UI ‘essential projects’ likely to go unfunded

By Kirk Brown

UI officials claim Gov. Terry Branstad’s proposed state spending plan is so small that it would likely result in a state budget of less than $10 billion for fiscal year 2016. Earlier this week UIVice President for Finance Dennis Elsas predicted the UI’sexpectations for more than $1 million in state capital appropriations for fiscal 2016 in the Iowa Legislature’s Joint Committee on Appropriations. Elsas said the university’s financial situation, which is projected to have a $20 million deficit, will be discussed during the session. The university’s additional revenue was to be completed in January. The university, he said, is the only one in the country to have received a funding increase from the state in the last two years.

Savings in the state budget would likely mean that state appropriation requests, the appropriations are based on anticipated future projects, which include:

- $8.6 million in equipment for the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.
- $13.7 million in stateappropriations for Fiscal 2016 in the Iowa Legislature’s Joint Committee on Appropriations.
- $10.2 million in state appropriations for Fiscal 2016 in the Iowa Legislature’s Joint Committee on Appropriations.
- $5.7 million in state appropriations for Fiscal 2016 in the Iowa Legislature’s Joint Committee on Appropriations.
- $2.2 million in state appropriations for Fiscal 2016 in the Iowa Legislature’s Joint Committee on Appropriations.

Glenn promises help for farmers

By Greg Philby

President Ronald Reagan has promised help for farmers who are struggling with the low price of corn. "I've talked to a lot of farmers and they're concerned," said the president. "I understand the problem and I want to help them." The president announced during a visit to Iowa City that he would work with Congress to find a solution. "I will not stand idly by while our farmers suffer," he said. "We will take action to help them."

Glenn claims small-town values, feels ‘at home’ as he tours Iowa

By Mark Landwehr

The small-town values and rural lifestyle of Iowa’s farming community are evident in the way Glenn speaks. "I’ve always been a farmer," he said. "I understand the challenges and the issues that farmers face." Glenn, who is running for governor, recently visited a small town in the heart of the state. "I was able to connect with the people and see the hard work they do," he said. "I was able to see the spirit and the determination of Iowa farmers."}

MOSCOW - Three Soviet cosmonauts maneuvered their Soyuz spacecraft Thursday morning to dock with the United States' Skylab station, the official news agency Tass said.

It was the first manned space mission by the two countries, and Russia and the United States have signed an agreement to cooperate in space exploration.

Jackson's UI visit starts his Iowa campaign effort

By Jeff Eidson

Democratic presidential candidate Rev. Jesse Jackson will kick off his Iowa campaign today at the Old Town Building.

Jackson's supporters opened their first field office in Des Moines, and Jackson himself plans to open an office in Iowa City at 10 a.m. He will speak to the Iowa Legislative Black Caucus at 11 a.m.

Jackson, who is considered the frontrunner in Iowa politics, has been struggling to win support in the state.

Weekend Campus service okayed

By Dave Powers

The administration announced yesterday that service would be okayed on weekends, but the resolution is subject to a recommendation of the board of regents on topics ranging from matters of the University of Michigan's board operations to the American Studies department. The decision was based on recommendations from the board of regents.

On campus

IF you want something done right...

The importance of a well-designed computer network cannot be overstated. The University of Michigan's board of regents awarded the contract for the network to IBM, but the administration is still evaluating the proposal.

The administration is concerned about the network's ability to meet the needs of the university's students, faculty, and staff. The network must be able to support a wide range of applications, from email and calendar services to online course registration and financial aid processing.

The administration is also concerned about the network's scalability. As the university grows, the network must be able to support additional users and services without sacrificing performance. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for the network's scalability.

The administration is also concerned about the network's security. The network must be able to protect the university's data from unauthorized access and ensure the confidentiality of sensitive information.

The administration is also concerned about the network's cost. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed cost breakdown, including the cost of hardware, software, and support services.

The administration is also concerned about the network's performance. The network must be able to provide reliable and fast service to all users, regardless of location. The administration has requested that IBM provide performance benchmarks and test results.

The administration is also concerned about the network's support. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for network support, including the availability of technical support personnel and the response time for support requests.

The administration is also concerned about the network's ease of use. The network must be easy to use for all users, including students, faculty, and staff. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for user training and support.

The administration is also concerned about the network's integration. The network must be able to integrate with other systems and services, such as the university's email, calendar, and course registration systems. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for network integration.

The administration is also concerned about the network's sustainability. The network must be designed to be environmentally sustainable, with a focus on reducing energy consumption and minimizing waste. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for network sustainability.

The administration is also concerned about the network's innovation. The network must be designed to support innovative applications and services, such as cloud computing and virtualization. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for network innovation.

The administration is also concerned about the network's flexibility. The network must be designed to be flexible, with the ability to adapt to changing user needs and technology trends. The administration has requested that IBM provide a detailed plan for network flexibility.

The administration is also concerned about the network's openness. The network must be designed to be open, with the ability to integrate with other open source and standards-based systems.

Journalists, liberals blacklisted by USIA

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The USIA said Wednesday it is黑名单ng 50 people, including Walter Cronkite, Ralph Nader and Coretta Scott King, because they were "subversives or statists".

Representative Norman D. Long, the Democratic chairman of the panel which investigated USIA operations, said he was "disappointed and discouraged" that the committee had failed to get the full cooperation of the USIA.

The USIA, a federal agency that provides information about the United States to the world, is "a political organization that is controlled by subversives and statists," Long said.

The committee, in a report issued today, said that the list of blacklisted people included: Robert G. Brown, a former president of the American Federation of Labor; Robert L. Martin, a former United Farm Workers leader; and Robert V. Bradley, a former president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Hawkeye gymnasts tumble Illinois

By knorr

It was a totally different story Thursday night when the Iowa women's gymnastics program showed its stuff against the University of Illinois. The Hawkeyes, who had lost in Champaign by just one point to the Illini earlier this month, defeated Illinois 198.85 to 198.80.

"We just have to clean up after ourselves and we'll be fine," said Iowa's coach, Ed Boillingers.

"We all have to clean up and try to make sure that we don't make the same mistakes we did last week," added Linda Tramita, the team captain.

The Hawkeyes seemed to be in control from the start, putting seven out of their eight team members in the top 10 of their respective divisions.

"It was a great day for us," said Tramita. "We really needed this win and I think we showed that we can be competitive at this level."
Hawkeyes look to pay back Illinois

By Greg Johnson

At the beginning of the Illinois basketball season, no one gave the Hawkeyes much of a chance. But they've worked their way up to the No. 15 ranking, despite a lack of star power.

"We will surprise a lot of people," said coach Gary Williams. "You can't say we're a bunch of little kids." The Hawkeyes are currently 13-2 overall, including a 4-1 record in the Big Ten.

In their most recent game, the Hawkeyes beat Michigan State, 73-71, in overtime. The win extended their conference record to 4-1.

"We're playing with a lot of heart and a lot of guts," said Williams. "We're not going to back down from anybody."

Hawkeyes send ten to 'super meet'

By Matt Pymison

Tennis stars from across the nation will converge on the University of Iowa this weekend for the Midwest Regional Championships. The meet, which will include some of the top players in the country, is set for Friday through Sunday.

"We're excited to host this event," said coach Gary Williams. "It's a great opportunity to compete with the best in the country."

The Hawkeyes, who are currently ranked 13th in the nation, are expected to host a strong field of competitors.

"We're looking forward to competing with the best in the country," said Williams. "It's a great opportunity to measure ourselves against the best in the nation."

The meet will feature singles and doubles matches, as well as team competitions.

Perimeter play critical for Iowa

By Thomas M. Jagen

Iowans look to extend perimeter play against Purdue, according to Stringer.

"There will be a lot quicker on defense," Pike said. "The Hawkeyes have to make a lot quicker adjustments to their perimeter players to be effective."

Tarkenton will return for the game against Iowa State, while Stringer will play sparingly. "Last year we had Tarkenton playing a lot of minutes, and that's all he was doing," Stringer said. "We're not sure what we can do with our perimeter players." Pike added.

"The Hawkeyes will be a lot quicker on defense," Stringer said. "It's a lot easier to play defense when you have perimeter players."

The Hawkeyes need a couple of perimeter players to improve on defense and improve their chances of winning.

Hawks look to extend Cycloplane jinx

By Jeff Walz

Nothing could happen this weekend when the Iowa men's tennis team plays at its first two duals of the season. For Coach Steve Hawley, that's a good thing. But for the Hawkeyes, it means there's still work to be done.

"We're not sure what we can do with our perimeter players," Hawley said. "We need to make quicker adjustments to our perimeter players to be effective." Pike added.

Chicago-based Phil 'n' the Blanks brings acclaimed act to Wheelroom

By Kevin Parks

AFTER TWO successful initial productions, the Wheelroom分数线s welcomes its biggest name act yet. The Blanks take on the Wheelroom stage.

The Blanks have been Revered Chicago music fans since they first played in 1999 and the result is a very large and enthusiastic following. The band's unique sound incorporates elements of rock, blues, and soul that make them a force to be reckoned with.

Symphony needs dynamic control

By Lisa Harrison

THERE ARE occasions in which, that, when currently involved, one can really play great performances. There were such occasions on Wednesday night when the University Symphony performed in William Audubon.

These young performers are obviously musical wunderkinds, but they lack the sense of dynamics and balance that would bring their performances to a higher level. The music was well played and the orchestra was very well balanced, but the performance was not quite as entertaining as it could have been.

Music

But when there genuinely responded moments came, they were magical. The woodwinds, especially, had this infectious bounce and sense of line. And in the Ravel Piano Concerto for the Left Hand, the performers were so close to the ideal performance that it was hard to believe it was not a live performance.

William Hoffer's "Intermezzo" on the other hand, was a more subdued piece, beautifully balanced and emotionally interpreted and performed to the full extent of the composer's intentions.

Habib's originally composed "Expanding Matrix" is an ode to the era of minimalism in the century. Several months later the composer added material to it and made it a forerunner of the piece for the orchestra. In the second movement, the orchestra is more involved in the music, and in the first movement, the orchestra is able to create more sensuous moments.

The most successful piece of the evening, however, was the lyrical "Symphony" by the composer's father, the world-renowned George Hoffer, which was performed with great sensitivity as well as an emotional power that was very moving and affecting.

OBERON With its inextricably linked characters, "The Dally Iowan" is a kernel of previously celebrated political figure. The story focuses on three politicians—two Democrats and one Republican—each vying for the state's political clout. The second act, in particular, takes a sharp turn as the leading characters converge, and the plot thickens. Oberon is known for its complex narrative structure, which allows for a nuanced exploration of political maneuvering.

Television

Fleming: "We wanted a format that would appeal to adults and children alike, allowing the viewer to dive deeply into the story's themes. Back in the day, television programming often featured the voices of everyday people, giving a sense of democratic participation. Today, we hope to recapture that spirit through our production about NBC's "The O'Jays." Currently, our series is exploring a new angle on democracy, focusing on the role of politicians in shaping our society. Through the lens of comedy, we highlight the complexities of political life, including the dynamics of party politics and the challenges of leadership.

Fleming is also in charge of preparing a proper set design for the show. He explains that the set will reflect the period and style of the show, with period-specific furniture and decor. The set will serve as a backdrop for the actors, allowing them to perform effectively and engage the audience. Fleming emphasizes the importance of creating an immersive environment that will transport viewers into the world of the show.

In addition to the set, Fleming is also responsible for coordinating the lighting and sound design. These elements are crucial in bringing the show to life, as they enhance the visual and auditory experience for the audience. Fleming and his team are working closely with the director to ensure that every aspect of the production is executed with precision, from the lighting cues to the sound effects. They are also focusing on creating a cohesive and seamless experience for the viewers, ensuring that each element of the production complements the others.

Fleming is passionate about his work and is committed to delivering a high-quality show. He encourages others to join the team and contribute their skills to the production. The show is a testament to the power of collaboration and the importance of teamwork in creating successful and engaging content.
