Unknown to Iowa basketball program insiders, the Hawkeyes have new assistant coach who has already een recruiting players while still in ullman, Wash.

The assistant, Bob Wonson, said in an interview with The Daily Iowan that e plans to move to Iowa City soon, and that newly-named Coach George Rosborough, who has said he wants to remain at Iowa, seemed surprised when told of Raveling's appointment, but declined to comment. Rosborough's status as Olson's assis-main source of income came from Iowa's basketball camp.

Raveling had said he would not decide on the rest of the staff for 'about two weeks," but Wonson said he has known about his new position at Iowa "ever since coach (Raveling) accepted the job.

lowa City could lose $2 million in airport funds

By Mark Leonard Staff Writer

Iowa City could lose $2 million in federal aid earmarked to upgrade the Iowa City Airport if a residential development goes up as planned near the site.

City Attorney Robert Jansen told the Iowa City Council Monday that Federal Aeronautics Administration officials have objected "in the strongest of terms" to a development south of Highway 1 at its intersection with Hudson Avenue.

For safety reasons, he said, the FAA wants to keep a "clear zone" around the airport.

IF THE CITY cannot solve the dilemma, Jansen said FAA officials have implied that $295,000 of federal money the city is supposed to receive this summer will be lost, and that future funding of the city's 10-year, $2 million plan might be in jeopardy.

"It was not stated explicitly, but the message was there," Jansen said. "They are very adamant about this "Essentially two floors would be research labs with adequate hood acilities. None of the labs in the uilding meet specifications for that," ne said.

"There will also be two floors of esearch labs, each of which will be ipped with three fume hoods, each ight feet wide. The current labs enerally have two four-feet-wide ds, and none has a sufficient flow of air to be effective."

"The business of doing chemistry has changed since the building was uilt," said Nancy English, adninistrative assistant in chemistry, said. "The equipment needs to be sup-plemented all the time. This is nothing osmetic we're dealing with."

English said the building is "working t capacity now" with antiquated enches, water lines, power lines and team lines.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan will leave "no stone unturned" in efforts to revive his crippled Middle East peace plan and is personally contacting Arab leaders on his next move, aides said Monday.

SHULTZ SAID Hussein and Arafat "were very close and they had the basis for doing that and I think it remains today.

"What happened was Mr. Arafat took what he and King Hussein had agreed on to a meeting of others in the PLO and they put in some changes that are unacceptable to King Hussein and the president, to (Saudi Arabia's) King Fahd and others and would, I'm sure, be an unacceptable basis for entering See Mideast, page 6

Job-hunters out in full force

More than 12,000 job-seekers swarmed a Hartsville, Ohio, automotive products firm to apply for 100 jobs Monday. Cars with license plates from across Ohio and West Virginia rolled past the Teledyne Monarch Rubber Co. plant at Hartsville, Ohio, Monday picking up applications from security guards

And unemployed steelworkers in Pittsburgh began a "Resumes for Reagan" campaign Monday to flood the White House with pleas for jobs. The move came on the eve of a job interview for steelworker Ronald Bricker, who boldly handed President Reagan his resume in Pittsburgh last Wednesday.

More rain expected in South

NEW ORLEANS - High water from rainswollen rivers which deluged the South the past week began to recede Monday but remained high enough to require beefing up of sandbagging operations. Additional rain is expected to blow in from the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday.

State officials estimated flood damage had reached $400 million in Mississippi and Louisiana, and the toll was expected to go higher. Federal inspection teams Monday began surveying the widespread flood damage.

Holocaust survivors reunited

WASHINGTON - President Reagan gathered Monday night with thousands of survivors of Hitler's Holocaust and pledged their security, "here and in Israel, will never be compromised."

Reagan, speaking at the Capital Centre arena in Landover, Md., a few miles from Washington, received sustained applause from the more than 15,000 people who opened their first reunion in the United States with a plea that the world never forget one of mankind's darkest hours.

Bill weakening PACs urged

WASHINGTON - More than 50 House members will introduce a bill today to provide public financing of congressional campaigns and short-circuit the power of special interest groups. No candidate for the House would be allowed to accept more than $90,000 from political action committees under the legislation.

Trend seen toward fewer small farms

By Karen Herzog Staff Writer

City

Many small farmsteads which used to be the hallmark of Iowa are taking the same route as the Ma and Pa grocery stores of yesteryear. While they haven't been replaced by upbeat QuikTrip convenience stores, owning 4.8 percent. small farms are fading from prominence in the portrait of Iowa. The size of the average farm increased from 190 acres to about 289 acres between 1960 and 1982, according to statistics compiled by the Iowa Development Commission. That means the number of farms is decreasing and more land is passing into the hands of a few. The possibility that a powerful group of farmers can monopolize the Iowa Duffy a little worried.

DUFFY FARMS 255 acres of land a few miles north of Iowa City. He purchased the acreage from his fatherin-law 13 years ago, after farming it for 17 years.

The organic farmer has never used chemicals on his land or crops, and he does not plan to change or expand his operation to keep step with his neighbors.

The question he asks may be common to many small farmers: "Are a few people going to own the land?" His answer - "If they do, they're going to drive prices up and dictate what people - may meet with opposition eat." from farmers who have incorporated. Don Clausen has established his family on an acreage south and west of Iowa City. But his incorporated realm extends from north of Iowa City to Hills, Iowa, tallying up 1,900 acres.

"Everybody has an equal say (in the trade market) regardless of how much land they have," Clausen said. But the farmer with a lot of land has more headaches because he has a larger investment at stake, he added.

Duffy is the vice president of the Farm Bureau chapter in Johnson County and president of the Johnson County Conservation Board. HE SAID he does not hold anything against farmers who expand to make room for family members to enter into the farming operation.

In 1978, 80.2 percent of all Iowa farms were owned by individuals or families. Ownership of the remaining farms was split between partners, who owned 14.5 percent, and corporations,

'Farmland has always been a good investment," Clausen said. "I bought 163 acres about 30 years ago, and now I've got 1,900.'

Clausen farms what it would have taken 12 or 15 farmers to maintain a few years ago. He has changed with the times, expanding his holdings and buying new machinery.

Clausen farms what it would have taken 12 or 15 farmers to maintain a few years ago. He has changed with the crop scene has people like Charlie times, expanding his holdings and buying new machinery.

His two sons are the other heads of the corporation. "When you get bigger, you can do a better job of buying,' Clausen said. He bought a farm last year that would have been split between four families at one time.

THE AVERAGE FARMER is 47 years old, but the occupation is now drawing an increasing number of young people. Clausen said he and his sons have managed well, without having college educations

Bankers and federal land bankers are helping young people invest their futures in farming, according to Mary Holz-Clause, a researcher for the Iowa Development Commission

In 1969, there were 3,900 farmers under the age of 25. In 1978, that number doubled to 7,104.

Clausen said his farming operation will be sustained by his sons. "They were born and raised on the farm. They know what it's all about.'

And if the crops fail one year, the Clausens will not suffer because they have not specialized. They raise hogs, cattle and sheep.

Don Shires, Johnson County extention director, said specialization is where many farmers fall, "Diversification is the best, and that's where many small farmers shine."

Eleven diamond-point drill bits, valued at $1,300 were reported stolen Monday from the Carver-Hawkeye Arena construction site, according to UI Campus Security.

Report: Tracy Stavros, 1115 Quadrangle Residence Hall, reported to Iowa City police Monday a navy-blue ski jacket with the word "Head" written on a sleeve had been stolen Saturday night from the Fieldhouse bar. The jacket, which also contained Stavros' drivers license, is valued at $180.

Accident: Charles Worden, 861 Page St., and Mercy Hospital reported that a woman had struck some trees along Page Street.

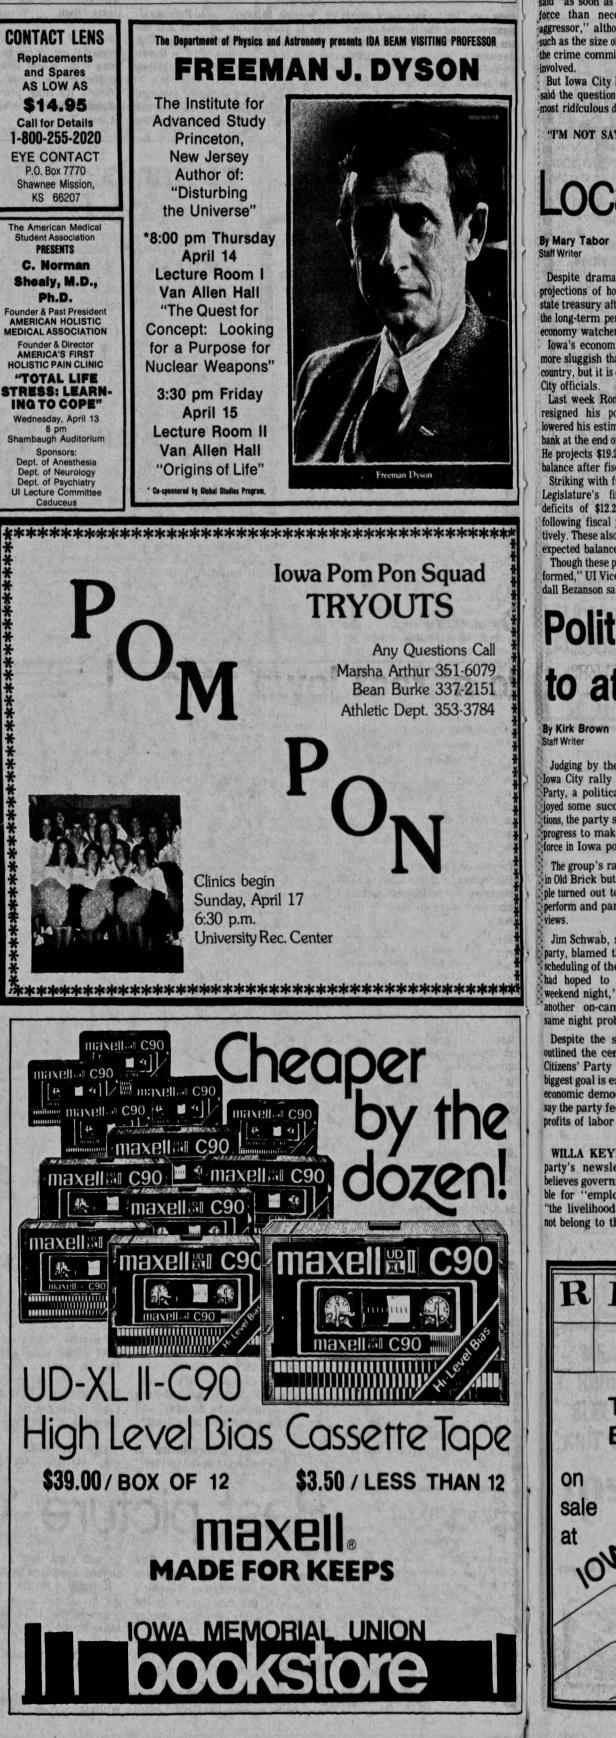

According to police reports, the woman hit trees at 709 and 711 Page St., and was then transported to Mercy Hospital for treatment of injuries sustained in the incident. The case is under investigation.

Accident: An Iowa City woman was driving west on Iowa Ave. Sunday when she saw a duck in the road. "Instead of killing the duck, she slammed on the brakes in her 1980 Pontiac Firebird" and got hit from behind by a "big old blue four-door car."

She called police because the driver of the car that hit her, yelled at her and ducked out before exchanging information.

Damage: The manager of the Sinclair Gas Station on Highway 1, called police Sunday about someone breaking a light pole in front of the station. The pole will cost $1,000 to replace.

Theft: A UI student reported to campus security Monday her GE Cassette Recorder had been stolen from a room in the Music Building sometime between April 1 and 11. The recorder is valued at $155.

A nationwide increase in the awareness and incidence of police brutality has raised questions about where the line between a police officer's duty and excessive use of force can be drawn.

Although Iowa City officials say the problem has not spread into the ranks of Iowa City officers, it is a question that requires further study, according to Iowa City lawyers.

Clearly, police brutality is not an easy concept to define.

arbara Schwartz, UI professor of law, said "as soon as a police officer uses more force than necessary, he becomes the aggressor," although there are qualifiers such as the size of the person being arrested, the crime committed and what weapons are involved But Iowa City Police Chief Harvey Miller said the question of police brutality is "the most ridiculous darn thing I've ever heard.

"I'M NOT SAYING that police brutality doesn't exist, but police are better equipped at handling people today than ever before."

PALESTINIAN

Increasing awareness of police brutality merely amounts to "sensationalism," Miller said, but whether police brutality is on the rise is a question several law experts find difficult to answer.

"I think it's probably a combination of a couple of things," said Gregory Williams, assistant dean of the UI College of Law. "It has probably been on the rise, but people are also more sensitive to police brutality than in the past.

Larry Fugate, an Iowa City attorney, said police brutality can be defined in terms of public opinion

He said if "public conscience is sufficiently shocked," a balance between police rights and individual rights "can be established through official criminal proceedings and the jury process.'

Jim Tomkovicz, UI professor of law, said, "The Constitution has drawn some lines as interpreted by the court to attempt to strike that balance (between rights of the two groups).

IT IS THE PURPOSE of many guarantees of the Bill of Rights to strike this balance, but "there's nothing specific in the Constitution," Tomkovicz said

Officers must police themselves in the area of excessive use of force, he said. "I think police make an honest and conscientious effort for the most part."

Miller said there is "no right for an officer to break the law," but at the same time, officers need more protection than they receive under the present system.

"We live in a world where the police officer doesn't have any rights .... An officer's work is like walking on eggshells in these cases sometimes, because they never know who could sue their tail off.

Because use of force by police officers is an "aberration of the norm," he said, police officers are found guilty of brutality "by public indictment more than anything else.

Yet Williams said "more explicit policies" need to be developed by police departments.

"I THINK ONE THING that they haven't done in the past is have mayors and the city council look at police and take their role in monitoring them. They have generally pretty much neglected their duties in closely overseeing the use of force.'

He said the Iowa City Council "wants to stay away from police," but it is the "responsibility of public officials and citizens as well to strictly limit the parameters to the extent we can.

Duane Rohovit, Iowa City attorney, said, however, "in terms of Iowa City, I haven't encountered any increase (in the number of police brutality complaints). There's no wave of it in Iowa City that I have seen.

"On the national scale, either it is being reported more or there is increasing awareness of it. A lot of it has to do with relations between major city police forces and minorities. I don't feel enough progress has been made in this area.

He said one reason for the low incidence in Iowa City could be that "a lot of the causes of police brutality aren't present in this community. We don't have white officers in minority communities where there would be perceived injustice. We are not exactly a melting-pot town.'

Local economy-watchers are optimistic

By Mary Tabor taff Write

Despite dramatic downward revisions in projections of how much will be left in the state treasury after June 30, an optimism for the long-term pervades the thinking of local economy watchers.

lowa's economic recovery may be a little more sluggish than that of other areas of the country, but it is on the way, say UI and Iowa City officials.

Last week Ronald Mosher, who has since resigned his post as state comptroller, lowered his estimates from $47 million in the bank at the end of this year to only $7 million. He projects $19.2 million will remain in the balance after fiscal year 1983.

Striking with further pessimism, the Iowa Legislature's financial adviser predicted deficits of $12.2 million and $46.6 million following fiscal years 1983 and 1984 respectively. These also show million dollar drops in expected balances.

Though these projections are "hopefully informed," UI Vice President for Finance Randall Bezanson said, "They are, after all, projections." He stressed a few million dollars makes only a small difference in Iowa's operating budget of $2 billion.

THE VARIANCE BETWEEN estimates from the executive branch and the legislative branch is part of a perennial political game, according to Jerald Barnard, UI economics professor who regularly helps the state comptroller's office prepare an economic forecast and an employment and income tax model

"The comptroller is the governor's man and the legislature is trying to outguess him," he said

It is normal for the state to modify its projections during the fiscal year as tax revenues trickle in, Bezanson said. But he added, "It is not so normal that projections are modified so greatly from the beginning to the end of a year.'

He blamed the pattern of greater adjustments an economy changing at a faster pace. "We've gone through an extensive and deep recession in this country and there is no consensus as to when we will come out of it."

As the figures seem to indicate, "Iowa definitely is going to lag the rest of the United States in terms of recovery," Barnard said. He cited the nature of the state's industries heavily agriculture and farm machinery - as the reason

It is this farm sector that "held Iowa at an evener keel" and allowed it to move into the recession more slowly too, Bezanson said.

BOTH MEN POINTED to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's payment-in-kind program as a possible savior for the bedraggled rural economy. But the impact of PIK won't be felt until the next taxable year when the farmers sell the grain and pay income tax, Bezanson said.

Other consequences of PIK cloud the short term recovery, he said. Farm equipment manufacturing and sales could fall contributing a depressing element to tax revenues. Fertilizers, seed and other planting essentials may also experience reduced demand

Bezanson, however, said with renewed acquisition of farm machinery "you will see a magnified level of increase in the farm economy later than the other sectors." Addressing these other sectors. Bezanson said retail businesses can show recovery, but "not exactly profitability."

IOWA CITY businesses are showing "a slightly more positive" financal outlook than last year, Larry Goldman, chairman of the local Chamber of Commerce Retail Committee, said he finds from his conversations with merchants

Consumers are remaining slow to increase spending, Barnard said."People are just running scared. They see their neighbor sitting home unemployed and wonder how secure their own job is."

Johnson County Supervisor Harold Donnelly agreed joblessness is holding back Iowa's economic recovery. "There's a lot of unemployed people and we can't get the ball rolling until we find them jobs.

He said state leaders misread the situation, especially to promote optimism during the last election. As for the recession he says "we're just going to have to live with it another year. It'll improve, it always has."

Judging by the small turnout at an lowa City rally held by the Citizens' Party, a political group that has enoved some success in Vermont elecions, the party still has a great deal of rogress to make before it becomes a orce in Iowa politics.

The group's rally was held last week in Old Brick but only a handful of people turned out to hear local musicians perform and party officials state their

Jim Schwab, state chairman for the party, blamed the poor turnout on the scheduling of the event. "Originally we had hoped to hold the rally on a weekend night," Schwab said. He said another on-campus speaker on the same night probably hurt attendance.

Despite the small turnout, Schwab outlined the central philosophy of the Citizens' Party by saying, "Our single biggest goal is establishing an iron-clad nomic democracy." He went on to say the party feels it is important "the profits of labor go to the laborers."

WILLA KEYNOYER, editor of the party's newsletter, said the party lieves government should be responible for "employing the people" and "the livelihood of the worker should not belong to the corporations.

was Ion Laskaris, the founding member of Vermont's Citizens' Party. He agreed with views of other speakers but went on to say "the party is also very concerned with the corruption of the political process by special interest groups.'

The Citizens' Party was founded three years ago and now boasts 11 elected members in local offices across the nation. Schwab said the number of the party's elected members, along with the "number of near misses," ' constitutes a success "no other third party has had in decades.'

The party has enjoyed the most success in the community of Burlington, Vt., where the town's mayor and two city councilors are members of the party. Party members have also been elected to local offices in a few larger cities such as Houston and Portland.

Laskaris, an unsuccessful candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1980, said the outlook for the Citizens' Party is bright. "In the next election we think we'll pick up some seats in several state legislatures."

Looking further into the future Keynoyer predicted "we'll be in power before the year 2,000 ... unless the Democrats screw up and make it sooner.

Arcades compete for customers

The Daily Iowan/Bill Paxson

Guy De Blank, a UI senior from Hyannis, Mass., ments, a recently-opened arcade in the Old plays the video game Dig Dug at Center Amuse- Capitol Center.

By Allen Seidner Staff Writer

Not surprisingly, last month's opening of Center Amusements in the Old Capitol Center, has taken a portion of the video-game business away from its neighbor, Aladdin's Castle. "We have not yet recovered," Arden Svoboda Jr., manager of Aladdin's said.

Svoboda, 25, said Center Amusements attracts more business because it is in a more visible location than Aladdin's Castle. But Svoboda is more upset because the investors, who he said promised to minimize direct competition, are the people who own Center Amusements.

"THAT'S WHAT they're there for (malls) ... to have competition," said Frank Boyd, owner of Center Amusements and an Old Capitol Center investor. "We got lots of space up there to rent .... There are a number of restaurants there, and they seem to be going pretty good."

"That's not why malls are there .... I can't see the fairness," Svoboda said. "The original owners' concept of the mall was to have storeowners working with one another instead of competing against one another," Svoboda said.

Boyd, who is not one of the original mall investors, said he "wouldn't have any idea" whether both arcades could draw enough business to survive. "When they first moved in," Svoboda said, "we

"When they first moved in," Svoboda said, "we lost two-thirds to three-quarters of our business. We have since gained back half of that. There's enough things in the world that they could have put in there besides a competing business."

IF BUSINESS becomes tough enough, "and someone gets greedy," the arcades could become locked into a "token war," Svoboda said. Aladdin's Castle "could take them lower," because it could make up for the lost revenue at one of its other 500 stores. Svoboda said he hopes such a measure doesn't become necessary, because a "token war" would drain from the revenues of both businesses. Svoboda doesn't want to promote poor relations between the two arcades, which could lead the mall investors to refuse renewal of Bally's Aladdin's Castle Inc.'s lease when its current lease expires in 1990.

Center Amusements leases its 72 machines from Hawkeye Amusements Co., a local distributor, according to employee Marcus Eckhardt. They are provided with next-day repair service and offered the newest video amusements.

ALADDIN'S CASTLE, on the other hand, owns the 43 machines in its store. Minor repairs are performed by Svoboda, but major repair work takes a few days. They purchase some of their machines from Bally-owned Midwest Manufacturing Co., but pay the same rate as any other amusement center.

The mall arcade operators do not consider Thor's Hammer, 112 E. Washington St., direct competition. "They are going after a completely different crowd," Svoboda said. "We're catering to the family, and they're going after the college students."

House, Senate compromise on income tax bill

DES MOINES (UPI) — House and Senate conferees Monday took only about 10 minutes to iron out their differences on a controversial bill limiting tax breaks for wealthy Iowans, setting up a showdown with Gov. Terry Branstad.

The compromise measure between the two chambers limits federal income tax deductibility on state returns to $25,000, an action that will affect only residents earning more than $100,000 a year.

Both the full House and Senate are expected to give easy approval to the conference bill and send it to Branstad, who has strongly hinted he will veto the measure.

A veto, however, would throw the governor's budget out of whack because the compromise bill raises $16 million in additional funding for the ailing state treasury — money that Branstad has already counted in his fiscal 1984 budget which begins July 1.

BRANSTAD IS firmly opposed to any kind of federal income tax deductibility limit, calling it a "tax on a tax," and his opposition is shared by Republican lawmakers.

Democrats who control the Legislature, however, uniformly support the provision and only two Republicans bothered to show up at the conference committee meeting to vote against the compromise.

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, said the Legislature will not play games with the bill by depositing it on Branstad's desk and then adjourning for the year.

She said the governor will get a chance to veto the measure, although Doderer speculated that Branstad may have changed his mind since state Comptroller Ronald Mosher recently cut his estimates of a treasury surplus by $40 million.

Sen. William Palmer, D-Des Moines, said if Branstad does veto the bill lawmakers will have to "start at square one."

The measure is a compromise between the House bill limiting federal deductibility to $22,000 and the Senate version which set it at $27,000.

THE HOUSE ALSO met the Senate halfway on a small tax credit, agreeing not to tax the first $500 of everyone's income. That amounts to about a $3 credit.

The compromise version bears little resemblance to the original proposal which was merely supposed to conform the Iowa Revenue Code with changes in federal tax laws.

By the time both the House and Senate were through tampering with it, the conforming bill included not only the deductibility provisions, but also a tax credit for solar hot water heaters.

The compromise bill that will be sent to Branstad raises $7 million less than the original conforming bill would have in the next fiscal year. Doderer said lawmakers will have to make that amount up somewhere by cutting funding or looking for additional revenue.

layor race appears dead even

CHICAGO (UPI) - The issue of race dogged both candidates Monday on the eve of the bitter, cliffhanger election that will give Chicago its first Republican mayor in 52 years or its first black.

Democrat Harold Washington, a black congressman, and GOP millionaire Bernard Epton both alluded to the racial issue in predicting victory. The election has attracted worldwide attention as a yardstick of growing black voter power.

On the last day of a campaign most say is too close to call, both candidates appealed to an electorate that may already have been hopelessly polarized by skin color.

"I have asked you in this campaign to put aside race and religion," said Epton, who hopes to become Chicago's first Jewish mayor.

Epton, who has acknowledged many votes today will be made on the basis of race, made his appeal in an electioneve radio broadcast.

For his part, Washington said at a campaign stop that race should not be

"I THINK WE should be introspective about ourselves," he said. Nearing the end of his campaign, Washington vowed an end to the Democratic machine.

"That machine, infamous throughout the world, is obsolete," he said, adding Mayor Richard J. Daley.

change and reform "has been brewing in Chicago for many, many years. It didn't just happen overnight." He also said his election would aid in the national party's effort to defeat President Reagan in 1984.

At another stop, Washington was met by about 50 supporters who shouted "We want Harold" and a smaller group yelling "We want Epton."

"He won't sit in the same room with me," Washington complained when Epton refused to appear for a Sunday television show. "He thinks he's in South Africa."

Epton, a former state legislator, responded by accusing Washington of unfairly using race against him.

Epton, who has the support of many white Democrats, used radio spots to wind up his hard-hitting campaign. Washington went into Jewish neighborhoods, seeking the white votes he must have to win.

WASHINGTON, SERVING his second term in Congress, also used the final day to declare that a Republican cannot be effective at City Hall in this Democratic stronghold.

Epton was relatively unknown, virtually abandoned by his own party and given no chance to win until Washington split the primary vote and defeated Mayor Jane Byrne and Richard Daley, son of Chicago's late Epton has said he wants only one four-year term.

Some analysts predict the turnout will top the 1.2 million who voted in the Feb. 22 primary. Both sides agree a heavy turnout could favor Epton, who has cut Washington's 28-point lead by half in recent polls.

There are 1,625,000 registered voters, of whom about 857,000 are white, 673,000 are black and 95,000 are Hispanic. With white and black voters divided along racial lines, the Hispanic vote is considered important.

Washington is expected to capture virtually all the black votes, and Epton

Byrne won't give TV comments

CHICAGO (UPI) - Mayor Jane M. Byrne, criticized during her four-year term for changing her mind, did it one more time Monday, canceling plans to comment on the election for WBBM-

Her decision to act as political commentator for today's election had drawn criticism, said Donald Ephraim, an attorney acting as Byrne's media agent.

Ephraim said she withdrew to avoid charges that she used her office improperly and diverted attention from the two mayoral candidates, Democrat Harold Washington and Republican Bernard Epton.

The election will be monitored by federal officials to prevent any vote fraud.

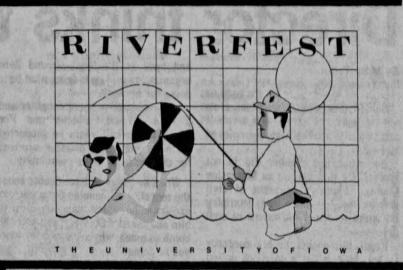

"We're at a loss to know why," said Lilly Eide, director of communications at WBBM-TV. "She would have lent an area of expertise that could not be filled by anyone."

The mayor had agreed to do the commentary without pay, Eide said.

Sources close to the mayor say she has expressed an interest in working in the news media once she leaves office.

Fran Preston, acting press manager for WLS-TV, the ABC affiliate, reported Ephraim has talked to WLS about the possibility of Byrne taking an onthe-air spot after the election. Preston said no decision has been reached.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A special mission advised President Reagan onday to put the controversial MX, a 10-warhead nuclear weapon that would e the hardest hitting in the U.S. arsenal, in old silos and shift more of the burden of America's nuclear deterrent toward smaller, single-warhead

The call for a new direction in U.S. strategic planning was proposed by the esidential Commission on Strategic Forces in a plan it said would redress a 'serious imbalance'' with Soviet nuclear forces while improving incentives for arms control.

President Reagan, who gave the anel a broad mandate beyond finding home for the controversial MX, is expected to endorse its recommendations early next week.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would "take the report under consideration" and send his own proposals - backed by the weight of the commission's qualifications - to Congress in "the next few

AIDES CONFIRMED Reagan put off an announcement to avoid coinciding with two votes in Congress this week that bear heavily on his arms policies

- House action on a nuclear freeze resolution and Senate consideration of his nomination of Kenneth Adelman as head of the arms control agency.

Democrats in Congress quickly seized on the plan with one leading foe calling it "the same bag of nothing." And a prominent Republican, Sen.

Mark Hatfield of Oregon, said the plan "is nothing less than mad. If the commission's recommendations are adopted, we might as well also announce that America has adopted a first-strike nuclear strategy.'

Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., who led the successful effort in Congress last year to hold up production funds for the homeless MX, said, "Hopefully, this plan will persuade Congress to kill it (the missile) altogether.'

Addabbo said the latest plan has not changed his mind, declaring, "It's the same bag of nothing."

THE FINDINGS were presented to Reagan at the White House by the commission and its senior counselors - a distinguished group of defense experts that included six former Cabinet members and two former heads of the CIA. Commission Chairman Brent Scowcroft said the group hoped its recommendations "will provide the basis for difficult issues."

The plan envisions a vital short-term role for the MX - countering a Soviet capability to destroy U.S. land-based missiles - and places greater future reliance on a new generation of smaller, single-warhead missiles, possibly mounted on heavily armored mobile launchers.

The problem of vulnerability of large intercontinental ballistic missiles, a key concern in deliberations over the MX, would not be overcome by the panel's recommendation that 100 of the new missiles be placed in silos that now hold older and less powerful Minuteman and Titan II missiles.

However, the commission said deployment of the smaller missile, dubbed "Midgetman" by some, in the early 1990s would "hedge against longterm vulnerability for the rest of our forces" and assure a credible deterrent.

THE COMMISSION estimated it would cost $19.9 billion for prompt deployment of the 100 MX and initial development of the Midgetman over five years - about $3 billion less than Reagan's ill-fated "dense pack" MX proposal. The panel acknowledge the

a broad national consensus on these possibility of larger costs in later

The move to single-warhead missiles would have far-reaching ramifications for arms control, reducing the need for large killer missiles like the MX and ending a destabilizing trend of the last 15 years, the commission suggested.

The report also called for continued development of advanced manned bombers, the Trident II submarinelaunched missile and the cruise missile, as well as research on anti-missile systems and missile silo hardening.

Reagan last month proposed immediate action on research toward a space-age anti-missile system that would destroy attacking Soviet missiles.

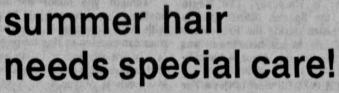

The commission, in its report, surveyed the strategic balance in terms far less alarming than the "window of vulnerability" Reagan has cited in pressing the case for his $180 billionplus strategic modernization program.

Congress rebuffed Reagan twice on the MX, first rejecting his plan to place it in existing silos in lieu of a permanent basing proposal, and late last year turning down the "dense pack" idea of grouping the missiles closely together in Wyoming.

"I have an 11-year-old daughter and a 6-year-old son," Fiedler said. For four and one-half years he supported them by managing disaster services for the southeast Iowa community.

When he began to have doubts about the morality of planning for a nuclear exchange, he said his daughter came to him and asked, "Daddy, if you hate the bomb so much, why are you doing what you're doing?'

"We have no reason to rejoice that peace has again receded or that United States policy had, once again, failed and been proven mistaken," Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said in a speech to Likud Party members.

"There is no joy here, though we foresaw it "

Yet for the next 35 minutes, Shamir chastised the United States and detailed why the Begin government believed Reagan's Sept. 1 initiative was doomed from the start.

"Any sober observer of the Middle East knows that peace between Israel needs the consensus of all the Arabs," Shamir said. "Peace with Jordan is possible - if Jordan itself decides on it, if Hussein has the courage and bravery not to ask the PLO, but to present them all with a fait accompli."

JORDAN SAID Sunday it would not join the Middle East peace process because it failed to reach agreement with the PLO on representing the Palestinian cause.

Asked by reporters about U.S. assertions the Reagan plan could be revived, Shamir said after his speech: "I don't think it will continue to be alive."

The foreign minister called for prompt renewal of the Camp David negotiations on autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza, with the participation of Jordan.

"One of the weaknesses of the former negotiations was that Jordan was not present," Shamir said, insisting that with Hussein's participation, "We have a large chance to succeed."

Shamir said Israel was "deeply wounded" by Reagan's statement that he "would not give us F-16s if we did

THE BEST ORIGINAL song Oscar went to "Up Where We Belong" from An Officer and a Gentleman, another Grammy winner.

Winners of two Oscars made political statements during their acceptance speeches before an estimated worldwide audience of half a billion.

Zbigniew Rybczynaki, producer of the best short film, "Tango," lingered at the podium and said, "We share this award with Lech Walesa and Solidarity." Teenage heartthrob Matt Dillon, who earlier had tried to usher the winners off stage, scratched his head as they finally walked away.

Edward Le Lorrain, accepting the best short subject documentary Oscar for "If You Love This Planet," a Canadian film about the effects of nuclear war that was listed as propaganda by the U.S. Justice Department, held up the statuette and said simply, "An Oscar for peace."

Volver a Empezar, (To Begin Again), the Spanish movie about a writer exiled during the Franco era who returns to his hometown, was named best foreign-language film.

Today's mayoral election in Chicago displays the American electoral process at its grubbiest.

The fight between Democrat Harold Washington and Republican Bernard Epton to succeed Jane Byrne has been marked by mudslinging and that, while hardly unprecedented, is still appalling.

The fact that Washington is black has led to both overt and covert damnation. White ethnic Chicago Democrats, led now, it would appear, by revered newspaper columnist Mike Royko, are fleeing Washington's campaign as if it had herpes.

While many of those Democrats would deny that race is deciding their votes, one can be certain that the issue of race is always a factor to people who live in the city that was the site of some of the bloodiest battles of the 1960s civil rights campaigns.

What makes the situation even sadder is the fact that in choosing Washington as their candidate, Chicago's Democrats selected a man whose background would raise difficulties whether he was black, white, red or plaid.

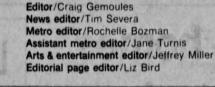

Though Washington's conviction on tax evasion charges is a crime for which he has paid, and though Bernard Epton's singleminded attacks on Washington for that conviction and for his inability to pay his own bills have come close to slander, those problems are salient when choosing the person who is going to be responsible for managing a city for four years.

And the candidates' decision to frame their campaigns in the slogans of "reform" turns the process into a farce. With a party hack whose "reform" will consist of pandering to the most conservative elements in the city for most of his term to prove that he is not one of the Horsemen of the Apocalypse going up against a wealthy liberal whose "reform" will consist of transferring more power to propertied interests, the election might as well be written by Moliere.

But this is Chicago today, not an 18th century French play. There is very little funny about the racism, financial malfeasance and hypocrisy revealed in this campaign.

We Americans brag about having the most advanced electoral system in the world, but elections like the one in Chicago today should raise doubts in the hearts of even the staunchest patriots. Jeffrey Miller

Do media ignore Afghanistan?

OR SPRING break this year two Ivy Leaguers passed up the delights of Hilton Head, Ft. Lauderdale and Aspen for a trip to no man's land.

Gregory D'Elia, a Yale junior, and Charles Bork, who graduated from Yale in 1981, entered Afghanistan dressed as refugees one month ago to prove that the American press ignores the resistance by anti-Soviet Afghan guerrillas. Yet, while the trip was illuminating, Bork and D'Elia may have only dramatized how the continuing

Unfortunately, the news gap helps to explain why Americans don't follow Afghan developments with much enthusiasm. Indeed, a recent survey of public attitudes toward U.S. foreign policy by the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations overlooked questions about Afghanistan; other polls have shown that the issue faded from the public interest within 10 months of

Repealing tax cut

A number of Democrats and now some Republicans are calling for repeal of the final installment, 10 percent, of President Reagan's three year tax cut, enacted during his first year in office. There are also calls to end indexing, which would continue to lower tax revenues. This was the cornorstone of the Reagan recovery program - lower taxes were supposed to stimulate investment, expand the economy and produce higher revenues.

Later the president also called for cuts in domestic spending, but initially he argued that the government could maintain domestic spending and increase military spending out of the higher revenues generated by his tax cut. That quickly proved to be an illusion and he sent budgets to the Congress which contained drastic cuts in domestic spending and a 56 percent increase, above inflation and over a five year period, in military spending.

What has led to the calls for repeal of the third year of the tax cut and the indexing is the mounting federal deficit looming ahead - $200 billion or more. A number of congressmen, liberal Democrats and Republicans and some conservatives in both parties, have returned to what used to be a conservative credo one that Reagan has forgotten - that one must pay for what one wants.

Domestic spending has been cut too far and military spending increased dramatically. For example, the Environmental Protection Agency has had its budget cut by about 33 percent, while the defense budget has been increasing 8 percent to 11 percent over inflation each year. The choice now is to cut both more - and in the area of domestic spending further cuts would endanger the health, safety and education of the people - or raise taxes to pay for modest increases in both.

Despite the fact that Americans gripe religiously about their taxes, they want the services those taxes provide and they are unwilling to see the less fortunate go hungry or cold. Moreover, Americans are not heavily taxed. Conservative columnist George Will has argued for years that Americans are undertaxed.

It seems clear that for the budget to be fair and responsible, a modest increase (perhaps 4 or 5 percent over inflation) in defense spending and a restoration of many of the cuts in domestic spending is needed. That means more money and that means higher taxes. But this time the tax changes must be fair. The wealthy have benefited substantially from the 15 percent Reagan tax cut already in effect. Any tax increases should close tax loopholes that benefit them and that benefit corporations - like banks — not now paying their fair share.

conflict in South Asia frustrates even the most aggressive of news hounds. On Feb. 26, Bork and D'Elia set off for Rawalpindi. The two staff members of the right-wing-minded Yale Free Press had solicited $9,000 from various conservative think-tanks (Accuracy in Media, Inc., and Fund for Objective News Reporting, among others) early this year to underwrite plane tickets, camera equipment and incidental expenses.

They eventually rendezvoused with representatives of the Afghan resistance - or Mujahideen - in Peshawar, a Pakistani city about 40 miles from the Khyber Pass. For the ever-necessary disguise, they purchased turbans, capes and other

Stereotypical To the editor:

In reply to Jacqueline Smetak (DI, April 1): Why do you persist in criticizing a different lifestlye than your own? Your attack on greeks was narrow-minded and petty.

It seems to me your views on greeks stem from stereotypes you gained from your college years. You still retain them. Granted, when you house college students in large, close quarters there is bound to be some action. Have you ever stood across the street from Burge on the morning of a home football game?

If you don't like greeks, that's your option. In the many different lifestlyes, if one is disturbing others, it should be taken care of. But for you to point a finger at a large group of students and label them "terrorizing hypocritical jerks" in print is wrong. There are students in the greek system who contribute just as much as anyone else to the university. Consider that what's true for the part may not always be true for the whole Amy Kraushaar 24 East Court Street

One bad apple ...

To the editor:

The April 1 edition of The Daily Iowan included a scathing attack on the UI greek system in the form of a letter to the editor from Jacqueline R. Smetak.

Many of the students at the UI, myself included, disagree with Smetak. First of all, we are not all spoiled brats, as she insists, and second, we do not overtly try to terrorize others. Fraternities and sororities have had a long tradition of BORK, 24, AND D'Elia, 20, stayed in Afghanistan's Pektia province for five days, visiting a school for refugee children, surveying bombed-out villages and farms and meeting other resistance soldiers. They also took more than 1,000 photographs (Bork, who is a military photography buff, hauled an antique plate camera and tripod along).

The Yalies spent one day at a resistance center, where many Afghan nationalists were gathering for a nighttime assault on a government garrison two miles away. "We were a little concerned that this wasn't the best place to be at that moment," admitted Bork, who added that helicopter air attacks made the sparsely-equipped

Who are the bullies? To the editor:

In reply to Tim Copeland's complaint about pedestrians and bicyclists (DI, March 29):

What happened? Did Copeland have a bad morning and feel the need to vent his frustrations? What better group to grumble about than those noxious springtime offenders: walkers and bicyclists? The tone of Copeland's letter treats walkers and cyclists as so many swarming pests to be "put up with'' and is indicative of an unfortunate antagonism still held by too many motorists toward pedestrians and others who have the "audacity" to operate non-motor vehicles on our streets and roadways.

Yes, nice weather does tend to induce people to venture outside the "legitimate" confines of cars and buses. And yes, there are certainly those walkers and bicyclists who are rude and disregard red lights and "Don't Walk" signs. But believe it or not, pedestrians and bikers do have the legal right-of-way in many instances. I am both a walking commuter (yearround) and a bicyclist who observes traffic and safety rules. I know there are many bicyclists who are equally conscientious about courtesy and safety.

If I wrote a letter of complaint to the DI for every time my legitimate rightof-way was violated or my safety threatened by people driving cars, the poor editor would be inundated. I suggest that Copeland try walking or bicycling in this city for a few months and then rethink his ideas about who are really the "bullies on the block" when it comes to right-of-way on our streets.

In the area of academics, it is a documented fact that more greeks graduate than non-greeks by more than 20 percent. In the area of community service, which Smetak claims we use as an excuse for our "terrorizing" behavior, she is clearly wrong. Every year, fraternities and sororities raise thousands of dollars in house philanthrophies for different charities ranging from cystic fibrosis and Mercy Hospital to Cambus.

On the university level, greeks are very active in several organizations. Greeks are student senators, and are members of many groups on campus. Not only are they members of these groups, but they also take an active role in their leadership. The presidents of the UI Student Senate and Drinc are greeks, and these are just a few. Many other greeks hold executive positions in student groups. We don't claim to be perfect. Just like any other group, we have some members who get wild. But greeks aren't the only students who cause such problems. So for people who feel the same way as Smetak, take another look. # El Salvadorans flee homes in fear of rebels' attacks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - Rebel threats halted most transportation Monday throughout El Salvador and fear of renewed attack near the nation's power stations forced hundreds of families to flee, the government said.

Most bus operators refused to drive vehicles into northern and eastern El Salvador because of guerrilla threats to burn buses in their "national campaign of sabotage.'

Dispatchers said no buses traveled the main northern highway to Honduras or the Pacific Coast Highway into southeastern El Salvador.

On the Pan American Highway, the only other major route into eastern El Salvador, only six buses left San Salvador, compared to the normal 75, dispatchers said.

The shutdown, coming after a week in which rebels burned some 20 buses and trucks, affected 10 of El Salvador's 14 provinces.

FOUR EMPLOYEES of the city hall in Ciudad

Delgado, a working-class suburb of San Saivador, were shot to death in their homes Sunday night by unidentified gunmen, judicial authorities said.

Guerrillas ambushed a military patrol Monday outside the Mariona Prison in Apopa, about six miles north of San Salvador, wounding "several" soldiers, military sources said.

The sources also reported a four-hour rebel attack on a sub-station of the government electricity company, but said there were no casualties.

A government statement published in San Salvador newspapers said hundreds of families were abandoning the town of San Jose Cancasque after rebel attacks that destroyed public buildings and killed most of the town's 35 soldiers.

About 800 guerrillas last week overran the town, 31 miles northeast of San Salvador, destroyed the local church with mortar fire, burned government buildings and sacked many stores, journalists who visited the town said.

They said the rebels later retreated.

Latin American conference seeks to solve conflicts with peace plan

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) -Foreign relations ministers from four Latin American nations conferred Monday to revise a plan for peace in El Salvador and to stop fighting along the Nicaraguan-Honduran border.

The ministers from Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama held closed-door talks at a Panama City hotel to review a document they drew up in January on Panama's Contadora Island, a Panamanian ministry spokesman said.

The ministry said the talks centered on the conflicts in Central America. mainly the Salvadoran civil war and recent fighting inside Nicaragua near the border with Honduras.

The surprise meeting, first announced during the weekend, came immediately after Colombian President Belisario Betancur wrapped up whirlwind talks on the possible peace plan with the leaders of Venezuela, Mexico and Panama. During his stop in Mexico Saturday, Betancur said the ministers would form a commission to visit the countries involved in the Central American conflicts.

He said his trip had been aimed at "making the Contadora document more pertinent, more pervasive, more penetrating.'

HIS JOINT STATEMENT with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid said "peace in the area (Central America) is of vital interest for the security of both nations."

The Contadora plan calls for talks between warring factions in El Salvador and a withdrawal of foreign military advisers from Central America - an obvious reference to U.S. Green Berets in El Salvador and Cuban advisers in Nicaragua.

The Reagan administration and El Salvador's U.S.-backed regime have rejected talks leading to a sharing of power with an estimated 5,000 to 6,000 Marxist-led insurgents in El Salvador, wracked by 41 months of civil war.

Washington has dispatched Green Berets to El Salvador to train the nation's armed forces. The self-imposed limit of the U.S. advisers stands at 55. Some 2,000 Cuban civilian and military advisers are believed to be working in Nicaragua, ruled by the Marxist-led Sandinista National Liberation Front.

Iraq, Iran claim thousands killed in latest fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - A major battle raged between attacking Iranian forces and Iraqi troops Monday and Iran said it would fight on until an Islamic government was installed in Baghdad. Both sides claimed they inflicted thousands of casualties in the latest upsurge of fighting in the 21/2vear-old war.

Iran said its offensive launched Sunday had recovered 60 square miles of land near the Iraqi border lost early in the war. But Iraq said the new offensive "has been wiped off the face of the earth." The Tehran government said it had inflicted more than 4,500 Iraqi casualties and Iraq countered with a claim that 3,220 Iranian attackers had died in the first day of fighting.

Iraq also said large numbers of Iraqi soldiers were wounded or taken prisoner.

There was no independent confirmation of the claims by either side and they did not mention their own casualties.

IRAQ SAID in the first reports on the fighting that it had crushed the attack, which started just before midnight Sunday, during night-long fighting along a 13-mile front in its southern Misan province. The state-run Tehran radio said the fighting was located in the central sector of the war zone, about 200 miles north of the Persian Gulf.

"More than 4,500 Iraqi troops were killed or wounded, 350 of them were taken captive and 60 square miles of our land was liberated," the Tehran radio

"The operation has been successfully going on and it will continue until Iran achieves its rights and an Islamic government will be established in Iraq," the agency said.

Iraq, however, said the attack was crushed. "The aggressive Iranian forces launched an attack at 11 p.m. Sunday ... and our forces confronted them. This aggression will be buried like others before it," the Iraqi military communique said.

Thailand gets U.S.-made guns

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) - With Vietnam battling Cambodian guerrillas along its border, Thailand took delivery Monday of eight of the most advanced artillery pieces in the American arsenal and announced joint U.S.-Thai war games.

Eight 155mm howitzers capable of matching the range of Vietnam's latest Soviet-made guns were handed over to the Thai military command in Bangkok after an emergency airlift from Travis Air Base near San Francisco.

More of the long-range howitzers were headed for Thailand aboard the merchant ship SS Benjamin Harrison as the United States continued to rush weapons to Thailand to counter a Vietnamese threat to its borders, military sources said.

Bangkok requested the stepped-up deliveries last week following a series of intrusions into Thai territory by Vietnamese forces pursuing Cambodian guerrillas.

Khmer Rouge guerrillas counterattacked Vietnamese forces near the Cambodian town of Poipet on the Thai border, about 120 miles east of Bangkok, military sources said.

They said heavy fighting was reported inside Cambodia between Vietnamese troops and the guerrillas but no other details were immediately available.

VIETNAM, WHICH invaded Cambodia in December 1978 and ousted the Khmer Rouge government of Pol Pot, began its largest offensive against Cambodian rebels March 31.

Gen. Saiyud Kerdphol, Thai armed forces supreme commander, said U.S. and Thai forces would hold joint maneuvers in June to test Thailand's ability to transport military personnel and materiel in the event of war.

Saiyud, Deputy Defense Minister Paniang Kar-natarat and U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean were on hand at Bangkok's Don Muang airport for the unloading of the howitzers from two giant C-5

Galaxy transport planes following a 20-hour flight. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the howitzers, taken from the inventory of the most advanced U.S. artillery, were modified to match the 181/2-mile range of the Soviet-built 130mm guns Vietnam is using along the Thai-Cambodian border.

Thai and Vietnamese gunners have repeatedly exchanged artillery fire across the border since Hanoi stepped up its drive against Cambodian guerrillas. The Thai army reported during the weekend that more than 500 Vietnamese artillery rounds have landed inside Thailand since Hanoi began its dry-season offensive.

George Raveling and Company are hot on the recruiting trail.

With the second national letter of intent period beginning Wednesday, Iowa is trying to secure at least one more high school hotshot to go along with the trio of Johnny Fort, Dave Snedeker and Robert Ursery, all of whom were signed under the Lute Olson administration.

Raveling indicated at his first Iowa press conference that he was looking for a point guard and/or power forward

Here is a list of Raveling's favorites: • Freddie Banks - A 6-foot-2 point guard from Valley High School in Las Vegas, Banks was picked as the 42nd best player in the country in a preseason poll. He finished the season averaging 22.6 points and eight assists per game.

In November, Iowa was very heavily in the running but when the Hawkeyes signed Fort, they eased off in recruiting Banks and consequently, Banks cooled on Iowa. New Iowa Assistant Ron Righter said Iowa has come out of nowhere and is third on Banks' list, but apparently Banks has narrowed his choices to Nebraska, Oregon State and University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Banks Coach Bill Bobier thinks Iowa still has a chance. Banks will make his decision tonight.

• Don Royal - A 6-7 small forward from St. Augustan High School in New Orleans, Royal was leaning toward Tulane, Notre Dame, Marquette and Creighton early in the season. Iowa talked to him for the first time on Monday. "We're talking vintage if we can get a Don Royal," Righter said. • Larry Bush - A 6-7, 220-pound power forward from Corliss High School in Chicago, he has been labeled as the most physical player in the state. Bush, not known as a finesse player, scores mostly on power and is a good jumper. Righter says the Iowa staff is still trying to arrange an oncampus visit.

• Kent Hill - A 6-6 small forward from Wichita West High School in Wichita, Kan., Hill indicated early in the season that Wichita, San Diego, San Diego State, Kansas, Kansas State, Creighton and Oklahoma State all had a chance. And Iowa? Righter says he will visit the Iowa campus today.

• Terry Conor - A 6-3 point guard from Phillips High School in Birmingham, Conor was ranked 53rd in a national pre-season poll (very respectable for a point guard). Early in the season, he was favoring Alabama, Auburn and University of Alabama at Birmingham.

• Robert Hall - A six-foot point guard from Central Arizona (junior) College in Coolidge, Arizona, Hall averaged 15 points and about five assists per game. Originally from John Adams High School in Cleveland, he led the conference from the foul line with 84 percent.

According to Coach Norm Patton, Olson wants Hall to come to Arizona. Hall has visited Fresno State, Oregon, Marquette and Cal State Fullerton and from a competetive standpoint, Patton said Hall would probably consider Iowa.

Iowa contacted Hall for the first time two weeks ago (right after Raveling was hired).

Ballesteros starts fast, wins easily

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) - Seve Ballesteros took command on the first four holes Monday and coasted to a four-shot victory in the richest Masters ever, winning it for the second time when no one else could mount any kind of challenge.

In a final round that lacked the intense drama usually found in a major tournament, Ballesteros charged to the front with an eagle and two birdies on the first four holes to seize the lead, and despite a pair of bogeys coming home, he shot a three-under-par 69 for a total of eight-under 280.

The wise-cracking Spaniard, who never saw his lead drop to less than two shots after the fourth hole, parred the last six holes and

'Unenthused' Hawks sweep twinbill

By Steve Riley

By the half-hearted enthusiasm shown by fans and players at Iowa's baseball sweep of William Penn, 8-0 and 6-0, Monday afternoon, it could have been mistaken for a debate. In fact, if it were a debate, the Statesmen might have beaten the Hawkeyes. "At our school, we emphasize debating skills," said William Penn Coach Mike Laird. "We have some players back in Oskaloosa doing a lot of debating.

That probably explains why one Statesman - Brad Reno - was forced to play three different positions in the second game. He started at pitcher, was shelled for five runs in one and two-thirds innings, then migrated to first base before ending up as the designated hitter. "He's a good athlete; he also played quarterback for our football team," Laird said.

NOT ONLY WAS William Penn undermanned, it was also outmanned. Hawkeye freshman Mike Tschida, though behind the hitter much of the time, started the first game with five innings of shutout pitching.

Meanwhile, he was getting plenty of hitting support from his teammates and plenty of luck from William Penn errors. Third baseman Pete Seize had a hand in three of Iowa's runs with his four errors.

"Our third baseman was psychologically clear out of the ball game after the first error, and consequently it resulted in the Hawkeyes scoring a lot of runs," Laird said. Four of Iowa's eight runs were unearned.

The Hawks' hitting stars in the first game were speedster outfielders Craig Conti (three RBIs) and Tim Davis (two-for-two with two RBIs). In the second game, Lon Olejniczak, still limping from a two-year-old, football leg injury, threatened to notch the first Iowa no-hitter since 1979. It wasn't until the fourth inning until a Statesman rapped a hit.

"HE'S TOUGH, there's no doubt about it," Laird said about Olejniczak. Of 15 outs when "Oleo" was pitching, nine came on ground balls. "He's got a

Iowa stole five bases in the first three innings of the second game, but then quit running. "Our philosophy is not to embarrass anybody," Banks said. "We'll beat them, but we won't embarass them. We could have kept stealing bases, but it doesn't mean anything. Just stats." Freshman Tom Snowberger had two steals.

Banks was quite satified with the two wins, which pushed Iowa's record to 12-7-1. "We didn't play with much enthusiasm today, but we did everything we had to do to win; we made all the plays, and we had one error in two games ... We're doing something better every game.'

BANKS ADMITTED IT'S hard to get his players psychologically prepared for inferior teams like William Penn, which now sports a 2-5 record. "We haven't tried to pump the kids up. You've got to remember who we're playing. We haven't said anything about who we're playing.

"We just feel that we have enough talent to go out and beat these teams. We're not going to get them excited every day. I just don't think you can do that with kids. We'll get them cranked up for the games that mean something.'

Laird's team left Iowa City like it expected to - with two losses. "We would have to have been right on top of our game to win the ball games or even be very close," he said.

Parrish defends 'soft' schedule

The Iowa softball team, which hasn't played a game since its 2-1 win over Northern Iowa last Tuesday, today plays host to St. Ambrose College at 3

Until the new Iowa softball facilities are finished on the west campus, the ome games will be played at West Branch High School field. If the diamond is too wet to play at West Branch, the game will be moved to the Recreation Field.

The Hawkeyes are 6-3 overall and 0-0 in the Big Ten after being rained out at Ohio State last weekend.

According to Iowa Coach Ginny Parrish, the Hawks play Division II and III teams, such as St. Ambrose, in order to get in playing time for the Big Ten conference games.

"IT (PLAYING Division II teams) has been done in the past and they are willing to come to us." Parrish said. "We have to get games in so we get these local teams who are willing to last weekend, Parrish thinks her team may have some troubles starting. The Hawkeyes, who have been practicing indoors, finally got a chance to go outside Monday.

Because Iowa's double-headers against the Buckeyes were canceled

"It is difficult to keep them going," she said, "It is like starting spring break all over again and it is a new experience playing outside again.

"I am very happy," Ballesteros said as he was helped into the traditional green coat by Hord Hardin, chairman of the Masters. "I always enjoy playing here at the Masters and I enjoyed it this time too."

Ben Crenshaw, who had a 68, and Tom Kite, with a 69, tied for second at 284.

This left Watson tied for fourth place at 285 with Ray Floyd, who bogeyed the final hole, and another stroke farther back were defending champion Craig Stadler, who faded to a 76, and Hale Irwin with a 69

"The 14th sealed my coffin," Watson said. "I'm disappoined. As I said earlier in the week. I had to play my best to win and I didn't play my best.'

Floyd and Stadler had started the day as co-leaders, one shot in front of Ballesteros, but neither could make any kind of challenge. Floyd had only one birdie on the day, and that came on the 17th hole.

Late start, but winning results for volleyball club

By Jill Hokinson Staff Writer

The Iowa volleyball club, which started out on the wrong foot by forfeiting its first game to Western Illinois, captured fourth place out of 16 teams at the regional tournament held in Cedar Falls last Sunday.

Because of bad weather, the volleyball club did not arrive on time for its first match.

'That hurt us because Western Illinois was the weakest team at the tournament and they would have been an easy win for us," Coach Liz Jones said.

losing, 15-13 and 15-8. Graceland went on to win the tournament and Des Moines Volleyball Club took second.

'We have improved 100 percent over last year," Jones said.

Tim Hodge did an "outstanding" job for the Hawkeyes on both offense and defense, according to Jones.

"I have never seen a player fly around the court as much as he was,' Jones added Greg Carmichael also did an ex-

THE IOWA LACROSSE club won three games last weekend by defeating Knox College, 17-8, Iowa State, 15-6, and Lincoln Park, 9-0.

Bill Monat, Tom Semler and Rick Schreuder led Iowa by scoring seven goals each throughout the weekend.

"Our goalie, Tom Locascio did a great job all weekend," team member Chuck Spielman said.

The younger players also saw a lot of playing time over the weekend. "They got to play a lot and will help us out in the next couple of weeks when we need a lot of depth," Spielman said.

Rozelle to move quickly on Schlichter's football future

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) - National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is expected to decide the future of Baltimore Colts guarterback Art Schlichter - an admitted gambler - within two weeks, it was reported Monday.

The NFL started investigating Schlichter after discovering the former Ohio State quarterback had run run nearly $400,000 in gambling debts to Baltimore area bookies earlier this year.

"I know the NFL's investigation unit has been on it since last Thursday," a source told the Columbus Dispatch. "I understand the investigators have been in Maryland talking to the district attorney's office and looking into the betting operation that Schlichter allegedly did business with.

"BECAUSE OF THE upcoming draft it behooves the NFL to move with dispatch to investigate and clarify Schlichter's status," the source said.

One of the reasons the NFL wants to move quickly is the fact that the Colts, since they finished with the worst won-loss record in the league, have the first choice when the draft is held April 26.

It has been reported the Colts would draft quarter-

OTH AS PART of the ongoing Iowa Shakespeare Festival and as a prelude to May 7 and 8 performances by the Dance Theatre of Harlem, Hancher Auditorium will present the feature-length film A Midsummer Night's Dream at 8 tonight and Wednesday night. Choreographed by George Balanchine in 1962 for the New York City Ballet, the work's 1966 film version features former NYCB principal and current DTH director Arthur Mitchell in the delectably mischievous role of Puck.

Fans of the NYCB will also thrill to see youthful versions of old favorites like Edward Villella (Oberon), Patricia McBride (Hermia), and Allegra Kent partnered by Jacques d'Amboise in the Act II pas de deux. Titania is danced by a young and precocious Suzanne Farrell, probably Balanchine's greatest source of inspiration.

Farrell's body was also a symbol of the lean, adolescent, racehorse look accepted as standard physique for classical ballet dancers today. Twenty years ago, however, taste was still in transition at the NYCB. and the film is lasting evidence of old and new guard alike. In the wake of such waifs as McBride, Kent and Mimi Paul (Helena), the giant Gloria Govrin (Hippolyta) thunders across the enchanted screen, driving her dogs like cattle to the stockyards, more Amazonian than her maker may ever have imagined her.

THE FILM OF A Midsummer Night's Dream, like the ballet, tries to accomplish so much of the play and more that it has a slightly crazy feel to it, appropriate to the pace and liberties of the comedy, but not always successful in dance terms. Despite the dominant attraction of cast and David Hays' splendid decor. Balanchine's choreography asks to be read on its own, aside from production values. Dan Eriksen's film is a fairly faithful document of the two-act staging of Shakespeare's scenario, so that our first interest is the relationship between play and ballet, rather than ballet and film.

While Balanchine compresses all of the dramatic action into the first act, condensation there allows him to indulge in two major areas of expansion. The first, musical augmentation, is by far the more agreeable. To Mendelssohn's incidental compositions for the play are added the Symphony No. 9 for Strings and a slew of overtures, including "Son and Stranger," "Athalie" and the "Fair Melusine."

The second elaboration, matrimonial metaphor from the play extended into dance reflection upon it, is quite another matter. To the forest locale of the first act, Balanchine adds an entire second act at Theseus' court, in which the mortals observe the court dance pros (Kent and d'Amboise) symbolize conjugal ideals with a long pas de deux, before joining in themselves.

INSTEAD OF THE "rude mechanicals" integration into court with their most particular play, Balanchine's second act can-cels out Shakespeare's logic of working through these compelling conflicts - no dance of the rustics here!

This does have its advantages. Since it will put your children to sleep immediately, it will entitle you to let them stay up to see the enchanting first act. More seriously, the ballet's relocation and aggrandizement of the play's first lines stress the inherent capacity of classical dancing to mediate harmonious

The most striking evidence of the distance Balanchine keeps between danceaccomplishing and relationship-examining is in the use he makes of Titania. Although frequent partners elsewhere, Farrell and Villella never dance together here. Titania's big pas de deux are with the Eeyore-ish Bottom and a titleless escort (Conrad Ludlow) who never shows up again in the ballet. Woman is celebrated, to be sure, while structurally her partners - an ass, a stranger and the king of the elves become almost negligible.

GIVEN SUCH SERENE idealism at the quick of his dance idiom, Balanchine's choreography fares less than consummately with cinema. Film tricks are minimal, but somehow Puck's treks through the forest and Oberon's apprehension of his antics need to be fully developed in space, rather than "keyed" in cameo.

Film magic is not always a better substitute for stage magic. By and large, though, the film tries to keep this tendency within bounds, capitalizing instead on keep ing the spectator voyeuristically peeping through the bushes. (Here is immediacy!) Interestingly, it is the abstract credits sequence and these views from the underbrush of Act I which best breathe the wit, verve and fantasy of the Dream.

> "KEEP IT CONFIDENTIAL" is the current hit cut from Nona, and it's no wonder. Kenni Hairston's cacophonic keyboards open up what seems like a ballad. Then Nile (Chic) Rodgers' guitar slices as the song takes off and Hendryx destroys cloudy reputations for what's in front of her. "Design For Living" boasts an all-female chorus and trades in all the stresses of life for a cherished moment of weakness. This is a splendid vaporish and erotic melody bubbling up from a pool of talent and sincere emotion; it's a great cut. "Transformation" breaks down more barriers, some which we set up as a culture and others that nature sets up as unbeatable. To Hendryx, these barriers are givens, and all we can do is tease them and deal with them in a devil-may-care, cynical mode. Kashif again looms through the wordplay with a bright reverberating keyboard lick as Hendryx sings:"Rust to dust, us to them, change your mind, change your skin/Life to death, weak to strength, cash a check, change your sex.'

HENDRYX HAS SPENT most of her session time during the last few years working with the jazz-funk unit Material, whose smart personnel has created a number of sharp peaks with their music - but just as many mediocre filler tunes. Talent is not their deficiency: bassist Bill Laswell, synthesizer player Michael Beinhorn, soundman (a crucial role to Material) Martin Bisi and vocalist Hendryx are all quite capable, yet the last Material album, One Down, did not sound as solid as it should have.

On Nona, Material again works and writes with Hendryx, and this time they have created a prize venture worthy of praise. The album is unclassifiable, reeling around the fringes of dance. blues, rock, quasi-country and even reggae. Nona is without gaps, and its intermixture of music can be judged solely on its own eclectic ground.

"B-Boys" opens up with Kashif's strutting bass synthesizer and follows Hendryx as she calls the

THE FINAL THREE cuts continue to hold up Hendryx's tremendous faith in existence and simple keys to enigmas we often consider permanent. "Run For Cover" speaks up for love as a shield; "Steady Action" promotes activism and knocks apathy; "Dummy Up" puts out the delusory light of clubland: "Their eyes are filled with promise/The air they breathe is thin/A soft wind blows their cover/And one trades the other in."

Nona abolishes borders and transcends standards. It's one of the few LP's that's smart on the lyric sheet and on the dance floor.

Asimov science fiction works still popular; trilogy reissued

Foundation; Foundation and Empire; Second Foundation by Isaac Asimov. Ballantine Books, 1983

OW MANY BOOKS has Isaac Asimov produced? I'm not exactly sure, but in early 1979, the count reached 200 - yes, that's two hundred - with the appearance of Opus 200, an autobiography, and there have been at least a handful more since.

Although Asimov is best known for writing science fact and science fiction, he's also written mysteries, literary criticism, history, philosophy, limericks (some dirty) and has edited collections of science fiction. To say he is prolific is an understatement. Among the many science fiction novels written by Asimov, perhaps the best-known and best-liked are the three that together make up the Foundation Trilogy - Foundation (1951), Foundation and Empire (1952) and Second Foundation (1953) which won the Hugo Award for best science fiction series ever and has just been reissued in a uniform paperback edition.

IT IS CALLED a trilogy, but in fact the Foundation books are a series, something the publication of Foundation's Edge in 1982 made clear and which excited Asimov fans to no end.

Of the nine stories that Asimov put together to form the Foundation series, eight originally ap-peared in Astounding Science Fiction magazine between May 1942 and January 1950.

Books

The series covers roughly 400 years in the history of the Galactic Empire, which, we learn in Foundation, is decaying and is soon to experience an interregnum of 30,000 years of chaos - unless, that is, the plan of psycho-historian Hari Seldon is followed, in which case the interregnum will be only 1000 years.

Seldon defines psycho-history as a quantitative science that " ... deals with the reactions of human conglomerates to fixed social and economic stimuli." Its two basic requirements are that "the human conglomerate being dealt with is sufficiently large for valid statistical treatment" and that "the human conglomerate be unaware of psycho-historic analysis in order that its reactions be truly random."

WHAT ALL THIS means is that Seldon has predicted the future, that the action of the first half of the Foundation Series is predestined, which tends to reduce suspense and to make characters shadowboxers.

But then the Mule comes along. He is a mutant with the special gift of being able to change people's emotions, and he may be able to change the seemingly inexorable march of that thing called history. You have to read the books to find out what happens.

Although the Foundation series is choppy and its component stories of varying quality, it is a landmark trilogy in science fiction. As such, it is destined to find many new readers.

Robert Hays helps Margot Kidder, who is drugged on truth serum, back to her hotel where they are unexpectedly confron-

Harmless 'Trenchcoat' lacks reality found in shocking 'War Game' film

OMETIMES THE BEST things in life are free. You could spend $3 to see Spring Break (underwear-eaters delight), The Toy (no warranty), or High Road to China (TV movie) - films that have already overstayed their welcome. (Hell, the real spring break was over two weeks ago, and we have to hear about it for another month while we're walking in snow.)

Add a friend at $3, refreshments at over $2 and aspirin after the movie (10 cents), and you'll be writing a "Dear Mom" letter just to get your U-bill paid.

The latest entry into this canon of truly great films comes from Buena Vista Distribution (translated: Walt Disney) in the clothing. It, too, costs $3, since films aren't prorated for quality. If you're willing to dish out $3 to see Margot Kidder stumble around Malta, falling, more often than not, into Robert Hays, than Trenchcoat provides a harmless evening of sugarcoated zeros - sweet nothings. If The War Game were quality prorated, this fifty-minute black-and-white BBC production would cost at least $3. But instead it's being shown for free by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament Wednesday night at the Public Library.

UNLIKE THE FOUR previously mentioned films. The War Game will stick in your mind long after you've left the theater. Made in 1965, Peter Watkins' creation, filmed in a TV-documentary style, was originally banned from the air as "too horrifying" by the BBC; to this date, BBC has not shown it.

The film takes a hypothetical situation, the storming of West Berlin by Russian troops as a retaliation to U.S. maneuvers in Vietnam, and elaborates on the consences of the anticipated military reaction. According to available documents, an attack of this kind by the U.S.S.R. would lead to "thermonuclear retaliation." And just what that simple expression "thermonuclear retaliation" means constitutes the rest of the film. It seems obvious why a governmentsupported institution like the BBC would be afraid of showing this film. It calls into question the very raison d'etre of civil defense, and nuclear defense, for that matter. The problems encountered in just a simple evacuation cause enough headaches and general disruption of society, that when a bomb finally hits a nearby airfield, social order crumbles. The entire holocaust is filmed in TV-news style, highlighted by the voices of two prominent British newscasters of the time.

WHAT MAKES THIS film more shocking and immediate than others of its kind (despite its age) is the realistic portrayal, gruesome as it may be, and the personalization of this hypothetical situation. Scenes of carnage and insanity are punctuated by current authorities' calm statements, which end up looking absurd in the real situation. Actual on-the-street interviews reveal the limits of our knowledge about nuclear war and its consequences.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" WITH ARTHUR MITCHELL

Mitchell is founder and artistic director of the Dance Theatre of Harlem. He broke the race barrier in classical ballet, building an illustrious career with the New York City Ballet. His artistry is documented in this famous Balanchine ballet as Mitchell portrays the mischievous Puck. Other featured dancers include Suzanne Farrell, Edward Villella, Mimi Paul, Nicholas Magallanes, Patricia McBride, about nuclear terrorists, The War Game doesn't preach but argues for a more open debate about the arms issue. Only in this way can knowledge be provided to the general population about the devastating effects of nuclear war, and just how possible that war is today. Ignorance isn't bliss when you have third-degree burns and a day to live from the radiation of a nuclear bomb.

Entertainment today

Music

In conjunction with the first Iowa Shakespeare Festival, the UI Opera Theater, under the direction of Beaumont Glass, will present an evening of scenes from opera based on Shakespeare at 8 tonight in the Opera Rehearsal Room of the UI Music Building. The program will include excerpts from Macbeth, Othello and Romeo and Juliet. The concert is free and open to the public.

Reading

Writers' Workshop graduate Bob Shacochis returns home for a reading at 8:30 tonight in English Philosophy Building 304. Shacochis has been published in magazines including Playboy, Esquire and Paris Review; he won the 1982 Playboy' New Fiction Award. The reading is free and open to the public.

The film version of George Balanchine's ballet adaptation of A Midsummer Night's Dream comes to Hancher at 8 tonight. Featuring the New York City Ballet and principal dancers Suzanne Farrell, Edward Villela and Arthur Mitchell, Midsummer, the first feature-length ballet to be filmed in the United States, was supervised by Balanchine himself.

The dancing is supposed to be incredible, and while ballet never works on TV, it does on the big screen. Felix Mendelssohn's score is performed by the New York City Ballet Orchestra. Tickets are available at the Hancher box office.

At the Bijou

Luchino Visconti's Sandra recasts the Oresteia in contemporary terms, with the unfaithful Clytemnestra as a rampaging fascist and the hapless Agamemnon as a credulous democrat. But the story focuses more on Elektra (Claudia Cardinale), whose melodramatic passion transcends the psychopolitical conceits of the rest of the concept. 7 p.m.

• Cry of the City presents director Robert Siodmak's noted gritty, claustrophobic film-noir style. The story concerns two brothers from New York

(film-noir veterans Richard Conte and Victor Mature) who grow up on opposite sides of the law; now the good brother (Mature) has to track down the bad one (Conte). Shelley Winters, in her blonde bombshell phase, and Debra Paget co-star. 9 p.m.

Television

On "St. Elsewhere" tonight: The malpractice charge causes Chandler (Denzel Washington) to get goofy; Morrison's (David Morse) concern over his disintegrating life causes White (Terence Knox) to get violent; Dr. Anya's sweetness causes Craig (William Daniels) to consider violating the commandment concerning adultery. 9 p.m., KWWL-7.

• IPT's monster-chiller-horror feature tonight is a little classic called The Comedy of Terrors. Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre, Vincent Price and Basil Rathbone get together in a funeral home to figure out a new way to dig up some business - and in the process have a great time making fun of other monster-chiller-horror features. Directed by Jacques Tourneur (Cat People). 10:30 p.m., IPT-12.
