Inhabitants of a neighborhood where the Library is located, the University of Iowa has a dilemma.

"The people who live in the neighborhood want the library," said library director Bill Radl. "But the people who live near the parking lot don't want the library."

The dilemma is this: The Library wants to expand its services by converting an old parking lot into a library. However, the neighborhood residents don't want a library in the parking lot.

The University of Iowa is considering several options, including converting the parking lot into a library or a combination of a library and an office building. The University is also considering the possibility of building a new library nearby.

The University is expected to make a decision in the near future.

The education debate
Cranton courts NEA as he lashes out at Reagan

By Don Miller
Staff writer

In an aggressive campaign to boost his image as the Democratic presidential candidate, President Reagan is scheduled to address a schoolanskeetional education event in Iowa City Wednesday.

Reagan, who is scheduled to make the speech here, has been characterized by his political opponents as a "good talker" but not a "leader" of education. The president, who has a history of speaking at education events, is expected to make speeches in Des Moines, Iowa, and Coralville, Iowa, on the same day.

Reagan's visits come as the nation's school systems are being subjected to demands for reforms. The nation's schools are facing a number of challenges, including high dropout rates, declining attendance, and increasing budget problems.

The president's speeches are expected to focus on his proposals for education, which include expanded school choice, increased funding for education, and a greater role for the private sector in education.

In his address, Reagan is expected to discuss his proposals for education reform, including increased funding for education, the expansion of school choice, and the role of the private sector in education.

The president's speeches are expected to be well received by his supporters, who see him as a leader in the fight for education reform. However, the speeches may be met with criticism from his opponents, who see him as a wealthy man who is not knowledgeable about education issues.

The speeches are expected to be a major event in the nation's education debate, and they are likely to spark a heated debate among school administrators, parents, and students.

CNN's hard news coverage has gaps

By Jeffrey Milles

There's much to love about CNN. It's the only news channel that really tries to encompass the total picture. It keeps us up to date with the latest events, both at home and abroad. It's also the only news channel that really tries to present a balanced view of the world. But there are some gaps in its coverage, and it's important to be aware of them.

For instance, CNN's coverage of international events is often skewed toward the political and economic. This is understandable, given the nature of news reporting, but it can be frustrating for viewers who want to learn more about the social and cultural aspects of these events.

Another area where CNN could improve is in its coverage of the arts. While it does cover some events, such as the Academy Awards, its focus is more on the business side of the arts than on the creative side. This can make it difficult to get a sense of the real art world, where creativity and innovation are the norm.

In addition, CNN's coverage of science and technology is often too focused on the negative aspects of these fields. While it's important to be aware of the potential problems associated with these fields, it's also important to be aware of the positive aspects, such as the potential for new discoveries and innovations.

Overall, CNN is a valuable news source, but it's important to be aware of its gaps and to seek out other sources of news when possible.

Jedi has special effect on Ron

By Stephen Burleson

In the recent Lucas film Star Wars, the Jedi have a special effect on Ron. One of the Jedi is a young boy, who is able to use the Force to control objects and people. The young boy is played by Ron, and he is able to use the Force to make objects move and to control other people. The effect is quite interesting, and it adds a new layer of realism to the movie.

Television

The recent Lucas film Star Wars has some interesting effects on television. One of the effects is the use of the Force to control objects and people. This effect is quite interesting, and it adds a new layer of realism to the movie. Another effect is the use of the lightsabers, which are used to light up the environment and to create dramatic effects.

Salvador army begins sweep to oust rebels

The Salvador army has begun a new offensive to oust guerrillas from its countryside, the Defense Minister said yesterday.

The operation, announced by Defense Minister Héctor Funes, is part of a broader strategy to contain the guerrilla threat, which has been growing in recent weeks.

Funes said the operation will target areas controlled by the guerrillas, including the hilltops and villages where they operate.

He added that the army will use a combination of military and civilian operations to disrupt guerrilla activities.

The operation is expected to last several weeks and will involve thousands of soldiers.

The guerrillas, who are currently holding sway in parts of the countryside, have been fighting the government for decades.

They are part of a wider group of left-wing organizations that seek to overthrow the ruling right-wing government.

The army has been criticized for its heavy-handed tactics in the past and has been accused of human rights abuses.

The government has denied the allegations and says it is fighting a legitimate war against insurgency.

The operation is likely to be met with resistance from the guerrillas, who have vowed to fight back.

The situation is likely to escalate as the government and guerrillas try to gain the upper hand.

The operation is expected to be a major test of the army's ability to contain the guerrilla threat.

It is also a key test of the government's commitment to the peace process, which has been under threat in recent months.

The government has been under pressure to make progress in negotiations with the guerrillas, who have been fighting for decades.

The peace process, which was launched in 1991, has been stalled in recent months.

The government has been accused of failing to meet the guerrillas' demands for a fair and inclusive peace process.

The guerrillas have also been accused of failing to meet their own obligations under the peace process.

The operation is likely to be a major test of the government's commitment to the peace process.

The government has said it will use all necessary means to contain the guerrilla threat, including military action if necessary.

The government has also said it will continue to negotiate with the guerrillas in good faith.

The guerrillas have also said they will continue to negotiate in good faith, but have threatened to escalate their operations if the government fails to meet their demands.

Franklin, Wis. — For Calvary Baptist, the Greater Milwaukee Open was something less than a basketball game that had a national outlet. Now the church is in the spotlight of the national media.

Aockets, high school basketball players from across the country, gathered at the Greater Milwaukee Open, a major basketball tournament. The tournament is a showcase for the nation's top high school basketball players and gives them a chance to play in front of college recruiters.

For the younger players, this is an opportunity to get noticed and earn college scholarships. For the older players, it's a chance to establish their reputations and improve their NCAA standing.

The tournament is held annually and attracts teams from across the country. It features some of the best high school basketball players in the nation, and it's a chance for players to showcase their talents and attract the attention of college coaches.

The Greater Milwaukee Open is a major event in the national basketball landscape and is a must-see for anyone interested in high school basketball.
