UI fears expected cuts may increase

By Kirk Brown

UI President Terryl Brown said Thursday in his appearance before Senate Finance members an across-the-board 7 percent budget cut, while he requested that legislation be enacted to allow him to retain the same amount of funding he received last year.

The automatic leg is for the UI passes, while the 7 percent will apply to the rest of the university's budget. All UI programs would lose money, Brown said.

UI-SPS President Bill Johnson, who represented the institution, said Brown's budget calls for a 7 percent across-the-board cut.

Although Johnson called the budget "unfavorable," he said, "It is a tough sell, but we want to hold our own,'" the university's president continued.

Johnson also indicated that he is prepared to fight for a larger budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year.

In response to Brown's request, the Senate Finance Committee voted to keep at least 7 percent of the university's budget.

The only road in world is being closed to traffic, according to Cropicalia president rest.

John Johnson, who was contacted through the office of the chamber of commerce, said that the road was closed due to the expected snowfall.

Johnson, who represents the chamber's interest, said that he has been informed that the road will remain closed until further notice.

The road is a major thoroughfare for the region, and its closure could cause significant problems for the area.

Reagan may consider whether to accept邀请

By John Johnson

Reagan may consider whether to accept the invitation of the government of South Korea to visit the country.

The president has been invited to visit South Korea as a gesture of support for the new government.

The invitation comes as the United States is engaged in a diplomatic effort to improve relations with the country.

The president's visit could have important implications for the region, as it would be the first time a U.S. president has visited South Korea.

Johnson: It's time to hear women's voices

By John Johnson

Johnson said that it is time to hear the voices of women.

"Women have been silent for far too long," Johnson said. "It's time for us to listen to their stories and their experiences."

Johnson, who represents the chamber of commerce, said that women's voices are important and need to be heard.

He added that women have often been marginalised and ignored in the past, and that it is time to change that.

Johnson urged the chamber to support policies that benefit women and to ensure that their voices are heard.

CANDIDATES LOOK AT FOREIGN POLICY ISSUES

By John Johnson

Candidates are looking at foreign policy issues, such as the war in Lebanon, the role of the United Nations, and the situation in Nicaragua.

A representative from Nicaragua spoke about the situation, saying that the United Nations has done little to improve the situation.

He added that the United States should be doing more to support the opposition and to help the people of Nicaragua.

Another representative spoke about the war in Lebanon, saying that the United States should be doing more to support the Lebanese people.

He added that the United States should be doing more to support the Lebanese people and to help them achieve a peaceful resolution.

Updated Pell grant system conserves time, student aid
By Susan Wagner

A more efficient system for processing Pell Grant applications is being set into operation this week. Under the old system, which was in operation for the past three years, it took an average of 11 hours to process each application. Under the new system, which the U.S. Department of Education unveiled earlier this week, it is expected to take only 90 minutes to process each application.

The new system will allow for a more efficient processing of applications, and it will also allow for a more accurate determination of eligibility. The new system will also allow for a more accurate determination of eligibility. The new system will also allow for a more accurate determination of eligibility. WASHINGTON (AP) -- Congress should be looking for travel cuts in the budget of $1.1 trillion that is due to be finalized this week, Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., said Monday.

"I think that the tightest budget is the one that we can get," Hoyer said.

Hoyer, who was one of the House members who signed a letter earlier this month asking President Bush not to veto a $367 billion spending bill, said he was concerned about the overall budget.

But he said he was not concerned about a specific cut in military spending.

"We don't want to do anything to the defense, but we do want to do something about travel," he said.

Hoyer's comments came as part of a series of hearings held by the House Appropriations Committee on Capitol Hill.

"We simply want to make sure that the money is spent wisely," Hoyer said.

He added that he was concerned about the "true price" of military travel, which he said was "too high." He said he was concerned about "the way in which" military travel was being handled.

Progressive voice

It is sometimes said that democracy is the worst of political systems — except for all the alternatives. Certainly there are problems that prove more contrary and internal obstacles, but as certainly none allow better access for participation on a larger scale than our own. Perhaps even more to my point is the reality that this implies: it demands a lot of self-control.

This year is the responsibility this implies requires many more from participating. Little more than half the electorate votes in national elections, and less still participates in the partisan parties that lead to these elections. Even with the tremendous amount of national attention focused on Monday, statewide Democratic and Republican caucuses, fewer than 40 percent of registered voters are expected to turn out and to vote their respective burdens.

It is to be hoped that such debates will become a permanent part of our national political process that leads eventually, through the convolutions of opinion and compromise, to the settling of national policy.

The Daily Iowan's editorial board supports neither of the two major parties per se. But recognizing that the nation's choice will determine the direction of our society, we urge our readers to attend Monday's Democratic precinct caucuses and to vote their consciences in the primary between Senator Tom Harkin of Iowa, George McGovern.

George McGovern would end the military (unnamed "defense") budget. Not only would this represent a $30 billion or greater reduction in spending, it would alter the priorities with which the United States views its interests, and alter the power — and the responsibility — that would be possible for those who criticize, help, or lose ground during last week's debate in Des Moines, incumbent, waiting to see who his opponent would be, next March 11 for the second round of the campaign.

The 1972 election is not the proper measure of Nixon's presidency? The 1972 election is not the proper measure of Nixon's presidency. But as McGovern rightly asks, who now, in the wake of Watergate and the election of 1972, could possibly be taken seriously; television may also provide a clear and responsible voice of opposition, something as个百分 百 of all Americans believe the economy will improve during the year ahead, and more than two years ago, McGovern says that the Democratic Party has for too long gone unc-called.

We applaud Duane Rohovlt, a probably even lets them into his pockets when no one's looking . He'd be better than the guy who's in the White House.

It's an ironic coincidence that the bitterest of political campaigns should take place at a time when the most difficult problems of our society are at hand. But looking down the list of candidates for president, we see reason to hope that we have an alternative to the current status quo.
