Police break up Czech rally
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Amid a peace conference backed by Moscow, club-wielding riot police Wednesday broke up the first anti-government demonstration in Czechoslovakia since the 1968 Soviet invasion.

About 300 young people broke off from the government-sponsored rally and changed the approved peace slogans to chants demanding freedom.

Israeli doctor strike worse

JERUSALEM — A hunger strike by some 1,500 Israeli doctors closed down three major hospitals Wednesday, but in Parliament the government easily defeated a no-confidence motion over the worsening crisis.

The hunger strike, begun six days ago, is over doctors' demand for higher pay. Negotiations between the government and the doctors broke down Tuesday despite Prime Minister Menachem Begin's personal intervention in the strike.

Peru guerrillas execute 6

LIMA, Peru — Maoist guerrillas executed six people, including three government officials, in a bloody rejection of a call for dialogue issued this week by Peruvian Attorney General Miguel Cavero, police said Wednesday.

Guerrilla violence in Peru has claimed about 1,200 lives since rebels vowed three years ago to overthrow the civilian government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

Rita Lavelle to stand trial

WASHINGTON — Rita Lavelle, the sacked Environmental Protection Agency official who headed the toxic waste cleanup program, was ordered Wednesday to stand trial July 21 on a contempt of Congress charge.

Lavelle is the first agency official to face criminal prosecution as a result of the recent controversy that forced the departures of 21 political appointees from the agency.

Coal mine explosion kills 7

McCLURE, Va. — An explosion ripped through a coal shaft deep in the Appalachian Mountains killing seven miners and injuring three others. Officials said Wednesday the blast likely was caused by methane gas touched off by a spark.

The mine disaster was the second worldwide in less than 24 hours. An explosion ripped through a Hungarian coal mine Wednesday, killing 35 miners.

Shuttle may delay landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space agency officials said Wednesday Florida's erratic weather could interfere with the shuttle Challenger's planned homecoming at the Kennedy Space Center Friday.

Flight director Tommy Holloway said project officials were considering extending the flight, if necessary, to Saturday or diverting the landing to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Murderer sentenced to die

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — George Banks was sentenced Wednesday to die in the electric chair, a day after a jury convicted him in the deaths of 13 people, including five of his children and their four mothers, in a shooting spree last fall.

Banks at one point during the 12 days of trial testimony threatened suicide. The defense claimed during the trial Banks was innocent by reason of insanity.

East, northeast side building is forbidden

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Builders looking for construction opportunities on Iowa City's east and northeast sides will have to look elsewhere because a moratorium on building in those areas is now in effect.

Only developments the city has given permission to before Tuesday night can proceed in the area. Growth on the city's East Side has been slowly grinding to a halt because Iowa City's sewer system is now stretched to its limits, Councillor John Balmer said Wednesday.

"The east side of the city is rapidly becoming developed to its allowable limits because of the sewer system," he said.

Balmer said he is now worried builders will take their business into other areas of Johnson County.

"IT'S A DIFFICULT situation for us," Balmer said. "Obviously, you're talking about a big loss of potential tax revenues for the city. This is the sort of thing we have to discourage."

City Planner Karen Franklin said approximately 900 acres of land are affected by the moratorium. The area roughly extends from Prairie Du Chien Road to Scott Boulevard and from Interstate 80 to Highway 6, she said.

"A lot of that area, however, is already developed," Franklin said.

Developers will not be left with nowhere to build in the city because of the moratorium. Franklin said there are approximately 800 acres of land on the city's North and West sides that are available for development.

Councillor John McDonald said the moratorium might upset city plans to have compact and contiguous development throughout the city.

"I do think it might create a problem for us in the future," he said. "We might find ourselves somewhere down the road with a development here and a development there."

LES BATTERMAN, president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said it is time for the city to proceed with plans for the new sewer treatment plant.

"We want something done, but on the same token we want the right thing to be done," Batterman said. "I think now is the time to do it and do it correctly."

Councillor Larry Lynch said at Tuesday night's council meeting that a report from the city's Wastewater Facility Committee will be coming to the council for discussion in October. The report will contain cost estimates and plans for a new facility.

The committee met last week and recommended the council pursue building a new treatment plant in stages.

PHASE ONE OF the plan calls for an interceptor sewer and lift station to be built on the southeast side of the city. Balmer said proceeding with this step would relieve some of the pressure on the sewer system on the East Side and might open up the area once again for development.

He said it is "very conceivable" this step can be achieved in a year or two.

Lynch said plans for the new plant are now on track. "I think it's rather sad in a town like this with a shortage of housing that we have to restrict development, but hopefully we can start moving on this new plant soon."

Conflict arises over Home Town Dairies' permit

By Robert Ryser
Staff writer

Claiming that the chairman of the Iowa City Board of Adjustment has a potential conflict of interest, the attorney for two men appealing a building permit awarded to Home Town Dairies asked Scott Barker Wednesday to "voluntarily decline" voting on the appeal.

Barker had told the board he should be able to vote on the appeal against the building permit filed by Andrew Isserman and Anthony Frey. The board, however, chose to meet at an unspecified time without Barker, and vote on the matter.

Barker's father, Charles, owns approximately 10 acres of land near Home Town Dairies. Attorney Roger Colton argued that if Barker and the board were to rule against the appeal, it would monetarily benefit Barker's father by increasing his property value.

BARKER DENIED any financial connections with his father, saying "I spliced all financial ties with my parents two years ago."

Barker said he understood there is a potential conflict of interest from a legal angle, adding, though, that any Iowa City landowner would have a problem.

Isserman, though, called attention to the fact that Barker had spent his childhood "with Home Town Dairies in the background," and said he was surprised Barker refused to decline voting on the appeal.

"I really thought this (procedure) would go through," Isserman said. "I'm surprised it didn't."

Isserman and Frey didn't get to state their complaints to the board. The complaints originated when Home Town Dairies was awarded a building contract March 22.

"It's the negative impacts" that would be caused by building that prompted the complaint, Frey said. "(Home Town Dairies) really haven't done all they can to remedy the problems (caused by expansion). The solutions are costly — if they were free, there wouldn't be any problem."

"NOW THEY ARE trying to knock out the front yard law so they can build 5 feet from the street. It's nothing new; they've been trying to do that for 50 years," an area homeowner said.

Home Town Dairies sued Iowa City last year for $14 million, questioning the lawfulness of the city's noise ordinance. The suit also requested a mandatory injunction against the city over the "Large Scale Non-Residential Development ordinance standards. The company lost the suit.

More students using OPTIONS to repay their loans

By Elizabeth Turner
Special to The Daily Iowan

Many students graduating from the UI will soon be confronted by the inevitable and sometimes problem-causing repayment of their student loans.

If a graduate has more than one student loan, whether from different lending institutions or with different loan programs, he or she should be aware of a new loan program called "OPTIONS."

The Student Loan Marketing Association, known as "Sallie Mae," developed the OPTIONS program in an attempt to lower the rate of default on student loans.

The OPTIONS program, federally authorized in 1981, makes repayment easier by requiring lower monthly payments than the student loan borrower would have paid on her or his previous loan.

The monthly payments are lower because Sallie Mae offers the borrower an extended length of time to pay off the loan.

THE DISADVANTAGE OF paying a loan over an extended time period is that the total interest paid would be higher than under a shorter payment period.

But because many recently-graduated students cannot afford the high monthly payments required on their student loans, the OPTIONS program can make their repayments more affordable, said Nick Ryan, assistant director of Student Financial Aid.

Students graduating from the UI with either Guaranteed Student Loans or National Direct Student Loans are eligible for the program if they owe more than $7,500.

The borrower owing more than $5,000, but less than $7,500, is eligible for OPTIONS if the loans are from more than one lender. The loans must not be delinquent or in default.

Few graduates of the UI owing money on National Direct Student Loans applied for the program last year because OPTIONS was not at first widely known, Ryan said.

BUT THIS YEAR it has gained in popularity at UI. Student Loan Accounting Office records indicate that 25 to 35 people holding National Direct Student Loans with the UI have participated in OPTIONS.

Yet many students in the health professions receive federal Health Professions Loans that to date cannot be consolidated under the OPTIONS program.

"The OPTIONS program is brought to people's attention when they come into the Office of Financial Aid with a loan repayment problem," Ryan said.

Sallie Mae pays off the students' loans, then combines them into one debt. Seven percent fixed annual interest is charged on the new total, regardless of what the interest rate was on the student's original loan.

Students first applying for a Guaranteed Student Loan after December 1980 have a 9 percent interest rate on their loan. If they participate in the OPTIONS program, they will not only benefit from the lower monthly payments, but from the lower rate of interest charged, said Ryan.

In contrast, holders of NDSLs at 3 percent, 4 percent or 5 percent interest would see an increase in their interest rate under OPTIONS.

"Graduates holding NDSLs are reluctant to participate in the OPTIONS program except when they are going into a low-paying job, and need the convenience and the low first options," Ryan said.

Students taking low to moderately salaried positions upon graduation may choose the option of making graduated payments, Ryan said.

Under this plan, the borrower's payments start out low and increase gradually. This plan, called Option 2, is the most popular plan in the Sallie Mae program.

River buffer zone proposed by panel

By Amy Prange
Special to The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Riverfront Commission is taking steps to try to obtain the cooperation of about 70 landowners who live along the Iowa River in creating a buffer zone that would be free of signs and building development.

Landowners along a 13-mile stretch of the river from the Coralville Dam to 1 mile south of the city limits will be asked to sign an easement to "preserve natural habitats and scenery," according to a model easement provided by the commission.

On Feb. 1, the Iowa City Council passed a resolution permitting the commission to encourage property owners to participate in the program, said Iowa City Associate Planner Monica Moen.

THE COMMISSION began planning recently to use brochures, personal contacts with owners and other education measures, commission Chairwoman Diana Lewis said.

The chief goal of the easement program is to encourage private cooperation in conservation efforts, Moen said. "We want to get people more acquainted with the aesthetic values of the river," she said. The program will also protect and preserve the natural features of the river, maintaining water quality and reducing erosion, she said.

The model easement, which will be used as an informative device and can be modified, Lewis said, states that the owner will not place buildings, fences, billboards or any other structures in the area. The model also prohibits drilling, mining or changing land topography in any manner, the removal of plants or trees, or changing the natural habitat in any way except "for the routine maintenance of trees or plants and the removal of decayed or damaged vegetation, including weeds and noxious plants."

IT ALSO STATES that landowners must not dump trash, manipulate the natural water course or do things "detrimental to water purity."

"The beauty of these easements is their flexibility. They can be tailored to the needs and desires of the city and property owners," Moen said. According to Lewis, easements will be negotiated individually by the city's legal staff.

The easements may work in conjunction with the proposed "River Corridor Overlay Zone," which the council will vote on before the first of the year, according to Senior Planner Doug Boothroy.

The zone would place major restrictions on sign placement within 100 feet of the river bank and restrict building within 30 feet of the river. If the zone is approved, any new land development within 30 feet of the river cannot include building, Lewis said.

The "Iowa River Corridor Study," or Stanley Plan, completed in 1976, had set up the original plan for Iowa City to develop and preserve the river corridor, Moen said. "Accomplishing the goals outlined within the Stanley Plan will result in retaining and regaining the maximum scenic and aesthetic potential of the Iowa River," she said.

Because federal funds for land acquisition are lacking, the commission had to change its plans to buy land and allow for a "natural, undeveloped green buffer zone," Lewis said.

Sometimes, it can be better to give than to receive.

Nun parking service relies on prayers, donations and baseball

By Steve Riley Assistant Sports Editor

CHICAGO — Resting peacefully on the head of the nun who stands at the corner of Grace Street and Racine Avenue, about two blocks from Wrigley Field, is a bright blue Cubs helmet.

The elderly nun — Sister Euphrasia is her name — stands smiling, greeting Cub fans wishing to park in the lot of the House of Good Shepherd Convent.

By the 3:05 starting time for the game between the Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals, Sister Euphrasia has filled her spacious lot, and her money pouch is bulging.

BUT DON'T GET the idea that this is some sacreligious nun looking for a quick buck. The money goes to a worthy cause. "We have a program for battered women with children," she explains.

"We're not government funded or anything like that, but we believe that it is such a necessary program that we don't mind getting out here and doing this."

As she talks, she rests against a barrier, weary from the bustle of a long, busy day outside the ball park. Wrigley Field had brimmed over with 37,700 fans, and it took over two hours for cars to file out of her lot.

SISTER EUPHRASIA'S FACE turns grim as she describes a typical recipient of the funds she garners on days of home games. "She has come from where her husband or her live-in boyfriend beats her," she said. "But we only take women who have children. Women who don't have children have many more alternatives. But if she has three, four or five children, nobody wants to take her in."

There are several parking attendant-nuns at work on this day, a perfect one with its bright, sunny sky and 7-0 Cub victory. Most are Cub fans, and Sister Euphrasia is — on most days. "Except when the Dodgers are in town," she says laughing. "I'm from California."

The Cubs are a team that hasn't been appreciated much in many years. But Sister Euphrasia thinks of them as the greatest team of all time. "It's the Cubs that help. Because they play the games we can do this, so I think they're great."

As the last cars leave the lot, Sister Euphrasia takes off her Cubs helmet until tomorrow.

NHL board discusses Blues' fate

QUEBEC (UPI) — The NHL is still far from resolving the St. Louis Blues' saga following the first day of the Board of Governors meeting Wednesday.

With the Blues slated as the main topic for Thursday's agenda, league officials said the only time they broached the subject was when they discussed their position concerning the federal government's inquiry into the possibility the NHL contravened the Combines Investigation Act.

Quebec Nordiques' president and lawyer Marcel Aubut said the board determined its strategy.

"Our defense is ready and all we have to do now is wait until we pass team by team in front of the commission on July 12," he said.

THE NHL AND Ralston Purina are involved in a legal tangle over the Blues franchise that could become a lawyers' field day. Ralston Purina has filed a $20 million lawsuit, which would carry triple damages against the league for its rejection of the sale and transfer of the Blues to a group of businessmen from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Connors and Lloyd ease into 3rd round

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Defending champion Jimmy Connors, the No. 1 men's seed, and Chris Evert Lloyd, the No. 2 seed among women, wore down their opponents with strong finishes Wednesday and cruised into the third round of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Connors, the 30-year-old left-hander who is expected to duel fellow American John McEnroe in the finals, needed one hour, 48 minutes to beat Australian Wally Masur, 6-4, 7-6, 6-0.

Evert, looking for her fourth-straight grand slam title after winning the U.S., Australian and French Open championships, took just 74 minutes to oust Holland's Marcella Mesker, 6-4, 6-2.

AND WHILE CONNORS and Evert won as expected, Nduka Odizor, a 24-year-old Nigerian barely ranked in the top 100, continued to produce upsets. Odizor, who stunned No. 4 seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in the first round Monday, dumped American Peter Fleming, McEnroe's doubles partner, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 Wednesday.

The other men's seeds who advanced in early action were No. 5 Mats Wilander of Sweden, who completed a match postponed Tuesday night because of darkness by beating Australia's John Fitzgerald, 6-4, 6-1, 4-6, 6-7, 6-4; No. 12 Kevin Curren of South Africa, who defeated Sergio Casal of Spain, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3; No. 13 Brian Gottfried of the U.S., who overcame stubborn Matt Doyle of Ireland, 7-5, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4; and No. 16 Tim Mayotte of the U.S., who cruised past Andy Andrews of the U.S., 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

ALL THE SEEDED women's players in action Wednesday also advanced.

No. 3 Andrea Jaeger of the U.S. downed Pam Casale of the U.S., 6-3, 6-2; No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia downed Anne White of the U.S., 6-3, 6-3; and No. 10 Billie Jean King of the U.S. battled past Beth Herr of the U.S., 6-7, 6-2, 8-6.

Also, No. 11 Barbara Potter of the U.S. ousted Michelle Torres of the U.S., 6-1, 6-4; No. 14 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary defeated Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, 7-6, 6-4; and 16-year-old American Kathy Rinaldi, seeded 15th, downed Lena Sandin of Sweden 6-4, 6-3.

For the first two sets, Connors' big guns generally fired blanks and his killer instinct was lacking. He missed his chance at wrapping up the second set serving at 5-4 and then had to save two set points in the tiebreaking 13th game before clinching it when Masur netted a backhand.

But after that, Connors' adrenalin started to flow and he blitzed Masur with a barrage of drives and volleys, scoring heavily with his two-handed backhand. Masur collapsed under the pressure as Connors raced through the set in 20 minutes.

UI, Amana enjoy a long relationship

By Robert Ryser
Staff Writer

The long-standing and amiable relationship between Amana Refrigeration, Inc., and the UI athletic department is a history that is every bit as interesting as inspirational, according to Tait Cummins, press secretary for the Amana VIP.

"The relationship started way before I was here," said Bump Elliott, UI men's athletic director. "We've enjoyed what we feel is a great boost from Amana. We work with them on the Amana-Hawkeye Basketball Classic and, of course, they have been instrumental with the I-Club."

One of the most obvious displays of Amana's generosity to UI athletics is the VIP.

"ASIDE FROM OUTRIGHT GIFTS, there has never been anything like the Amana VIP and there never will be anything like it," Cummins said.

Known across the country as "The Masters of the pro-ams," the VIP remains the only pro-am in the United States that donates all of its proceeds to one charity, in this case, UI athletics.

"Off hand I would say that the VIP nets $50-60,000 each year, and that money goes to the I-Club Scholarship

AmanaVIP

Fund, Incorporated," Elliott said. "Of course, the amount of money Amana has been able to donate over the years has increased (with the popularity of the VIP), but the amount has generally stayed the same the past couple of years.

"In the past two or three years the women's athletic program has really benefited from the donation," he said.

"WHERE ELSE WOULD women athletes get money like that," Cummins said. "It (VIP) is just marvelous."

"The Amana VIP is the top one day pro-am event in the country," said Lou King, former senior vice-president of marketing for Amana. "And the pros and celebrities keep coming back because they know the money is going for athletic scholarships."

King, who moved from his Amana position to become the Chief Executive of the Professional Golfers Association said that pros today are making so much money that they don't bother with pro-ams that aren't for a good cause.

Few LPGA golfers in VIP tourney field

By Thomas W. Jargo
Staff Writer

Since its beginning in 1967, the "pro" side of the Amana VIP pro-am golf tournament has been dominated by members of the Professional Golfers Association tour.

A total of 40 pros are invited each year to the summer classic, and throughout the first 12 VIPs, all were men.

It wasn't until the summer of 1979 that representatives from the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour broke the complete male dominance barrier at the VIP. That year, JoAnne Carner and Judy Rankin were invited to attend the annual golf classic, and the following year, Beth Daniel was added to the field.

ONLY CARNER AND DANIEL will return to this Monday's VIP, marking the second year in a row the twosome has been the only feminine touch at the pro-am.

AmanaVIP

Officials of the pro-am are open-minded about adding more ladies to the field, but it's not easy to change a good thing for a number of reasons, according to Mike Humbert, promotions director for the VIP.

One reason is that 21 pro golfers, including Carner and Daniel, are members of the Amana Cap program, Humbert said. They endorse Amana Refrigeration, Inc., products by wearing Amana caps during tour events. The cap program is actually separate from the VIP, but in return for their efforts, members are automatically invited back to the next pro-am.

IF ALL 21 GOLFERS return the following year — like they will this year — only 19 open invitations remain. "We like to keep the field at 40," Humbert said.
