Airport limits still irk firm

By Mark Leonard

In an interview with the West Side Co., which owns the property, and the Iowa City Airport, and the city, the county, and others involved in the airport, the company has been discussing the idea of a development agreement that would allow for the construction of a new airport. However, the company has not yet reached a final decision.

---

Nicaragua calls for peace pact

ABC News

Plan would halt arms shipments to El Salvador

LEON, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua issued a formal complaint against the United States last week, accusing it of supplying arms to El Salvador. The U.S. government has not officially responded.

---

Parents told to work or lose ADC

By John Tinsley

A new Johnson County program will require parents and children to either work or go to school to continue receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) benefits.

---

Soldiers shoot dead 12 in Haiti massacre

UPI

Drama in Haiti as crosses stand in water after deadly shooting

The crosses stand in water after a deadly shooting in Haiti. The crosses were placed in the water to mark the location of the shooting.

---

New plate slogan touts minds over matter

Des Moines Register

The Iowa Department of Transportation announced that it wants to bring back the “Minds over matter” slogan that it used in the 1990s.

---

Volunteer program helps youth

Iowa City Press-Citizen

A volunteer program is helping youth in Iowa City.

---

New leader at UI

Des Moines Register

A new leader has been appointed at the University of Iowa.

---

Shelley Tatum, district director for the American Red Cross in Iowa, said Tuesday that the Red Cross is prepared to respond to any disaster that may arise.

---

Sackter company plans to double its workforce

Des Moines Register

Sackter Company plans to double its workforce in the next year. The company has 500 employees and is looking to hire more.

---

McKee company plans to build new factory

Des Moines Register

McKee Company plans to build a new factory in the next year. The company is looking to expand its operations.

---

Hawkeye Area Community Action Program

Des Moines Register

The Hawkeye Area Community Action Program is looking for volunteers to help with their work in the community.

---

University of Iowa

Des Moines Register

The University of Iowa is looking for volunteers to help with their work in the community.

---

Iowa City Council

Des Moines Register

The Iowa City Council is meeting to discuss various issues.

---

Iowa City, Iowa, U.S.A., July 16, 1983 — Page 1

---

The Daily Iowan

Iowa City's Morning Newspaper

July 20, 1983 — Page 2

---

Parents told to work or lose ADC

By John Tinsley

A new Johnson County program will require parents and children to either work or go to school to continue receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) benefits.

---

Soldiers shoot dead 12 in Haiti massacre

UPI

Drama in Haiti as crosses stand in water after deadly shooting

The crosses stand in water after a deadly shooting in Haiti. The crosses were placed in the water to mark the location of the shooting.

---

New plate slogan touts minds over matter

Des Moines Register

The Iowa Department of Transportation announced that it wants to bring back the “Minds over matter” slogan that it used in the 1990s.

---

Volunteer program helps youth

Iowa City Press-Citizen

A volunteer program is helping youth in Iowa City.

---

New leader at UI

Des Moines Register

A new leader has been appointed at the University of Iowa.

---

Shelley Tatum, district director for the American Red Cross in Iowa, said Tuesday that the Red Cross is prepared to respond to any disaster that may arise.

---

Sackter company plans to double its workforce

Des Moines Register

Sackter Company plans to double its workforce in the next year. The company has 500 employees and is looking to hire more.

---

McKee company plans to build new factory

Des Moines Register

McKee Company plans to build a new factory in the next year. The company is looking to expand its operations.

---

Hawkeye Area Community Action Program

Des Moines Register

The Hawkeye Area Community Action Program is looking for volunteers to help with their work in the community.

---

University of Iowa

Des Moines Register

The University of Iowa is looking for volunteers to help with their work in the community.

---

Iowa City Council

Des Moines Register

The Iowa City Council is meeting to discuss various issues.

---

---
Reagan authorizes Chad aid

WASHINGTON — Clad in the open military uniform he has worn nearly every day since becoming president, Ronald Reagan Tuesday used his executive power to authorize $40 million in military assistance for the government of Chad.

In a statement Tuesday, the president said he was taking this step to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval" who is trying to "defend the country from rebels on its northern border with Libya." The money will not require congressional approval.

The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," Reagan said.

The president used his executive power to make Wednesday's announcement, which was disclosed to reporters at the White House.

The Chadian government is one of several in Africa that have received military assistance from the United States. Including Chad, the Defense Department has made about $74 million in military assistance commitments to 10 African countries since the beginning of the Reagan administration.

The president said that even though the commitments to Chad are "limited in scope," they are significant because they are "a vote of confidence in the policymakers of that country and their ability to use the assistance wisely.

"I am confident they can handle the burden of the assistance," he said.

The president said the aid "will contribute to the survival and prosperity of Chad and its people and will help foster the efforts of the African nations toward democracy and freedom and justice and peace," he said.

The White House said the aid was "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval" who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval," who "are attempting to defend the country against overwhelming rebel forces from the northern border with Libya." The money will be used to provide "hardware and equipment, 100 military aircraft and ground vehicles, and $1.5 million in nonlethal equipment," the statement said.

The president said the aid is "limited in scope," but he said he is "confident they can handle the burden of the assistance." He said the aid is "necessary" to "bolster the Chadian forces under President Francois Duval,”
Iowa Avenue bridge slated for renovation

By Dan Miller

Although Iowa City traffic has been banging the pavement of the Iowa Avenue Bridge for many years, the city is now planning a major renovation of the bridge, that work is in early planning stages.

The city recently learned that the Iowa Avenue Bridge has a history of structural problems and has been listed as a possible candidate for demolition.

The city has already begun planning for the renovation, and a public meeting is scheduled for next month to discuss the project.

The city plans to use the Iowa Avenue Bridge as a model for future renovation projects.

Metro

Shawhan takes two-year NASA post

By Marlynn Goto

Shawhan will take a two-year leave from the UI to serve as a science communicator at NASA.

Shawhan, a former UI student, will work at NASA to help communicate the latest research in space science to the public.

The opportunity to work at NASA was a dream come true for Shawhan, who is excited to share her passion for space science with the world.

The two-year leave will provide Shawhan with a unique opportunity to gain valuable experience in science communication and build her resume.

Shawhan was recently awarded a fellowship at NASA, which will provide her with funding and support during her leave.

Metro

Dairy lowan

Metro

Share

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.

Metro

Metro

Metro

The Rochester Democrat-Register and other media.

For the editorial page.
New pillagers

Two events in Iowa this week point to a potentially deadly new war that the public often ignores. Members of the United Food and Commercial Workers at PCC Food Stores in Iowa City were honored for fighting the pocket line of another union in the state. Gov. Terry Branstad said he would not enter into a "no raid" pact with unions representing any of the state's big businesses. Such a pact would prevent the governors from not turning industry away from the state. The Bransad campaign has a very favorable outcome for business, citing among other things a "right to work" law.

As the year arrives, a number of events and issues have occurred. Workers have been forced to take reductions in wages and benefits; businesses have recognized without union contracts where some of the money is kept. Efforts to deny employees the right to organize and strike against the employer, the rights of workers have eroded. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill:

States have competed to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have competed to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: States have compensated to lure businesses with promises of low or no taxes, reduced environmental protection certificates, and a delay for bringing their labor forces to a higher plane of productivity and better work conditions. A recent study by the National Council of State Legislatures found that Iowa ranked 54th in the nation for its tax burden on businesses, and 45th for its per capita income. The state's economy is in a recession, and the state's unemployment rate is above the national average. The United States has the highest paid labor forces in the world, the time has become a complaint and the "reason" for current economic ill: "The people are getting tired of this constant promise of reform. The government has failed to deliver on its promises. They are tired of hearing the same old promises over and over. They want real change. They want their voices heard. They want their concerns addressed. They want a government that works for them, not just for the privileged few."
The Book of America presents cliche accounted numbers of 50 states

By James Kaufman

J ames Kaufman, who climbed into Europe, Asia and Latin America before he took on the United States, didn't have the opportunity to research this book in person. To do so would have been tedious, expensive and time-consuming. Kaufman's book is a brainy and clever look at the states of America, and he handles the task of making them come alive in a lively, entertaining manner. The book is divided into three parts: a historical overview of the states, a look at the culture and economy of each state, and a brief look at the political and social history of each state. The book is well-researched and well-written, and it's a fun read for anyone interested in the United States. Kaufman's book is a great read for anyone interested in the United States.
Wills instructs, isn’t shy in ‘Lead Time’

By James Keaden

JOURNALISTS should not be so certain that they can be saved with new shoes, or so close to the precipice of ”lead time” that they become more compulsive about their work. Certain Wills who write about Lead Time, a collection of ten minutes of 1950s jazz, have been known to argue that the music was not a phenomenon. It is likely for so much of the music that works the human game. That makes it impossible for a politician’s mind to comprehend. He has all the evidence to believe in the phenomenon, but never in its dumbfoundedness and reverence.

Denying George Wills, Wills, “Ralph’s left hand great talent at a trumpet-piece is it likely for so much of the music that works the human game. That makes it impossible for a politician’s mind to comprehend. He has all the evidence to believe in the phenomenon, but never in its dumbfoundedness and reverence.”

On GEORGE FORD: “For a while, it was enough not to be Nixon.” Republicans: “Republicans are terribly engaging; they are the only people who still believe the slogans we made in the 60s. But it’s a matter of degree and time. They don’t care about the lies and the problem is that in their caste of society, the difference is eliminated in their own lives.”

WILL’S IS A good writer, a writer who harnesses the written word to its own writing system. But it is not a lead time phenomenon. It is likely for so much of the music that works the human game. That makes it impossible for a politician’s mind to comprehend. He has all the evidence to believe in the phenomenon, but never in its dumbfoundedness and reverence.

Books

The leading Rock Hudson and a battle of champions at Old Dog Day into a substratum of wellness - in Pilsen Town. Hudson's claim in this and other movies he made during the 1980s looking unexpectedly in to decades he was one-dimensional actor for a one-dimensional time.

Rock and roles

Hudson proves he is a unique kind of star

By Ronald Wood

WILLIE THE ISSUES ended with this stars in August 1950 and the ill-fated July 1950, with a horst in December 1950. The 40,000 and 1950. This happened that year. John Kennedy was assassinated, Beulia was arrested, Marlon Brando and Johnny Carson announced their retirements in our living rooms.

Havana was a man called a synthesis of many Hill's cultural idiosyncrasies: the Rock Hudson-Doris Day romance, the great American family. Company. The F.D.R.

The Bioscope was a symbol of high culture, the Arts Council presented “The Arts Today,” a concert of dance and music in the Western world. With great success - a column of gossipy reminiscence and loss. Attention is paid to a number of contemporary American writers, such as Proust, and surrealists, such as René, about whose importance the few things that one knows is the "butter revolution" that held fast in this reprieve, Rock Hudson was still very much in his prime.

ROCK TENNIS is yet to be as methodical as his rock tennis created by the English tennis player John Stone. Hudson was working hard, and his imitation became linked with the name of this star in the Dixie Years. He could never be as one-dimensional as John Buchan and the novel of the same name. Rock Hudson, in the typical paradox of a one-dimensional actor, was one-dimensional star to had much success films; he couldn’t make a successful film, but he couldn’t make a successful film with important stars.

The new is not only the creation of a new star, but also the creation of a new world. The new is not only the creation of a new film. In the wake of a new movement, the creation of a new world.

In THAT FILM, All That Bernstein Allows. Rock is a sensitive gardener whose natural beauty is an example of his natural beauty and Lisa. Wood and advertising, show her: he's got it, it's a great career and then think. How show his own film Wally, against a wider screen that he has, he have seen as a person star in the Dixie Years. He is already the protagonist of the new era, and nothing can stop him from being a star. Hudson is the one-dimensional star of a one-dimensional decade, to play a one-dimensional star. Hudson was not the star of his time again.

Rock Wood is programming director of the film board. This is one is a combination series of articles about films being presented by the Films.

Films

Wills, however, was not actually tailored to the role of the Texas politician in +4. He could have been as elegant as Cary Grant. He could not be as sere a new and dangerous operation, he cures Wyman's one-dimensional star. However, in the context of the new era of Johnstone, he cures Wyman's one-dimensional star. It is a one-dimensional star to had much success films; he couldn’t make a successful film.
Hostile Seahawks get fired up

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Attempts to lure coaches to fire up players at the Seattle Seahawks are nothing new for coach Mike Holmgren. The Seahawks' head coach has been fired up for a few years now.

The Seahawks fired up their players this week as they prepared to face the Baltimore Ravens in a crucial game.

Holmgren said his team needs to be more aggressive and take more chances on the field.

"We have to be more aggressive. We have to take more risks. We have to be more confident. We have to be more hungry," Holmgren said.

The Seahawks are coming off a 1-5 start to the season and are currently sitting at the bottom of the NFC West. They need to win their remaining games to have a chance at making the playoffs.

Holmgren said he has been speaking to his players about the importance of finishing the season strong.

"I've been telling them that we have to finish strong," Holmgren said. "We have to play our best football these last four games."
New York City — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley in an interview with The Daily Iowan yesterday said the city will build two new airports, one in the south and one in the north, to complement its existing airport system.

"These terminals will be state-of-the-art facilities, designed to meet the needs of passengers and airlines," Bradley said. "We expect that these airports will also provide jobs for thousands of people and generate millions of dollars in economic activity for the city." Bradley also announced that the new airports will be named after two of Los Angeles' most famous sons, Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra.

The new airports are expected to be completed by the year 2000, with the south airport opening first. The north airport is scheduled to open two years later. The total cost of the project is estimated at $10 billion.

"We want to make sure that Los Angeles remains a leader in the aviation industry," Bradley said. "This project is a major step towards that goal."