Barfuss: Fair rent is incomplete

By Carlos Trevino
Staff Writer

District C Iowa City council candidate James Barfuss, a UI student, said Sunday that before he filed his election nomination papers Thursday, "I tried to talk myself out of it, but I wasn't able to do it. I thought it was important that candidate Larry Baker had some opposition."

Barfuss will face Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commissioner Larry Baker, who announced his candidacy Sept. 8. Mayor Mary Neuhouser, who is currently the representative for the district has announced that she will not run for re-election.

Barfuss said his candidacy would force Baker to "discuss why he is running, as well," and he explained that Baker's experience on the planning and zoning commission "is not much of an advantage. With the proposed zoning ordinance and the proposed ordinances amended to it, it raises many questions that I'm concerned about," he said.

One item within the proposed zoning ordinance and map that Barfuss said he was concerned about is the "ordinance that would limit the number of people who can live in single-family housings."

THAT ORDINANCE would reduce the number of non-related individuals — predominantly student roomers — who could live in a single-family dwelling, depending on the zoning in the area the home is located, Barfuss said.

"I don't see who that ordinance would benefit other than the (multi-unit apartment) developers," Barfuss said. "It certainly wouldn't help the mom and pop homeowners who rent out a room to help pay the bills or have spaces open when their kids are grown and gone."

Barfuss said he believes what the ordinance does is "force people out of the single-family homes to fill up those newly constructed apartment units. It seems to me that this ordinance is a mechanism to force people out and fill up the development units paying the same price as others," he said.

Barfuss said the housing regulations supported by the planning and zoning commission "will insure a housing shortage with a high price for rent."

Although Barfuss said he felt there is a housing problem — with low vacancy rates and high prices — he said the

Freedman, faculty hunt for funds

Kirk Brown
Staff Writer

The UI's search for elusive funding continued last week as two groups of UI officials took road trips to Davenport and Des Moines.

Thursday evening UI President James O. Freedman traveled to Davenport to attend a banquet honoring him and his wife, Bathsbea, sponsored by the UI Foundation. Friday three UI faculty members went to Des Moines to meet with Gov. Terry Branstad.

Darrell Wyrick, president of the UI Foundation — the fund-raising arm for the UI — said all UI alumni were invited to the banquet honoring the Freedmans.

After the banquet Freedman attended a dinner to recognize members of the President's Club. The club is composed of "people who contribute to the university at the highest level," Wyrick said.

Wyrick said Freedman delivered a short speech at the dinner, citing the success of a $1.9 million fund-raising campaign the foundation is now undertaking to pay for Iowa Hall, an extensive addition to the natural history museum at Macbride Hall.

FREEDMAN ALSO made mention of his proposal for the UI's future, to be financed by a $100 million fund-raising campaign conducted by the UI Foundation, Wyrick said.

"He just mentioned the proposal briefly because it is not an official campaign yet," Wyrick said. The foundation isn't expected to start raising funds for the plan until sometime next spring.

Don Carlston, UI Faculty Council member, said three UI faculty council members met with Branstad in Des Moines Friday.

"It was mostly an informal, introductory meeting," said Carlston.

Iowa State University faculty members also joined in the session with the governor. Carlston said the group's objective was "to express the continued concern of the faculty at both universities."

Carlston said Branstad "listened politely to what we had to say and was very diplomatic." However, no substantial solutions were reached concerning frozen faculty salaries.

The meeting with Branstad was "a little unusual," according to Carlston, chair of the UI faculty council's governmental relations committee.

"Usually communication with the governor is carried on by the administration or the state Board of Regents," he said. "But this meeting actually gave faculty members an opportunity to meet with the governor and express their concerns."

CARLSTON SAID although there are no plans for additional meetings with Branstad, his committee is planning to continue to host state legislators' visits to the UI campus.

"We may schedule one visit this semester," Carlston said. "But we are planning to have several groups of legislators come and visit during January."

However, he said the meetings are not intended to be for hardcore lobbying.

The program has been sponsored by the faculty council for the past two years and Carlston said he doesn't intend to change the format of the meetings this year except to stress "expanded contact between the legislators and faculty members."

Democrats: VP may go to a woman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six Democratic presidential candidates pledged Sunday to consider a woman for vice president and one said he would be willing to run in the second spot with a woman at the top of the ticket.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., got a rousing cheer from more than 1,000 delegates to the National Organization for Women's annual convention when he said, "I would be proud to run with a woman on either end of the ticket."

The issue of a woman on the Democratic ticket caught fire at the convention after its president, Judy Goldsmith, opened the three-day meeting Friday by declaring that a woman vice presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket should be a goal for 1984.

With practically no debate, the delegates overwhelmingly approved a resolution declaring that NOW will endorse a presidential ticket in 1984, and will advocate a woman "dedicated to women's rights" for vice president. The resolution says NOW will not accept any vice presidential candidate who does not represent the feminist viewpoint.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale, Sens. Alan Cranston of California, John Glenn of Ohio and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, and former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota all promised to give serious consideration to a woman on their tickets, but Hart trumped their ace by making his pledge.

GLENN ran into some loud hoots of derision when he said, "I think we all loaded on the ERA and let opponents out-bustle us."

Glenn met with Goldsmith and former NOW President Eleanor Smeal later in an effort to clarify the remark that angered some of the delegates. Greg Schneiders, Glenn's press secretary, said the NOW leaders told Glenn "they knew what he meant (on the Equal Rights Amendment), but it was a poor choice of words."

For the most part, Glenn was a hit, especially when he ended his formal speech with a quotation from suffragette Elizabeth Cady Stanton, to the effect that women should settle for "nothing less" than their full rights as citizens.

Mondale's best moment came when he declared, "I am a feminist," and said, "I see some contenders (for vice president) right here in this room."

Hollings was hissed at by several delegates when he called for a program to rebuild conventional military sources. But he was cheered when he noted that more than 18 months ago he suggested former Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas as a good vice presidential candidate.

In addition to answering the question about a woman on their tickets, all six candidates gave ringing support for ratification of the ERA; supported the right of choice to have an abortion; called for an end to sexual discrimination in salaries, Social Security and private pension benefits, and backed action to fight child abuse, pornography, and violence against women.

Former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, the seventh Democratic candidate, did not attend the convention.

Mondale in lead with triple victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter Mondale's flawless triple victory over the weekend strengthens his status as front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination and makes it harder for John Glenn or anyone else to catch up.

In a three-day span Mondale picked up the endorsement of the National Education Association, the nation's largest teachers union; then won the backing of the giant AFL-CIO, and finally beat the field with 51 percent of the delegates in the "Super Bowl" of straw polls in Maine.

Not a delegate was picked, but the triple victory will give Mondale rich rewards down the road. Hundreds of the delegates will be from the ranks of labor and teachers, and are likely to be running under Mondale's banner.

The AFL-CIO endorsement comes with up to $20 million in campaign aid.

Mondale's effort in Maine left a massive organization that will haul in delegates when the state holds its early caucuses in March.

Glenn will not have that kind of organization because he did not contend actively in Maine, a fact that antagonized many of the state's Democrats.

Analysis

THE OHIO SENATOR is the only Democratic contender to challenge Mondale in the nationwide public opinion polls. He is following a strategy of ignoring straw polls put on by party insiders and waiting for events in which the rank and file can vote.

But before he can put his strategy to work in the big, delegate-rich states, he must face the voters in Iowa and New Hampshire.

"Sooner or later, John Glenn is going to have to go into the living rooms to campaign," said Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina.

The stronger Mondale's performance, the more it knocks out all challengers except Glenn. The campaigns of the also-rans are out of money and have little chance of raising new funds unless they catch fire.

But Glenn badly needs to make a major strike to show there are votes to back up those nationwide polls. And time is getting short while Mondale is getting stronger.

Fear keeps Iowa City rapes unreported

By Robyn Griggs
Staff Writer

National statistics show that a forcible rape occurs once every six minutes. The Rape Victim and Advocacy Program in Iowa City received 225 crisis calls reporting rape in the fiscal year 1983.

Yet the Iowa City police have received only 21 complaints of rape so far this year.

From these complaints only one arrest has been made. "Without a doubt, apprehension and arrest (of rapists) is difficult at best," said

Sergeant William Cook of the Iowa City Police Department. "What are we looking for, who are we looking for — it's just a very difficult situation to investigate."

Cook said he has "no idea" whether more rapes occur than are reported to the police.

However, Karla Miller, RVAP director, said considerably more rapes occur than are reported to the police. "I don't think they hesitate to call us as much as the police," she said.

"I think what comes up a lot is the fact that we have over 50 rapes reported in a year and the police are not anywhere near that."

MILLER CITED several reasons for the discrepancy in the police figures and the actual number of rapes.

"Number one, the woman may fear family and friends knowing and the consequences of that," she said. "This is a really good argument for everybody to learn about sexual abuse and rape."

"It's not helpful for the victim to have the family come in and ask, 'What were you doing out at night? Why were you wearing that short skirt?'" she said.

Miller said another thing that keeps many rape victims from reporting the crime to the police is fear that the rapist will return.

"A lot of times this is the most common threat used by the assailant," she said. "In reality, it doesn't happen very often when a woman is raped by a stranger."

Many rape victims also fear that people will not believe that she was raped and somehow think it was her fault, Miller said.

"That's when the myths kick in. She'll think, 'What did I do to ask for this to happen?'" Miller said.

Fear of abusive treatment from the police also holds back many victims from reporting rape incidents.

"The women are afraid they'll make jokes, ask if she enjoyed it, or treat her

Martial law may be imposed

NEW YORK — Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, under strong pressure from the military, probably will reimpose martial law after President Reagan visits next month, Newsweek magazine reported Sunday.

The magazine also said Marcos considered resigning for a brief time last month but gave up the idea when he decided the demonstrations against his rule had not become violent enough to merit his stepping down.

Knesset will vote on Shamir

JERUSALEM — A new government led by Prime Minister-designate Yitzhak Shamir will be presented for parliamentary approval this week, Deputy Prime Minister David Levy said Sunday.

Shamir faces threats, however, that six key coalition deputies may withhold their support over the failure of talks on forming a national unity government. If those groups abstain in the parliamentary ballot, Shamir will be left with a minority government in the Knesset, making early elections almost inevitable.

Helms to stall King Day bill

WASHINGTON — Senate leaders, under pressure to establish a national holiday in honor of Martin Luther King Jr., are braced for a filibuster by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., when the bill comes up today. Passage is certain, a GOP leadership source said.

Helms shrugs off the political consequences of blocking the bill. In North Carolina, where more than one-fourth the population is black, he may face a tough fight if he wants to keep his Senate seat in 1984. "I'm not going to sell my soul to stay in the Senate," he said.

Dialogue on Iowa education stresses elementary school

By Steve Sands
Staff Writer

Reactions to the controversial report on national education issued in April continued as almost 400 area educators gathered Saturday in Cedar Rapids to consider how the report affects Iowa.

Participants in the "Dialogue on Iowa's Educational Future" leveled criticisms against the "Nation at Risk" report, prepared by the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

The dialogue started with 39 small discussion groups dealing with the issues in the report. Recommendations from these groups were condensed into a panel discussion at the end of the day, according to Dwight Bode, administrator of the Grant Wood Area Education Agency.

Bode said the panel discussion pointed out a major defect in the report — its narrow scope. "It did not place any emphasis on the elementary school."

The dialogue participants felt the report concentrated too heavily on high school students, specifically those bound for college, he said.

Tom Holmes, principal of Shimek Elementary School in Iowa City, said his particular workshop agreed that there was a "glaring absence of anything directed toward elementary education" in the report.

HOLMES IS ONE of eight members of the Curriculum Advisory Committee of the Iowa City Community School District. The committee will use this meeting as background to prepare a localized response to the national report.

Residents from Benton, Cedar, Iowa, Johnson, Jones, Linn and Washington counties were invited to attend the Cedar Rapids meeting. Representatives from this area will be invited to attend a state dialogue Dec. 3 in Des Moines, where suggestions from 15 area meetings held across Iowa will be formalized, according to Bode.

The national report calls for widespread improvements in the nation's educational system: high school graduation requirements need to be stiffened, with more emphasis on the basics; teachers should be rewarded with a merit pay system; and professionals from other fields should be used as resource people. It also calls for a longer school day or year.

Although the Reagan administration has stated these improvements are possible without increased funding, Holmes said, "There was a pretty strong feeling from a lot of people that more funds for education would help in a lot of areas."

His discussion group concluded that the public schools needed to be more creative in obtaining funds by using local, state, and private sources.

Charles Case, Dean of the UI College of Education said his discussion group agreed that money is needed to achieve the goals set out by the report.

SUPERINTENDENT David Cronin of the Iowa City Community School District said his group took a different approach — one that he did not agree with. "The group I was with tended to be a bit defensive and complacent" and did not think the report pertained to Iowa.

The "Nation at Risk" report is the most publicized of about 20 such reports to emerge in an 18-month period, Case said. He attributes this influx to a continual concern about the nation's education system. "What peaked it (the concern) was that suddenly the business leaders and politicians have been able to see how the national productivity has been falling behind such nations as Japan and Germany," he said.

He added that he feels education is not the only influence on the lower productivity. "Business people should look inside their own sector. I do not see us (education) as the primary actor in this drama."

Other ideas brought to the attention of the panel discussion included the need for higher teacher salaries, lower teacher-to-student ratios in some areas of the state and more foreign language instruction.

Fireman will give testimony on videotape for burn case

By Patricia Thorn
Staff Writer

A videotape will be used in taking the testimony of an Iowa City fireman, despite the protests of attorneys for Sears, Roebuck and Co., according to Johnson County District Court records.

William C. Roberge filed suit against Sears after a fire extinguisher designed, manufactured, and sold by Sears allegedly malfunctioned during a grease fire at Roberge's home on Dec. 5, 1982. Roberge claims that when he attempted to use the extinguisher on a skillet fire, a "blast of air came out" and "caused said grease fire to explode and burn (Roberge)."

Lt. Lavern Stahmer of the Iowa City Fire Department "saw the aftermath of the fire." Attorneys for Roberge claim that "preserving his testimony is critical because he is in a high risk profession and the trial may not be set for some time."

Attorneys for Sears objected to the use of videotape on the basis of an Iowa Rule of Civil Procedure that said Roberge's attorneys needed to obtain advance permission from the court in order to use the procedure and that a typed manuscript of the testimony was also necessary.

The court ruled that a videotape could be used "for discovery purposes" if a shorthand reporter also typed a manuscript. The videotape will not be used at the time of the trial unless it becomes "appropriate," and would then be available to both the plaintiffs and the defendant.

The videotaped testimony will be taken Oct. 4. A Sheboygan Falls, Wis. man pleaded guilty Fri-

Time cap

The last bit of suspense from the discovery of a time capsule in the cornerstone of E.C. Mabie Theatre subsided Friday morning when UI President James O. Freedman opened a letter addressed to former UI President Walter Jessup.

University Theatre representatives and other interested persons gathered in the president's conference room to witness the reading of the letter found Wednesday in the time capsule.

The nearly-80-year-old letter was found among a bundle of newspapers, photographs, bulletins, scripts and playbills.

The time capsule was discovered last Tuesday when two construction workers were moving the cornerstone, buried since a July 26, 1935, ceremony over which Edward C. Mabie presided.

To prepare for the opening of the letter, theater representatives Eric

Saying the controversy is being "blown out of proportion" by excess publicity, Steve Gilberg, UI Homecoming Council marketing director, said no lawsuit is being considered by the group against Steve Sedam, The Daily Iowan graphics editor who marketed his own homecoming buttons.

Sedam entered his badge design featuring a hawk head surrounded by the words "Homecoming '83, Iowa vs. Northwestern" in the UI contest last spring. But the winning button features a bedraggled Northwestern mascot and the slogan, "A Wildcatrophe! Iowa Homecoming October 8, 1983."

"Nothing would be wrong if he would not have had the word 'homecoming' on the button," Gilberg said. All designs that were entered in the contest last spring become property of the committee, he contended.

The controversy began last Saturday when Sedam sold his version of Homecoming buttons for $1 at the Iowa-Ohio State football game, Gilberg said.

"It wasn't right for him to sell them at the game," but Gilberg said the committee did not plan to take action. "We thought we'd let it go."

BUT THEN last Wednesday, Gilberg said, while shopping in a local Iowa City store, he saw that Sedam had expanded his sales to two local stores.

Then Gilberg said he really investigated the situation and called Sedam to inform him of the committee's gripe.

Sedam said Gilberg told him if he did not stop selling his buttons by Saturday, the committee would have to take legal action.

Since receiving the phone call, Sedam said he has sought legal advice on the issue.

UI may see but not as c

By John Tieszen

A coalition of UI student organizations wants to bring the Rev. Jesse Jackson to campus as a political speaker, but not as a presidential candidate, said Simcha Plisner, a member of Students Against Unemployment.

"We are very serious about bringing him here as a political activist, but not much more than that," Plisner said.

The coalition is made up of Students Against Unemployment, New Wave and the Women's Resource and Action Center.

The University Lecture Committee has approved the coalition's request, Plisner said. "The committee has pledged $2,000 to bring Jackson here."

But the cost will be between $4,000 and $5,000 for Jackson's expenses, including transportation and a $3,000 speaking fee, according to Plisner.

The coalition wants to bring Jackson to the UI because "at the present, he is the only political figure that we know of that is taking a stand for the common person." But the coalition is not endorsing Jackson's possible presidential bid, Plisner said.

"THERE IS no way that he should be president and most of us would not support his candidacy," he said.

The coalition "strongly believes in participatory democracy and that is why we want Jackson here," Plisner said. "He is very involved in voter registration and with all people. He debates issues that are close to all of our hearts."

If Jackson does announce his bid for the presidency, Plisner said he is not sure if the coalition will bring him to the UI. "We all have reservations about bringing him here as a candidate," he said.

Time capsule yields Mabie letter

By Jill Nieman
Staff Writer

The last bit of suspense from the discovery of a time capsule in the cornerstone of E.C. Mabie Theatre subsided Friday morning when UI President James O. Freedman opened a letter addressed to former UI President Walter Jessup.

University Theatre representatives and other interested persons gathered in the president's conference room to witness the reading of the letter found Wednesday in the time capsule.

The nearly-50-year-old letter was found among a bundle of newspapers, photographs, bulletins, scripts and playbills.

The time capsule was discovered last Tuesday when two construction workers were moving the cornerstone, buried since a July 26, 1935, ceremony over which Edward C. Mabie presided.

To prepare for the opening of the letter, theater representatives Eric Sellen and Chuck Calmer arrived early to display the contents of the capsule on the conference table.

As Freedman picked up the letter he said with a laugh, "Now if there's something in this letter that we shouldn't read about, what should I do?"

"Read it anyway," someone in the crowd said.

"IT'S PROBABLY a letter telling Jessup that his wife has been having an affair," a TV cameraman said.

Freedman then opened the letter. It turned out to be from Mabie and was dated July 29, 1935. The letter carried the heading of the State University of Iowa, Department of Speech.

Mabie started his letter by telling Jessup that the cornerstone ceremony had gone "exceedingly well." The only downfall had been Jessup's absence.

Mabie pointed out that "No other person contributed more to the university than you in the last 15 years before the laying of the cornerstone."

Mabie continued, "All of these things together built slowly the real foundations that hold up this theatre."

AT THE CLOSE of his letter Mabie confided in Jessup that the original of this letter was to be placed in the cornerstone with other articles of the time. Jessup had held in his hands the only other copy of the letter.

"It's kind of a flair for the dramatic," said Robert Hedley, UI theatre arts professor, referring to the fact that only two copies of the letter existed.

Freedman handed the letter to Hedley, who said the letter along with the other contents of the capsule, will be put back into the cornerstone with some souvenirs of the 1980s.

"I was glad to see it (the letter) wasn't anything odd," said Hedley.

Freedman said he feels that the letter reflects the characters of these two men.

"The letter was beautiful," he said. "It contained the names of two truly important people."

The letter also pleased Calmer. He said although former UI President Virgil Hancher is given much credit for the development of the UI Theatres, "Jessup is the one who really pioneered the project and the theatre itself. He deserves the credit and it's nice to see that he is rewarded in some tangible way for his contributions."

Freedman looked at the other contents of the capsule for the first time Friday morning.

Playbills from productions by young and established playwrights caught Freedman's eye. "What makes this discovery truly exciting is the coming of the theater's 50th anniversary in 1985."

After sifting through the capsule contents, Freedman commented on changes in the University Theatres since 1935. "We certainly have better facilities."

Bootleg button sets off Homecoming tilt

By Dan Hauser
Staff Writer

Saying the controversy is being "blown out of proportion" by excess publicity, Steve Gilberg, UI Homecoming Council marketing director, said no lawsuit is being considered by the group against Steve Sedam, The Daily Iowan graphics editor who marketed his own homecoming buttons.

Sedam entered his badge design featuring a hawk head surrounded by the words "Homecoming '83, Iowa vs. Northwestern" in the UI contest last spring. But the winning button features a bedraggled Northwestern mascot and the slogan, "A Wildcatastrophe! Iowa Homecoming October 8, 1983."

"Nothing would be wrong if he would not have had the word 'homecoming' on the button," Gilberg said. All designs that were entered in the contest last spring become property of the committee, he contended.

The controversy began last Saturday when Sedam sold his version of Homecoming buttons for $1 at the Iowa-Ohio State football game, Gilberg said.

"It wasn't right for him to sell them at the game," but Gilberg said the committee did not plan to take action. "We thought we'd let it go."

BUT THEN last Wednesday, Gilberg said, while shopping in a local Iowa City store, he saw that Sedam had expanded his sales to two local stores.

Then Gilberg said he really investigated the situation and called Sedam to inform him of the committee's gripe.

Sedam said Gilberg told him if he did not stop selling his buttons by Saturday, the committee would have to take legal action.

Since receiving the phone call, Sedam said he has sought legal advice on the issue.

"It's the tip of the iceberg," Sedam said. He said the whole situation centers around the idea that those with power, namely the UI, do not want "some nickel-and-dime" business making money.

"It's the big guy against the little guy, and I'm so small. It's my 400 buttons against their 20,000," Sedam said.

S. L. King, owner of River City Sports, said, "Basically I think it's a little ridiculous." Sedam went to King for advice when he first started planning his own button.

"The word 'homecoming' cannot be copyrighted," she said, countering the Homecoming committee's principal argument.

King said the situation would be better if the committee had "let things go."

"THE WHOLE point is to deter people from doing it (the soliciting of buttons) again," she said.

Sedam said since his appearance on KGAN-TV Saturday night and publicity from newspapers and radio, he has received a number of phone calls from collectors asking for a copy of the button.

He said he has had to tell these callers that he cannot sell them until he finds where he stands legally.

Gilberg, on the other hand, said collectors coming into town for the Ohio State game may have purchased Sedam's button mistaking it for the official homecoming button. "It confuses people to see two badges."

To prevent this year's hassles from recurring, Gilberg said the committee will add legal restrictions to its fliers and newspaper advertisements when sponsoring the homecoming badge contest next year.

He said the application now states that all submitted designs become property of the committee. "Usually that is enough."

UI may see Jackson, but not as candidate

By John Tieszen
Staff Writer

A coalition of UI student organizations wants to bring the Rev. Jesse Jackson to campus as a political speaker, but not as a presidential candidate, said Simcha Plisner, a member of Students Against Unemployment.

"We are very serious about bringing him here as a political activist, but not much more than that," Plisner said.

The coalition is made up of Students Against Unemployment, New Wave and the Women's Resource and Action Center.

The University Lecture Committee has approved the coalition's request, Plisner said. "The committee has pledged $2,000 to bring Jackson here."

But the cost will be between $4,000 and $5,000 for Jackson's expenses, including transportation and a $3,000 speaking fee, according to Plisner.

The coalition wants to bring Jackson to the UI because "at the present, he is the only political figure that we know of that is taking a stand for the common person." But the coalition is not endorsing Jackson's possible presidential bid, Plisner said.

"THERE IS no way that he should be president and most of us would not support his candidacy," he said.

The coalition "strongly believes in participatory democracy and that is why we want Jackson here," Plisner said. "He is very involved in voter registration and with all people. He debates issues that are close to all of our hearts."

If Jackson does announce his bid for the presidency, Plisner said he is not sure if the coalition will bring him to the UI. "We all have reservations about bringing him here as a candidate," he said.

leave of absence" as director of Operation PUSH (People United to Serve Humanity), but has not announced if he will run for the presidency, according to an Operation PUSH spokesman in Chicago.

Jackson is expected to make some type of announcement today, the spokesman said.

A possible Jackson campaign has received mixed reactions from Johnson County campaign workers for other democratic candidates.

Ken Albrecht, a supporter of former Vice President Walter Mondale, said, "It's really difficult to tell what effect a Jackson campaign will have on all of the other democratic candidates."

"PEOPLE HAVE said that the Mondale campaign will be hurt the most by Jackson running because of Mondale's black support, but there is every reason to believe that Mondale will keep that support."

Albrecht said even if Jackson announces soon, "it is very late to start a campaign and I think that he will run up against a lot of problems because it is so late," he said.

Jeff Winick, county coordinator for the campaign of Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., "All of the black voters won't vote for him because he is black, just as white voters won't just vote for a white candidate."

"It won't hurt us in the short run if Jackson runs. We have as much to offer black voters," he said.

Jane Schindler, field coordinator for Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said the Glenn campaign has no official response to a possible Jackson bid.

Jeff Cox, county coordinator for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Cal., said "I think if Jackson runs, he isn't doing it for the nomination," but running for a black political presence in the presidential

Nurses consult on student health

By Dan Hauser
Staff Writer

Primary and secondary schools must integrate health services into their curriculum if students' wellness is to be achieved, a health educator told the Ninth Annual School Nurse Conference Saturday.

The "Strategies for Wellness" conference, sponsored by the UI College of Nursing Continuing Education Department, was held Friday and Saturday in the Union.

Nancy Spalj, Health Service Program director for the Iowa City Community School District, said the conference directors chose to focus on wellness because "it is becoming a big issue throughout the country."

She said the two-day conference gave school nurses from across the state a chance to meet and exchange ideas. About 75 nurses attended the conference, which Lee Chiavetta, UI program associate in continuing education, called "really well-received."

"It is a very cohesive group," Spalj said pointing out that a lot of information was being transmitted between the group of nurses.

Next year, Chiavetta said, the nurses attending this year's conference will be able to exhibit how the information learned at the conference was integrated into their school health programs.

DENNIS CRYER, a professor of Health Education at the University of Northern Iowa, spoke Saturday on "Integrating Wellness Concepts into School Curriculum."

In his plan to integrate wellness into the schools' programs, the health services should be one of the schools' overall objectives.

He said the health services make a big contribution to the goal of the school. "I'm not saying it's more important than music" or any other department, he added.

Cryer outlined the seven steps in the "Cardinal Principles of Education" and insisted a comprehensive health education should be involved in five of these steps.

He named these five components of the comprehensive plan: health, family life, citizenship, use of leisure and ethical character.

He said in promoting citizenship the schools should stress "non-violence, peaceful coexistence." He pointed out the leading cause of death in black teenagers is violence, and yet the school tends to ignore the seriousness of this violence in its curriculum.

THE DEVELOPMENT of the "total person" is another aspect of integrating wellness into schools, Cryer said. A school should be aware of cognitive, emotional, social, sexual, and spiritual characteristics of kindergarten through 12th graders.

He said although people may not think about a third grader's sexual development, it is necessary to teach children the process of masculinity and femininity. He said there is naturally a great difference in sexual lessons presented to third graders and those presented to 11th graders.

Promoting students' concepts of self is another key to assuring wellness in the primary and secondary school system, Cryer said.

Branstad will discuss energy at conference

DES MOINES (UPI) — Gov. Terry Branstad is carrying two resolutions with him to the Midwest Governor's Conference this weekend in Kansas, both dealing with what he sees as the critical energy problem facing Midwestern states.

"We import 90 percent of our energy. We are very energy-dependent," Branstad said.

One resolution will encourage governors to demand greater Congressional support for ethanol production.

Branstad's second offering hits closer to home, emphasizing the need for greater cooperation among electric-generating utilities in the Midwest to cut down on excess generating capacity.

Iowa already is tackling an excess-generating-capacity problem with the new Louisa Generating Station near Muscatine.

Utility customers throughout the state are protesting rate hikes that have been requested by several power companies to pay for construction of the new coal-fired facility.

In addition, Branstad believes the Midwestern states should put pressure on Congress to change the "take or pay" contracts that "create artificial market conditions and are hitting consumers with exorbitant utility bills."

Other topics of concern to Iowa which the conference will take up include the economic effects of this summer's drought, international markets for farm products, and education.

Branstad was lukewarm to Kansas Gov. John Carlin's proposal to form a non-partisan farm committee on the national level with independent powers similar to the Federal Reserve Board. "The concept is good, but Congress still has the clear ability to appropriate funds. This kind of group might be good in an advisory capacity," he said.

Protesters, brawl in Pa

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Authorities told local news media Sunday not to carry reports about anti-government violence in southern Pakistan, where at least four more people died in new fighting between troops and protesters.

The new violence in the southern Sind province came as Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger left Pakistan after a three-day visit.

Clashes between troops and demonstrators were reported in several areas of Sind, including the provincial capital, Karachi, 1,000 miles south of Islamabad.

In one of the worst incidents, soldiers fired on opponents of martial law who erected a roadblock near the town of Moro in the Nawabshah district, 145 miles northeast of Karachi, opposition sources said.

One source said three demonstrators and one soldier were killed but another put the deaths at four soldiers and 12 demonstrators.

Both sources said troops began firing on demonstrators, causing casualties, after they arrived to clear the roadblock set up several hours earlier.

Local officials, however, said the demonstrators fired first and the troops fired back in self-defense, killing one person.

United Press International

The top Salvadoran rebel negotiator said Sunday that leftist rebels will fight until President Reagan talks with them or faces "the tough decision of sending U.S. Marines."

The pledge came as a rebel radio broadcast said an army colonel ordered an air strike on a civilian-populated town under attack by leftist guerrillas.

Ruben Zamora, the head of the rebel Democratic Revolutionary Front, made the statements to United Press International in Mexico City, where he was attending a convention of the U.S.-based Latin America Studies Association.

Zamora said the rebels will continue their four-year-old civil war against the U.S.-backed government until "the Reagan administration negotiates or to the moment of the tough decision of sending U.S. Marines to El Salvador to prop up the government."

Salvadoran government officials have admitted that U.S.-supplied A-37 war jets killed 18 and wounded more than 30 civilians last week in a bombing

Nicaragua p combat zone

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — U.S.-backed rebels declared Nicaragua's most important port a combat zone Sunday, warning Mexican oil tankers that they "will pay the consequences" if they use the facility.

Mexico and Venezuela supplied nearly all of the petroleum to Central America under the terms of the so-called San Jose Pact, allowing countries in the region loans and preferential prices.

But Venezuela suspended its shipments to Nicaragua when the leftist government could not cover the cash payment portion of their debt, leaving Mexico to supply nearly all the country's petroleum.

"We declare to the Nicaraguan people that ... Port Sandino is a combat zone and that all Mexican oil tankers that arrive there will pay the consequences," said the rebel Radio 15 de Septiembre.

The main delivery point for the oil is Port Sandino located about 50 miles northeast of Managua.

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Britain's opposition Labor Party Sunday elected Welsh left-winger Neil Kinnock as its new leader to spearhead the opposition to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and recovery from a disastrous election performance.

Kinnock, 41, polled a landslide 71.2 percent of the votes in a complicated ballot of trade unions, labor politicians and grassroots constituency parties, during the party's annual conference.

With 14 years in Parliament but no ministerial experience, Kinnock takes over from Michael Foot as Thatcher's principal political adversary in the House of Commons.

The demonstration was aimed at preventing election officials from taking up their posts to oversee polling Sunday in the second phase of municipal elections.

OPPOSITION OF Zia oppose the elections, saying they will not lead to genuine democracy. Zia ordered the municipal polling as a prelude to what he says will be general elections in 1985.

The deaths raised to at least 55 the number killed in protests sparked by the local elections that began in Sindh on Thursday.

Opposition sources say more than 200 people have been killed in seven weeks of anti-government campaigns.

A notice sent to newspapers Sunday told editors not to publish opposition statements, details of protests and details on incidents in violence-torn southern Pakistan.

Editors were told to avoid publishing articles "likely to create ... dissatisfaction among the people" and articles likely to aggravate the situation in Sindh.

Calling the orders unprecedented, local reporters said never before had the government issued such a sweeping notice on what the already-constrained press could not publish.

Druze militia forming mini-state

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The government said Sunday Druze militiamen were forming a mini-state in the Shouf mountains with Syrian help and admitted Druze soldiers had begun to defect from the national army.

"I reckon there is an attempt to partition Lebanon on a canton-like basis," said Farouk Jabre, an adviser to President Amin Gemayel.

Jumblatt, leader of the Socialist Progressive Party, called Saturday for creation of a "people's authority for civil administration" in his Shouf stronghold. He also called for Druze Moslem soldiers to desert from the army.

Syrian television showed film of what it claimed were some of the 600 soldiers who bolted from the army in the Syrian-occupied town of Hammama, 14 miles east of Beirut.

A government spokesman denied the report, but acknowledged 80 Druze soldiers in the national army had defected since the civil warfare flared

Aug. 28.

Jabre called the Druze efforts a step toward the partition of Lebanon into separate Christian and Moslem states and Beirut Radio said it "pointed to a secessionist trend."

Beirut radio said the government "will launch a wide-scale political offensive" to "spare the country the danger of partition."

Jumblatt told a news conference at Beiteddine, 15 miles southeast of Beirut, that a general congress, a central committee and an 8-man "Supreme Administrative Authority" will run the Shouf.

JABRE SAID the Gemayel government hoped Jumblatt's moves were only "tactical" and intended to gain concessions at national reconciliation talks. But charging Syrian interference, Jabre added "there are a lot of indications Jumblatt is not completely free in his decisions."

Jabre said the Lebanese government had undertaken urgent consultations but planned no military steps now to prevent the establishment of a Druze mini-state.

He said he expected the 12-member national reconciliation committee, as called for by the cease-fire agreement, to begin its meetings this week. But he said it appeared Jumblatt had not made up his mind on whether to attend.

In Rome, U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane said Jumblatt's calls "was not unexpected" and probably will spark similar efforts by other Lebanese factions seeking to strengthen their bargaining position in reconciliation talks with the Christian-led government.

Apart from minor violations, a cease-fire in the mountains held for the seventh day. Small-arms fire occurred between two Christian and Druze villages.

Rebels deliver ultimatum to Reagan administration

United Press International

The top Salvadoran rebel negotiator said Sunday that leftist rebels will fight until President Reagan talks with them or faces "the tough decision of sending U.S. Marines."

The pledge came as a rebel radio broadcast said an army colonel ordered an air strike on a civilian-populated town under attack by leftist guerrillas.

Ruben Zamora, the head of the rebel Democratic Revolutionary Front, made the statements to United Press International in Mexico City, where he was attending a convention of the U.S.-based Latin America Studies Association.

Zamora said the rebels will continue their four-year-old civil war against the U.S.-backed government until "the Reagan administration negotiates or to the moment of the tough decision of sending U.S. Marines to El Salvador to prop up the government."

Salvadoran government officials have admitted that U.S.-supplied A-37 war jets killed 18 and wounded more than 30 civilians last week in a bombing raid on rebel-occupied Tenancingo, just north of El Salvador.

"The signs are that Reagan believes he can win a military victory in El Salvador," said Zamora.

BUT ZAMORA added the rebels will not give up attempts to negotiate with the government.

"Two years ago they said they would never talk with us, and now we have met with them twice. We will not sell out in the first meetings," he said.

In Miami, Costa Rican President Luis Alberto Monge met with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to prepare for Kissinger's forthcoming trip to Central America.

Kissinger said in a briefing with reporters that his special commission on Central America must obtain the views of insurgents in El Salvador before handing its report to President Reagan.

Kissinger and 60 to 70 commission members and advisers are set to begin a five-day tour of Costa Rica, Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Panama and Guatemala Oct. 9.

Nicaragua port declared combat zone by rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — U.S.-backed rebels declared Nicaragua's most important port a combat zone Sunday, warning Mexican oil tankers that they "will pay the consequences" if they use the facility.

Mexico and Venezuela supplied nearly all of the petroleum to Central America under the terms of the so-called San Jose Pact, allowing countries in the region loans and preferential prices.

But Venezuela suspended its shipments to Nicaragua when the leftist government could not cover the cash payment portion of their debt, leaving Mexico to supply nearly all the country's petroleum.

"We declare to the Nicaraguan people that ... Port Sandino is a combat zone and that all Mexican oil tankers that arrive there will pay the consequences," said the rebel Radio 15 de Septiembre.

The main delivery point for the oil is Port Sandino located about 50 miles northeast of Managua.

REBEL DIVERS sabotaged an underwater portion of the unloading facility in September, but Mexico said last week it will continue sending its tankers to the port.

The radio also warned people in the northern part of the country involved in the coffee harvest that the crop will also be an object of rebel sabotage.

"We have the capacity to bomb any Mexican oil tanker that unloads at Port Sandino," said Edgar Chamorro Coronel, a top leader in the rebel Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

In the south, Eden Pastora's Democratic Revolutionary Alliance said that the Simon Bolivar Brigade, which fought alongside the Sandinistas in 1979 to topple dictator Anastasio Somoza only to be expelled from the country, is now with the anti-government rebels.

The international brigade, made up of primarily South Americans, is "fighting alongside the forces of Pastora against the Sandinistas," said Radio Sandino.

Pastora, known as Commander Zero, also fought with the Sandinistas, but left the government because of its leftist drift and took up arms against it last April.

British labor party elects
Neil Kinnock by landslide

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Britain's opposition Labor Party Sunday elected Welsh left-winger Neil Kinnock as its new leader to spearhead the opposition to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and recovery from a disastrous election performance.

Kinnock, 41, polled a landslide 71.2 percent of the votes in a complicated ballot of trade unions, labor politicians and grassroots constituency parties, during the party's annual conference.

With 14 years in Parliament but no ministerial experience, Kinnock takes over from Michael Foot as Thatcher's principal political adversary in the House of Commons.

Foot resigned the party leadership within a week of Thatcher's landslide victory June 9 when Labor polled its lowest vote since World War II — 27.9 percent.

Kinnock, son of a miner from the Labor stronghold of south Wales, will lead a team of 209 Labor politicians in the 650-seat Parliament at Westminster.

Kinnock said he plans major changes in the party away from the left-wingers whose divisive plays contributed to Labor's election defeat.

"Kinnock's left-wing image has been strictly opportunistic. Governmental power is now his ambition and he is already moving out of fortress Labor to hunt for it," the Economist magazine said recently.

Dinner poll starts political war

DES MOINES (UPI) — The first round bell won't officially ring until the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner later this week, but presidential contestants are already throwing punches in the battle for votes among Iowa Democrats.

The first minor skirmish erupted last week when Walter Mondale's camp leveled charges that Alan Cranston supporters used subterfuge to boost attendance for the J-J Day dinner on Saturday.

Attendance at the dinner is of major concern because two news organizations are conducting straw polls of the dinner participants and the candidates are all hoping for some kind of edge in the seven-way race.

It seems only appropriate that the first major political slugfest developed in Iowa, which holds the first caucus in the nation and is the first real test of the candidates' strength.

The dinner is traditionally viewed as the official start of the campaign in Iowa. The dinner "really kicks it off. This is a physical acknowledgement that the caucuses are nigh," said Tim

The Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner is traditionally viewed as the official start of the presidential campaign in Iowa. The dinner "really kicks it off. This is a physical acknowledgement that the caucuses are nigh," says Tim Dickson, executive director of the Iowa Democratic Party.

Dickson, executive director of the Iowa Democratic Party.

AS PROOF of the significance of the event, all seven candidates — including latecomer George McGovern, who doesn't have an Iowa campaign office open yet — have promised to attend.

Democrats estimate more than 6,200 party faithful will pay $40 for floor seats and dinner or $10 for balcony seats to hear the candidates make their pitches.

"This will be the first time that all seven candidates have been on the same stage in Iowa. It's sold out," Dickson said.

Although much fuss has been made over the two straw polls scheduled to be conducted during the event, Dickson warned those polls are "nothing more than a test of attitudes at a given event."

Dickson said he doesn't put much stock in complaints by the Mondale campaign that Cranston supporters misrepresented themselves when purchasing tickets in a plot to load up the hall and clinch a straw poll victory. But Cranston aides refute the charge, saying Mondale's staffers are "whining" because of poor preparation for the event.

JOHN LAW, Cranston's Iowa campaign director, denied any wrongdoing but did acknowledge that Cranston aides have used campaign funds to buy early blocks of tickets.

Dickson can't figure what all the complaining is about. Initial ticket sales, limited to county chairpersons, were monitored carefully, he said.

Special interest groups and campaign staffers were barred from purchasing tickets until after Sept. 15. By that time the 3,600 floor tickets were sold out and only balcony seating was available.

"We know that ticket sales have been on the up and up," Dickson said.

Under a tentative format, each candidate will be given 10 minutes to speak on any topic. Staff members from each camp will meet with party officials before the dinner to determine speaking order.

Barfuss

proposed fair rent ordinance that Iowa City voters will address in the Nov. 8 city election is not a complete answer, "but it's a start."

"What amazes me is everyone is asking the candidates what they think of it... but it's up to the voters now," Barfuss said. "The issue is just a bandwagon for candidates now... taking a stand on whatever is an advantage to them."

BARFUSS EXPLAINED that he was concerned about the bureaucratic mechanism that an ordinance would place within city government, and said "maybe a price control is the way to handle the problem."

"We've had this problem for the past ten years, and at least the ordinance addresses the problem of housing in Iowa City," Barfuss said. "If the voters approve it, that's what we've got, and as a councilor I'd work toward getting a balance of interest on the (proposed) Fair Rent Board."

Barfuss said that if the council is directed by the voters to establish a board, it should consist of "a good cross section" of people who would not convey the interest of just developers or anti-developers.

"I don't think I'd want to be on that Fair Rent Board," Barfuss said.

Saying the housing problem was not an easy problem to solve, Barfuss said, "The city staff, the planning and zoning people and the housing commission have got to work together with the council on the issue."

Although some councilors have voiced their advocacy for Iowa City development, Barfuss said, "The question is development at what price?"

"Sure, it provides jobs," Barfuss said, "but it also changes the characteristics and the quality of life in this town. We need to be careful that development is done in a way that the quality of life isn't affected," he said.

BARFUSS SAID development in the downtown area is another question that must be resolved carefully, and used the recent attempt by the McDonald's corporation to place a restaurant in the Black Hawk Mini-Park as an example.

"Mac's (McDonald's) at the mini-park was a disgusting idea... The solution to commercial development is not putting golden arches (McDonald's trademark) up in the mini-park," Barfuss said.

In regard to the city's relations with the UI, Barfuss said he wouldn't "give any lip service toward cooperation between the university and the city."

"There is nothing of the sort," he said.

Barfuss said that cities with a university community are at odds on many issues but sometimes they "put on a show... like when the university helped out the city by purchasing the Mayflower Apartments," at 1110 N. Dubuque St. to provide housing to students and "help out the housing situation."

There are always conflicts between cities and universities "and we have to just work through those problems," he said.

Barfuss said he also favors preservation of many older homes and said apartment developers should provide proper green space around their multi-unit developments.

"I think it's important that we think of the next generation and what we do for them," Barfuss said. "We should consider what type of legacy we leave to them from us," he said.

Rape

like they don't believe her," Miller said.

"I THINK WE'RE really fortunate in Johnson County and Iowa City that we have some very good police officers who have been responsible about learning about sexual abuse. They've generally been very, very sensitive."

Although she believes the treatment of rape victims by law enforcers is improving, she said police in other places are not as sensitive as in Johnson County.

Despite the increasing awareness of the number of rapes, Miller agreed that "often times the assailant isn't apprehended, for one reason or another."

If the rapist is a stranger to the victim, often it is difficult to get a good description of him or, if apprehended, there is not enough evidence to convict him, Miller said.

"Some factors may make it difficult to make it to court," she said, adding the victim herself is put on trial and sometimes judged on her personal reputation.

However, she said the situation is improving, mainly because of two recent laws that check that courtroom proceedings are fair during a rape trial.

THE LORD-HALE ruling bans the judge from giving special instructions to the jury "which essentially said the victim was probably lying," Miller said.

The second check, the rape-shield law, prohibits a woman's sexual history from being used in a rape trial unless pertinent to the case.

"These two things have worked considerably, as well as there being more accurate information about sexual abuse available today," Miller said. "Juries go into rape trials with more awareness."

The 21 formal complaints of rape received by the Iowa City police department so far this year already exceeded last year's figure of 18.

The FBI estimates that one out of 10 rapes are reported to the police. Miller said she believes that even more rapes go unreported.

The RVAP crisis line receives more calls than the police because "even if the woman doesn't want to deal with the police, she still has to deal with the aftermath of a rape — the rape trauma syndrome," she said.

DR. SIEBERT SPEAKS TO YOU ABOUT HEALTH!

PAIN IS THE WARNING SYSTEM OF YOUR BODY

Everybody hates pain.

So instead of listening to their bodies, many people's first inclination at the sign of an ache or pain is to take a medication to cover it up. This is like turning off a fire-alarm without making an attempt to put out the fire.

Listen to your body.

Pain is important to your well-being. It is nature's early warning signal. A life-and-death message relayed through your nervous system that tells you when something is wrong. As such, pain is merely a symptom and not the cause of most health problems. Therefore, the sensible approach to health is not to merely turn off the pain (or treat the symptom), but rather, to find the causes and correct them.

Structural imbalance is the underlying cause of many types of painful disorders.

Chiropractic recognizes that structural imbalance is the underlying cause of many types of painful disorders, for interference with nerve control impairs a wide variety of body functions. Thus the doctor of chiropractic seeks to maintain the mechanical integrity of the body, free from spinal defects and postural distortions. He seeks to establish normal function in order to cause body organs to function properly. He seeks to enable your body's natural restorative powers to operate at their best, so as to allow the body to eliminate basic health problems as well as associated pain and discomfort.

Your doctor of chiropractic urges you to listen to your body.

Never judge the seriousness of a pain by its location.

Never judge the seriousness of a pain by its location. The central nervous system originates in the brain and extends through the spinal column, reaching every major part of the body. With more than three million impulses generated in the nervous system every second, an anatomical or functional disturbance can result in pain or malfunction at most any point of the body. Often the location of the pain has no known correlation with the source of the health problem. If only the pain is treated, the health disorder may be left to become more serious.

Chiropractic is

Chiropractic is a licensed branch of the healing arts which is concerned with human health and disease processes. Doctors of chiropractic are physicians who consider man as an integrated being, but give special attention to spinal mechanics and neurological, muscular, and vascular relationships. A minimum of six years of college study and internship go into making a doctor of chiropractic, more within a specialty. The practices and procedures commonly employed are based on training received in and through accredited chiropractic colleges and certified programs.

Clear the issue

Last week the grassroots efforts of Iowa City tenant activists resulted in putting the proposed Fair Rent Ordinance before the public in the Nov. 8 city election. Voters will decide then whether to set limits on local rents and establish a fair rent board to oversee enforcement of the ordinance.

With six weeks to go to election day, most people in Iowa City have a pretty clear idea of what the two camps are and how they stand on the issue. The Fair Rent Coalition has been just as vociferous in its position for adoption of the ordinance as the real estate and business interests have been against it. What is unclear, however, is what the ordinance will actually mean to the people of Iowa City who, at least once a month, find themselves either paying or pocketing rent money.

As evinced by the Iowa City Council's 4-2 vote against it, the proposal is thought by many to be primarily a punitive measure directed against landlords and speculators. Councilor Larry Lynch said he thought the ordinance would shut down most of the development in Iowa City. Councilor John Balmer said of the proposal, "The rent control ordinance is directly contrary to the free enterprise system."

The expression "rent control" is partly to blame for confusion about the ordinance. The tenant groups think of the proposal not as control but protection to fight against exorbitant rent increases.

The tenants found support in Kate Dickson and Clemens Erdahl, the two councilors who voted in favor of the ordinance at last Tuesday's council meeting. Said Erdahl, "This is not rent control ... but a fair rent ordinance with a fair amount of return for landlords."

Among the questions Iowa City voters need answered in the coming weeks are how the ordinance will define a fair rate of return and whether the ordinance is constitutional.

Mayor Mary Neuhäuser said if the ordinance passes as a referendum, under the Iowa City Home Rule Ordinance, it will probably not be upheld in court. She said the rules governing the ordinance were so complex that "you'd need to consult with a lawyer."

Erdahl said, however, if the referendum is approved and then challenged in court it would be nothing new, as the city is often threatened with court action over moratoriums. "To say the ordinance is unconstitutional may be technically correct, but it's very confusing to the public and to reporters," Erdahl said.

Is it any more constitutional to guarantee landlords the right to earn profits than to limit those profits to a "reasonable" rate? Given the legal and tax codes that favor property owners, is it not fair for renters to band together for their own protection? And should tenants and landlords not also address the UI's irresponsible uncontrolled enrollment growth?

Six weeks is a short time in which to address the issues of the relative rights of property owners and tenants, development and enrollment. The Fair Rent Coalition has an obligation to present the ordinance in an objective, unemotional light. Opponents of the ordinance have an obligation to react without distortion and without reference to "rent control," which the ordinance is not. And voters must take the time and effort to educate themselves about the ordinance and the issues it raises.

A just and humanitarian assessment of the city's best interests, rather than partisan politics, is in order.

Low vacancy justifies ordinance

This article, written by James Rhodes, was approved by the Fair Rent Coalition as its response to a guest opinion that appeared in The Daily Iowan Sept. 13. It will continue Tuesday.

By James Rhodes

DENNIS BOBEL's article urging the Iowa City Fair Rent Coalition to study economics demonstrates the problems of applying economic theory uncritically (DI, Sept. 13).

Three main points of his polemic emerge. First, that the Iowa City housing market is behaving properly — that is, it is at, or tending toward, equilibrium. To support this assertion, Bobel notes that "the expectation of larger UI enrollments has caused a tremendous increase in building in the Iowa City area." Second, his theory suggests that "if there is a problem it is not that supply does not adjust, but rather that supply adjusts too slowly." Given enough time, the theoretical argument goes, new construction will increase the number of available rental units enough to produce a competitive housing market. Third, he asserts that a fair rent ordinance would thwart this, albeit slow, equilibrating process.

The problem is that his statements are theoretical rather than derived from sound economic analysis of the Iowa City housing market. The following rejoinder will present the results of an economic analysis of the Iowa City housing market, thus demonstrating the inadequacies of Bobel's polemic and setting a supportive framework for a fair rent ordinance in Iowa City. Had Bobel done his homework before pontificating, he would have had little recourse but to come to similar conclusions.

ECONOMISTS RECOGNIZE a vacancy rate of 5 percent to 8 percent to be conducive to a competitive market such that tenant/landlord negotiations produce a fair market price for rental housing. The vacancy rate in Iowa City has been documented at 1 percent in 1976 and only 1.6 percent in 1982. If this slow equilibrating trend were to continue it would take 30 years for the vacancy rate to equal 5.2 percent. Whether this is a slowly adjusting market or non-adjusting market is a moot point to current Iowa City residents.

While there has been a dramatic increase in construction activity in the past year, it is doubtful this reaction is solely a response to increased demand. Another likely cause of new development in Iowa City this past summer has been the city's new comprehensive zoning plan, scheduled to go into effect in November. Future construction will be based on density restrictions that allow fewer units per acre than are currently allowed. Existing housing, including those units built this summer, will remain as non-conforming uses in many parts of the city. The effect of this is to induce investors who would have built in the future to build this year, avoiding additional land costs imposed on future construction. Thus it seems likely this year's construction boom will not be replicated in the future.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT point is that this year's construction is not enough to keep up with current demand for rental units. Some simple calculations demonstrate this clearly. Since the time of the 1982 Iowa City Housing Market Analysis with its reported vacancy rate of 1.6 percent, it is estimated that 1,205 units have been added to the rental stock in Iowa City. To obtain this estimate the ratio of renter-occupied housing units to total units (reported in the 1982 survey) was applied to the number of new housing units as indicated by building permits since January 1982. This accounted for 1,238 new rental units. A similar estimate of the number of rental units demolished, 33, yields a net addition of 1,205 units.

But 1,676 additional students attended the UI in fall 1982. This fall, approximately 1,860 additional students are attending the UI. This increase in college students alone is 3,536. This figure does not include the number of family members who come with the additional students, or jobs created by university expansion. Using the conservative estimate of an additional 3,536 people and the liberal estimate of 2.3 people per housing unit, these people require an additional 1,537 units. (The estimate of 2.3 people per unit was used rather than the 1.7 that is reported in the 1980 census to counter the argument that 1.7 is too low.) This is 332 more units than were added. In fact, they will also fill the 215 units that were vacant at the time of the study.

CONTRARY TO Bobel's assertions, the above data suggest that the Iowa City housing market is not operating as any economics textbook would predict it would in a competitive market. The market failure has occurred precisely because of the peculiar characteristics that housing has as a commodity — on the demand side as well as the supply side.

How does this supply and demand operate? Well, given a certain supply of housing — say Iowa City's existing rental housing stock — if demand increases landlords are able either to be more selective in who they rent to (they may choose not to rent to people with pets or children) or they may raise their rents and only rent to those who can afford the requested price. The current tenants may either pay the rental increase or look elsewhere for a better price/quality mix. If demand continues to increase, new investment and construction becomes profitable and supply adjusts. If the supply increases proportionately to the increase in demand, tenants are in a better position to negotiate for the price/quality mix.

IF THE SUPPLY continues to lag behind demand, as is the case in Iowa City, landlords may be both selective in the characteristics of their tenants and increase price. Bobel's suggestion that the durable quality of housing and the perceived uncertainty in student enrollment and thus in continued demand are the cause for a slow supply adjustment to the price signal is accurate, but only tells part of the story.

The peculiar characteristics of housing demand in general and in Iowa City's housing demand in particular give landlords incentives to maintain slow adjustments in supply. Housing demand, in general, operates differently than demand for ice cream. If the ice cream vendors raise the price of ice cream above the price "the market will bear," then people will either buy frozen yogurt or sherbet as a substitute, buy ice cream less often or do without it altogether. But housing is not only a commodity, it is a human need, especially in climates like Iowa's. In other words, tenants cannot substitute for nor do without a basic housing unit. Tenants may crowd, and in effect substitute space and quality, but there are housing costs and other laws that prevent overcrowding. Thus the basic demand for housing does not necessarily decline as price increases.

THE NATURE OF the Iowa City housing market further aggravates this lack of response to the price signal. The vast majority of Iowa City's housing demand is based on student demand. Students, for the most part, must live in the Iowa City area. Time and educational constraints make living in the Cedar Rapids or Solon or Kalona housing markets (for example) and traveling to Iowa City unfeasible for most. Thus Iowa City landlords have a captive market and in a sense a spatial monopoly.

In addition, those students and/or their parents may view the stay in Iowa City as temporary (although it is usually anywhere between a four and 12 year stay — hardly transient by our mobile society's standards) and thus justify the high cost of housing as a temporary price for a better life in the future. This situation creates incentives for landlords and current investors to keep vacancy rates low (supply adjustment low) while allowing them to increase rental prices.

THERE IS, further, no data or logic to support Bobel's assertion that construction would be reduced by this particular Fair Rent Ordinance. The ordinance allows a reasonable return on a landlord's investment. Doing this should in no way discourage new construction. After all, why would an investor be discouraged by a reasonable profit?

In fact, a study of rent control ordinances in New Jersey, where rent control ordinances allow a reasonable rate of return, revealed that rent control causes no decline in construction. Therefore, there is no reason to believe that construction in Iowa City would be discouraged any more than existing incentives to restrict the supply of rental units. Bobel is correct in arguing that the ordinance will prevent the price signal from creating incentives for new investment and construction, but this is a moot point given that supply reacts so slowly to that signal in Iowa City's housing market anyway.

Rhodes is a member of the Fair Rent Coalition.

Behind the doors

Backpackers and hikers in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of New Mexico often wear ponchos to the commode because the facilities are wooden open-holders ... in the open. Many public bathrooms in the United Kingdom have open windows and always are unheated. (The flow of traffic through them is hurried during winter months.) But here in civilized Iowa — and maybe even in Minnesota — public and private toilets are recognized by the warmth and privacy they provide users.

Officials at Iowa State University want to change this.

Judd Baker, associate director of ISU's Union, says reports of homosexual acts in the men's lavatories there prompted union authorities to order the removal of stall doors. Some of the more reserved male students at ISU are crying "bring back the doors" and plotting a sit-in of the women's janes.

The situation is ignominious on two counts. The first, of course, is the thought of anyone, male or female, hiding in cramped space by a loo for a quickie.

The second set of problems belong to the ISU Union's administration: apparent cases of homophobia, AIDS hysteria hangover, an impudent attitude toward common privacy. Baker has cited no particular events leading to the removal of stall doors, only vague "complaints" and concern for the sensitivity of union guests.

If there really are more than mundane bodily functions occurring in the union's private nooks, Baker should be more exact in his accusations. And if those aren't unfounded, work-study students or graduates scrambling for scarcer-than-ever student loans and grants could be hired to watch the restrooms and make sure only one person uses a bog at a time. Granted, the jobs would not be the most pleasant in the world, but could they be any worse than cleaning the bathrooms?

The removal of stall doors, however, is an insolent act. The American toilet has become a sanctuary where one with a few moments between study or work can relieve her or himself, have a cigarette in private, maybe catch up on the newspaper or a science-fiction novel.

If ISU union officials are stubborn, legitimate users of men's lavatories should begin taping newspapers to the thresholds of stalls and only then proceed with usual business.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Iowa received payment in full from a hungry group of Illinois Fighting Illini in Saturday's 33-0 Big Ten thrashing.

Make no mistake about it, Illinois was mad — fighting mad — after last year's 14-13 Hawkeye win at Kinnick Stadium. The loss was Iowa's first shut-out since being upended by Washington, 28-0, in the 1982 Rose Bowl.

"They messed up our chances of going to a bowl game last year though the Liberty Bowl wasn't too bad," Illini tackle Mark Butkus said. "When they beat us we had a great chance at the Rose Bowl and they threw a bunch of trick (plays) at us, too."

Illinois defense scalps No. 3 Hawkeyes

Iowa Hawkeye receiver Bill Broghamer (27) is pulled down by Illinois linebacker Archie Carter (84). Broghamer gained 25 yards on the play on a throw from Iowa quarterback Chuck Long during the third quarter of the Fighting Illini's 33-0 pasting of the third-ranked Hawkeyes Saturday.

By Robert Ryser
Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry said he would rather lose a game like the 33-0 trouncing Illinois gave Iowa, Saturday, than lose a down-to-the-wire heartbreaker later in the season.

Fry said a heartbreak loss gives the players a chance to second-guess their actions and they begin to doubt their performance ability. The loss to Illinois will give the Hawkeyes a chance to evaluate their play, and thereby improve their performance next week against Northwestern, according to Fry.

"It's all part of the educational experience," Fry said. "It's not a life or death situation — 95 percent of the teams in the country are going to lose a game, and a lot of people are going to lose a bunch."

BUT FANS, WRITERS and area coaches weren't expecting a third-ranked Iowa loss in the degree and form of Saturday's contest.

A balanced Illinois offense and a physical, unyielding defense set the tone of the game early in the first quarter, and according to WLS Radio sportscaster, Les Grobstein, the Fighting Illini had been waiting to pounce on the Hawkeyes since last year.

An aggressive Illinois squad, with the sounds of last years 14-13 defeat in Iowa City still ringing in their ears, broke through the 'Pay 'em back Illini' banner in front of a packed Memorial Stadium crowd. Sophomore quarterback Jack Trudeau led his Illini squad to a Chris White field goal and two passing touchdowns in their first three possessions.

IOWA DID BETTER at moving the ball behind the line of scrimmage in the first quarter, — with the help of some uncharacteristic penalties, frequent and exceptionally poor field position and an impressive Illini defense.

"We were working out of our end zone all day," said quarterback Chuck Long. "We'll learn from this experience."

"Illinois wiped us out at the line of scrimmage — I think that was the most yardage I've ever had lost in one game," Fry said. "We lost 85 yards, but still managed to gain some 300 yards in total offense."

And though some of that yardage was accumulated in encouraging Iowa drives, the Illini abruptly cut short the Hawkeyes' offensive attack as quarterback Long was sacked, completed passes were knocked out of Iowa receivers' hands, and Hawkeye running backs fumbled the football.

"THEY BEAT US in every phase of the game," Fry said. "Everything that happened went in the other direction, especially in the first half."

Illinois also sidelined honorary defensive captain senior Mike Yacullo, who will be out a minimum of six weeks with a broken foot, according to Fry. Owen Gill, Eddie Phillips and Norm Granger, who all had ailing injuries going into the contest, contributed little to the Hawkeye's running attack.

Hawkeye fans were looking for a directional change from Iowa in the second half, but down 27-0, the Hawkeyes could manage little better than a drive to the end zone late in the fourth quarter.

Long led Iowa to the Illini two-yard line and with first and goal-to-go it looked as if the Hawkeyes were finally going to supply some accreditation to their national ranking.

A STINGY DEFENSE, headed by senior tackles Don Thorp and Mark Butkus and backed by a loud capacity crowd, held Iowa in four straight downs. Illinois drove down the field to score the last three points of the ball game.

"I really don't know what happened to Iowa," Butkus said after the game.

Illini glad to 'pay back' Iowa, 33-0

By Steve Batterson

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Iowa received payment in full from a hungry group of Illinois Fighting Illini in Saturday's 33-0 Big Ten thrashing.

Make no mistake about it, Illinois was mad — fighting mad — after last year's 14-13 Hawkeye win at Kinnick Stadium. The loss was Iowa's first shut-out since being upended by Washington, 28-0, in the 1982 Rose Bowl.

"They messed up our chances of going to a bowl game last year though the Liberty Bowl wasn't too bad," Illini tackle Mark Butkus said. "When they beat us we had a great chance at the Rose Bowl and they threw a bunch of trick (plays) at us, too."

BUTKUS, WHO LED the Illini with 10 tackles, said the Iowa game was considered a key game to Coach Mike

White's team. "We needed to pay them back from last year," he said. "It meant a lot to us — you couldn't ask for a better win. We just wanted it more than they did."

Illinois won the coin toss and decided to exercise its option in the second half, putting the Illini defense on the field to begin the game, something White has done everytime Illinois has won the flip this year.

"We started off tough and gave them the ball," defensive tackle Don Thorp said. "We shut 'em down and we were on our way."

White, who had been critical of his team's play during its first three games, "I can't remember a defense playing as well as it did," White said, "especially when you think of the defensive pressure with the goal line stand in the fourth quarter. It was a total team effort."

"EVERYONE WAS REALLY excited," Thorp said. "We had one thing in mind — we didn't want them to get into the end zone. We wanted a shut out real bad."

It didn't take long for Iowa fans to realize the Illini were serious about plans to gain revenge on the Hawkeyes after rolling to a 17-0 lead in the first quarter. Then the Illini defense took over and pushed the Iowa offense into reverse gear for much of the day in the game that featured the Big Ten's top offensive squad against the league's top defensive unit.

"Last year, they kind of embarrassed us," Thorp said. "We have the best defense in the Big Ten and they had the best offense. It was a situation where something had to give. I don't really know if they were mentally prepared for us."

ILLINI SOPHOMORE quarterback Jack Trudeau had a field day, picking up 286 yards through the air, including a 54-yard beauty to Mitchell Brookins that gave Illinois a 10-0 lead.

"You're always a little surprised when you score so quickly," Trudeau said. "I was still nervous at halftime though. Iowa's a great offensive football team and they've come back against Penn State. I was still nervous until the fourth quarter."

White saw the win as just one game in a season that will be filled with wins and some losses. "The tone here is not one of tearing the locker room apart," he said. "In college and professional football today, we have to keep the wins and losses in the proper perspective. We caught Iowa at the right time and now someone's going to try and catch us. I do think Iowa deserved to be ranked where they were."

The Hawkeyes weren't the only ones surprised by the margin of victory. Even Trudeau seemed a little puzzled. "I still don't know if we're that good of a football team to beat Iowa."

Also a chance to purchase Amana-Hawkeye Classic tickets, which are not included in regular student ticket, will be given at $25 per seat for the entire tournament.

Students with a three, four or five priority may order from 9 a.m. until noon today and students with a two priority may order from noon until 3 p.m. today.

Students who have a one priority, those who have ordered tickets last year, may order beginning Tuesday. Zero priority applications will begin on Thursday.

One and zero priority students will need to apply at times specified by the last two numbers of their student I.D.

Tickets will be available for pick-up in mid-November. The Hawkeyes will open their regular season with a home game against Illinois Wesleyan on Nov. 26 at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Iowa will play host to the Italian National Team on Nov. 18 in a preseason match-up.

First-year Iowa Coach George Raveling will begin putting his squad through official workouts Oct. 15. The Hawks finished fifth in the Big Ten last season and advanced to the NCAA final 16 before losing to Villanova 55-54.

Buckeyes breeze to Northern crown

The Ohio State women's golf team continues its domination of the Midwest golf scene, winning its second tournament of the year with a 10-stroke victory in the second annual Lady Northern Intercollegiate on the UI's Finkbine Golf Course last weekend.

Buckeye sophomore Cheryl Stacy shot a brilliant four-under-par total of 212 to easily capture the medalist honors. Stacy shot rounds of 70, 72 and 70 on the par-72 layout during the three days of the 54-hole tournament to easily outdistance Michelle Redman of Indiana and Michigan State's Barb Mucha, who both tied for second.

OHIO STATE, which won the first Lady Northern on its home course last year, blitzed Finkbine with rounds of 294, 298 and 302 to finish 10 strokes in front of second-place Michigan State.

Indiana and Illinois tied for third place, followed by Nebraska in the fifth spot.

The Iowa black team, led by sophomore Phoebe Colliflower's 236 total, finished eighth in the 19-team tournament. And sophomores Lynn Tuke and Mary Baacke each shot 236s to lead the Hawkeye gold team to a 10th-place finish.

Iowa spikers served recognition from Big Ten

By Robert Ryser
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's volleyball team is quickly moving away from its novel status to a competitive image in the Big Ten.

The Hawkeyes' current 13-match winning streak has become more than just a spontaneous string of victories — it is a visible indication of Iowa's competitive integrity towards the opposition.

The Hawkeyes defeated Michigan State, Friday night in East Lansing, Mich., in a locally televised match, and swept Michigan the next afternoon in three games at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Michigan had upset nationally-ranked Northwestern the night before, and Iowa's easy win puts the Hawkeyes at the top Big Ten standings with an untarnished 4-0 record.

"WE EXPECTED to see something from Michigan," said Iowa assistant Coach Cindy Smoker. "They weren't that impressive."

"Michigan must have really been pumped up for Northwestern," said Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart. "I think (Michigan) had a little bit of an emotional letdown.

"It gets kind of fun to be on the other end for a change," Stewart said. "It's a new perspective — now we're the favorites and everybody wants to beat us."

The Spartans and the Wolverines were after the Hawkeyes over the weekend, but Iowa responded well to the pressure, according to Smoker.

"Michigan State was really up for us," she said. "There was a story in the paper that said (MSU) was out to avenge their loss to last year. They were taunting us about leading the Big Ten."

IOWA, LED BY some great all-around play by Julie Michelletti, moved the Spartans to 7-9 with a 15-9, 15-10, 13-15, 16-14 victory.

Smoker said she believed Iowa didn't play as well as they could have Friday night, partially as a result of the long road trip.

"It was nice to see us win even though we didn't play well," Smoker said. "It's a good sign of the way we are winning."

Smoker said Iowa didn't block for points Friday night and as a result, couldn't expect the usual good defensive performances from Cathy Arsenault and Denise Watson.

Iowa's victory over Michigan the following afternoon was highlighted with good front row blocking.

"OUR BLOCKING WAS really outstanding," Smoker said. "(Michigan) couldn't hit it through us ... we had incredible front line blocking."

Smoker said Michigan was setting fast-middle, but once Iowa caught on, they blocked the attacks successfully.

Stewart praised the backcourt coverage of Michelletti in Saturday's match — an aspect of defense the Hawkeyes have had troubles with in the past.

"Quickness is Julie's greatest asset," Stewart said, "she anticipates well and that gives her the chance to get to balls that others wouldn't."

The timing between freshman setter, Kathy Greisheim, and five-foot, eight-inch Michelletti is also improving, according to Smoker.

"Michelletti had some nice hits (Saturday)," she said. "(Michelletti) heard the Michigan bench say Iowa wasn't that good, and when you get Julie riled up, she can really hit — she knocked someone down (with a kill-attack) in the Michigan State game."

Theismann skins Raiders, 37-35

United Press International

Joe Theismann outdueled Jim Plunkett in an offensive shootout Sunday, leading the Washington Redskins to a 37-35 victory over the previously unbeaten Los Angeles Raiders.

Theismann passed for a career-high 417 yards and three touchdowns, including a 6-yard game-winning touchdown toss to Joe Washington with 33 seconds left. Theismann also passed 5 yards to Washington and 11 yards to Charlie Brown. John Riggins rumbled 2 yards for a touchdown and Mark Moseley kicked field goals from 28, 29, and 34 yards for the Redskins, 4-1.

Plunkett passed for 372 yards and four touchdowns, and tied an NFL record with a 99-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Branch. Plunkett also threw 51 and 22-yard touchdown passes to Calvin Muhammad and added a 2-yard touchdown toss to Todd Christensen.

BESIDE WASTING PLUNKETT'S effort, the visiting Raiders also had a 97-yard punt return for a touchdown by Greg Pruitt go in vain.

The Redskins trailed 35-20 midway through the fourth quarter before Theismann got hot. Theismann, who completed 23-of-29 passes, hit Brown in the end zone to cut the Los Angeles lead to 35-27 with 6:15 remaining.

Redskins' safety Greg Williams recovered an onside kick at the Los Angeles 32 and Moseley kicked his third field goal with 4:28 left. The Redskins forced a punt with two minutes remaining and got the ball back at their 31. Theismann hit Brown on successive plays for 9, 26, and 28 yards for a first down at the Los Angeles 6 with 43 seconds left.

Theismann found Washington in the middle of the end zone on second down for the winning score. Redskins cornerback Vernon Dean killed the Raiders' final threat with the fourth interception off Plunkett with 19 seconds remaining.

PLUNKETT COMPLETED 16-of-29 passes but was also intercepted four times.

The Raiders' loss leaves Dallas as the NFL's only unbeaten team.

In other interconference games, Chicago clubbed Denver 31-14, San Francisco trounced New England 33-13, Kansas City crushed St. Louis 38-14, San Diego outlasted the New York Giants 41-34 and New Orleans stunned Miami 17-7.

In National Conference games, Dallas topped Minnesota 37-24, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 28-24, Green Bay crushed Tampa Bay 55-14 and the Los Angeles Rams beat Detroit 27-10.

In the American Conference, Baltimore edged Cincinnati 34-31, Pittsburgh topped Houston 17-7 and Seattle downed Cleveland 24-9.

Rookie Willie Gault caught two touchdown passes — one each from Jim McMahon and Vince Evans — and the Chicago defense shut down Denver in the first half to lead the Bears. Gault, who has now caught six touchdowns in five games, caught a 15-yard touchdown pass from McMahon to cap a 14-point first quarter for the Bears, who led 24-0 at halftime.

JOE MONTANA PASSED for 288 yards, including two touchdowns, and Ray Wersching kicked four field goals to power San Francisco to its fourth straight victory. Montana, who utilized the short passing game to complete 25-of-38 passes, threw an 8-yard touchdown pass to former Patriot Russ Francis in the first quarter and a 13-yard scoring strike to Dwight Clark in the third quarter.

Linebacker Charles Jackson returned a fumble 37 yards for a touchdown to key a Kansas City defensive effort that forced nine St. Louis turnovers in the Chiefs' blowout. Free safety Deron Cherry, in the lineup because of the continued holdout of All-Pro Gary Barbaro, intercepted two passes to set up two other Kansas City touchdowns and also blocked a field goal attempt.

Muncie, who earlier scored on bursts of 1 and 2 yards, made his game-winning run after the Giants had tied the score on Ali Haji-Sheikh's 37-yard field goal with 6:53 left.

Defensive end Reggie Lewis raced 27 yards with an interception return and the Saints defense dominated mistake-prone Miami. Ken Stabler hit Tyrone Young with a 16-yard touchdown pass.

RON FELLOWS SCORED on a 58-yard interception return for the go-ahead touchdown — Tony Dorsett rushed for 141 yards to lead unbeaten Dallas to its fifth straight victory, the Cowboys' best start since an 8-0 beginning in the 1977 Super Bowl season.

Ron Jaworski ran for one touchdown and passed for three others, the third a 53-yard bomb to Mike Quick with only 1:45 remaining, to lift Philadelphia. The Falcons, down 21-7 at halftime, had rallied behind Steve Bartkowski — who threw three touchdown passes — and taken a 24-21 lead on Mick Luckhurst's 44-yard field goal with 5:48 remaining.

Lynn Dickey passed for three touchdowns and the Green Bay Packers set an NFL record for points scored in one half when they moved to a 49-7 halftime lead over Tampa Bay.

The 49 points broke the old record of 45 set by Green Bay Nov. 12, 1967, against the Cleveland Browns. Dickey completed 10 of 15 passes for 287 yards and now has thrown 12 touchdowns passes this season.

ERIC DICKERSON RUSHED for 199 yards and scored three touchdowns to lift the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams improved their record to 3-2 while the Lions fell to 1-4.

Curtis Dickey ran three yards for a touchdown with 7:10 left to lift Baltimore over Cincinnati.

Cliff Stoudt hit Walter Abercrombie with a 51-yard touchdown pass and Gary Anderson kicked an 18-yard field goal to rally Pittsburgh from a 10-7 fourth-quarter deficit.

Rookie running back Curt Warner shredded the Cleveland defense for 92 yards, scoring two touchdowns off turnovers to power Seattle.

Wisconsin ends Iowa

By Greg Anderson
Staff Writer

The streak has finally ended.

After finishing one-two in their first three meets of the season, Iowa runners Nan Doak and Jenny Spangler were unable to duplicate that feat this weekend at the Illinois Invitational women's cross country meet.

An outstanding performance by Wisconsin's Cathi Branta put an end to the Hawkeyes' streak. The Badger standout traveled the 5,000-meter Lake of the Woods Course in a record time of 16 minutes, 22.7 seconds on her way to a first place title.

Iowa's Doak was the second-place finisher with a 16:33 clocking and although Doak was 11 seconds behind, Branta did not dominate the competition. Doak, in fact, was the leader through much of the race.

THE HAWKEYE SENIOR broke out at the start in an extremely fast pace and was 30 yards ahead of the competition by the 1,000 meter mark.

Branta, on the other hand, stayed with the pack early. She eventually passed Doak at the 4,000 meter spot and cruised to victory over the final 1,000 meters.

According to Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard, Doak's main mistake was her quick start.

"She (Doak) went out with leaders early to test people and handled them, but she then should've backed off. Instead she continued to build her lead and ran too long, too fast," Hassard said.

The Hawkeye coach added that "it hurt her at the end, next time she is going to have to run a more tactical and smarter race and she knows that."

UNI upset at Big Four

In the Big Four men's cross country meet, Northern Iowa proved to be the "outstanding team," according to Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler.

Des Moines was the sight of the non-scoring event, which Northern Iowa dominated by taking the fourth and sixth through ninth spots.

According to Wheeler, Iowa State finished second in the overall competition followed by the Hawkeyes and then Drake.

"There is no reason not to score it," Wheeler said. "There is more attraction if it is scored. The meet is not very good not scored."

Chris Leonard paced the Panthers, crossing the finish line in a time of 25 minutes, 50 seconds.

Following Leonard for UNI were Greg Skopec and Dan Fick.

THE CYCLOPS YOBES On dieki led all runners finishing in a time of 24:07 as he recorded split times of 4:28, 9:18, 14:14 and 19:11 in the 5,000-meter race.

Taking second place was Iowa's Michael Diment, who finished in a time of 25:25.

Wheeler labeled Diment's performance "outstanding racing for a guy in his second year of me school. Competing makes you a great runner."

Hawkeye Captain Eva Clarrissmeaux, who was the second Hawkeye runner to finish ending up in 10th place, echoed the sentiment.

"It was a great experience," she said.

"Quickness is Julie's greatest asset," Stewart said, "she anticipates well and that gives her the chance to get to balls that others wouldn't."

The timing between freshman setter, Kathy Greisheim, and five-foot, eight-inch Michelletti is also improving, according to Smoker.

The Hawkeye coach added that

"it hurt her at the end, next time she is going to have to run a more tactical and smarter race and she knows that."

CROSSING THE FINISH line in third place was Becky Cotta of Purdue (16:37), while Spangler was fourth in 16:39. Wendy Van-Mierlo, running unattached, took fifth with a 16:43.

Jodi Hershberger was third for Iowa and placed 14th overall in 17:13. Anne Dobrowski was 24th (17:36) while Maribeth See finished 48th in a time of 18:17.

Wisconsin also finished one place ahead of Iowa in the team standings, claiming the championship trophy with 69 points. The Hawkeyes were second with 89, while Northwestern (101), Purdue (111) and Minnesota (135) rounded out the top five in the 14 team field.

ALTHOUGH THE IOWA runners improved an average of 73 seconds each over last week's race, Hassard was not happy with his team's performance in the meet.

"We didn't compete very well. A few of our runners need to compete better and realize what needs to be done in order to be effective in the Big Ten meet next month," Hassard said.

Saturday's race should be a good indicator of what the conference meet will be like as eight of the Big Ten teams ran at Lake of the Woods, which is also the site of the conference championship on Nov. 5.

The Iowa coach said his runners had a good chance to study the Illinois course over the weekend as they ran it four times.

Hassard added that, "Wisconsin is very strong and will be tough to beat, but I am very certain that our second place finish was not our best performance. We have a challenge ahead of us and our athletes need to be in tune with what's needed to be effective."

UNI upsets field at Big Four meet

By J.B. Glass

In the Big Four men's cross country meet, Northern Iowa proved to be the "outstanding team," according to Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler.

Des Moines was the sight of the non-scoring event, which Northern Iowa dominated by taking the fourth and sixth through ninth spots.

Taking second place was Iowa's Michael Diment, who finished in a time of 25:25.

Wheeler labeled Diment's performance "outstanding racing for a guy in his second year of med school. Competing makes you a great runner."

Hawkeye Captain Evan Clarrissmeaux, who was the second Hawkeye runner to finish, ending up in 10th place, echoed Wheeler's views on Diment. "It was a great, extraordinary run — he was really up for it."

Clarrissmeaux believes the team just did not have the best day, he said. "There is room for improvement, it was a tough course and we broke up after a while."

Wheeler believed the teamwork of Iowa was split as a result of the fast pace of Ondieki's first mile.

"We started to individualize and we did not focus on the team," Wheeler said. "He got us off-balance early."

THE NEXT HAWKEYE to cross the line was Dan Waters who placed in the 13th position, following Waters were Gary Utecht and John Dobbs who finished 25th and 27th, respectively.

On Utecht, Wheeler said, "He wants to be part of the team and he wants to be successful."

"We will get much better, right now I have three people I can count on (Diment, Clarrissmeaux, Waters)," the Hawkeye coach said. "The fourth and fifth positions are still open."

Wheeler said some adjustments will have to be made in order for success. "There will have to be more 'discipline in the operation and some guys need more flexibility.'"

Wheeler believes Iowa's two week layoff will be beneficial to the team. The Hawkeyes next action is on Oct. 15 when the team travels to Wisconsin for the Tom Jones Invitational.

Davidson proud of play in East

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

Iowa Coach Judith Davidson had nothing but praise for her field hockey team Sunday afternoon even though they finished their trip out East with a 1-1-1 record.

"It (their record) was good for us," Davidson said. "I think they will be the three toughest games all season."

"I don't think any other team plays as difficult a schedule in a three-game weekend as we did," she said. "I was so pleased with the team, they really hung in there."

Before going to New Hampshire for the three games, Davidson had said the games would decide what the rest of the season will be like for the Hawkeyes. "We'll do all right and we can play with the best of them," she said.

THE HAWKEYES WERE tested for the first time on defense against ninth-ranked New Hampshire Friday. Iowa won the game, 1-0.

Ellen Egan scored the Hawkeyes only goal with 26 minutes into the second half on a penalty corner with the assist going to Debra Brickey.

"It was a very fast, aggressive game and took a lot out of us physically and emotionally," Davidson said. "It was the kind of game that could have gone either way."

Iowa had 11 shots on goal in the game and New Hampshire had seven. The Hawkeyes were also awarded 13 penalty corners while New Hampshire earned 11.

Davidson said her team played with a lot of poise and were very relaxed in the game.

ACCORDING TO DAVIDSON, Goalie Joan Behrends played a very good game against New Hampshire with nine saves. "Behrends made tremendous strides forward this weekend," Davidson said.

Davidson was also pleased with the play of freshman Brown Markell and junior Lee Ann Detwiler.

"Brown played the best game since she came to Iowa; she really showed me a lot," Davidson said. "And, Lee Ann has been turning out one good performance after another."

On Saturday, Iowa was shut out by the nation's top-ranked team, Connecticut, 4-0.

"They totally outclassed us," Davidson said. "It was a passing game and they out-ran us."

During the game, Connecticut had 13 shots on goal and 19 penalty corners. Iowa had only 7 shots on goal and 7 penalty corners.

"CONNECTICUT'S GOALS weren't really great shots," Davidson said. "Most goals occurred because our defense was not in the right position. They put us under quite an amount of pressure — the same pressure that we would put on other teams," she said.

It was also good for the Hawkeyes to play against such a strong team as Connecticut because it will give Iowa something to shoot for, Davidson said.

"Connecticut looks like a No. 1 team," Davidson said. "I would be surprised if they lose any of their games the rest of this season except when they play us again."

The Hawkeyes were able to bounce back Sunday to tie the seventh-rated Penn State, 2-2.

The Lions scored first in the game with about 10 minutes left in the first half.

The Hawkeyes didn't score until the second half with only three minutes left to play on a shot by Brickey.

In overtime, neither team scored until just under three minutes remained in the game. Penn State score first with 2:58 remaining and 45 seconds later Sarah Fanjul scored for the Hawkeyes with assistance by Brickey.

With the score tied at two apiece, the game went into a second overtime but neither team was able to score in the 10 minutes.

"We came back (Sunday) and played well and strong after losing 4-0 on Saturday," Davidson said.

1983-84 STUDENT BASKETBALL TICKET POLICY

1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price.
2. Students will receive a priority based on the number of consecutive years they have purchased or applied for basketball tickets at the University of Iowa with no loss in priority for student exchange programs off campus or bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. Student tickets will be on sale at the Athletic Department commencing October 3 and closing October 14, 1983. These tickets will then be available for pick-up beginning November 15, 1983. The student I.D. card must be presented at the time of pick-up so that the student name and number can be stamped on the student tickets.
4. The public sale will open immediately after the student sale closes, therefore, a student who has not ordered by October 14 will have no further opportunity to buy a ticket for the 1983-84 season.
5. A University student may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight, provided he/she has the additional student credentials, but each individual student must pick up his/her own ticket and sign for it.
6. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member of that group.
7. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by I.D. card and a current registration certificate. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy.
8. Students must indicate whether or not they wish to participate in the lottery for post-season play, and must sign up at the time of season ticket pick-up. Anyone not doing so will not be eligible to participate in the lottery. A student selected in a lottery for post-season play may purchase a second ticket for another currently enrolled student.
9. Each I.D. must correspond to the check being used to pay for the ticket.
10. Amana Hawkeye Classic tickets will be available to students at $25.00 per seat for the tournament. This is a special event, therefore not on the season ticket.

Priority 3, 4, 5-Monday, October 3-9 a.m.-12 noon

'Cats dominate meet; Ballard praises play

By Mike Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

As expected, the powerful Northwestern Wildcat women's tennis team picked up right where they left off at the end of last season.

Coach Sandy Clifton's squad was impressive as they dominated the Wildcat Intercollegiate Invitational last weekend in Chicago.

Northwestern freshman Eva Lucido, playing in her first collegiate competition, upset teammate Randi Rosen, 6-3, 6-3 to win the singles title.

Rosen, seeded second in the meet, was part of a Wildcat trio rated in the top 50 in the nation (Maevie Quinlan and Courtney Lord are the others) coming into the meet.

But Lucido, seeded fourth, showed that she is ready to join her teammates to make Northwestern even more powerful this season as they attempt to wrestle the Big Ten title away from Lin Loring's Indiana Hoosiers.

"THEY ARE DEFINITELY stronger than they were last year," said Iowa Coach Cathy Ballard. "They have four top players in their line-up."

Although not having any players make the finals, Ballard was pleased with the effort her squad gave, especially against Northwestern players.

"We got a couple of tough draws," she said. "But none of our kids were blown away against Northwestern. We had some real consistent play and our kids showed me that they can close the gap between us and Northwestern before we see them again in the spring."

Senior Angela Jones advanced to farthest of any Hawkeye. After winning her opening match, she lost to Northwestern's Kim Gandy in the second round.

In the consolation round, she advanced all the way to the finals before losing to another Wildcat netter, Kirstin Laux, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

Although pleased with the play of her team as a whole, Ballard had a special word of praise for walk-on freshman Jennifer Forti. "Forti really played some tennis throughout the meet," she said. "She proved that she has the toughness needed to be a successful player."

THE HAWKEYES WERE playing the tournament without freshman Jenny Reuter, who has been playing in the top half of the Iowa line-up all season. "Her loss would have been more apparent in a dual meet than in an open draw like this one," Ballard said.

Another unsettled area is the doubles. "We'll try some different combinations in practice this week," Ballard said. "We have a short week because we leave for Nebraska on Wednesday night. But I expect we'll have some changes by then."

The trip to Nebraska of which Ballard speaks is for the Cornhusker Invitational which will have some of the top teams in the western part of the country.

On the line

Well, The Daily Iowan's On the Line contest had quite a finish Sunday afternoon in the new room. After going through all 334 ballots cast, 15 were found with only one incorrect game.

The first tiebreaker of course was the final score of the Iowa-Illinois game in Champaign, Ill. on Saturday. But the Illini's 33-0 blitzing of Hayden's Hawkeyes threw a wrench into the system.

All 15 had Iowa winning so we went to the next phase of determining a winner — choosing one of the 15 out of the silver DI sports cup atop Sports Editor Steve Batterson's desk.

The tension mounted as staff writer J.B. Glass drew the lucky winner out of the cup. Glass slowly put his hand into the cup and the name he pulled was Samson Chow.

OL' SAMSON'S PRIZE is an eight gallon keg from the friendly folks at the Stadium.

But as well as Sampson did, the race among the editors took a turn for the worse as far as Assistant Sports Editor Mike Condon was concerned. He finished the week with a dismal 4-6 record.

Kuenn, Howard fired; Chicago's Fox quits

United Press International

New York's Frank Howard and Chicago's Charlie Fox won't be managing their clubs any more — and not because the baseball season ended Sunday.

Frank Howard, named interim manager of the Mets on June 3, was fired Sunday, while Fox announced he will not return as manager of the Cubs next season.

But when Harvey Kuenn heard the reports that he has managed his last game for the Milwaukee Brewers, he just smiled and said, "That's baseball."

"Frank Howard has been offered another position in the organization," New York general manager Frank Cashen said, "and that may take one of several priorities."

Howard, one of the Mets' coaches at the time, took over as manager of the club after George Bamberger resigned on June 3 for health reasons.

"WE HAVE NOT set a timetable on naming a new manager," Cashen continued. "We have had some preliminary discussions and these now will be intensified. It is not something that we are looking to draw out. It will be done as soon as possible."

Dave Johnson, former second baseman for the Baltimore Orioles and Atlanta Braves, who managed the Mets' Tidewater club in the International League this season, has been named among the possible candidates to manage the Mets next season.

Fox, meanwhile, said Sunday that he would return to his front office position with the Cubs. Fox, 61, assumed the managing duties on Aug. 22 when Lee Elia was fired.

BEFORE BECOMING THE team's manager, Fox was a special consultant to Dallas Green, the team's Executive Vice President and General Manager. "I know I can still manage," said Fox, "but for the good of the organization and overall picture I've decided to go up to the front office with Dallas."

"I've discussed my future with Dallas on several occasions since I took over the club. When I was first hired, it was to upgrade our major league scouting program and do advance scouting. At this time, that's where I feel I can help the organization the most."

Kuenn's American League champion Brewers finished a fifth-place season Sunday by sweeping the second-place Detroit Tigers in the last three games of the season.

"I HAVE NO regrets," Kuenn said. "I'm not the first manager to be fired. I'm not going to be the last manager to be fired."

A Sunday story said Rene Lachemann, fired earlier this season by the Seattle Mariners, will be named Monday to replace Kuenn as the Brewers' manager.

The easy-going Kuenn was only in his first full season as Milwaukee's manager. He left a comfortable job coaching with the Brewers to take over when Bob Rodgers was fired June 2, 1982, when the club was in fifth place.

Milwaukee went 72-43 for Kuenn the rest of the way to wind up first in the American League East. The Brewers won the League Championship Series by winning the last three games and took the St. Louis Cardinals to seven games in the World Series.

"YOU KNOW WHEN you take the job you're going to get fired," Kuenn said.

The final day in the American League saw Boston's Carl Yastrzemski close out his brilliant career by going 1-for-3 in the Red Sox 3-1 win over the Cleveland Indians.

Illinois defensive back Mike Heaven raises his hands in excitement as Iowa wide receiver Dave Moritz (5) heads for the sidelines after Hawkeye quarterback Chuck Long was sacked by Illinois defensive back Craig Swoope for a nine-yard loss on fourth-and-10 on the Illini 11. Illinois took possession of the ball and drove down the field to score a field goal during the second quarter of the Hawkeyes' 33-0 loss to the Fighting Illini in Champaign, Ill.

Illinois

"I think Iowa thought we'd be a little easier than we were," Thorp said. "We knew what kind of blocks they were going to use from their films, so we worked around (them)."

While no one player or coach attributed Saturday's upset to anything other than "that's just a part of collegiate football" the Illini players' feelings were consistent with coach Mike White.

"When we started out the season, people over-looked us and underrated us," White said.

FRY SAID HIS players did not over-look or underestimate Illinois.

"We think every team in the league is tough for Iowa," Fry said, "we lack a long tradition of winning against other teams in the league, and we don't install the (awe) in teams like Ohio State and Michigan."

"I always overestimate my opponents... I don't think we underestimated Illinois," said linebacker Larry Station, who was one of the few individuals Fry praised for a superior game. "Last year Penn State lost a game and they won the national championship."

"We learned we can be beaten," sophomore wingback Ronnie Harmon said.

"We'll never go into another game thinking nobody can beat us," said Long.

Although Fry and some of the Iowa players said they are treating the Illinois upset as a learning experience, the most confusing element is, upsets — however unpredictable — will happen all year long, according to Fry.

"That's the fun part — it's not fun when you lose — but any given day a team can be beat," Fry said. "You've got guys the same age and guys with the same desire from week to week. We'll bounce back, we're still way ahead of the game."

Iowa loss revives Big Ten race

United Press International

Illinois shocked No. 3 Iowa 33-0 Saturday to knock the Hawkeyes from the ranks of the unbeaten in the Big Ten but more significantly, the Illini demolition of Iowa probably signaled a more wide open race in the Big Ten this season.

Michigan, the defending champion, joined Illinois at the top in the league with a 2-0 mark with a 43-18 triumph over Indiana. Ohio State, upended by Iowa the week before, rebounded with a 69-18 triumph over Minnesota.

Wisconsin, Illinois' next opponent, shut out Northwestern 49-0 while Michigan State and Purdue battled to a 29-21 tie thanks to Ralf Mojsiejenko's 59-yard field goal with one second left.

Michigan shook off a stubborn Indiana to remain tied for the lead.

"I'M EDGY UNLESS we're 50 points ahead," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said. "I don't trust anybody anymore... I'm disappointed we didn't score every time we had the ball."

Indiana got three touchdowns from Kerry Smith but Indiana Coach Sam Wyche said there was little doubt of Michigan's superiority.

"The best team won," Wyche said.

Big Ten roundup

"Michigan has a tremendous football team. They are the picture of where we'll be in a few years. They have great personnel. They can run left or they can run right, it's that simple."

Keith Byars scored three touchdowns and Ohio State took advantage of seven Minnesota turnovers to romp past the Gophers.

"IT WAS A Big Ten win and we're looking forward to building on that," said Coach Earle Bruce. "After a slow start we finally got going. We got some big plays both on defense and offense. We snapped back from defeat and that's important."

Minnesota Coach Joe Salem said his club performed "miserably."

"I don't want to take anything away from Ohio State, but we gave them a lot of help," Salem said. "I have never had a team that looked so bad and so inept. We just failed miserably on fundamentals."

Wisconsin beat Northwestern for the 12th straight time and Randy Wright set a school career touchdown record with a pair of touchdowns passes as the Badgers pounded the Wildcats.

"I don't know what it is when we play Northwestern," said Wisconsin Coach Dave McClain. "Maybe we're lucky. We just seem to play our best against them."

THE BADGERS ALSO got a strong defensive performance, recording three goal-line stands to prevent the Wildcats from scoring.

"I don't know if that took the wind out of our sails," said Northwestern Coach Dennis Green. "Wisconsin is a physical team. They won't let you have anything."

The third longest field goal in Big Ten history enabled injury-riddled Michigan State to tie the Purdue.

Purdue Coach Leon Burnett, whose Boilermakers had taken a 29-26 lead with 30 seconds left on a 15-yard touchdown pass from Scott Campbell to Rick Brunner, said the outcome was fate.

"There is nothing you can do," said Burnett, whose team is 1-2-1 overall and 1-0-1 in the Big Ten. "If a guy is going to kick a 59-yard field goal, he's meant to do it. He could've made a 69-yard field goal the way the ball went over the crossbar."

Michigan State Coach George Perles said it was a game to remember.

"I'm not used to ties," said Perles. "In the NFL, we play them off. However, everyone involved in today's game should be able to use the last 30 seconds of the game later in life."

to see all the overall balance in the conference. "Good competition is going to improve everybody," he said.

Thomason proved to be somewhat prophetic in saying before the tournament that her squad could shoot 310 or better on their home course.

The black team opened the tournament Friday with a 307 team total, which is the best-ever score by a Hawkeye squad on Finkbine. They came back Saturday to shoot a 310 score before ballooning to a 329 on a blustery Sunday afternoon.

The gold team, however, could only break the 317 barrier once in shooting rounds of 319, 311 and 320, leaving Thomason with the continuing dilemma of finding the right combination of players.

Thomason had mixed feeling about the play of the Hawkeyes. She was pleased with the three team scores under 317, but was extremely disappointed with Sunday's results, which dropped both Hawkeye teams two spots in the standing from Saturday's play.

"IF YOU HAD asked me yesterday (Saturday)," Thomason said, "I'd have told you I was happy. (Saturday) we played well. We had four scores in under 80 on the black team and broke 317 which was very positive. We were in a position to move up."

"But (Sunday), we weren't good at all. It was disappointing because nobody broke 80. A 329 was nasty and 320 wasn't acceptable."

Going into Sunday's round, the Iowa

black and gold teams were in sixth and eighth respectively and well ahead of rival Minnesota. But by the end of the tournament, both Iowa teams dropped two spots in the rankings, and the Gophers rebounded to pass the Hawkeyes.

"We let Minnesota beat us and that's silly," Thomason said. "And it's because of concentration. It was on our home course, but we have more distraction at home. We need to improve."

George Carlin hams it up about lost things and cars, leaving the crowd bent over with laughter at the Five Seasons Center Thursday night.

Carlin stays healthy at concert

By Ann L. Scholl
Special to The Daily Iowan

GEORGE CARLIN was off to a good start Thursday evening before he arrived in Cedar Rapids, via Mississippi Valley Airlines "experimental flight," to entertain a Five Seasons Center crowd of 2900.

"I had a fortunate morning," Carlin said. "I found the macaroni and cheese I lost a year and a half ago."

Looking thinner since his HBO "Carlin at Carnegie" performance, the 46-year-old comedian pranced around the stage in a blue T-shirt, gray pants and tennis.

After his second heart attack in 1982, Carlin said he is taking better care of himself.

"I run 144 miles a day before dawn and I eat a bowl of leaves for breakfast," he said. Also included in his diet is a bowl of "hot Woolite," which Carlin said keeps his system "cleaned out."

Carlin said the heart attacks help him to keep track of things.

"I have a heart attack every four years. I had one in 1978 and 1982. I know that whenever I have a heart attack, the Olympics can't be more than two years away," he quipped.

Carlin covered a variety of subjects, calling attention to everyday words and situations and offering advice to the audience. He also played the role of consumer advocate.

Night life

"EX-LAX," he said, "is just old, bad chocolate that gives you the runs."

He took the audience on an imaginary half-hour car ride. Through the magic of description, Carlin turned the orange folding chair into a real car on a busy street.

"The objective of driving is to get in your big iron thing and try not to hit other big iron things," Carlin said.

He warned the audience to avoid driving behind "anybody who is weird." This included "four-foot-tall women in Cadillacs" and "any man over 50 wearing a hat... especially a hat with eye flaps in June."

Carlin ended the car ride with a bit of advice: "It's your car," he said, "You paid for it, you paid for the highway... just go out and have some fun."

Carlin messed up from time to time during the show, either by stuttering or by saying the wrong words.

"I'M THINKING when I talk," Carlin explained after one bout with stuttering. "I should never do that." The audience coaxed him on, applauding and laughing at his minor mistakes.

Carlin then touched on the subject of losing things.

"I don't like to lose anything," he said. "Where is something when you lose it? I think there's a big pile of things somewhere... in heaven." Carlin said that when you go to heaven, they give you back everything you ever lost.

"Everything except big things like virginity... You get your wallets back, but there's no cash... just like on earth."

His jokes had many people bent over with laughter, tears in their eyes from laughing too much. He also brought shouts from the audience, particularly from a rowdy couple on the floor. Carlin ignored them and continued to fire stories at the crowd.

"As a kid, I wanted to learn all the dirty words I could. It gained the attention of people and I needed attention," he said. "Some clean words sound like they could be dirty if they just had a chance... if they just had a little help from one of us."

THE CROWD geared up for Carlin's famous "Seven Words You Can Never Say on Television" routine.

"Parents don't want you to say them (dirty words), but they won't tell you what they are. TV won't give you a list either."

Carlin has changed the list, expanding it to well over the original seven, and calling it the "list of impolite words." He also categorized the words "so you can tell what the word means by what category it is in."

Carlin put on a pair of glasses, and rambled off the words in his auctioneer style. The fast-paced rhythm, paired with several new terms kept the audience in hysterics.

After nearly two hours, Carlin ended the show with a "thank you all very much." With the wave of his hand, he was gone... leaving the crowd to take a little less seriously.

Leon Redbone provided musical entertainment for some of the audience, and gave others time to go to the bathroom or the concession stand before the Carlin segment.

THROUGHOUT the concert, people were chatting, laughing and moving around. Hecklers, usually that obnoxious twosome on the floor, shouted "Bud commercial" several times. "Is it my imagination, or is there an echo chamber in here?" Redbone questioned.

Redbone and his three member band (tuba, cornet and clarinet) jammed on stage for more than a half hour, ignoring the feedback that plagued the show. The instrumentation was dynamic, including Redbone's own guitar pickin'.

"Harvest Moon," "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" and "My Blue Heaven" were crowd favorites, as were Redbone's hand shadows during a Russian number.

Teacher finds lost Iowa theaters

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UPI) — An Iowa college professor is reopening the curtain on dozens of long-forgotten theaters where feed stores, apartments and even bars take the place of the traveling vaudeville acts that used to grace the stage.

Long before there were multiplex theaters in shopping malls, vaudeville acts and movies were presented in mammoth, ornately decorated halls that were individual showpieces for each town, said University of Northern Iowa theater professor George Glenn.

Glenn is working with two Briar Cliff College professors to compile a directory called "The Iowa Theatre Inventory" that will list the state's ancient theater structures. Though the listing might make for dry reading, Glenn's findings in small Iowa towns were professionally exciting.

"Several housed historically valuable old scenery in the shape of sets and turn-of-the-century flat scenery," he said. "I also found machinery that was similar to that used for changing sets during the 17th and 18th centuries."

DOZENS OF antique theaters have been converted to apartments, bars and even feed stores. These are the theaters Glenn considers a real find. "The Farmersburg Opera House was built as a dance hall, but had a basketball floor in it," he said.

Glenn's interest in old theaters stems from a discovery of antique scenery in a dance hall in Vining. People there told him of another theater in Clutier.

"I figured that if there were two, there had to be more and if I started looking, I might find some of them," he said.

And he did. Glenn located 80 theaters, from a well-preserved Opera House in Decorah, built in 1870, to an abandoned theater in the ghost town of Maysville, near Geneva.

Some theaters built in the early 1900s appear to be so similar Glenn speculates they come from a standard plan. The artistic techniques, down to the details on flat scenery indicate theaters in Mason City and New Hampton could have been related.

"Anytime you walk into a place and realize it hasn't been touched for years, it's amazing, especially when you know you've seen it in a theater history book," Glenn said.

'Bedroom' makes light comedy work

By Kathryn Helene
Staff Writer

SOME PEOPLE believe comedy begins and ends with Neil Simon. Others view comedy as having been in decline since Moliere. But English playwright Alan Ayckbourn has something for everyone: He writes subtle, intelligent comedy that pleases audiences and theater critics everywhere.

Old Creamery Theatre currently offers a production of Ayckbourn's Bedroom Farce. Although this production does not measure up to its Platonic ideal form, the direction and most of the acting embody the essence of Ayckbourn's special brand of comedy.

Bedroom Farce falls between the slats of Ayckbourn's extensive, comedic work. Unlike his celebrated The Norman Conquests, it is not a play that poses a significant threat to the desirability of marital relationships. Neither does it challenge the social class structure with the black humor and intensity of Ayckbourn's Absurd Person Singular.

Although the title might lead one to expect extramarital dalliances served up with dizzying slapstick, the thematic thrust of the play is definitely not erotic.

THE PLAY focuses on Trevor and Susannah — a mismatched pair of insecure and self-indulgent neurotics, who thrash out the remaining scenes of their dissolving marriage in front of their friends and family. Bound by social convention as well as affection, three other couples become embroiled in the lives of Trevor and Susannah as unwilling participants: Delia and Ernest, the older couple who are Trevor's parents; Nick and Jan, the latter having been Trevor's lover; and Malcolm and Kate, described as "young love's dream", whose housewarming party is ruined by Trevor and Susannah's fight.

The action of the play takes place exclusively in the bedrooms of the three couples. Trevor and Susannah circulate among them like misfired satellites. After the disastrous party, Susannah seeks solace with Delia and Ernest. They have just returned from their anniversary dinner and are "wickedly" enjoying a meal of pilchards (fish) in bed.

Trevor also leaves the party, after he exacts a promise from Kate that he can return to spend the night. He then pays a late-night visit to Nick and Jan to apologize for kissing Jan at the party. Nick, laid up with a bad back, accepts Trevor's confession more readily than his clumsy intrusion. Ultimately, Susannah, whose nocturnal outbursts drive Delia to apoplexy, is persuaded to call Trevor (at 3 a.m.) to reconcile.

AYCKBOURN'S theme is the entanglement of daily life manifest in marital, parental and social relationships. Ayckbourn explores the comedic angle of these relationships with a deftness that allows the comedy to buoy, not bomb, the deeper issues.

Theater

There are several examples of this technique. One occurs as Kate scurries out of her bath and takes refuge under the bedcovers when she hears the party guests arriving. Malcolm enters the bedroom, laden with all the guests' coats and Trevor also wanders in. While Malcolm and Trevor exchange pleasantries, Kate alternates between budding hysteria and the mask of politeness. Malcolm is equally nonplussed by the question of whether to appease his wife or humor his friend.

Director Thomas Peter Johnson orchestrates such scenes with finesse and restraint. He uses the farcical elements with economy, so that the dialogue and relationships are emphasized, rather than the slapstick.

THE RHYTHM of the exchanges is also well-directed: Trevor's plodding utterance is matched with Susannah's typewriter chatter. Jan's etched efficiency is complemented by Nick's lugubrious repetitions. Delia's partial phrases are completed by Ernest.

For the most part, the acting supports the direction. Ernest (C. Thomas Cunliffe) has an appealing bowlegged stance from which he fleshes out his lines with guttural sounds and small, accurate gestures that make him personable and unique. Nick (Steve Shaffer) captures perfect English dourness, his voice comically modeled after actor James Mason. Malcolm (Don Kinney) is a continual delight. In a scene where he must retrieve the coats of the rapidly-departing guests, he reveals a full-bodied continuum of suppressed but emerging anger. Trevor (Jim Petersmith) resembles a refugee from an Oscar Wilde play. He fastidiously pulls on his coat to reassure his existence.

The women's roles are performed with less success. Susannah (Corinne Johnson) is portrayed as a member of the lunatic fringe, complete with bug-eyes and puppet-like movement. Kate (Virginia Cook) has a gravelly voice that endears, but which occasionally requires better enunciation. Meg Merckens performs the role of the prim but improper Jan with considerable aplomb.

MY GREATEST disappointment arose from the interpretation of Delia. Marquette Senters has a gift for facial mobility, but a minimum of this suffices. Instead of playing her character as a sometime sage, sometime stodge, Senters uses flowery gestures and a pinched mouth which converts Delia into a grotesque parody. This detracts from the content as well as the tone of the production.

Nonetheless, on my scorecard skewed Ayckbourn is better than no Ayckbourn at all. And this Old Creamery production presents many moments of penetrating wit and gentle whimsy.

Caribe's island music dips into many sounds

By Allen Hogg
Staff Writer

FOLKS WHO road-tripped to Champaign, Ill., Saturday missed out on two counts. Not only did the Hawks get trounced by the Illini, but they also missed Caribe at the Crow's Nest. With their self-proclaimed "island music," the five-man, Lawrence, Kan., group had the joint jumping with a solid night of rock-steady pleasure.

Unlike most Midwestern reggae acts who seem to pound away at the same heartbeat rhythm until the audience is in a comatose state, Caribe constantly mixes up their sound. The primary musical well they dip into is calypso, but ska beats, Latin melodies, and Asian sounds are also employed liberally.

Almost all the tunes Caribe now plays are originals, with only about one cover per set. Saturday night, these included bang-up versions of Desmond Dekker's "Israelites" and Santana's "Black Magic Woman."

Despite the fact they had driven eight hours Saturday to get to Iowa City, the band remained energetic throughout the show. "This is probably one of our favorite places to play," said keyboardist Vaughn Cowden. "It has one of the biggest dance floors and the crowds are always enthusiastic."

GROUP MEMBERS jumped and swayed across the stage all night long. Every so often bongo player Fernando Reynoso would climb on his drums and give a spirited whistle cadence. The highlight of the show, however, probably came at the end of the second set, when all five group members picked up cowbells and maracas, jumped off the stage and led the dancers around the floor in a giant conga line.

Although based in Lawrence, the hometown of bass player Eric Goolsby, the band members come from all around. Cowden is from Kansas City, Reynoso comes from the Dominican Republic, saxist and guitar player Mike Helton calls the Twin Cities home, and drummer Bob Augelli is a native of Puerto Rico.

The band first formed three years ago following an impromptu jam at Cowden's apartment in Lawrence. After fourteen rehearsals they played their first gig. "We really sucked," said Cowden.

This was Caribe's sixth performance in Iowa City. They will be returning Nov. 4th and 5th, by which time they hope to have added a female vocalist.

Let's see, Nov. 5th, the Hawks are at Wisconsin. Drive all the way to Madison to maybe see the Hawks win, or stay in town and rub-a-dub at the Crow's Nest to the "Island Music" of Caribe? That's one road trip I'm not going to make.

Entertainment today

Films at the Bijou

As the first significant film of director Frank Capra's career, Platinum Blonde (1931) is well worth a look. But with a cast of Jean Harlow, Loretta Young and Robert Williams exchanging the typically snappy dialogue of a screwball comedy, it's a rare treat. Bijou, 7 p.m.

● Albert Finney shot to stardom with the role of a factory worker in Saturday Night and Sunday Morning, an unsentimental look at working-class mores in England. Director Karel Reisz made his directing debut with this 1960 melodrama, which the Bijou is showing as part of its tribute to the British cinema. 8:45 p.m.

Television

On cable: The terrific Eating Raoul (Cinemax, 9 p.m.) makes it to cable, and it's a gory, mod, moralistic fable about the free and easy sexual lifestyle of today. Guess what's cooking for dinner? Burt Reynolds-fanciers get to see their man in what must be their secret fantasy situation: Who can Burt get to have his baby? That's the wonderful idea behind (far behind) Paternity (HBO, 7 p.m.) And Armand Assante essays Mike Hammer in I, The Jury (HBO, 9 p.m.).

● On the networks: The premiere of "Scarecrow and Mrs. King" airs tonight (CBS at 7), with ex-Angel Kate Jackson as a divorced housewife who gets swept into high intrigue and international fun by a hunk/secret agent (Bruce Boxleitner). And 21 years of "Heeereeeeee Johnny's" will be saluted by the likes of Richard Pryor, Dolly Parton and Miss Emmy herself, Joan Rivers (NBC, 8 p.m.). A very affecting movie, Bless the Beasts and the Children, is being shown on Des Moines' new channel, KCBR (17 on your cable, er, dial), also at 8 tonight. And finally, UI Writers' Workshop director Paul Ipte is among the interviewees as IPTV takes a look at its most famous artistic son, Grant Wood, at 9:30 tonight.

Radio

KSUI (91.7 mHz), 8:30 p.m. Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Sir Georg Solti, conductor; soloists. A complete concert performance of the Prologue to Wagner's Ring cycle, Das Rheingold, makes up the program this evening; it's a specialty of Solti and the orchestra.

● KUNI (90.9 mHz), 7 p.m. North Carolina exports the Red Clay Ramblers and their superb bluegrass music to Studio One for the evening on "Live from Studio One."

● KRUI (97.1 mHz on cable-FM only; 570 kHz on AM), 9 p.m. Resident rastafan Mike Ascroft spins the latest in Jah-tunes on his Reggae Spotlight tonight and every Monday.

- 3 Your own child is probably exposed to drugs every day.
- 4 The peer pressure may be too great to withstand.
- 5 The menace cuts across all economic, racial, cultural and ethnic lines. No child is safe.
- 6 There are no "soft" drugs. Marijuana is five to ten times as strong as it was a few years ago.
- 7 All drugs, including alcohol, are seriously harmful -- physically, mentally, or both.
- 8 There is no such thing as "moderate" drug use. Every high produces a dangerous and depressing low. This is especially devastating in the young, whose bodies and minds are still developing.
- 9 Drug users exhibit certain telltale signs and symptoms - physical, emotional and behavioral. Learn to recognize them in your child and in his or her friends early enough to do something about it.
