Council denies airport hearing

By Mark Leonard

For the second straight time, an attempt by a group of local pilots and businessmen to get the city to deny a certificate of occupancy for a development in the "clear zone" of the Iowa City Airport has failed.

Last week, the Committee of Concerned Persons for Iowa City Airport Safety filed a petition with the city asking for a joint hearing to be held by the Iowa City Council and the Airport Commission concerning a 37-unit apartment complex located near the end of one of the airport's runways. The committee said the development will create an "airport hazard or public nuisance causing potential injury or loss of life to those who occupy the City Attorney Robert Jansen told council members Monday night he does not think either the council or the Airport Commission had the authority to issue such a ruling.

"I DON'T BELIEVE the Airport Commission has any authority to act as a judicial body," Jansen said. "I don't believe you (council) can legally order the city manager (Neal Berlin) to issue a ruling to not issue a certificate of oc-

Jansen said if a building meets all city and state codes, a certificate of occupancy must be issued. A group or person, however, may appeal the issuance of any certificate to the city's Board of Appeals, he said.

James Nicholas Russo, who is listed on the petition as both the group's chairman and one of its attorneys, attended the meeting. When asked by Mayor Pro Tem David Perret if he hadany reply to Jansen's comments, Russo shook his head and said "no."

The council then directed Jansen to send a letter to the group stating the reasons why the city is turning down its request for a joint hearing.

Berlin stressed the ruling "is not meant in any way to minimize our concern over the issue. Obviously, it's a very serious problem and we're going to pursue it."

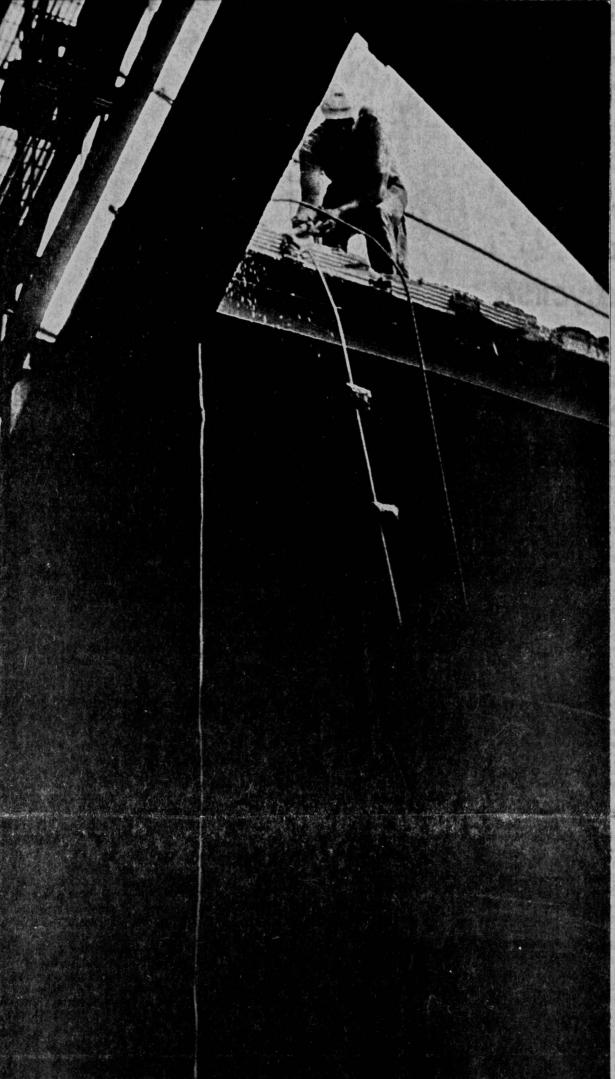

THE GROUP FILED a similar petition last month asking Berlin to stop occupancy of developer Kenneth Ranshaw's apartments. The petition said occupancy of the building would present a "patent and imminent threat and danger to life of monumental

At that time, Berlin was told by the city's legal staff that he had no authority to deny a certificate of occupancy if the building met all city and

Law building contract gets judge's okay

An injunction that stopped the state Board of Regents from granting a contract for the construction of the new UI Law Building was lifted Monday when Fifth District Judge Luther Glanton decided that a regent official had the right to accept a late bid.

The moratorium had barred the UI from proceeding with construction plans involving PCL Construction Ltd. of Minneapolis, which was accused by another construction company of making its bid one minute after the June 14 deadline. Board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey decided to accept the late bid and granted the contract to PCL. However, Mid-American Construction Inc. claimed that the extension of the deadline was an 'irregularity" that could not be waived by Richey.

BUT GLANTON stated in his judicial review "I've ruled in favor of the regents because I think the board has the right to waive the irregularity." Mid-American was granted the judicial review in Des Moines June 24.

Glanton also said PCL's bid did come "one second to 59 seconds late," but said Richey "normally waives such irregularities ... this is not an unusual circumstance.'

The regents are likely to ratify the awarding of the contract to PCL in their Thursday meeting at Iowa State University in Ames, Richey said Mon-

Richey granted PCL the $14.39 million contract in June when the company bid $400,000 less than Mid-American and $4 million less than the UI had budgeted for the construction of

"WE WON," UI Assistant to the President Julia Mears said. "I guess the standard comment would be 'we are pleased'," she said.

"I think the judge's decision was a vote of confidence for us and the board of regents as well as their power to authorize Richey in these matters,' Mears said. "But I still think we have a couple of years before we occupy the new Law Building," she said. Richev said he doesn't know whether Mid-American would appeal Glanton's decision or if an appeal would result in another moratorium on construction. "It would depend on the nature of the appeal and what the judge would grant. I really don't know

"I imagine that Mid-American Construction will appeal my decision, but I can't say it's a fact that they would," Glanton said.

Assistant attorneys Howard Hagen and Merle Flemming, of the Iowa Attorney General's Office in Des Moines, said they had no comment on whether Mid-American would file for an appeal.

WE'D RATHER not comment on that," Hagen said. "The petition was dismissed and the stay order vacated so the regents have prevailed."

result of a dispute resolved Monday involving the state Board of Regents and Mid-American Construction Inc. of Iowa, Mears

"The court action raised questions of administrative procedure," Mears said. "So we have to be careful. It's all we can really do."

The dispute arose after a late bid from PCL Construction Ltd. of Minneapolis was accepted by board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey. Mid-American Construction Inc. challenged whether Richey had that authority and asked for a judicial review to decide the matter.

PCL bid "one second to 59 seconds late." according to court records, but Richey waived the "irregularity" and granted the bid to the firm, which offered to construct the UI's new law building for $400,000 less than

McCay said Monday, "We've not seen or heard of a decision yet, but if this is the case, we're very happy about it."

McCay said the regents had 60 days to approve the contract so "the month that has gone by isn't really that much of a problem. I think under the terms agreed upon, we could start soon after the contract is awarded," he said.

'We're pleased the judge ruled in our favor," UI Architect Richard Jordison said. "We can start ground breaking in about two or three weeks," he said.

Jordison said that he doesn't think the 18-month construction deadline set by PCL is a realistic one, but "if they have a lot of manpower or some innovative way of working, we'll be happy to see it. We know of PCL," Jordison said. 'They are a much larger firm, so I wouldn't say getting the job done in that time is impossible. The days ahead may be difficult, and in winter there are days you can't work, but if they can do it, I'm all for it," he said.

Kemp's book challenges youths to debate By Don Miller

Stephen Douglas was a short burly man, with a large round head, dark hair and complexion and a fierce 'bulldog look.

Abraham Lincoln was tall and awkward in gait and attitude. But when he argued a point, the fire of his genius played on every feature.

Assistant Professor Robert Kemp, of the UI Communications and Theatre Arts Department, has recently written a book on Lincoln-Douglas type debating that he hopes will bring to life its "unique" features. "My major goal was to develop what was good about debate itself and give it a feeling of being a unique activity, yet part of a tradition," he said. Kemp has taught at the UI for 16 Forensics and Debate team. He is message," he said. president of the Federation of Iowa Speech Organizations and chairman of the Iowa Forensic League. He is also the author of a series of debate handbooks called Cross Currents.

THE LINCOLN-DOUGLAS debates first became famous in the summer of 1858 and two-person debating, instead of the traditional four-person policy debating, currently is used by more than 100,000 students participating in intraschool, state, regional, and national debate contests, he said.

But while interest in two-person debating has grown, very few books have been written on the subject. In writing his book, Kemp has done something that "complements the things I do. It serves to illustrate how important reasoning is to getting peoyears, and has directed the university's ple to understand an important

The book, which does not yet have a title, is divided into six sections and covers topics ranging from the Lincoln-Douglas debates, to forms and strategies of debating, to the delivery of the debating message.

Kemp's interest in debating started while he was in high school. "Political science and communication is something I wanted to pursue and debate is an outgrowth of that," he

Rebels launch offensive

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - As the leftist Sandinista government Monday prepared to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the overthrow of dictator Anastasio Somoza, U.S.backed rebels launched a 10,000-man offensive into Nicaragua, from Honduras, a spokesman for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force said.

Gemayel meets with Hussein

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel met in secret Monday night with Jordan's King Hussein in a secluded French villa to prepare for his talks in Washington on the withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon, sources said. The United States has been trying to draw Hussein into peace talks with Israel.

Gemayel will press President Reagan to use all contacts necessary, including talking to Moscow, to get Syrian troops out of Lebanon, state-run Beirut radio said.

Walesa blasts new civil laws

WARSAW, Poland - Communist authorities Monday took a final step toward ending martial law, as the military council that has ruled Poland for 19 months met to hear appeals for a civilian rule, the official PAP news agency reported.

But former Solidarity leader Lech Walesa accused the regime of preparing restrictions to crush dissent. "If I had to choose between the new regulations and martial law, I would take martial law. The new regulations are more licentious, more specific and more unfavorable than ever," he said.

Japan warned about whaling

BRIGHTON, England - The United States Monday warned Japan, the world's biggest whaling nation, to observe a total ban on commercial whaling by 1986 or face sanctions. The U.S. delegation to the International Whaling Commission said both trade and fishing import sanctions were possible should Japan refuse to go along with the ban.

The whaling commission, an intergovernmental body of 40 nations, last year decided on the ban. However, Japan, the Soviet Union, Norway and Peru formally objected, which under IWC rules means they can ignore the ban.

Iran-Iraq war snarls OPEC

HELSINKI, Finland - Iran and Iraq, adversaries in the 33-month-old Gulf war, Monday brought their battle to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, with each side jockeying to grab the secretary-generalship of the oil cartel.

OPEC sources said the two combatants' attempts to stalemate the selection of a secretary-general for OPEC could split the 13nation group. "This is a relatively unimportant issue. They (Iran and Iraq) are out to tie OPEC in knots," said an OPEC analyst.

Navy waste spurs firing

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Monday the Navy has fired an officer at a Florida naval center who has been charged with wasting tens of thousands of dollars in purchasing spare parts. Weinberger said contractors could be disqualified from seeking defense contracts if there is any evidence of wrongdoing.

Pentagon auditors charged the center with buying $80,284 worth of parts for an F-18 fighter-bomber simulator from the Sperry Corp. of New York City that could have been purchased for $3,638 through the Navy's own supply system.

NEA won't meet with Reagan

WASHINGTON - President Reagan will meet today with education leaders, including Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers. A White House spokesman said Monday that the National Education Association declined to attend. NEA officials said they refused to be a party to "another staged media event on education."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Secretary of Education Terrel Bell had invited the NEA to attend Tuesday's session. But NEA President Willard McGuire said he was advised by the White House staff Monday that Reagan will not meet privately with NEA leadership.

The Johnson County Sheriff's Department now has a $400 pulley system to help rescue people from the river near the old Coralville power dam and the Burlington Street dam. Capt. Doug Edmonds said Monday.

Plans are also being made to install buovs and signs at the two dams to help prevent accidents, Sgt. Robert Carpenter said. The new safety and rescue efforts are being made by the department in response to an increase in the number of dam-related accidents this dam recently, Edmonds said, but people have been caught in the churning water downstream from the dam. After portaging around it, boaters have entered the water too close to the dam and have been sucked back toward it. he said.

There have been six different incidents involving 11 people at the Coralville dam since early May, compared with only one during all of the previous year, Edmonds said.

THE SHERIFF'S department will ask for permission from the Johnson County Conservation Board Thursday to put up warning signs and buoys at the Coralville Dam, Carpenter said.

One problem facing the department, however, is that land below the Coralville dam is privately owned and the department cannot place signs there until permission is granted by the owner, Carpenter said. The matter is further complicated by a legal matter - that being whether the land owners would then be liable for accidents. There is a danger that people unfamiliar with the river will not see the dam until it is too late, he said.

The department plans to put buoys in the middle of the river above and below the Burlington Street dam so that boaters approaching the dam will have sufficient warning, Carpenter said.

THE NEW PULLEY system, which can support eight people, is kept at the sheriff's department, Edmonds said. It can be maneuvered in the area below either dam through the use of ropes.

"It will be a better arrangement than we had before," Edmonds said, "but I don't think foolproof .... The important thing is that perple don't get a false sense of confidence."

Previously, rescuers would throw a life preserver from the dams to people trappedin the water and pull them up, Edmonds said. If victims were away from the base of a dam they could possibly be rescued by boat.

The Coralville Police Department has also given a life preserver and rope to the low River Power Company restaurant adjacently the dam, restaurant manager Joe McLaughlin said.

The rescue equipment was given because people at the restaurant are usually the firm to see victims caught in the dam's current "We throw the ropes and hang on until t police come," McLaughlin said.

Iowa City will definitely have two new school board members and at least one new city councilor after elections this fall, but three city councilors up for re-election have yet to announce their plans.

The Iowa City School Board elections are Sept. 13 and the Iowa City Council elections are Nov. 8.

Board member David Wooldrick has also decided not to seek re-election. "There just is not enough time. I want to spend more time with my family and my business. I have spent too much time away from both," he said. Wooldrick was elected last year to complete the unexpired term of former board member Classie Hoyle.

At-large City Councilor Larry Lynch will not run for re-election this fall. He is the only councilor who has announced his intentions for the fall elections. "I need to spend more time with my family and my law practice. I think they need new bodies on the council," Lynch said.

Kissinger naming draws praise, fire

Reagan's appointment of Henry Kissinger to head a special commission on Central America drew raves and boos in Congress Monday - and some doubt the commission would have an immediate effect on disputes about U.S. aid.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said Reagan's choice of former Secretary of State Kissinger to lead the bipartisan panel was "an excellent

House Democratic leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, called Kissinger "an experienced diplomat" but said he is uncertain about Kissinger's familiarity with Central America.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., said called the appointment "a high-risk venture.

"THE QUESTION is whether Henry Kissinger understands the dynamics of the Third World," he said, criticizing Kissinger's actions concerning Angola, Cambodia and Chile. Kissinger 'focused on the East-West view of those situations," Tsongas concluded.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said Kissinger will not help Reagan with Congress. "I seriously doubt that the appointment of Henry Kissinger to this post would narrow the current credibility gap" concerning Central America, said the Wisconsin Democrat.

The House proceeded with its plan to hold a rare closed meeting Tuesday to debate a bill to cut off covert U.S. aid to rebel groups fighting the Sandinista government of Nicaragua. A close vote on the bill is expected next week in the House, but observers expect the Republican-controlled Senate to reject the plan.

Wright, who has been a key figure in efforts to reach a compromise with the administration on Nicaragua, said Reagan's announcement probably would not derail the bill.

TWO DEMOCRATIC congressmen who are on a fact-finding tour in El Salvador Monday attacked President Reagan's bilateral commission on Central American as a "cynical ploy" to ensure a CIA-supported war against leftist Nicaragua continues. Reps. Don Edwards and George

Jackson's challenge

The recently completed 74th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been variously reported as having revealed either the discord that appears to exist within that organization or the lethargy into which the NAACP, and the civil rights movement in general, have fallen. With few outside the Reagan administration arguing that federal enforcement of civil rights laws is adequate, perceived weakness in the civil rights movement's most visible and venerable organization seems to leave minorities no effective agency through which to apply pressure for a change in federal policy.

Bleak assessments of the NAACP's viability may not be entirely fair, as noted by columnist Carl T. Rowan on this page, but it is not unfair to say the NAACP has slumbered in the years since its greatest influence in the 1960s. As it struggles to fill the vaccuum left by its own relative inactivity, its leaders should not be surprised if others also seek to address the vital need for minority

Specifically, the Rev. Jesse Jackson has built something of a mystique about his possible run for the presidency, the purpose of which is to inspire black voter registration. NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks says a black candidacy, by Jackson or another of several possible candidates, is likely to split the very bloc of voters that is most likely to be sympathetic to minority issues - namely the Democratic Party - and thereby be counterproductive. The NAACP, following its tradition of nonpartisanship, will not endorse any candidate, black or not.

Jackson counters that mainstream politicians, even "liberals," have skirted and fudged on minority issues for so long, and are so beholden to the powerful institutions that perpetuate racial inequality, that blacks can't be motivated to participate in the electoral system. Without that participation they are essentially disenfranchised. A black presidential candidacy, Jackson contends, might be just the spark to ignite the widespread voter registration that will give minorities clout in the political process.

Jackson is right. The liberal mainstream is tired and ineffective in pushing for civil rights. Minorities can no longer afford strictly to adhere to an alliance that has left them with the same economic and social status they "enjoyed" 20 years ago. And if the NAACP is afraid to break out of that alliance, it had better be prepared to see others blaze the trail.

Dirty coal

The vicious trade protection battle waged on a national scale between U.S. auto manufacturers and those from Japan was paralleled on a miniature level in lowa recently, with the protectionists wielding a trump. But more cards are on the table now, and it's clear the game was a farce.

Certainly it is commendable for state government to encourage use of local products, ensuring jobs and fostering pride in the state - but only when the product is of comparable price and quality to similar goods from out of state. The product offered by Iowa Coal Sales Corporation is neither.

The fledgling Iowa Department of Water, Air and Waste Management is proposing new sulfur dioxide emission standards that may affect the UI's coal-burning power plants next school year because the Iowa firm's coal will be used. The standards which allow for more pollution than currently emitted by the UI plants - would not matter if the use of "clean" out-of-state coal was to continue.

But more than a month ago the state Board of Regents decided that wouldn't happen, even though Iowa coal is dirtier and more costly - $108,540 more costly. And, as predicted by UI power plant Director John Houck, it seems certain now the Iowa coal will be draining even more from the state's budget.

To bring future emission levels of the main plant and the one at the Oakdale campus down to the proposed standards, some type of pollution control system will have to be initiated and, according to Houck, "anyway you look at it" that system will require more

The new emission standards are not to blame. They will bring Johnson County regulations in line with federal standards and assure that the air in non-metropolitan areas of the state does not suffer from excessive sulfur dioxide pollution. The explaining should come from the Board of Regents, which paid more for a poorer product.

Can Hooks save the NAACP?

troubled national convention, and hopefully also closed one of the most destructive chapters in the organization's 84 years.

Almost everyone involved in, or who cares about, the civil rights movement is asking whether the NAACP has withered to permanent impotence and irrelevance, or whether it can once again become the force - even the feared group — that it was in the 1950s

NAACP directors finally have given Executive Director Benjamin Hooks powers comparable to those held by earlier great leaders Walter White and Roy Wilkins, meaning that Hooks will not have to waste his energies and emotions on a power struggle with the board chairman. This means that black America will now be able to make a valid assessment of Hook's leadership

THE CHALLENGES before him are great. A country that 20 years ago sent hundreds of thousands of blacks and whites to Washington for a historic civil rights march is today caught up in a resurgence of conservatism and racism. A Congress that less than a generation ago, prodded by Lyndon Johnson, passed a marvelous array of laws to provide justice in education, voting rights, access to public accommodations and to housing, now lies supinely indifferent as Ronald Reagan takes executive actions designed to 'repeal" those laws.

Whereas the gap between black and white family incomes was closing 20 years ago, it has been widening lately. Black unemployment hangs at more than 20 percent. Half the nation's black teenagers are jobless, and scores of thousands will reach adulthood without having had any work experience, many of them ill-educated to the point where they will never hold a decent job. And we are seeing the natural concomitance of all this: the rampaging deterioration, indeed destruction, of black families.

SOME BLACKS want to blame this malaise, even now, on what they see as Coleman A. Young.

divided and inept NAACP leadership over the last few years. That is not

We must remember that the antibusing, anti-affirmative action, anticivil rights shift of the white population was made easier, even helped along, by opinion shifts and confusions within black America. The NAACP was at its greatest when black America had a clear goal: the abolition of Jim Crow.

But as educational, housing and other anti-segregation victories were won, schizophrenia overwhelmed millions of blacks. Demagogic talk of White legislators got the threat out in these states that if integration was forced, there would be few, if any, black college presidents, deans, department heads in the state-supported institutions. So as confused blacks said, "Do I want integration, or separatism, or many stopped joining the

The firms atop the media pyramid

N A NEW book, The Media Monopoly, veteran journalist Ben H. Bagdikian argues that 50 corporations now control "most major American media - newspapers, magazines, radio, television, books and movies." And according to Bagdikian, these 50 companies are in turn "interlocked with other massive industries and a few multinational banks," with the result that the information you receive is skewed in favor of business interests.

I don't think Bagdikian proves the latter thesis, but it's difficult to dispute his point that the levers of information are pulled by fewer and fewer hands.

Bijou shows films of masters

Sirk, Fassbinder this week

DIRECTED AND co-written by Sylvester Stallone, Staying Alive is like Rocky with leotards. Scenes that depict Manero's relentless ambition and casual narcissism are intermingled with production numbers set to a non-stop, nondescript MOR soundtrack.

The musical set pieces are not well-served by Stallone's unimaginative visual style, which alternates jump cuts, slo-mo, and freeze frames with predictable regularity; the dance choreography is up to the standards of a Stevie Nicks video but definitely sub-Bob Fosse; the music, by the Bee Gees and Frank Stallone (contacts helped), is unmemorable when it's not annoying - RSO warehouses should be well-stocked with unopened crates of the soundtrack album for years to come.

What keeps this musical afloat - and what should make it a hit — is neither the tunes nor the gotta-dance fireworks, but the dramatic you see is a good-looking set of muscles."

FASSBINDER HAD THE idea for Ali: Fear Eats

the Soul, which the Bijou is showing Wednesday at 8:45 p.m. and Thursday at 7 p.m., before he saw All

That Heaven Allows (a description of Ali surfaced during a monologue in 1970's The American Soldier), yet the two films share the same basic plot, as well as some stylistic flairs. Fassbinder, for instance,

Staying Alive is an old-fashioned heterosextwo interesting and revealing omissions. First, unlike the original release of Saturday Night Fever, this film is PG: Tony's mother cautions her son against nudity, and the film obeys her injuction. Appropriately, dance is where the real sexual coupling takes place. (Tony makes it clear in other ways that he has cleaned up his old act: he neither smokes, film about the New York dance scene that manages to ignore the gay community. In what is probably as much a bow to the new conservatism as an unwillingness to confuse the target audience, the Broadway of Staying Alive is straight. (There is even a hint that the dancer whom Tony replaces can't cut the mustard because, as a gay, he doesn't have 'the anger ... the certain intensity" to relate to his female partner.)

Despite the film's failure as a credible musical (and the even greater failure of the truly atrocious "musical within a musical" the chorus is working on, "Satan's Alley") Staying Alive is worthwhile if only to see Travolta adding depth and nuance to the role of his lifetime. The character is funnier, smarter and more endearing than last time

Some of this is ludicrous, of course scenes of J.T. bounding like Nijinsky over clouds of dry ice are real rib-ticklers, and only the pre-teen crowd will appreciate his shoulder rotations - but it's good to see him strutting his stuff again anyway.

At the Bijou

Due to public demand, the Bijou is presenting an encore showing of Ridley Scott's Blade Runner this afternoon. Scott's adaptation of a Philip Dick novel features Harrison Ford as a 21st century gumshoe who has to track down deadly robot "replicants. Though in the end the movie becomes a Serlingesque man-machine diatribe with a relentlessly ugly attitude toward women, the visuals are fascinating (to say the least), and the story is a good deal more than you'll get from the kiddie sci-fiers. Costarring Sean Young and Rutger Hauer, 5 p.m. • Max Ophuls' 1932 film Liebelei, like much of the director's work, foregos hysterical "social commentary" and instead makes its point by focusing on the interior world of passions and pain. In this case, the passion and pain belong to a young German soldier whose love for a beautiful woman is shattered by a long-forgotten incident. For Ophuls, the storm of a kiss is as violent as the waves of change sweeping across Europe at the time.

• What Max Ophuls was to 1930s and 1940s cinema, Douglas Sirk was to the 1950s. All That Heaven Allows is a beautifully stylish melodrama starring Jane Wyman as a middle-class widow who falls for her gardener (Rock Hudson). Sirk, like Ophuls, has a fondness for women: All That Heaven Allows becomes much less a standard soapish sobber than it does a compassionate study of a woman whose desires and needs are kept stifled by society. 8:45 p.m.

We can recommend PBS' "Nova" tonight (though we should do so every week) simply because the subject strikes a responsive chord. The show takes its cameras off to the San Francisco Exploratorium, a science museum that is less a museum than an amusement park. Every city should have one - trust us. 7 p.m., IPT-12.

On sitcom fave "St. Elsewhere" tonight: Daffy Dr. Samuels (David Birney) becomes friends with a boy who has a zany terminal injury; that kooky cutup Chandler (Denzel Washington) files a complaint against a nutsy nurse for incompetence; Dr. Cavanero (Cynthia Sikes) shows a madcap Mexican another wacky way to have a baby. You'll bust a gut - all London did. 9 p.m., KWWL-

Grapplers gearing up worldwide

For people who are puzzled about how Dan Gable's Iowa wrestling team can turn out national championships year after year, here's a possible solu-

It sounds pretty basic, but when most Big Ten athletes are lying around in the summer, getting geared up for the upcoming football season, Hawkeye wrestlers are thinking wins, pins and more wins.

Junior Barry Davis, 125.5 pounds, Randy Lewis, 136.5 pounds, Lenny Zalesky, 149.5 pounds and senior 'Pete Bush, 198 pounds, were all champions at the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colo. They are eligible for the Pan-Am Games in Venezuela, Aug. 22-24. Iowa assistant Coach J. Robinson will train the team Aug. 1-19 in Colorado Springs, according to Gable.

Dan Gable

DAVIS WILL have to wrestle-off with Joe Corso, however. Corso, a After petitioning the Festival's board, he was granted the chance to challenge Davis in the best of three matches to determine who would compete in the Pan-Am Games

'Corso beat Davis in the finals of the national freestyle tournament, (Madison, Wis.) 3-3," Gable said. 'There were no ties, so Corso won on Second-place finishes at the Festival by sophomore Duane Goldman and for-

UNI's Sheriff will take Hawaii position CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UPI) - Un- carried weight with the selection com-

iversity of Northern Iowa Athletic mittee. Director Stan Sheriff confirmed Monday that he plans to accept a similar position at the University of Hawaii if his appointment is approved Friday.

"I have indicated to the chancellor that I would accept the position, Sheriff said, adding that he was contacted by officials of the Hawaii school late Monday afternoon.

A committee assigned to pick a new athletic director for the University of Hawaii announced that Sheriff was its favorite among the five finalists.

If the full Board of Regents goes along with the committee recommendation, Sheriff could be on the job as early as Aug. 1. The board is expected to vote Friday.

SHERIFF SAID school officials told him the committee's vote of confidence makes the regents' decision a formality.

University of Hawaii president Fujio Matsuda said Sheriff's business acumen and ability to "deal with people on all levels of university affairs"

Sheriff said he thinks the new job will be a good opportunity for him, adding that "I'm very pleased that the personnel committee is recommending me for the position.'

"THEY HAVE a strong athletic program and I would like to help make it even stronger," Sheriff said. He added that family considerations also entered into his decision.

"It's probably time in our life to make a career change," he said. "We couldn't have anything better happen to us than to go to the University of Sheriff would replace Ray Nagel, who left Hawaii for an executive position with the Los Angeles Rams. Nagel previously coached football at Iowa.

Sheriff came to UNI in 1958 as an assistant football coach and succeeded Bill Hammer as head football coach two seasons later. He assumed the additional role of athletic director in 1970 and resigned as football following the

All-state shortstop signs with Hawkeyes

A two-time all-state shortstop, Gary Ellis from Ames, has signed a national letter of intent to compete for the Iowa baseball team, Coach Duane Banks announced Monday.

Ellis, the Hawkeyes' sixth signee, batted .400 during his senior year at Ames High School, including four home runs and 30 runs batted in. In addition to his infield duties, Ellis compiled an 8-2 pitching mark.

Banks indicated that Ellis, an all-Big Eight Conference selection for the past three seasons, will be an infielder at Corrales had been under fire recently for his continual juggling of the Phillies lineup. Some players complained about the changes, and others told reporters privately about a lack of communication with the manager.

in the league, with regulars Mike Schmidt, Gary Matthews and Bo Diaz all hitting less than .250. The pitching staff had been keeping the Phillies in the pennant race thanks to a team ERA of 3.24, second in the league.

Giles said he began talking with Owens about a change as far back as three weeks ago and said he asked Owens to consider taking the field job. When the two men met Monday morning, Giles said, "he told me he wanted to manage and really thought he should be the one to take over.'

Court gives NCAA time in TV case

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Supreme Court Justice Byron White, a former All-American halfback, has blocked a ruling that invalidated the NCAA's multimillion-dollar arrangement with television networks on college football White took the action Saturday, but the Supreme Court did not make it public until Monday.

His order delays the effect of a federal appeals court ruling that the broadcasting deal is anti-competitive because it reduces the number of games available to TV viewers nationwide on fall Saturdays.

The NCAA's contracts with the networks involve $74.3 million in payments in 1983, and affect audiences of up to 22.5 million for each game broad-

School regents last week gave the school permission to enter into contract negotiations for the telecast this fall of the school's football games.

White, who earned the nickname "Whizzer" at the University of Colorado in the 1930s, and later played professionally with the Pittsburgh Steelers and Detroit Lions, also invited the Justice Department to give its view of the antitrust questions involved.

The NCAA adopts policies governing how football is played in its 785 mem ber colleges and 100 athletic conferences. Under its arrangements with ABC and CBS, the networks may telecast 14 games each fall. A separate arrangement with Turner Broadcasting System allows the broadcast of 19 games.

"THE NCAA is gratified that Justice White has issued a stay," said NCAA Promotions Director Jack Waters. I the stay remains in effect, the NCAL will continue its application for appeal of the lower court's decision, Water

Raw Score M grabs 'ugly' win

If there was one edge Raw Score M needed in its 9-8 intramural softball victory over Carbelator on my Bird Monday, it was run production. On the other side of the diamond, Carbelator didn't need

"Seven of their nine runs were unearned," said Carbelator pitcher Jim Stone, "and we've never had this many errors in one game.'

Raw Score M's defense was highlighted in the top of the sixth inning when Ron Osgoode ran down a deep fly ball in left field, ending the inning with two Carbelator base runners stranded.

"Ron really saved us with that catch," said Raw Score M pitcher Kevin Spratt after the game.

Intramurals

THE VICTORY gave Raw Score M a 5-0 mark for Section I of the Men's summer league, and Carbelator dropped to 4-1. Both teams qualify for the playoffs which begin next Monday.

'We wanted to win this game more than they did because we knew playing two games in one day would kill us," Spratt said.

The six first-place teams in the men's league were ramdomly drawn, according to UI Program Coordinator for Recreational Services, Warren Slebos. Two first place teams will receive byes, and the other four will be randomly paired with

SPRATT SAID his team would stick with their game plan and "not practice," for the playoffs, but it looked as if Raw Score M had improved their hitting Monday from their last few games. Raw Score M jumped ahead in the first two innings with six runs, including a clutch three-run double in the bottom of the first from Steve Miller. Raw Score M held the lead the entire game with fine defense, and when Carbelator started to catch up, Raw Score M scored the crucial runs.

Spratt sparked a three-run fourth inning by beating out an infield grounder. He later scored on an overthrow

'It doesn't matter whether it's pretty - just as long as you get on," said Spratt, "I got on some the six remaining second-place teams, according pretty ugly ways today.'

Michigan goes deep for first USFL title

Panthers knew they could throw on the Philadelphia Stars in the first USFL title game because they knew they could

"Going in," Michigan Coach Jim Stanley said Monday morning at a postgame press conference, "I thought we had a better passing game. (Quarterback Bobby) Hebert has a better chance of going deep.

"Passing has been one of our fortes all year," Stanley said after Michigan's 24-22 victory the previous night capped a season-long comeback from a 1-4 start. "We certainly have the ability to catch the ball.

"WITH ANTHONY Carter, Derek Holloway, Mike Cobb ... those guys have the ability to make the big play and go the distance at any time. For us to sit on the football and try to run out the clock would have been detrimental to our league, detrimental to our beliefs.'

Hebert threw for 314 yards, completing 20-of-39 passes, with touchdowns of 12 and 14 yards to wide receiver Holloway and 48 yards to Carter. All three are rookies.

Hebert was an overwhelming choice as the game's Most Valuable Player. although the vote was taken with five minutes left to play - about two minutes before Carter made his game sealing touchdown. Carter caught _

DENVER (UPI) - The Michigan career high nine passes for 179 yards. "In the first half, it was our feeling that we could have had three more touchdowns," Stanley said. "If we had executed, thrown to the right person and caught the ball.

The game was marred at its end when an estimated 2,000 fans stormed the field with some six seconds to play, delaying its finish.

Police arrested 12 people and had to use chemicals, clubs and dogs to control the crowd, many of whom were enjoying a high that was definitely not Rocky Mountain in origin.

"I didn't see that," Stanley said. "I'm sorry to hear that. I'm sorry it came about. It's not good."

Rydze isn't mixing politics with sports

Iowa diving Coach Bob Rydze was caught in the trap that has plagued international sporting events for years. Somehow, it seems that politics always become the focal point, not the actual sporting event itself.

Rydze, who was serving as coach of the U.S. diving team at the World University Games, spoke out following the accident in which Soviet diver Sergei Chalibashwili hit his head on the 10-meter concrete platform attempting a dive considered the second most complicated in the world. The 21-yearold diver died within a week of the ac-

BUT HERE IS where the politics came in. One columnist called the event a "sports Bay of Pigs." We've seen it too many times in the recent past - the terrorism at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, the boycott of the 1976 Olympics by countries protesting policies in South Africa and the 1980 U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympics due to Soviet occupation in

Why can't people understand that Rydze was speaking as an expert in diving, not politics? If the same incident had occured in, say an Iowa-Minnesota dual meet, and Rydze had made the same comments, the dispute probably would have remained between the two coaches.

Mike Condon

Sportsview

The bottom line is this: Rydze is diving coach who happens to opinionated. He is one of the m respected coaches in the U.S.

REPORTS SAID that officials we worried that Rydze's comments mile hurt the Russians' feelings. Big deal hurting a country's pride is more portant than a young man's something is very wrong with the sports are run in the Soviet Union, for that manner, anywhere. The only person who really stand lose, now that Chalibashwili has di is Rydze. In my opinion, he hurt chances of coaching another in national team for quite some time ever again. The United States seems have the policy of not offending superpower to the East — a policy Rydze didn't follow.

Instead of nailing the man political grounds, he should be mended for his concern. Bob Rydzel credit to diving in this country, and comments should make him look ter, not worse, in the eyes Americans.
