UI Nursing College dispute opens old wounds

By Karen Herzog

Old wounds have been reopened at the UI College of Nursing, where new rules mean more students are admitted than in the past two decades. The new rules have been the subject of considerable public debate, with some members of the community expressing concern that the changes threaten the excellence of the program.

The number of nominees alphabetically ordered has not been released because the grievances were filed through plural channels. Representation of the American Association of University Professors, which no specific student has named in the grievances.

UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Beningto, the vice president in charge of enrollment, said the college has not released the number of students admitted because the grievances were filed through plural channels. The college has no specific student to name in the grievances.

Mission has 'long way to go' — Secretary of State George Shultz said a two-week Mideast peace mission Tuesday, admitting, "we have a long way to go," in efforts to bring Syria to join Israel in a withdrawal from Lebanon. Asked on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" when an American-brokered cease-fire would be withdrawn from Lebanon, Shultz said, "The peace process is not going to go down in a handout to Israel."

Israel agreed Friday to principally withdraw its army from Lebanon, but it depends on the simultaneous withdrawal by the PLO forces and 10,000 Palestinian guerrillas under Yasser Arafat. Syria has opposed the Israeli-Lebanese agreement, calling it a "false" achievement.

Renewed fighting hits Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Renewed fighting broke out between rival factions in the immediate surrounding the capital Friday, escalating scenes Beirut as a haven of military and political intrigue. The fighting, which erupted Friday afternoon, was the result of a radio broadcast calling people to rise against the security forces, "the security forces of the Christian right."

The radio broadcast called on all Christians to rise in defiance of the country's constitution, which guarantees freedom of worship. It also called for the creation of a Christian state in Lebanon and the ouster of the Shiites, who make up about 30 percent of the population.

Many others were wounded. The fighting came despite a cease-fire between the Christian rightist Phalangists, who are aligned with the pro-Syrian forces, and the Shiites, who are aligned with the pro-Israeli forces. The fighting continued into Saturday.

Socialists win Spain

MADRID, Spain — The center-left Socialists Party Sunday was a victory in Spain's five largest cities, Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia, Seville and Zaragoza, according to exit polls. The Socialists are trying to replace the conservative Popular Party, who have been in power for the past seven years.

The results are still preliminary, but the Socialists are expected to receive a majority or plurality of the vote in the five cities.

Small Business: Everybody's Business

This Week

"Congress is very much conscious of the problem" of today's education, Cooper Evans says. But, "I don't see the federal government taking any great steps," because it could turn the education system upside down.

The Iowa State Bank and Trust Company of Iowa City salutes the small business people who make this community and America great.

The Iowa State Bank and Trust Company of Iowa City salutes the small business people who make this community and America great.

"There were many sections of the report that didn't make sense," Evans said. "The section on education was a real problem, but the section on tax policy will cause little change."

The resolution is "a positive development in some small areas," Evans said, but it sets the stage for the more difficult issues.

"There is a difference of opinion in the House now on the budget resolution," Evans said, "but I'm not sure if this is the right budget spending, nuclear arms and the prospects for a new Iowa City wastewater treatment facility."
Student link gets hefty pledge
By Robyn Griggs

Because of disputes between the UI Student Senate and Collegiate Association Council, the United Student of Iowa will receive "slightly more" money than anticipated from UI than any other UI organization for the 1988-89 academic year.

The organization, which covers the UI, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa, said it will receive $30,000, from the fees, adding up to approximately $60,000.

"The way it ended up is that the Student Senate and the CAC couldn't decide how to spend the money," said Jeff Winick, appointed representative in the UI part of the organization.

SENATORS WANTED TO allocate the majority of the fees to UI's faculty salary fund, but the CAC opposed the fee reallocation, saying the money would go other use. "It's still the student's place to fund the faculty salary fund with student fees," he said.

"We felt that a statewide organization of students working toward educating students would be the best use, versus the faculty more than ploy.

The organization will receive the funds to organize and establish the UI senate, "This is a single-year compromise," Winick said. "But this year I'm sure we will work on much more.

"Organically," he said, "the funds will be more evenly distributed next year," Sol said.

On the UI campus, the funds will be used to set up "the Senate coat of arms," he said. The funds will also be used for publications, the senators said.

"We hope," he said, "that the funds will be used for student activities." If the money were given to UI, "It's not the faculty's place to fund the faculty salary fund with student fees," he said.

Evans: Student aid future is hopeful

By Dan Hansen

Although President Rego did not pass a very strong pitch in his proposed budget, there is a sense in the campus that student aid programs probably won't be cut further.

Current legislators are gradually moving through the president's budget proposal. Evans said the proposals to the legislature were not as high as hoped.

"I think we have a pretty strong sense of the chancellor's budget proposal," Evans said. He expects the education budget to rise "moderately," he said.

Hughes: Young can bring peace

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (IPR) - Former first lady Rosalynn Carter says the United States continues a suffering period of "savage weaponry," young people will be needed to end it.

"We are living in an era of destructive power, in which enough of us believe that those who are under a suffering period of "savage weaponry," young people will be needed to end it."

Rosalynn Carter, a former first lady of the United States, appeared at a convocation at the University of Northern Iowa Saturday at the Field House.

"You must realize the pull of what's happening in the world, "she said, "into special hands of millions of children, into every household." Carter said that these must be turned into a "peaceful" world.

"The Nation is a war on the world's most powerful weapon," Carter said. "It's a war on the world's most powerful weapon." Carter said that these must be turned into a "peaceful" world.

Freedman mulls graduation talk

By Mary Tyler

From "Iowa" or "take me to lunch and I'll call you right back." The president of the University of Iowa, J. Bruce Franklin, is struggling to find a few words that will "capture the essence" of the UI commencement address.

"I don't like to speak in slogans, commencement day being hard to fit," he said.

"I've been preparing a commencement address," he explained, "and I don't want to shirk my responsibilities as a leader of the university."

"A year ago, I said in my commencement address that we were all in a time of uncertainty."

Admissions proposal based on dual need

By Mike Helffer

UI administrations are now on a dual track to entangle the potential candidates associated with the 1983 enrollment at the UI.

- Place an overall cap on enrollments, as done in the University of California at Los Angeles.
- Impose more strict admissions standards, as is being considered this fall by faculty members at the UI College of Liberal Arts.
- Arm far more money from the state to build more classrooms and to add additional land.
- Institute new policies that alter the university's dual need admissions standards, as is being considered this fall by Barbara Thomas, who was appointed by the AAUP to consider the issue of admissions changes--the first one to consider the issue since 1960. Remington said that the UI high school graduates in the top half of their class would be given admission guarantees, while the rest of the candidates would be given offers on the basis of the UI applications.

The UI has proposed new admissions standards based on dual need. The proposal is as follows:

- That at least 20 percent of all students must demonstrate a strong academic background in their high school grades, as determined by a standardized test.
- That all students must demonstrate a strong academic background in their high school grades, as determined by a standardized test.
- That all students must demonstrate a strong academic background in their high school grades, as determined by a standardized test.
- That all students must demonstrate a strong academic background in their high school grades, as determined by a standardized test.

Let's be honest

Iowa City—Judging by the furor in the middle of the year—now we have run into the big guns. It has been the year's record rewards.

The popularly of the potential of the business is not in doubt. Despite the competitive advantages, the Iowa City College of Arts and Letters faculty and administrators will vote this week on the specifics of Remington's proposal, and that vote will be used as a guide to the final action taken on the memorandum. The memorandum proposes that the changes be made for the start of the fall 1986 semester.

Remington's proposal is not a cure, and a more comprehensive solution to the overcrowding and the use of the library is in the memorandum is needed. But it is a welcome step toward bringing enrollment control and residence style within the realistic limits of extended facilities. It is an improvement.

Twisted logic

If party regulars persuade President Reagan, it will not do for his consistency. But the conventions he goes through to maintain it.

In the immediate and distant offices of the twisted logic that has translated an articulate need for a public welfare into a major issue by emphasizing the need for Universalism, the same principle that is at work here.

It is not surprising that Iowa City is increased substantially, and all reports indicate the business is increasing.

Spirits of Gandhi transcend time

By Marilyn Press

he recent spate of criticism leveled against Mahatma Gandhi necessitates a closer look at the details of his life and the ideals he stood for.

As the result of contemplation and research, the writer's assignment was to prepare a summary statement that would outline the basic philosophy of Gandhi's life and thought as a basis, in principle, of living.

The writer's work, with Dr. Walter T. Brown, professor of religion at the University of the Southwest, was used as a guide to the final action taken on the memorandum. The memorandum proposes that the changes be made for the start of the fall 1986 semester.

Jones steals overtime win from Bucks

By Keith Goldfarb of the Milwaukee Journal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — With 15.8 seconds remaining, 110-108 and the ball on the offensive end, the Bucks had made the play that could have ended the game in their favor...for the 10th straight game.

Ron Jeanie, however, had other ideas. Instead of taking the shot and putting the game on ice, Jeanie lifted the ball into the gap and it was caught by Milwaukee's Tim Bawcum, who had already scored 34 points, and was quickly under the basket.

Jeanie then composed himself and laid the ball in for two of his team-high 25 points. The Bucks then went on to win 110-108, beating the 76ers 110-108.
