Knesset confirms minister

JERUSALEM — Right-wing Yigal Cohen-Orgad won parliamentary approval as finance minister Tuesday and warned Israelis would have to accept a lower standard of living.

His confirmation was a victory for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's 8-day-old government, which faces a parliamentary no-confidence vote today.

Gemayel sets sites for talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese government said Tuesday the country's warring parties would hold a peace conference at Beirut Airport behind the lines of the U.S. Marines.

There was no word from government foes on accepting the meeting site. But Druze leader Walid Jumblatt said, "You cannot have talks in a place where a plane is landing and another is taking off every minute."

In a story called "Zoning ordinance sparks strong debate" (DI, Oct. 17), a quote regarding the cost of relocating Northwestern Bell telephone cable for the downtown hotel project was incorrectly attributed to Andrea Hauer of the city staff. Actually, the statement was made by City Engineer Frank Farmer. The DI regrets the error.

Policy on day care funding challenged

By John Tieszen
Staff Writer

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors heard two local health administrators suggest Tuesday that children from low-income families be allowed to attend in-home daycare services through a federal block grant program.

Currently, children from low-income families can only go to licensed daycare centers under the block grant program. That policy has been in effect in the county since July 1979. But when a parent seeking to provide in-home day care for her children through block grant funding complained about the current policy, Carol Thompson, director of the county Department of Human Services, asked the federal government to clarify which programs are included under the block grant fund. Thompson said she was informed that in-home day care could be included under the grant if the supervisors wanted to fund it.

ACCORDING TO a Johnson County Department of Human Services report, "no funds were allocated for family daycare homes" (in fiscal 1984). Meanwhile, the supervisors have "voted to reinstate the (funding) restrictions to licensed centers beginning Oct. 16, 1983." The supervisors can rescind that vote, however, if they decide to use block grant funding for in-home daycare services.

Four people spoke in favor of having in-home daycare programs receive block grant funds at the meeting.

Nora Roy, coordinator of Community Coordinated Child Care, a United Way agency that provides information concerning health care, said federal block grant funds should be available to in-home daycare services as well as daycare centers. She favors funding the in-home services because daycare centers are not available to children of certain ages and at certain hours.

ALL daycare centers in Johnson County, except one, do not take children under 2 or over 6 years of age, Roy said. She also said daycare centers are only open during the day and not at night. "In-home daycare programs should be offered the block grant money because they are flexible."

More pressure is put on the daycare centers if they have to "take care of the entire community," Roy said. It also costs daycare centers extra money if they take children who are entitled to receive care through block grant money, she said. "The centers are losing money on the children and are doing it out of the spirit of generosity."

Ann Riley, director of Handicare — a daycare center in Coralville — said daycare centers that take children from low-income families lose money in two ways. If a child does not attend the center for a day, the county does not pay the center for the missed day, Riley said. That policy can become expensive for the daycare centers, she said, because "when parents don't have to pay, there is a tendency not to bring their children in."

RILEY ALSO SAID that when daycare centers take children from low-income families that qualify for care under the block grant program, they receive 1 percent less money for their services. "That child is paying less than a non-block grant child," she said.

Riley echoed Roy's belief that in-home daycare programs should receive block grant money because they are more flexible concerning their hours and the ages of the children they accept.

The supervisors adopted a "wait and see" attitude on funding the in-home daycare services at the end of their informal meeting, Supervisor Dennis Langenberg said.

"It will be discussed at the Board of Social Welfare meeting Friday," he said.

Those who spoke in favor of in-home day care have a "legitimate concern," Langenberg said, but he feels there is a greater possibility for negligence in in-home care than in daycare centers.

Langenberg said, however, "I wouldn't be opposed to it" (in-home day care) if in-home daycare programs received yearly inspections.

Storm sewer mishap trial begins

By Patricia Thorn
Staff Writer

The trial for a 13-year-old boy, who filed suit against Iowa City for negligence after he was swept through 250 feet of storm sewer two years ago, began Tuesday in Johnson County District Court.

Steve Schmitz and his mother, Connie Schmitz, are suing the city for a total of $225,000, according to their attorney, Lloyd Humphreys of Cedar Rapids.

During his opening statement, Humphreys told the eight-person jury that Schmitz suffered both physical and emotional damage because of the incident.

Humphreys claimed that while the state designed, constructed, and owns the stretch of sewer that runs along U.S. Highway 6, the city was negligent because it has an agreement with the state to repair and inspect the sewer.

Following a torrential rain on June 29, 1981, Schmitz slipped and fell into a drainage ditch on the east side of Rocky Shore Drive, and was then swept 250 feet through the storm sewer. After more than 30 minutes in the sewer, he was rescued at a manhole west of the Siesta Motel.

David Brown, who, with Robert Jansen, is representing the city, said an "unfortunate accident occurred," but that the city was not negligent because the sewer property belongs to the state and the "extraordinary weather conditions" and the removal of vegetation on the construction site of the Carver-Hawkeye Arena caused water to "roar" down the hill above the sewer.

Harry Boren, the supervisor of pollution control for Iowa City, said that the sewer could have handled the rain if not for the run-off from the construction site.

On July 24, 1981, the city placed a metal screen over the opening, Boren said.

A Johnson County woman who contracted halothane hepatitis after surgery at UI Hospitals was awarded $15,000, according to a settlement filed in Johnson County District Court Monday.

Kathleen S. Kral sued the state of Iowa and anesthesiologists Dr. Samir Gergis, Dr. Makiko Takeshita, and Dr. Hugh Tobin for negligence because the anesthetic halothane was used during Kral's Jan. 27, 1978, operation to remove her gallbladder and perform gastric bypass surgery.

"Halothane is a toxicant drug that is well-known to be a cause of hepatitis and postoperative jaundice, and is contra-indicated in obese females and with repeated usage," the file states.

Kral's medical records show she had an adverse reaction to the drug following a 1970 appendectomy, according to her petition.

Legislators offered UI orientation

By Kirk Brown
Staff Writer

Beginning in December, selected Iowa legislators will once again have an opportunity to experience college life by participating in one of the "legislative orientation sessions" being scheduled at the UI.

Don Carlston, chairman of the UI Faculty Senate's governmental relations committee, said Tuesday his committee has tentatively scheduled five orientation sessions to be held throughout December, January and February.

Carlston told the UI Faculty Council orientation sessions have been held in the past, but will be slightly revised this year.

In the past, the sessions have always been held on Iowa home basketball game Saturdays, but Carlston said his committee decided to schedule a session on Friday, Jan. 22 "so the legislators could see a more typical university day."

Although he said plans are still "very tentative," Carlston suggested having "a legislator follow a faculty member through the day and go to his or her classes."

Carlston said the purpose of the orientation sessions is not "a hard-core lobbying effort."

He said, "We are not trying to persuade the legislators but instead build rapport between the legislators and members of the faculty."

Carlston said the sessions are designed "so that when the legislators think about the university and its faculty they have people in mind."

IN OTHER ACTION, a special faculty senate meeting was scheduled for November to hear presentations concerning more specific details of UI President James O. Freedman's "proposal for the future."

Faculty Senate President Peg Burke said she "chatted briefly" with Freedman, who believes there needs to be a structured meeting for the senate to view his proposals more carefully.

She said "five or six presenters" involved with the proposals would be invited to come to the meeting and explain specific aspects of the proposals with a discussion period following.

A number of council members voiced uncertainty about the specifics of Freedman's proposals, but Richard Remington, UI vice president for academic affairs, told the council many of the questions concerning specifics may have to wait until a feasibility study for the fund-raising drive is completed next spring.

Students to visit regents, protest tuition increase

By Dan Hauser
Staff Writer

Fearing the state Board of Regents will approve a substantial increase in tuition, UI student government leaders will travel to today's regents meeting to voice their concern.

Collegiate Associations Council President Tom Palmer said the purpose of the trip is to express students' concern about increased tuition with "a show of physical support."

UI student leaders will focus on three points, according to UI Student Senate President Tom Drew. First they will be reviewing the regents' guidelines for tuition increases and then they will submit a counterproposal of what they think would be a fair increase.

The students also intend to discuss financial aid with the regents, he said.

The number of concerned students was supposed to fill two UI vans, but those planning to protest the tuition increase have dwindled to just the student leaders.

R. WAYNE RICHEY, regents executive secretary, stated in a memo Oct. 12 that the tuition increase proposal should be conveyed to student government leaders as soon as possible. "They need as much notice as possible to prepare any additional presentations that they may wish to make before the board."

Drew said the group will be leaving at about 7 a.m. for the five-hour trip to Council Bluffs, the site of this month's regents meeting.

Drew said the students will have the chance to talk informally with the regents over lunch before the 1:30 p.m. meeting.

Chris Morton, executive director of the United Students of Iowa, an organization whose goal is to link all three state universities, said he has been trying to establish USI as a separate voice.

Because USI represents all three regents universities, Morton said he would like to see the regents differentiate between it and the student governments of each university.

"USI is lost in the shuffle. They (the regents) don't know where to put us right now," Morton said Tuesday.

BOTH IOWA STATE University and the University of Northern Iowa will only be sending one or two representatives to the regents meeting, he said.

Although all three campuses are concerned about the increase, he added, both ISU and UNI are saying "let's take it professionally" and limit the number of representatives at the meeting.

Morton said the group from the UI wants to see the regents be more specific in their reasoning behind the tuition increase. "We want to know exactly where the money goes."

"It seems the regents are not too well planned as to where the money goes," he said.

Morton said students are especially upset about the proposed tuition increase for out-of-state students. Non-resident tuition at the UI is now $2,750, but the proposed hike of 25.5 percent would put the rate at $3,450 for 1984-85.

Currently, there are 8,698 students — 29 percent of total enrollment — enrolled at the UI who are from outside of Iowa.

Regents to decide on tuition increase

By Kirk Brown
Staff Writer

The state Board of Regents will make important decisions concerning tuition increases, faculty salaries and student aid when it gathers in Council Bluffs today and Thursday for what one UI official has called a "crucial meeting."

Last Wednesday, R. Wayne Richey, the board's executive secretary, announced he will ask the regents to approve tuition increases averaging 17 percent for the three state universities.

If the proposed tuition increases are approved, it would mark the largest jump in tuition at the UI since 1969.

Richey said the revenues derived from the tuition hikes would be used to increase state supported financial aid and to finance the faculty vitality fund.

The vitality fund, first proposed three years ago but never approved by the Iowa Legislature, is designed to increase competitiveness of selected faculty members' salaries.

"The vitality fund would not be used to provide across-the-board salary increases, but salary adjustments based upon merit and competitive conditions," Richey said in a report to the board.

ACCORDING TO RICHEY, "The full vitality fund request can be met by income generated from the recommended tuition rates and other incomes such as sales and services."

UI student leaders have voiced strong opposition to the proposed tuition increases and are planning a vigorous lobbying effort at the board meeting to express their feelings.

Tom Palmer, president of the Collegiate Associations Council, said, "We'll try to present arguments against the magnitude of the proposed increases."

Palmer said the students support the vitality fund, but they feel too much of the burden of paying for it is being placed on the students.

In his proposal to the regents, Richey justified the extent of the tuition increases by saying, "Despite the recommended increases, Iowa's three state universities will continue to maintain their below-average ranking for tuition rates charged by comparable institutions within the eleven-state area."

However, Chris Morton, executive director of United Students of Iowa, said Richey is manipulating figures to make the increase seem less severe.

Martin said the UI student leaders will present the regents with a 50-page report that will include rankings compiled by the Oklahoma State Board of Regents that show tuition rates at Iowa rank in the median when compared to another set of comparable institutions.

RANDALL BEZANSON, UI vice president for finance, said, "I am sure the regents will be very interested in the presentation the students make."

Frank Stork, who resigned from the board of regents effective Oct. 1 so he can assume the post of UI state relations director, said he is "very sympathetic to the concerns of students because this is a fairly large percent increase," but added "there is no other alternative available to maintain the quality of the faculty."

Despite the fact that the money from tuition increases would go directly to the vitality fund, some UI faculty members have also been reluctant to support the increases.

Don Carlston, UI Faculty Council member, said, "I am not sure it is a good idea to link faculty salaries with tuition increases."

Carlston admitted, "For the sake of the university, additional money must be obtained," but added he believes tuition increases are an "unfortunate way to come up with this money."

Don Heidstad, another faculty council member, also voiced concern that the entire increase in tuition will go to the vitality fund.

UI Faculty Senate President Peg Burke, who has expressed "extremely mixed emotions" concerning the proposed tuition increases, said, "I feel certain that some type of (tuition) increase will be approved but I am not sure at what level."

Cambus gets $300,000 in grants for new bus garage and office

By Steve Sands
Staff Writer

Cambus received notice this week that federal grants of more than $300,000 will be allocated for construction of an addition to its bus garage. The grants mark the end of a three-phase plan to improve mass transportation in the Iowa City area.

The Johnson County Council of Governments applied for a two-phase grant with the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA), a division of the U.S. Department of Transportation, in July.

The council applied on behalf of Cambus and received two grants totaling $309,684. The grant application required the UI to contribute $77,466, which brought the total to $387,150 for Cambus improvements.

Cambus will also use a portion of the money to replace its headquarters, a trailer located in the Kinnick Stadium parking lot.

The three-phase plan was coordinated by the transportation division of the council, according to John Lundell, council transportation planner.

The first phase consisted of constructing a new central facility for the Iowa City Transit System, located on Highway 218. A federal grant of $2.25 million was allocated for the project.

Upgrading of the Coralville Transit System storage garage was the second phase. A federal grant of $55,000 was issued, although actual construction may require future grants.

ACCORDING TO Lundell, a total of $70,000 is available for restoration, including the local portion, yet the lowest bid for upgrading the facility was $113,000. Lundell said construction will be carried out with available funds, while future funding is sought to finish the project.

The addition to the Cambus garage will allow room for all of the buses in the fleet and two new articulated buses, which have flexible mid-sections. Currently two of the buses in the fleet have to be stored outside.

Two types of structures are being considered for replacing the old Cambus office, according to Lundell. The first one, a modular structure, is built in a factory and then transported to the site of the original office. The second type is built from scratch at the site.

The addition is expected to cost $298,330; $89,000 is allocated for the new office building.

"I think we're very fortunate to receive as much money as we have," Lundell said. "It is clear that UMTA sees that this (transit system) is very important to this area." He added that he is also pleased to see the cooperation displayed by the three transit systems in achieving the three-phase goal.

He said this cooperation is highlighted by the fact that all three systems will have their heavy maintenance done at the main Iowa City transit facility. He said this arrangement "was something that has never been done before."

Two wrist watches are stolen

By Mary E. Greer
Staff Writer

A Seiko wrist watch, valued at $500, was stolen from Iowa City Council at-large candidate George Strait, 10 Ridgewood Lane, UI Campus Security reported Tuesday. The watch is believed to have been stolen from Strait's office in the UI College of Law building.

Another Seiko wrist watch, valued at $250 and owned by Kim Miller, 1435 Valley View Drive, Coralville, was reported stolen from the Union Main Lounge, campus security reported Tuesday.

The thefts of four 10-speed bicycles were reported Monday and Tuesday:

• A red Peugeot 10-speed bicycle was reported stolen along with other items from Ed Thamke, 929 Harlocke St., campus security reported Monday. The items are valued at more than $900.

• A yellow Motobecane 10-speed bicycle owned by Hank Anderson, 349 Rienow Hall, was stolen from the Rienow Residence Hall bike rack, on Monday campus security reported. Anderson's bike is valued at $205.

• A green Schwinn 10-speed bicycle belonging to Mike Harvey, 2231 Burge Hall, was stolen from the Burge Hall bike rack, Campus Security reported Monday. Harvey's bike is valued at $200.

• A yellow Schwinn 10-speed bicycle owned by Mark Stinski, 1436 Buresh Ave., was stolen from a bike rack on the west side of the Bowen Science building, Campus Security reported Tuesday. Stinski's bicycle is valued at $55.

Police beat

Charged: Erin Elizabeth Altheide, 2412 Shady Glen Court, was charged with prohibited passing and failure to maintain control of her vehicle after her car slid into the fenced school yard of Ernest Horn Elementary School on West Benton Road, Iowa City police reported Tuesday. Damage to the fence is estimated at $500. Altheide's car received $250 in damage.

Charged: Tsung Ma, 332 Ellis Ave., was charged with driving without her headlights and John J. Johnson, 202 Ellis Ave., was charged with failure to yield while making a left turn, after their cars collided on south Riverside Drive, Iowa City police reported Monday.

Thefts: An Escort radar detector, valued at $245, was stolen from a car owned by Dean Price, 5 Wendram Bluff Court, while it was parked at the Dubuque Street parking ramp, Iowa City police reported Monday. Price's car was also vandalized but the amount of damage has not been determined.

In a similar incident Monday, Iowa City police reported the theft of a radar detector, valued at $315, from a car owned by Debbie Briggs, 2104 Palmer Circle, while it was parked at the Capitol Street parking ramp.

Charged: UI Campus Security charged Edward F. Townsend, 310 Rienow Hall, and Christopher J. Ludlow, 341 Rienow Hall, with fifth-degree theft after they allegedly stole lumber from the Field House construction site Tuesday.

Strait ahead of all candidates in campaign funds

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

At-large city council candidate George Strait has received more campaign contributions than any other candidate running in the primary, according to papers filed with the Johnson County Auditor's Office during the past two weeks.

Any council candidate who accepts contributions of, makes expenditures of, or falls into debt by more than $250 must report campaign finances to the auditor's office.

As of Oct. 4, Strait's campaign had raised $780. The only expenditure listed was $20 for postage. The Committee for George Strait for City Council reported any money left in its treasury after the campaign will go to a charity or scholarship fund.

As of Oct. 10, District C candidate Larry Baker's campaign committee had raised $690.20 and had spent $200.20. The Citizens for Larry Baker committee's largest expenditure was $94 for postage. Any money Baker's campaign staff does not spend will go to the United Way, his disclosure statement said.

AT-LARGE CANDIDATE James Schwab's campaign committee has not yet disclosed how much money has been contributed to his campaign. His committee's report states any funds left over from his campaign will go to the Citizens Party of Iowa.

Jane Jakobsen, also an at-large candidate, had not reported any campaign contributions as of Tuesday morning. Jakobsen's campaign committee did report any left-over funds from her campaign were to be "divided among the two major political parties in Johnson County."

Any excess funds from the campaign of at large candidate William J. Ambrisco will go to the American Red Cross, the Ambrisco Campaign reported. His campaign committee has not yet released any contribution information to the auditor's office.

The rest of the candidates seeking a position on the council had no information on file with the auditor's office.

Enrollment surges in community colleges

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa's community colleges have joined private schools and state universities in logging enrollment gains this fall. Nine of 15 community colleges reported increases Monday, putting total enrollment at 40,394, or 3 percent more than in 1982. The largest percent increase was posted by Indian Hills Community College in Ottumwa, which has grown by about 13 percent.

Western Iowa Tech in Sioux City reported a 17.1 percent enrollment drop — the largest plunge among the state's community colleges. Charles Moench of the state Department of Public Instruction said enrollment at Iowa's community colleges has been spurred by similar gains reported by state universities and private colleges. After dropping last year, overall private college enrollment in Iowa this fall inched fractionally to near 37,000. The three state universities posted record enrollments and produced an overall increase of 4 percent this fall. He said many high school graduates are continuing their educations to improve their job prospects later, while many older adults are returning to college to sharpen their skills or to seek training in new fields.

Election

UI student senate elections contributed to his defeat, because it led to "a lot of confusion" and a lower student turnout. He said he has no plans to pose a write-in campaign "at this point."

But Richard Taylor, who finished sixth in the field, said that a write-in campaign on his part was a "possibility." Taylor said he would consider a write-in candidacy in either District A or for one of the at-large seats. Taylor called the primary results a "conservative victory" and said low union turnout contributed to his defeat. Taylor is vice president of the Iowa City AFL-CIO. Douglas Bell, an unemployed gunsmith, finished last in the primary, receiving 67 votes. "I just think there were a lot of excellent candidates being fielded this time," Bell said. "If more people had turned out for the election, I think that the results might have been completely different." Bell said he "would run again" in a city election.

Airport

The city's plan to get back into compliance with FAA requirements calls for the city to purchase 25 acres of land and an additional 75.5 acres of easements surrounding the runway's clear zone. After the purchases are made, construction would begin to extend Runway 24, which would become the airport's main runway.

Commission and sent to the FAA, states the cost of the project would be $103,500 to the airport and $225,000 to the city. The FAA, however, is expected, according to the city plan, to kick in 90 percent — nearly $3 million — of the money necessary to finish the project.

Airport Commission member Dennis Saegling said if an agreement is reached with the FAA, it will put the city back on track or slightly ahead of schedule on its 10-year master plan for the airport. Zehr said the master plan calls for "rehabilitation" of the airport's runways and for the purchase of aerial easements around the airport. Purchase of the easements, Zehr said, would allow the airport to control flights over the property.

Controversy abides on Nestles boycott

By Karen Bradbury Staff Writer

Although Iowa City organizers hope to continue a six-year boycott against the Nestles corporation...

However, Linda Nelson-Manuel, a member of the East Iowa Socialist Party...

According to a document issued by the Infant Formula Action Coalition...

"THE PROBLEM IS that Nestles is making a profit off people who can't afford to have a profit made off them..."

INFAC stresses infant formulas are unnecessary and hazardous to babies in Third World countries...

Boose said that there is a "bona fide problem but someone has twisted the information" to make it seem that the company is purposely hurting people...

"We're Americans just like everyone else and if we thought we were doing something wrong, we're not going to do it..."

Boose said that Nestles began selling infant formula to underdeveloped countries because missions there asked Nestles to manufacture a nutritionally-complete formula...

As the product became more popular, Nestles began selling it on the open market...

The World Health Organization worked with corporations selling infant formula, including Nestles, to establish guidelines...

INFAC'S LATEST move is to ask people to boycott Taster's Choice, the top-selling Nestles product in the United States...

The effectiveness of the boycott has been dulled, however, because people do not realize Nestles products are not just the ones that say Nestles on them...

Kubby said the boycott also has suffered because "people are unwilling to change their habits for political reasons..."

Nelson-Manuel said she doesn't know how badly Nestles has been affected but the boycott has been effective in making people aware of the infant formula issue...

Financially, Boose said, Nestles has been minimally affected by the boycott. "It hurt our feelings..."

Overall, Boose said, the boycott has done more good than harm. "It's made us a better company. We're even more conscious" of the effects products have on people, he said.

Ruling on Hall retrial postponed

No ruling will be made until after Nov. 17 on whether James Hall will receive a retrial for the 1973 murder of UI nursing student Sarah Ann Ottens...

Attorneys for both Hall and the state agreed to submit their written findings and supporting authorities by Oct. 31.

Hall, 29, was convicted of Ottens' murder in a May 1974 trial and sentenced to 50 years at the Iowa State Men's Penitentiary in Fort Madison.

Ottens' body was found in a room on the fourth floor of Rienow Residence Hall March 13, 1973.

Hall's attorneys requested the hearing because they claim that evidence in the recently released Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation file on the murder would have aided in Hall's defense.

Charles Ben Bolden, a former inmate at Fort Madison, testified during the hearing that William Burbridge confessed to him in the fall of 1973 that he had killed Ottens.

Boston's Rice heads American League All-Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Slugger Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox is the only unanimous selection for the UPI 1983 American League All-Star team which also includes first baseman Eddie Murray and shortstop Cal Ripken, Jr., of the world champion Baltimore Orioles.

Rice, who batted .305 and led the league with 39 homers and 126 runs batted in, was named on all 37 of the ballots cast in this year's survey by American League experts in all sections of the country.

Murray and Ripken, the only members of the world champion Orioles elected to the team, had 26 and 35 votes, respectively. Murray batted .306 with 33 homers and 111 RBI while Ripken had a .318-27-102 offensive season.

TIED WITH RIPKEN for second place in the voting, each with 35, were second baseman Lou Whitaker of the Detroit Tigers and relief pitcher Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals. Whitaker batted .320 with 12 homers and 72 RBI while Quisenberry had a 5-3 record and a major league record 45 saves to go with a 1.94 earned run average.

Rounding out of the team were catcher Lance Parrish of the Tigers, third baseman Wade Boggs of the Red Sox, outfielders Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees and Lloyd Moseby of the Toronto Blue Jays and designated hitter Greg Luzinski and starting pitcher LaMarr Hoyt of the Chicago White Sox.

Jack Morris of the Tigers and Ron Guidry of the Yankees tied for the No. 2 berth on the pitching staff with 17 votes each. Hoyt had 33.

THE TIGERS HAD the most representatives with three members on the 13-man squad. The Orioles, Red Sox, Yankees and White Sox had two each and the Blue Jays and Royals one each.

All three starting pitchers were 20-game winners, Hoyt showing the way with a 24-10 record and a 3.66 ERA. Hoyt also allowed only 31 walks in 260 innings.

Morris had a 20-13 record and 3.34 ERA and Guidry a 21-9 mark and a 3.42 ERA.

In the other close vote for a position, Parrish edged out Carlton Fisk of the White Sox, 16 votes to 15. Parrish had a 269-27-114 offensive performance while Fisk was regarded as the catalyst who led the White Sox to the American League Western Division title with a .289 average, 26 homers and 86 RBI.

Boggs led the league with a .361 average. Winfield batted .283 with 32 homers and 116 RBI and Moseby had a .315-18-81 offensive showing. Luzinski batted .255 with 32 homers and 95 RBI.

Huskers top poll, but lead shrinks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Southwest Conference may have other ideas, but Nebraska is No. 1.

The Cornhuskers showed Missouri a thing or two over the weekend with a 34-13 romp over the Tigers. As a result, the Big Eight power picked up 38 of a possible 42 first-place votes and 626 total points Monday from the UPI Board of Coaches to maintain its top ranking.

However, there are dissenting voices in Texas and Arkansas following the Longhorns' 31-3 going of the Razorbacks.

"I think we should be voted No. 1," Texas Coach Fred Akers, whose team remained No. 2 with the other four first-place votes and 590 total points, said.

"TEXAS IS NOT the second best team in the country," Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz said. "They are the best team in the country."

The Iowa Hawkeyes moved up a notch to the No. 12 spot, while Saturday's opponent, Michigan, is rated 10th in the country this week. Illinois, a winner of Iowa earlier this season is ranked 11th and Big Ten foe Ohio State is No. 18.

No. 3 North Carolina and No. 4 West Virginia retained their positions, while Auburn jumped three spots after a 31-13 victory over Georgia Tech to crack the top five.

AUBURN'S JUMP DROPPED fellow Southeastern Conference schools Florida and Georgia one notch each. Florida was idle and Georgia downed Vanderbilt 20-13.

Miami, Illinois, Washington and Brigham Young all won and ascended three spots. Miami won its sixth straight, a 31-7 decision over Mississippi State. Illinois scored an important 17-13 Big Ten victory over Ohio State, Washington topped Stanford 32-15 and BYU clobbered New Mexico 66-21 for its fifth straight victory.

Maryland, with a 36-33 decision over Wake Forest, and Arizona State, a 34-14 winner over Southern California, each gained two spots.

Ohio State plunged 11 spots after losing to Illinois while Alabama dropped 10 positions after its second straight loss — a 41-34 beating by Tennessee.

UPI football top 20

'Typical' Michigan awaits Hawks

By Thomas W. Jargo
Assistant Sports Editor

There seems to be many questions surrounding the nationally televised Iowa-Michigan game this Saturday, and neither Hawkeye Coach Hayden Fry or Wolverine Coach Bo Schembechler appear to have the answers.

At his weekly press conference, Fry said the Wolverines are the "soundest football team we've seen on film this year. It's a typical Michigan team. There are certain teams around the country, that regardless of who graduates year after year, they look the same.

"They always have the good running backs and always have outstanding linebackers. They present more than a challenge."

IN TURN, SCHEMBECHLER said Iowa "is the best team we'll play so far. I don't see any area, where you can say they are weak, and will attack. We haven't played any contenders, so we don't know where we are right now. We just haven't played teams like (Iowa.)"

But neither coach will admit to their respective game plans, or how they will approach the respective strengths and weaknesses of their talented opponents.

Fry was asked whether or not Iowa would still have a chance for the Big Ten title if it should lose its second conference game of the year. Avoiding a direct answer, Fry said, "After this week, you can know if a team has a chance with two losses."

"A lot of questions will be answered after this game," Schembechler said.

MICHIGAN AND IOWA are ranked 10th and 12th respectively by both major wire services.

The contest will be ABC-TV's game of the week, and 12 bowl scouts have requested press credentials for the game in Ann Arbor, Mich., according to the Iowa Sports Information Office. The starting time for the conference match-up has been moved up to 11:25 a.m., Iowa time.

Fry is "tickled" that the Iowa-Michigan game bumped the USC-Notre Dame game from the national spotlight. "When was the last time you saw USC and Notre Dame get together and Iowa was on the national game?" Fry said.

Iowa defensive end Tony Wancket (92) moves in for a quarterback sack on Purdue signal caller Scott Campbell during the second quarter of the Hawkeyes' 31-14 win over the Boilermakers last Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

"That's quite a prestigious level that we've worked up to. Suddenly, we're up there, and the young men must know that all their hard work has paid off."

Fry also said that sophomore Erric Hedgeman "really compliments" fellow second-year man Larry Station at linebacker. "These young guys have gotten the chance to play and suddenly have blossomed," Fry said.

As usual, Fry was ready with his patented one-liners. When asked what Helping the junior from Atkinson, Ill., bring down the Boilermaker quarterback is Mike Hooks (91). Wancket had two quarterback sacks, including a fumble recovery on one, to pace the Hawkeye defense.

Schembechler might say about Iowa after looking at films of the Hawkeyes first six games, Fry quipped, "He may be giggling and laughing right now."

Schembechler, the dean of Big Ten coaches, was also in a jovial mood. Earlier in the year, Indiana football Coach Sam Wyche remarked that the visitor's locker room at Michigan Stadium is a "pig sty." Upon hearing that Tuesday, Schembechler said, "I think it borders on it. I'll invite (Fry)

Doubles not always worth twice as much

By Mike Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

If you turn on your television set for a tennis tournament and by some stroke of luck a portion of a doubles match is shown, chances are the players will be about as familiar as a bench-warmer in football.

There are exceptions of course. John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova are on top in both singles and doubles as of now on the Association of Tennis (ATP) computer. Navratilova's partner Pam Shriver is No. 5 in singles but McEnroe's partner, Peter Fleming, is nowhere to be seen in the top of the rankings.

But outside of those three, doubles is usually something for early round losers in tournaments.

The reason more of the world's top players don't play doubles is simple according to Iowa women's tennis Coach Cathy Ballard — the lack of comorable prize money to the singles events.

Jenny Reuter

"Good doubles players also must have what I call a 'doubles sense,'" says Iowa women's tennis Coach Cathy Ballard. "What I mean is a player must have a little imagination to hit the ball down the line or be able to go cross-court."

Cathy Ballard

of playing at the net," Ballard said. "A big, flat serve like Roscoe Tanner's would not be affective in doubles.

"Good doubles players also must have what I call a 'doubles sense,'" she said. "What I mean is a player must have a little imagination to hit the ball down the line or be able to go cross-court."

AT THE COLLEGIATE level, Ballard said that most incoming freshmen haven't played a lot of doubles and they have a hard time adjusting to the game. This usually

"They were afraid to play at the net for the simple reason that they have never had to do it," she said. "There is also the fear of getting nailed playing that close to the net and I think they are beginning to overcome their fear."

Reuter and Martin's play last weekend in convincing wins against Illinois State and Drake was a good indication that they are becoming a strong doubles combination. "They both played well in the meets," Ballard said. "If they continue to improve they could be a formidable team."

FOLLOWING LAST weekend's matches, Reuter said that doubles were a big adjustment for her. "I didn't play much doubles before coming here," Reuter said. "I've always had fear of playing close to the net. Getting hit would not be one of the best things that has ever happened to me."

Ballard said Reuter had to overcome another her problem. "All her life, Jenny has been told that she is not a very good doubles player for one reason or another.

"But what she has to realize is that she has the shots needed to be a good doubles player," Ballard said. "She is beginning to realize that she has the ability along with realizing that doubles isn't as bad as she has heard."

This weekend, the Hawkeyes will be playing their final meet of the fall season at the Wisconsin Doubles Tournament in Madison, Wis. Iowa hasn't fared too well in doubles this fall as a team, but Ballard is optimistic about her squad's chances.

No. 1 ranked Wild Pooters cruise to 12th-straight win

By Brad Zimanek
Staff Writer

Despite a lot of enthusiasm, Cynchroncity II couldn't muster any points in losing to the coed division's top-ranked Wild Pooters in the intramural Game of the Week.

Wild Pooters came out strong and went on to win the game Monday night, 38-0.

The 5-0 Wild Pooters started early in the first quarter with a 12-yard scoring strike from Judy Becker to John Miniott to take an early 7-0 lead.

"We want to win but we want to have fun doing it," Paula Knutson of the Wild Pooters said.

Then two more touchdowns of 15 and 12 yards by Pooter quarterback Becker gave the Wild Pooters a 19-0 halftime advantage.

"WE HAVEN'T HAD any competition yet but we will have to play harder when we get tested," Becker said. "We can go to everybody on our team to get the job done. So nobody we play can guard just one player. We didn't really play well (Monday) night but we had some fun."

Despite suffering a poor night on the field, the Cynchroncity II squad stole the show with a numerous array of pregame festivities, including a band, which played a stirring rendition of the Star

Intramurals

Spangled Banner, cheerleaders and a banner.

Other festivities included a Hayden Fry look-alike, portrayed by Phil Johnson, who said Cynchroncity II, now 2-3 on the year, was "scratching the best that we can."

The game was also highlighted by public address announcer Loreto Prieto who kept the crowd going most of the night.

AN EARLY THIRD quarter touchdown pushed the Wild Pooters to 26-0 lead. Mike Knutson, a wide receiver and defensive back for the Wild Pooters said, "It's a good feeling to have all that hard work we have put into practice pay off. Now onto the playoffs."

The play of the game came late in the fourth quarter when Knutson made a diving touchdown grab from Becker which pushed the score to 32-0. The final Wild Pooter touchdown came in the final seconds of the contest.

The win was the Wild Pooters 12th consecutive victory over two seasons as they begin preparations for defending their IM title.

More indictments are pending in Kansas City cocaine case

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — A federal grand jury investigating cocaine trafficking involving members of the Kansas City Royals met again Tuesday amid reports that they would return a substantial number of indictments.

No indictments had been returned by early afternoon Tuesday by the grand jury, which heard evidence from an investigation that resulted in guilty pleas from four members of the 1983 Kansas City Royals and an area attorney.

U.S. Attorney James Marquez last week said that he anticipated the grand jury would indict "a substantial number of people" in the investigation.

Lenexa attorney John Gerstle said he suspected a Dodge City, Kan., businessman he represents would face a grand jury indictment for conspiracy in connection with his alleged role in the investigation.

MARQUEZ WOULD NOT reveal how many Dodge City residents would face similar indictments, but confirmed there would be more than one.

Former Cy Young Award winner Vida Blue, who was released by the Royals during the season, became the fourth member of the 1983 club to plead guilty to federal drug charges. The left-handed pitcher Monday admitted to U.S. Magistrate J. Milton Sullivant that he was guilty of possessing three grams of cocaine, which is a misdemeanor.

After entering his plea Monday, Blue spent one-and-a-half hours testifying before the grand jury. Marquez said Blue's testimony was sought to "further the investigation" into cocaine use. After testifying, Blue was interviewed by probation officials and whisked away in a van.

A JOHNSON COUNTY, Kan., attorney pleaded guilty in federal court Monday to a federal cocaine charge. Ben David Roselli admitted that on June 20 he distributed two ounces of cocaine, a charge which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

In a brief appearance before Sullivant, Blue said he had undergone drug rehabilitation but did not elaborate on the treatment involved.

On the line

When we last left our story, the confused but sweet Sports Analyst Melissa Rapoport had just been swung at and hit by Assistant Sports Editor Thomas W. Jargo, who thinks Rapoport is getting too much credit for Jargo's rise to the top of the editor's race in The Daily Iowan's On the Line contest.

Well, as you recall, before the Galena flash decided to help the poor, downtrodden Jargo, he had been floundering in last place but three short weeks of help later he has found his way to the top with a 38-22 mark.

Only one game back is Sports Editor Steve Batterson with a 37-23 record and Assistant Sports Editor Mike Condon has found his way to the basement with a 35-25.

And what thanks does Rapoport get for dragging Jargo from the gutter to respectability? None, nada... well, you get the picture.

Well, rumor has it that Rapoport may be throwing her support in another direction if the old man of the sports staff doesn't change his tune. We'll have to see about that.

WE'VE ALSO HEARD Batterson may be in the market for his own advisor.

But just because Jargo, Condon, Rapoport and Batterson aren't eligible for the prizes doesn't mean you aren't so get those ballots in early. All you have to do to win an eight-gallon keg of fun sponsored by the Vine this week is guess the winners in the contest.

Now, here's how it works. Just circle the team you think will win the 10 games on the ballot, including the tiebreaker, and predict the score in the tiebreaker. If you believe the game will end in a tie, circle both teams. Sign your name and phone number on the bottom of the ballot.

The ballots are due by noon on Thursday at Room 111 of the Communications Center. Each individual is limited to five ballots.

USFL's Breakers moving south

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — United States Football League owners voted unanimously Tuesday to move the Boston Breakers franchise to the Louisiana Superdome, giving the Crescent City its second pro football team.

The transfer vote was taken in Houston and announced at the New Orleans International Airport by delegation of team officials. Twelve of 18 USFL owners were needed to approve the move.

Team officials said they would decide in about a week whether to retain the Breakers' name, official insignia and uniforms.

Mayor Ernest Morial said the move would bring much-needed business to the Superdome and added he hoped the team would not become the Bourbon Breakers or the Royal Street Streakers.

CO-OWNER Randy Vataha said he received promises from unidentified New Orleans investors to buy minority interests in the second-year USFL franchise.

Last season, the 11-7 Breakers played at Boston University's 20,000-seat Nickerson Field. Vataha said it was not feasible to play at Foxboro, a Boston area stadium owned by the NFL New England Patriots.

The Breakers looked for a place to move for four months and considered Seattle, Honolulu, Portland, Ore., Indianapolis, Ind., and Akron, Ohio.

In New Orleans, they will join the National Football League Saints at the 72,000-seat Superdome. Both teams enjoy an absence of competition from pro baseball or basketball.

League owners Tuesday reiterated their desire to place a USFL franchise in Boston as quickly as possible.

"WE CONSIDER BOSTON a prime franchise area in the USFL," Commissioner Chet Simmons said. "The reason for this transfer is simply the present lack of a suitable downtown facility. Hopefully, the situation will be resolved in the near future. The league would like to return to Boston."

Vataha said one of New Orleans' most impressive attractions was fan support for the Saints during many losing seasons.

"We feel tremendous about the situation," he said. "It has really proven to be a super pro football city. It's going to be one of the finest, if not the finest, city in the USFL."

Co-owner George Matthews in Houston said the territorial schools for the New Orleans franchise will be Tulane, Louisiana State, Southern Mis-issippi, Grambling and Southern.

HE SAID COACH Dick Coury would accompany the team to New Orleans along with the complete staff and players.

Coury, voted USFL coach of the year last season, said he was sorry to lose recruiting rights for No. 1 Nebraska, but believes the team can choose well from the schools in the franchise's new territory.

He said training camp would begin the final week of January, and he hoped it would be close enough to New Orleans so fans could get a preview of the team. The Breakers' last training camp was in Florida, where the Saints also work out.

"This is a difficult decision to make, but we have every confidence this is the best move for the Breakers and for the USFL," Matthews said.

Purdue's Burtnett ready for Illinois

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — This Saturday's contest between Purdue and No. 11 Illinois should come down to defense.

Coach Leon Burtnett is wondering whether his offensive line will be able to handle Illinois' defensive front four and whether the Boilermakers' defense will begin to show some consistency before a sellout Purdue homecoming crowd of 69,200 at Ross-Ade Stadium in West Lafayette.

"This is the ultimate challenge this year for our offense," Burtnett said in his weekly news conference Tuesday. "Illinois has the best defense we'll be going against this year."

At first, Burtnett said he was worried he would have a difficult time preparing his team mentally for Illinois after Saturday's loss to Iowa and a loss to Ohio State the previous game.

ALSO, ILLINOIS IS coming off of its first victory over Ohio State since 1967, scoring in the final minute for a dramatic upset victory.

"I was really worried about this, but the kids bounced back faster than the coaches. They're up and ready to play," Burtnett said.

Burtnett said his players will have to improve their punt return coverage if they are going to beat Illinois.

For the last two weekends, the Boilermakers have let long punt returns put them out of the game.

Last week, Iowa's Robert Smith took a punt 55 yards for a score late in the first half to give Iowa a 24-14 halftime lead. Purdue never recovered. Two weeks ago against

Scott Campbell
Purdue, Ohio State's Garcia Lane scored two touchdowns on punt returns of 63 and 71 yards.

ALSO, HE SAID quarterback Scott Campbell has regained his confidence after a shaky start this season.

"Scott is playing with emotion and enthusiasm now. When you've been playing quarterback as long as Scott has I think you sometimes forget where that enthusiasm comes from. He's more of a leader on the field than's he's ever been before," Burtnett said.

Campbell, however, will be tested this weekend by what Burtnett says is the only team he's seen this year that keep a constant pass rush on just with the front four.

"They just physically manhandle people,"

Dupree's leaving doesn't help ISU

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State Coach Jim Criner said Tuesday the absence of Oklahoma running back Marcus Dupree isn't going to make life easier for the Cyclones in their Big Eight battle against the Sooners.

"I think that without Dupree, Oklahoma may even be a better football team," Criner said at his weekly news conference. "I think that probably they will tend to rely on other people to get the job done and that will make them that much tougher to defend."

Dupree left the Sooners Oct. 8 after receiving permission to visit home following a game with Texas. But he failed to make a return flight to Oklahoma, missed two practices and was suspended indefinitely. Now he reportedly is considering attending Southern Mississippi, Alabama or Georgia.

The Cyclones are riding a two-game conference winning streak and Criner said he is looking forward to having some fun against Oklahoma.

"I think big football games are the most fun in the world," he said. "I know this may not be a big football game for Oklahoma, but it is a giant game for us."

"Our players and our coaches are really looking forward to it. They are practicing very, very hard. There's a lot of excitement at Iowa State right now," Criner said.

Coach Mel Hankinson will speak and help present awards at the Johnson County Citizens' Committee for the Handicapped fall banquet on Oct. 27.

The banquet begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Union and will honor area students, employees and businesses. Hankinson will speak on the basketball program and fan support of the disabled community for Iowa athletics.

Banquet tickets are available for $8 each and orders are being taken by Carol Horton 351-5842 until Oct. 24.

Officials, NBA still far apart on pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Basketball Association and its referees remain far apart in contract talks with the season to begin in 10 days.

The two sides have not met in negotiations since Sept. 22 but are scheduled to resume discussions Thursday at the union's request.

The three-year contract between the league and the referees expired Sept. 1. The 27 referees have been locked out by NBA management during the exhibition season. The league has hired minor-league and college officials as well as former NBA referees to work pre-season games. The regular season begins the night of Oct. 28.

Richard Phillips, general counsel to the National Association of Basketball Referees, said Tuesday the referees were willing to work the exhibition season while the contract was negotiated.

"THE NBA RESORTED TO this extraordinary action (lockout) and chose instead to work with scab referees," he said.

"We felt we needed to be prepared," said Gary Bettman, assistant general counsel of the NBA. "They made it clear to us they

"The refereeing has been a disgrace," says NBA Referees' General Counsel Richard Phillips in regards to the work of the substitute officials. "The officials are not talented enough or experienced enough."

weren't going to work the regular season."

Bettman is part of the league's negotiating team that includes Russell Granik, general counsel, and Scotty Stirling, vice president-operations.

Three key issues in dispute are salary structure, monthly expense money and the number of games officials must work.

NBA referees with 13 years experience currently earn $65,000 for the regular season plus additional money for the playoffs. Phillips said his union seeks an annual increase of 48 percent to $95,000 with the stipulation that a referee would not reach that salary level until 16 years.

THE AVERAGE PLAYER salary in the NBA is about $246,000. The NBA says it would raise the referee's annual salary six to 14 percent with a senior official earning nearly $69,000 for the regular season.

"In light of the current economic conditions we think that's fair and reasonable," Bettman said. "If the referees stick to the 48 percent there may be little to talk about."

Referees now receive $1,175 for monthly expenses that include hotels, meals and travel. The league wants to continue that allocation.

Phillips, who also represents the major league umpires, calls the travel conditions of the basketball officials the most arduous of the country's three major pro sports — baseball, football and basketball.

The referees also want a work reduction from 82 to 70 games during the regular season, but the league is opposed to such a move.

"The players work 82 games a year," Bettman said. "We don't see any reason why the referees can't."

PHILLIPS OBJECTED TO a giveback proposal in which referees would fly economy class on all flights. The league said referees now fly first class on flights of more than three-and-a-half hours.

"We're the only group in professional sports flying less than first class," Phillips said. "They want to give them the status of second-class citizens among their peers."

Phillips said he has been upset by the quality of the officiating during exhibition games.

"The refereeing has been a disgrace," he said. "The officials are not talented enough or experienced enough."

He cited the Philadelphia-Boston exhibition game Sunday that nearly had to be called off because of on-court violence.

Phillips said he does not expect the players to strike in support of the officials.

Ditka's zealousness has Bears in uproar

CHICAGO (UPI) — The growling in the Chicago Bears den is being heard around the entire NFL as the descendants of the "Monsters of the Midway" are turning their wrath to one another.

Cubpack leader Mike Ditka would just as soon have the anger pointed toward the Bears' opponents this season but things just haven't worked out that way. Blessed with what was to have been an easier schedule for last year's last place NFC Central Division finish, the Bears could not capitalize early and appear headed for another spectator's seat come playoff time.

What has made this year so unusual is the bickering from players to coaches and back to players.

JIM McMAHON, replaced at quarterback by Vince Evans last week, came out publicly and said some unflattering things about

Comment

Ditka. "Everyone knows what he is like," McMahon says.

Pretty heady stuff for a second-year pro. Ditka responded by saying in effect McMahon should come to him with his problems instead of airing them in the press.

Ken Margerum also chided Ditka for removing players after they made mistakes. Guard Noah Jackson got so upset two weeks ago that he threw a shoe into the stands at Soldier Field. Fans got so frustrated with the Bears they refused to return the football on an extra point attempt — by the opposition of course — and passed it around the stadium.

THE BEARS' SITUATION is perplexing.

They have talent at skill positions. Walter Payton is still one of the best backs in the NFL. Willie Gault may be the rookie of the year. Dan Hampton is an all-pro defensive lineman. Mike Singletary and Otis Wilson are two of the better young linebackers in football.

Ditka has shown himself to be a knowledgeable coach, certainly more organized and innovative than predecessor Neill Armstrong.

The problem may lie in Ditka's over-zealousness for success stemming from his years with the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys are the class of the league and can handle the complex formations and offenses and defenses that Ditka has tried with little success in Chicago.

Ditka is animated along the sidelines and in practice. If you mess up, you are out.

"IF SOMEONE GRADES 0 in nine positions and he's a salesman, he's out," Ditka says.

While Ditka may be coming on too strong, there is a "prima donna" atmosphere among some players who want to be able to say what they want to whom they want (including the media), do what they want (including television and radio commentaries during the season) and earn big bucks without the necessary discipline and sacrifice needed to be a winner.

The solution may be for ailing George Halas, who founded the NFL, to come up to Lake Forest and scold his team for its off-the-field activities. At the same time, he could probably tell Ditka to relax, take a deep breath and remember this is Chicago, not Dallas, and it may take a little longer to build the type of winner to which Ditka has become accustomed.

Third World's great showmanship obscures the real heart of reggae

By Daniel Gonzalez Staff Writer

AT AROUND 8 P.M. on Monday in Hancher, time slipped into timelessness and the night ceased to be part of the week as Third World and Tony Brown mesmerized the crowd with reggae music from two opposite ends of the spectrum.

Brown, announced as "The Tony Brown Band," appeared with only his guitar and performed in a reggae-folk vein. Brown warmed the crowd with songs packed with emotion, sincerity and love: love for people and love for Jah (the Rastafarian term for God), which brought the audience together in a feeling of unity.

As much as Tony Brown's set was from the heart, Third World's performance was heart-pounding. They hit the stage with a powerful room-bursting funk blast that soon had the crowd on their feet dancing in the aisles, despite the efforts of the party-pooping security personnel.

The six-member Third World, backed by a horn section recruited from the UI Music department, absorbed the crowd with its combination of jazz-rock, driving funk, laid-back ska and breathless electronics.

There was something for everyone. The drummer, Willie Stewart, and percussionist Irvin Jarret both showed they had rock-steady rhythm in their furious solos, and so did the rest of the band, with solos of their own — not to mention lengthy instrumentals, charades, stage antics and lots of lights.

IT WAS ALL great fun but seemed just a touch too light: much more like reggae-pop than the sincerity sought after by other reggae bands and established by Tony Brown in the beginning of the night. Third World turned out to be more like a group of highly polished professionals playing to the whims of the crowd — kind of a Jamaican Toto with dreadlocks, but a lot more hip.

Third World's captivation of the crowd seemed to stem from the group's expert showmanship rather than a true feeling of the heart. Music for music's sake instead of a means for delivering a message is all right, but somehow I can't ever imagine Bob Marley, the undisputed spiritual father of reggae, distorting his precious lyrics through the use of an electronic voice box.

Third World's performance was one huge party where everyone felt great. It was an obviously staged party, though, rather than one that spontaneously happened. Singer William Clarke got the audience clapping, and many even held hands, but somehow it seemed both artificial and pure — or maybe innocent — at the same time. In one song Clarke got the crowd going with chants of "Iowa," and it worked, due to the obvious concert proximity. Even the encore seemed staged, as Clarke yelled, "Do you want to hear more music?" Of course we did — and they most definitely knew it.

Irvin Jarret, percussionist for Third World, keeps a steady beat Monday night at Hancher Auditorium.

Night life

Third World put on a most enjoyable and professional show that gave me everything I expected, but, in the light of Brown and my own anticipations, a little less than I had hoped for.

Advice to 'fashion infants': Stay in style, not in debt

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

WASHINGTON D.C. - After suffering through a decade that has seen everything from polyester leisure suits to the overpriced offerings of some guy named Ralph Lauren, this year's fashion scene promises to be both exciting and — what else is new? — expensive.

Thanks to John Travolta and Sylvester Stallone, who teamed up on the movie Staying Alive, the fashion gods in New York are cranking out droves of warm-ups and sportswear designed mainly for comfort. Whereas sportswear design in years past generally consisted of basic exciting colors like gray and dark blue, this year designers are seeing to it that you can look like an athlete even if you can't walk and chew gum at the same time. If this trend continues, this just might be the year when thousands of t-shirts across America are burned at the stake where they belong. Let's try and not be walking billboards, guys.

This year is also, I think, a turning point for the jeans industry. With pleated and dressier pants definitely back in style, many people are finally starting to wean themselves from that old favorite pair of blue jeans they've worn since high school. People seem to be becoming more conscious of how they look while they're walking down the street, and something called individuality is taking over for those who formerly felt naked without a polo shirt and blue jeans on... not to mention those cheesy color coordinated belts to go with the shirt.

OF COURSE, one must be careful these days when shopping because of the prices of clothing on the market. It's become almost a challenge to coordinate a wardrobe and stay out of fashion bankruptcy. It can, however, be done.

This year in men's tops could probably best be summarized as the year of the rugby shirt and the sweatshirt. (I'm sorry, Ralph, but I just can't see paying $31 anymore for a polo shirt.) Of course, for those of you still clinging to flannel for comfort or warmth, don't worry: it might come back in style — I hear there's another recession coming on.

The layered look is also in this year. Dark-colored, mainly crew-necked sweaters with broad stripes have replaced the brighter colors of previous years. Argyles are also still in style after making a comeback in recent years.

As colder weather begins to sweep down over Iowa, a fall coat is a must. This year leather is back, and also big are military and industrial style jackets that, while not dressy, do provide at least some protection from the elements.

OF COURSE, to be fashionable one must sometimes suffer. How else can you explain someone walking around in Top Siders when it's 10 below outside? Let's face it, you know and I know the poor bastard is probably going to lose a couple of toes, but who cares? At least he looks good.

Speaking of shoes, many people are now dumping their old tennis shoes for dress shoes. Probably the current favorites are "dirty" bucks. These shoes go with just about anything and can be substituted for dress shoes on some occasions. The comeback shoe this year, however, is the boot.

While I cringe at the thought of reverting back to the "Urban Cowboy" — gosh, maybe I can be a good ole boy" syndrome America suffered through a couple of years ago, the "fashionable" boot can be worn with just about anything nowadays. Included in the shoe category is the perennial favorite of college students: the Top Sider.

FOR THOSE of you suffering through fashion infamy, take heart. For a mere $200 the average person can go through a complete fashion overhaul. Everyone should own a couple of button-down shirts — start with blue and white and work from there. To go along with those, I suggest a colored polo shirt. Take note: it doesn't have to have an alligator or polo player on it.

To wear with the above-mentioned clothing, your basic gray dress pants are a must, as are a pair of blue khakis. Both of these colors can be worn with just about anything. And for people on a tight budget, you've got to remember the First Commandment of fashion: buy colors that will go with a lot of other pieces in your collection. In other words, don't buy a pair of orange pants if you can only wear them once a year.

To complete the shopping spree, you'll want a dark colored leather belt (to go with both pairs of pants) and a nice pair of dress shoes.

For those of you out there who disagree, listen up: fashion, like most things in life, is in the eye of the beholder. In other words, don't send me any flannel shirts through the mail. I wouldn't wear them.

At the Bijou

Tonight's Bijou offerings are two relatively obscure works by directors whose other movies rank as classics.

Although he also made Stagecoach, The Grapes of Wrath, Rio Grande, The Searchers and a host of other memorable slices of American pie, John Ford's personal favorite among his films was the 1954 The Sun Shines Bright, about a turn-of-the-century judge defending a black man accused of rape. At 7 p.m.

And from James Whale, the director of Frankenstein and The Invisible Man, comes the 1932 chiller The Old Dark House. Starring Boris Karloff, Charles Laughton and Melvyn Douglas. 8:45 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Raoul Wallenberg, who saved thousands of lives in Nazi Germany by sheer nerve (and American dollars), is profiled tonight (IPTV, 7 p.m.). He has been missing since 1945 and is believed to be somewhere in the Soviet Union. Lighter fare: the first network screening of Blake Edwards' S.O.B. (CBS, 8 p.m.), which is supposed to stand for Standard Operating Bull but which really stands for Sorry, Over Blown. And for the terminally bored, there's "I Love Men" (NBC, 9 p.m.). Thrill to the "hunks who have it." Cheer the "women who want it." Give us a break...

On cable: two interesting films. The Sugarland Express (WTBS-15, 7 p.m.) is an early Steven Spielberg effort, and Goldie Hawn and Richard Atherton sparkle; it's all a bit breathless, but fun. Unfortunately, Steelyard Blues airs at the same time (on WGN-10); it's a story of a collection of anti-socials who hang out in a junkyard. Sound weird? It is, but it's also a great ensemble acting turn by Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland, among others.

Radio

KSUU (91.7 mHz), 8:30 p.m., English Baroque specialist Christopher Hogwood conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program composed of two works: Handel's complete "Water Music" and the Symphony No. 104 ("London") of Haydn.

Music

The University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Dixon, gives a concert tonight at 8 in Hancher Auditorium. The program is devoted to one work: Gustav Mahler's Sixth Symphony ("The Tragic"). Dixon is a recipient of the Mahler Medal and has shown considerable insight into and sympathy for Mahler's works. Highly recommended — and it's free.

Nightlife

Bo Ramsey and the Sliders. At the Crow's Nest, tonight only. Hurry, hurry, hurry to hear the last area show given by this edition of the Sliders — they're disbanding after this series of gigs.

BIJOU

"La Traviata" strikes just the right note. Visually stunning and musically thrilling... the finest operatic movie made!"
