hazardous wastes in Iowa By Patricia Thorn aff Write

EPA cites

Iowa produces 1.2 billion pounds of hazardous waste a year, most of which does not break down into the environment, a recently released report by the Iowa Sierra Club states.

There are 59 waste sites in Iowa that have been identified by the Environmental Protection Agency as being "uncontrolled or abandoned," the report states. Three of the sites have been given "highest priority" by the EPA, making the state eligible for matching EPA funds for their cleanup. One of the dumps, the LaBounty dump near the Cedar River south of Charles City, was ranked ninth in a list of sites requiring clean up by Newsweek magazine in December 1982 based on EPA studies.

According to the report, Salsbury Labs, which owns the dump, deposited 6.4 million cubic feet of arsenic sludge and organic wastes between 1953 and 1977 on the 8.5 acre tract of land.

Poisonous compounds have been found in ground-water that discharges into the Cedar River, which supplies drinking water to one third of Iowa's population.

THE OTHER TWO sites are on the Raccoon River in Des Moines and on the Missouri River near Council Bluffs. The report states that informal cost estimates for the cleanup of all of Iowa's hazardous waste sites are about $110 million.

Bret Eggers, office manager for Free Environment, a local student group that researches environmental issues, said there is only one hazardous site in Johnson County, located at the sanitary landfill seven miles west of Iowa City. Bob Libra, a hydrogeologist for the Iowa Geological Survey in Iowa City, said the chemicals detected in the Iowa City water supply are "well below the toxic level considered safe for daily intake." Libra said the eastern half of the state is much more susceptible to hazardous waste seeping into the water table, however, because the bedrock that stores the water is closer to the surface than in the western half of the state

Democrats vote to cut Marine funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) - House committee Democrats, balking at a compromise by Democratic leaders and President Reagan to allow the Marines to stay in Lebanon 18 months, Wednesday voted to cut off funds for the peacekeeping force Dec. 1. The House Appropriations Commit-tee voted 20-16, mostly along party lines, to cut off funds for the Marines if Reagan does not invoke the War Powers Resolution by Dec. 1.

The vote was the first indication of a division among House Democrats over the compromise that would allow the Marines to stay in Lebanon for 18 months.

House Democratic leaders, however, quickly sought to head off the revolt and to keep alive the compromise they agreed on with Reagan and Senate Republicans.

Democratic leader Jim Wright, in a speech on the House floor, called on the House Appropriations Committee to reconsider its action.

THE PROVISION IS expected to be short-lived, because it is attached to a larger spending bill, which is subject to the approval of the full House, the Senate and the president.

In explaining his position, Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., sponsor of the provision, said, "If we don't stand up for our constitutional powers to declare war, then we don't deserve to be elected.'

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., called the committee vote a "clear message to the president" that Congress must have a more clear explanation of why the Marines are in Lebanon. But Rep.

Reagan urges solidarity on Mideast policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Reagan said Wednesday his entire Middle East peace plan could collapse if a cease-fire fails to take hold in Lebanon, but he held out hope the fighting can be stopped.

Despite opposition from Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, Reagan declared, 'We still have reason to believe that we can achieve" a ceasefire.

At the same time, the president sharply criticized senators who argue 18 months is too long for Congress to approve the continued presence of U.S. Marines in Lebanon, calling that view 'absolutely wrong.

The White House and congressional leaders struck a compromise Tuesday to allow the American troops stationed in Beirut to remain for a year and a half under the terms of the War Powers Resolution.

Reagan also repeated his con-tention that the timetable triggered by the war powers act - allowing Congress to order the troops home within 60 days ould only encourage the Moslem opposition to step up its attacks in anticipation that the Marines would be withdrawn. "The efforts for a cease-fire go on. If this fails, the peace plan for the whole Middle East that we have proposed ... based on Camp David and the United Nation's resolutions ... I think also goes," Reagan said. Reagan insisted the Marines' mission as part of the peacekeeping force in Lebanon had not changed, despite his orders giv-ing them added firepower and the ability to call in naval bombardments to support the Lebanese army. The president said he could not guarantee victory for the Lebanese army and that the U.S. naval forces had begun shelling Moslem positions around Beirut on recommendations of American commanders on the scene.

ACCORDING TO THE report, there are nearly 360 hazardous waste spills a vear in Iowa.

Approximately 18,000 Johnson County residents get their drinking water from ground wells. Many of them are "vulnerable" to ground water contamination, the report says. "Due to poor construction, a lot of things can contaminate a ground well. There are agricultural chemicals and nitrates from the run-off of septic tanks and feed lots," Libra said. Eggers said the threat of agricultural chemicals contaminating the water table is escalating because "farmers use more and more (chemicals) all the time."

While most of Iowa's hazardous waste is currently being transported to other states for disposal or treatment, the Sierra Club report says that method will be less viable in the future because the federal government is shifting the regulatory and financial responsibilities for dealing with wastes to the states.

The Sierra Club proposed in the report that the Iowa Legislature approve a comprehensive plan for hazardous waste management as stringent as those in nearby states to keep Iowa from becoming "a dumping ground for hazardous wastes from many states in the upper mid-West."

process of being filled and is expected to re-open for swimming team practices next week. The area has been Trent Lott, R-Miss., said the committee "really needs to take another look at what they've done."

Just hours before the vote, Reagan urged quick approval of the com-promise. He said members of Congress who say an 18-month Marine presence is too long are "shortsighted" and said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is "absolutely wrong" for calling the authorization a "blank check."

If the president did invoke the war powers act, he would then have to withdraw the troops within 60 to 90 days unless Congress specifically authorized them to be there or declared war.

UNDER THE COMPROMISE, Reagan need not invoke the War Powers Resolution, enacted in 1973 in response to the Vietnam War.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said he will try to schedule the compromise resolution for a House vote Sept. 29. "I think the resolution will pass," he said. An aide to Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said the resolution will be considered by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday and the full Senate will begin consideration Monday.

He said the resolution should win Senate approval but, "we'll have to do some selling on our side."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the committee, said the Senate will vote Tuesday or Wednesday on the resolution. He said the House leadership wants the Senate to act first.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia continued his objections to the compromise. "I sense the overwhelming sentiment of my caucus to be against 18 months," Byrd said

Without that support, he said, the Marines position would have been untenable. "They'd be looking down our throats," he said. On another topic, Reagan held out an olive branch to Cuba's Fidel Castro, saying he would ask the communist leader back into the community of Western Hemisphere nations if he moves out from "under the wing of the Soviet Union."

The president said the Soviets have not re-introduced nuclear weapons into Cuba, as agreed in the 1960s by President Kennedy and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushschev, but he believes the "spirit of the agreement has been abrogated."

More mobile home back taxes collected

By John Tieszen

A state law enacted Jan. 1 gives Iowa counties more legal power in collecting delinquent mobile home taxes, which have amounted to more than $100,000 in past years in Johnson County, according to county Treasurer Donald Krall.

The law affects approximately 4,000 mobile homes in Johnson County. The county has collected approximately $75,000 in back taxes during the last year and a half, Krall said. "We have collected a lot of back taxes since it went into effect." Lee Duin, the president of the Iowa State Treasurers' Association, said of the law, "It's starting to do its job." The law, which has no official name and Duin called the "mobile tax collection procedure," gives counties new methods for collecting delinquent taxes.

One of the changes resulting from the new law is that delinquent taxes owed by mobile home owners must be published in the official county newspapers, Krall said. Johnson County's official newspapers are the Iowa City Press-Citizen, the Solon Economist, the Coralville Weekly Courier and the Lone Tree Reporter.

KRALL SAID the publishing of delinquent taxpayers names is necessary because "some people did not even know they owed taxes." Publishing the names will also give banks that have mortgaged the homes information on which of their customers owe taxes, he said

The law also requires counties to send statements of delinquency to mobile home owners, Krall said. "Now that we are sending out notices, if people think they will lose their homes, they will pay up," he said.

Counties now also have the legal right to sell mobile homes if delinquent taxes are not paid, Krall said. A person is allowed four years to pay back taxes, he said. If the taxes are not paid by that time, the county can have a real estate sale and sell the property to anyone who pays the delinquent taxes along with any penalties.

The law treats mobile homes as real estate and that makes a difference in the collection process, Krall said. Before the law was enacted, delinquent taxpayers had to pay a monthly penalty equal to 5 percent of their total tax. If a mobile home owner owed two or three years of back taxes, along with the penalties, they could leave their home rather than pay. Many of them did tologic Day Care Center. because their homes were not worth the cost, Krall said. THE PENALTY on delinquent mobile home taxes under the new law is 1 percent - the same as for real estate, Krall said. The final change requires mobile home owners to pay their delinquent taxes before they sell or move their homes, Krall said. Prior to Jan. 1, mobile home owners could move their homes instead of paying their delinquent taxes and the county had no way of knowing where they went or if it would be able to collect the taxes, he said. "The people could go for a long time (without paying) or even get out of it.

Krall said the old procedure to collect delinquent mobile home taxes "had no teeth in it." Originally, the state treasurer's office would send field investigators into Iowa's 99 counties to search through county treasurer's books and send out summons, he said. "They would come to our office and then go to the mobile home parks."

Krall said there was, at best, one investigation a year. "The state did not have time to come down that often."

ANOTHER PROCEDURE that was used required the county treasurer's office to inform the county sheriff's office which mobile home residents owed back taxes, Krall said. The sheriff's office would then send out distress warrants to those people. But this procedure also caused problems by requiring sheriff's offices to spend a great deal of time distributing distress warrants, he said.

Many times the distress warrants 'got put on the back burner," Duin said

The new law was suggested by the Iowa State Treasurers' Association, Krall said. "We had 12 members on the (treasurers' association) committee and we tried to come up with all types of ideas." The committee worked on the proposal for three years, Krall said

UI researcher sues for job restoration

By Janet Marie Sims Staff Writer

After being fired from his position as a UI biochemistry post-doctoral research associate, effective Sept. 20, Dr. Yoshihisa Iwai filed a suit in Iowa District Court Tuesday asking that his job be restored. The suit claims UI Associate Biochemistry Professor Joseph Walder fired Iwai Sept. 3 because of 'rudeness" and inadequate research work.

But during the time Iwai worked at the UI, he had a good work record, according to the suit. He was reappointed to his position July 1 and his salary was increased from $18,000 to $20,000.

"I CANNOT imagine any reason to be terminated," Iwai said.

Iwai, a citizen of Japan, is seeking citizenship in the United States. To be eligible for citizenship Iwai must conform to the U.S. Department of Immigration rules that require him to be employed while he is here.

Because he has lost his job Iwai will have to submit a new petition for citizenship, a process which will take more than six months.

During this time the suit claims that Iwai will not be allowed to live or work in the United States.

"I think I will be deported," Iwai said. "My visa is based on my working

Defendants named in the suit are UI President James O. Freedman, Dean of the UI College of Medicine John Eckstein, Head of the UI Department of Biochemistry Edward Heath and Walder. The suit states that Iwai will suffer irreputable harm because of his termination and that the UI failed to provide him with a hearing or any method to challenge the decision for his termination.

ACCORDING TO the suit, Iwai has exhausted all possible methods available within the UI to review his case

Iwai was given the choice to resign or be terminated; he never submitted a verbal or written resignation, the suit states

Iwai is asking the court to permanently reinstate him in his job. The suit states the defendants' termination of Iwai was "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious." Walder refused to comment because "the matter is in litigation and personnel matters within the university are confidential."

Dean Laster praises Freedman proposals

By Kirk Brown

UI College of Liberal Arts faculty gathered Wednesday "in a primarily ceremonial meeting" to hear the college's dean tell them they should carefully consider UI President James O. Freedman's proposals for the UI's future.

"This is certainly one of the more important things we have had to consider here in a long time," said Howard Laster, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

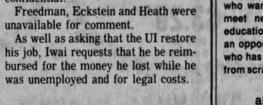

Laster said Freedman has urged the deans of each college to discuss the proposals within their colleges. Therefore I am going to solicit written views on these proposals from individuals and departments within the College of Liberal Arts," Laster said. Laster said he finds the plans "very exciting" and is pleased, in times of increasing enrollments and decreasing state funds, that Freedman "has the ability to think big ... to think about what the university can do." Laster admitted "the feasibility of the fund raising must be assured and other details must be shaped" before the plan should be fully supported. "However, I still think that is important that the university begin preparing to make major changes along these lines." he said. LASTER MENTIONED two aspects of Freedman's proposals that "would have particular interest for the Liberal Arts (College):" plans for the creation of a center for advanced study that would be concentrated in the study of American culture and an increased number of faculty member endowments. In his speech Laster also addressed some of the current dilemmas plaguing the college 'Last year was a particularly interesting year and this year is going to be a particularly challenging one," Laster said. "Together that is a code word for trouble

Despite acknowledging the college was struggling to handle "a large expansion in students," Laster stressed 'not everything is dismal and bleak." "The number of incoming students finally decreased this year." Laster pointed out. In an effort to assess the effectiveness of the college, Laster told the faculty the "College of Liberal Arts is conducting a rigorous review of itself." Laster said as part of this review a comprehensive self-study of the college and its departments was completed by a "blue ribbon panel" last "THIS FALL, a vigorous academic review of each department has begun," he said. "I think we can expect to hear a lot more from this in the coming months. Laster also announced that Hugh Kelso, who has been associate dean of the college, has decided to step down from his post to return to teaching "in preparation for his retirement." For the time being Kelso's position will be filled by two part-time officials. "We think it would be unwise to hire a replacement for him until the current review of the college is completed," Laster said. The meeting began with the customary introduction of the 38 new faculty members in the college.

We hoped to have more new faculty members this year," Laster said. "But instead enrollment grew by 6 percent and state funding was cut by 2.8 percent.'

After Laster's speech, the faculty followed the recommendations of the college's executive committee and voted to change the name of the School of Library Science to the School of Library and Information Science.

Declining public school enrollment 'bottoms out' reorganization decision was made. By Robyn Griggs Staff Writer

Enrollment figures for the Iowa City Community School District show a decrease of 33 students attending public schools this year, but declining enrollment of recent years is "kind of bottoming out," Superintendant of Schools David Cronin said.

A total of 8,226 residents and 74 nonresidents are enrolled in the Iowa City Community Schools. Although the total is down from last year, Cronin said the largest decrease in students is at the secondary level.

Based on the figures, the district is projecting a district-wide enrollment increase for the next 10 to 15 years, but expects a decrease at the secondary level.

"It appears, in the best estimation, that the period of enrollment decline for the decade is at an end, and we should see a bit of increase in future years," he said.

But he said the rising enrollment will not create overcrowding problems in the high schools even though the ninth grade was added to the high school level. These projections were taken into account when the grade

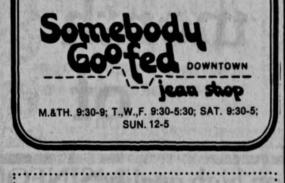

THE DISTRICT can predict secondary level enrollments for approximately 10-15 years, and using "a variety of projections from a variety of sources, everyone was pretty much in total agreement that the decline at the secondary level will follow the decline that has already passed in the elementary schools," Cronin said. This decline began between 1975 and

1980. In this five-year period, the number of students entering kindergarten dropped from about 855 to below 600, a 'significant difference," according to Cronin ability to leap or follow and dance to Latin Salsa

The total number of students entering kindergarten this year is 671. This slight increase is the basis for projections that the increases will begin at the kindergarten level.

"The increase should start in the kindergarten level, but the size of classes coming through will not necessarily be that much larger than now," Cronin

"We're projecting it to kind of level off and then increase. The increase will first be felt at the elementary level, and we will, in a sense, be rebounding to where we have been.

Proposals revised for Geneva talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Despite ension caused by the Korean jetliner lowning, President Reagan said Wedsday the United States has taken a flexible new stance at the Geneva talks with the Soviet Union on limiting edium-range nuclear missiles.

After consultations with the NATO llies and Japan, Reagan said he has ordered chief negotiator Paul Nitze to ursue a new set of initiatives during he latest and most critical round of talks, which began Sept. 5. Reagan, in a statement issued by the other.

White House, said the new proposals are designed to move closer to negotiation of interim limits on medium-range missiles and "address a number of Soviet concerns.

"The U.S. action in taking these additional steps is further demonstration of U.S. commitment, and that of our allies, to achieving a positive outcome in the Geneva talks," he said.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes stressed the new proposals, which were to be placed before the Soviets either Wednesday or Thursday, are consistent with conditions previously set down by Reagan. He stressed Nitze has been given "great flexibility" in his pursuit of an agreement.

THE MODIFICATIONS in the U.S. bargaining position, outlined by Reagan in recent letters to allied leaders, appear aimed at several major sticking points cited by the Soviets in the Intermediate Nuclear Force

'wired into'' the plan and he would not back an 18-month extension unless the administration offers "a better iustification.

BUT REAGAN EXPRESSED hope

Reagan's statement came as the chief U.S. delegate to the negotiations on long-range missiles, or START, said in an interview that the United States and the Soviets might be able to reach a preliminary agreement on arms reduction before the end of the year.

START negotiator Edward Rowny told The Washington Post Wednesday the agreement could be possible by Christmas if Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are talking to each

Last week, Gromyko cancelled his visit to the United Nations that was to have included talks with Shultz. Gromyko's move came after the United States refused to overrule an order by the governors of New York and New Jersey barring airports in the New York area to the Soviet diplomat.

Barring an agreement, the United States is to begin stationing the first of 464 cruise missiles in Europe in December, with the Pershings to follow The officials, in their public and private statements, did not take issue with published reports that the United States will seek missile parity only in Europe, as long as the Soviets froze missile deployments in Asia.

Although the United States would have the right to match the Soviets in the Asian theater, there are no plans to do. so.

U.S. supplies Nicaraguan exiles

United Press International

U.S. troops participating in controversial maneuvers in Honduras began airlifting food and supplies to 13,400 Nicaraguan Indians living in exile near the tense border between Nicaragua and Honduras, the U.S. Embassy announced.

In Nicaragua, the government announced on the radio it had defeated an attempt by Pastora's group, ARDE, to seize El Castillo, a border strong point near Costa Rica, killing 11 rightist insurgents.

The U.S. troops left their Honduras base early Wednesday for the Mosquitia zone in Gracias a Dios province along the Caribbean coast, where many of the estimated 13,400 Misquitos, Sumos and Rama Indians from Nicaragua live. They have fled Nicaragua since the 1979 Sandinista takeover, charging oppression.

Some 4,000 and 5,000 American troops will eventually participate in maneuvers that Nicaragua has labeled a prelude to an invasion.

The soldiers will bring the Indians enough food for three months, which will be distributed by the World Relief Agency and the U.N. High Commission for Refugees, the embassy said.

HONDURAN AND U.S. officials have said the maneuvers are part of efforts to improve the military readiness of Honduran troops.

Honduran opposition figures have also criticized the maneuvers as opening the danger of attacks on Honduras

The Nicaraguan government Wednesday criticized Washington for denying visas to Nicaraguan officials but granting one to rebel leader Eden Pastora, charging he would use the trip to raise money to buy weapons.

The government radio Voz de Nicaragua attacked the Reagan administration for denying a visa last week to Carlos Nunuz, president of the Council of State and to Roberto Arguello Hurtado, president of the Supreme Court.

The officials were invited to meet with congressmen in Washington to study U.S. election laws. They were also expected to use the trip to lobby against the administration's aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

NO REASON WAS given for the refusal, Nicaragua said.

"The United States, the Reagan administration, however, has given a visa to the 'traitor' Eden Pastora, to visit that country," the radio said. Pastora, the former Sandinista assistant defense minister, leads the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, also known as ARDE, an

The radio, quoting the Defense Ministry, said Pastora would undertake a campaign to raise funds to buy weapons and ammunition to attack Nicaragua.

Pastora's group announced Tuesday in Costa Rica that it had assembled a fleet of 15 small planes, all bought in the United States, to carry out a new wave of air attacks against Nicaragua. The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry said ARDE forces mounted a series of attacks, with the strongest coming Monday, on the army post of El Castillo, 108 miles south of Managua but only about two miles from the Costa Rican border.

The Nicaraguan army repelled a rebel attack on a key garrison, killing at least 11 guerrillas commanded by former Sandinista revolutionary hero Eden Pastora, the Defense Ministry said Wednes-

A ministry communique said rebels of ARDE tried repeatedly Monday to capture the garrison at El Castillo, 110 miles southeast of Managua. A ministry communique said the rebel band crossed into Nicaragua from Costa Rica to launch the attacks.

The 11 killed included a commander named "El Aguila" or "the Eagle," the communique said. The rebels' radio, La Voz de Sandino, claimed its forces held El Castillo for three days, but later "abandoned the position for military strategy."

Censor thyself first

One may speak of Ronald Reagan's "war is peace" mentality in terms of Orwellian totalitarianism and possibly be justified. Certainly the government and, more frighteningly still, private corporations have the ability to find out any bit of information about any individual in this country they choose. And every person is fast becoming a mere series of numerals in many different data banks.

1984 is next year, and these aspects of our lives cannot be ignored within that context. But the most frightening instance of mind-control of them all - the banning of books for many based on the opinons of a few - continues unabated and on a national level. When Florida parents prohibit Ray Bradbury's panhumanist, truly universalist classic The Martian Chronicles to their highschool-aged children on the grounds that it contains "several instances of profanity" and allegedly "uses God's name in vain," this is patent hypocrisy - any television show a child is likely to watch this season will have more "profane" expletives in its script than Bradbury has in his whole canon.

Parents in a Virginia county have complained of the "sexually offensive passages" in The Diary of Anne Frank. This is even more disturbing: Anne Frank was brutalized and indeed martyred during her flight from Nazi persecution, and the whole work is a triumph of devotion, faith and the steadfastness of the human spirit - hardly "offensive" themes, especially since most parents who object to books of this ilk consider themselves "good Christians." Are not faith and devotion Christian virtues?

But when copies of the American Heritage Dictionary itself are banned on the grounds of "obscenity," this is clearly going too far. If words in and of themselves are considered connotative of lewdness completely out of any context whatsoever, then let us have knights in armor and begin a Seventh Crusade, for a new Dark Ages would surely come upon us if words themselves are suspect.

The Library Bill of Rights clearly states that materials from all points of view should be available to borrowers. That seems only logical in this country, which has always prided itself on its free thought and speech principles. And it is also logical - and right that parents themselves be the only judges of what constitutes "offensive" as regards the materials that their own children read. But if self-appointed watchdogs of the public morals are continually allowed to censor with impunity the informational systems of the country, based on wholly subjective criteria, then the United States' literary vigor, which only now approaches maturity, will become a subject for historians - and not children - to investigate.

World diminished without whales

By Allen Murray

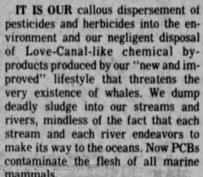

NLY A LITTLE light filters lown to illuminate the depths of the sea. Here, amidst an aquamarine translucense, exists a serenity most of us will never experience. It is a place of unbelievable beauty. Of wonder. Of solitude. For those who think, it is a place conducive to thinking, to contemplation. It is a place inhabited by diverse lifeforms - some of them never beheld by human eyes. A place of hauntingly subtle, yet complex sounds.

of communications, a sense of ethics? What can be said of this immense creature that is paradoxically gentle, often forgiving? That has an ability to explore freely the depths of the ocean. That holds a knowledge and familiarity with organisms and places on earth that we may never dream existed. What can be said about whales?

Here's what can be said: They're profitable. They're a limited natural 'resource,'' They're marvelously adapted to their natural environment.

the Soviet Union, and other whaling nations for their continuance of the slaughter. After all, it's easy to forget that only a few years ago we, too, were a whaling nation - blandly hunting down these giant, intelligent creatures and packaging them into tiny little cans to feed to our cats. We, too, helped to hunt the whales to the brink of extinction.

Today, it's easy to overlook the fact that it is not only the pursuit of whales by the whaling nations that threatens

After initially handling the Russian attack on the Korean airliner with commendable restraint, President Reagan and congressional conservatives have drawn precisely the wrong lesson from the event.

Warning that "we live in a dangerous world with cruel people who reject our ideals," Reagan said that the attack was justification for the MX missile and increased military spending. He and others have in effect said, "see, we told you the Soviets were brutal and untrustworthy."

That response is an obfuscation. No one but the most willfully naive believed the Soviet leaders to be gentle, honorable and tender-hearted. The system is brutal, aggressive and repressive, though less so than during the days of Stalin, and it requires brutal, aggressive and repressive men and women to survive and advance in it. The Soviets are paranoid and will cheat if they can and skirt the edges if they cannot cheat outright.

It is precisely because of those characteristics and because, like it or not, we inhabit the same fragile earth, that arms control is needed. The Soviet system clearly will not permit an enemy such as the United States to gain a decided military advantage. So each weapons build-up by the United States will be matched sooner or later by the Soviets. That in turn feeds conservative paranoia in this country, and prompts another escalation, creating an endless and dangerous spiral upwards in the weapons of war.

Indeed if the Soviets were benevolent pacifists, it would not matter to the United States what weapons it developed. That they are not is what makes the amount and sophistication of nuclear weapons in this world so dangerous. But the solution is not to point to their brutality and promote an arms race, but to use every tactic to bring about arms reductions.

locked minds, it is a place of awesome, unspeakable, indescribable beauty. And it is here, to the depths of the ocean, that one of the earth's most powerful, most beautiful, most intelligent creatures retreats one last time ... to hold its breath ... one last time ... before surfacing ... one last time ... to glimpse the sun ... one last time ... to encounter the human race ... one last time. For in this brief final encounter with the human race, powerful explosives will be launched deep into its body ... and detonated.

Within half-an-hour, its once powerful and magnificent body will be completely dismembered, its unborn calf ripped from its womb, and its warm blood spilled back into the seas. Within half-an-hour, yet another whale will have been converted into commodities. And the whaling-factory ship will continue about its business of searching for, and "harvesting," more whales.

ONE BY ONE, the remaining whales are hunted down. Day in and day out they are pursued and slaughtered. And the hunt is not a sporting one. Today, commercial whaling relies on sonar and high-technology to locate a whale, to pursue it, to track it during the long, deep, final dive it makes in an ultimately vain attempt to escape an explosive death. And when the whale's lungs finally give out and it makes its way back to the surface of the sea, the whaling-factory will be waiting.

What can be said of this mammal which possesses a brain in some ways more complex than our own? That has developed a social structure, a system

Acid rain, Love Canal, Three Mile Island, disposable diapers, and Dioxin ... they're all inter-related. Our pollution is pervasive. To believe that the whale will not escape the consequences, but that for some unknown reason we will, is absolute madness.

IF WE DO, indeed, kill off what may be the most magnificent and splendid creature on earth in our quest for the American Dream, will we then realize that we have gone too far? Or will we be so blinded by our pursuit of material wealth that we will have no time to pause and think of what we have done?

Millions of years before our own existence, the whales had long since walked and explored the surface of the earth and stepped back into the seas. They have been with us always - and then some. And though most of us may never even see them during our short lifetime, do not for even a single moment think that the glory of our own existence will not be markedly diminished on a planet without whales.

Whales ... their extinction will almost certainly come about within our own lifetime. And it will tell us more about human greed, human insensitivity, human stupidity, human ignorance, human indifference and human disregard for life than we could ever, ever, ever want to know.

What evidence?

To the editor:

In his sarcastic response to a Linda Schuppener editorial Wes Schlenker writes that "the Nicaraguans deny sending any arms to Salvadoran rebels, blatantly lying in the face of overwhelming evidence" (DI, Sept. 7). I challenge Schlenker to cite some of this "overwhelming evidence" that he claims to possess, but that even the Reagan administration hasn't been able to produce. The "White Paper" on this subject released in February 1981 has long since been discredited, even by such conservative media as The Wall Street Journal

The "supporting documents" and the paper's summary didn't match. So, for example, while the summary claimed to show that 200 tons of Soviet-bloc weapons had poured into El Salvador the "supporting documents" only showed the Soviets buying a plane ticket for Salvadoran Communist Party chief Handel. Since that time the administration has been unable to produce evidence of one single arms shipment moving from Nicaragua to El Salvador, despite the commitment of sophisticated radar planes, naval vessels and thousands of troops to this task. Nor have journalists touring rebel-controlled areas seen any evidence of such arms caches.

The fact is that the Nicaraguans can't afford to give arms to the Salvadorans; they need them too badly themselves. Also, the Salvadoran rebels are able to get arms elsewhere they capture them in battle or buy them from corrupt officers, of which the Salvadoran Army has no shortage. The gun-running charge against the Sandinistas is a propaganda ploy with two purposes: First, it is a feeble attempt to explain the military successes of the Salvadoran rebels without referring to the real reasons, which are popular support and superior morale - after all, even if they were receiving all these alleged arms, they would still be outgunned by their opponents. The rebels don't fly around in Huey helicopters.

Second, it gives Washington a pretext for attacking Nicaragua. But the real weapon the Sandinistas are exporting isn't arms or guerrillas; it is the example of a successful revolution. Paul Dougan

A holy crusade

To the editor: Students for Traditional American

Freedoms and their merry band of political misfits are on the road again, this time to mount a holy crusade against the likely possibility of Tom 1015 Oakcrest

Harkin being elected Iowa's next senator. But in the midst of their careful fund-raising and strategy planning they have failed to realize one thing: the New Right and their tactics simply will not work. No longer are people, especially students, going to swallow their lies, half-truths and misrepresentations concerning Democratic candidates.

In 1984, students will recollect the bumbling incompetence which conservatives have given us over the past few years. In 1984, students are not going to be impressed by the fact that STAF-PAC has $30,000 to use to spread slanderous accusations. Rather, they are going to be impressed by the candidate who shares their beliefs and goals, and give that candidate their support. And in 1984, that candidate will be Tom Harkin. Phil Roeder

"WE ARE TRYING to avoid bloodshed; we are trying to avoid a revolution, but Marcos won't listen to us," said opposition leader Salvador Laurel.

More than 1,500 riot police, some in full battle gear and backed by armored cars, blocked all approaches to Marcos' palace as about 5,000 young protestors broke away from the main march and surged through the streets. The protesters chanted "Marcos: Hitler, dictator, dog," and "Marcos Resign." They lit a bonfire in the road and attacked police with a barrage of rocks, Molotov cocktails and small homemade grenades. When the police did not respond, the jeering demonstrators rushed a bridge the riot squad was using as a first line of defense and set two buses and a crane ablaze.

Finally, police charged out from behind the burning buses in force, swinging truncheons and firing into the crowd of protesters. The demonstrators turned and ran down a wide boulevard toward the university. Within minutes the streets were deserted except for riot squads and pockets of demonstrators playing cat and mouse with troops down sidestreets.

The protests marked the 11th anniversary of the 1972 imposition of martial law and the first month after Aquino's killing at Manila Airport as he returned from three years of self-exile in the United States.

Tehran threatens to bottle up gulf

LONDON (UPI) — As the Iran-Iraq war nears its third anniversary today, Tehran is again threatening to bottle up the Persian Gulf.

The Gulf's latest troubles started in 1982, when Argentina successfully used French-made Exocet missiles against the British navy in the Falklands war.

Ferguson Jenkins hadn't won in relief in seven years, and he couldn't have picked a worse spot to end that streak from the Pittsburgh Pirates' point of view.

Larry Bowa's infield RBI single capped a two-run seventh inning Wednesday that lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 7-6 victory over the fumbling Pirates. The loss was Pittsburgh's 10th straight at Wrigley Field over two seasons and its eighth straight this year.

Australia victorious, title hopes still alive

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) - Australia II staved off elimination Wednesday in the battle for the America's Cup, winning her second race over a luckless Liberty shackled with a damaged

The Aussies crossed the finish line one minute, 47 seconds ahead of the Americans, who'still lead the best-ofseven series, 3-2.

The wing-keeled yacht became the first foreign boat to win a second race against the defender since 12-meter racing started in 1958.

"This proves we can win in any wind conditions," said skipper John Bertrand, after beating the 25th U.S. defender in the strong winds usually considered Liberty's domain. "It was a do-or-die effort.'

WHILE WELL-WISHERS aboard spectator craft honked their congratulations and miniature cannons fired, Bertrand said: "I feel a lot better than at the start," when Australia II jumped the mark and had to begin left-handed hitter, then clouted a oneand-one pitch over the right-field fence for his sixth home run.

LUIS SALAZAR'S double with two out in the top of the inning scored Garry Templeton to snap a 3-3 tie. Templeton forced pinch runner George Hinshaw, went to second on a wild pitch by Gary Lavelle, 7-4, and came across when Salazar lined the ball off the left-center field fence.

San Diego pinch hitter Joe Lansford hit his first major league home run.

But Liberty remained one victory away from keeping sports' longest winning streak alive - the 132-year American domination of the world's most coveted yachting trophy.

"I won't feel comfortable until we win," Dennis Conner said, explaining how the broken jumper strut, a device supporting the mast, "crippled our chances" on the 24.3-mile course in Rhode Island Sound.

"Thirty minutes before the race we had no forward jumper," Conner said. "We sent our fastest boat back to Newport Harbor to get a spare and had two crewmen dismantle the equipment."

THE NEW part arrived and was installed two minutes before the start, but Conner said it broke again on the first leg, giving Australia II the opportunity to surge into the lead. The Aussies dominated the race, rounding every mark ahead, playing the shifts in the 15-to-20 knot winds, carefully guarding her lead and using recut sails to maximum advantage. "We can't make any more mistakes," said Australia II Syndicate Chairman Alan Bond. "We've got to win the next two and we will. Aussies always do their best when their backs are against the wall." Despite the impaired mast, Conner reduced the Aussie margin from 1:11 to :52 seconds, rounding the fifth buoy by switching to a lighter genoa as the winds dipped and the rolling seas calmed.

CONNER SAID he did not use his option to call for a day off Thursday "because I'm hopeful things will be back in order" with the Twelves squaring off in predicted heavy 15 to 20 knot

After the dismal Aussie start handed Liberty a :37 lead, Bertrand roared back to dominate the race as Conner became increasingly occupied with the broken gear.

The wing-keeled boat's victory came In the heavy air conditions Liberty previously dominated. Ironically, Liberty's third victory Tuesday was in light winds where Australia II has previously prevailed. With Liberty pitching into the water and her mainsail luffing up, the Aussies covered every move the redhulled American boat made to pass her

While Liberty was still sailable and able to tack, the mast problem slowed her down on the haze-covered course. It was the third time in five final races equipment breakdowns have crippled a boat - the first two times costing Australia II the race.

Hufford braced to tackle the Buckeyes

By Brad Zimanek Special to The Daily Iowan

Iowa defensive tackle Paul Hufford has come back from two knee operations to become a valuable part of the Hawkeyes' interior line.

Hufford came to Iowa from Mt. Vernon, Iowa, where he was a two-time all-state football player. He was recruited as a nose guard, but was moved to tackle when a serious knee injury during his senior year of high school limited his mobility. The injury, which occured during a prep wrestling match, tore the ligaments and cartilage in Hufford's right knee. The 6-foot-3, 255-pound junior has worn a knee brace while competing ever since the injury, and said the brace has felt pretty comfortable ever since the beginning of last year.

COMING INTO this season, Hufford had limited experience while playing most of last season behind Mark Bortz. "Saturday (against Penn State) I played in 81 plays," he said. "It was a big change - playing a lot because the most I played in a game last year was 30 plays. I was tired near the end of the and ready to challenge Wisconsin, Friday, and a tough Minnesota squad, Saturday.

Iowa has had some success with Wicsonsin in the past, splitting two games with the Badgers last season. The Hawkeyes are still winless in 15 tries against the Gophers.

Junior Julie Micheletti said after the UNI game she and her teammates will be physically ready to battle Wisconsin, Friday night.

"OKLAHOMA didn't put enough pressure on Tomczak," Hufford said, 'I think we can get back there quicker than Oklahoma did, even though this will probably be the best offensive line we've faced so far this year."

Iowa's defense will be using different formations against Ohio State to keep the Buckeye offense guessing, according to Hufford.

THE HAWKEYE defensive unit appears to be solid even though the Hawks did give up a lot of yardage and points last weekend. ## Hassard: Course record to fall as runners race in Iowa Open

By Greg Anderson

Finkbine Golf Course may be the site of some record shattering performances this weekend when the second Iowa women's cross country Open of the year begins Saturday at 10 a.m. Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard has assembled some of the best competiton in the Midwest to race against his defending Big Ten champions and says that the course record might even be in jeopardy.

"It's very possible that the course record could go ... it is going to be a very fast race," Hassard said.

The Finkbine standard was set last fall (Nov. 6), when Wisconsin's Cathy Branta raced to a time of 17 minutes, 25 seconds to lead the Badgers' secondplace showing in the Big Ten Championships.

ONE OF THOSE runners right behind Branta at the conference meet was none other than Iowa's Nan Doak. The senior placed third with a time of 17:35 and is one of those expected to be in contention for the course record on Saturday. The Hedrick, Iowa, native has certainly been off to a fast start this season, claiming first place in both meets and setting a meet record in the Illinois State Invitational (17:04.9). Doak also tied with fellow Hawkeye

Jenny Spangler for the best time at Finkbine this season, a 17:55 clocking in the Iowa Open I, but Hassard thinks that time should be "obliterated" on Saturday.

The Iowa coach says one person who will be especially dangerous is Tori Newbauer, a senior from Wisconsin-LaCrosse, a school that will enter 26 runners in the meet.

NEWBAUER IS the defending NCAA Division III cross country champion and has often dueled Doak in the past. She competed here last year and finished second to Doak in one of the Iowa Invitationals."

Hassard admits that Doak may be the favorite going into Saturday's competition, but also adds that she will feel a very strong challenge from Newbauer.

'She (Newbauer) is really going to push Nan this year and I expect a strong performance from her," Hassard said. "I expect a high level of competition." Among those who will be shooting for Doak and Newbauer, along with a course record, is Spangler.

The Hawkeye junior crossed the finish line in second place at last week's Illinois State meet with a time of 17:11. TWO OTHER distance standouts who will push the leaders are Drake's Letha Davis and Jodi Eder from Minnesota. Davis was an All-American two years ago but had to sit out last season because of injury problems. Eder, on the other hand, is a runner on the rise. She was a "top Big Ten placer" last year. With all that talent coming into Iowa City, Western Illinois will also be competing. Hassard feels this could be the right meet at the right time for his Hawkeyes.

"This is the level of competition we need and are ready for," he said. "It's one of the bigger home meets that we've

Hawkeye harriers open season; looking for win against Augustana

By J.B. Glass Staff Writer

The Iowa men's cross country team gets into the running this weekend, when they entertain Augustana, of Rock Island, Ill., in its opening meet of the season, Saturday morning at Finkbine Golf Course

The Hawkeyes defeated Augustana last year by the score of 42-16 and look for the same results again. According to Coach Ted Wheeler, Augustana has a fine middle distance program. "In division III they are an excellent team," he said. "However, some people just look at us and think we're not all that good - they see a seventh place team in a conference of 10 - that is deceptive to them. We're in one of the toughest conferences in the country." Wheeler said, "We should be able to prevail if we run well."

The Hawkeves look to use this dual meet as a kind of warm-up to the tougher meets that will follow.

WHEELER SAID that he wants a "controlled race" by Iowa. "We want to run a controlled race and not come out of it with a lot of fatigue," he said. Iowa will probably go with their top five runners. Evan Clarrissimeaux, Michael Diment, John Dobbs, Dan Waters and Al Greene will run in the four-mile event

Wheeler said that Paul Chepkwony, from Kenya, will probably be the Hawkeyes sixth man. Chepkwony is regularly a half-miler and hurdler.

The Hawkeye coach said the cooler weather conditions shouldn't have much of an effect on the meet. "No matter the weather, the best team usually wins," he said.

The coach said he tells his team that the wind is one of the things that is a factor in the Midwest. His goal is to use the weather to the teams advantage, by working with it to build the runner both physically and mentally. However, Wheeler said, "We don't focus on the weather, but the opponent."

"WE RESPECT lowa," said Augustana Coach Paul Olsen, "but we feel we're good too.

"We know Iowa is good just because of the fact that they are in the Big Ten. It's always fun to run against a Big Ten team.'

This will be Augustana's second meet of the young season. In their last meet, the All-American meet, the Vikings finished third in a field of 23 teams.

Augustana is paced by Steve Gramsch, an All-American two years ago. Gramsch has been slowed following surgery but Olsen said he is back in his old form

Eric Volkert, a two-time national qualifier will also aid the Vikings.

Shemi Sabag, an Israeli native, who is described as "an excellent distance runner" by Olsen, will also help out. Olsen believes with Sabag the team is much better.

The Viking coach is looking for a closer meet this year. "I think it will be a better meet."

Security could be Olympic headache LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Perhaps the most grueling challenge of the 1984 Olympics is that facing security planners.

Sports

Twenty-three events will be spread over an area exceeding Los Angeles County's sprawling 4,000 square miles. Some will be 200 miles apart. The unprecedented use of two Olympic villages to house 10,000 athletes, at the dormitories of cross-town rivals USC and UCLA. and President Reagan's appearance at opening ceremonies only add to the worries.

FBI Director William Webster has called the Olympics "an enormous opportunity for hostile intelligence operations." One police commander reckoned "every conflict that exists anywhere in the world is represented on both sides somewhere in Southern California.

A VIRTUAL army of 16,000-17,000 law officers will be deployed during the Olympiad, representing 60 enforcement agencies from the state Highway Patrol, the Secret Service and Coast Guard to the Drug Enforcement Agency and the Pentagon.

In addition, the FBI is training a crack 42member anti-terrorism squad, which will stand at the ready in Washington. Army Col. Charles Beckwith, leader of the unsuccessful 1980 Iranian hostage rescue mission, was assigned by the White House to assess anti-terrorist plans. In an interim report, he cited a lack of cooperation among law enforcement agencies as a major problem and called for appointment of a czar to coordinate the federal role in Olympic security.

EDGAR BEST, a career FBI agent and former chief of the agency's Los Angeles bureau, is the head of security for the Games. He insisted there will be no conflict over jurisdiction.

"The lead agency will depend on where dif-ferent situations take place," he said in an interview. "That will clearly be worked out in written form as well as in training exercises. We will exercise these potential problems to resolve and make sure there is no confusion." Best said the massive area the games will cover can actually be an advantage. "The fact we are in a number of jurisdictions brings to bear that much more law enforcement resources," he said. The use of two Olympic villages, as well as satellite housing more than 100 miles up the coast in Santa Barbara, gives planners a chance to "pick and choose" the location of foreign athletes to maximize security and minimize potential conflicts, Best said.

BEST HAS refused to say how much is budgeted for security, insisting there is no budget per se.

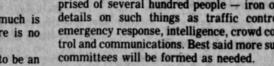

"We consider the security budget to be an ### evolving one," Best said. "It's quite possible that just weeks or days before the opening ceremony we may decide to add additional security to areas where we feel it's weak." The figure is certain to run into tens of millions of dollars, based on tentative calculations from the various governmental agencies involved.

Olympic officials say the organizing committee will reimburse local governments "for the services that are necessary."

Planners have visited Asia, the Middle East and Europe to gather information on fighting terrorism. Best toured the Munich site of the 1972 terrorist attack on Israeli athletes.

A nine-member planning committee meets biweekly while 16 subcommittees - comprised of several hundred people - iron out details on such things as traffic control, emergency response, intelligence, crowd con-trol and communications. Best said more sub-

Lightfoot LP thrives on simplicity

By Steve Horowitz

Films

Gordon Lightfoot, Salute, Warner Brothers 23901-1

ORDON LIGHTFOOT began as a young Canadian folk musician back in 1963. His original material such as "Early Mornin' Rain," "For Lovin' Me" and "Did She Mention My Name" was popularized by artists including Bob Dylan, Peter Paul & Mary and Eric Anderson. Like these individuals, Lightfoot became more of a rock and roller after the British Invasion. Lightfoot had a string of hits during the '60s and early '70s - "Sundown,' "If You Could Read My Mind" and

'Black Day in July'' were among the most popular. However, his commercial viability decreased over time. Then in 1976 Lightfoot scored big again with a freak hit about a shipping acci-dent, "The Wreck of The Edmund Fitzgerald." Lightfoot continued to make some interesting records, although, he has been unable to repeat his big success since that time. Salute is Lightfoot's 17th album. It has a bit more bounce than most of his more recent efforts, but is still somewhat laid-back. Lightfoot blames this on the record company. He says he wants to rock out more often but Warner Brothers just won't let him.

Bloopers and More is a pretty self-

STILL, SALUTE is Lightfoot's best album in years. The production does not suffer from a lushness of strings other records from the late '70s and '80s. In fact, the best songs are the most simple ones -- "Knotty Pine" and "Tattoo." On these cuts Lightfoot plays guitar and sings alone; with only a synthesizer providing a soft counterpoint to the gruffness of his voice.

The songs on Salute are about typical Lightfoot themes: bittersweet love, the great outdoors and being on the road. The care that went into the songwriting is evident. Each cut is distinctive yet at 10 p.m.) is always a nice nightly stand by

they blend together well. As a result, the record flows from one song to another without becoming tedious. 'Whispers of the North'' begins with the cries of a wild loon; "Someone to Believe In" opens with some harsh guitar power chords and "Broken Dreams" starts by evoking the sea

A recently recovered alcoholic, Lightfoot is taking more charge of his career. As he explains on the title cut, he's got "a lot more livin' to do." Salute is a start in the right direction and a worthy effort in its own right. It is a must for any Lightfoot fan and a good reintroduction to his works for those who have been wondering what he's been up to for the past few years.

Cotton became legend by jamming with established blues performers

By Jim Musser Special To The Daily Iowan

AMES COTTON, a living, breathing and still kicking legend of the blues, will make a one-night-only stop at Gabe's Oasis tonight.

The son of a Baptist preacher (and halfbrother of the great Bobby "Blue" Bland), Cotton was born in Mississippi in July of 1935. At the tender age of nine he ran away from home to meet Sonny Boy Williamson at the radio station where Williamson put on his famous King Biscuit radio shows.

When Sonny Boy tried to send Cotton home to his family, Cotton told him he was an orphan; whereupon Williamson took the little fibber home with him and proceeded to raise him as his own. At 13 Cotton began a four year stint as one of the harmonica players (along with Junior Parker) in Howlin' Wolf's Arkansas band; an opportunity which led to his playing on the Wolf's first Chess recording sessions.

FOLLOWING THAT came a short period during which Cotton took over as the leader of Sonny Boy Williamson's (whose health was failing) band. Cotton's youth and inexperience led to the band's demise, and he went to Memphis to jam with Bobby Bland and B.B. King

The mid-'50s brought Cotton the career break that a budding blues-harpist could only dream of - a job with the mighty Muddy Waters. Cotton stayed with Waters for nearly 12 years, during which he performed and recorded some of this country's most powerful and lasting music.

On the advice of Sonny Terry (does this guy know anyone who's NOT a legend?), James Cotton broke off on his own in or around 1965. The next decade or so was spent touring extensively and recording.

Not a prolific writer - his biggest hits were "Caldonia" and "Rocket 88" - Cotton seemed content to record standards by the likes of Little Walter Jacobs, Williamson, Waters, Wolf and others. Most recordings of his own sessions, including his best stuff on Verve/Forecast, are now sadly out of print.

In the late '70s, Cotton, along with Johnny Winter, rejoined Muddy Waters and was instrumental in helping the greatest of all bluesmen make a series of fine mainstream blues LPs in the twilight of his ### magnificent career.

AS HE NEARS his fiftieth birthday, James Cotton is clearly on top of his game. His band, which includes B.B.King-style guitarist Michael Coleman, bassist Herman Applewhite and saxophonist Doug Fagen, is one of the most solid blues units extant, capable not only of authentic blues but also R & B, funk and boogie. Throw in jazz quotes from Basie to Benson and you've got yourself a righteous American Though probably not quite in the class of such prime movers as Little Walter Jacobs; either of the Sonny Boy Williamsc.,s, Big Walter Horton or Junior Wells, James Cotton (his relatively plain, bluecollar appellation being of itself an indication of his solidness) is nevertheless, a great straight-ahead blues wailer - and a fine singer to boot. By all means, catch this show.

Tickets for the James Cotton Band are $4.50 in advance, $5 at the door. Doors at the Oasis open at 7:30 p.m. and the band will begin the first of two long sets around 9:30. Get out and getcher mojos workin'.

HAT CHARLES MUSSER realized more than anything else when he was constructing a documentary on pioneer filmmaker Edwin S. Porter was the lack of information we have about this important early era of motion picture production.

Here we have the roots of an entire industry and the subject of endless theories and criticisms, and yet the early years of films are still shrouded by missing movies and shaky reports. Musser's documentary Before the Nickelodeon and his discussion afterwards did a lot to enlighten the approximately 50 people who showed up at the Bijou on Monday night, but it was only a tip of the veritable iceberg.

Just to give you an idea of our deficiency in knowledge, here's a quick quiz to test your knowledge of early motion pictures:

1. WHO FILMED the first close-up, and when?

Certainly not D.W. Griffith, but it's not quite clear who did. The close-up came into more practical use with the rise of the star system because if you can't see the star's face, how are you supposed to identify them? That's not the only reason, but it was Griffith who brought the close-up to its full and logical potential.

2. True or false: Comic strips greatly influenced early movies.

Who knows ?! It's highly open to specula-3. True or False: Edwin S. Porter's The Great Train Robbery (1903) was the first movie with a story. False. George Melies had fashioned numerous fantasies with plots (weak though they may have been) before 1903. Porter himself made Jack and the Beanstalk before The Great Train Robbery. But Train Robbery was almost revolutionary in its story length and primitive cross-cutting between planes of action

4. Did Thomas Edison direct films for his years. Porter was thrust into the forefront Highland Avenue at Maiden of American movie-making.

5. HOW MUCH did it cost to see a movie in 1906?

With over one million patrons a day, movies cost only 5 cents. Hmmmm . 6. What was the first film D.W. Griffith was involved in? He had the starring role in Porter's three-minute Rescued from an Eagle's Nest (1908), which was his first noticeable role. Seven years later he would direct the three-hour epic Birth of a Nation and become American's number one filmmaker. Porter would be relegated into obscurity by his old-fashioned moviemaking.

Musser notes that early film history is a vast area waiting to be explored by the interested student. Much of it is lost in the mystery of time, but there is still a lot of information to uncover that may help us answer questions about how these early film pioneers perceived their roles and

Class Action bares good dancing, great bodies in its striptease show

By Liz Bird pecial to The Daily Iowan

HEY WERE THERE to "make a point," to " get away from seven kids," to "get close to some gorgeous bodies" or just "to have a few laughs." And few seemed to leave disappointed - even if in the end they saw little that couldn't be ogled at Coralville Lake on a summer's day.

The novelty of male strip shows is wearing thin these days - even Iowa City has hosted a few in its time - but the 250 women who crowded into the Crow's Nest Tuesday night to see Class Action were far from cynical.

"I've seen these guys on Phil Donahue gorgeous!" commented a "mother of even" from Iowa City, while a lessreticent fan, high school teacher Debbie Lenoch from Coralville enthused, "Good dancing, great bodies, who could ask for more?

ANTICIPATION BUILT as the advertised starting time, 7 p.m., passed. Restive women began to chant and clap - "we want action!" - and finally they got it, in the form of Joey, a tuxedo-clad charmer who served as master of ceremonies. Cheerful, round-faced and slightly chubby, Joey looked, as my friend put it, "thoroughly wholesome." And, in spite of the string of vaguely off-color jokes and suggestive patter he reeled off, the wholesome image persisted - somehow it seemed like your little brother mouthing nasty words you didn't think he knew.

Then, the show - the "trip into each and every one of your fantasies" that Joey promised us - began as Tony and Antonio burst onto the stage to the strains of Michael Jackson's "Beat It." I guess there were some in the audience whose fantasies include leather-clad gangsters wielding stilettos; if so, this was for them. And there was a surprise: These guys could dance and they could generate excitement, even though they kept their clothes on this time.

Sci-fi fans were treated next - to a blond Canadian named Mitch Monroe. Lacking the dance skills of the opening pair, he quickly got down to basics, distributing his Flash Gordon outfit round the stage in record time. Reactions varied - "he's going bald!" cried one woman incredulously. But he apparently had enough appeal for some; at Joey's request, women began to line up for the honor of "tipping" Mitch.

IN NOW TIME-HONORED tradition. this involved stuffing dollar bills into his decorated G-string, an interesting garment that unfortunately looked like a giant woolly bear was strapped to his crotch. 'How about if I take up a $10 bill and collect my own change?" mused the political science major at our table. And so it went on. First there was Antonio, a chunky Latin kid who looked about 15 but who was pronounced "the best" by general consensus in the ladies' room - a

TONY D'AMO, former engineer and now owner and co-choreographer of the revue, told me the Iowa City reception was "about average - not crazy like it sometimes get." His worst experience, he said, was being dragged off the stage in St. Louis. "All I could think to do was curl up in a ball and pray the security guards would get there fast," he recalled, adding, "It was horrible - all those women pawing and poking; I felt like a piece of meat."

And sometimes, he agreed, having to kiss
