City is angry over transit funding

By Mary Tabor

For years, the university's transportation concerns have been minimal. But now a major problem has arisen: the university wants to have a greater voice in the transit system and a larger share of the funding. The university has been left out of the decision-making process and is feeling frustrated.

The university is concerned about the transit system for several reasons. First, the system is not efficient enough to meet the needs of the students and faculty. Second, the fares are too high, and the university feels that it should not have to shoulder the burden of these costs. Finally, the university wants to see improvements made to the transit system, such as increased service during peak hours and more frequent stops.

The university has been working with the city and the transit authority to try to address its concerns. However, the university feels that its voice has not been heard and that its needs are not being met. The university is now considering taking legal action to try to force the city and the transit authority to address its concerns.

The university's concerns are not unique to this issue. Many other universities around the country are also facing similar problems. The university hopes that by speaking out now, it can help to bring attention to this issue and ensure that the needs of all university students and faculty are taken into account.
Viets ask halt of US arms

VIETNAM. - In a remarkable United Nations bid to halt the flow of U.S. and other foreign-aided arms to the Kampuchean People's Republic, Cambodia's foreign minister appealed Wednesday to the world community to sanction South Vietnam. The minister said South Vietnam is the single major source of arms to Cambodia. He warned that unless the arms flow is stopped, the Kampuchean People's Republic will not bring its prisoners of war home.

Soviets vow to maintain equality in arms race

Military court trial begins for Polish union activists

PARIS. Poland (AP) — Nine members of the Solidarity underground party of a group protesting in support of the Soviet force occupying the Western sector of Berlin are on trial here Wednesday in a military court.

The government has sought the trial on charges of complicity in Communist attempts to overthrow the government. The trial is the first public judicial hearing in Poland in nearly two years.

The eleven men were arrested last December when an attempt was made to seize the East German capital. The government says the group was planning a hostile move against East Berlin.

Chicago mayoral race consultants squabble

Chicago’s political consultants are in a pitched battle over who should shape the campaigns of black candidates running for mayor.

Larry Lynch, chief of staff for Mayor Washington, said Wednesday that the city’s political consultants have been meeting weekly to discuss the campaign strategies for black candidates. Lynch said that the consultants have been examining the campaigns of black candidates running for mayor and that they have been discussing the best ways to shape the campaigns.

Principle reigns

Sports played such an important role in developing closer ties between the United States and the People's Republic of China that it may be said that the "ping pong diplomacy" was intended to describe early negotiations between the two superpowers. Athletic and cultural exchanges became a symbol of the new friendship created by President Nixon's historic trip to China.

Recently, though, that friendship has taken a setback turn as a sports-related event now promises to increase recent worsening tensions.

After a considerable wait, Chinese tennis star Xu Hu has been granted political asylum in the United States. Her defection last July was international news; her status as a major sports hero helped de-tectives particularly embarrassing to China's Communist Party leadership.

The Chinese accused the United States of reaping the benefits of Xu's decision and asked repeatedly that she be returned. While that possibility was never considered by the State Department, consideration was given to allowing her to remain in the United States under some legal grounds other than political asylum, which carries with it the regulation that an individual faces a substantiated danger to his or her freedom.

For Xu, that danger clearly existed. Having refused to join the Communist Party, she received a letter from a top party official calling for her support on political roads and reminding her of the serious political situation. If she were to return, she was told, her family would be punished.

The time of the letter was significant. Subsequently, on the trip to a tennis tournament in California, she was heard by her father for refusing to be a member of the party.

The news of East Asian Affairs at the State Department argued that granting her asylum could jeopardize United States relations with the People's Republic of China. Sources at the United States Department of State's Office of Chinese Affairs stated that "we are very concerned about the implications of this decision."...

Shabbos tradition

Whatever happened to the invitation to Shabbos and kippot? I understand the concern many of the Phyllis in your editorial expressed, but the problem is the social aspect of the Shabbos. Public kippot and Shabbos are not in agreement with her social views. Although I believe that those who attend the bash have the right to be there but we must judge their observance of the propriety of their actions. I agree that we must consider the group's views when making Shabbos and Kippot a part of our social life. I do not believe they have the right to dictate the form of our lives. I feel that we are not in agreement with your views on it.
Officials repeat: Atomic tests had negligible effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Veterans Administration officials repeated Wednesday that national nuclear test blasts and the military occupation of atomic-bombed Japanese cities had negligible health effects as envisioned.

Veteran groups disputed the claim before the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee and pressed their efforts to win monetary claims and better medical treatment from the VA. They want the government to recognize the health hazards that resulted from the 250,000 tests that were conducted in the vicinity of Nagasaki and Hiroshima.

National Academy of Sciences study showed incidence of mortality by cause is no different than deaths occurred than would have in a similar population, "said Griffith, head of the Defense Nuclear Agency.

"The only statistical variation, he said, was the increased likelihood of birth defects among exposed veterans, legislation to award claims on that basis could be "In The Washington Post, however, they saw it as an opportunity to "show his true colors" in that regard than he would have been with the "first and foremost," Watts said.

NICKLAUS, WHO has talked about making Hawkeye basketball No. 1 outside the Big Ten, has been right in there again. I'm not saying that I'm the best 7-foot basketball player in the world, but I was Tennessee's most valuable player, an All-Southwest player, and I was named 'USA's Most Valuable Player' at last year's Tournament Players Championship. Ten years ago I didn't win a tournament, but I've won more than most in the last couple of weeks. I really wasn't aware that the column under wins the Masters since the tournament was started in 1934 .

Still, I've had more chances than most when the annual rite of the Masters was started in 1934 .

Cubs lose in home opener; only 4,802 show at Wrigley

CHICAGO (UPI) — It appears Steve Rogers and Al Oliver, who dominated the National League in several statistical categories last year, have picked up where they left off. Rogers notched his 33rd career home run as he continued to pace the Cubs to a sweep of the Montreal Expos and out the Chicago Cubs, 1, Wednesday when the 4,200-seat stadium opened for its first time.

A crowd of only 4,802 turned out for the home opener after Tuesday's game was rained out.

Rogers, who led the league in hitting and shared the RBI crown with Atlanta's Dale Murphy, provided the Cubs with a first-inning lift, when he hit a three-run homer leading off Bart Lott's first pitch, giving the Cubs an early 3-0 lead.

"I tried to get a hit in the first inning, but a good baseball was on the ground and I let it get away," Rogers said.

Piersall booted again in Chicago; Sox owners say he's too critical

CHICAGO (AP) - Jimmy Piersall, the controversial sports commentator who has been specifically of the Chicago White Sox during his poetic attacks against the team's management, the owners said Wednesday.

Piersall was dismissed Tuesday after earlier complaints of SportsVision, the participatory radio station he hosted. The Sox charged that Piersall had violated his contract with the team by making public statements.

The Sox officials said Wednesday that Piersall, who had several terms with team officials and umpires, "was fired by the team for his conduct.

Piersall, a veteran major league player who has been on several teams with the Sox, has been known for his heated exchanges with the club over the years. The Sox called off any restrictions on what he could say about the performance of the club.

But a teleconference sent to Piersall by President Jerry Reinsdorf, the Sox charged that Piersall's criticism of Sox Manager Tony LaRussa, who had been at odds with Sox officials said Wednesday.

“SCTV” is in serious trouble both in terms of ratings and in terms of creativity — a sad fact, considering that only a year ago the show had managed to attract a steady audience (at least in prime time) with the most sophisticated — and, some would argue, pretentious — of all TV shows.

One could cite a number of reasons for the decline in “SCTV” fortunes: a number of production changes in the past year, the fact that NBC has never given the show the attention it deserves. But the departure of the three most well-known, well-liked cast members — Eugene Levy, Andrea Martin and new addition Phil Hartman — is the most obvious.

There will, however, be some effort made to find new talent to fill the void left by the departures of Levy, Martin and Hartman. The show will be taped in front of an audience this year, and the writers will present a variety of live acts and skits.

Perhaps the most lasting appearance on the 30th annual gala will be that of the Lumisisters, a group of female impersonators who appear on the show annually.

Ralph Milner, who won the $2,000 for his winning entry in the Clams imitation contest, will be the last time.

Glass’ music immerses listeners

Music

Philip Glass’ concert tonight is an occasion to be welcomed by all who care for the arts, going to its musical, political, and social ideas.

Glass is an innovative composer with a style that stretches many traditions. His music is characterized by repetitive patterns and minimalistic structures, often combined with elements of jazz, classical, and new forms of electronic music.

Glass’ compositions are known for their simplicity and accessibility, making them appealing to a wide audience. His works include operas, orchestral pieces, chamber music, and solo concertos.

The concert tonight will include a performance of Glass’ “Einstein on the Beach,” a pioneering work that combines opera, dance, and multimedia elements. The piece is known for its innovative approach to music and its social commentary.

“Einstein on the Beach” is considered one of Glass’ most controversial and groundbreaking works, and it has been performed by many notable ensembles around the world.
