City balks at giving developer approval

By Mark Leonard

The Iowa City Council Tuesday night rejected an appeal from the Federal Aviation Administration.

The council has since approving a new development project before it discovered the development might be "in close contact" of one of the Iowa City Airport runways. After almost nine hours of debate, the council decided to approve the appeal.

The airport is located in the southeast part of the city and is considered to be a "close contact" of the airport.

The FAA showed its computer files, which include the flight plans of the airport, that the airport is located in the southeast part of the city and is considered to be a "close contact" of the airport.

Iowa sound out car plate slogans

By Tom Buckingham

An open meeting on results of the first slogan it proposed for Iowa's license plates will be held July 25 at 7 p.m. in the Iowa Transportation Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Buckingham, of the city of Iowa, have been working on the slogan for about three months. They believe it will be successful and hope to see it on the plates soon.

The slogan will be "A Place to Grow," as suggested by no letter writers.

The slogan was rejected by the Department of Transportation, which has a policy of approving only two slogans per year. The slogan will be reviewed again next year.

The slogan is expected to bring in $250,000 per year, according to transportation department officials.

The slogan was chosen from a pool of 200 suggestions submitted by the public.

The slogan is expected to be on the plates by the end of the year.

LOWANS out for student fees

Students may have to pay more for their education next year.

The Iowa Board of Regents, which sets tuition rates for the state's universities, has recommended a 9 percent increase in tuition for the 1984-85 academic year.

The increase is expected to generate $5.4 million in additional revenue.

The increase is the first tuition increase in five years.

The increase will affect all in-state and out-of-state students.

The increase is expected to be reflected in the 1984-85 fiscal year.

The increase is expected to be voted on by the Board of Regents at its meeting in June.

Business college struggles to accommodate non-majors

By Mary Tabor

The scene is strangely like a summer beach, so crowded that many tourists must push adroit to find spaces to spread their towels. But there are no strangers to this place, more than likely students of UI. The atmosphere is ideal for UI students who, though not majoring in business, are also keen to further their education in business.

During early registration, more than 300 non-majors invaded the mall to discover whether they could register for business courses for the summer and fall. In time, UI officials said, the university will open a class on business courses.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Democrats and Republicans on a House Interior subcommittee opposed Thursday by Interior Secretary James Watt's coal leasing policies, calling them "inhospitable and irrelevant in the 1980s." Watt's policies have been under fire after recent revelations that the Interior Department was overseeing a moratorium on dropping the coal leases on government land.

"We are responding with clear-cut actions that will put the highest priority on prudent and con- servative planning - and will consider the interests of other federal agencies and the Department of Energy," said Interior Secretary James Watt.

A coalition of industry and environmental groups, including the Western Environmental Law Center, announced plans to block Watt's coal leasing policies.

THE RESPONSE came amid growing criticism in Congress, where several bills are pending to liberalize the program, including one to declare it unconstitutional. Watt's policies have been under fire after recent revelations that the Interior Department was overseeing a moratorium on dropping the coal leases on government land.

Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., characterized a spreading "projected savings" of $18 billion as "incredible." The Reagan administration, however, said the liberalized rules were being publicly announced that would be "very modest and insignificant" to produce its report in less time, the administration will stop leases on government land in New Mexico.

"We need to go much further," said Heckler. "We have a responsibility to the American people, to the welfare of the nation, to the welfare of the United States," Heckler said. "If we don't go further, we're not doing our job." Watt's policies have been under fire after recent revelations that the Interior Department was overseeing a moratorium on dropping the coal leases on government land.

The administration's announcement comes only two weeks after widely publicized reports that benefits are being stopped for Roy Benavidez, a Vietnam War veteran disabled by a bullet that struck him in the face.

The Department of Health and Human Services cited the Vietnam soldier for refusing to sign the necessary forms to receive his benefits.

"We are responding with clear-cut actions that will put the highest priority on prudent and con- servative planning - and will consider the interests of other federal agencies and the Department of Energy," said Interior Secretary James Watt.

Ignorance not blissful

The standard argument used by those opposed to sex education is that it will lead to precocious sexual activity and its accompanying problems. They argue that sex education would encourage promiscuity and teach adolescents about the responsibilities of parenthood before they were able to carry them out.

But a recently completed four-year study conducted by researchers at the University of Wisconsin has revealed that the standard argument is unfounded. The study, which involved a random sample of 1,000 adolescents, showed that those who received sex education were no more likely to engage in sexual activity than those who did not.

The researchers found that adolescents who received sex education were just as likely to practice contraception as those who did not. In fact, they were slightly more likely to use condoms, which is one of the most effective methods of contraception.

The researchers also found that sex education did not increase the likelihood of adolescents engaging in other risky behaviors, such as substance use or delinquency.

In conclusion, the study shows that sex education is not only beneficial but also safe. The standard argument against sex education is unfounded and should be discarded.

NBA coaching door continues revolving

Jones stays "home" with Celtics job

BOSTON (UPI) - C. "Red" Auerbach says he is the best defensive guard in the NBA, during the playoffs, said he would have picked at least two weeks ago.

The Boston Celtics were named Washington Bullets for the second time this week when center Bill Russell, in his fifth season with the Bullets, said he had decided not to leave Boston.

"I'm very happy to be here," Jones told a reporter. "I've been here since 1972 and I like being part of the Boston Garden office of General Management. That's where I'd like to be for a long time."

"I'm not sure how long it takes to get what I want here, but I've been working hard for it," he said.

The Celtics are scheduled to play the New York Knicks in Game 3 of the Eastern Conference finals tonight at Boston Garden.

Collegiate grid rights battle still brewing

The College Football Association, the most prominent of the amateur sports organizations, has filed a lawsuit in federal court against the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, Inc., seeking to block the association from organizing college sports.

The suit was filed in federal court in Indianapolis.

"We recognize that the NCAA has the right to regulate its own sports programs," said Steve Batterson, associate director of the association.

"We believe that the NCAA's efforts to regulate college sports are designed to further its own objectives, not the best interests of the athletes or the schools," he added.

The suit seeks a temporary restraining order to prevent the NCAA from implementing its proposed regulations.

Spurs allow Nets to talk with Albeck

NEW YORK (UPI) - The San Antonio Spurs agreed Tuesday to allow the New York Knicks to negotiate with forward Albeck on a player contract.

The Knicks had tried to trade for Albeck, who has been with the Spurs for the last ten years, but were turned down.

"This is a situation that's very difficult," Albeck said.

The Spurs had hoped to keep Albeck in their lineup for at least another season.

Garvey chooses to remain with union

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ed Garvey and the United Steelworkers union have reached an agreement on a new four-year contract.

Garvey, executive director of the union, said the agreement was reached after several months of negotiations.

"This agreement is a significant step forward for both the union and the steel industry," Garvey said.

"The agreement includes a number of important gains for the union, including increased benefits and improved working conditions.

"We are pleased to have reached this agreement," Garvey added.

Cubs race to sixth-straight win

CHICAGO (UPI) - Travis Wittig and a good pitching performance helped the Chicago Cubs to their sixth consecutive victory, defeating the New York Mets 5-1 Wednesday at Wrigley Field.

The Cubs extended their longest winning streak of the season to nine games Tuesday with a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"It's a great feeling," said Cubs manager Jim Riggleman. "We've been working hard for this all season long.

Wittig allowed one hit and a run in five innings before leaving with a strained left calf muscle.

"I'm a little bit today," said Wittig. "I'm feeling a bit better, but I've got a lot of work to do before I can go out and it's the second game, it's the second game.

In good taste

How many times have we wandered through the aisles of the grocery store looking for diet soft drinks? And how many times have we asked the worker behind the counter, "What do you like, Diet Coke or Diet 7-Up?"

"I'd like a diet soft drink, please," we reply. And we are given a choice: Diet Coke, Diet 7-Up, or maybe even something else. But what do these choices mean? Are they really different?

In the case of the soda aisle, the answer is yes, they are different. But in the case of Diet Coke and Diet 7-Up, the answer is no, they are not different.

Diet Coke is sweetened with aspartame, a artificial sweetener that is about 150 times sweeter than sugar. Diet 7-Up, on the other hand, is sweetened with saccharin, an artificial sweetener that is about 200 times sweeter than sugar.

So, if you are looking for a diet soft drink, you might want to think twice about which one you choose. Because, at the end of the day, you might be getting something that is not really diet at all.

THE TWO WORLDS were on the open market last week in a test that showed a 20 percent failure rate. The film is a sequel to the 1981 hit, "The Two Worlds." The first hour of "The Two Worlds" shows the promise that few films can deliver - the movie and its hero, David, take a major detour with the introduction of a character named Tony.
