

Reagan talk slated to soften hard line on Soviets

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan will turn away from three years of harsh anti-Soviet rhetoric Monday by insisting in a national address "there is no rational alternative" to "peaceful competition" between the superpowers, the White House said Sunday.

Hoping to ease political anxiety at home and abroad, Reagan will take up relations with the Soviet Union in a major speech at the White House today States in its strongest position in years to establish a constructive and realistic working relationship with the Soviet Union," Reagan says in a par-tial text released Sunday by the White House.

The speech, at 9 a.m. (Iowa time), will be broadcast live by all three major television networks and will be beamed by satellite to Europe. It will be directed at three distinct audiences: American voters, the Soviets and Western Europe.

Reagan will acknowledge, "neither we nor the Soviet Union can wish away the differences between our two societies and our philosophies."

"But we should always remember that we do have common interests," Reagan says, "and the foremost among them is to avoid war and reduce the levels of arms."

REAGAN WILL GO to great lengths to accentuate what one adviser termed 'a positive and constructive outlook.' He will mention suspected Soviet violations of arms agreements, but not belabor the point, even though the administration is prepared to deliver a lengthy report on the subject to Con-gress, aides said.

And Reagan will contend that his ambitious arms buildup of the last three years has not pushed the two superpowers closer to confrontation, as some of his critics contend, but has created a clear incentive for Moscow to negotiate.

kind of promises?" PRIOR TO the outbreak, the debate had been a lively exchange among the candidates with little rancor, with each of the candidate seemingly bent on carving out his own turf and image. Mondale stressed being experienced, starting sentences with phrases like, "I was around when it worked," or "I was at Camp David."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said he and Glenn did not vote for Reaganomics as charged but only for the president's tax cut because it was the only alternative available to fight inflation Former Senator George McGovern, D-S.D., was the clear-cut liberal, while former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., were more conservative. While all pledged they would consider a woman running mate, only Jackson said definitely that he would name a woman, saying Margaret Thatcher can run Britain, Golda Meir proved capable as Israel's prime minister and "a woman can run the country. We need to remove this restriction." The candidates split on the size of the defense budget, which McGovern said should be cut 20 percent to 25 percent and Jackson said should be cut by an unspecified amount. Others said there may be a need for modest increases, but not the 17 percent jump Reagan has asked for. ALL OF THE candidates supported a nuclear freeze in some form except Hollings and Askew, but both said they also would work for a reduction in nuclear weapons. Mondale and Cranston clashed on who supported the freeze first. Only Hollings favored reinstatement of the military draft, saying the allvolunteer army made the poor responsible for the nation's defense. Glenn drew guffaws when he asked syndicated talk show host Phil Donuhue, moderating the second half of the debate, whether he wanted to be the "ninth candidate." Staged just six weeks before New Hampshire holds its first-in-the-nation primary Feb. 28, the debate was sponsored by the House Democratic Caucus. Mondale told reporters after the debate, "One thing I really felt honored about, they all attacked Walter Mondale.'

"We all regret that this step has come necessary," Dorsey D. Ellis, Jr., UI vice president for finance, said Thursday. "However, the financial straits in which the university has been aced by the 2.8 percent budget revertion imposed in August and higher fuel costs make drastic action necessary." The hiring "slowdown," announced when the 2.8 percent reversion was imposed last August, has not released enough funds to offset the reversion, Ellis said. In addition, the severe weather Iowa experienced last summer and this December has put the UI's fuel and electricity budget $1 million in the red.

Councilors meet to discuss proposed fiscal '85 budget

By Carlos Trevino

The fiscal 1985 budget submitted to the Iowa City Council by City Manager Neal Berlin is projected at $28.4 million dollars, a 5.4 percent increase over last year's budget, and calls for a 6 percent increase in property taxes for landowners and landlords. Mayor John McDonald, who cautioned that most increases in the budget will be absorbed through user fees, said the increases are moderate and "is a direct reflection of ... what inflation has been over the year."

But Berlin said the increase was also due to "program changes" needed by the city and may vary as the city council meets with city department heads for final approval of their budget requests.

McDonald and the council, which has four recently elected members, began meeting with Berlin and city department heads Saturday "to get aquainted and begin the process of working on the budget," that takes effect July 1, McDonald said.

State law requires that the council approve a new budget by a March 15.

IN ADDITION TO the property tax increase, the proposed budget called for rate increases in other services, including a 15 percent sewer rate increase, a 16 percent water rate increase, and fee hikes for programs offered through the Iowa City Recreation Center

Berlin explained in his report that the water and sewer rate increases are due to a 35 percent increase in operational costs for that service since 1981, when the last increase took effect. The new increases could take effect in July.

The recreation center rate increases, which would apply only to people participating in programs, would provide the center with $141,000 more than it received in fiscal 1984

The recreation rate increases, Berlin explained, would help the city to "increase the current level of leisure time opportunities, the number of people served (by the center) and to advocate public awareness" of recreational benefits at the center. The budget report also states that there would be no rate increases for Iowa City bus transit fares, landfill usage or refuse collection during fiscal 1965.

THE CITY'S 478 employees are the largest single expenditure in the budget at $11.3 million. That figure reflects a 4 percent raise granted to city employees through negotiations between the city and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Berlin's budget proposal states.

However, the proposal states that personnel costs were not finalized because contract talks between city and union officials representing Iowa City's firefighters and police officers have not been concluded.

While police officers are still negotiating with the city, Berlin has proposed a 7.7 percent budget increase, giving the police department a $2.1 million budget increase. According to the proposed budget the police department would also receive three more patrol cars to accomodate new police officers to 'adequately service the community."

Another major cost will be the proposed purchase of the old Iowa City bus barn for $350,000. The barn is being replaced by a new facility under construction. Berlin suggested that the building, which is presently owned by the federal government, could be used for storing other city vehicles and equipment. The council is expected to hold a public hearing on the proposed budget Feb. 14 and make copies of the budget available for public use by Feb. 3.

Student charged in $37,320 theft

By Emily Nitchie

Thomas Bahns, a UI sophomore, faces a preliminary hearing today in connection with a series of unauthorized withdrawals from automated bank teller machines in the Iowa City area amounting to $37,320. Bahns, 21, is being charged with first-degree theft.

The withdrawals were made with the use of an "administrative" banking card accidentally left in an automatic teller machine at the American Federal Savings and Loan Association, 132 E. Washington St.

The card was accidentally left there at 8:18 a.m. Dec. 23 by an employee of S & L Computer Trust, a company that services bank teller machines.

Computer records show that the next transaction occurred seven minutes later when Bahns used his own card in that machine, according to the police statement accompanying the search warrant for Bahns's apartment. On Dec. 29 Bahns's apartment was searched and envelopes containing about $7,500 in $5 and $20 bills were seized, along with a color television set, model rocket engines and receipts from a shoe store and World Radio totaling about $540.

BAHNS WAS CHARGED on Jan. 6 after his fingerprints were identified on the adminstrative card's transactional receipts, which were recovered from the trash near the automatic

NOW creates mock caucus

By Christine Walsh Special to The Daily Iowan

Iowa members of the National Organization for Women participated in a mock precinct caucus demonstration at the Iowa City Public Library Saturday.

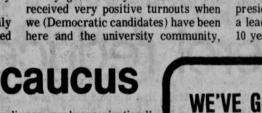

The mock demonstration was presented to representatives of the 16 Iowa chapters by Johnson County Democratic activist Mary Jo Small as part of NOW's state council meeting. NOW members simulated an actual precinct caucus from discussion of resolutions to alignment of candidate support groups

The meeting was designed to give members a better understanding of procedures before the Feb. 20 Iowa caucuses. "We want to encourage members to get involved in the caucuses, to present resolutions

NOW Assistant State Coordinator Sarah Wohlrabe said: "Our decision was primarily based on his stances on NOW's three basic concerns: the Equal Rights Amendment, reproductive rights and human concerns focusing on gay-lesbian rights. Mayor McDonald stresses sewage plant priority

By Carlos Trevino ff Write

In unanimous votes the Iowa City Council Jan. 3 elected two-year atlarge Councilor John McDonald as mayor, replacing out-going Mayor Mary Neuhauser, and chose Councilor Clemens Erdahl, who has served on the council for six years, as mayor pro

McDonald, 39, had been favored to receive the $6,000 per year position. While the council prepares to debate on the city's proposed $28.3 million budget for fiscal 1985, McDonald said Sunday its other priorities include resolving problems surrounding the Iowa City Airport's non-compliance with federal regulations, deciding whether the city needs a new multimillion dollar sewage treatment plant and strategies for economic development.

"The number one priority is the sewage treatment plant," McDonald said. "We'll address this very early .. we're not going to shelve it," he said. McDonald made the key vote in the council's rejection of the first phase of a new $50 million sewage treatment plant construction project in early December.

Former Councilor John McDonald was voted mayor by the lowa City Council on Jan. 3.

MCDONALD SAID the council would most likely seek alternative plans to the multi-million dollar four-phased plan introduced by the city's waste treatment plant consultants, Veenstra of funding we would use for solving the & Kimm Inc. Engineers and Planners problem," McDonald said. of Des Moines. In October, the council learned that

"We also want to find out what type the Iowa Department of Water, Air

d Waste Management would not grant funds to any Iowa City sewage treatment plan until 1991, when the city expects to receive $9.37 million in federal funds. The city will receive a total of $37 million for its sewer project over a three-year period.

Another problem McDonald and the new council will contend with is regaining $295,322 in federal grants and a projected $2 million in future grants by correcting safety violations at the Iowa City Airport.

The grants were lost after the council and the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission granted building permits to Iowa City developer Kenneth Ranshaw, who built a pair of two-story apartment complexes in one of the Iowa City Airport's runway clear zones — a violation of Federal Aviation Administration guidelines.

FAA OFFICIALS told city councilors the apartment complexes could be condemned as safety hazards. They also expect the city to resolve a civil dispute with the Iowa City Airport

McDonald said the council will "be getting back to the (airport) problem soon and will possibly have more information in the near future.'

Regarding economic development, the new mayor said he would prefer to encourage light industries and development firms to come to Iowa City because "we have the advantages over other cities ... we have the university here."

McDonald added that both UI officials and the Greater Iowa City Chamber of Commerce are in favor of attracting those industries.

"It's exciting to have all three groups, the city, the chamber and the university, cooperating on reaching the (development) goals," McDonald said. "All three groups are working together.'

While the public and private sectors are working together, McDonald said in a few months the council would "mesh together very well," as newly elected councilors William Ambrisco, Larry Baker, George Strait and Ernest Zuber gain experience.

"I'm very impressed with the new council, they've really done a lot of research and homework on the issues," McDonald said.

By Susan Yager Special to The Daily Iowan

Lowering blood cholesterol substantially reduces the incidence of heart disease, according to a 10-year, $150million study by 12 medical research centers across the nation, including one in Canada and the UI College of Medicine to prevent boiler breakdowns

By Dawn Ummel cial to The Daily I

A Dec. 21 breakdown of two boilers at the UI Power Plant, which resulted in the reduction of steam heat to the west side of the campus for four hours, will set the pace for more breakdowns if funds are not appropriated to make repairs, UI officials say.

"Breakdowns will continue at an ever-increasing rate" without the $26 million requested by the UI to replace worn-out boiler units, said John Houck, assistant director for utilities and energy conservation at the UI Physical Plant.

Houck said the boiler units range in age from 15 to 30 years, their normal life span being 10 to 15 years.

The December breakdown occurred when a tube ruptured in one boiler, shutting it down and increasing the load on other boilers, which caused a second one to quit.

HOUCK SAID when the load is light and not all the boilers are in use, spare ones can begin operation while the broken one is being repaired. A boiler can take "a few minutes to a few days to repair" depending on the severity of the damage and how long it takes to cool the boiler

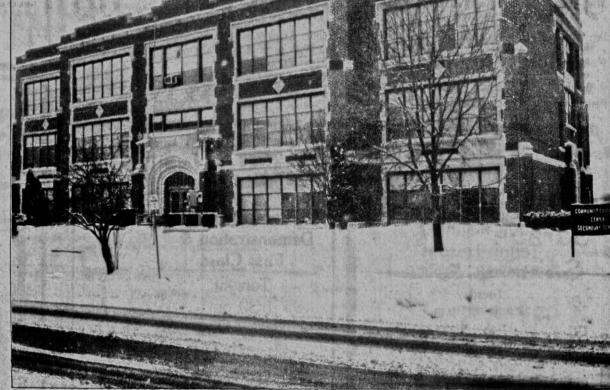

But when the demand for steam heat is heavy and all boilers are operating, a shutdown can put the heat flow "out of service" since no spare boilers are available, Houck said.

Casey Mahon, associate vice president of finance, said the "equipment is old and deteriorated," but there is no guarantee that money will be available in the upcoming state budget to buy new boilers.

"We hope to find a way to convince the (Iowa Legislature's) General Assembly that the cost savings will make construction worthwhile," Mahon said.

But Mahon said she "cannot be overly optimistic that this will go through.'

Houck said no danger levels were reached during the December shutdown, when temperatures dipped below zero, though the sterilization process at UI Hospitals was interrupted until the heat flow returned to normal levels and the sterilization cycles could be repeated.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors has expressed an interest in negotiating with the Iowa City School Board before Jan. 24 when the school board will decide whether to sell the Sabin school building to the county. The supervisors have offered to purchase Sabin, the school district's headquarters at 509 S. Dubuque St., for $700,000, but in last week's school board meeting, School Superintendent David Cronin recommended the school board vote against the purchase.

Supervisor Donald Sehr said the supervisors reviewed Cronin's report at their Thursday meeting and decided to try to set up a meeting with the school board before the board votes.

"I think the taxpayers do deserve it (the purchase)," Sehr said. "The superintendent's recommendation the other night had a few holes in it maybe and we discussed it ... and we would like to sit down with the school board and discuss it.

'Sometimes your mind is already made up before you vote and we would like to have a chance to convince them," he said.

Cronin told school board members the school district is added to the cost Tuesday that if the county purchased of building a new county facility on Sabin, the total cost for finding a replacement for the school district headquarters would be $1,652,750. In addition, the county would have to pay $734,000 to relocate to the Sabin building and upgrade it.

THE COMBINED cost totals $2,386,750, compared to an estimated cost of $2.3 million if the county built a new facility on Harrison Street south of the Johnson County Courthouse

Cronin used $11 per square foot as the measuring stick in estimating the cost of a new school district facility. He obtained this figure after averaging out two estimations of Sabin's value from the county.

But Supervisor Dick Myers said $670,000 could be saved if the county purchased Sabin and the school district built a new facility on land it already owns. Instead of the estimated $2,386,750, the process would cost $1,716,750, according to the supervisors' estimates

He added that the supervisors have determined that if the school district keeps its administrative offices in Sabin, the building would need an estimated $483,000 in upgrading. If the cost of the Sabin upgrading by with board on Sabin purchase Harrison Street, the total would come to $2,783,000, he said, compared to $1,716,750 if the supervisors' route were chosen. The savings would total $1,066,250, Myers said.

'What you've got is a case being made to not do something. I understand we should not force the school board to make a move that would put a burden on the taxpayers, but I don't think we are," Myers said.

CRONIN SAID the school district does not intend to build a new headquarters and added there are "no plans to spend that kind of money ($483,000) to improve" the Sabin building.

In his report to the school board, Cronin wrote: "Several improvements in the Sabin property have been made and the others are planned, such as a landscaping project in conjunction with Project Green. Needed improvements will be made over several years without a major, single-year impact on the district's budget.

This is the third time supervisors have tried to purchase Sabin for office use. In 1980, a referendum to buy Sabin from the school district was voted down.

The school board also rejected an offer by the supervisors to purchase Sabin in 1982.

Yes, the management of Lyn-Mar invites you to order lecture notes from us. We will deliver to you two free weeks of notes. Our service hires graduate students, many of them T.A.'s in the class. They summarize and hand in the notes once a week and then we duplicate and deliver the notes to you early in the following week, depending upon location. We can usually make arrangements for you to pick up your notes early for exams. We offer notes for nearly 20 different classes such as Western Civ., Chem., Math, Soc., Psych, Nursing classes, Art, Music, and Astronomy, to name just a few. Call us to see if we offer your class. Then if you decide to continue for one whole semester, our total charge is $12.99 including tax and delivery.

Publicly private

As if the meager offerings recommended by Gov. Terry Branstad for the state universities aren't enough of a blow to public higher education, Branstad added the insult of proposing that Iowa Tuition Grants for private college students be hiked to cover 62 percent of the difference between tuition at private and public institutions.

While urging a permanent 2.8 percent reduction in the UI's state appropriations for 1984-85, Branstad recommended a $20.5 million expenditure for these equalizers of tuition between state and private colleges.

The Iowa Tuition Grant Program was established in 1969 by then-Gov. Robert Ray to ensure that students demonstrating need could choose any college in the state regardless of its cost. During the 1982 campaign, Branstad promised gradually to raise the level of these grants to 75 percent of the difference between private and public tuition costs.

The equivalent of these grants at the state universities was supposed to be lower tuition. But the regents' decision to collect 12.5 percent higher tuition from undergraduate resident students in 1984-85 is doing its own job of equalizing the cost between private and public institutions.

So here's the scenario: State officials pressure the regents to place a heavier burden of funding education at the state universities on students, and because of waning state help UI officials turn to a massive fund-raising drive to ferret out private support. Meanwhile, the governor slights the state universities in his budget recommendations and continues his quest to deliver aid dolars to private colleges. The division between public and private blurs.

In his condition of the state message, Branstad's brief reference to the regents' institutions goes like this: "Higher education is ... vital to this state's future. And you can show pride in Iowa, Iowa State, UNI ... by fully funding my recommendations."

He continues, "To support our independent college students, you should take another step to increase Iowa's Tuition Grant Program."

The governor is wrong. The step the Iowa Legislature needs to take is back toward more fully funding the state universities with state money and away from funding private colleges with the state's limited resources.

S THE REV. Jesse Jackson sat in Damascus, Syria with freed Navy flyer Lt. Robert Goodman at his side, the host of NBC's "Today" show, Bryant Gumbel, stated the issue succintly

"A New York newspaper says the Syrians have milked your visit.'

Jackson gave a simple reply: "There are those who would look upon peace cynically and look upon war as a great opportunity. I take quite a different view. Success speaks for itself. A combination of forces have come together. The temperature has been lowered somewhat between Syria and America. The cycle of pain has been broken. Lt. Robert Goodman is free. Anybody who can find out of that combination of factors something negative really has a perverted sense of values.'

The Goodman family is in debt to Jackson for freeing their son; the American people are even more indebted to the black preacher-cumpolitician for exposing the magnitude of political and moral perversity that surrounds us.

There are several categories of Americans who would rather have seen Lt. Goodman rot in some Syrian lockup and thousands of other American boys die in Middle East warfare rather than have Jesse Jackson succeed in convincing Syrian President Hafez Assad that simple decency and the cause of peace required him to let the young American go.

FIRST, there are those who believe the long-range interests of the United States and the West lie in a military attack on Syria - if not by the United States then by Israel, armed and financed by the United States. Conservative columnist George Will, who has repeatedly advocated an attack on Syria's military, assailed Jackson as "a political harlequin who is preoccupied with stunts and contemptuous of the national interest."

The Washington Post's David Broder and other political writers already are conceding victory to Reagan in the 1984 presidential elections. Many readers surely ask why, since Reagan presided over the worst recession since the Great Depression, fattened the rich and put new layers of misery on the poor, got the United States into a dreadfully costly escalation of the arms race with the Soviet Union and brought on some worrisome messes in Central America, Africa and the Middle East.

THE ANSWER IS that while Reagan may not be a doer, he is widely perceived as a leader. He is committed to something, and he espouses his convictions with boldness and skill.

Jesse Jackson has proved anew that he is a leader - but also a doer. In fact, he's the only one of this type among the presidential candidates. A, retired admiral (Robert L.J. Not more than a month ago Vice President George Bush made a short swing through El Salvador, staying just long enough to scold its leaders for continuing violations of human rights - namely a recent increase in the number of death squad murders occurring there. Strong language was used. His message, said to be carried straight from the president, was clear: Step up efforts to better the human rights situation in El Salvador or face reductions in the amount of military aid from the United States. (Until last summer, Congress had conditioned military aid, in part, on progress in curbing politically motivated killings.)

It now appears that Bush's highly publicized efforts were little more than lip service.

As the well-leaked Kissinger commission report on Central America dribbled its way into the public eye last week, Democratic members of the commission were said to be celebrating the fact that the report would recommend linking continued American aid with demonstrable progress on human rights. But even before the report was officially released, White House spokesman Larry Speakes announced that President Reagan would be inclined to ignore that recommendation, which Kissinger had also opposed. Speakes later softened the statement, saying the president would remain "open-minded" until reviewing the complete report, but Reagan has previously vetoed congressional attempts to make U.S. aid to El Salvador contingent on improvement in human rights, and it is unlikely his stance will shift, especially when he has Kissinger's concurrence.

Indeed, rather than changing the president's opinion regarding aid to El Salvador, the commission report undoubtedly will be used to reshape both congressional and public perception of the United States' role in Central America. Such a technique is becoming a favorite of the president. Last January his commission on Social Security made recommendations that eventually smoothed the way for a speed-up in Social Security tax increases, and last March a commission on the MX missile recommended arms control modifications that became influential in Congress.

In addition to its use as a political tool, the validity of the commission's findings is itself becoming a matter of debate. While the Kissinger report warns of a serious Soviet-Cuban threat in Central America, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., having completed a separate fact-finding trip to the region, has found little evidence of the same. Moynihan is persuaded that insurgents in El Salvador and Nicaragua are aware of the necessity of an accommodation with the United States, adding that such an awareness should be exploited.

Moynihan also notes that the report has met with criticism from Salvadoran Catholic clergymen, who claim that all American military aid ends up equally in the hands of insurgents and the government, and who fear that more aid will merely increase the level of violence and reduce the chance of a settlement.

By being released in an election year, the commission report is bound to attract greater political attention than its predecessors. Still, it is not likely that partisan posturing will deter the present administration from adopting the commission report piecemeal and using its findings to help justify the recommended increases in military aid regardless of the continued abuse of human rights in e as introlling show that it the region.

even tried very hard to do. But once Jackson succeeded, Mr. Reagan proved himself too smart a politician to get caught up in right-wing perversity. He sent Jackson this message: "It's a great day ... all Americans thank you. I have been praying for you ... I couldn't be happier."

But another dose of perversity has come from critics of Jackson who can't overlook the fact that both Jackson and Goodman are black. The critics poisoned the discussion by raising spurious allegations that Jackson got Goodman out for racial reasons. Jackson did not expect a lot of publicity and some political benefits from his journey. Reagan expects such benefits every time he holds a press conference, visits another city or invites a group of editors to the White House. But a self-defeating perversity mud-dled the thinking of some of the Democratic candidates. Sen. Fritz Hollings felt constrained to criticize the mission to free Goodman with the condescending suggestion that someone "tell Jesse he's not president yet." Hollings, who complains constantly about a recognition factor that is Jackson mission to Syria because while Jackson wounds right-wing Republicans ideologically, he lacerates the other Democrats politically, expos ing them as namby-pambies who won' challenge Reagan head-on.

I hate to mention again this business of race, but has it occurred to anyone that if Jesse Jackson were white. Mondale, Glenn, Reagan and all the rest might today be shaking in their political boots?

Fast food's 'last grasp' for profits

By Richard Panek

HERE COMES a time in the decline of every great civilization when the individual must assume some responsibility for society and insist that enough is, at long last, too much.

Fast food has long served as a metaphor for the decadence of the Western way of life, and with good reason. With its impersonal service, inedible product and overall popularity, it is perfect. But pundits, sociologists and other professional cranks haven't complained too loudly because fast food has always been convenient, inexpensive and, well, fast. Until now. The fast food franchisers have finally gone too far. They've in-stituted one innovation too many, and this time they can't disguise it as progress. It is, if anything, at odds with the very excuse for fast food's existence. It is, in fact, a downright waste of time. It is, in short, anti-fast. It's the Last Grasp.

It comes after the customer finishes ordering. Suppose that all you want is a cup of coffee. In the old, pre-Last Grasp days, the clerk would just accept your money and fetch your order pronto. Now, however, the clerk must ask, "Would you like some pie with that?" Or suppose you order a hamburger and a soft drink. Then the clerk, acting upon instructions from the manager, who in turn is acting upon in-structions from the district manager, who in turn is acting upon instructions from a director of market research, must ask, "Would you like some fries with that?"

THE STRATEGY is clear. It's a Last Grasp at the customer's wallet. By carefully selecting what the clerk suggests with which order - pie with coffee, for example - the marketing director hopes to prompt an impulse sale.

The implication that a customer Sacrifice the convenience of the needs a reminder to help remember every item on a one- or two-item order is insulting, but that fact alone doesn't make the Last Grasp significant. After all, the fast food franchisers have been insulting their customers for a long time. When the fast food folks gave their products silly names, for instance, nobody complained; everyone got food and got it fast. All we had to do was degrade ourselves. Adults with real mortgage worries and actual alimony headaches just gulped and mumbled, "I would like a Whopper." And it doesn't matter that other merchants have adopted the Last Grasp. Bookstores and grocery marts, after all, aren't in business to be quick. No, what makes the Last Grasp the first fast food innovation worthy of our wrath is the fact that it slows the sale. Lest the question of a couple of moments here and there seem trivial, consider that this industry times the preparation of a meal in milliseconds.

So when every clerk across the contiinstant profits. The time has come for the individua to act. From now on, when a clerk at a fast food franchise asks if you want slice of pie or some fries with your or der, look that clerk in the eye and say. "You're denying your existence." Maybe the clerk won't understand

Can't get no satisfaction To the editor:

After reading the review of the Rolling Stones' new album Undercover, we had to take a half-hour away from the preparation for finals to respond to Voland's so-called album review. We just regret that Voland himself couldn't take at least that much time to prepare his views of the last of the great rock and roll bands in history

In the review only two cuts are mentioned, but on the album there are ten whole cuts. Count 'em. To review an LP by just two cuts would be like reading only two chapters of a tenchapter text in preparation for an exam, and it would reflect in the final grade. Voland's method of review surely is evident in all of his attempts. Of course, this could all be due to the possibility that Voland was raised in an atmosphere that lagged behind that of this large university atmosphere.

Maybe there is a course available in the journalism department for beginning reviewers.

Early on, the review states: "The Stones began paying less and less attention to what was happening on the streets and more and more attention to their past." Then, not more than two paragraphs later, is the statement, "Jagger and Keith Richards have about as much right to political comment as James Kilpatrick has singing about having crazy sex with under-aged black girls - none." Contradiction is perhaps the basis of much of Voland's journalistic attempts.

This review suggests that it was written with a mentality equal to that practiced on the afternoon soap operas: very predictable. Voland seems to be caught in a rut, just spinning his wheels, making noise and rehashing his old material. Gee, think of that: Voland can't possibly be 40 years old yet and he already is rehashing his old stuff! Looks like there is a limit to how long a reviewer can put out original material, just like there is an age limit for rock bands. Voland has more than surpassed that limit!

But, we are still hoping that Voland will give us a good review to remember him by. This isn't it, and

Zalesky's pin spurs lowa charge past Cyclones

By J.B. Glass Staff Writer

Iowa's upper weight wrestlers outmuscled rival Iowa State, leading the top-ranked Hawkeyes to a 27-14 victory over the Cyclones Saturday night. A less-than capacity crowd of 12,568 witnessed Iowa win the last five weight classes to up its record to 9-0.

"The match went just about the way I thought it would because our strength is in the upper weights," Iowa Coach J obinson said.

No. 1 rated 158-pounder Jim Zalesky played with ISU's Nick Henson as if he were a pinball before pinning the Cyclone grappler at six minutes, eight seconds to begin the Hawkeyes heavyweight barrage.

The fall, undefeated Zalesky's fourth of the campaign, gave the two-time national champion his 73rd consecutive victory and pulled Iowa within a point of Iowa State at 14-13.

"I FELT A little more motivated with our team behind," Zalesky said. At 167, Iowa's Lindley Kistler earned a 10-4 decision over freshman Bob Gassman, pushing the grapplers in front of sixth-ranked Iowa State, 16-14. Top-ranked 177-pounder Duane Goldmman then added a super superior decision, 24-7, (by 12 or more

"I was going for the pin, but I was just glad I controlled," Goldman said. Iowa 190-pounder Pete Bush and heavyweight Steve Wilbur added victories to close the door on the Cyclones.

Bush beat Mike Porcelli, 9-7, and Wilbur, giving up more then 100 pounds to Cyclone heavyweight Darryl Peterson, won, 5-1, to post his 13th victory of the seasor

IOWA STATE Coach Harold Nichols said he was disappointed in the way some of his wrestlers performed, but on the whole, he said, "I think we wrestled good against them. We kept coming back. That is better than a lot of teams have been doing.'

The final three points of the Cyclones' early lead came when topranked and undefeated Kevin Darkus' scored his 28th victory with a 5-2 decision over No. 7 Tim Riley.

However Mark Trizzino drew with undefeated, untied George Patterson in the 134-pound match to put Iowa on the board.

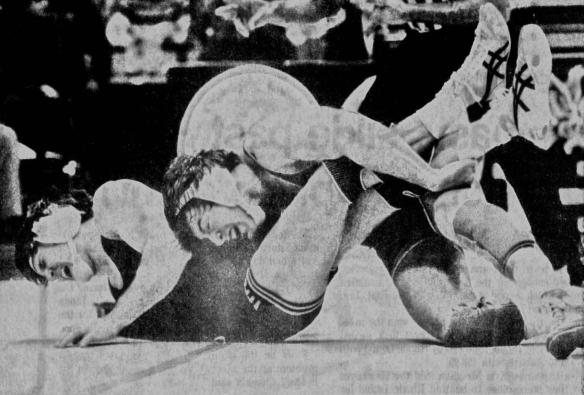

JEFF KERBER recorded his 24th victory against four defeats in a super superior decision, 15-2, over freshman Wayne Sharp at 142 to make the score 11-7, ISU. "It seemed like I got going more as it got going," Kerber said.

"You never know what is going to happen," Robinson said about the fight for statewide bragging rights. "It started off that way, but for (Zalesky) to come out and do what he did helped to swing it back our way.

Iowa has now won 11 of the last 12 meetings between the schools and six in a row. The two will meet again Feb. 18 in Ames.

"I'm pleased we're getting better," Robinson said. "We have some guys who are improving, for example Wilbur. That in itself is one of the turning factors as far as what happens at the end of the year."

Hands and arms fill the air as a battle wages for control of lowa's 76-72 loss to intrastate rival lowa State in doublethe ball beneath the basket in the first overtime period of overtime play in Ames on Saturday.

But to Iowa fans, Hilton Coliseum was the site of another chapter in the growing book of disappointment at the charity stripe for the Hawkeyes, who dropped their third game in the last four starts.

"When it all comes down to the bottom line, we're not making our foul shots when we have to make them," a frustrated Iowa Coach George Raveling said Sunday. "You only get so many opportunities to win a game and you have to take advantage of that."

The Hawkeyes had five possessions in the last minute and a half of the Michigan game two weeks ago and failed to convert. "When that happens, we don't deserve to win," Raveling said.

IOWA CONNECTED on 24 of 34 attempts from the line and Raveling said he isn't quite sure what to do. "I just don't know of any coach in the profession that has a good way of improving foul shooting," he said. "If we hear of an idea that sounds feasible, we'll try it ... God knows we shoot enough of them every day at practice."

Like Thursday's 42-39 win over Northwestern, a game that featured more turnovers than a bakery, the Hawkeyes struggled in the first half Saturday. Iowa was down by as many as 10 points before pulling within five to trail 34-29 at halftime.

Cyclone Barry Stevens came out gunning in the first half, scoring Iowa State's first six points. The junior from Flint, Mich., led all scorers with 28 points in the game before fouling out in the first overtime period.

A SECOND HALF charge saw Iowa taking the lead for the first time since the early going with a hook shot by Brad Lohaus with 8:02 remaining in the game. Greg Stokes, who did not start the game for the first time this season, hit a turnaround jumper with 2:13 left in regulation to tie the game at Neither team could manage to score and a loud Cyclone crowd celebrated as the game went into overtime. The Hawkeyes led throughout much of the first overtime, but Jeff Hornacek, a tough-nosed sophomore, tossed in a lay in with 22 seconds remaining to tie the game at 65.

Iowa failed to score following a time out and the Cyclones came out strong in the second overtime period. Hawkeye Steve Carfino and ISU's Ron Virgil traded buckets to begin the second extra session, but it was all Iowa State after that.

THE CYCLONES built a 73-68 lead on a lay in by Terrance Allen with 43 seconds remaining, and for all intent purposes, the game was over. Allen added a jam with 12 seconds left to increase the Cyclone margin to six and Michael Payne provided the final margin with a basket two seconds before the horn.

Iowa basketball player Johnny Fort may not be leaving the Iowa basketball team after all.

Following Saturday's Iowa-Iowa State basketball game, Hawkeye Coach George Raveling released a statement saying that the freshman guard had asked for and received permission to withdraw from the Iowa basketball team.

Raveling said Sunday morning that apparently some miscommunication occured, and that Fort, who did not travel with the team to its game at Iowa State, just wanted to leave the team for a few days and think a few things over.

"This morning, Mrs. Fort called me and said that Johnny felt he needed to get away and think things out," Raveling said. "He has decided he's coming back to Iowa City and he's on a bus today heading back for Iowa City."

Raveling said he believes that Fort feels "he ought to be playing more. I think you have to play the players based on their performance in practice. In my opinion, I don't feel he was play-ing better than Berkenpas Fullard, Banks or Carfino.' Raveling plans to meet with Fort this morning and talk things over. "I want to talk to him and make sure we have an un-derstanding," Raveling said. "I don't want to judge him so harshly. My primary concern has got to be the individual and not the coach's own ego.'

Stringer displeased with Hawkeye performance

The old adage "It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game" holds true to form for Iowa women's basketball Coach Vivian Stringer.

Stringer, in her first year as the lowa coach, has not been exceptionally pleased with the way the Hawkeyes performed over Christmas break. The Hawkeyes compiled a 4-3 record, including 2-1 in Big Ten action, over that

Dunn expecting big dual season

By Steve Batterson Sports Editor

If Saturday's dual at Minnesota was any indication, fans of Iowa men's gymnastics may have many good things to look forward to this season.

The Hawkeyes dropped their opening dual meet of the season to the Gophers, 275.85-274.8 at Williams Arena, but Iowa Coach Tom Dunn was excited about his team's performance.

"I really don't expect 30 perfect routines on January 15," Dunn said. We're way ahead of where we want to be in that respect for this time of vear.

Hawkeye Dan Bachman finished third in a tough field of all-arounders with a 55.4, a personal best. Iowa's Stu exceptional on rings. They made up Breitenstine and Joe Leo won top honors on the floor exercise and the pommel horse, respectively, and Aaron BreMiller tied for first on the still rings.

BREITENSTINE AND Leo both posted 9.6 marks while BreMiller tied Gopher Tom Groechel with a 9.4.

In the meet, the Hawkeyes jumped off to an early lead based on sturdy performances on the floor exercise, where all five gymnasts finished with at least a 9.0, and the pommel horse.

"We had a little trouble on the rings; we were just a little shaky in spots," Dunn said. "They (Minnesota) were most of the ground they'd lost."

But it was parallel bars, one of the Gophers' top events, that put the win away for Minnesota. "That's where they won the meet," Dunn said. "We did well, we had a few minor breaks and we covered them up well." Dunn said all-around winner Joey Ray and Rob Brown really had an exceptional meet for Minnesota.

THE HAWKEYES again finished strong with a stellar performance on the horizontal bar with all five competitors scoring at least a 9.3.

Dunn said the strength of the Gophers, who had problems earlier in the season, took him by surprise. "Of these meets we have coming up, I thought that Southern Illinois and Illinois would be the toughest meets. The complexion of Minnesota's team has really changed since earlier. But I do think that if the meet would have been on another floor, we might have won." The previous weekend, the Hawkeyes took the top five spots in the all-around at Michigan State's Spartan Invitational. Bachman scored a 9.65 on the parallel bars to break a four-year Iowa school mark held by Chuck Graham.

The Hawkeyes will continue a tough string of road duals this weekend with a Friday meet at Southern Illinois and a Saturday date with Illinois.

A good team performance on the floor exercise was good enough for the Iowa women's gymnastics squad to finish second at the Gator Invitational, Jan. 11 in Gainesville, Fla.

Florida, ranked sixth in the nation, won the meet with a score of 182.95. The Hawkeyes took second with a score of 167.50, followed by Rhode Island with 166.75 and Auburn with 159.95.

Iowa freshman Kris Meighan said the Hawkeyes knew they were close to beating Rhode Island for second place going into the last event.

Iowa Coach Diane Chapela said the competition at the invitational was stiff but her gymnasts were not intimidated by it. "I was really pleased with our performance," she said. "The gymnasts really rose to the occasion."

MEIGHAN WAS the Hawkeyes' top finisher, taking third in the all-around with a 34.3. Meighan had previously set a new Iowa record in the all-around competition with a score of 35.10 at the Iowa Invitational, Dec. 3.

Gator Bowl

Florida sunshine deserted tailgaters

By Thomas W. Jargo sistant Sports Edito

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - Although the weather was not conducive to tanning their winter-whitened bodies, a cluster of black-and-gold clad Iowa football fans headed for Atlantic Beach on the morning of the 39th annual Gator Bowl.

But these Hawkeye faithfuls, totaling about 30, found other ways of enjoying the beach on an overcast day. Many just marveled at the breath-taking sight of the Atlantic Ocean. They all got their pictures taken with their mammouth friend in the background. Two young men ignored temperatures in the mid-30s and seven mile an hour winds and went wading, much to the amusement of the others.

STILL OTHERS found serenity in watching a man and his two daughters feed bread to the seagulls, which hovered above the threesome's outstretched arms cautiously dropping close enough to snare a morsil of bread.

But one man, with his back to the chilly wind and his arms clinched around his chest, just stood in the middle of all these frolicing Hawkeye fans, seemingly asking himself why in the world he was out on the beach in such weather

He said, "These have to be Hawkeye fans because nobody from Florida would be out here on a day like this." As the mercury registered a mere 34 degrees and the wind chill made it a brisk 25 outside, hundreds of chilledthrough Florida fans huddled in the warm entrance of the basketball coliseum, which was adjacent to the Gator Bowl Stadium, while awaiting the start of the game.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - A sign in the north end zone of the Gator Bowl seemed to sum it up - They don't call it the Hawkeye Bowl.

The hometown favorite Florida Gators claimed a 14-6 victory over the Iowa football team as two of the nation's better offensive units were shut down in a defensive struggle.

"What did you guys think of the game?" Iowa Coach Hayden Fry asked members of the media following the game. "I didn't think too much of it. A lot of defense, and that was just about

Florida's superior defensive effort stopped the Big Ten's top offensive unit consistently. According to Fry, that was the difference in the ballgame. "Florida's defense just did an excep-tional job. The Gators had the best team on the field tonight."

INCLIMENT WEATHER was a problem for just about everyone the week prior to the Gator Bowl. While Jacksonville officials were hustling around trying to fix water pipes that had burst at the bowl during a Christmas night freeze, Fry and Gator Coach Charley Pell were sitting around the teams' hotels as rain allowed only one Hawkeye practice and two Florida practices in Jacksonville prior to the game.

By game time, the weather became unstable again, with temperatures dropping to 34 degrees which sent Floridians scampering for warmer gear. Despite the cold, Florida wareven i Gators set a bowl record of 12 penalties for 105 yards. Pell, whose teams had an 0-6 mark in games played in the bowl (Florida meets Georgia annually in Jacksonville), said the win was more than just another victory.

fifth-year Hawkeye coach said. "I felt it during the week because we only had one practice."

THE GAME WAS a scoreless tussle in the first quarter until Gator tailback Neal Anderson dove across the goal line in the final minute to give Florida a 7-0 lead at the quarter.

Hawkeye Tom Nichol pulled the Hawkeyes closer with a 32-yard field goal with 5:45 remaining in the first half Nichol was also involved in the most important Florida scoring drive of the night - a scoring drive that wasn't even a drive.

Just under two minutes remained in the first half when the Gators stalled the Hawkeye offense at the Iowa nine yard line. Nichol was called upon to punt and the junior was unable to handle a snap from center Joel Hilgenberg and he dropped the ball in front of him in the end zone. The ball hit the ground twice before Gator reserve linebacker Doug Drew fell on the ball to help lead Florida to a 14-3 halftime edge as an ABC-TV national audience looked on.

Florida Gator Neal Anderson dives over the lowa defensive line in the fourth the attempt to gain a first down on the play, scored Florida's first touchdown quarter of the Gator Bowl Classic in Jacksonville, Fla. Anderson, who failed in during the first quarter. He finished with 87 yards rushing.

"IT WAS IMPORTANT for us to win to have an opportunity to break into the top 10," Pell said. "Obviously we weren't as prepared as we needed to be or we wouldn't have had so many penalties. Those penalties were all mine, but the players overcame that and they just kept on coming back, overcoming them time after time." Actually, it may not have been that dramatic. The Hawkeye defense had as much luck stopping the Florida offense as the Gator defense stopped Iowa. The Hawkeyes managed to stop Florida's highly-touted passing game of quarterback Wayne Peace. The senior was held to nine of 22 completions for 92 yards. Peace also had two interceptions.

IT WAS THAT kind of a night for all-Big Ten quarterback Chuck Long as well. The junior was picked off four times after having only eight interceptions during the entire 11-game regular season. Long connected on 13 of 29 passes for 167 yards - his third lowest total of the year.

"I really don't know what I can say," Fry said. "It was one of the most frustrating games I've ever seen. I can't believe on offense we couldn't make the critical plays we needed to make. Our defense certainly gave us a chance to win by holding a fine Florida offense to one touchdown.

"We just weren't crisp at all," the

"NICHOL DID the wrong thing in trying to pick up the muffed snap on. the punt," Fry said. "He should have fallen on the ball.'

The junior from Green Bay, Wis. knew what he was supposed to do. "Obviously the best thing I could have done was to fall on the ball in the end zone," Nichol said. "I just tried to get the ball and jump on it. The ball was bouncing away and the Florida player was going right towards it. He just had a head start.

Nichol added another field goal with 11 minutes remaining in the third quarter to pull Iowa to within eight but future Hawkeye drives were ended by a missed field goal and pass interceptions

The problems Nichol had aren't something he will easily forget. "As the game ticked down, I kept thinking to myself that so often the special teams decide the game," he said. "I had to erase it from my mind but the other people work so hard. Had I punted the ball, it could have been different."

SLIM HOPES OF an Iowa win remained with the 20,000 Hawkeye fans who made the 1,200-mile journey to the coastal city when Pell elected to go for the first down on a fourth and one situation rather than attempt a field goal from the Iowa 18-yard line with nearly seven minutes remaining in the game. The Hawkeye defense held and

Hawkeye running back Eddie Phillips is held aloft for a gain of three yards on the play in third quarter action of the Gator Bowl. The Florida defensive Iowa took over the ball. A 10-yard sack of Long by Gator linebacker Wilbur Marshall stalled the Hawkeye drive and Nichol was forced to punt.

The stingy Florida defense allowed the Hawkeyes inside the Gator 35-yard line five times, but the Hawkeyes only came away with two field goals. Iowa reached the Florida 14 on its second possession, but an interception by safety Tony Lilly kept the Hawkeyes out of the end zone and the ball out of Hawkeye Dave Moritz' hands. Moritz, Iowa's leading receiver this year, failed to catch a single aerial.

"THEY COVERED Dave pretty well," Long said. "Dave got open a few times but when Dave Moritz goes through a whole ballgame without catching a pass, it hurts us."

"Florida did an excellent job on the junior signalcaller said. "We didn't do a lot offensively and neither did they. It was just a good defensive ballgame. I'm not sure if the layoff (between the end of the regular season and the bowl game) affected us or not.'

David," Fry said. "They took a lot away from us. "It got a little frustrating out there,"

ALTHOUGH THE PASS fell incomplete, Nichol felt good that Fry hadn't lost faith in his ability. "I was really happy that Coach Fry had believed petitor he is, summed up the game this enough in me to attempt the fake punt.

I was really down after the punt and it helped to pump me up again." The Iowa kicker did have some bright moments in the game as well. He punted twice for a 40-yard average, outdoing the potent Gator punter Ray Criswell. Criswell, who averaged an impressive 47.3 yards per kick during the regular season, could only manage a 33.3 yard average in four kicks against Iowa.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - The look on Iowa kicker Tom Nichol's face after the Hawkeyes' 14-6 loss to Florida in the 39th Gator Bowl was one of deep disappointment.

The junior from Green Bay, Wis., provided most of the excitement for Florida fans and all of the scoring for Iowa fans to cheer. Throw in a pass from punt formation, which fell incomplete, and it is obvious that Nichol played a bigger part in the game than most anticipated he would.

For the most part, the game was a struggle between the vaunted Gator defense and the surprisingly tough Iowa defenders. But the big play unexpectedly occured in the final one minute, eight seconds of the first half with Florida ahead, 7-3.

NICHOL DROPPED back to his goal line to punt, "something I've done a million-zillion times before," he said after the game. Center Joel Hilgenberg put the ball right on target, but it hit off Nichol's helmet and rolled through his legs where Gator linebacker Doug Drew fell on the ball in the end zone for what proved to be the death blow to the Hawkeyes.

"(Hilgenberg) snapped the ball right back to me and it was facemask-high, Nichol said. "I put my hands up and the rest is history. It hit my helmet and bounced up in the air.'

Although Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said Nichol should have just fallen on the ball, the fifth-year Hawkeye coach still had confidence in his kicker because with 37 seconds remaining in the half, the former high school quarterback attempted to hit Lon Olejniczak from punt formation.

punt the ball ... and they wouldn't have made any more points and I would have been able to make the field goal (he missed a 40-yarder late in the third quarter) we'd have won." At that point, his white Gator Bowl jersey No. 3 in hand, Nichol left the in-

Floridians impressed with class of the lowans at football classic

By Thomas W. Jargo Assistant Sports Editor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - This is for all the approximately 20,000 Iowa football fans who made the 1,200-mile trek to Florida for the 39th annual Gator Bowl - Y'all are just mighty fine folks, and we're happy to have made your aquaintance.

That was the reaction of five Florida Gator fans after meeting many members of the black and gold entourage that hit Jacksonville a few days prior to the Gator Bowl.

Overall, they were impressed with the sportsmanship, friendliness and class exhibited by all the Hawkeye faithful.

"I haven't met a better group of fans in my life," said a man who calls himself Mr. Florida because he wears the Florida state flag to Gator football games. "They are very nice, very kind and very friendly people who cheer with no ani mosity.

"I AM VERY impressed with and very appreciative of Iowa fans. They are really great people." Eric Steiner, a Florida student, said he was surprised by Iowa fans "because most fans cheer with ani mosity.

"They (Iowa fans) like to cheer for their team and boo the other team, which is the way it should be," Steiner said. "But to them, it's all in fun. They say 'hey, lets be friends and have fun.' "They act like they have known you a long time and you just met them five minutes ago," Steiner adds. "Iowa fans are the best fans I have ever talked to."

Jeff Clarke, another Florida student, said Hawkeye fans compared favorably over those at Auburn.

"We had beer cans thrown at us at Auburn," Clarke said, referring to when he and friends ventured to Auburn, Ala., on Oct. 29 to watch Florida tangle with the Tigers, a game Auburn won, 28-21.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - He is not faster than a speeding locomotive. He is unable to leap tall buildings in a single bound. And he is not a crusader of good and a conqueror of all that is evil. Actually, he is just a University of Florida football fan who happens to look good in a cape. Well, it's not really a cape - A flag would be more apropos to describe this gentleman's attire.

He calls himself "Mr. Florida" and wraps the Florida state flag around his slender body to signify his self-proclaimed stature. In fact, he has worn the state flag to every Florida football game both on the road and at home - in the past two years.

Clarke said, motioning to the clusters of black and gold in the vicinity. Mike Boyd, who had his face painted in Florida's school colors, orange and blue, thought Iowa fans would be "stuck up" after the Hawkeyes went to

Well, Mr. Florida succeeded in his mission and was granted his chosen reward - two truckloads of beer. That's right, two truckloads.

"You think most people would settle for two cases of beer," said Eric Steiner, a friend of Mr. Florida and one member of the losing party. "We're still paying off the two trucks of beer.'

Mr. Florida was dressed in full regalia prior to the Gator Bowl match-up between his beloved Gators and the Iowa Hawkeyes. But it didn't appear as though the cloth flag was enough protection against the seven mile per hour winds that made it a brisk 25 degrees outside.

He admitted to being just a little unaccustomed to the weather, but added sarcastically, "I'd like to see a little snow.

Curry said he found the Iowa-Florida match-up to be "anticlimatic."

"He only cares about two (Florida) games - Florida State and Georgia,' said Curry's wife with nods of agreement from him.

Curry, who is a native of Hawaii, had words of warning to all Iowa fans who thought the Hawkeyes would have had an edge over Florida in cold weather. "We might play you in the Aloha Bowl some year under our conditions ... I'll see you there," he said.

daily life goes on in Jacksonville

By Steve Batterson Sports Editor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - While some Iowa fans were walking along a chilly beach, life went on as usual for many of the residents of Florida's largest city as Gator Bowl and Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce officials were scurrying around trying to make the visiting Hawkeyes feel at home

there's a game in town this "Oh, week?'

That was news to a waitress at a seafood restaurant on the city's west side and to several other people, but many Jacksonville natives expressed a special interest in this year's game for one simple fact - the Florida Gators. Some 20 percent of all the Gator season football tickets are sold in the Jacksonville area, and Florida's appearance in the bowl only raised the excitement of the fans in this city.

"I USUALLY DON'T pay too much attention to the game, but Florida is there this year so I'll listen to it on the radio - it's not on TV," said Sheila Winston, an employee of a Jacksonville Woolworths store. "I'd love to see the game but I don't have any tickets."

ABC-TV owns the rights for the game and it was blacked out in the Jacksonville area in an effort to spur local ticket sales. And with the Gators in Jacksonville, there weren't too many tickets to be found, despite temperatures in the upper 20s during the game that sent many Floridians looking for warmer clothes to wear to the game, including a run on Gator stocking hats at local stores. The fun for Florida began Wednesday night when a huge pep rally was held at the Jacksonville Civic Center. The rally brought out several thousand people, decked out in orange, ready to meet Coach Charley Pell and get autographs from the Florida players.

MEANWHILE, JESSE Roland was sitting in the Greyhound bus depot some two blocks away. For him, the game really didn't mean too much. "I've been around here for so long that I don't get too excited about these things," he said while sipping on a cup of coffee. "The only time I really liked the thing was when ol' Woody Hayes hit that guy (referring to an incident in the 1978 Gator Bowl game when the for-

into town," Roland said, "and we've got enough of that already.'

City officials were worried that Jacksonville area hotels could lose somewhere in the neighborhood of $500,000 because of icy roads that prevented many Hawkeye fans from getting to Florida as early as they planned or forced them to cancel reservations altogether.

Members of the Jacksonville Convention and Visitors Bureau were concerned that bookings at area hotels were down from previous years. Things didn't pick up substantially as the game day neared.

"We've had some late entries in the last few days, but it hasn't been terribly busy," Terry Fitzpatrick, the visitor bureau's executive director, told the Jacksonville Journal during the week.

Most Hawkeye fans found it easy to stay away from Jacksonville until close to game time, many spending a few days in the warmer temperatures of central Florida.

As one Iowa fan put it, "Why come here when there is so much to do nearby, there really isn't much to do mer Ohio State coach shoved a Clemhere unless you like to go to the beach in your winter coat." "All it does is bring a lot of traffic

Pregame Hoedown brings together opposing fans

By Mike Condon Assistant Sports Editor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - As has become a tradition of Iowa Hawkeye football fans at bowl games, a huge pregame bash was held the evening before Iowa and Florida met in the • Gator Bowl.

But this year things were a little different. In the past, Hawkeye fans held their own exclusive bash for them-& selves. But the folks at the Gator Bowl do things a little differently.

For the fourth consecutive year, the Gator Bowl Hoedown brought together fans from both of the participating schools. Bad weather forced the festivities to be moved from Metropolitan Park to the Memorial Coliseum adjacent to the 81,000-seat Gator Bowl. BUT THE MOVE did nothing to dampen the spirits of the 12,000 or so fans that showed up to the free party, which featured country bands Whiskey River, Palmer Kaleel and Atlanta. Atlanta was recently named the top new country band in the country. The fans were also treated to a laser show on a big screen suspended over the stage. Many images were flashed on the screen, including Iowa's TigerHawk symbol and the Florida insignia. The show was donated by Image Engineering Corporation of Boston

Although the Iowa fans seemed to outnumber Gator fans, plenty of noise was made by both sides when the cheerleaders from both schools made appearances. Joe Graham, who captained the Gators football team in the late 1940s, said the Hoedown was a tremendous event for the fans of both sides. "It's just great to see the fans from both schools getting together and trading stories about which school has the better team," he said.

GRAHAM SAID THE reason Iowa fans outnumber those from Florida was simple. "Gainesville (where the University of Florida is located) is only about 90 miles south of here and most of the fans will be coming up for the game. You can bet the stadium will be pro-Florida (it was without question).

A number of Gator fans had the typical impressions of what an Iowan is. "Hell, all they do up there is grow corn," one slightly inibriated Gator fan bellowed as he entered the Coliseum. From another: "All they have up there is pig farmers."

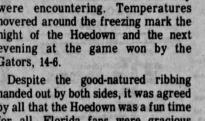

The best line may have come from one of the many attendants at the Coliseum. He took his pocket calendar out of his pocket and opened it to a map of the United States and asked, "Where is Iowa on this map?"

THE BIGGEST JOKE among Iowa fans to their Gator counterparts was on the "warm" Florida weather they were encountering. Temperatures hovered around the freezing mark the night of the Hoedown and the next evening at the game won by the Gators, 14-6.

handed out by both sides, it was agreed by all that the Hoedown was a fun time for all. Florida fans were gracious hosts to their guests from the Midwest and most couldn't believe so many fans would travel over 1,200 miles just for a football game.

"The only fans comprable to Iowa, are the ones at Clemson," Graham said. "I mean those Clemson fans will buy anything that says Clemson on it. From what I heard, most of these Iowa fans had to fight bad weather just to get here. That's dedication.

Hayden Fry believes he has the best fans around," he said. "Although we're loyal at Florida, I doubt 25,000 fans would travel 1,200 miles to watch a football game."

"I can see why (Iowa football Coach)

Christmas was not much of a break for the Iowa men's swimming team.

Coach Glenn Patton and his staff put the Hawkeyes through their annual intensive training camp, Dec. 26-Jan. 11, and this year they did their swimming in Jacksonville and Palm Beach, Fla.

Working out in Florida offered Iowa two main things they don't get when practicing at the Field House Pool - the Atlantic Ocean and an Olympic-sized, 50-meter pool for training.

"It was very important that we got some 50-meter training in, because there are no 50meter pools in the state (Iowa)," Patton said. "It helped our guys that will be going to the Olympic trials.

THE HAWKEYES had a chance to prove their intensive training did them some good when they met up with power South Carolina on Jan. 12, and they certainly took advantage of the situation

Iowa pounded the Gamecocks, usually a top 20 team, 66-47, in the South Carolina pool. Distance freestyler Alan Hays was Iowa's only double winner, and he led the way as the Hawkeyes took eight of the 13 events. Hays, a sophomore, grabbed both the 500- and 1,000yard freestyle titles.

After coming out of their first Iowa training trip, three Hawkeye freshmen did surprisingly well in South Carolina. Rookie Ed Lower set a Big Ten season best time of one minute, 40.60 seconds in the 200 freestyle, and was second in the 100 freestyle.

FRESHMEN SCOTT Smith (one-meter diving) and Kurt Benson (200 breaststroke) were also winners against the Gamecocks. Iowa had one other encounter over the holiday break, as they crunched Missouri, 86-47.

Patton's team took 11 of the 15 events and they were paced by four double winners. Tom Roemer, Tom Williams, Smith and Lower had two wins for the Hawkeyes.

In addition, the Iowa 800 free relay team of Lower, Bryan Farris, James Lorys and Hays set a Missouri pool record time of 6:57.04.

Track team dominates; two Hawks break records

By Brad Zimanek Staff Writer

Impressive. That's the word needed to describe the performance of the Iowa men's track team at the Cretzmeyer Invitational Saturday.

The team, led by record-breaking efforts by Todd Wigginton and Ronnie McCoy, clearly dominated the meet against Northwestern and Illinois State. No team scores were kept Wigginton, a transfer from Western Illinois, won the pole vault competition and set a building record as he cleared 16 feet, eight inches. Wigginton, competing in his first meet as a Hawkeye, broke Dave Nielsen's record of 16 feet, five inches set in 1975.

"I was working for the record and I've been vaulting really well as of late," Wigginton said. "I had a really good break. I worked with my old high school coach over Christmas and he really helped out a lot."

WIGGINTON MADE three attempts at 17-2 and barely missed clearing that on his third attempt. This would have given Wigginton the school record, breaking Nielsen's 1975 mark of 16-10.

"I was real close on that last attempt at 17-2 and I do need a bigger pole," Wigginton said. "It's not stiff enough for that type of a vault.'

Wigginton will attempt to clear 17-2 next Saturday against Notre Dame, which would qualify him for nationals.

Stokes as much as Lohaus because Lohaus had that little kid (6-foot Allen) guarding him and when you have that situation you know you're going to get your shots off." Raveling said.

A Johnny Orr-coached Iowa State team had never beaten Iowa and the relief was evident on the fourthyear mentor's face. "We're elated to win because the Hawkeyes are a great ballteam," Orr said.

McCoy had his own share of sterling performances as he did his Carl Lewis imitation by taking a triple at Saturday's meet. McCoy won the long jump, the 60-yard hurdles and the 60-yard dash.

"Ronnie McCoy just had a super meet. He ran some really good times for it being so early in the season," Iowa assistant track Coach Mike Gilbert said. "We are obviously strongest in the sprints and I feel this squad can compete with anybody in the Big Ten."

McCOY SET A school and building record with his victory in the 60-yard hurdles. McCoy ran the distance in 7.42 seconds breaking the record which he established a year ago.

That wasn't all the excitement in store for the Hawkeyes as the most exciting race of the afternoon pitted Iowa's Terrence Duckett and Paul Chepkwony against each other in the 600-yard dash.

Chepkwony led most of the race but slowed considerably at the finish as Duckett edged him at the tape, even though both runners were given credit for running the event in 1:10.89.

The final record-breaking performance for Iowa came in the last event of the meet as the mile relay team of Victor Greer, Caesar Smith, Kenny Williams and Duckett beat the building record of 3:16.82 set last year by the same foursome. The mile relay time from Saturday's meet was 3:15.2.

The Hawkeyes will challenge Notre Dame Saturday at noon in the Recreation Building.

It also offered what few musical theater productions can boast - songs that sing on their own merits.

• Sea Marks by Riverside Theatre Company. I loved this beautiful, heartrending portrait of a mismatched couple. The ambience and acting of this production anchored me deeply in the playwright's world. And I almost missed it due to my sprained ankle. • Tintypes at Old Creamery Theater. This production captured the ment OCT cast at their most professional revealing substantial acting, vocal and directorial talent. The show was especially exciting in its use of photographs as commentary on the parade of songs.

• Amadeus at Hancher. Broadway imports are not usually my favorite theater choice, but I've had the opportunity to see shows in both places, and Hancher's version is usually as good or better than the original. However, Broadway's reliance on stars has often implied a weak script - something even an excellent road company cannot save. Amadeus proved a notable exception to this with its drawing-room mystery about ambition, creativity and competition between artists.

• Chekov One-Acts by Riverside Theatre Company. 1983 was not a year characterized by the Old Masters, so this production was a refreshing standout. The performances danced with insight and verve. RTC gives Iowa City theater a sparkling dimension not to be missed

• Measure For Measure at Mabie. Shakespeare's story of a displaced ruler was plunged into the cold, stark world of modern Eastern Europe. Despite liberties taken with the text and setting, this version made an intensely powerful visual and political state-bered with a wrong-headed script, Pat Carroll nonetheless lit up the vast spaces of the Hancher stage with her wit, vivacity and uncanny comic timing. She demonstrated that one-person shows can be not only viable, but keenly dramatic.

• Tale of Two Cities at Mabie. The inner voice of Dickens' novel became a stunning, dramatic voice in Bitterman's adaptation, and the multiple (three-person) direction provided an evening of full-bodied entertainment. I will spare you my "ten-worst" list. When the theater becomes as wellattended as the cinema, and produces as many clunkers as Hollywood does, then I will personally take charge of skinning the turkeys.

Soviets claim Orwell's '1984' depicts reality

Newspeak, telescreens and hate sessions of George Orwell's novel "1984" are a reality in the United States, the official Izvestia newspaper said Sunday of the book that is banned in Moscow as anti-Soviet.

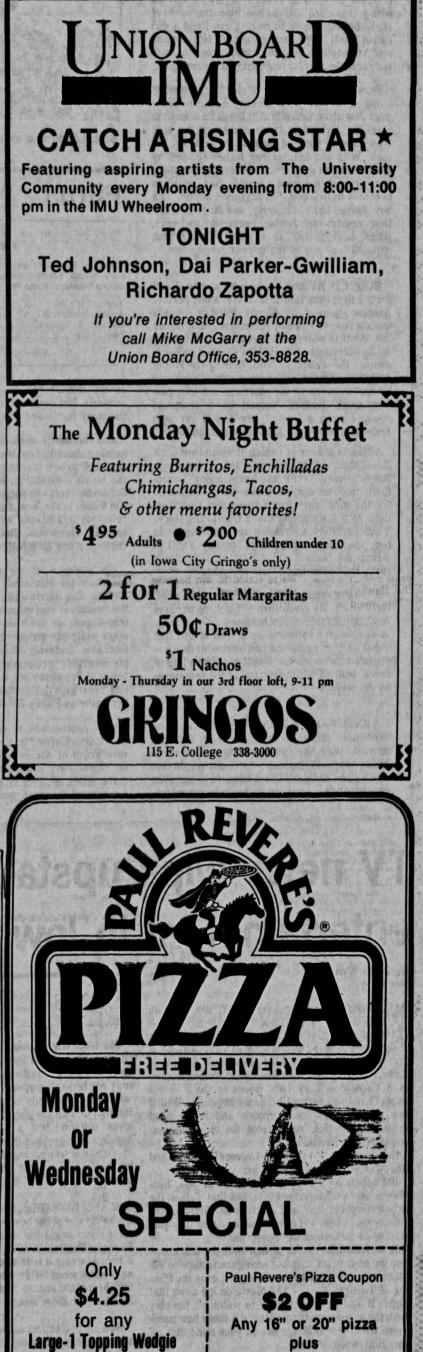

Orwell aimed his darts at socialism but hit his own culture, the official Soviet government newspaper said in the conclusion of a two-day series depicting American life as the nightmare society envisioned by the British author

"Art played a trick on Orwell,"

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Izvestia said. "The rotting future of socialism he described turned out to be the disgusting reality of capitalism."

Orwell's Newspeak - inverted slogans such as "War is Peace" and "Freedom is Slavery" - are embodied by the motto of the U.S. Air Force, "Peace is our Profession," Izvestia said.

The telescreen, which monitors every action of every individual in Orwell's fictional Oceania, is the American reality, the newspaper said. "There is no harbor, no salvation from the real telescreen of Uncle Sam," Izvestia said.

skinny-dip; Hadass telling Yentl that she's now ready to consummate their marriage.

Even in its minor details, the movie has an effortless air. Its symbolism - chickens in cages representing the women banished to the balcony at temple, for instance, or a tree of life that Yentl's father points out just before his death doesn't clunk with the weight of its own importance. Instead, it's simply one of the techniques of storytelling.

YENTL FALTERS only toward the end, when Streisand turns the story into a feminist morality play. She's still working with the same broad methods that she used earlier in the movie, and the politics are admirable and even consistent (an asset not to be underestimated, Barbra. The movie's previous songs have been the musical equivalents of Yentl's interior monologues or voice-overs, but this time she sings while she strides through a crowd of immigrants. Suddenly she's back to Barbra, the pre-director, pre-producer, pre-screenwriter belter of Broadway and Hollywood tunes. (When this Yentl gets to Ellis Island, she might change her name to Fanny Brice.)

Such concessions to popular tastes are unnecessary. Earlier in Yentl Streisand shows a sure grasp of ancient storytelling techniques; she should have had a little more confidence in them. After all, they've served their tales well for several thousand years.

F YOU LEFT town over break, boy, did you miss a lot of good films. It sure is nice of the Iowa City theaters (whoever they decide to blame) to bring us Uncommon Valor instead of Star 80, or Two of a Kind instead of Terms of Endearment, or The Man Who Loved Women instead of A Christmas Story (who wants to see a movie about Christmas during Christmas anyway?). With a few commercials for diamonds and Super Spud before the movies, you missed the cinematic experience of a lifetime.

But don't fret too much - Uncommon Valor and The Man Who Loved Women are still in town.

If Uncommon Valor had been made in 1955, John Wayne would have starred in it. But that's about the only difference; that, and a little post-Vietnam sensitivity that rings so false when you know they just wanted to make a shoot-'em-up pic.

It was hard for me to stomach all the machismo and the he-man killing after seeing the footage of Vic Morrow being killed by a helicopter during the filming of Twilight Zone - The Movie on the news that night. It was an eerie feeling to watch all the play with the helicopters in this film; it's funny how much more effect a real image has on your mind than all this Hollywood bravado.

HERE'S A quick summary of the plot; add in some pretty routine direction, mediocre acting, and you get the picture of Uncommon Valor. Gene Hackman's son was captured and placed in a POW camp in Vietnam. So 15 years later, Hackman gathers all his son's old buddies together and sets out on a mission to bring Frank back. Lots of training, lots of explosions, lots of killing, the end. You get up, walk out of the theater, and forget you'd ever seen a movie ten minutes ago.

That night my friends and I returned home and watched the Vic Morrow footage a few times on the Cable News Network; call it morbid or sick, the dark images kept a hold on our imagination. Usually I sleep well at night, but that night I kept imagining helicopters crashing into my apartment. And it wasn't Uncommon Valor that gave me those nightmares.

were those theater employees upset to see me walk in. So there I sat in an empty auditorium, clapping, yelling and laughing; all in all, I acted about the age that the movie expected me to be - three. I think the press packet sums it up nicely. "There that's hard to forget.

are certain names in Hollywood that seem to belong together, names that ultimately evoke the special kind of screen chemistry which guarantees audiences a memorable time." I may forget Uncommon Valor, but Two of a Kind is one movie

By Carlos Trevino Staff Writer

Citing the UI College of Pharmacy as a major factor in their decision, a newly formed Iowa pharmaceutical corporation has decided to locate in Iowa City.

Iowa City. Pharmaceutical Development System Corp. executives said plans for building the 40,000 square-foot plant in Iowa City's industrial park at Heinz Road could begin as early as February with the plant opening in November, or early 1985. In its first year of operation the plant will employ 25 people.

Senate v

By Mark Leonard Staff Writer

A bill that would have expanded the range of collective bargaining by state employee unions was defeated in the lowa Senate Monday. Twenty-four senators voted for the bill and twenty-four voted against it. Two senators were absent. Twenty-six votes are needed for a bill to pass in
