A fire damaged a warehouse used to store fertilizer at the Cedar-Johnson Farm Service Co. two miles east of lowa City Monday

The blaze, which caused structural amage to the building's south end. was reported to the West Branch Fire Department at approximately 2:40 p.m. by Farm Service Manager Dave Miller. None of the five bins of dry fertilizer were affected by the fire.

No cause for the blaze had been determined but Miller said it may have started in the building's wiring, which enters the end of the building where most of the damage occurred.

The West Branch Fire Department, which was the only fire department to respond to the fire, requested assistance from the Coralville Fire Department when they first saw the blaze while approaching the farm service company on a county road.

'We didn't know what was inside and it looked kinda bad from the road with the fire running all the way up the side and broke through the roof," Fireman Kenneth Jeffries said. The West Branch department canceled its request for assistance from Coralville after arriving on the scene.

Miller said the building contained "bulk, dry fertilizer, which won't burn because they don't have a flash point. Nitrogen will burn but there wasn't any nitrogen out there."

The West Branch department responded to the call in less than 20 minutes, Miller said, and the fire took less than 30 minutes to put out. One pumper and two tankers were used by 15 firefighters to quell the blaze.

Farm Service sells dry and liquid fertilizers to some 300 farmers in Cedar and Johnson counties.

Syria says U.S. airman died in attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Syria vowed Monday to hold a captured American airman until U.S. Marines leave Lebanon, and announced that another flier downed by Syrian gunners during a U.S. air strike had died of his wounds.

At Beirut Airport, U.S. Marines filled sandbags and reinforced their positions following the assault Sunday that killed eight Marines and wounded Marine Lt. Col. Ray Smith said some of the Marines who died Sunday had moved out of their protected positions without permission.

In West Germany, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said the Marines in Beirut are considering better protection, including changing their vulnerable positions. Similar plans were discussed after 239 Marines were killed by a car bomb Oct. 23.

On the mountain ridge above the Marines, the Lebanese army and Syrian-backed Druze Moslem rebels exchanged mortar and rocket barrages late Monday. The shelling of the Marine base from the Syriancontrolled mountains began Sunday hours after bombers based on U.S. aircraft carriers in the Mediterranean struck three Syrian target areas east DAMASCUS DENOUNCED the air strike in which two American aircraft were downed. One pilot safely parachuted into the sea but the twoman crew of the other downed plane fell into Syrian hands.

Syrian Defense Minister Mustapha died of his injuries after being found in the wreckage of his plane and Lt. Robert Goodman, Lange's bombardier-navigator, was a prisoner.

Tlas was quoted by official Beirut Radio as saying Goodman, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H., "will be set free as soon as the war ends and the Americans leave Lebanon."

Soviets decry 'barbarous act of aggression'

United Press International

The Kremlin led a chorus of denunciations Monday for the U.S. air strike against Syrian strongholds in Lebanon, reaffirming Soviet "support and sympathy" for Syria and warning of 'unpredictable consequences.'

The official Soviet news agency Tass termed the U.S. attack "another barbarous act of aggression."

Reaction

"We condemn this act of aggression. It has made the entire Soviet public indignant," Kremlin spokesman Leonid Zamyatin said during a news conference in Moscow.

"Our support and sympathy are with the Arab peoples who are fighting the aggressor that has intruded into their territory.'

President Reagan said Sunday the air strike, in which two U.S. jets were shot down, was in unarmed American reconnaissance flights. It was the first air strike by U.S. forces in Lebanon.

In Europe Britain supported the action, while Italy hinted that continued conflict in Lebanon might prompt a review of its contribution of troops to the country's multinational peacekeeping force.

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, questioned the wisdom of President Reagan's call for an airstrike in Lebanon, but praised the chief executive for his handling of the economy during a speech in Iowa City Monday

Speaking before a crowd of about 50 People at the Union, the senator said he views the recent escalation of fighting in Beirut as "very unfortunate ... it will cause the multinational force there to reassess their policy."

Jepsen admitted earlier that he adn't been briefed on the events that have left nine American soldiers dead, but expressed concern as to why Reagan called for airstrikes while the attleship USS New Jersey was in the Jepsen, whose stop in Iowa City was part of a day-long swing through eastern Iowa, told his audience that Reagan is responsible for solving the economic woes that plagued the nation when he was elected.

"It is a whole new day and part of it has got to be because of the commitment and the resolve and the leadership that this man called Ronald Reagan has provided," Jepsen said.

'We have a sustained economic recovery that is now reported to be the best and most sound we have experienced in 30 years," Jepsen said."An economic recovery that is not only amazing, but it is sustainable."

Jepsen continued his praise of Reagan and credited him with renewing the work ethic in America. "The days of throwing a crust of bread on the water and expecting chocolate cake in return have gone.

Jepsen told the audience, "I predict that next year President Reagan will be re-elected and by a rather substantial margin and that will be especially true if Mondale becomes the (Democratic) candidate."

Airline deregulation encourages competition By Allen Seidner

Deregulation of the U.S. passenger airline industry has fostered a more competitive environment, forcing the large, unionized carriers to cut labor costs because the small, nonunionized airlines have been able to hire qualified employees at below-union

Under regulation, major carriers were not encouraged to concern themselves with paying increasingly-higher union wages because the Civil Aeronautics Board, the industry's regulatory body, established fare structures allowing airlines to pass easily under regulation - just passing on increases," said Bill Jackman, assistant vice president of the Air Transport Association, an industry trade group. "The fact is, we accumulated the highest average compensation of any industry.'

In the first quarter of 1983, airline industry employees - from ground mechanics and reservationists to flight attendants and pilots - received an benefits, according to the ATA.

LABOR COSTS ate up 35.2 percent of the average unionized airline's operating expenses in the first half of 1983, according to the CAB. But smaller airlines are often able to charge lower air fares because they pay their nonunion employees lower wages. So, in the same period, labor costs at the smaller airlines were only about 25 percent of operating costs.

Union-backed pilots at major airlines, such as United and Eastern, receive an average of $87,000 a year and first captains annually receive as much as $140,000. But nonunion pilots employed by most of the smaller airlines earn about half as much. At Muse

And Brenton Welling Jr., who served as transportation editor of Business Week for 28 years, said he expects at least one more major airline to go broke. "That will certainly frighten the pilots into getting by on less than $100,000 for 45 hours work a month."

Philippine succession decided

MANILA, Philippines - The Philippine ruling party Monday approved a compromise proposal calling for presidential and vice presidential elections within 60 days of the death or resignation of President Ferdinand Marcos. Filipinos will vote on the proposal in a January referendum.

Amid concern that he is ailing, Marcos has argued against immediate restoration of the vice presidency but said he would accept the new compromise.

Walesa urges sanctions cut

GDANSK, Poland - Nobel Peace Prize winner Lech Walesa called on the United States Monday to lift its trade sanctions imposed against Poland after martial law was declared in Dec. 1981.

Walesa, who has been quoted many times as supporting the U.S. sanctions policy, denied he was changing his position, saying he still opposes restoring Western credits to Poland. He said: "The sanctions as such were symbolic. ... They had more of a propaganda value than economic. As a symbol, the sanctions have achieved what they set out to

Argentine military rule ended

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — The military junta that ruled Argentina for nearly eight years and presided over its Falkland Islands defeat disbanded quietly Monday, in the final step to a return to democracy.

The three-member junta, which became increasingly unpopular as the country's economic crunch worsened, dissolved itself in a secret ceremony and even discarded a planned nationwide broadcast detailing its accomplishments. President-elect Raul Alfonsin will be inaugurated Saturday as Argentina's first democratically-elected president in nearly a decade.

Feldstein to stay the course

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Martin Feldstein said at a seminar Monday he has no plans to leave his job as the president's chief economist despite White House criticism.

"A few news articles in recent days have asked why, if I disagree with the president, I don't just leave the administration or remain quiet," Feldstein said. "I reject the premise of those questions. I support the president's program.

Astronauts 'star' on TV

SPACE CENTER, Houston - President Reagan in Washington, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl in Athens and the Columbia astronauts conferred on live television Monday in a demonstration of space-to-earth technology that was watched around the world. "This is one heck of a conference call," said Reagan. The only hitch came as reporters in European cities got in on the broadcast, and a scene from a sitcom featuring child actor Gary Coleman flashed briefly on television screens.

Baker reveals spending of $1,009 in campaign for city council seat

By Mark Leonard

Iowa City Councilor-elect Larry Baker spent $1,009.55 on his campaign for the city's District C council seat, according to papers filed Nov. 29 in the Johnson County auditor's office.

Baker's campaign treasury did not nearly equal those of Councilors-elect William Ambrisco and George Strait. Ambrisco's campaign committee spent $5,465.21 to get the former Iowa City Chamber of Commerce president elected and Strait's committee raised $3,773.

"I spent as much as I had to to win," Baker said Monday. "My opposition didn't spend much, so I didn't have to spend

According to state law, candidates are not required to list individual contributors donating $25 or less to a council candidate. Ambrisco's campaign report, for instance, listed $4,461 in contributions of $25 or less.

Baker said he would like to see the law changed. "I think everyone should account for every dollar they take in. I think it's information the public should know.'

He added that he also thinks candidates should be required to disclose their finances one or two days before the elec-

Branstad links school attitude to job fitness

DES MOINES (UPI) - High school students who have a "just get by" attitude will be unprepared to deal with changing technology and the employment opportunities it offers, Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday.

Speaking at his biweekly news conference, Branstad said "there has been a trend in the last decade for students to take the easy courses. We have to get away from the 'just get by' at-

Even though Iowa students continue to rank high nationally in several areas, Branstad said, they will have to change their attitude if they are to succeed in a world where changing technology will dictate future job opportunities.

More emphasis should be placed on math and science courses, which should be taken in addition to basic required courses, according to Branstad.

Iowa educators already have realized the need for stiffer graduation standards. Branstad said a recent survey showed 53 percent of Iowa's schools have increased graduation requirements during the last four years and 37 percent intend to follow suit in the next four years.

To combat the notoriously poor voting record of students, a national student organization is planning a conference to promote voter registration among college-age citizens.

The Public Interest Research Group is planning the conference for Feb. 10-12 in Boston. The Massachusetts chapter of PIRG is coordinating the event and has sent 1,000 invitations to student leaders in several states across the country, including Iowa. So far the PIRG has received endorsements from 300 students, according to Amy Kelly, a member of the chapter.

PIRG is a student group that strives for social change in the country through legitimate political systems, according to Jim Bubert, research director of the Iowa chapter.

The national affiliate of USI, United States Student Association, may cosponsor the Boston conference, Kelly

Tom Drew, president of the UI Student Senate, said he was not aware of the national conference, but will present the idea to the senate Thursday.

KELLY SAID the PIRG conference will be a non-partisan meeting and will focus on training students to carry out voter registration campaigns. PIRG is lining up speakers for the meeting and send out invitations to each presidential candidate to attend. 'This conference will set the tone for the whole voter registration campaign. The enthusiasm is really there and students are making that priority right now," Kelly said. After the conference, PIRG hopes to carry out a national voter registration campaign with state PIRG chapters and other student organizations signing up students to vote.

Kelly said that during the summer, PIRG hopes to register non-students as well, and then concentrate on the student population during the fall of 1984. Bubert said the Iowa PIRG chapter in Ames will meet today to discuss plans to coordinate its efforts with the national affiliate.

He predicts that Iowa PIRG will work with other PIRG organizations in Minnesota, Illinois, and Missouri, as well as interested student associations, to carry out the regional student registration campaign.

VOTERS IN THE 18- to 24-year-old range have been notorious for not voting in elections and Kelly said PIRG hopes to target that age group. She said 14 million people within that age group are eligible to vote but have not registered yet.

Kelly said since the voting age was lowered to 18 in 1970, the young voters have not exercised their power in elections so legislators tend to ignore

Statistics show the number of college-age Americans that have voted in presidential elections has steadily

According to a survey compiled by "Current Population Reports," 49.6 percent of the 18- to 24-year-olds voted in 1972, 42.2 percent in 1976, and 39.9 percent in 1980.

The next higher age group, 25 to 44, has produced a significantly higher number of voters. In 1972, 62.7 percent voted, 58.7 percent in 1976 and 1980.

Kelly said, "Voter registration is the first step" in giving students an effective voice in politics. If the voice is determined by voter turnout, national statistics support Kelly's point.

The report states, "It is evident from the survey data that once people make the effort to vote (register), they usually vote.

This holds true for the 18-to-24 age group. In the 1980 general election, 13.852 members of this group were registered and 81 percent then proceeded to vote.

Iowa does not match national statistics, at least in the 1980 election. According to the Iowa State Auditor's Office, only two-thirds of the registered 18- to 24-year-olds voted.

Although more students are utilizing Student Accounts - UI's free computer service - than at any other period during its fiveyear history, Weeg Computing Center officials say they would like to see more students keeping up with the computer age.

Under the Student Account program, each UI student may apply for a grant of $100 worth of time on Weeg's computers. An hour of computer usage equals $1.50, according to Weeg information technologist Peggy Rum-

This is the biggest year Weeg has had with accounts," said Rummelhart. However, she said only about 9 percent of students are using the free computer time.

Currently, 3,300 accounts under contract from Weeg are used for information management, word processing and graphics. The state of Iowa earmarks funding for UI's Student Accounts program through a variety of research grants and contracts.

'It is my dream that in the future, accounts be issued when the student registers," Rummelhart said.

Until Rummelhart's dream comes true, students interested in obtaining an account must apply for the service in the Weeg Computing Center. Within a day, the account will be assigned a password by Weeg and authorized for the student's immediate use.

THE GRANTS students apply for are intended for individual computing projects, said Lee Shope, acting director of Weeg. 'We don't want it to be used for (computer) classes," he said, noting that instructional computing funds are granted to departments for regular assigned coursework Weeg also offers an account service to UI graduate students. This account is for graduates preparing a thesis as part of their degree requirement. The grant supports word-processing services provided by Weeg.

A computer account for thesis preparation is limited to $150 for a master's thesis and $350 for a doctoral thesis. A thesis adviser's approval is required for the grant, which is only available once per

Weeg officials advise the accounts not be used directly or indirectly for monetary gain; the accounts are to be used strictly for UI-related activities or personal

STUDENTS WHO desire more free access to the computers may apply for additional grants based on need and availability of computer resources. The grant is the responsibility of the student to whom it is issued, and is not transferable.

The percentage of the student population that uses Student Accounts is low because, Rummelhart said, "a lot of them (students) don't know about it." She said most students hear about accounts through their friends or in

One student who heard about the accounts through a friend said she is taking full advantage of the free opportunity. "You can store anything," said Diana Hahn, a senior in communications.

She used her free computer time to tabulate the results of a research project. "Figuring stuff out is easier on computer than on paper. You can type papers on a computer," Hahn said.

Stadium starts dress code trend

By Greg Philby Special to The Daily Iowan

When UI sophomore Rob Jordan tried to enter an Iowa City bar earlier this year he was refused entry and told, to his surprise, that his attire did not meet the bar's standards.

"I was wearing a white tennis shirt. tennis shorts and tennis shoes. When they refused to let me in, I laughed. I thought they were teasing," he said.

Rick Jirsa, manager of The Stadium, 223 E. Washington St., said the bar adopted a dress code when it opened Aug. 22. Dress codes are a recent development in Iowa City bars, according to Dan Berry, who has been the owner of Joe's Place, 115 Iowa Ave. since 1964. "In the 1960s there was never any dress code at all. Then people started coming in barefoot and without any

So, bar owners started warning their patrons "no shirts, no shoes, no service," Berry said.

Berry had not heard of any other bars enforcing a dress code until The Stadium opened

"As long as they wear shirts and shoes, I don't believe in dress codes," weeks of business the bar turned away from 500 to 600 people.

'I'd say we have a dress code just to keep a better environment," he said. "If a person is dressed nice, they are out to socialize and be pleasant. Actually, we've had more good response than bad. People feel better about coming in. It's worked out better all the way around," Jirsa said. The Stadium dress code states that a people cannot enter if they are wearing torn or dirty clothes, sleeveless shirts, T-shirts or tank tops, blue jean cutoffs, motorcycle jackets or farmertype bib overalls. Jirsa said "a lot of rumors got out, and people thought they had to have collars and ties." He said neither is required, although collars are preferred at The Stadium. Stadium employee Tom Strub said,

"Now it's very seldom that we turn people away.

However, some bar employees are opposed to dress codes. Doug Kelly, manager of Dooley's, 18-20 S. Clinton St., said that his customers may wear anything they want "as long as they are not filthy and stink.'

"I THINK dress codes are bullshit. BUT JIRSA said he feels the dress This is a college town and most people code is working well and has been ac- we serve are college students who cepted, even though a Stadium em-ployee estimated that in the first two want," he said.

The Fieldhouse, 111 E. College St., has a dress code primarily in the summer months barring male customers who wear sleeveless tank tops or shirts not covering their armpits. According to manager Michael Donahue, the Fieldhouse usually has to turn away five or six men on an average summer

Donahue added however, "I don't like dress codes in a college town. It is asking a lot of the students to have to worry about their dress, and the average college student doesn't have a lot of money anyway. I think it's a bit pretentious.

Regardless of the codes, most students would wear the proper clothing to bars, said Steve Tattleman, a UI senior. "There's an unwritten law of what you should wear: nice jeans, sport shirt, nice shoes and anything above that. And when people dress up, they tend to think more highly of themselves and others.

Although she had seen a person refused entrance to a bar, UI sophomore Lisa Nemer still favors dress codes. "It is a psychological boost to the individual. You feel more pulled together, and when you go out you tend to act that way. It also brings up the class of the place. The people going may still be the same, but they'll just start to dress nicer. "AND BARS should be more dressy on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, since it is more all-out then,

UI computer records monitored for misuse

Special to The Daily Iowan

Students don't stand much of a chance of breaking into campus com-

"It is easy for us to detect someone trying to break into the system," said Darvl Sawin, assistant director of computers at the UI Administrative puter records, according to UI of-

Data Processing Service.

He said ADPS, which stores transcript files, grades, and UI accounting, is in a "controlled environment" in Jessup Hall. The computers are closely monitored and if someone tapped into the system, Sawin said, the service would be able to determine the culprit's exact location.

"It would be very difficult to change a grade and get away with it," he said. According to ADPS policy, a security violation is issued after someone makes three unsuccessful attempts to "log-in." ADPS officials think there is reason to suspect a break-in after three failures to type the correct ID number and password.

ADPS is one of the UI's three major computer systems. The other systems are Weeg Computing Center, which offers terminals to students and faculty for instructional and researching purposes, and Hospital Information Systems, which processes patient care, research and educational infor-

Even with new safety precautions, a system is only as good as the people using it, said Bill Decker, UI assistant research scientist. One problem is that most people choose as passwords names familiar to them, he said. "This is a big problem because if you know a person you can guess what they most likely will choose," Decker said. "If everyone would use truly random passwords, it would help their chances of remaining anonymous

Although there have been few known cases of computer misuse at the UI, Johnson said he knows of at least four cases of computer misuse at Weeg.

The UI has not developed a specific policy to deal with computer misuse. 'It depends on the individual and the case as to what action will be taken,' Johnson said.

He said a student who steals information (programs) would be punished according to the code of student life regarding theft of university property.

trend Nicaragua proposes amnesty, elections

Nicaragua is trying to stall in the face of military pressure from anti-Sandinista forces with its latest sweeping amnesty offer and promise to schedule elections, a Honduras-based rebel spokesman said Monday.

The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry said Monday 28 anti-Sandinista rebels and 17 troops had been killed in fighting during the past 10 days.

Junta Coordinator Daniel Ortega read a decree Sunday offering guarantees to exiles to "return to the country and join in the electoral process with full rights to elect and be elected."

The offer, which runs until Feb. 21 and includes rebel combatants but not their leaders, also provides for the return of land or just compensation to people whose holdings were expropriated by the Marxist government. In Washington, Secretary of State George Shultz told a State Department news conference the United States 'welcomes' announcements by the Marxist government in Nicaragua to grant amnesty to many exiled opponents and move towards elections.

"I WELCOME THAT," he said in one of the most conciliatory responses to the Sandinista regime in recent times. "If Nicaragua is moving renuinely in the right direction, that is

A spokesman for the U.S.-funded Nicaraguan Democratic Force, or FDN, said in Honduras Monday that FDN leader Adolfo Calero Portocarrero will study details of the decree.

"The Sandinistas are trying to gain time before the military pressure they face" from rebels fighting to overthrow the regime, the spokesman

Referring to the announcement by the Sandinista government that it will begin debate Jan. 4 on electoral procedures to hold presidential elec-tions probably in 1985, the spokesman said "the conditions still do not exist to think real democracy can be built in Nicaragua.

TWO SOLDIERS and 18 rebels were killed in the region of El Bramadero. 100 miles north of Managua in Nueva Segovia province, when FDN rebels attacked an army patrol Nov. 25, a Nicaraguan Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The government has said the rebel war, funded by the United States, has cost more than 1,000 lives among civilians and soldiers this year, along with millions of dollars in damages.

NATO military boosts urged by Weinberger

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) ecretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger called on NATO allies Monday to strengthen their conventional defenses even as the first mediumrange nuclear missiles are deployed in

"NATO stood very firm and fast (on he deployment issue) during a long period of heavy pressure brought against it from a number of sources," leinberger said on arriving from st Germany for a two-day meeting of NATO defense ministers.

"Now that deployment ... is proceeding on schedule, we can turn to some of the other vital matters, such as improving our conventional strength, taking advantage of emerg-ing technologies," he said.

As Weinberger arrived, European allies were assessing their defense efforts, focusing on cooperation between armed forces, joint training programs. armaments planning and logistics.

Norwegian Defense Minister Anders jaastad presided over a session of ambassadors of the Eurogroup, an ssociation of all the European NATO states except France, which does not participate in the integrated command, and Iceland, which has no army.

THE EUROPEANS were to finish their separate conclave today and be joined later in the day by their U.S. and Canadian colleagues for a full meeting of NATO defense ministers.

A NATO source said the Eurogroup concentrated on the defense potential of emerging technologies and the "twoway street" in arms supply. Euro-Peans complain the United States buys ar fewer arms in Europe than Euro-

Policy on education said to hurt needy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A House investigative committee, in the first congressional assessment of President Reagan's switch to block grants in education, concluded Monday the change hurt poor and minority stu-

The House Government Operations Committee based its findings on the 1982-83 school year, the first under Reagan's "New Federalism" program in which federal grants were cut and consolidated into blocks of money for distribution to the states. States and local districts then decide how to spend the money

"Our findings indicate that the effort of this administration to reduce the federal role in education is being executed at the expense of America's neediest children," said Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee that investigated the effects of block grants on education.

However, his views were not shared by the majority of Republicans on the Democratic-dominated committee. They vigorously dissented from the report and accused it of not being objective

The report says budget cuts alone eliminated more than 140,000 students from programs for educationallydeprived children.

In addition, federal money set aside for low-income children, including a high proportion of minorities, was not report says. The committee criticized the Education Department for failing to double-check that "low-income students received equitable allocations of

THE REPORT also found a shift of federal education money from urban areas, which generally have larger concentrations of poor and minority students, to rural areas. Urban districts lost millions of dollars and were forced to abolish or reduce educational services for thousands of minority children, the committee found.

Also, many school districts suffered cutbacks in money to finance their desegregation efforts, the report

The U.S. Civil Rights Commission last month similarly accused the Reagan administration of hurting minority students by its education policies, but the commission's criticism was based chiefly on budget cuts in civil rights enforcement.

Reagan helped push the block grant budget approach through Congress in

In a three-page defense of the new program, 12 of 14 Republicans on the committee criticized their Democratic colleagues for "an unabashed bias in favor of federal influence over, and tight control of, our nation's education

Candidates' bickering upstages 'unity' effort

Democratic presidential candidates launched a two-day nationwide "unity" fund-raising swing Monday, fighting among themselves and with party leaders over issues and the rules for picking 1984 delegates

There appeared to be little unity in the effort, however, as one candidate, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, boycotted the events to protest party rules, while another, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, at first threatened to use them as a forum for his objections.

But after a brief telephone negotiation, Jackson agreed to meet later in the month with Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt to work out differences, rather than disrupt the fund-raising effort.

The distractions took some of the spotlight away from the two frontrunners, former Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, who were expected to spend two days fighting over who was the true Democrat in the field.

The fund-raising gala is aimed at raising $1.9 million of the $7 million the Democratic Party can legally spend on the presidential campaign next year and is scheduled to start with a $1,000a-plate dinner in Washington.

THE CANDIDATES then divide into two groups to swing north and south across the country.

Mondale, Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina and former Sen.

George McGovern of South Dakota will take the northern route, flying to Chicago for $500-a-person breakfast.

Jackson, Glenn and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado will go to Atlanta for a $500-a-person breakfast and then to Houston for a $500-a-person lunch.

The two groups will meet in Albuquerque Tuesday night for a $1,000-a-

Jackson said earlier that party rules are unfair to minorities and women. Jackson said the rule requiring a candidate to get at least 20 percent of the vote to get any delegates discriminates against him because in only 86 congressional districts are more than 20 percent of the registered voters

In addition he said the new provision reserving 568 delegate seats for party leaders, including 164 House members, will result in that bloc being largely white and male.

MONDALE AND the other contenders will run into a special hornet's nest in Chicago, where they will encounter the running feud between Mayor Harold Washington and City Council President Edward Vrdolyak, who also is head of the Cook County Democratic organization. Vrdolyak recently endorsed Mondale.

The mayor, a friend of Jackson's, is still fuming because Mondale backed Richard Daley, son of the late mayor, in the Democratic mayoral primary

Picketing worker struck, killed by Greyhound bus

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) - A striking Greyhound employee was struck and killed Monday at a picket site by a bus driven by one of the trainees hired to replace striking drivers, authorities said

Raymond L. Phillips, 42, of Willoughby, a member of Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1043 in Cleveland, was killed just after the trainees left a motel parking lot in downtown Zanesville en route to a training session.

A spokesman for the Ohio Highway Patrol's Zanesville post, which is investigating the incident, identified the driver-trainee whose bus hit Phillips as Lewis A. Harris, 28, Cleveland.

There had been no charges filed by Monday night.

'We'll take all the information we find to the Muskingum County prosecutor," said the spokesman. "It'll be up to him to decide whether any charges are filed. We're still investigating. About 100 striking Greyhound

Court to decide on draft ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The U.S. Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether the government can enforce a law denying federal education aid to young men who fail to register for the draft.

The law states any draft-age man seeking federal student aid must sign a statement saying he has registered, or lose eligibility for aid, including loans, grants and work assistance.

The Selective Service System wants the high court to overturn a federal court ruling that the law is unconstitutional because it punishes young men for past wrongdoing and forces them to incriminate themselves.

The Selective Service estimates that 100,000 men face loss of federal aid for failing to register for the draft under the new law that took effect July 1.

An estimated 412,000 men have failed to register since President Carter resumed registration in 1980.

Gagging the 'lady'

The Reagan administration, having irrevocably alienated most Democratic women and most liberal Republican women, now is alienating a backbone of the party, moderate Republican women. He failed to reappoint Iowan Mary Louise Smith to the reconsitituted U.S. Civil Rights Commission. Smith is a prominent moderate Republican who has labored long and well for the party, for Iowa women and for the rest of the country. She was national chairwoman of the party, with a fine record and the respect of Republicans and Democrats both.

But she "sinned" in Reagan's eyes. The administration says she refused to commit support for Reagan's nomination of Clarence Pendleton as head of the commission. Smith says she never was directly asked if she would support Pendleton. But she did note that the choice of chairman "goes to the heart of the independence

Her actual "sins" were her gender and politics. The president did not want two prominent respectable Republican "ladies" on the commission who were likely to criticize him. Smith has criticized his failure to name women and minorities to government jobs; she has supported the use of busing and quotas, in somes cases, as methods of ending segregation.

Reagan has tolerated Jill Ruckleshaus, the other moderate Republican woman on the commission, because her husband, William Ruckelshaus, was wooed into "saving" the Environmental Protection Agency.

Obviously the president felt it made him look bad, having two such nice Republican "ladies" criticize him. He could dismiss them neither as radical feminists nor Democratic partisans, hence their criticism was all the more telling.

He clearly hoped that by relieving Smith of her post, he could either shut her up or blunt her criticism.

A real world city

Iowa City currently is sending promotional information about the community and the UI to three foreign firms in hopes they will consider moving operations to the area. The contacts follow an October visit to Europe by Mayor Mary Neuhauser, City Manager Neil Berlin and two local businessmen.

The actions are and were wise.

Iowa City and the UI, inextricably linked in social and economic ways, stand to further benefit from their connection.

While UI students and faculty contribute to local businesses through the money they spend here, the city provides a climate where the UI can prosper. The problem the city faces, though, is that the student population is transient. Undergraduates rarely make long-term investments that would enlarge the city's potential, such as buying houses. After they finish their educations, many students leave to make it in the "real world."

Investments in Iowa City by reliable businesses, foreign or not, will provide a stable population. Employees are more likely to make the long-term investments and close the gap between the student and the resident populations.

The latter situation troubles this community. Students can survive in an isolated academic situation, rarely mixing with the working population, thinking all there is to life is the university. The real world, then, comes as a shock.

The UI and Iowa City have created an educational atmosphere; they now strive for a working atmosphere to complement it. UI graduates who leave Iowa City because they feel job opportunities here are limited will have a new option. In other words, those who reap Iowa City's educational assets will be able to channel them back into the community by working here. Hence, any attempt to lure new industry and investments provides for the community's future as well as the future of students.

If those attempts succeed, people will be talking about the "real world" when they talk about Iowa City.

Love Day?

In the Southern California city of Fremont, the first official Love Day was celebrated Dec. 1. Retired real estate broker Herman Geber would have liked the entire country to recognize that date as Love Day; he lobbied for the idea by writing to all 50 governors and 100 U.S. Senators.

Given the projected scope of the idea and the sheer human interest appeal it undeniably has, it could be bear a second, more critical look. Once some social ideal like this is encapsuled in its own special day, the sentiment it supposedly embodies probably long ago has been drained from it.

Think, for instance, of grandparents day, a contrivance of the floral and greeting card industries, and, marketably, reflective of our society's treatment of the elderly and its guilt about cramming them - impoverished and unwanted - into out-of-theway and unhealthy "homes."

Think, too, of Martin Luther King's holiday. Once the force of the civil rights movement has been kicked out of it and the realities of unemployment and federal cuts in social services override symbolic nods, we see President Reagan signing the King-Day bill reluctantly and for "symbolic reasons," while keeping alive rumors of King's "subversive" associations.

So what of love day? United Press International reported it involved strictly love of one's fellow man, not erotic love, and was acted out in such things as approaching passive bystanders with open hands and special greetings of love.

For many people, such an approach might have the effect of being pinned with a smiley-face button and might put a damper on spontaneous good will.

These contrived and legalistic "days" symbolize what we miss and know we lack, in lieu of achieved values. Our society has a habit of mocking and sentimentalizing what we most prize, like putting the near-extinct eagle on the dollar, like giving love one day, proving such ideals to be already archaic.

Oberlin's legacy of equality lives

the same reason thousands of other blacks and women went there for generations: other universities didn't want them.

In 1943, early in World War II, the Navy ordered my transfer from the V-12 (officer training) unit at Washburn University in Topeka, Kan., to Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Northwestern told the Navy a "Negro" would not be acceptable in a campus dormitory. The Navy then ordered me to Oberlin, which had been the first college in America to admit women and blacks on an equal basis with white males

I was reminded of this quirk of fate. this important event in the critical years of my life, when I read the other day that Oberlin would celebrate its 150th birthday on Dec. 3.

I joined the celebration by remembering that while I learned just enough math to get a degree in that field, and enough about English and literature to get admitted to a graduate school of journalism, that wasn't what was most important about Oberlin. Thousands of colleges teach calculus and syntax and how to hate "Beowulf." Only Oberlin and a few others consistently teach

More than a decade before "sit-ins" became a highly-publicized tool of the civil rights revolution of the 1960s, Stevenson, others from Oberlin and I staged a sit-in at the Neil House Hotel in Columbus after our group was denied service in the dining room because I, a black, was in the group.

Oberlin had a unique way of socializing and civilizing students, according to their needs. I remember how ill-atease I was to discover that men students weren't fed in their dormitories. but were assigned to take meals in the houses where women students resided.

I was assigned to eat at Pyle Inn, a small house where the women liked to sit around after dinner and argue foreign policy issues. There is something special about an educational institution that, class after class, inculcates so many of its graduates with a commitment to fight injustice, whatever the economic, political, social and other risks. That is why, as I travel from city to city, I get such pleasure out of having people who are fighting for good causes and trying to make a better society come up to me and say, "I'm Oberlin, too."

States, cities sicken for third year

By William Lucy

HE NEW federal fiscal year began more than two months ago, its arrival hardly noted by the nation's press. But the impact of third-year Reaganomics has begun a profound impact on state and local government services across the country.

When the barn was burning in one of the old John Wayne Western movies, a bucket brigade usually was formed to douse the flames. But the problem was obvious. As overflowing buckets were passed down the line, water spilled out. As a result, the water sloshed on the fire never seemed to be enough.

That's what has happened to the third phase of the Reagan administration budget cuts. A year and a half ago during the State of the Union address - President Reagan unveiled his dream of returning power to the states amidst much fanfare. Ironically, this 'New Federalism" has resulted in a reduction in the ability of state and local governments to rationally manage their fiscal affairs.

One out of every $4 spent by state and local governments is derived from federal sources. The first three fiscal years of the Reagan administration have seen federal aid to cities, states and counties slashed $32 billion. As a result, federal taxes have been cut for many individuals. But increased state and local government levies from all sources are climbing to close service gaps created by reduced federal CONTEMPLATING the $2.70 reduction in federal taxes withheld from his or her weekly paycheck when the latest round of Reagan's tax cuts when into effect, the average taxpayer may well wonder if the President's programs have been worth the return.

The country finally is beginning to struggle out of the most severe economic downturn since the Great Depression. The demand for state and local government services to sustain a recovery is mounting. Meanwhile, programs to help those still suffering from the ravages of a declining economy are still needed.

The cuts imposed by the Reagan administration on state and local governments have translated into a dramatic decline in services at the community level. Important education and employment training programs have been cut to the bone. Health and nutrition programs dramatically have been scaled back. Human service programs have been reduced. And needed infrastructure and physical capital projects have been deferred because of cuts in federal aid.

State and local governments face a tremendous financial squeeze. The impact of the severe recession was compounded by the severe reductions in federal assistance to state and local governments. Consider these facts:

• The National Governor's Association reports the states will run deficits totalling $2 billion by the end of this 1982-83 fiscal year.

• The U.S. Conference of Mayors reports its member cities could meet no more than 43 percent of the overall demand for emergency services in fiscal year 1982.

· Congress' Joint Economic Committee reports cities it surveyed realized only 60 percent of the spending they had budgeted for capital purposes

• Data Resources, Inc. forecasts that construction spending by state and local governments will fall 5.5 percent in 1983, following declines of 9.4 percent and 8.6 percent in 1981 and 1982,

In the past the federal government might have to stepped into the breach. This time the national government is pursuing a course that is pushing local government, and the people dependent on their services, to the brink.

A recent report by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees details the losses state and local governments have seen in the first two fiscal years of the Reagan administration. The figures, based on data supplied by the Congressional Budget Office, represent the cost in today's dollars of providing the same level of services provided in 1981, before the Reagan

Ironically, major reductions totalling $8.8 billion have been made in employment and training programs. Other sizable budget cuts hit Environmental Protection Agency wastewater grants ($1.3 billion), child nutrition services ($1.7 billion), Medicaid ($2.2 billion), energy assistance ($700 million), and vocational education ($300 million). In all, the AFSCME report documents cuts in 30 programs by an amount in the first two Reagan budgets equal to $140 for every man, woman and child in the country.

THE UNPRECEDENTED reduction in federal aid has not had the same impact on all Americans. Unfortunately, the cuts have placed considerable hardships on those already vulnerable to economic downturns. For example, the special milk program has been cut by 85 percent. Medicaid has been cut by 6 percent and even the highly successful special supplemental food program for women, infants and children has been reduced by 12 per-

Taken in isolation, any one program cut could be tolerated without excessive hardship. Taken together, they have a cumulative effect that can deal a staggering blow to low-income

In reaction, state and local governments are caught in a financial squeeze. The need for local services has not been reduced, only the ability of communities to meet the needs of their citizens with existing resources. That's why state income taxes, sales taxes and local property taxes are on the rise again in many states.

That's a marked contrast to the situation several years ago when many states had a confortable budget surplus and a stable economy. It's going to take much more than a bucket brigade formed in Washington to solve the problem.

Hey, look them over To the editor:

The East Iowa Socialist Party is sponsoring an evening on Dec. 5 where people can learn what socialism is in America. Socialism needn't be a scary word. I am a socialist. Many people thinks this means I am anti-Christian and anti-American or a Soviet apologist or violent. I am none of these things. I am actively involved in the Socialist party because I believe in personal, political and economic democracy for all people. This cannot be done in a capitalist economy. A capitalist economy depends on competition and exploitation, with the result being that a few white males are very, very rich and powerful.

America is a country where I can say these things, and I am grateful for that. But it doesn't mean this country can't be made more just. My vision is not one where a socialist government is centralized. I envision a democratic, socialist, feminist society where people have control over their lives through a decentralized society. The Socialist party U.S.A. shares this vision in a non-dogmatic manner.

Many of today's Democratic party platform planks and national policies first appeared on the Socialist ticket thirty or forty years ago. Socialism isn't a scary word or idea. We need to inform ourselves about what socialism is and that it is another viable world view that should be explored. So come find out what socialism is in the United States.

Babes in toyland

In response to Curtis Deutsche's letter (DI, Dec. 2) I would like to make a few comments about their visit to Toys in the Basement of Every Bloomin' Thing I assume that Deutsche and his seven companions were from a daycare as they were all about the same age, about nine years. The major problem stems from the fact that there was only one adult to chaperone the children. It became necessary to bring in additional employees to help supervise them. As it was, a couple of toys did get broken and items were knocked off the walls.

As for being treated like "second hand citizens," we will ask anyone, regardless of age to be more gentle if they are mistreating or breaking our

At Toys in the Basement we have a "hands on" policy of letting people examine the toys before making a purchase. Unfortunately, some people abuse this privilege and we occasionally have to ask them to leave. Toys in the Basement is not a playroom, it is a salesroom, and it is certainly not here to help babysit for a daycare.

business, there is good news and bad news to report

The good news is that Ireland has decided not to participate in the grisly trade. I believe that it is the only country in Europe to oppose this business. Fortunately, many third world countries have also declined to participate. Perhaps they see this business as an attempt by the wealthy countries of the North to limit their populations. Perhaps they would prefer that the wealth created be spread out so that many more people might participate in its consumption. If so, I support their efforts and agree with them. At the bottom of the abortion business can be found the vice of racism.

The bad news is that Rep. Henry Waxman (D-Calif.) has introduced a bill into Congress permitting experimentation on infants destined to be aborted. From his viewpoint it is perfectly reasonable, since a child in his mother's womb is not a child, but something to be accepted or rejected as twisted reasoning, economics, or passions dictate. The Daily Iowan is looking for a freelance editor. The successful applicant will have superior grammar skills, the ability to write and think clearly, knowledge of the community and a desire to work with beginning reporters. Editing and journalistic experience are helpful, but not required.

The freelance editor position represents an excellent opportunity for anyone who wants to learn the "nuts and bolts" of copy processing, who may be interested in a print-media career, or who simply enjoys working with printed text. Responsibilities include working with beginning reporters and freelance writers, assigning them stories and setting their deadlines, and preparing freelance stories for publication in the DI. The freelance editor works with other news editors to coordinate freelance work with the DI's overall coverage.

The Daily Iowan is not a laboratory — it is an independent newspaper with a daily circulation of about 20,000. If what you want is real work experience and not just simulation, The Daily lowan may be your kind of situation.

> Applications are available in The Daily Iowan business office, 111 Communications Center, and should be returned to Editor Derek Maurer, in 201N Communications Center, as soon as possible.

Phillies continue youth trend; trade veterans

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The National League champion Philadelphia Phillies, continuing their youth movement, lopped two more over-40 players from their roster Monday by trading away 41-year-old Tony Perez and 41year-old Ron Reed in separate deals about the winter baseball meetings.

Perez, who was sent to Cincinnati where he starred in the mid-1970s, and Reed, who went to the Chicago White Sox, were major contributors to the Phillies' championship season but did not fit into the club's plans for next

They join Pete Rose, 42, and Joe Morgan, 40, as veteran players cut loose by the Phillies since the end of the World Series.

Perez was obtained for a player to be named later and Reed was acquired for a player to be named later or cash.

TWO OTHER MINOR deals were completed on the first day of the meetings. The San Francisco Giants traded outfielder Champ Summers to the San Diego Padres for infielder Joe Pittman and a minor league player to be named later and Cleveland sent catcher Jim Essian to Oakland for a player to be named later.

In other developments, Baseball Com-missioner Bowie Kuhn asked the owners to give full moral commitment to his successor, and 11 players were selected by 10 major league clubs off minor league rosters in the annual draft.

The acquisition of Perez by the Reds was an obvious move to help bolster the gate. One of the most popular players ever to wear a Reds' uniform, Perez spent his first 12 major league seasons with Cincinnati and knocked in 90 or more runs a season from 1967-76 before being traded to the Montreal Expos.

"HE'S A SUPER guy and a super player," said Boston Red Sox manager Ralph Houk, who managed Perez at Boston from 1980-82. "I believe he can still hit and help a ballclub.

Many fans and some of the Reds' players attributed the decline of the team in the standings in subsequent years to the trading away of Perez, who was one of the most respected players on the team.

Perez had three solid seasons with Montreal, then played out his option and signed as a free agent with the Red Sox. Used mostly as a designated hitter with the Red Sox, he knocked in 105 runs and hit 25 homers in his first year with the team and played at Boston through the

He was released by the Red Sox after the 1982 campaign and signed with the Phillies last spring. Perez played a pivotal role in the Phillies' early season success but was used sparingly in the last months of the season as the club won the National League East pennant. He finished the season with a .241 average, six homers and 43 RBIs in 91 games. He also contributed a few clutch hits in the Phillies' postseason competi-

"WE PLAN TO utilize him in whatever way possible," said Vern Rapp, the Reds' new manager. "He's a very impressive right-handed hitter. We can use him as a pinch hitter or a regular at first base against some tough left-handers. He also has tremendous leadership abilities.'

A 15-foot jump shot by senior guard Sheila Mason at the buzzer gave the Cyclones a three-point lead at halftime, 46-43.

But the Hawkeyes, behind the steller performance of reserve guard Maureen McAlpine, outscored Iowa State 10-2 to open the second half and take a 53-48 lead.

McAlpine combined two long jumpers and a lay up off a steal by teammate Tricia Blair with a lay up by Anderson and two free throws by reserve forward Tammy McKay to pace the Hawkeyes in that stretch.

TWO FREE THROWS by Long gave the Hawkeyes their biggest lead of the second half at 61-54 with 11:40 to go, but Iowa State roared back to regain the lead, 68-67, with four minutes remaining on two charity tosses by Monica Missel.

Gymnasts look for many firsts

By Jill Hokinson Staff Writer

The Iowa women's gymnastics team is full of many firsts this season

Iowa Coach Diane Chapela said this is the first time she has had a very supportive team to coach and also a team with the talent and ability to stand up to any other team.

"I have never had a cohesive team like the team I have this year," Chapela said. "They strive to help each other out and that's an additional plus for the team.

"With some teams, you don't get to the point of looking at your teammates and appreciating them for what they are," she said. Chapela said her gymnasts also have the capability to move out of their last place standing in the Big Ten Championships last year.

"PROVIDING WE hit our routines and stay on (the apparatus), we're capable of being in the top five in the Big Ten," she said. "It will boil down to who's hitting and who isn't hitting their routines." Besides finishing higher in the Big Ten, the Hawkeyes want to qualify for regionals and produce a Big Ten champion from Iowa. Because the Field House was closed for repairs last year, Chapela's team is practicing in a warehouse in Coralville this season. Working out in the bright but close environment has also helped foster the cohesive attitude among the gymnasts, she said.

The warehouse provides less distractions during workouts and allows the gymnasts to work on all four events at the same time four days a week, Chapela said.

"WE'VE MADE what seemed like a bad situation and turned it into a productive, positive experience," Chapela said. The Iowa coach added she will be disappointed when the team returns to the Field House because they have become attached to their new surroundings.

Not only are the gymnasts close on a friendly basis, but the competition for the top six positions in each event is very tight. "This is an interesting crew because the potential (to perform well) is spread quite evenly," the fifth-year coach said. 'By being so competitive for spots to compete in a meet, it motivates the gymnasts even more.

'There is somebody right there on a gymnast's heels vying for the same spot the gymnast is trying to hold on to," Chapela said.

THIS SEASON IS also the first time Chapela has had such a large freshman class to coach. There are nine freshman on the team and they are also the "most highly skilled group of freshmen," the Iowa coach said.

Because the team is so young, the gymnasts' performances could be affected in the first couple of meets, but "after that, everything should fall into place," Chapela said. This season also marks the first time Chapela has had upperclassmen assume a strong leadership role. Alison Greene, Holli DeBoer and Linda Tremain have taken the initiative to be role models for the other gymnasts. "They have a great impact on what happens in the gym," Chapela said.

The Iowa coach said there are also no superstars on the young Iowa squad this year and each gymnast has a skill that makes her stand out.

The Hawkeyes have strong performers on each of the events, with uneven bars being the weakest event this far into the season for the team, Chapela said.

"It was a surprising win," said Florida Coach Charley Pell, who has won his last three meetings with Florida State. "It was one of the great victories we've been associated with at the University of Florida."

FOR FLORIDA STATE, it was literally a bad dream.

"I'm embarrassed," Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said. "We're lucky it wasn't a hundred."

"It was like a nightmare to me. I kept wondering when I'd wake up and find out we really weren't being beaten so bad," Seminole cornerback Steve Bloodworth said. Florida was nearly flawless, running up more than 500 yards in total offense. Wayne Peace threw for 190 yards and became the top all-time Southeastern Conference quarterback with 616 completions. Four running backs - Neal Anderson, Lorenzo Hampton, Joe Henderson and John L. Williams - each rushed for more than 50 yards.

When Florida's offense sputtered, walk-on Bobby Raymond was there to kick six field goals, which set a school record and tied an NCAA mark.

THE GATOR DEFENSE was equally impressive, holding the Seminoles 20 points below their scoring average. Florida State's second and final touchdown came against Florida

NFL playoff spots are up for grabs

More than two-thirds of the NFL's 28 teams remain in playoff contention with just two weeks remaining in the regular season.

Only five teams from the AFC -Baltimore, Cincinnati, Houston, Kansas City and San Diego - have been eliminated while just four NFC clubs - Philadelphia, the New York Giants, Tampa Bay and Atlanta — will definitely sit out when postseason competition opens with a wild card game on Dec. 24.

Miami, 10-4, has clinched the AFC East title and the Los Angeles Raiders, 11-3, are champions of the AFC West. The Raiders can clinch a home-field advantage throughout the playoffs with one win in their final two games against St. Louis or San Diego. No division title has been determined in the NFC but Dallas, 12-2, can wrap up the East Sunday with a victory at home over Washington, also

NFL roundup

THE PLAYOFF picture by divisions: In the AFC East, Buffalo, 8-6, can earn a wild card spot by beating San Francisco and Atlanta, coupled with two losses by Pittsburgh. The Bills also can qualify by winning their last two games and a loss by either Denver or Cleveland.

Two 7-7 longshots, New England and the New York Jets, are both mathematically alive and the Patriots have a better record both in the division and in the conference.

Pittsburgh, 9-5, can clinch a wild card spot in the AFC Central Saturday with a victory over the Jets and the Steelers will win the division title (better division record) if Cleveland, 8-6, loses in Houston Sunday.

If the Steelers and Browns, who meet in the final week at Cleveland, both finish at 10-6, the division crown will be decided by the fifth tie-breaker, best net points in division games. Pittsburgh currently is plus 43 and Cleveland minus 18 in that category.

IN A 10-6 TIE between the clubs, the team that doesn't win the division title would be assured of a wild card berth.

In the AFC West, Denver, 8-6, can get a wild card spot with a win over Baltimore Sunday combined with losses by Buffalo and Seattle. The Broncos can also sew up a wild card berth with victories in their last two games (Baltimore, Kansas City); Denver would then also be guaranteed the home site for the AFC wild card playoff game Dec. 24. In the NFC East, the Cowboys can win the division Sunday by beating Washington because they have beaten the Redskins previously. Both teams already have clinched

IF WASHINGTON beats Dallas, but both teams tie at 13-3, the Cowboys will win the East with a better division mark. St. Louis, 6-7-1, is still technically alive, but would be eliminated with one more loss.

In the NFC Central, Minnesota and Detroit met Monday night with both teams tied for the division lead at 7-6. The winner of that game can clinch the division crown next week with another triumph. Green Bay, 7-7, can still win the division or a wild card spot while Chicago, 6-8, can earn only a wild card spot.

Neither the Los Angeles Rams nor San Francisco, both 8-6, can clinch the NFC West division title this weekend. If both teams finish 10-6, the Rams win the West with a better division record and the 49ers earn a wild card spot. Two baseball stars begin serving terms

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) - Two players from last season's Kansas City Royals reported to federal prison Monday to begin three-month terms for cocaine charges and could get up to nine days off their sentences for good

All-Star outfielder Willie Wilson, 28, the 1982 American League batting champion, and rightfielder Jerry Martin, 34, who is no longer with the team, were processed into the Federal Correctional Institution's STAR -Steps Toward Addiction Recovery program after checking into the prison Monday morning.

"They're eligible for three days off their sentences per month depending on work performance," said prison spokeswoman Delores Nisle.

"THEY COULD BE doing different things - landscaping, mechanical services, education, food services. No, they won't be making license plates."

Warden Dudley Blevins said Wilson and Martin will get no special treatment during their stay at the prison a campus of Spanish-styled buildings that has the reputation as a "country club" because it has no fence or guard

Leading by two points, Iowa had a chance to ice the game with 13 seconds left when Mason was called for a pushing foul on a inbounds play by the Cyclones.

On the ensuing Hawkeye inbound attempt, the ball was stolen by the Cyclones and McConnell hit a 15-foot jumper with six seconds to go, setting up the overtime period.

LL RIGHT. The time has come to stop making myths of rock 'n' rollers and to stop pretending that, 20 years after their first impact, these bands have anything left to say or even deserve a place to attempt to do so. We are beginning to lose the historical perspective necessary to see why Hendrix was so perfect for 1969, why Herman and the Hermits were ditto for 1965 and why the Sex Pistols struck such a responsive chord in 1976-7. Cultural time-association is very important when dealing with the flash in the pan that is rock 'n' roll.

The Daily Iowan/Steve Sedam

There's no denying that when the Rolling Stones were first heard on these shores, they provided the perfect antidote to the mainly harmless bulk of the (first) British Invasion: they were sexy, dangerous and snide. And throughout the '60s and well into the '70s, they maintained that necessary profile while adding snippets of the day: psychedelia (Their Satanic Majesties Request), post-Kent State frustration (Sticky Fingers and, especially, Exile on Main Street) and the pursuant mid-tempo conservatism (beginning with Black and Blue).

BUT BEGINNING WITH this last album, the Stones began paying less and less attention to what was happening on the streets and more and more attention to their past. I think there were two reasons for this: First, the band had functionally outgrown their first audience (by 1977 Jerry Rubin was well on his way to stockbrokernood) and were looki this is especially evident on 1978's Some Girls. And second, the record industry was booming like crazy in those days, and Jagger, ever the former business student, saw the opportunities for the Stones in such an atmosphere.

So the 14-year-old who was starting to grow hair and tiring of bubble-gum music latched onto the Stones II and was treated to a rehash of older days infused with contemporary studio polish and a somewhat less cynical world view. But though these new acolytes grooved on what they were hearing, the patented misogyny and near-the-edginess of the Glimmer Twins had little to do with them. They were Travolticated, discofied and Carterized, (look afore you leap, and when you do leap, make sure you land elegantly).

THIS HAS ABOUT as much to do with the Rolling Stones as designer perfume - but interestingly enough, designer perfume financed the last Stones tour. So the Stones, in moving toward their new audience, have almost completely nullified their original reason for existence, and, by so doing, eliminated utterly any chance they might have had of tapping the old well again. The new one they've dug ran out immediately after Some Girls.

And so it goes - Undercover, the Stones' latest release, is another tired, cliched rehash of past Stones riffs and poses tinted with a "political conscience." There's no doubt that the title track, with its references to all the young men going off to be guerillas and the young women missing them, refers to current unrest in Latin America, but Jagger and Keith Richards have about as much a right to political comment as James Kilpatrick has singing about having crazy sex with underage black girls -

FURTHER, THE ATTEMPTS the Stones have made on Undercover to get current are either incredibly misdirected (as in the politics) or unsuitable (as in the awful pseudo-rap of "Too Much Blood"). Wisps of reggae and horn-backed R & B float by, unmotivated either by the album's track layout or the Stones' recent history. The two rockers (and compared to "Brown Sugar" and "Jumpin" Jack Flash," I use the term very advisedly here) that follow "Too Much Blood" on side two are really anemic - Richards totally borrows from his rich, rich riffbook and Charlie Watts, at this point in time, could easily be replaced by a LinnDrum computer.

The one thing heartening about the album is Bill Wyman's continuing development as rock's best bassist. Wyman's pushing 50 hard, but you'd never know it on Undercover. Whether asked to coil around Watts' backbeat drumming or to lay down eminently soulful underpinnings, Wyman is solid, solid, solid. And the use of Sea Leveler Chuck Leavell for keyboard work adds new colors to this tired brew and saves a couple of tunes from utter destruction.

I'M ASHAMED TO SAY it, but I had to force myself to listen to this album more than three times. As a once-diehard Stones fan, it really hurts to admit that maybe these guys just can't cut it anymore, and that rock 'n' roll might really have an age limit: 40 years, based on this and other (see also Paul McCartney, Pete Townshend, the late Elvis Presley and practically any of the recent and misguided "comeback" efforts - the Animals, the Moody

But I'm still hoping that they'll give us one last great album to remember them by. Undercover isn't it - and time isn't on Jagger's side any more.

Big Twist tangles with hot R&B

LTHOUGH IOWA CITY has suffered no dearth of prime rhythm and blues of late, fans of that genre will just have to drag it out one more time tonight as Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows, one of Chicago's finest R & B outfits, return to town after a two-year absence to heat up the Crow's Nest's spacious dance floor.

A classic soulful dance band, Twist and the Fellows are on tour in support of their third LP (and first on Alligator Records), Playing For Keeps. And much like the first two Flying Fish records (1980's Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows and 1982's One Track Mind), Playing For Keeps provides a mix of a few well-chosen covers -"Pouring Water On A Drowning Man," a Howlin' Wolf-styled rendition of Tony Joe White's "Polk Salad Annie" and Willie Dixon's "300 Pounds of Heavenly Joy" - with "in the tradioriginals penned by producer Gene Barge and various band mem-

The band has undergone wholesale lineup changes with each LP, yet the core of the band - Larry "Big Twist" Nolan on vocals, Pete Special on guitar and Terry Ogolini on tenor sax - has remained intact for more than a

The 6-foot-4-inch Nolan, his mother's "300 pounds of heavenly joy," sports a perpetually beatific demeanor, an ever-present white suit and fedora and a blue-ribbon vocal style that recalls, at various times, such prime movers as Howlin' Wolf, Brook Benton, Bobby "Blue" Bland, Jerry "the Ice Man" Butler, Tyrone Davis and Solomon

A BONA FIDE graduate of the School of Hard Knocks, Big Twist spent his formative professional years as a singer and drummer in various R & B and country and Western groups working the southern Illinois club cir-

Lately though, the band's following in Chicago and its suburbs has reached the point where the band rarely has to take gigs from which they can't drive home after the show. At Chicago's Biddy Mulligan's, for example, lines of Big Twist fans often form out on the sidewalk (weather permitting) by late Guitarist Special, Nolan's right-hand man, could easily be described as the "glue" of the Mellow Fellows. Combining a purist's dedication to R & B and soul music with an up-to-date attitude toward showmanship, Special delivers Steve Cropper-ish rhythm chops and burning Chicago Blues leads in addition to co-writing much of the band's original material.

The other mainstay of the Mellow Fellows is tenor saxophonist Ogolini. Solid if unspectacular on solos, Ogolini heads the group's horn section (which these days includes trombonist Jim Exum and trumpeter Don Tenuto) with grace, flair and a traditionalist's sense of R & B horn arrangements.

THE BAND'S rhythm section - allnew — is anchored by keyboardist Sid Wingfield (from Luther Allison's band) who, with Special, provides the bulk of the backing vocals. Big Twist's nephew Tango West ("I always wanted him, but he just now got old enough to come out on the road with us," Nolan says)

Hayes is the drummer.

Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows' shows generally begin (as have most classic "revue" shows from James Brown through Johnny Otis to the present) with the band alone laying down the evening's building blocks - a solid, funky groove that preheats the audience for the moment when the big man rolls out like a '59 Cadillac to "shout, howl, croon and moan with conviction and soul" (DI, 12-4-81).

Even if I could turn back the hands of time to the band's only prior appearance in Iowa City (at the old Rosebud in December of 1981), I wouldn't. That show electrified the audience of some 650-plus, but that was then - and the current band is even better and the time is certainly riper.

The first set will be provided by The Nonstop (who last appeared in town opening for the Elvis Brothers), an uptempo R & R-rockabilly band of the first order. Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows are then slated for two long sets. Tickets are ridiculously cheap at $3 in advance, $4 at the door. Soul music lives on tonight only at the

Ul groups to perform Haydn

The University Symphony Orchestra and the UI Choruses, all under the direction of Don V. Moses, will give a complete performance of Franz Josef Haydn's oratorio "The Seasons" Wednesday, Dec. 7 at 8 p.m. in Hancher auditorium. The concert is free and no tickets are required.

The composer finished the work in 1801, while he was still in London preparing the premiere performance of his oratorio "The Creation." Since that work was such a success, Haydn had no trouble securing the forces and audience he needed to make "The Seasons" also a triumph.

In contrast to the rather cosmi scope of "The Creation," however, "The Seasons" deals with rather ordinary subject matter - villagers and tillers - an the musical components too are simpler, more overtly "popular" than those in "The Creation." But "The Seasons" remains one of Haydn's masterpieces.

Corps talent glitters in 'Nutcracker'

By Nancy Moore

N AN ELABORATE production that involved live music, moving sets, blinding explosives and, of course, dancing, the Milwaukee Ballet brought its "Nutcracker" to Hancher Auditorium last Tuesday and Wednesday. Except for a few harrowing miscalculations in the timing of one pas de deux on closing night, the choreography of both mechanical and human bodies appeared to advance as

Principals Michele Lucci and Kurt Putzig as the Snow Queen and King looked lovely in their first act pas de deux under lightly falling "snow," with Oliver Smith's wintry forest scene as backdrop. Catherine Yoshimura and Gerard Charles, the Candyland Queen and King, did not succeed quite so well when dancing together but demonstrated impressive classical alignment and flair for quick, multidirectional footwork when on their

The two most surprising dancers of the evening were company apprentice Elizabeth Zengara and her partner Taras Kalba (the bearers of Arabian silk in Act II), who performed a brilliantly controlled and sensuous duet that brought to mind interpretations of this ballet as relating something more than the simple story of sweet young Clara, her generous godfather Drosselmeyer and a certain

IN THIS version of the "Nutcracker," choreographed by ballet master Robert Rodham, the grotesque possibilities of Act I have been removed. Clara's godfather (Stewart Jarrett) is not the crooked old toymaker of German fairy tales. Instead, he looked like Count Dracula: tall with distinguished features and a swirling black cape from which the Nutcracker Prince (Stephen Lockser) makes his first appearance. When Fritz dismembers the new toy, this Drosselmeyer administers a spanking and he puts Clara to sleep in his lap while the Christmas guests dance a proper minuet. If there is a hint of eroticism in this production - as in Act II's tribute to Arabian silk — it is safely hidden behind visions of sugarplums

Lori Romito's flawless closing-night performance as Clara emphasized the character's youthful, but slightly already-vibrant production, step forth most importance late in Act I, when her well-aimed point shoe settles a dark dispute between the Nutcracker doll (a masked dancer) and the sevenheaded Rat King. Although the program notes did not mention this incident, it does seem rather significant, since the act enables the Nutcracker to fulfill his role as a brave soldier and to lead Clara through the snow to the Kingdom of Sweets - without which there would be nothing to dance about.

WHERE THE first act of the "Nutcracker" makes use of pantomime and of such stage effects as a growing Christmas tree and a mobile grandfather clock (guarded by an owl whose eyes light up with every stroke of the hour), the second act relies almost exclusively on dancing for its impact. As Clara's Christmas dream involves the Nutcracker's coming alive and turning into a noble human escort. most of the dances are pas de deux for men and women, culminating in that of the Candyland King and Queen.

Michel Fons, who recently joined the company after leaving the Royal Ballet, performed on the few solos in the act - "Fans from China." In this and his Act I solo "Harlequin," he proved to be a scintillating force in an

and placement that one finds in only the most experienced male dancers and he is 21. Another soloist of Act II - Shelly

Cates as the blue butterfly - created the impression of such delicacy that it was almost beyond the ability of the corps of "flowers" to appear petallike. Part of this difficulty is choreographic in nature, for when one repeatedly moves a group of identically-dressed into identical positions (as is common in Romantic ballets), it must be hard to prevent a mass settling of weight as everyone assumes the proper pose. The corps looked best when waltzing. Just when the entire second act appears about to repeat itself, the stage darkens and Drosselmeyer arrives to turn the Nutcracker Prince back into a toy. In what may have been intended as a modest choreographic conceit, the Kingdom of Sweets suddenly turns into a stageful of dancers taking their final bow. Clara is still in character, holding the toy in her arms, while the Prince stands next to her, accepting applause. The scene would have been less confusing at this point had the real Herr Drosselmeyer - that is, choreographer Rodham - been able to Tonight's movies feature the talents of tough guy action director Anthony Mann: • Mann's work, considered too crude and action-oriented by the critics of his time, found a later place in the hearts of the auteur critics. Side Street (1949), made near the beginning of his most successful period, is the story of a smalltime clerk (Farley Granger) whose single theft snowballs into a tragedy for him and his girl (Cathy O'Donnell). At 7 p.m.

• The Naked Spur, one of Mann's most successful westerns, stars Jimmy Stewart, Mann's favorite actor, as a psychotic bounty hunter chasing escaped criminal Robert Ryan, half-crazed as usual. Mann's use of exteriors is always stunning, and the Rockies become extensions of the characve just read your article, "Sneakers of the Gods" (October issue). It's probably the best I've read on the subject so far because it's down to earth. You limited it to facts and presented it in a reasonable manner. Most people don't know how to go about choosing a running shoe since the different types are suited for different needs.

Again, your article was the best I've read.

Thanks for caring.

George Sotirin Owner The Foot Locker Milwaukee, WI

The compliments are appreciated. The story required (pardon the pun) plenty of footwork.

am insulted by Playboy's "College Girls" ad your magazine chose to run in its September/October magazine. In running the ad, you discriminate against half of all college populations - women. Most women aren't going to be interested in buying a magazine that features other women naked. Maybe a few horny, puerile "boys" may want to, but their interest hardly necessitates your using the ad.

In addition, I am horrified that a magazine which purports to serve college students men and women both - should choose to advertise a magazine which shows female college students in a degrading, sexist light. Most women, like most men, choose to attend college to develop their minds - not show off their bodies. I realize that my main complaint should be with Playboy magazine for even printing such a derogatory issue, but I hold you and your magazine responsible for helping to spread negative ideas about women by running this ad. There are, I am sure, many ads that you could have run in its place that would have served all college students better. What a sad day it is when an instrument of the media chooses to make money over serving the public's needs.

> Katherine A. Hilber E. Lansing, MI

It is understandable that Playboy's ad could be considered "sexist." It could also be considered by many as "sexy." Obviously, it is to the latter that Playboy most appeals, and to whom they are attempting to sell their product. When the ad was first submitted, we asked that it be altered to be less "suggestive" (a subjective judgment on our part), and Playboy complied with our request.

Unfortunately, we do not choose advertis ing; advertisers choose us. The revenues generated from these advertisers allow us (and nearly every major magazine) to continue publishing.

We believe in the right of free expression both by the press and public, yet we often find ourselves making judgments (censoring) in the name of good taste.

As you pointed out, college exists "to develop ... minds." We trust the ability and intelligence of our readers (college students) to judge and make decisions on their own. Although Ampersand provides editorial coverage of leisure and entertainment - geared more to light interests than deep introspection -we encourage your feedback, such as this letter, which stimulates thought and addresses a relevant issue.

y letter could be labeled as a complaint, but I am curious about some missing information about which I would like to know more. In your back-toschool issue, in the "& Out the Other" column on page 9, you start to tell about a new movie, Heart Like a Wheel, but its continuation on page 15 doesn't exist, at least in my copy of your paper. What's the rest of the story? This is the first mention of this movie that I have seen since a little blurb appeared in an ad I saw about Champion spark plugs

Keep up the good work. Your diverse reports help me to be more informed regarding areas that I am interested in.

> Allen Naylor Silver Springs, MD

You're absolutely right; we missed it com pletely. The final two sentences: "Now they'll be using an ad approach a la Norma Rae by painting Shirley as a woman who goes up against the sistem (professional sports) and wins. Look for the new blitz in October.

HOW TO USE YOUR

TWO THINGS YOU LEARN IN COLLEGE:

A. Institutional food will never be fabulous.

B. Your own cooking isn't much better.

BY EMMA BOGACHEVSKI

nless you learn a few tricks, a few techniques, a few recipes.

Cooking is like love. It's a little scary at first. But your confidence will grow. And you may reach the point where it's a form of art. Not just a mandatory stomach fill-up.

My purpose is to help you along. To begin, here's a wonderful trick: instant noodles from Nissin Foods. They can stretch your budget. They can make your meals more interesting. And they take very little effort. Just use your

Noodles from Nissin Foods may be called Top Ramen or Oodles of Noodles, depending on which part of the country you're cooking in. Look for them in the soup department of your local supermarket. They're the number one brand in America, so you shouldn't have trouble finding them. (In fact, Nissin invented the 3-minute noodle.)

You'll also see a handy product on the same shelves — Cup O' Noodles. I'll tell you more about Cup O' Noodles later.

Top Ramen and Oodles of Noodles come in squarish cellophane packages weighing about 3 ounces. They cook up in about 3 minutes, using boiling water. Much faster and easier than spaghetti! And each package comes with a flavoring packet, giving you a range of taste possibilities: Beef, Pork, Chicken, Oriental, Onion, Garden Vegetable and Chicken/Mushroom.

What you get for three or so minute's worth of cooking is a very flavorful noodle soup. Maximum reward for minimum hassle.

But that's just the start. Because Nissin noodles can lend a helping hand to any basic meal. Put them alongside a few vegetables and a serving of meat and you have a more filling meal.

Or serve your noodles with a topping: beef stew, vegetables, cheese, whatever inspires you and/or whatever's handy. Keep adding elements, and before you know it you've created a complete - and nutritious - meal.

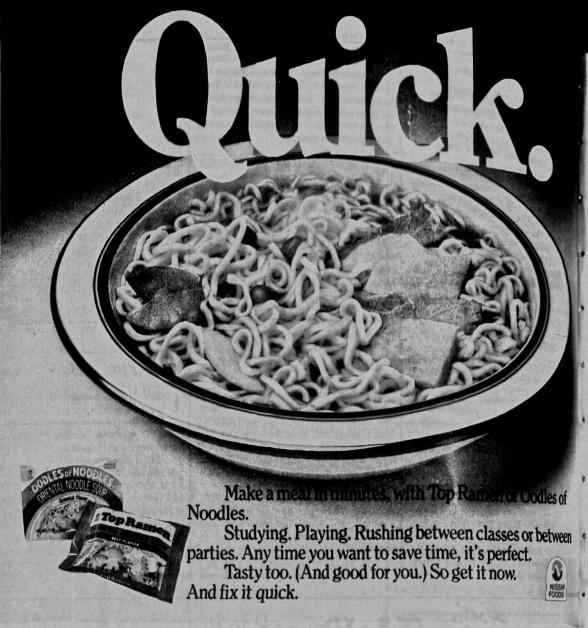

You can make your noodles dish as simple or as sophisticated as you choose. Either way, you're ahead of the game for practically no

And even though these three-minute noodles originated in the Orient and lend themselves beautifully to Oriental-style meals, they also enhance other types of cuisine as well... European, American, What-Have-You.

For example, here's an easy way to treat yourself and five friends to a relatively exotic Gandhi-style Indian feast.

CURRY IN AHURRY

Bring three cups of water to a boil. Open three packages of Chicken Flavor noodles Break up the dry noodles as you add them to the water. Put in the seasonings packaged with the noodles. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, for three minutes. In a frying pan saute 1/4 cup (or more to taste) chopped onion and 1 tsp. curry powder in 2 tbsp. but- | Melt 1 tbsp. butter in a 3-quart saucepan. Add ter. Stir in 1 can (10-3/4 oz.) condensed cream of chicken soup, 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 tsp. lemon juice and 8 oz. diced cooked chicken. (A bright idea: roast a whole chicken for dinner one night and plan on leftovers.) Simmer the sauce ingredients for 2 minutes. Serve over hot noodles. Garnish with your choice of: chopped green onion, diced cucumber, chopped peanuts, toasted coconut, raisins, chutney.

Now let's try some Russian approaches.

NOODLES ROMANOFF

Break up two packages of Pork Flavor noodles and boil them for 2 minutes in a small amount of water. Use both flavoring packets. Rinse the cooked noodles in cold water and drain them. Put them in the refrigerator until thoroughly chilled. Now saute the chilled noodles in 1/4 cup butter. Add 3/4 cup Parmesan or Romano cheese and 1/2 tsp. garlic salt. Mix well. Garnish with a few sliced, sauteed almonds. Serves 5.

Add enough water to the beet liquid to make 2 cups. Add this liquid plus the beets to the onion and cabbage mixture. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Return to a boil. Toss in 1 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tbsp. tomato paste, 1/4 tsp. salt and a dash of pepper. Break up an Oriental Flavor noodle package, adding noodles to the boiling broth. Simmer, covered, 3 more minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in seasonings from packet. Serve immediately. Top each serving with a heaping tbsp. of sour cream and a sprinkling of minced dill or parsley.

Get out that same old 3-quart saucepan and teach it yet another new trick. Melt 1 tbsp. butter and saute 1/3 cup chopped onion and two crushed cloves of garlic. When the onion has become transparent, add 2 cups water, 1 medium-sized tomato, chopped, 1-1/2 tsp. paprika, 1/2 tsp. caraway seed, 1/2 tsp. marjoram, 1/2 tsp. salt and a goodly dash of pep-per. Bring it all to a boil, then simmer, covered for 2 minutes. Return to a boil and taste ... don't be afraid of your pal, Mr. Gar- break in a package of Beef Flavor noodles.

Simmer, covered, another 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in the seasonings from the flavor packet and 1/2 pound or so of thinlysliced roast beef. (This can either be from a leftover roast, or purchased at a meat counter offering cooked meats.) Serve immediately, garnishing with crumbled, cooked bacon. Serves 3.

Remember that a recipe is not a commandment. You'll be successful if you follow it to the letter, but improvising can lead to wonderful discoveries.

And now, a colorful dish that's guaranteed to cancel out winter.

CHICKEN BRUNSWICK NOODLE STEW

Drain the liquid from an 8 oz. can of tomatoes. Coarsely chop the tomatoes and drain them again. Place them in your 3-quart saucepan with 2 cups of water. Bring to a boil while adding 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper, 1 small, thinly sliced onion, 1/2 cup mixed vegetables (frozen are much better than canned, fresh are best of all) and 3/4 tsp. thyme. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 3 minutes. Return to a boil and break in a package of Chicken Flavor noodles. Simmer, covered, for 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add 3/4 cup chicken meat, cut in chunks. (Again, use leftovers or buy pre-cooked meat.) Remove from heat. Stir in seasonings from the flavor packet and serve immediately. Serves 3.

Speaking of soups, I promised to tell you about Cup O' Noodles. They're even easier than Top Ramen and Oodles of Noodles! Each package is a ready-to-use cup that's a meal in itself, complete with noodles, eggs, a selection of vegetables, all in a soup broth that comes in a variety of flavors.

The big story here is Taste. Not the overspiced, ketchup-and-mustard flooded taste of certain "fast" foods, but genuine realfood flavor that also happens to be quick to

For a fast meal, Cup O' Noodles is surprisingly well-rounded. And, like I mentioned, surprisingly easy to make; all you do is add hot water, stir, and enjoy

And best of all, the cups are portable. So you can tuck them away and use them wherever there's hot water.

Let's say, for instance, that it's late at night and you're cramming for a test. Suddenly you're hungry. But it's too cold to go out, and you don't want to lose your momentum. The solution: Cup O' Noodles.

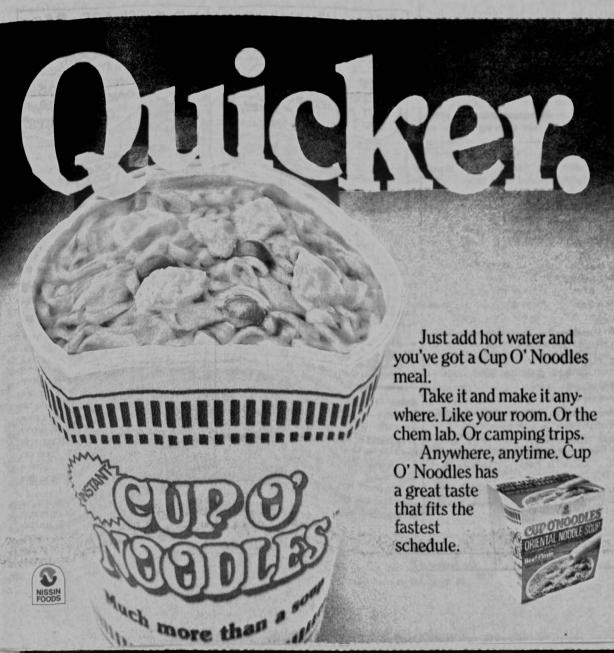

Likewise when you're stuck in a long lab. Or when you just can't bear the thought of the hassle in the cafeteria.

They're great outdoors, too - the ideal backpack item, whether you're hiking backwoods trails or crossing campus with no time for a long lunch break. Likewise, you can take them in a pouch when you're skiing, so you can refuel without wasting time in the Skating. Tobogganing. Surfing. Parachuting. The uses go on and on, as long as you wind up near hot water.

I said earlier that cooking is like love. Well here's another metaphor: it's like playing music, too. After you've learned how to follow the basic arrangements (recipes), you can start to improvise.

So play away. You'll discover that cooking, like the other important things in life, has a wonderful symmetry. Which is more than you can say for some of the people in your gym class, right?

SPECIAL SECTION FOOD & ENTERTAINMENT

"A party among college students," Theocritus has written, "is like rampant sneezing among a convention of clockmakers. ... You want 'em to be happy, but you hope they don't lose their minds entirely." Ampersand's guide to snacks & wines & party-giving is a lot like that.

LUAU

Essentials: rum, pineapple chunks impaled on toothpick umbrellas.

Accessories: a ukulele with palm-tree decals, a large fish tank full of piranhas, the world's largest pineapple, lava-lavas, grass skirts (no underwear), Gilligan's Island life preservers, a model of the S.S. Minnow, many leis. And no "getting a lei" jokes, please.

Music: Blue Hawaii soundtrack by Elvis Presley, South Pacific (stage or film version), "Little Grass Shack," "Tiny Bubbles" by Don Ho, Hilo Hattie's Greatest Hits, including "Princess Pupuli Has Plenty Papaya (and She Likes to Give It Away).

Extras: a simulated hurricane, like in those South Sea Island restaurants; a member of the faculty posing as a suckling pig with apple in mouth

Extra extras: a Jack Lord look-alike who keeps saying, "Book him, murder one." A Don Ho voodoo doll, stuck with many pins. Enormous concrete clamshell fountains.

MOTHER NATURE PARTY

Location: a beach or the woods.

Attire: track shoes, waffle stompers, no underwear.

Refreshments: picnic baskets full of sandwiches, fried chicken, potato and macaroni salads, hamburgers, hot dogs, buns, beer, lem-

Accessories: red-checked tablecloths, charcoal, fire-starting fluid, blankets, sleeping bags, portable stereo or radio. Fire logs. Lots of 6-12 or Cutter's insect repellant and several no-pest strips, preferably hanging from pith helmets. Guitars, a volleyball.

Theme: The Euell Gibbons Memorial Party, with tasty snacks of snails, hearts-of-dandelion, pine nuts and various roots and berries, all scavenged at the site. Chewing on roots is especially encouraged.

Music: "Poison Ivy," "Lost in the Woods," Teddy Bears' Picnic," "Beach Blanket Bingo," Surfin' Safari," "Stranded in the Jungle."

ENDOF THE WORLD

Location: within sight of the closest nuclear power plant, preferably on strip-mined land, herbicide-sprayed forest or pasture.

Transportation: Pintos equipped with Firestone 500s (DC-10s for out-of-town guests).

Refreshments: Bon Vivant Vichyssoise soup, bacon cured with nitrates and nitrites, saccharin, red dye #2, white lightnin', angel dust.

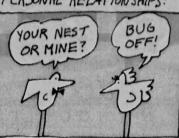

Decor: asbestos paneling, Shell no-pest

Room freshener: DDT, in an aerosol can. Attire: sackcloth and ashes, fire-retardant flannel, probably no underwear.

Music: "Endless Sleep," "End of the World," 'The End," "Eve of Destruction," "Desolation Row," "Suicide Is Painless," "Dancing with Mr. D."

Extras: Jehovah's Witnesses carrying signs saying "The End Is Near." Zombies, looking

Location: a rumpus or rec room with a sign on the door saying "The gang's in here!"

Decor: simulated-wood-finish molded plastic furniture, cocktail napkins with bar jokes printed on them, crepe paper streamers that come undone and dangle in the food, several decoupaged "Love Is ..." cartoons.

Attire: highwater-pants and white socks for the guys (or bermuda shorts with black socks and wingtip shoes), polyester jumpsuits for the more adventurous. For the gals, beehive hairdos, lacquered hair or ponytails tied with fuzzy yarn, polyester doubleknit pantsuits, nylon Pucci overblouses. Extra underwear.

Refreshments: Wonder Bread sandwiches lots of mayo with one slice of American cheese or one slice of bologna; ruffled potato chips and California Dip (one cup of sour cream to one package of Lipton's onion soup mix); sloe gin; Annie Green Springs wine, served in embossed plastic goblets; lukewarm Vienna sausages speared with frilly toothpicks. In spite of the obvious psychological benefits of food, it is important that some of our food decisions be based on rational decisions rather than sexual frustration. Make some intelligent food choices each day just to remind yourself that the four food groups are not candy, cookies, doughnuts and pretzels.

Listed below are ten healthy food choices to help you sneak some vitamins and minerals into your diet. Some require a small amount of preparation time because fresh foods are generally better for you. If a food item can sit in a vending machine for 18 months without getting moldy it probably is made from polyethylene and should be avoided. (It is wrong to believe that a daily dose of preservatives will give your body a longer shelf life.) Follow these guidelines for selecting nutritious snacks while limiting your intake of foods that glow in the dark, and you're well on your way to improving your eating habits.

1. Strawberries — One cup of unsweetened strawberries has 55 calories and virtually no fat or sodium. Fresh strawberries contain more Vitamin C than a large orange and, best of all, you don't have to peel them.

2. Yogurt — Yogurt is generally an easy item to pick up, is easily digested and is an excellent protein source. Double chocolate fudge yogurt contains more calories than plain yogurt, so read the label. If it has more than 280 calories, save yourself the aggravation and go to Baskin-Robbins instead.

3. Popcorn - One of the few traditional snack items that can really be considered a healthy food is popcorn. If you cook it fat free, and hold the butter, a three-cup measure of popcorn has only 86 calories, and tastes like styrofoam. Popcorn is high in fiber, which increases gastric motivity and makes your bowels move. That may sound disgusting to you now, but you must admit it beats the heck out of dried prunes.

4. Alba 77 — Alba 77 is a powdered drink mix to which you add ice and water to make a milkshake-like concoction. It's a great product, and still a real bargain for a "diet food." Alba 77 is advertising like crazy: a beautiful girl holding an apple and an Alba 77 milkshake expressing her delight that the milkshake has less calories. The advertising should be more realistic. They should have her decide between a Reeses Peanut Butter Cup and Alba 77 - now let's see her graciously select the item with fewer calories. Alba 77 really is an excellent product - the only problem is you can't chew it.

Raisins — One ounce of raisins contains 80 calories, and like all fruit (except avocado), has practically no protein or fat. As a snack item the raisin's claim to fame is that it has a high iron content: 1 mg of iron per ounce, which is about the same amount you'd find in an ounce of beef or in a medium-sized drain

As a snack item the raisin's claim to fame is that it has a high iron content: 1 mg of iron per ounce, which is about the same amount you'd find in an ounce of beef or in a medium-sized drain pipe.

6. Cottage cheese and fruit - Hungry for something really healthy? Take 1/2 cup of low-fat cottage cheese and 2 peach halves canned in juice. You've got 15 grams of protein for only 150 calories. Cottage cheese has a pretty bad reputation since it's part of just about every weight reduction program, but you can't beat its protein-calorie ratio.

7. Peanut Butter - Yes, it is high in fat and calories, but used in moderation peanut butter can be a part of your new nutritious snacking. Take 3 stalks of celery and spread two teaspoons of peanut butter on each stalk. The calorie count is less than 200 with 8 grams of the most delicious protein source available. If you don't care about calories - instead of celery, spread the peanut butter on fig newtons. If you are concerned about calories, use only one stalk of celery, dilute the peanut butter with mineral water and apply with an eyedropper as desired or until the little tube gets clogged up.

8. Veggie Platter - If you know you're up for a binge and don't want to go to the expense of buying a larger wardrobe, take the time to make low-calorie food readily available. Clean and cut up the vegetables of your choice - carrots, cherry tomatoes, broccoli, mushrooms. Be creative and buy some exotic vegetables you've never had before (No, pistachio nuts are not a vegetable.) For a dip try low-fat yogurt with dry soup mix folded in.

9. High fiber cereal and skim milk-Cereal isn't just for breakfast anymore. With over 100 cereal products in your grocery store, you should be able to find one unsweetened high fiber cereal you enjoy. Bruce Jenner did. You already learned why fiber is good for you and milk, of course, is an excellent protein

10. V-8 Juice - The only problem with this product is that 6 oz. contains about the same amount of sodium as 1/3 teaspoon of salt. V-8 juice is loaded with vitamins and minerals yet its calories are low. One good alternative is to select low-sodium V-8 juice and spice it up yourself with seasoning salt and tabasco. If it's after 9:00 a.m. and you've got nothing to do the rest of the day, spice it up with a shot of vodka. Although it doesn't add much in the way of nutritive value, it can give you a general feeling of good health like cottage cheese never will.

Jug wines share certain features other than price and bottle size:

Sweetness. Traditional wine is much less weet ("drier") than the beverages we grow up drinking (milk, pop, juice), plus it's higher in acid (sourness). Dry wine is thus an acquired taste; enjoying dry wine takes practice (ah, practice). Some people would rather not admit that they like their wine on the sweet side, for fear of looking unsophisticated. Bottles of sweet wine with the word "dry" on the label were invented for these people. Which means that you can't always trust the wording on wine labels (surprise).

and will develop into other aromas, given enough time. Jug wine does not give them enough time. Jug wine is not warehoused or otherwise aged, and you, the customer, are expected to take it right home and consume it, not put it in the cellar with the Private

3. Dependability. The taste of big-name jug wines is miraculously consistent year in and year out, thanks to the skill of the master

If consistency and maybe sweetness aren't s important to you as variety and adventure, try the Jug Wine Upgrades. These are an expanding group of low-cost wines from medium-size wineries and some of the big-ou know Jug Wine: it's sold in generous bottles with, screw caps or pull-out stoppers. It's nationally advertised; Almaden, Taylor, Inglenook, Paul Masson, Gallo and its aliases. Substances marketed in cans or named Thunderfowl, R.I.P., Goon's Farm, Annie Greenskin, etc., belong to the pop and beer market. We're talking real jug wine here.

What's the right sweetness level? Gallo has built a roaringly successful operation selling the most consistently sweet wines in their market, so you can use them as a benchmark. Try a white, or Pink Chablis; whites and rosés are usually sweeter than reds.

If what you've tried is too sweet for you, try a corresponding type from one of the other nationally advertised brands. Still too sweet? See Jug Wine Upgrades in the discussion below called "Research."

KURT

On the edge of major stardom, he'd really rather be playing baseball.

BY MIKE BYGRAVE

KURT RUSSELL PUT ON EIGHT POUNDS IN THREE WEEKS AFTER HE GAVE UP SMOKING, SO THIS MORNING GIRLFRIEND GOLDIE HAWN DRAGGED HIM TO HER AEROBICS CLASS. "IT WAS HARD," HE SAYS, FLEXING A CAUTIOUS MUSCLE. "I THINK IT'S EASIER FOR WOMEN, ALL THAT STRETCHING. THERE WAS ME AND ONE OTHER GUY IN THE CLASS AND, IF YOU HAVEN'T DONE IT BEFORE, THERE'S NO WAY YOU STAND ANYWHERE EXCEPT IN THE BACK ROWS WHILE YOU MAKE A FOOL OF YOURSELF.

With Russell in the back row, there must have been a lot of stiff necks by the time the session was over. Women like to look at him. He may not be classically handsome, but he is solidly masculine, the boy next door writ large indeed. What John Ford said of John Wayne—"I looked at him. He was a man"— is true of Russell, who is also a Westerner.
While others study to be "laid-back," his ease is authentic, the product of a way of life in which "the picture business," ranching, sports and the outdoors all play a part, and no one is more important than the others. Here he is, currently one of the hottest male stars in Hollywood on the strength of his performances in two completed but yet to be released films -Silkwood with Meryl Streep and Swing Shift with Goldie Hawn-and he's telling you if he asn't an actor, hell, he'd do something else, no sweat. In fact, he'd rather do something

"I prefer not working to working any time.

ACCORDING TO MERYL STREEP, WHO SHOULD KNOW, HE'S THE BEST ACTOR SHE'S EVER WORKED WITH.

I like working once a year. I like going to Colorado [where he has a house and plans to build a working cattle ranch], spending time with Boston [his son by ex-wife Season Hubley], and now with Goldie and her kids. I have more fun doing that anyway.

"Tve always felt if somebody had a problem

"I've always felt if somebody had a problem with my being an actor, then I couldn't totally disagree with him. A guy who sort of has that look in his eye in a bar, I never felt he was that far out of line. I couldn't blame him for being pissed off. I do a lot of horse s-t, I walk onto a set, meet a bunch of pretty girls, do nothing and make good money and he's got to punch that clock."

This is not the way actors talk. Speak to the Al Pacinos, the Bill Hurts, the Dustin Hoffmans, and you'll come away believing acting is a semi-mystical process, disciplined by long hours of study, fuelled by intense creative fires. But Russell is determined to keep his feet on the ground, when they're not on skis or in stirrups.

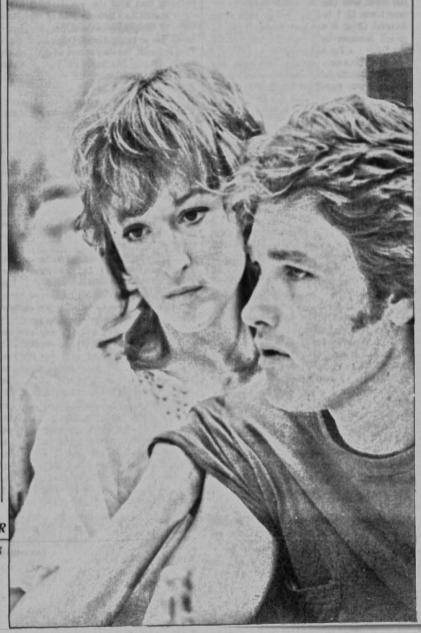

"I think feeling the way I do has given me a perspective a lot of my fellow actors don't have. They like to work. They like to create. I don't know how I feel about that. It seems to me you either have the ability or you don't. I don't know how you work at it."

Russell has the ability, no question. According to Meryl Streep, who should know, he's the best actor she's ever worked with. The 1976 TV movie Elvis brought him to prominence and he went on to make two more films with director John Carpenter, Escape from New York and The Thing. Add another well-received TV movie, Amber Waves, a cult comedy, Used Cars, subtract the beard he wore for Carpenter, and you have the Kurt Russell who stepped on the set of Swing Shift to costar with, and fall in love with, Goldie Hawn and who now sits in Ms. Hawn's house reading "three scripts a day. There are those interesting points, growing points in an actor's life, and when you hit one, you get deluged."

But this is only half the story. Part German, part American Indian, Russell is the son of veteran character actor and sometime professional baseball player, Bing Russell. Russell Snr. appeared in 104 episodes of Bonanza, in the John Ford classics The Horse Soldiers and Cheyenne Autumn, and he's still at it. Russell Jr. grew up "to all intents and purposes a Hol-lywood kid." When Kurt was 10, his father brought home the script for a baseball movie with a part for a 10-year-old and the lure of meeting the real-life Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle. Recalls Kurt, "My dad's agent had al-ready asked me if I wanted to start in the business and I'd said no. But I was baseball crazy so I called him up, got an interview on the thing, didn't get the part, but had a good time. Afterwards I asked my dad if that was pretty much all there was to the picture business and he said, yeah, that's what it is. At the same time I wanted to buy a couple of bicycles for myself and my sister. I had a paper route and it was going to take me three years to save up the money. I figured out I could buy them with one day's film work. By the time I was 12, I had our college educations secured. Great. It was easy money. I said to myself, however far I go, I go, and when it stops, it stops. I'm still going."

Russell became a teenage Disney star and personal favorite (after Disney's death a piece of paper was found on his desk with two words written on it, "Kurt Russell"). Russell says he "didn't deal with" fame very well at that age. He was "alternately shy and cocky at school. I got into a lot of fights." Besides, as has been widely written, half his mind and almost all his heart was with baseball. He played semi-pro, then as a pro for four years until he injured his arm beyond repair. Comparisons between baseball and acting remain a staple of his conversation.

"Acting is not much different from baseball as a lifestyle. There is a certain freedom and also a certain insecurity, which I like. You never have to answer the question 'Is this what I want to do for the rest of my life?' Both businesses have a habit of making the decision for you.

"I'd watched my dad's life, growing up, and it was a good life. He was much more of a guy who truly wanted to be an actor than I was. He'd done plays at high school and at college. He wanted to play either baseball or cowboys and Indians all his life. I guess I inherited that dream. He's a remarkable man, he has much more energy and much more flair for living than I do. But in 1974, when I was injured, I knew I had to start seriously to look at acting and think, what do I have to do to have a long career? To have the kind of career I want and which will satisfy me? And I've done that. So far."

It's a rare glimpse of the serious, and seriously competitive, Kurt Russell. In Silkwood, based on the life of Karen Silkwood, the plutonium plant worker who died in a mysterious car crash while on her way to deliver evidence of radiation hazards to the authorities, Russell plays the boyfriend. To research the part, he read transcripts of FBI interviews and met the real man, Drew Stevens. "Nobody will ever know who killed Karen Silkwood," he feels. "In a way, that's less interesting than what she was doing and how these Joan of Arcs become Joan of Arcs. Both she and the people around her, like Drew, struck me as being like McDonald's workers. They're smart, but they accept what they have to do. They're like smokers, it's as if what they're doing working at the plant isn't really dangerous or won't affect them."

Russell's own life has had its private crises. When they parted after three years of marriage, his ex-wife Season Hubley let her feelings be known. But his liaison with Goldie Hawn seems to have achieved stability in a short time. "Goldie and I" and "I said to Goldie" are frequent phrases he uses, and the couple spent a summer vacation in Morocco, Spain, Paris and London.

He acknowledges readily that she's a bigger star than he is at present. While he may read three scripts a day, she reads "one a weekand develops three of her own a day! That's the stage you reach, where you have to develop your own stuff, but that means time away from Colorado, and is it worth it? Goldie feels the same way. Nobody can accuse either one of us of not concentrating 100 percent when we work, but when the show's over, it's over. Take the money and go skiing, or whatever you do. That's why anybody works. It's a great thing to enjoy your work, but I'm a really good player. I'm much better playing in life than I am working in it. I told Goldie early on Swing Shift, 'I can't wait until this picture's over and we'll really have some fun." About a month ago, she said to me, 'You know, I've got to tell you, you really are good at playing. You're good at being lazy, good at hanging around, all that stuff.' I know why it is, and it's because of baseball. When you play ball, you only have one responsibility in life and that's to be at the ballpark at 5 o'clock. The rest of the time is yours to fill.'

Consensus from Panel of Experts

- "Light" wines: Not merely low in alcohol, also low in flavor, aftertaste, interest. Mostly air. Less character than Perrier. Surprisingly dry.
- Almaden Mt. Rhine and Gallo Hearty Burgundy: one bottle of each had been opened a few days before the research testing and left open to the air, and one of each was opened at the tasting. There was no difference between the two HBs, but the pre-opened Almaden had lost substantial flavor and freshness compared to the just-opened bottle (meaning Almaden had not pasteurized this wine. Hoorav!).
- Pink Chablis: Pleasantly bubbly ("spritzy"), went with most of the food. Fans demanded doggie bottles.
- Beaulieu Vineyards (BV) California Burgundy: best of the show, especially for those tasters with more years in the field.
- Fetzer Zinfandel was more interesting than Inglenook Navalle Zinfandel.
- Carlo Rossi Chianti (a Gallo family member) was even sweeter than Hardly Burgundy.
- Gallo Sauwignon Blanc: A last-minute addition to the research tasting, and an example of Gallo's attempt to get into the premium market. Don't bother. It won't show you what Sauvignon Blanc can be, and doesn't have as much character as the Parducci-Pedroncelli-Fetzer sort of white jugs at the same. The driest Gallo we'ver ever tasted, fin.

Ford Escort Diesel: Better mileage than this leading import.

We didn't believe it at first, either.

But EPA testing figures established it. Our new Escort Diesel is rated approximately four miles per gallon higher than a Honda 750.

Just take a look at our numbers:

And because this diesel is an Escort,

68 EST. there's a lot more to talk about than great economy. Like the fact that

Escort's the best-selling

Or that it comes with more total passenger room and more total cargo room than a Honda Accord.†

More standard features than a Toyota Tercel.++

There's even a fullyindependent suspension system for a smoother ride than a Nissan Sentra.

All of which means Ford Escort not only gives you a big advantage over that motorcycle pictured above.

It also beats more than its share of cars.

THE BEST-BUILT AMERICAN CARS.

When we say "Quality is Job 1," we are talking about more than a commitment. We are talking about results. An independent survey concluded Ford makes the bestbuilt American cars. The survey measured ownerreported problems during the first three months of ownership of

and built in

And that commitment continues in 1984.

- * For comparison. Honda 750 mileage is obtained from EPA emissions testing and is not an official rating. Your mileage may vary depending on speed, trip length, weather. Actual highway mileage lower. Escont Diesel mileage applicable to sedans with FS engine and without power steering and A/C. Not available in California.
