UI forms private software company

By Kirk Brown

In an unprecedented move, the UIhas formed a private, profit-making corporation that will manufacture and market "state-of-the-art" computer software.

However, the state Board of Regents still must grant its approval for the scheme, since it is the first time the UI has attempted to set up a private corporation for profit.

Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for finance, said Monday evening he is ptimistic the board will approve the

Although the formation of the corporation has yet to be approved by the regents, initial work on the manufacturing and marketing of the software has already started at the UI's Oakdale

Student hangs self in dorm room

By Patricia A. Reuter

A UI student was found hanged in his room in Burge Residence Hall Sunday, according to UI Campus Security.

Paul Bradley Condon, 18, of Homewood, Ill., was found hanging from a pipe in 4235 Burge by two Resident Assistants shortly after 8 p.m. UI Security officer, Sgt. Michael Barcus, and Johnson County Medical Examiner, Dr. T.T. Bozek, arrived at the scene at about 8:30 p.m. Bozek ordered the body removed to the George L. Gay Funeral Home, 2720 Muscatine Ave.

Condon's room was in "perfect order" when the body was found, according to Sgt. Don Hogan of campus security, who was also at the scene. He said there was no evidence of foul play, and that no suicide note was found.

Hogan said Monday that Bozek had ruled Condon's death a suicide by hanging. Bob Baker, one of the R.A.s who discovered Condon's body, said Friday night was the last time anyone saw Condon alive. "He bought a pizza Friday night, and he wanted someone to share it with," Baker said. "He came to my room. He was in great spirits ... really happy," Baker ad-mate, Brent Millikin, was away for the weekend, Baker said. So Baker called the R.A. on duty to unlock Condon's room. According to Baker, when he and the other R.A. entered the room, they found everything in order. "We looked in the closets and all around," Baker said. "We saw that he had a blanket draped over the bunks. I looked behind the blanket ... and there he was."

BAKER SAID THAT after the body had been removed, he called a floor meeting to explain to everyone what had happened. 'The guys took it hard," he said.

Baker and Millikin said they had no indication that Condon was depressed, or was contemplating suicide.

"He was outgoing," Millikin said. "He knew what he wanted to do in life. He was excited about the fraternity ... it made him

Baker said a counselor from UI Counseling Service would be available to talk to students about the incident Monday night at Burge Residence Hall.

City, county and state offices are increasing efficiency, saving time and, in some cases, saving money as a result of UI internship programs that place students in various law departments in the Iowa City area.

Internships are offered in both the city and county attorneys' offices and the Legal Services Corporation of Iowa's local office.

The Johnson County Attorney's office employs five UI law students to work for a year under the County Attorney Prosecutor's Internship program. According to Carroll Lucht, director of Clinic Law Programs at the UI College of Law, students who have completed at least 45 hours of coursework and are in good academic standing in the college are eligible for the program. Students work full-time during the summer and 10 to 20 hours per week during the school year, Lucht said.

According to Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White, the interns are responsible for doing research on civil and criminal cases, assisting in the writing of memos and briefs and prosecuting misdemeanor cases in court.

White said under Iowa Supreme Court Rule 120, students who qualify for the county attorney internship program are allowed to prosecute cases in court under the supervision of a licensed attorney. White said court experience is one of the most valuable aspects of the

"THERE ARE such large numbers of White said, "that it can bring an attorney to the point of getting stale. Turning over misdemeanor cases to interns helps alleviate that and gives them the experience in court."

Interns in the county attorney's office do not receive academic credit for their work; instead, they are paid five dollars

'There is no question," White said, "they (the interns) are saving the county money." White said he would probably have to add another full-time attorney to his staff if no interns worked in his office. The starting salary for an assistant county attorney is about $16,000 a year.

However, White was quick to add that saving money was secondary to relieving the burden on the other attorneys and providing a learning experience to

The Iowa City Attorney's Office employs one intern part-time to do work similar to that required by the county attorney's office. However, the city attorney's intern earns academic credit rather than a paycheck under the UI Clinic Law Program.

CITY ATTORNEY Robert Jansen agreed with White that the interns save "Their main job is to research legal points," Jansen said. Without them, "I would have to add an additional assistant attorney to do that," he said.

According to the Iowa City Office of Human Services, a beginning assistant city attorney would be paid between $21,000 and $30,000 per year, depending upon qualifications and experience.

Steve St. Clair, managing attorney for the Legal Services Corporation of Iowa office in Iowa City, has two unpaid, parttime interns under the Law Clinic

St. Clair said although the cases Legal Services handles are different than those of the city and county attorneys' offices, the interns do work similar to that done in the city and county

Students are responsible for writing briefs, doing research on cases, interviewing clients and representing clients before administrative committees and

ST. CLAIR was hesitant to put any dollar value on the interns' work. However, he did say the interns "extend the capabilities" of the office, and allow Legal Services to provide more services to its clients.

White, Jansen and St. Clair all gave high marks to the UI College of Law for the internship programs and to the students who participate in them. "It's an excellent program," Jansen said. "We get very high quality St. Clair said, "We are very happy with our interns, and quite satisfied with

Nuke weapons dangers told

Saying "this is a crucial point in time ... to nibble away at the arms race," James McCue, professor in the UI School of Religion, gave the convocation Monday to begin Nuclear Weapons Awareness Week.

His comments received a smattering of applause from the small crowd that gathered in the Union Landmark Lobby. Many other students paused for a quick look and listen.

McCue said, "I frankly don't ever foresee a time when there will be no nuclear weapons." But he did say reduction in nuclear arsenals would lessen the possibility of global annihilation. "They (the United States and Soviet Union) may go a long way toward destroying each other, but at least they won't destroy the future of life on this planet."

McCue said, "We are locked as tight into the arms race as we are ... because of the widespread conviction that the nuclear arms race is like one of these very delicate balances, and if you get one straw too many on one side - the whole thing goes."

But he added, "Both sides are still intimidated" regardless of the other side's vast number of Another pro-nuclear argument McCue said "does not hold water" is that if the Soviets were to get far enough ahead of the United States in the number of weapons they have, "they will wreak all kinds of political chaos."

People who believe this insist that "nuclear superiority has real and important payoffs - for us if we have it, against us if they have it," he said.

"But it has no relation to reality at all," McCue

SUCCESS WITHOUT STRESS

The Transcendental Meditation technique of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi is a simple, natural procedure to develop full potential of the individual. Over 700 scientific studies done at more than 200 universities and research institutes have verified both the physiological changes during the practice and the benefits meditators report in daily activity.

To date, there are nearly 3 million people who practice this effortless mental technique. Their experince as well as objective research show that TM meditators enjoy improved memory, faster reaction time, higher grade point average, greater creativity, clearer perception, reduced anxiety, better health and more harmonious social relationships. Scientists consider this to be related to the TM's technique's effectiveness in systematically reducing stress in the body and increasing coherence in brain functioning.

Regents to okay course changes

The state Board of Regents is expected to approve a variety of changes in the UI academic curriculum this week to allow 'development in existing programs that are important to the educational objectives of the university."

The regents, who will be meeting in Des doines Thursday, are being urged by UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington to approve 640 changes in course listings at the UI.

In a report to the board, Remington said e requested changes involve "course adtions, course deletions, and changes in urse numbering, titles and credits." The report calls for 236 courses to be ad-

HOWARD LASTER, dean of the Liberal Arts College, listed several reasons for the large number of changes in the college's curriculum. "Many of these changes reflect a response to changing interests and needs of students.

"Of course, there also is a cyclical phenomenon operating," Laster added. 'From time to time major reviews take place in departments' offerings, and as a

Overall, the Liberal Arts College is requesting the addition of 136 new courses and asking for the discontinuation of 122. Some of the new course titles expected to be added include: Having Fun At The Opera, Divorce Mediation Clinic and Introduction to Gay Studies.

A sampling of courses expected to be dropped include: Feminist Theory, Art of Theatre and Western Art Before 1400.

"The record shows that the system operates well, for the College of Liberal Arts has a fairly good record over the years of discouraging the 'splintering' of courses and duplication of work offered in other departments of the university,'

THE BOARD is also expected to approve a structural reorganization of the UI College of Engineering.

The UI requested the administrative reorganization be approved at last month's meeting, but the board referred the proposal to its Interinstitutional Commiton Education Coordination for review

The reorganization will structure the college into six academic departments instead of its present four divisions.

UI officials maintain the reorganization 'will foster new relationships among faculty members.'

After studying the proposal the committee is recommending the regents approve the change. A committee report submitted to the board said, "We support the proposed administrative restructuring." However, the committee did advise the board that a study be initiated to compare the engineering programs at the UI and Iowa State University to see what justification exists for similar programs to be convention in Detroit, about 500 sanguine young Republicans rallied in support of Ronald Reagan outside his hotel. From the decibel level of their roars, one could easily sense an unquestioning enthusiasm among the Reagan Youth.

Yet the din could not drown out at least one concern voiced by many of the young Reaganites: Would their man ship them off to war, and, if so, would the cause be justifiable?

Recollection that fear of dubious bat- ticism" and "the spectre of imtle often knows no partisan lines prompted us to survey college newspaper editors for the campus reaction to the escalation of U.S. military involvement overseas. While sentiments were mixed, we found them hardly enthusiastic.

At Ohio State University in Columbus, Gretel Wikle of The Lantern (daily circulation 35,000) said that students generally and the newspaper's nine editors in particular had approved of the U.S.-sponsored invasion of Grenada, but not simply for the purpose of "saving" American lives. "We're convinced," Wilke said on behalf of The Lantern's editorial board, that Grenada posed a military threat to the United States. Yet last week the same editors voted to call for the immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon.

Reaction at the University of Massachusetts took a more negative tack. "This campus as a whole would tend to be very against the invasion," said Joel Myerson of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian (circulation 17,000), which devoted three

Agnes' Allcock, Hong Kong's assistant secretary of transportation, said prior to the law, only 7 percent of the drivers and front-seat passengers had been putting on seat belts. Apparently, the big stick works. Nothing like that seems likely to happen here. The Department of Transportation has been trying since 1969 to come up with a standard to force carmakers to install a system either automatic seat belts or airbags to protect drivers and passengers from serious injury in crashes up to 30 miles an hour. But every route it has taken resulted in a dead end.

No one in Detroit likes airbags, which automatically inflate upon collision to protect a driver from slamming into the steering wheel or windshield. And automatic belts are resisted by many motorists. Some car owners, irritated at the warning signals emit-

Fact, opinion confused

To the editor:

Linda Schuppener's editorial "Bull vs. history" (DI, Oct. 18) seems to be a classic case of a little knowledge being worse than none at all. If readers of the DI were to confuse Ms. Schuppener's opinions with fact they would be neither well-informed nor qualified to make a responsible decision at the

If the Federal Reserve System can be responsible for the creation of a recession, then conversely it can be responsible for creating runaway inflation. In early 1970 Richard Nixon replaced William Martin with Arthur Burns as the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Burns began to pump up the economy by creating new money, or "loosening monetary restraint." Thus uncontrolled inflation was well established prior to the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

In 1977 Jimmy Carter replaced Burns with G. William Miller in order to create election year prosperity. What Carter was rewarded with was an inflation rate of 17 percent, interest rates of 21 percent and gold at a record nigh price of $800 per ounce.

People who had borrowed money did well through it all. Banks and savings and loans that had loaned money found themselves in dire straits. The banks remember this and are not eager for this to happen again. While inflation is controlled at present, it would be foolish to believe it will not return.

Therefore, Ms. Schuppener's conclusions are in error. Inflation is the effect of poor monetary policy, and the present high real interest rates are a legacy of the past.

Review 'de-mythified' To the editor:

Craig Wyrick's review of Under Fire (DI, Oct. 26) was a victim of its own illdisguised subjectivity trying very hard to be objective. If he wants to be a Somoza supporter, I'd rather he spit it

Flak in the U.S.S.R.

Reports that Yuri Andropov, Soviet President and Communist Party chief, is ill or dying and that a succession struggle has started have been increasing. The military hierarchy apparently has sent a letter, strongly endorsing Andropov, to the Central Committee of the Communist Party.

Some analysts believe this intervention means some of Andropov's rivals were trying to ease him out, and they note such action by the military is consistent with the increasing role of the military as U.S.-Soviet relations have worsened.

The failure of U.S. policy-makers in this administration to understand the paranoia with which the Soviets perceive the U.S. always damages their ability to develop ways of dealing with the U.S.S.R. They have been so smugly confident about U.S. peaceful intentions they have not believed the Soviets could really see us as a threat. They do not understand how traumatizing two pivotal events were — the Allied invasion that tried to intervene on the side of the Czar and the German invasion in World War II, in which 20 million Russians were killed.

With that history, the changes now occuring in the Soviet Union could be serious. The Russians tend to be conservative, paranoid and suffer from a sense of inferiority. If Andropov is so ill that his death or replacement is coming, the West should worry about the fact his successor is being chosen at a time when the Soviet military is more powerful than anytime since World War II, and when the consensus there is that detente has failed and the U.S. is attempting to become militarily superior.

In that context, such factors could lead to decisions about who is to lead the Soviet Union and the direction he is to lead them that could make peaceful co-existence and arms control even more difficult than they are now. The Reagan administration should make every effort to reduce tensions and to strengthen efforts at arms control.

County, city to adopt zoning policy

lowa City

By John Tieszen

Johnson County and Iowa City are about to enter into an agreement that will "provide for an orderly growth and development" of the two-mile fringe area that divides the county and the city, according to the draft of the agreement.

The Fringe Area Policy Agreement, which affects nine areas of land surrounding Iowa City and under the jurisdiction of the city of Iowa City, should be finalized by Jan. 1, according to County Supervisor Betty Ockenfels.

Jud TePaske, senior planner with the Johnson County Council of Government's Rural Planning Division, said, "The point of the agreement is a growth-management strategy, where to extend growth and services" in the two-mile region.

The agreement also provides "for new review power. It indicates where the city has annexation responsibility and that is passed through to the county for review and comment," TePaske said.

TePaske, who was one of the primary authors of the policy, said the agreement will be beneficial to both the county and the

The county will benefit from the agreement because it will indicate where the city is planning to develop, TePaske said. "The city has the ultimate control in subdivisions, but the plan identifies where the city wants to go," he said.

services are already there.'

Without the agreement, "the county can rezone something the city doesn't like and create (something) incompatible to the city's needs. The city can do something similar," like extending city services into agricultural land, TePaske said.

Of the nine areas affected by the agreement, Area 7, which is south of the Iowa City Airport, was the most highly debated by the fringe committee, according to Karin Franklin, assistant planner for Iowa City. The fringe committee consisted of representatives from the Iowa City Council and the Johnson County Board of Super-

Area 7 had been zoned for residential use during the 1960s, Franklin said.

The city wanted the area rezoned for agricultural use "because it is in the interests of the city to contain growth" in that area so services do not have to be extended there, she said. But, "the county finds it difficult to downzone it to agricultural use," Franklin said.

IOWA CITY Councilor Clemens Erdahl, a member of the fringe committee, said he hopes the county "will rezone it to agricultural" use. Councilor John McDonald, another member of the committee, said although "rezoning creates a lot of problems, this is one of the things we wanted them to consider.'

Supervisor Harold Donnelly, another committee member, said, however, "the area will remain residential."

The issue has not yet been resolved. However, it will be discussed in another fringe committee meeting later this Franklin called the agreement "a good first step for the county and the city working together in a mutual concern.' "There is going to have to be more cooperation with the county," McDonald said. "This is a good first step in that direc-

Donnelly said the agreement's best asset is its flexibility. "As things change, it will change." According to the terms of the agreement, it will be reviewed by county and city representatives every three years.

Auditor: Federal watchdogs need to be protected

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congress should protect federal workers who help whistleblowers, a Pentagon auditor who got in trouble for revealing a defense contractor's lavish entertainment of high military officials said Monday.

Whistleblower George Spanton and Iowa Sen. Charles Grassley made a joint appearance on ABC-TV's Good Morning America, where Grassley criticized Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and the Pentagon for failing to protect people who report abuses in defense spending.

Spanton is the resident auditor for the Defense Contract Audit Agency at the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group engine plant in West Palm Beach, Fla. Spanton said he got in trouble in February 1982 when he filed "a report of fraud, waste and abuse" alleging that "Pratt & Whitney had violated Pentagon standards of conduct by lavishly entertaining high-ranking Air Force and Navy officials.'

for

Spanton also filed a report in March 1982 claiming pay increases to the contractor's employees were excessive and would cost the government $250 million in higher costs between 1982 and 1985.

Spanton said he was threatened with an unwanted transfer, a Justice Department investigation and was pressured to retire. He said he kept his job because the United States Merit Systems Protection Grassley said Weinberger told him at a White House meeting that whistleblowers like Spanton would be encouraged to report spending abuses.

"All I can say is that Cap Weinberger has not "The end result is whoever isn't carrying out their orders ought to be fired so that people like George Spanton are encouraged to do their job."

"I'm concerned that there aren't other ways to do this without getting locked into this plan," Erdahl said.
"The first logical step should be to do all the (current plant) renovation possible listed in the (Veenstra, Kimm & Dague) plan before we start building the new plant," Erdahl said. Phase I of the project has an estimated cost of Dague said that in Phase I, a southeast interceptor sewer would be built and some sewer lines would be renovated to "relieve the load on the old plant quite a bit at that point.

"At that point, the new council (in 1984) could stop the project with no throw away (waste) at any point in time," Dague said. "This study is not the 'tail wagging the dog.' "

Continuing his criticism of the plan,
Erdahl said, "We should wait until we do that (plant renovation) first ... before we go and commit ourselves on something we may not need."

Dickson said that if the city invests $500,000 into the old plant "it would last another 20 years.'

If the council decides to follow the Proposed Wastewater Collection and Treatment Program schedule, councilors would authorize the sale of bonds to permit interim financing of the project by Dec. 6 and also hold a public hearing on plans for the new plant.

By Dec. 13, the council would secure land and easements for the new plant, according to the schedule.

Conroy, author of daring book 'Stop-Time,' to read from works

By George M. Knuepfel Special to The Daily Iowan

rn 3-5 Daily

RANK CONROY, the director of the literature program for the National Endowment for the Arts, will read from his recent work tonight at 8 in Old Brick.

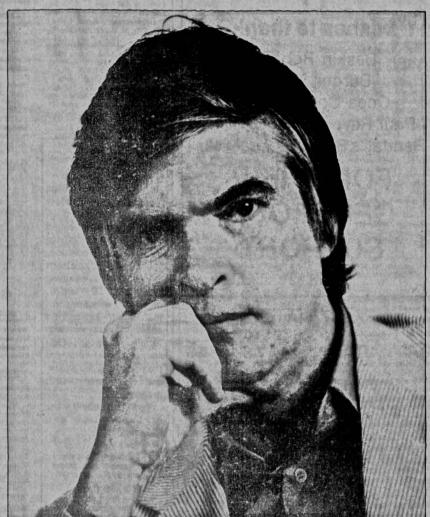

The author of Stop-Time (1967), Conroy is currently working on "a long short story" and expects a collection of his most recent short fiction to be published some time next year.

It's often an ambiguous compliment when a book is said to have "captured the public's imagination." Yet Stop-Time did just that: Nominated for a National Book Award in 1967, it was immediately recognized as something different: a book that resisted categorization. In structure, the book could be regarded as a series of vignettes, related short stories (several chapters were, in fact, published in anthologies and magazines as short stories), even as a "closet novel," as Charles Bronze noted in a review in Commonweal. Therefore, to a writer and to students of writing, Stop-Time was a book of daring risks undertaken by a master writer. This is still the audience for Stop-Time, and its endurance for the past 15 years is a tribute to the fact that among people who read, Stop-Time is regarded as a superbly written book.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL account of Conroy's childhood, the book is replete with his experiences in a boys' "experimental boarding school," to life on the road with his sister Alison, his mother and the latter's boyfriend Jean. Conroy's father, a man who "spent most of his adult life as a patient in various expensive rest homes for dipsomaniacs and victims of nervous collapse," died when Conroy was 12.

The book relies heavily on fictive techniques to gain the effects that finally make one close the book and feel as if one had just stepped away from the scene of an accident or had awakened from a bad dream. Tense changes within a page gives the action of the past the immediacy of the present. For example, at a carnival, after Conroy wins a ring toss game, he waits for the prize. Instead, the man behind the booth counter "gently but firmly takes my wrist, bends, and spreads his knees a fraction of an inch, and slowly rubs his palm un-

THERE ARE ALSO "total asides" where the 32-year-old Conroy will inter-ject speculation on an event in the past. For example, describing a stint when he was a fruit peddler with Jean, Conroy writes: "My wife, whom I was not to meet for many years, lived in a town house one block away and must have passed us many times. It's not entirely impossible that my father-in-law's mysterious reluctance to receive me into the bosom of his family was related to a buried image of myself with a thumb on the scales, under his bananas." Very often, the effect stems from what's suggested rather than what is stated. When Conroy and his boyhood friend Tobey see a dead mule, Conroy

Death dramatized, something of unbelievable importance being revealed right in front of us. But something else too.

At another point, he describes playing in the Florida backwoods with Tobey: We did a lot of shouting-phrases from childhood games, dirty words, satisfying noises of all kinds. We were afraid, but only a little afraid, of the silence all around us. The "silence" comes as a surprise.

It's like the "something else" of the previous passage. In that passage, the reader supplies her or his own imagination to the scene - thereby making the experience personal as well.

Autobiographies concerned with growing up often fall into a sickly-sweet genre, but Stop-Time is unsentimental and precise. One feels that it is a book written at the perfect moment. The author had gained the skill as a writer but yet remained close enough to the memory, so that the product is a life, transformed by art into a story that is true and universal.

Faculty member will hold recital

UI School of Music faculty member Thomas Ayres, clarinetist, and other members of the School will perform in a recital of music for the clarinet on Friday, Nov. 18, at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall.

Helping Ayres will be faculty members Norma Cross, violin; Maurita Murphy Mead, clarinet; Leopold La Fosse, violin; William Preucil, viola; Thomas Wendt, cello; Sharon Bennett, soprano; and graduate students William Wellwood and Jean

The program, covering clarinet music of several styles and disciplines, consists of works by composers John Ranish, William Reed, Bernard Crusell, Barney Childs and Roger North. The admission is free and no tickets are required.

The UI Collegium Musicum, under the direction of Elizabeth Audrey, presents a production of Heinrich Schutz's "Story of the Birth of Jesus Christ" at 8 p.m. on Nov. 19 in Clapp Recital Hall. Admission is

Hawkeyes, prep star shine at West Bank Invitational

By Greg Anderson

Except for the fine efforts of prep star Craig Oppell, the Iowa men's swimming team dominated the senior competition at last weekend's West Bank Invitational in Des Moines.

Oppell, competing at his home Valley High School pool in West Des Moines, swam away with four individual titles including the 100-yard butterfly and the 100, 200 and 500 freestyle events.

Big men dominate basketball contest

By Jill Hokinson and Melissa Rapoport

CEDAR RAPIDS - Greg Stokes led the scoring as the black squad went on to a 65-46 win over the gold team in the final Hawkeye basketball intrasquad game Monday night at the Five Seasons Center.

Stokes poured 19 points, nine for the black team during the first half and 10 in the second half for the gold team.

The black team was made up of Coach George Raveling's top players against a gold unit made up of the other members of the team. During the game, team members switched sides so the Hawkeye coaching staff could get a look at various combinations.

Hawkeye Michael Payne finished with 15 points for the winners and 7foot-1 sophomore Brad Lohaus, who switched to the black squad during the second half, added 14 points.

"BRAD HAS BEEN building into this," first-year Iowa Coach George Raveling said. "Each week he gets better and better and better ... (His playing) wasn't really a surprise because Lohaus has been growing so much. His performance was really pleasing to me. He played hard at both ends of the court.

A full house of 7,500 watched as Iowa's black and gold squads got off to a slow start at the beginning of the intrasquad game.

The game was the last of three intrasquad games around the state. Neither team could capitalize on their offensive plays during the first 10 minutes of play with the black squad taking a 12-7 lead.

A LAY-UP BY Steve Carfino and a Payne basket sparked the black squad to a 16-7 lead and in the remaining minutes of the first half, the black team pulled away to a 39-17 halftime

In the second half, the gold team scored the first four points to cut the black team's lead to 37-21.

Freshman Dave Snedeker finished with 13 points for the gold team. Raveling was not pleased with the offensive play of either of the squads. The Hawkeye coach said that 75 percent of the time both sides used one offense, which wasn't what he wanted to

However, Raveling was pleased with the Hawkeyes' defense. "This was the best defensive scrimmage we've played all year," he said.

Italian National Team, the Hawkeyes will return to the basics.

"I think we'll just continue to work on the fundemental aspects ... they're correctable with time and practice."

Student ticket pick-up times set

Iowa assistant Athletic Director Larry Bruner announced Monday that student basketball tickets will be available beginning today at 9 a.m. at several ticket booths in the Carver-

Hawkeye Arena. The ticket distribution will be held until 3 p.m. today and between 9 a.m. For the upcoming game against the and 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 9 a.m. until noon on Friday. Any students who do not pick up their tickets by noon on Friday, will not be able to attend Friday night's exhibition game against the Italian National

"There will three different areas set up in the arena," Bruner said. The system will go according to the last two digits in a student's identification

DIGITS 00-33 CAN receive their tickets at the ticket windows in the southwest entrance. Those with 34-66 can find their tickets at the southeast entrance located behind the stone art in front of the arena. Finally, students whose ID's end with 67-99 can go to the east door, adjacent to the Dental Building to receive tickets.

Students with a priority of two or above will be receiving full season tickets according to Bruner. Those with one priority will received split tickets for the Hawkeyes' 13-game regular season schedule

Those ordering tickets for the first year had their names put into a lottery. 'Some will get tickets while others won't," Bruner said.

Refunds for all not receiving tickets and those on the split season plan will be available at each location.

Gator Bowl to pair lowa with Florida The only thing that hasn't been issued yet is an invitation but the ninthrated Iowa Hawkeyes appear to be headed for the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., to meet Florida on Dec. 30.

"They're No. 1 on our list," Ted Emery of the Gator Bowl committee

Florida, 7-2-1 and a member of the Southeastern Conference, has reportedly already voted to accept an invitation, if one is extended, according to the Florida Times-Union.

The Gators have one game remaining, against Florida State on Dec. 3. A Gator Bowl source said bids will be extended Nov. 19 at 5 p.m., Iowa time, and the bowl will send two scouts to the Iowa-Minnesota game Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

THE GATOR BOWL, which has a total payoff of $597,000, the most for any game played before Jan. 2, will be televised nationally on ABC (KCRG-9). The Gator Bowl (stadium) seats 81,000. 'We made up our minds early on a Big Ten team," Emery said. "We even watched them in the snow at East Lansing, which is difficult for us." Emery commented that the committee looked for teams evenly matched and a team that could play offense and The loser will apparently head west to Arizona to play in the Fiesta Bowl, according to The Tempe Daily. It appears to be a "lock" with the Fiesta Bowl situation, according to the Tempe Daily. The Tempe Daily said talk was pro-

Iowa, "up until this weekend," when Notre Dame lost. The committee now appears to be opting for the the more traditional team, either Ohio State or Michigan.

THERE IS APPARENTLY an

Fiesta Bowls along with the Big Ten. "We will be ready to make a move Saturday," Sugar Bowl Executive Director Mickey Holmes said. Holmes said bowl scouts will attend several places, "among them at Ohio State (Michigan), but sites could change before Saturday. Holmes said he had a conversation with Wayne Duke, the commissioner of the Big Ten, who he had worked with for seven years to get "insight" about the institutions involved.

Big Ten Conference, the Fiesta Bow and the Sugar Bowl that has apparently left the Mustangs, the team with the best record in the nation over the past three seasons, out of the Jan. 2 major bowl alignment.

Since the Orange Bowl has already decided on Miami (Fla.) (10-1) to mee Big Eight champion Nebraska (11-0) and the Rose Bowl is set with Illinois the Big Ten champion, meeting the Pacific 10 champion, probably Washington, the Mustangs seemed to be a logical choice for an at-large bid to either the Sugar or Fiesta Bowls. That is until television executives entered the picture. It seems officials of the Sugar Bowl would prefer either Michigan (8-2) or Ohio State (8-2) to face Auburn (9-1) the Southeastern Conference representative, rather than SMU because they are concerned about SMU's ability to attract a national television audience Meantime, the Fiesta Bowl, which is aired at the same time as the Cotton Bowl, does not want to have to share with the Cotton Bowl. So, Fiesta Ber officials will not take SMU, eve though the Mustangs have compiled 29-2-1 record over the last three seasons. Instead, Pittsburgh (8-2) will be named to face the loser of the Ohio State-Michigan game. That leaves the Mustangs most likely headed for the Sun Bowl at El Paso Texas, to meet Alabama.

West Virginia appears headed for the Hall of Fame Classic Dec. 22 at Legion Field in Birmingham, Ala. The Mount taineers (8-2) are expected to draw the winner of Saturday's Tennesse Kentucky game as their opponent.

Boston College (7-2) is expecting to get a bid to play Notre Dame in the 25th Liberty Bowl.

Missouri will likely meet Wester Athletic Conference champion Brigham Young in the Holiday Bowl.
