Lebanese rescue workers throw aside a piece of concrete, as they aid a U.S. Marine in the search for bodies Monday following the terrorist attack which killed 191 Marines in Beirut. A pro-Iranian group proclaiming its "love of death" claimed responsibility for the bombing.

Death count climbs to 191 in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The death toll climbed inexorably to 191 Monday as angry Marines clawed through the ruins of their headquarters to recover the bodies of comrades crushed in a suicide bombing. A pro-Iranian group proclaiming its "love of death" claimed responsibility.

The commander of Marines in Beirut vowed to track down every accomplice of the lone killer, who reportedly smiled as he crashed a truck packed with a ton of TNT into the Beirut Airport building Sunday and detonated the explosives.

Forty-one French paratroopers were killed a minute later in a similar suicide attack on their barracks 3 miles from the Marine Battalion Landing Team complex. Sixteen French soldiers were wounded and 15 others reported missing.

As the search went on in the headquarters rubble the Pentagon said 191 servicemen were confirmed dead and unofficial Marine reports in Beirut listed 32 soldiers as missing. Eighteen of 75 Marines wounded in the attack were in critical or serious condition in military hospitals in Italy, Cyprus and West Germany.

THE SUICIDE bombing was the bloodiest attack against U.S. servicemen since the Vietnam War. A Red Cross worker grimly announced "no survivors have been found. Dead, yes, but no survivors."

CBS News, quoting U.S. intelligence sources, said the bombings were masterminded by a "renegade Lebanese Shiite Moslem loyal to Ayatollah Khomeini" identified as Abu Musawi.

Col. Timothy Geraghty, commander in Beirut, said the attack was similar to the car bombing that killed 63 people at the U.S. Embassy in April.

Iran dismissed allegations it was responsible and said the bombings reflected Lebanese resistance to the presence of the peacekeeping force, made up of U.S., French, Italian and British troops.

But the Islamic Holy War, which claimed responsibility for the April embassy bombing, said it carried out the twin suicide missions.

The group's members are believed to be associated with Shiite Moslem fundamentalists predominant in the slums bordering the Marine base and supporters of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

THE CBS REPORT said U.S. intelligence last month intercepted messages from the Iranian foreign ministry to its embassy in Beirut about a planned attack against American forces and installations in Lebanon.

CBS said no details of the time or location of the attack were mentioned but intelligence analysts now believe those messages referred to the Sunday bombing.

The sources said Musawi, with headquarters behind Syrian lines in Lebanon's Bekaa valley, maintains close contact with Iranian intelligence officers at the Iranian embassy in Beirut and travels regularly to Iran.

On Sunday, a previously unknown group called the Free Islamic Revolution Movement said it carried out the attack.

President Reagan, calling the bombers "vicious, cowardly and ruthless," said the Marines must stay in Lebanon because "we must not allow international criminals and thugs to undermine the struggle for peace."

Reagan defended the U.S. military commitment to the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon in an appearance before a group of journalists Monday.

THE ATTACK "will not go unpunished," he vowed, and "The United States will not be intimidated by terrorists."

Reagan said enlarging the 1,600-member Marine contingent might be warranted "if it would help the mission they're performing."

However, he ruled out any change in the mission of the multinational peacekeeping force, including a more active combat role.

It would be a disaster if a force took over the Middle East, and a force is ready to do that, as witness what has taken place in Yemen, Ethiopia and now the forces — several thousand — See Lebanon, page 5

Congress debates troops' recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional leaders, resisting demands for a withdrawal, Monday backed President Reagan in his determination to keep Marine forces in Lebanon and said the leathernecks must not be brought home "at the point of a gun."

But a number of rank-and-file senators and congressmen, in a flow of speeches, urged the administration to "admit we've made a mistake" and withdraw the Marine peacekeeping force. Others suggested they be replaced by U.N. or third-world troops.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill told reporters Monday it "would be a victory for the Russians" if U.S. forces were pulled out of Lebanon now, and vowed to keep the massacre of Marines in Beirut from becoming a partisan political issue.

Following a telephone conversation with President Reagan, O'Neill said, "If we were to pull out of there today, it would be a victory not only for Syria, it would be a victory for the Russians."

"I want to make sure this doesn't turn into a partisan issue. That is the one thing I will be pushing for ... We are all Americans ... The main thing is to keep politics out of this and make the best decision for America," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

SECRETARY of State George Shultz hurried to Capitol Hill to brief the Senate and the House in separate closed-door sessions, saying he has no specifics yet on who is to blame for the bombing but pointing to Syria, the Soviet Union and Iran as "enemies of peace" in Lebanon.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said Shultz "did not rule out some retaliatory action if we could determine who did it."

Pell indicated the administration wants to get more countries involved in the peacekeeping force in order to lower the U.S. profile in Lebanon.

Senate GOP leader Howard Baker added, "We should not leave at the point of a gun and I would stoutly resist that. We should keep our powder dry."

House Democratic leader Jim Wright said, "Suddenly to remove all U.S. peacekeeping forces in the face of this brutal, unprovoked act would be to turn over to the fanatical elements who committed this outrage, and to those in Syria and the Soviet Union who cynically manipulate them."

But Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said, "I do not feel in a mood to just cut and run."

AMONG THOSE senators calling for the Marine's partial or complete withdrawal were Sen. Ernest Hollings, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. "We should admit we've made a mistake, get together with our allies and come up with a plan to bring our troops home within 60 days," said the South Carolina Democrat.

Perret continues effort to find write-in candidate

By Robyn Griggs
Staff Writer

District A Iowa City Council candidate Ernest Zuber may have an opponent soon, if current councilor David Perret's efforts to find a write-in candidate pan out.

Perret, who decided not to seek reelection for his District A seat after eight years on the council because of "a lot of personal goals I want to achieve," said when he announced his decision not to run he would seek "a woman or a man with progressive ideas" to wage a write-in campaign against Zuber.

Perret said Monday he has been "holding some discussions with some people" about staging a write-in campaign, and added, "I'm hoping, obviously, that a candidate will come out.

I will support that candidate, but it is really up to the individual.

"It's certainly a very personal decision on the parts of those people," he said. "In the final analysis, she or he will have to, on his or her own initiative, come out. I will support that candidate, but it is really up to the individual. I'm looking for someone who will be strong and progressive," he said.

THE WRITE-IN candidate's announcement should be made soon, he said, because, "I think for a write-in candidacy to be successful, I think it has to start very quickly. It has to be a quick, intensive campaign."

Richard Taylor, a former at large council candidate who was defeated in the Oct. 18 city primary election, said he might seek the District A seat, depending on the candidate Perret finds.

"I'm kind of leaning against it (staging a write-in campaign) because, in talking to David Perret, I learned he has someone in mind," Taylor said.

"What it hinges on is who the person is. If the person is liberal, I'm up, but if the person is right-wing, I'll run."

Taylor added it would be "a very difficult task (to run a write-in campaign) and we would have to have real strong organization."

He said if he ran he would focus on "getting out and talking with potential voters."

Perret said, however, he suggested to Taylor "that he should not consider running, because the voters had already rendered a decision on his candidacy. My recommendation to him was to respect the decision of the voters.

"I think he has performed a service in that he has already run for the city council, but I don't think his candidacy would be a successful one," he said.

NO MATTER who conducts the write-in campaign, "A lot of advertising in the media will have to be contemplated, and I think a lot of education about how to write in the candidate's name on the ballot will be necessary," for the candidate to be successful, Perret said.

Councilor John Balmer agreed, saying, "I think it will be extremely difficult to conduct a write-in candidacy, especially in a city election."

Balmer supports Zuber for the District A seat, but added "it is unfortunate that there is not a race. I always like to see competition."

Balmer is also "actively supporting" William Ambrisco in the at-large race.

Councilor Kate Dickson also said "it would be healthy to have a choice" in the District A race, but refrained from supporting a candidate because, "I might have to work with any of them."

However, Councilor Larry Lynch said he would not support a write-in campaign unless "the other candidates were unqualified." He supports Zuber because, "I think I have followed that gentleman's campaign, and I would support him against any write-in."

Lynch is also supporting Ambrisco, and said he is "torn between" supporting at-large candidates Jane Jakobsen or George Strait, because both are "extremely well-qualified."

If higher local telephone rates go into effect April 3 as planned, the UI Hospitals will have to decide whether to purchase a $5 million phone system, or live with the new rates that will increase its phone costs an estimated $190,000 a year by 1986.

David Wood, senior assistant director at the UI Hospitals, wrote a letter in September to Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, that expressed his concern over a $2-a-month local access charge that has been approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

When the increased local charges will be implemented, along with a 10.5 percent reduction in long-distance phone rates, Wood said there would be a negative impact on the UI Hospitals.

This is the second in a series of stories examining the impact of telephone deregulation on the UI.

"An increase of this magnitude would make it uneconomical for us to continue" with the present system, Wood stated in the letter. "For our hospital, such excessive access charges would mean an enormous financial burden during a time of fiscal restraint."

ACCORDING TO a UI Information and Communication Technology Task Force study completed last year, the UI Hospitals had 3,800 phones that cost $1.2 million a year to operate. Wood estimated that if Congress does not take action to cancel any access charges, expenses at the hospitals will rise $80,400 in 1984 and then by $190,000 in 1986.

Wood said the increased costs would have a "dramatic" impact on the hospitals in several ways. First, he said, it will "impede the hospital's efforts to reduce the cost of providing health care services to the general public" as mandated under the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982.

In addition, Wood said, the communications network between support staff, medical services and the patient will be impaired and the patient's link to families and friends will be limited. "Telephones in patient areas will be restricted and it may be necessary to rent phones to our patients at admission," Wood said.

Wood also said the changes in billing procedures are unfair because the hospital's Centrex phone system will be charged more than similar systems because Centrex does not connect to an on-site central phone office, but rather is connected at the Northwestern Bell central office.

"What we would like to know is why Centrex is being singled out from other businesses," he said.

BECAUSE OF the potential impact of increased phone rates on both institutions, the 1982 UI study recommended that the hospital and UI explore "mutually beneficial" arrangements. "For example, if both groups decided to acquire a non-(Northwestern)Bell type system, serious consideration should be given to purchase from the same vendor," the study stated.

To determine what should be done in this area, the UI has hired an outside consulting firm, Telecommunications International Inc. of Colorado, to look at the situation.

"One thing we'll be looking at in the new study is whether the hospital and the university should be using the same system," said Jim Johnson, UI director of the Office of Information Technology. "Currently, the hospital has a separate system from the university."

"This doesn't mean the hospital and See Phones, page 5

Nicaragua austerity imposed

Marxist Nicaragua said Monday it would impose strict measures to cope with energy shortages caused by rebel attacks, including tighter fuel rationing, a shorter work week, and the elimination of street lighting and Sunday newspapers.

U.S.-backed rebels in the past month have blown up nearly 4 million gallons of fuel supplies and threatened to sink ships bringing in more fuel in a campaign of economic warfare against the Sandinista regime.

U.S. Manila bases decried

MANILA, Philippines — Opposition groups Monday demanded the removal of strategic U.S. military bases because of the threat of nuclear attack in a war between the superpowers.

Opposition coalition leader Jose Diokno, a former senator, said the bases make the Philippines "a primary target in the event of a nuclear war between the superpowers." The bases house more than 15,000 service personnel and provide major support for U.S. military activities in the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Ancient curse spurs suicide

LONDON — A 26-year-old English nobleman killed himself with a shotgun because he was troubled by a centuries-old curse that all the family's menfolk would die young, according to local villagers. The legend says an old woman cast the oath when one of the Cravens got a village girl pregnant.

Thomas Robert Douglas Craven, the seventh Earl of Craven, was found shot to death Saturday at his ancestral Peeling Manor in southern England. The sixth earl died in his 40s and Craven inherited the title from his father when he was only eight years old.

Anchorwoman Savitch killed

NEW HOPE, Pa. — Television anchorwoman Jessica Savitch was found dead Monday along with her fiancé in an overturned car at the bottom of a murky canal.

Police said the car carrying Savitch, 35, anchorwoman for NBC-TV, and newspaper executive Martin Fischbein, 34, and a pet Siberian husky apparently ran off the road, flipped upside down and plunged into the canal, where it became mired in mud beneath 5 feet of water.

Nationwide protests are held

More than 1,100 people, including peace activist Dr. Benjamin Spock and the wife of the Minneapolis police chief, were arrested Monday in anti-nuclear protests at weapons plants and military installations in New York, Illinois, Minnesota, South Carolina, New Mexico, California, Oregon and the Pentagon.

The demonstrations, including more than 1,500 people, were planned as part of worldwide protests against deployment of 572 Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in five West European countries in December.

Judge rules on 'silence' law

NEWARK, N.J. — A federal judge declared New Jersey's moment of silence law unconstitutional Monday. The rule, enacted last December, required school students to observe a quiet minute each day.

The court said the law "impermissibly advances the religion of some, and inhibits the religion of others," and forces some students to either "endure an exercise which runs counter to their beliefs or to face public opprobrium or ridicule by asking to be excused each day."

FAA says tower would be a hazard

By Patricia Thorn
Staff Writer

The Federal Aviation Administration announced Friday an aeronautical study done by its staff found that the proposed site for a 2,000-foot television tower near Iowa City would be a navigational hazard.

William Newbrough of the Television Development Association of Iowa, the organization attempting to establish a commercial television station in the Iowa City area, said the FAA's decision "seriously harmed" TDAI's efforts.

Newbrough said the FAA objected to the site, which is 6.7 miles northwest of Frytown, because the tower would interfere with the training area used by two flight schools and it would interfere with two instrument approach procedures to the Iowa City Airport.

According to Newbrough, the two flight schools could continue to use the area without a "sizable" hazard.

"One of the key aspects to learning to fly is learning to navigate around hazards," he said. "The tower would be conducive to that kind of training."

NEWBROUGH DESCRIBED the instrument approach cited by the FAA as an "infrequently-used luxury" that will only be used until a planned extension of runway 6 is completed, making it the airport's main runway.

But Iowa City Airport Manager Fred Zehr said the instrument approach is essential for night flights, and will become even more important when runway 6 is extended.

"He (Newbrough) picked one of the worst places he could for the tower," Zehr said. Zehr said the tower would not be considered a safety hazard if it were moved 4.2 miles west of the proposed site.

"He's trying to get the maximum utilization out of the tower at the expense of the Iowa City Airport," Zehr said. "He's trying to make the city out as bad guys."

Newbrough said the Iowa City Airport Commission could vote to "delay the implementation of a new instrument approach" to runway 6, resulting in a "favorable finding" by the FAA concerning the proposed tower site.

Zehr said the approach has already been approved for use starting Nov. 24 and approval would have to be withdrawn.

Dennis Saeugling, a member of the Iowa City Airport Commission, said the commission would discuss the issue at their Nov. 10 meeting, but he did not think the commission would go against the FAA decision.

"I'VE TRIED TO keep an open mind about this thing and not look at the issue with tunnel vision, thinking only of the airport," Saeugling said. "I think a local television station would have tangible benefits for the Iowa City area, but it seems the other commission members don't feel that way."

Newbrough said it is "critical" the station begins operation by Oct. 1984 in order to benefit from the substantial advertising income that would result from the 1984 election.

Time is now an important aspect of the situation, he said, because the tower cannot be built until the FAA approves the site and the Federal Communications Commission grants a construction permit. The tower itself would take nine months to build.

"Things could happen quite quickly," Newbrough said. "And I hope they do."

Man charged with assault and kidnapping

By Patricia Thorn
Staff Writer

An Iowa City man was charged by UI Campus Security with assault with the intent to commit sexual abuse and third-degree kidnapping in relation to an incident that occurred in the basement of Slater Residence Hall Sunday morning, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The records state Eli Tetter, 18, 2727 Muscatine Ave., allegedly dragged a UI student into the basement of Slater Hall, where he "choked her, banged her head against a wall, threw her on the floor" and then attempted to unzip her pants.

The woman was treated at the UI Hospitals for bruises and scrapes, the records state. Tetter was arrested at 4:45 a.m. Sunday.

Courts

An Iowa City man was charged in Johnson County Court with possession of marijuana at the Johnson County Jail, records state.

Michael T. Nuechter, 22, 2 Wendram Bluff Court, was brought to the jail by a state Highway Patrol trooper for driving under a suspended license Oct. 21. During a search at the jail, a "clear plastic zip-lock baggie containing a green plant-like substance" was allegedly discovered in Nuechter's backpack.

Nuechter's preliminary hearing will be Nov. 10. He was released on his personal recognizance.

A Coralville man was also charged with possession of marijuana after being stopped by Coralville police for driving under a suspended license, Johnson County District Court records state.

Darryl R. Rundell, 24, 953 Boston Way, Apt. 1, allegedly had a plastic bag containing a substance identified later as marijuana when stopped on U.S. Highway 6 Saturday.

Rundell's preliminary hearing will be Nov. 11. He was released on his personal recognizance.

An Iowa State University student was charged Saturday with interference with a traffic sign for allegedly knocking down a stop sign at the corner of Bloomington and Clinton Streets, district court records state.

Rory L. Hoelker, 19, 9236 Knapp Hall, Ames, was stopped by Iowa City police in the entrance of Burge Residence Hall.

Hoelker's preliminary hearing will be Nov. 12. He was released on his personal recognizance.

Three-month RVAP calls up

By Jill Nieman
Staff Writer

Calls from people claiming to be victims of sexual abuse to the Rape Victim Advocacy Program crisis line more than doubled from July through September this year compared to the same period last year.

RVAP attributes this increase to greater awareness of the crisis line and of RVAP's services, an RVAP volunteer said.

From July through September RVAP received 57 more calls this year than it had at this same time last year.

The Iowa City Police Department also reports an increase in calls from alleged sexual assault victims during July through September — receiving 11 calls this year and only five last year. The police made only one arrest in a rape case during these three months both this year and last year.

RVAP breaks its calls into 15 categories and keeps individual statistics in each category.

Rape-current calls are those in which a volunteer is asked to go to the hospital to be with a victim or the victim calls just after the rape has occurred. RVAP noted 25 of these calls in the first quarter of 1983 over 14 during the same months in 1982.

RAPE-PAST CALLS are those in which women who say they were raped months or years ago call to talk about the incident. These increased from four calls to seven in the first quarter between 1982 and 1983.

Six calls in which the victim says she was physically assaulted in some way were received by RVAP this year and were at three last year.

In July through September of 1982 RVAP received no calls concerning kidnapping, exhibitionism, rape of a child or incest. During this period this year there were three calls in which the victim had been apprehended, two calls from victims of an exhibitionist, two calls involving the rape of a child and two relating to incest.

No changes were seen as far as child molestation reports. RVAP received two calls under that classification in these three months for both years.

RVAP received no calls either year complaining about a window-peeper or domestic abuse, when a spouse is the attacker.

Decreases were found in three categories: verbal harassment, from 11 calls this period last year to 10 this year; obscene calls or obscene mail, no calls this July through September compared to two last year; breaking and entering, one call this year compared to two calls last year.

This year 44 people called in the first quarter to receive information or referral compared to only eight such calls this period last year.

Police report car equipment thefts

Iowa City police reported three thefts of car equipment Sunday and Monday.

Kim Tonner of Sioux City, Ia., reported Monday the theft of two hubcaps, and $45 damage to the taillight of her car when it was parked at Washington and Governor Streets.

A car battery, valued at more than $40, was reported stolen from a car owned by Jeff Dodd, 610 E. Church St.

In a similar incident, a car battery, valued at $41, was reported stolen from a car belonging to Susan O'Kieffe, 29 E. Meadow Brook Estates, while it was parked at the T

& M Mini Mart, 2601 U.S. Highway 6 E. Iowa City police also reported Monday three newspaper vending machines were vandalized Sunday night.

A Des Moines Register machine and a USA Today machine located at Dickey's Save-A-Lot, 1213 S. Gilbert Court, were vandalized and the money they contained was stolen. Also, an Iowa City Press-Citizen vending machine located at the corner of Clinton and Market Streets was vandalized.

Library holds facility orientation

The Iowa City Public Library is offering orientation sessions to senior citizens who want to become more familiar with the library's computer catalog system.

The sessions will be offered on Mondays only and will be limited to seven people per session so each person will have a computer screen. Senior citizens who wish to participate should meet at 9 a.m. on the day they are scheduled at the library's College Street entrance. The sessions will be held before the library opens to the general public so the librarians will have the time to offer individualized attention.

The sessions, which will continue through November, will also offer general information on using the library.

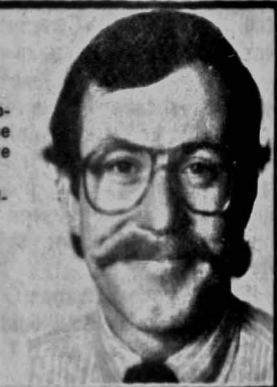

More information on the program can be obtained by calling the library at 356-5200. Senior citizens should call the Senior Center Secretary at 356-5220 to sign up for the sessions.

Branstad weighs computer funds plea

By Kirk Brown
Staff Writer

The UI's request for $1.64 million to "keep pace with technology" made it over its first hurdle last week when the state Board of Regents agreed to recommend the request to Gov. Terry Branstad. However, UI officials aren't counting their microchips yet.

Branstad will now review the requests of the regents and submit a list of recommended appropriations to the Iowa Legislature in January, but UI officials insist there is no guarantee the UI's request will be on that list.

"I couldn't give you any odds," said Duane Spriestersbach, UI vice president for educational development and research. "All I can say is that we will attempt to describe the urgency of our need."

According to Spriestersbach the UI "urgently needs" $20 million worth of new high-technology equipment. "Our request is for only about one-tenth of what we need," he said. "But it would mark a beginning."

He said if Branstad decides not to recommend funding for the new equipment, the UI may take matters into its own hands.

"TYPICALLY THE governor's support has always been helpful, but there has been no prohibition for the institutions to state their case to the legislature directly," he said.

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, said she "hasn't heard anything about the request."

Doderer said if the UI's need for equipment is as vital as has been implied, then the school should be contacting more legislators to support passage of the request.

"Sooner or later someone usually gets in contact with me," Doderer said. "I guess in this case it will be later."

If the UI does receive the funds requested from the legislature, much of the money will go toward purchasing six new computer systems and approximately 600 new terminals for student use.

Presently there is one computer terminal for every 65 UI students, but if the additional computers are purchased, the ratio would be lowered to one terminal for every 20 students.

THIS FALL about 100 additional terminals were placed around campus, but both students and officials from the WEEG Computing Center continue to complain about overcrowding and inaccessibility.

Dan McClain, head of the UI's WEEG Computer Assisted Instructor Lab, said, "We need to expand the number of computers we have for students."

McClain said for the past several years WEEG officials have predicted 25 percent annual increases in computer usage "and every year we have underestimated (the demand)."

"More and more people are becoming aware of computers and are becoming motivated to learn how to use them," he said. "This additional awareness of computers has subsequently led to serious overcrowding of the available terminals."

"We now have 14 instructional clusters around the campus that students can use," McClain said. "But students tell me that by 8:30 in the morning some of them are already busy."

Dennis Nicklaus, a UI senior who works as a user consultant at the WEEG computer center, said student use of the computers has increased this year.

"THE BUSY TIMES vary, but when a class has an assignment due it usually gets pretty crowded."

Bill Rhoades, a UI junior, said when he uses the computers he tries to work "during the day when everybody is in class."

"Usually between six and midnight it is pretty tough to get anything done," Rhoades said. "If I am not done by then I wait until after midnight to come back and finish."

Jim Johnson, director of the UI's Office of Information Technology, said part of the money the UI is requesting would also go to replacing obsolete equipment used for instruction and research, as well as improving cataloging processes for UI libraries.

"Many of these things are not urgent needs," Johnson said. "But they will be in five years and then they will also cost three times as much."

UI student leaders retreat to discuss policies and goals

By Dan Hauser
Staff Writer

Fleeing the distractions of the big city, members of the UI student government traveled to Camp Little Cloud outside Dubuque this weekend to meet informally in the group's second retreat this semester.

The retreat cost about $700, according to Susan Brasel, program assistant in the UI Office of Campus Programs. About $200 was spent for reserving the camp's lodge. The cost was split evenly between her office, the UI Student Senate and UI Collegiate Associations Council.

About 26 members from the CAC, the senate, United Students of Iowa plus members of various UI student organizations attended the retreat, sponsored by the UI Office of Campus Programs.

Brasel said the group included a cross-section of people from various student organizations.

THE PURPOSE of the retreat was to acquaint student leaders with each other and give them a chance to discuss policies and goals, CAC President Tom Palmer said.

Tom Fessenmeyer, program assistant in the Office of Campus Programs, said the retreat was also planned to give the student leaders a chance to meet with the office staff.

Fessenmeyer said scheduling the retreats out of town adds cohesiveness to the group and helps the students to get to know each other.

During Saturday's session, the programming office staff gave workshops pertaining to stress management, leadership, and meeting procedure, Palmer said.

Also during Saturday's meetings the student leaders took the Myers-Briggs test, a standardized personality inventory. Palmer said the 170 questions on the test are intended to place the test-taker into several personality categories.

He said the results of this test were used later in the day in a workshop that instructed student leaders how to work more effectively with people. The retreat's workshops helped the student leaders open up lines of communication between their groups, Palmer said.

"THE BEST THING (about the retreat) was getting the chance to meet other leaders on campus," said Tom Drew, senate president.

Brasel said the campus programs office has offered these retreats for two years now and plans to keep sponsoring them in the future. She said the past two have been attended mostly by student leaders, but in the future her office will open it up to all interested students.

Chicago teacher strike ends

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago teachers ratified their new $81 million contract Monday with the Board of Education by a margin of 73 percent to 27 percent and prepared to return to their classrooms Tuesday, ending the longest strike in the district's history.

In addition, Chicago Teachers

Union President Robert Healey said 18 blue collar unions representing 11,000 other Board of Education employees also settled and would return to work today.

The three-week strike shut down 596 public schools and suspended classes for 435,000 students for 15 days.

Politics raise ire of local gays

By Elizabeth Zima

Iowa City has a population of 59,295, according to the 1980 census. About 43.6 percent are male and about 10 percent of them — or 2,585 — are homosexual.

Like all Iowa City residents, they are involved in the daily activities of this town: getting an education, getting a job, working in a profession.

They mainly are a young population, with a political awareness to match the times. While they are likely to be more sensitive to human rights issues and the overt homophobia that characterizes the country, they are not revolutionaries.

This could change, as it already has in larger cities where Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome has become a politicizing force within the gay community.

Not since the 1969 Stonewall riots in New York has the gay community rallied to combat a threat to their lifestyle. This time the battle is more mysterious, more deadly.

Criticism has been raised by the lack of funds and by balking on funding by Congress and the White House. On July 14, Reagan finally signed a bill into law providing for $30 million in public-health emergency funds.

This came three weeks after representatives of the gay community, one of them with AIDS, met with White House officials.

Another bill, which Reagan threatens to veto, has passed in the House. It provides $12 million for AIDS research. It now is in a House-Senate committee.

According to the Body Politic, a Canadian magazine of gay liberation, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta has closed its hepatitis-control program, and cut back on VD control and childhood immunization to divert funds for AIDS research.

This lack of action by the public sector has enraged the homosexual community. Micheal Blake, gay activist and resident of Iowa City for 13 years, feels there has not been support from the medical or political sectors of the country because a majority of the people with the disease are homosexual.

"No funds were allocated until the straight population was threatened by blood contamination. Only then did they get involved and take the problem seriously," he says.

Robert Kus, assistant professor in the UI College of Nursing, says the press has sensationalized AIDS and ignored a greater health threat. Says Kus, "Problems such as rape, divorce, domestic violence, child battering and neglect are straight health problems."

"How can anyone talk about the death of less than 2,000 and not also focus on health problems that affect millions in this country?"

Illogical attacks leveled at the community by Judeo-Christian conservatives also have angered gays. One of their most colorful and characteristic pronouncements on AIDS has been that the disease is God's punishment for being gay.

While many gay men find these attacks laughable, they frighten others.

"I worry about the guilt trip straights might lay on gay people," says John, a UI medical student. "Linking being gay with disease and sin is as old as the hills. (AIDS) is an unknown thing. It is not some mysterious punishment sent by God."

Since its initial discovery in 1979, 75 percent of the people with AIDS have been homosexual. One half of those affected (which by September 1983 was 2,259 in the United States and Puerto Rico) live in New York City. Other urban centers with notable AIDS incidence are San Francisco (12 percent), Los Angeles, Miami and Newark, N.J.

The survival rate for victims with the disease — which weakens the immune system to let opportunistic infections rage within the body — is not good. Of the 2,400 diagnosed since 1979, approximately 1,000 are dead.

The lack of an AIDS problem within the Iowa City gay community is a surprise to several members, which were interviewed during the last several weeks.

"It's somewhere down the road," Blake said. "It's a scary thing because you don't really know who has visited a city and (is) now carrying it. It should show up in Iowa City; it's only a matter of time."

A professional in the Iowa City area, Walter, said he expected something to happen quite a while ago. "Perhaps it hasn't occurred because there is no real bathroom sex in this area. Sexual promiscuity is not nearly what it is in major cities. There hasn't been much gonorrhea within this community. There's never been an outbreak of hepatitis B (and) even Cedar Rapids had an outbreak four years ago."

Most of the men say they feel the Iowa City gay community was a protected group.

"Most of the student population is still from Iowa," Blake said. "All of Iowa is still insulated and isolated."

None of the men say they fit the homosexual at-risk profile, which includes a large number of sexual partners.

Only one, who works in Iowa City, says he has modified his lifestyle. "I have changed. I don't sleep around anymore. I have only a few selected sexual contacts."

Walter says the biggest challenge being faced by the gay community is not medical but social.

"We are also standing back and assessing the lifestyle. The profile of an AIDS victim is a minority of a minority. It's life in the fast lane. The young, hip, rich, chic man rushing from bar to bar in total abandon."

"We have experienced a real sexual celebration. Exploring the vistas of sexuality as we have, of course, makes everyone in America nervous. But this re-evaluation is not going to end up as some straight moralist thing. We will not wind up with relationships that ape heterosexual marriage."

Zima is a DI copy editor.

God and 'man'

The National Council of Churches has undertaken a remarkable and probably controversial project. It is in the process of preparing a new lectionary, a list of Bible readings, for use by churches. The first volume, just published, has attempted to remove male bias from the Bible.

For example, the passage that used to read, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only son, that whoever believes in him should not perish..." now reads "For God so loved the world that God gave God's only Child, that whoever believes in that Child should not perish..." God the Father is now either God the Mother and Father or God the Father and Mother, Lord has become Sovereign One and Son of God has become Child of God.

The alterations are sure to be controversial; many will find the changes graceless. Some will be angry because the language is awkward; "God gave God's only Child" is not elegant prose. Some will be angry because they believe God is the Father and Jesus is the Son and anything else is heresy.

Those angry because of the language have a good case; many of the changes are awkward. But those who get angry over the substantive changes are the ones for whom this new version will be most enlightening, if they will let it. For it is to them the new version is addressed.

The making of God into Father is a reflection of the male chauvinism inherent in the Hebrew, Greek and Roman cultures — a chauvinism that continues today in Christianity. It also reflects a tendency to anthropomorphize God. So a patriarchal culture will tend to see its God as a male. After all, if men rule on earth, it is hard to imagine the ruler of all as female.

But is God male? Does God have a sex? Is God to be confined to being a male, a man?

What this new version of a lectionary can offer is a chance to think about the relation of culture, language, power and religion. If God is male then the top authority is male. That is likely to mean the power ideal in human relationships will seem most normal the closer it follows that ideal — that is male authority. Once God had been anthropomorphized into the father, and the language had codified it, then the cultures of that God were likely to remain frozen into a patriarchal image.

This new lectionary asks people if this is necessary. What actually is lost to Christianity if God is seen to be Mother and Father and Jesus seen to be Son and Daughter? The power of God is not lost. The sacrifice and suffering to redeem man is not lost. What is lost is an unconscious justification for male power and authority.

ERA, second round

Last week the Senate Judiciary Committee began hearings on round two of the Equal Rights Amendment proposal, opening the ring to old foe Phyllis Schlafly and her battery of fears: social, military, homophobic and scatological.

Even while opponents have waylaid public attention to images of unisex public bathrooms, homosexual marriages, and young girls toting submachine guns on the front lines in some obscure Asian conflict, proponents have continued to sanely argue the simple point of the proposed constitutional amendment. That is, the legislative piecemeal approach to insuring sexual equality is ineffective and impermanent.

Laws can be changed, and with the prospect of another term for President Reagan or the like, we may see many laws pertinent to women change.

The issue was reopened in Congress in January, with the backing of more than half the members of the U.S. House. ERA backers will have to start from scratch, win the House, Senate and, once again, state by state ratification: a long process that, if it sees success, will not be effective for two years after that.

The final knock-out of the original ERA came on June 30, 1982 with 35 states having ratified it, just three shy of the three-fourths needed to pass a constitutional amendment. ERA was passed by Congress ten years before, in 1972, with a proviso for seven years for ratification, which then was extended for an additional three.

Most of the 35 states that ratified ERA did so within the first three years of the legislature's 1972 vote, illustrating both the more liberal climate of the time and a kind of bandwagon syndrome. What happened? Political organization of the New Right employing tactics similar to those that felled the careers of many liberal and moderate-liberal politicians in the second half of the decade.

Also, unorganized public support — documented at 61 percent in a 1981 poll — may simply have tired and lost its focus through the laborious ratification processes.

But any Monday-morning armchairing should aim at improving the next bout.

One thing that can be said for round two is it will refocus attention on the issue of women's equality and attendant economic, social and educational concerns at a national level. And the issue, which affects all women regardless of region, race, class or career aspirations, deserves the scope of media attention national congressional debates will draw.

Organized support for the ERA, specifically from NOW (which had to disseminate its efforts through the various states), can use a Congressional forum to outline and define the basic arguments for and against provisos of the ERA and to eliminate many of the myths.

And now, as those men who want to be president prime up to address the proverbial gender gap, the re-emergence of ERA may force those who want to keep up vague, philosophical footwork around women's issues to jab specifics and call their sides.

Protesters march in Iowa City Sunday. More than 100 people participated in the local street walk and rally, decrying the planned deployment of 464 Cruise and 108 Pershing 2 missiles in West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Great Britain in December. The Iowa City action coincided with mass demonstrations in Western Europe, where almost a half-million people paraded through the streets of Brussels, Madrid and Paris. On Saturday, one million Western Europeans formed sit-ins, human chains and marches.

Capitalist Jane fools Fonda-baiters

SHE'LL NEVER make the Fortune 500, but her entrepreneurial moxie would match that of the most clever computer marketer. Her name is Jane Fonda, and she's an example of how the avant-garde is looking more and more like the old guard.

In a few short years, Jane Fonda has completed an extraordinary metamorphosis to become one of America's busiest and most prominent capitalists. In fact, she's been such an active businesswoman it's almost difficult to imagine her as a right-wing lightning rod, let alone a two-time Oscar winning actress.

Workout, Inc., located off Wilshire Boulevard in Beverly Hills, oversees Fonda's three exercise studios in California as well as revenues from books (at $19.95 and $17.95), video tapes ($69.95) and album ($12.95) sales. While its executives won't disclose its earnings, Workout funnels a percentage — effectively between $20,000 and $40,000 — every month to husband Tom Hayden's Campaign For Economic Democracy, according to CED director Jack Nicoll. (At one time, CED received the majority of Workout's earnings, but Fonda, in a demonstration of steely managerial acumen, changed that in the last year.)

Meanwhile, Simon & Schuster has published "Jane Fonda's Year of Fitness and Health" calendar ($8.95) and plans to release a fitness guide for senior citizens sometime next year (no price yet). Workout will share the profits from, but not the control of, these projects, for which Fonda will receive a cut of her own.

Next month, Fonda's personal fortunes will take another leap with the introduction of a fashion line called "Jane Fonda Workouts." Designed and produced by a California-based firm (Fonda, who starred in the movie, 9 to 5, demanded that her manufacturer be both American and unionized), "Workouts" have apparently captured one Southern California chain store's $1.5 million guarantee in exchange for 30 days of exclusive sales rights. Bloomingdale's and Macy's intend to give Fonda's clothes — ultimately as many as 127 different items, including casual wear — separate floor space.

"She's probably going to do everything she can," said a Hayden-Fonda adviser of Jane's newfound enthusiasm for licensing. "This is only the beginning... there's not going to be as direct a political connection as there is with the workout studios. This is a Jane Fonda enterprise."

Alas, that may be disarming news to those who have regarded the Santa Monica, Calif. mother of two as a clear and present danger to the American way. For the Atomic Industrial Forum, some business groups and those bitter folk who hand out scurrilous literature at airports, Hanoi Jane has long been the peril.

Now that Fonda is providing a lesson in free enterprise worthy of Harvard Business School casebooks, her opponents may no longer want, as one bumper sticker suggests, feed (her) to the whales. How can we afford to "Nuke Jane Fonda" when such a move would undercut our gross national product? How can they draw comparisons between Castro and a woman who's more and more like Mr. Candy Bar, Reggie Jackson?

Indeed, at 45, Jane has learned to play the most conventional roles. In a leotard, she coaches pregnant moms about muscle control and healthy babies. Meanwhile, she's taken a political back seat of sorts to her husband, now a California state assemblyman: Through no Pat Nixon, she's hardly a Mrs. Mao.

Like many once-inflammatory left-wingers — Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman come to mind — Jane has only shown that she, too, can work within the system and do quite well by it. Some Fonda-haters may see the difference and feel the satisfaction of a missionary who's won a big convert. Others won't and may always prefer to think of her as the rebel who sat behind North Vietnamese guns and later "killed" the nuclear power industry.

Such unconstructable Fonda-baiters will always, in the grand fashion of conspiracy theorists, allege some subversive motive to all of Fonda's wheeling and dealing. They can't seem to realize that, these days, a good commie sympathizer is hard to find.

To kill or let starve

To the editor:
This is in response to the guest opinion on animal population control written by Paula Klein.

Hunting is a sport that is highly contested from a moral standpoint.

From a scientific point of view, however, it is as very effective and humane method of animal population control.

Klein stated that "animals do not outgrow food supplies." This is not a valid statement. Animals do outgrow food supplies, and nature has a very effective means of control for preventing overpopulation: starvation. Starvation has been occurring since long before the white man ever occupied this country.

The conservationist views starvation as unnecessary. Man can utilize this otherwise wasted resource through hunting. To condemn hunting for moral reasons is one's own choice, but from a scientific view the facts stand uncontested.

U.S. citizens may flee from Grenada

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (UPI) — Three helicopters and a U.S. Navy jet carrying Marines landed in Barbados Monday, possibly to evacuate Americans from nearby Grenada, where the new military government said it was preparing for an attack by its Caribbean neighbors.

Grenada's Revolutionary Military Council was mobilizing troops for what it called a possible invasion following last week's coup.

A U.S. C-9 jet carrying about 60 Marines landed in mid-afternoon, and the soldiers began transferring equipment and rifles from the jet to three helicopters — two Sea Kings and a Huey — parked nearby at Barbados' Grantley Adams International Airport.

"They could be employed as one of the options to evacuation and safety of American citizens in Grenada," said Michael Morgan, spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Barbados.

Morgan refused to say where the aircraft and Marines had come from, and whether the troops might be used to invade Grenada as the nation's pro-Cuban military charged. Grenada said it had mobilized "thousands" of militiamen to ward off a U.S.-backed invasion from other Caribbean nations.

U.S. DIPLOMATS were frustrated in efforts to charter a plane to evacuate American citizens from Grenada. Western diplomatic sources said soldiers fired small arms at a light plane that flew into the country Sunday carrying American diplomats. No one was hit, the sources said. Three U.S. citizens, however, arrived in Barbados from Grenada Monday.

Grenada's new ruling council said on Radio Free Grenada that two unidentified warships cruised within 6 and 9 miles offshore for 10 hours and accused Jamaica, Barbados and the seven-nation Organization of Eastern Caribbean States of mobilizing troops for an invasion. In Dominica, 200 miles northwest of Barbados, Prime Minister Mary Eugenia Charles confirmed that OECS nations had sent troops to Barbados for what she called a "training exercise."

U.S. Marines, some in civilian dress, transfer from a Navy DC-9 national Airport in Bridgetown, Barbados. It was not clear what the Marines mission was on the neighboring island of Grenada.

Charles, who disbanded her country's military following a 1980 coup attempt, said Dominica sent members of its police force to participate in the exercise that was in accordance with the group's regional security system "in view of the situation in Grenada and the proximity of one of the members."

CHARLES WAS referring to St. Vincent, 50 miles north of Grenada. A 10-ship U.S. task force enroute to Lebanon with Marine replacements was diverted toward Grenada after the coup last week in which at least 17 people were killed, including Marxist Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, and 69 wounded. But Pentagon sources said the ships would only "swing by."

Grenada's military rulers, believed to be more pro-Cuban than Bishop, sent a telex to the U.S. Embassy in Barbados stating they had "no desire or aspiration to rule the country" and would turn control over to a "broad-based" civilian cabinet within 14 days. They reiterated all foreign citizens were safe and free to leave. There are about 800 Americans on the island, mostly students and faculty at the St. George's University Medical School.

U.S. and Canadian diplomats in Barbados had previously arranged with Grenada's military rulers to charter two planes to fly in and evacuate any of their citizens who wished to leave.

French call attack in Beirut 'horrible'

PARIS (UPI) — President Francois Mitterrand, returning Monday from a seven-hour visit to Lebanon to raise the morale of French survivors of twin bomb attacks on French troops and U.S. Marines, vowed France would keep its peacekeepers in the war-torn country.

Mitterrand landed at Villacoublay military airport outside Paris, where an hour earlier Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy welcomed the first wounded soldiers flown home.

The president said in a brief televised statement: "a country is great by the strength of its soul, by its resolution as well as by the friendship and respect that it merits."

"That is why, in Lebanon, France remains and will remain faithful to its history and to its commitments," he said.

He said "in going to Beirut, I wished to kneel before our dead soldiers, visit the wounded ... I realized the enormity of the drama which cruelly struck so many families."

THE FRENCH Monday were angered and sorrowed over the bombings in Beirut that killed scores of French and American soldiers of the four-nation peacekeeping force.

"Unspeaking" and "horrible" were the words many French people in Paris streets used to describe the bombings. But most nonetheless considered the French presence in Lebanon as a "vital necessity" for the Lebanese people and for peace.

"France must stay in Lebanon, because a withdrawal after such a horrible attack is impossible. It would mean we were abandoning the cause of peace," said a journalist working for a Paris daily newspaper.

In Beirut, Mitterrand was met by Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, Prime Minister Cheif Wazzan and Defense Minister Issam Khoury. The high-ranking gathering reflected the historic Lebanese-French relationship dating to France's administration of Lebanon more than 50 years ago.

Mitterrand held a round of talks with Gemayel and France's Defense Minister Charles Hernu who arrived only hours after Sunday's attacks and left two hours after Mitterrand's departure.

Mitterrand then toured the site of the bombed U.S. and French buildings.

AT THE LEVELED barracks where French troops died, Mitterrand stood silent and refused to talk to journalists, raising his hand to ward them off.

In France in the southwestern town of Pau, the military camp where many of the French peacekeepers were based, families of the paratroopers waited tensely for news of casualties.

"My son didn't need to be in the army," said Pierre Hau, an elderly farmer who learned that 21-year-old Jacques, youngest of his four sons, had died in the blast.

"I didn't want him to go. But how could I explain my fears before his departure. He didn't know what fear meant."

All France's political parties rallied to condemn the bombings while calling for continued French involvement in the multinational peacekeeping force. Only the Communist Party worried publicly that the 2,000-man French contingent was becoming embroiled in a situation that "is overtaking the French government."

'Brainstorm' is nervy, creative

By Richard Panek
Staff Writer

ALTHOUGH Brainstorm is now famous as Natalie Wood's final movie, it deserves lasting recognition as one of the most provocative science fiction films in years.

It's physically, emotionally and intellectually stimulating — just like the scientific invention at the center of the plot.

Brainstorm follows this invention — never named in the movie, but amply and imaginatively shown — from its inception, through its refinement and corruption to its ultimate use, as a gateway into the afterlife.

When researchers Michael Brace and Lillian Reynolds (played by Christopher Walken and Louise Fletcher) complete their final lab test, they know they have something revolutionary. As the head of their electronics firm (Cliff Robertson) says, "You've blown communications as we know it right out of the water."

THEY'VE DEVELOPED a recording method that tapes one person's sensory perceptions for playback through another person's consciousness. What the first person sees, ears, touches, smells and tastes will be experienced by anyone who has access to the tape.

To the surprise of Brace and Reynolds, their creation does even more than they'd hoped. It records not only physical responses, but emotions as well.

Brace uses the invention to save his failing marriage. For the first time he knows the elation his wife (Natalie Wood, whose death prompted the producers to try to abort the rest of the shooting) feels when she plays the piano, and for the first time she knows the joy he feels when he thinks of scientific breakthroughs.

But like most scientific breakthroughs, this new creation has the potential to help mankind or harm it. The first hint of the latter comes when a porno tape starts to make the rounds of the research firm's employees, but the real evil becomes evident when the U.S. military intervenes.

"THEY'RE GONNA be able to plug right into the old noodle," says Reynolds, and she's correct.

But the Feds aren't the only danger — thankfully, in this movie era of WarGames and Blue Thunder when the government has become the most convenient scapegoat. Instead, the true villain is universal, and therefore dramatically more compelling.

It's the unwillingness of human nature to face new truths.

When one of the scientists dies while making a tape, Brace realizes the implications. He has the chance to conduct an experiment that could change history. For the first time a person can monitor, scientifically and accurately, what it's like to die.

Producer and director Douglas Trumbull, who created the special effects for such movies as 2001: A Space Odyssey, Close Encounters of the Third Kind and Blade Runner, and who directed the 1972 Silent Running, has developed for Brainstorm a visual method that suggests the effects of the invention.

MOST OF THE MOVIE he filmed in the usual screen ratio, but for any point-of-view shots that show the playback of a tape he uses the wide-screen Super Panavision format. As a result, those moments carry extra visual impact.

The screenplay, by Robert Stitzel and Philip Frank Messina from a story by Bruce Joel Rubin, raises the emotional stakes by making Brace's fight for the tape more than a battle with bureaucrats, more than a test of Brace's love for his wife. It's the struggle of death — between acceptance of the inevitable and fear of the unknown.

The movie's failures of nerve are few. Some slapstick toward the end, when the research center self-destructs, is unnecessary, and the final shot sentimentalizes much of what preceded it.

But usually the movie's technique matches its imagination, which in turn challenges its audience. Brainstorm accomplishes what most science fiction movies only dare to dream.

Met celebration draws thousands

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera's celebration of its 100th anniversary last weekend was a two-part, all-day gala concert that gathered under one roof the greatest number of singing stars, past and present, ever assembled.

"There hasn't been anything this grand in the history of opera," said tenor Luciano Pavarotti, who closed the eight-and-a-half-hour marathon of solos, duets, trios and ensemble numbers, plus choral and ballet presentations, by singing a tempestuous duet from Verdi's A Masked Ball with American soprano Leontyne Price.

Some 8,000 opera fans, one accompanied by a seeing eye dog, and officials of opera houses from all over the United States and Europe made up the privileged audiences for the afternoon and evening programs Saturday that were totally different.

Tens of millions more watched the celebration live on telecasts beamed by four satellites across the United States, Canada and Western Europe. TV commentator Alexander Scourby said the simultaneous transmission was "comparable to coverage of astronauts landing on the moon."

BEGINNING AT 2 p.m. Saturday and ending at 1 a.m. Sunday with a break for dinner, the gala grossed $1.45 million at the box office, a Met record.

Ticket prices ranged from $1,250 for center box seats and $1,000 for orchestra seats down to $50 for the top balcony and $10 for standing room.

The afternoon program had 22 musical numbers sung by 38 principals and led by four conductors, including Met music director James Levine, and the evening performance had 28 numbers sung by more than 50 principals led by three conductors, including Leonard Bernstein. But neither audience was shortchanged, although the evening performance ran 90 minutes longer than the afternoon.

Many of the top stars — Joan Sutherland, Placido Domingo, Kiri Te Kanawa, Jess Thomas, Mirella Freni, James McCracken, and Jessye Norman — sang in the afternoon in a program that seemed to increase in musical excitement as it progressed.

THE UNEXPECTED appearance onstage of 26 of the Met's retired stars for the final hour of the program brought "oohs" and "ahs" from the audience and a storm of applause.

Seated before Marc Chagall's magnificent scarlet set for Mozart's The Magic Flute were such as Zinka Milanov, Eleanor Steber, George Shirley, Dorothy Kirsten, Bidou Sayao, Ferruccio Tagliavini, Rose Bampton, Helen Jepson, Jarmila Novotna, and Ramon Vinay.

Newly-formed Bridge Club is attracting many players

By Melissa Rapoport Staff Writer

The most recent sport to receive club recognition, the Bridge Club, has aroused the interest of many students, as well as non-students in the game of bridge.

"We're having a pretty good turnout," club coordinator Lee Price said. "It pleases me that the students are coming and having fun."

The club is attracting novice players as well as experienced players. "Last week we had some people come who had never played before," Price said. "So, we sat them down at a table and taught them how."

To accommodate both novice and experienced players, two games take place. The novice game is for the person still learning the game, and the more advanced game is for players who play bridge with confidence.

THE CLUB IS also attempting to organize lessons for perspective players. "We're trying to work out lessons for anyone who wants to learn how to play," Price said.

In last week's novice game, the duo of Murray Martin and Linda Paul took first place, and in the advanced game, the twosome of Thelma Ludwig and Pat Hedges secured first place followed by duette Linda Edwards and Jay Rajagopal.

The Bridge Club meets every Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in the Harvard Room in the Union. If you don't have a partner, you can have a partner arranged by con-

Soccer club wins

The Hawkeye Soccer Club added another win to their record this weekend by defeating the Cedar Rapids Orbitals, 3-1.

The Hawkeyes, who are now 5-1-1, had an omnipotent defense, but a shaky offense. "As in the previous game, (against the Comets) we established a solid control of the midfield and dominated the actions almost at will," team president Raul Curto said. "Our defense was firm and efficient, but our offense often lacked punching power to score more goals."

"We weren't bad at making up the right plays, we just didn't kick well at the right time."

Manuel Basterrechea, Reinhart Flessner and Wes Kachinweg scored for the Hawkeyes.

Next weekend the club will face undefeated Palmer College, the only team to defeat the Hawkeye Club this year.

No. 3 Jackson 11 slips past Dauminoes, 6-0, in IM action

By Melissa Rapoport Staff Writer

One of the traditional women's division intramural football powers, Dauminoes was upset Sunday night by Jackson 11, 6-0, in the IM game of the week.

Third-ranked Jackson 11 won the coin toss but failed to move the ball downfield. A strong Dauminoes defense put pressure on the quarterback, forcing her to throw a shaky pass which was deflected by a Dauminoes player. The Jackson 11 quarterback proceeded to throw two consecutive incomplete passes, putting them in a 'mud punt' position.

Second-ranked Dauminoes received the punt, but on the overcast, cool night the Dauminoes offense started off on the wrong foot. Their first play in the series resulted in an interception by the Jackson 11 defense.

Later in the first half, Dauminoes put a little zip in their attack and connected a 28 yard pass. Relentlessly, Jackson 11, on the next play in the series, sacked the quarterback for a six yard loss.

Although the score was 0-0 at the end of the first half, it was clearly dominated by Jackson 11.

JACKSON 11 COULDN'T have played a better second half, whereas Dauminoes kept falling further and further apart. "Their rush sacked us more in the second half," Dauminoes team manager Tim Hallingsworth said. "In the first half they had three rushers but, in the second half they had four rushers. Our quarterback didn't have time to find a receiver."

Intramurals

The Jackson 11 defense succeeded in picking off four passes in the second half, seven interceptions total. Jackson 11's second nab in the second half resulted in a touchdown, but their extra point attempt failed.

"Our defense won the game for us," Jackson 11 team captain, Melinda Hippen said. "And our first score helped us because Dauminoes can come back very fast."

"You have to give Jackson 11 credit," Hallingsworth said. "They intercepted four key passes. And also, their rushers are probably the best rushers I've seen."

"You have to give Jackson 11 credit," Hallingsworth said. "They came out to win and they did."

On the line

We know all you faithful On the Line readers are waiting for more juicy details from "All my Staffers" but Pres. Reagan's press conference forced a postponement of our story.

Just circle the winner in all 10 games. If you foresee a tie circle 'em both. Be sure to put a score down for the big tiebreaker game between growlin' Bo Schembechler's Michigan Wolverines and Crying, er, Fighting Illini from Illinois.

Cardinals blow late chances; tie Giants

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Neil O'Donoghue of St. Louis, whose 22-yard field goal with 54 seconds remaining in regulation forced an extra period, missed attempts of 45, 20 and 43 yards in overtime Monday night, enabling the New York Giants to salvage a 20-20 tie against the Cardinals.

A rare 34-yard punt by Giants' All-Pro Dave Jennings gave the Cardinals possession at the New York 34, but O'Donoghue was short and wide left on a 45-yard attempt at 6:10 of the extra period.

A 32-yard pass from Neil Lomax to Roy Green later gave the Cardinals a first down at the New York two-yard line and after an incompletion, St. Louis coach Jim Hanifan elected to go for the field goal on second down. O'Donoghue, however, was wide right on a 20-yard attempt.

ROOKIE CORNERBACK Lionel Washington gave O'Donoghue a third chance when he picked off a Jeff Rutledge pass and returned the ball 25 yards to the New York 25 in the final minute of overtime. Again on second down, Hanifan sent in O'Donoghue, whose 43-yard attempt was wide right with 22 seconds left, leaving both clubs tied for the NFC East basement at 2-5-1.

The Giants' deepest penetration in overtime was to the St. Louis 44, but New York took a five-yard delay of game penalty and punted.

O'Donoghue's 22-yarder with 54 seconds remaining in regulation was set up when Giants' rookie safety Terry Kinard, making just his second professional start, was called for pass interference against Pat Tilley, giving the Cardinals a first down at the New York four.

LOMAX THEN PASSED to a wide-open Roy Green in the end zone, but the Cardinals' top receiver dropped the ball. On second down, Lomax flipped a short pass to Willard Harrell, open in the right flat, but the ball also fell through the running back's hands. A third-down incompletion brought on O'Donoghue, who tied the score 20-20.

Giants' rookie Ali Haji-Sheikh, who earlier in the game had set a club record with his 13th straight field goal, attempted a 66-yard field goal in the closing seconds of regulation, but his try at an NFL record fell well short.

Haji-Sheikh gave the Giants a 20-17 advantage at 5:40 of the fourth period when he capped a penalty-aided 63-yard drive with a 29-yard field goal. The Cardinals had stopped New York at its own 22, but Dave Ahrens was flagged with a 15-yard unnecessary roughness penalty on a punt to give the Giants an automatic first down.

FOUR PLAYS LATER, St. Louis

A pair of Alabama graduates who played under Paul Bryant, St. Louis Cardinal linebacker E. J. Junior (54) and New York Giant quarterback Jeff Rutledge (12), meet during second quarter action in Monday night's NFL game at St. Louis. Junior sacked his former Crimson Tide teammate for an eight-yard loss on the play.

cornerback Wayne Smith was called for a 19-yard pass interference penalty to give the Giants another first down. A 23-yard pass from Jeff Rutledge, playing in his first regular-season game since 1981, to rookie Malcolm Scott moved the ball to the St. Louis five-yard line before the Cardinal defense stiffened and Haji-Sheikh came on for his 14th consecutive field goal.

Rutledge, who started only the second game of his five-year career, missed seven consecutive pass attempts in the first half before warming up. He finished the game 21 of 46 for 208 yards while Rob Carpenter gained 79 yards on 24 carries for New York.

Lomax hit 16 of 33 passes for 203 yards while Stump Mitchell rushed 24 times for 108 yards.

ST. LOUIS SAFETY Benny Perrin capitalized on a botched end-around play, returning a fumble 32 yards for a touchdown to tie the score 17-17 in the final minute of the third quarter. Rutledge handed the ball off to Floyd Eddings, but the wide receiver was hit almost instantaneously by Curtis Greer to cause the fumble, which Perrin scooped up and carried untouched into the end zone for his first NFL touchdown.

Haji-Sheikh had given New York a 17-10 advantage with a 40-yard field goal 10 minutes into the third period. The Cardinals giftwrapped the score when punter Carl Birdsong fielded a bad snap and was able to get off only a 10-yard kick, giving the Giants possession at the St. Louis 24.

New York's defense enabled the Giants to take the lead after an interception by linebacker Brad Van Pelt. A Lomax pass deflected off the hands of Tilley to Van Pelt, who returned the theft six yards to the Cardinals' 30.

Rutledge found Butch Woolfolk on a crossing pattern for a 29-yard gain to the one-yard line and Carpenter then dove across to give the Giants a 14-10 lead.

MITCHELL SCORED ON a seven-yard run as St. Louis took a 10-7 lead on its opening possession of the second quarter. The Cardinals covered 59 yards in just five plays, highlighted by Lomax passes of 34 yards to Green and 13 yards to Tilley.

Strong safety Bill Currier stepped in front of Tilley on the right sidelines and intercepted a Lomax pass, returning it 30 yards for a 7-3 Giants' lead with 4:13 remaining in the first quarter.

O'Donoghue gave the Cardinals a 3-0 lead six minutes into the game with a 34-yard field goal, capping a 62-yard march highlighted by a 23-yard third-down scramble by Lomax.

Cornhuskers stay in first, Iowa No. 17

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nebraska, Texas and North Carolina — the only college football teams left with perfect records — head the ratings Monday for the third straight week in latest balloting by the UPI Board of Coaches.

The Iowa Hawkeyes, after last Saturday's 16-13 Big Ten loss at Michigan dropped to 17th from 12th in this week's poll. The Wolverines climbed from 10th to eighth and Michigan's opponent this week, Illinois, jumped two places to ninth. The only other Big Ten team in this week's Top 20 is Ohio State, one notch ahead of the Hawkeyes at 16th.

Nebraska maintained its season-long No. 1 ranking with 38 first-place votes and 628 overall points and Texas collected the other four first-place votes and 600 points to remain second.

Both teams received the same amount of first-place votes as last week after Nebraska crushed Colorado 69-19 Saturday, while Texas nipped previously unbeaten Southern Methodist 15-12.

No. 3 North Carolina, idle last Saturday, is followed by No. 4 Florida, No. 5 Auburn, No. 6 Michigan, No. 7 Miami of Florida, No. 8 Michigan, No. 9 Illinois and No. 10 Maryland.

ASIDE FROM NEBRASKA and Texas, the rest of the top 10 teams meet highly ranked opponents within the next two weeks. Beginning Saturday, a series of games that will have a major effect on bowl bids also promises to shake up the ratings.

North Carolina visits Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference showdown Saturday; Florida, Auburn and Georgia engage in a Southeastern Conference round-robin the next three weeks; and Michigan visits Illinois in a Big Ten battle. Also, independent Miami hosts No. 13 West Virginia in a game that will be keenly watched by bowl scouts.

Rounding out the Top 20 are No. 11 Washington, No. 12 Southern Methodist, No. 14 Oklahoma, No. 15 Brigham Young, No. 16 Ohio State, No. 17 Iowa, No. 18 Boston College, No. 19 Alabama and No. 20 Pittsburgh.

FLORIDA AND AUBURN, schools which have alternately passed each other the last two weeks, meet at Auburn Saturday. Georgia hosts both schools in the two following weeks, after playing Temple in a non-conference game Saturday.

Florida jumped back in front of the Tigers with a 24-17 win over East Carolina last week while Auburn smashed Mississippi State 28-13. Georgia toppled Kentucky 47-21.

The teams currently on probation are Clemson, Southern California, Arizona, Wichita State and Southern Mississippi.

Miami trimmed Cincinnati 17-7. Michigan held off Iowa 16-13 and Illinois topped Purdue 35-21 to move up two places apiece. Maryland vaulted three notches after a 38-3 thrashing of Duke.

Washington (32-3 over Oregon) also improved four spots, Oklahoma (49-11 over Iowa State) moved up three, Ohio State (21-11 over Michigan State) gained two spots and BYU (47-12 over San Diego State) one.

BOSTON COLLEGE GAINED two spots while idle and Alabama, also idle, moved up one.

On the down side, West Virginia tumbled nine spots after suffering a 41-23 upset loss to unranked Penn State; SMU slipped four places, Pittsburgh dropped one despite a 21-14 win over Navy, and Arizona State dropped out of the ratings after the previously 14th-ranked Wildcats were beaten by Washington State.

Losses suffered by West Virginia and SMU left only the top three teams unbeaten and untied, while Florida, 6-0-1, and Georgia, 6-0-1, are still undefeated but tied.

This week, Nebraska visits Kansas State, Texas hosts Texas Tech, Washington visits UCLA, SMU visits Texas A&M, Oklahoma hosts Kansas, BYU hosts Utah State, Ohio State hosts Wisconsin and Iowa hosts Indiana.

Doak shatters another course standard

By Greg Anderson
Staff Writer

Nan Doak kept on course for her record-breaking year at the Central College Women's Cross Country Invitational, in Pella, Iowa, this weekend.

The Iowa senior shattered her third course standard of the season by covering the Central layout in a time of 16 minutes, 11 seconds on Saturday. The previous best was 18:05.

As usual, Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard was pleased with Doak's display. "Nan ran very hard. It was a good effort."

Doak, though, was not the only

Hawkeye runner to shine at Pella. Team captain Jodi Hershberger returned to action after sitting out the Michigan State Invitational. She ran well enough to finish second, with a time of 17:21.

"I WAS ENCOURAGED for Hershberger," Hassard said. "She had been hampered by a slight tendinitis injury."

Iowa did not compete in the team competition on Saturday, because the rest of the field consisted of NCAA Division III schools.

Hassard, however, believes his Hawkeyes accomplished what they wanted to last weekend. "I didn't think it was as strong as some of the other meets we've been in. But it served its purpose in several respects."

"First, our team had a hard effort. And second it gave Jodi the chance to get back into competition and do well at it."

Three of the top Hawkeye runners did not compete at Central for a variety of reasons.

Jenny Spangler, who set a world record for 19-year-olds in the marathon last summer, sat out the meet to do a long "marathon training run" on Saturday.

Hassard gave junior Anne

Dobrowski the weekend off so she could concentrate on studies and he also excused Maribeth Sea who "wasn't feeling well" due to fatigue from hill training last week.

Of the runners who did compete, freshman Janet Wodek and sophomore Lynne Davis turned in fine performances. Both Hawkeyes raced to their season best times. Wodek crossed the finish line in fifth place at 17:45 and Davis placed seventh in 18:05.

"Wodek and Davis ran good races. They ran well," Hassard said. "Janet and Lynne both made a big improvement."

Every Hawkeye finished among the top 20 and rounding out the Iowa list of competitors were, Kristin Winjum (18:38), Sherri Suppelsa (18:51) and Lynn Gnage (19:01).

Hassard's squad will now take this weekend off as they prepare to defend their Big Ten title at the conference championships on Nov. 5, in Champaign, Ill.

"The Big Ten meet marks the beginning of our major meet season. It's part two of the cross country season," Hassard said.

"We will devote our energy now to Big Ten because it should help us in our national meet drive."
