Raveling to be named new Iowa coach

By Melanie Bancroft

The Iowa basketball program has had a wake-up call. Tom Davis retired as the Hawkeyes' coach Wednesday after completing his 15th year in that role, and Iowa athletic director Gary Dorr is now officially searching for a replacement.

Raveling arrived in Iowa City by plane at 9:15 p.m. Monday. He was met by Raveling's assistant, Joe Nolte, at the airport.

Raveling is currently at the University of Washington in a head coaching position after spending the past five years at the University of Arizona.

Raveling was met at the airport by his native Wisconsin and North Carolina recruiting coordinator and business manager William Kemp, a former Hawkeye player whopreviously worked for Coach G. David Shinn.

Raveling was greeted by a number of University of Iowa officials, including Iowa President Donald J. Poggenbuss, Athletics Director Gary Dorr, and Raveling's former assistant and student coach Bob Huggins.

Raveling, who is 45 years old, has been head coach at Washington since 1978. He has a 20-41 record in his five seasons.

In his first five seasons at Arizona, Raveling compiled a 149-65 record.

Raveling was named the Pac-10 Coach of the Year in 1982-83.

Recruits will play for Olson's successor

Raveling was named as Olson's successor on Monday night.

Raveling said he would be in town Wednesday and be available for an interview with the media.

The Hawkeyes' new coach plans to make some changes to the team, including the roster.

Raveling is expected to announce his coaching staff next week.

The Hawkeyes are currently ranked 17th in the country by the Associated Press.

Fence-mending

Pete Goy, owner of Iowa City Fence Co., installs a new chain-link fence at the University of Iowa Student Publications Inc. Quad.

The fence was installed as part of the university's renovation of the area.

The Hawkeye has decided to install a new fence to replace the existing one.

The university is expected to complete the project within the next two weeks.

Shuttle flies smoothly; starts complex testing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - The space shuttle Challenger, performing a test mission to verify a television camera system, was launched Monday in rain and howling winds.

The launch was delayed for nearly two hours due to high winds.

The shuttle is scheduled to make two flights to test the television camera system.

The camera system will be used to capture images of the shuttle during its flight.

The shuttle is expected to make its first flight later this year.

Phone customers given more options

By Alan Bender

All Iowa customers, in the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., are being offered options that could make their home phones less than a waste of time.

"I'm not sure how the customer will respond," said a spokesman for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. "But we're giving them the option to purchase a new phone, or to continue using their old one."

The customer is being offered the option to purchase a new phone from a variety of manufacturers, or to continue using their old phone and paying for the service. The customer can also choose to purchase a new phone from a different manufacturer, or to continue using their old phone and paying for the service.

Thailand bombs Vietnamese troops

ARANYAPRATHET - Thai warplanes Monday bombèd and strafèd Vietnamese troops who were using land bordering Cambodia against Cambodian guerrillas.

The air strikes - a major escalation of the five-month conflict along the Thai-Cambodian border - came days after the Vietnamese captured the headquarters of a Cambodian guerrilla group in Cambodia.

The four-hour bombardment, which lasted until late Wednesday, was the first time Thailand has bombed the Vietnamese since 1979.

Guerrillas seize Salvadoran towns

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Guerrilla fighters captured two strategic towns Monday near the províncial capital of San Vicente in a serious blow to the government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Duarte has declared an emergency in the western province of Morazan, where the guerrillas have cut communications.

Military officials said the guerrillas were using land bordering a Vietnamese invasion into Thailand in June.

AFTER RECENT air and land strikes, Vietnamese troops in the Cambodian side of the border have been based in the beachhead of the guerrilla group, according to a defense official.

The Vietnamese government has sent U.S. -trained and armed troops to the region.

Several of the guerrillas were captured and a high voltage power line was damaged.

AユーDAILY NEW アrsenal of the guerrillas that numbered at least 100 has been dispersed to drive the guerrillas from the town,

The troops hold military camps in the town of San Vicente, a city of 80,000, and the Pan American Highway, which has just one army north of the town.

The towns lost are to the southwest of San Vicente,

The troops hold strategic villages in the area, but the few miles north of the town is still under attack.

MILITARY officials said they had no figures or casualties in the attack, but local residents said the fighting was heavy.

A town in the town of San Vicente said that the guerrillas remained in control as of Monday night, though he had no word on what was happening in Tepic.

In other guerrilla action, officials said the guerrillas were in control of northern part of the town, near the road leading to the town of Chichiquiste, about 10 miles north of the town.

The sources said that the guerrillas were controlling the town of Chichiquiste, near the main road.

Nowhere to hide

Very soon now, the name of former Iowa Coach Lute Olson will fade from the pages of newspapers across the state. Oddly enough, Olson would probably be glad to hear that. One of the things the former members of the media knew about Olson was how he became increasingly defensive, impatient and hard to deal with. Obviously, several reporters were more aware of that fact, but just days before the Hawkeyes ended their anti-Lute efforts, this was the line and will and although it probably would have made more sense to him to shut up.

But Olson never would have stood for anything negative. In a state with so many journalists who have been in Iowa for so long, Olson had the media firmly in his grasp. If he wanted to eliminate one reporter writing something he didn’t like, he had the leverage to do it. And when it came right down to it, so no one wanted to be offensive.

Olson created the monster that he feared. He enjoyed the control he held over the press, but the negative connotations of being the center of attention.

Olson said he and his family simply wanted to return to the West, and his wife, Bobbi, although claiming she still loved Iowa, eventually, Lute may have to find a new job again. Either that or Olson’s charm. But if indeed the Arizona fans do catch on aware of that fact, because just days after he left they unleashed Iowa, "West, and his wife, Bobbi, although claiming she still to do it. And when it came right down to it, so no one wanted to be offensive.

President grants political asylum to Chinese defector

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration granted political asylum Monday to Chinese tennis star Hu Na, whose defection last July caused tension between the United States and China.

In a statement issued through her lawyer, Terrence Adamson, Hu said she was granted political asylum Monday to relieve tension between the United States and China and not wish to create any further complications for her statement.

"If I don’t return to China, my family knows that I still love them and miss them dearly," she said. "I know that I still love my country and that I wish to stay in the United States."

Her family also has appealed to her to return to China, saying that they know that she will return. But they have also said that they wish to stay with her and that they will continue to live in the United States.

In her statement, Hu said her decision not to return to China was a "passionate decision." She said that she had never wished to play in a tennis tournament in China.

"We can’t have another tennis star in China," she said. "We don’t want to create any further complications for other government officials.

But she said she needed to do this to honor her family and that she was "very close to tears." She also said that she had to do this to "honor my family and that I wish to stay in the United States."

In a statement released by the Justice Department, it said that Hu’s request had been granted because of fears that giving the tennis star asylum to China "would create a public relations problem." But it also said that "Hu Na’s request has not yet been made that decision, but she said that the immigration officials who ran the asylum office said that Hu Na still means that decision."

Islanders not the favorite to dominate NHL playoffs

TORONTO (AP) — The only sure thing is that the first round of the Islanders' playoff clash will provide plenty of excitement and a few surprises.

The first round was a three-game sweep, and the second round features the New York Islanders and the Boston Bruins, who met in the 1983 playoffs.

Curtis Joseph/Canada Press

The Islanders defeated the Bruins in the first round, winning the last two games.

Boston coach Don Cherry said the Islanders are a better team than in 1983, when they lost the Stanley Cup final.

The Islanders are looking to win the first round for the second straight year after falling to the New York Rangers in the first round last season.

Iowa Lacrosse Club battles to 1-2 mark in league tourney

By Jim Robinson

Iowa City Press-Citizen

Iowa City (AP) — The Iowa Lacrosse Club battled to a 1-2 mark in league tourney play, losing to the University of Iowa, 10-9, and winning two games.

The club, which has been struggling to find consistency, split its first two games.

Hawk notes

Football

Spring practice begins Monday, and head coach Terry Parker has a very young team this spring.

On offense, there are some new faces in the backfield, with quarterback Terry LeVine and running back Jeff Cooper returning.

On defense, there are several key players returning, including linebacker Rob Schaefer and safety Mark Miller.

Sportsclubs

The Hawk Club is holding its annual spring meeting on Tuesday, March 26, at 7 p.m., in the Holiday Inn Ballroom.

The meeting will feature keynote speaker Terry Parker, who will discuss the team's plans for the upcoming season.

The Hawk Club will also hold its annual Spring Banquet on Friday, April 12, at 7 p.m., in the Holiday Inn Ballroom.

The banquet will feature a keynote speaker and a performance by the Iowa University Pipe Band.
The Weather Report's latest release, Persuasion, is the result of a fruitful collaboration between bassist Jaco Pastorius and drummer Peter Erskine. The band has had over a decade of experience as a musical unit under Pastorius' leadership.

Pastorius

Pastorius provided the perfect complement to the band's vibrant, melodic, and rhythmic styles. He showcased his technical prowess, inventiveness, and musicality, making each performance unique.

Erskine

Erskine's contributions were equally significant, driving the band's rhythmic foundation with his powerful and nuanced drumming. Together, they created a dynamic and cohesive unit.

Pastorius and Erskine's Collaboration

Their combined efforts resulted in a powerful and inspiring performance. Their partnership allowed them to push boundaries and explore new musical territories.

Persuasion

The album features a diverse range of compositions, each with its own distinctive qualities. From the technical brilliance of Pastorius to the rhythmic prowess of Erskine, the band's collective talent was on full display.

Recorded Tracks

Tracks such as "Two," "Shorter," and "Pastorius" were stand-out performances. Each track showcased the individual and collective strengths of the band.

Technical Brilliance

Pastorius' bass playing was a highlight, with moments that displayed his ability to create complex and intricate musical patterns. Erskine's drumming was equally impressive, providing a solid foundation for the band's exploratory efforts.

Inspiration

The recordings were a testament to the band's dedication to pushing the boundaries of their craft.

In Conclusion

Pastorius and Erskine's collaboration is a shining example of what can be achieved when exceptional musicians join forces. Their album Persuasion is a powerful testament to their artistic vision and their contributions to the world of music.
