details of a crime.

"I am absolutely opposed to any evidence gathered from a person who is hypnotized," he said. "First off, a person does not remember better when hypnotized Second, if pushed, the person will misremember details or will recall things that never took place.'

KRESKIN GAVE the example of a college president who was blamed for a hitand-run accident after police got the license number of his car from a hypnotized student witness. He said the student apparently saw the car in a parade, but the vehicle was locked in a garage at the time of the accident. The performer said he has been approached recently by organized crime figures, who asked if Kreskin could train people to remember that a suspect was with them at the time of a crime instead of

Following the news conference, Kreskin submitted himself to a "test" of his abilities. Earlier, he had asked a committee headed by the police chief to hide an object in the hotel. They told him only that the object was a bottle.

THEN, BY HOLDING one end of a handkerchief and having Conlon grasp the other and think of where the object was, Kreskin whisked the committee and a band of reporters up, down and around the hotel. Within 10 minutes, 48 seconds - including time to wait for television cameras to get up the elevator to the seventh floor -Kreskin had a clerk open the door to room 711. He found the bottle of Pepto Bismol in the bathroom
