After all five tickets expressed their support of USI, panelist Derek Maurer, editor of the DI, asked how each party would propose to fund USI, in light of the denial of an automatic-refundable fee by the state Board of Regents. Jeff Winick, vice presidential can-

Phoenix Party presidential candidate Lawrence Kitsmiller also showed support for funding the lobby group through manadatory student fees. "I wouldn't dream of pulling their funding," he said.

Oxfam head decries Reagan policy

By Steve Sands

Joseph Short, executive director of Oxfam America, an organization that raises money for developing Third World countries, said Monday the Reagan administration is thwarting developmental progress in Nicaragua.

Speaking at Old Brick, Short said the Nicaraguan government has been making progress since the overthrow of the Somoza regime in 1979, and urged about 30 listeners to go to the polls and vote for a presidential candidate who is more interested in developing cooperative relations with Nicaragua.

"Nicaragua has laid foundations, at the very least, for development, and there is, if you weed out the confusion caused by the conflict with the United States, there is evidence in the countryside and throughout the country of remarkable progress," said Short, who toured the country for a week last August with eight other Oxfam board

Oxfam currently is undertaking a 'Tools for Peace' campaign to provide agricultural tools and medical supplies to Nicaragua.

Some of the tools Nicaraguan peasants have requested from the Oxfam campaign include shovels, picks, rakes, hammers, saws, flashlights, hoes, spades, water pumps, and tires. The Boston-based, non-profit organization began the project in February and hopes to finish in May. SHORT SAID the Reagan ad-

Ray tells students budget cuts 'inevitable' By Robyn Griggs Staff Writer

From budget cuts to parimutuel betting, former Iowa Gov. Robert Ray aired his views and made a few plugs for the Republican Party during an informal session with the UI College Republicans Monday.

Ray, who became president of the Cedar Rapids-based Life Investors Insurance Company of America when he stepped down as governor, said that although he regretted the budget cuts he made during his term, then, as now, they were inevitable.

"I regret budget cuts that hurt education in any part," he said. "The university faculty and staff have had to go hard because human needs seem to have priority. I was hoping this year there would be some increase."

He told the approximately 40 stu-

cuts do not necessarily go hand in hand,

'The governor can't spend money the legislature doesn't appropriate,' he said. "We've gone through some terribly tough times and Iowans have been hit harder than the rest of the

RAY SAID he is not up-to-date on Iowa's current budget, but while he was in office the state "always provided some increases in funding, (for education) sometimes more than what was available."

"Several of you have alluded to a budget cut," he told the students. "This doesn't necessarily mean there is less money than was there before." Ray said Gov. Terry Branstad's proposed 2.8 percent budget cuts came from "substantial increases"

A regrettable part of the state budgetary process, Ray said, is that "the governor does not have the authority to single out what to cut."

"When the governor cuts, he has to cut across the board. I don't like it, I don't think Terry Branstad likes it, and you have to cut a lot of things you don't

Briefly

Democrats plan deficit attack

WASHINGTON - Warning the economic recovery is endangered, Democrats on Congress's Joint Economic Committee proposed Monday cutting $200 billion from the federal deficit with a form of flat-rate tax and limits on military spending growth.

Their three-year plan would raise about $102 billion in taxes through 1987 and make about $97 billion in cuts in military and entitlement programs. The debt is close to $1.5 trillion overall and Reagan's fiscal 1985 budget is $180 billion in the red by his own estimate.

Lottery goes on to Branstad

DES MOINES - The Senate on Monday passed a bill, 27-22, creating a state lottery and sent it to the governor. It is the second time in two years the fate of the lottery issue rests with Branstad. He vetoed last year's proposal and has threatened to do it again despite significant changes in the bill.

Democrats call the measure a jobs bill because they say half of the revenues will be used for economic development projects.

Boeke announces candidacy

CRESCO, Iowa - Gwen Boeke Monday announced her candidacy for Republican National Committeewoman of Iowa. The position is being vacated by Mary Louise Smith, who said recently she will not seek reelection.

Boeke has served nine years on the executive committee of the Iowa Federation of Republican Women, including two years as president. She also has been a member of the national federation's advisory board.

Iowa's next national committee member will be elected at the June 16 GOP State Convention at Des Moines.

Lawmakers call for change

DES MOINES - A group of Iowa legislators said the Iowa Code needs to be changed to protect women attending the state's colleges from sex discrimination. Change is needed because of a U.S. Supreme Court decision last week that said individual programs that discriminate can be barred from receiving federal funds, but the institution as a whole cannot be punished.

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, said the Congress intended for the entire institution to be punished when discrimination occurred. "The decision is another example of the Reagan Administration cutting back on equal

Poor-fund recipients will work for aid

By Christine Walsh

Johnson County will begin a work program for recipients of General Assistance money next month.

People receiving General Assistance money will help repay the county by working part time in city and county jobs provided by the Hawkeye Area Community Assistance

General Assistance is an emergency fund that stems from the county poor fund. It provides recipients with $110-a-month for their rent, over a three-month period. People may apply for the assistance twice within a four-year period.

Participants are not required to live in low-income housing, but must show their need

County Supervisor Betty Ockenfels said the number of hours recipients will have to work has not been established, but they will be paid $4.00 an hour. The value of their work cannot exceed $110-a-month - the amount provided by the General Assistance fund.

The county would not require anyone with medical problems to participate in the program, Ockenfels said. If a person's health is in question, the county would provide a physical to determine their work eligibility.

The county will pay HACAP 40 cents-anhour for its participation and administration

Financial Aid Office sets new guidelines

By Susan Yager

A new UI policy to take effect next fall will require students who receive financial aid to maintain satisfactory progress toward their degree or lose their assistance.

The new guidelines require undergraduate students to complete 20 semester hours each academic year. and graduate students to complete 12 hours to continue receiving aid. Students must also obtain a degree in six years before aid is cut off.

Mark Warner, associate dean in the UI Financial Aid Office, said the policy was adopted in light of federal government regulations issued Oct. 6, 1983, requiring post-secondary schools to set up stricter guidelines for receiving federal assistance.

The party, led by current Senate Executive Associate Steve McManus and Sen. Jeff Winick, wants to see the senate emphasize on-campus politics rather than state politics.

"We've got to work on campus first, then address the other issues,' McManus said, while acknowledging, "We can't live in a vacuum."

Sen. Regina James, chairwoman of the senate's city relations committee, said the party recognizes the impor-

In an attempt to focus on the inner workings of the senate, the United Progressives plan to distribute the business available to students.

McMANUS SAID the United Progressive slate has a representative mix including five current student senators. He cited other student leaders: Rob Dustin, an at-large candidate who works for student radio KRUI; Wayne Johnson, a member of the Black Engineering Society; and Luis Sierra, a member of the Student Commission on Programming and

The group's policy platform states, "This year's candidates see 'serving the student body' as the key responsibility of the Student Senate, therefore we will do all possible to represent the students to the best of our abilities."

At the University of Wisconsin student participation has never risen above a peak of 10 percent turnout, said John Schenian, Student Faculty Committee Coordinator.

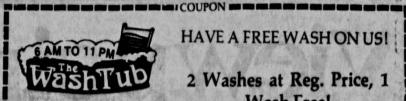

He said the Wisconsin Student Association holds two elections, one in the fall for the legislative body, and another in the spring to elect the two co-presidents. He said last fall's election enticed 6 percent of the students to

UI reflects Big Ten voting apathy

By Dan Hauser

"I never get involved in that sort of thing," said Diane Tallier, a UI sophomore majoring in computer

Tallier echoed the disinterest shared by the 89 percent of UI students who dn't vote in last spring's UI Student Senate elections. But such student apathy is the norm on all Big Ten cam-

"More students are worried about going to football games and getting drunk," than about voting for their student representatives, said Richard Layman, a special consultant for the University of Michigan's Student Association.

NO BIG TEN university attracted more than one-third of its students to vote in last year's student elections.

The UI's 11 percent voter turnout falls in the middle range when compared to other Big Ten institutions. To battle student apathy, the UI Student Senate extended this spring's elections to two days: next Monday and Tues-

HE SAID the past year was an "exceptional turnout" due to a special referendum asking students' opinions on a mandatory fee. He said usually Northwestern students are more "career-oriented" and don't get involved in student government.

Over the past three years, the Indiana University Student Association has seen the percentage of voter turnout go from 23 percent three years ago, to 11 percent two years ago and then up to 17 percent last year.

Allan Slagel, Indiana student government vice president, said the bulk of voters come from the dormitories. He said the polls are placed conveniently next to the cafeterias so students can vote on the way to eat, so that voter turnout in the dorms has surpassed 50 percent in the past.

LAYMAN SAID close to 15 percent of the student body at Michigan voted in the last election. But, he added, this was about 600 more ballots than in the previous year. He attributed the increase to the high number of students running last year; more people running means more friends will be lured into

HE SAID MOST advertising to fight student apathy is done by the individual candidates running for the 15 seats. Schneck said most candidates take the attitude, "If you don't vote for me, crazy, but definitely go out and vote.'

Arms race saps economic vigor

By Montgomery Elmer

N 32 COUNTRIES, governments spend more for military purposes than for education and health care combined. Global military expenditures average $600 billion a year. In the United States, one person in seven lies below the poverty threshold. These facts are examples of the effects of massive military expenditures upon the health care, social and economic systems of the world.

As the nuclear arms race continues, contrasts between the military and social worlds have become more pronounced. Record outlays for arms and armies distort our national priorities. Public expenditures have reached $19,300 per soldier, 50 times the average spent to educate a child of school age. In an intense competition for ever more destructive weaponry, the two superpowers invest at least twice as much for research on military programs as for all societal needs com-

Countries with the highest military burdens compete less effectively in world markets. The global economy suffers from wild inflation and record unemployment. Almost one-fourth of its inhabitants live in extreme poverty. Extravagant military defense has become the symbol of world insecurity.

The military-economic connection must be seen in both developmental and welfare terms. In quiet, devious ways the military burden undermines growth that is essential to sustain an increasing population. It slows civilian investment and productivity, stimulates inflation, widens the gap between rich and poor and postpones the solution of overriding global

Guest opinion

FOR THOSE hundreds of millions of eople living at the margin of survival, the military burden on society means unrelieved poverty and massive suffering. It condemns countless individuals to live out lives without hope, destitute of the most elementary needs. Military expenditures have a negative effect on investment in civilian sectors; they divert research efforts to objectives that are not growth-producing; they train people in skills largely unusable in the civilian economy.

Studies have shown that military expenditures in the United States create only half as many jobs as the equivalent amount of money spent in such areas as housing, roads, schools and hospitals. As many developing countries have found, defense spending is the least effective way to produce job opportunities needed for rapidly growing populations.

These economic effects are also evident in Iowa. In 1980, defense spending of $132.8 billion was approximately 23 percent of total federal spending. If we take 23 percent of the $6.5 billion that Iowans paid in federal taxes, we arrive at a figure of just under $1.5 billion. In the same year the Department of Defense spent $500 million in Iowa. The net effect on Iowa, then, was a loss of around 1 billion dollars.

Few doubt the necessity of national defense, and few are unwilling to pay for it. The problem arises when the spending of the billions of dollars is directed toward weapons of destruction when so much is needed in the area of human goods and services.

IN FISCAL year 1981 the Defense Department spent about $1.5 billion on developing the MX missile and over $1.2 billion on the Trident submarine and the Trident II missile. Iowa's share in this was approximately 1.3 percent or a little over $35 million. What could $35 million do for a soil conservation program, increased hospital facilities or welfare aid?

The question of national security is always raised in a discussion of arms expenditures. The primary justification for defense spending has always been that unless our nation is secure nothing else matters. The pristine simplicity of this assertion hides an underlying complexity. Surely within the notion of national security must be included a healthy economy (which billions in defense spending does little for), adequate provision for social services and a concern for the political, economic and social welfare of those millions and millions of people we casually refer to as the Third World.

The choices to be made in attempting to develop a coherent national security policy are complex. But the point is that there are choices that in a democracy should not be left completely to the generals, or even to our elected officials.

THESE CHOICES have an impact on the whole world. A third of the world lives in countries where the average caloric intake is below the World Health Organization's estimate of daily requirements. The poor spend most of their income on food. Yet they live with daily hunger. Children in these countries are susceptible to diseases that could be prevented with a mere hour's worth of a year's worldwide military expenditures.

The choices that have been made for us in 1983 reflect these priorities. Compare the following comparison in

• Proposals for the Pentagon: MX $4.5 billion.

B-1, bomber $4.8 billion. Trident sub, $3 billion. M-1 tank, $2.1 billion. Cruise missile, $1.3 billion.

Proposed budget cuts: Education, training, employment and social services, $5.1 billion.

Food stamps, $2.3 billion. Rural housing, $2.6 billion. Energy, $1.3 billion.

Health, $4.4 billion. A majority of the points I have raised deal with the economic impact of the arms race. While this is the most tangible effect, the repercussions upon our social and health care systems are just as important. If the amount of money spent on the arms race could be directed toward the social inequities that exist today, the world could only benefit.

To the editor:

I'd like to thank you for your complete coverage of the Jan. 31 Iowa City Council meeting. I hope that voters will remember the interesting exchange between Phil Nychay, bus driver and former council candidate, and Councilor Ernest Zuber.

Referring to the recent council approval of $850,000 in commercial development revenue bonds for the construction of more Clark apartments, Nychay commented: "Driving the bus around, I hear a lot of things. Some people have even suggested renaming the town Clarksville' Zuber replied: "That shows a narrow view of the people you talk to. I have heard nothing like that and received no calls about that.'

Mr. Zuber rode into office without opposition and now feels that he doesn't have to listen to the likes of Phil Nychay and the 2,700 people who voted for him.

I have got news for Mr. Zuber. Though we may be a minority in this town, there are many people who don't like the direction that this city has been moving in the last few years basically shiny, modern and ugly.

Iowa City is becoming more "modern," and losing its soul. And I know, Mr. Zuber, that a lot of people agree with me.

Cure for apathy

To the editor:

UI Student Senate elections are Monday and Tuesday, March 12 and 13. So? Who cares? Why should you vote? What has the Senate ever done for you? And who really cares, anyway?

The United Progressive Party cares, and that's why "awareness" is one of the key issues we are choosing to

United Progressive believe that the answer to student apathy is not fun and games, but an approach that makes students aware of the issues surrounding them.

The United Progressive Party will pursue this goal through publication and distribution of minutes, outreach to the student body and documentation of Senate business.

We feel communication between the Senate and its constituents is important. We will inform concerned parties of legislation and, more importantly, we will encourage feedback on these issues. We value, and will work to achieve, a two-way communication system - a system that will benefit students, not belittle

Awareness and understanding are the only known cures for apathy. The United Progressive Party prescribes just that for UI students.

Ask questions, read party literature and create an understanding of the issues. By casting an informed and intelligent vote in the upcoming Senate elections, you will be helping the UI Student Body to recover from its intensive-care case of apathy.

National shame

To the editor:

The Reagan administration, acting on our behalf, has repeatedly placed our efforts on the wrong side in Third World countries. Hunger, poverty and injustice are the "enemies" in these countries, not communism. Communists merely exploit these problems, they do not cause them.

Reagan has allowed the Soviets and their surrogates to usurp our historical role as a revolutionary people: a nation born out of revolution, a nation that has historically struggled for social and economic justice, for political liberty and equality, for democratic institutions, for the rule of law and not of terror, for compassion for the homeless, the poor, the powerless.

Why, then, do we now consistently choose to defend despots, tyrants, oligarchs, plutocrats and other exploiters and oppressors of the masses of the Third World? I am ashamed that we, as a nation, have so callously abandoned our moral

People poisoners

To the editor:

So John Voland thinks the San Francisco smoking ordinance is unconstitutional just because a minority can dictate to the majority. Since when has the Constitution granted the right to a group of people to poison another group of people just because the poisoners have a majority? # U.S. reduces ships off Lebanon

The United States has moved an aircraft carrier and most of its escorts away from Lebanon, leaving the fewest number of combat ships in Lebanese waters in four months, Pentagon officials said Monday.

The carrier Independence and possibly as many as four escorts departed Lebanese waters and are in the western Mediterranean Sea. The carrier is en route to the North Atlantic to participate in NATO exercises called "Team Work 84" that will put the ship off Norway for about two posure to attack. A total force of nine U.S. combat ships remained off the Lebanese coast in what marked the smallest U.S. naval presence in the area since November, the officials said. About 20 ships had been in the area last week.

An administration official said, however, the reduced level of American firepower off Lebanon does not reflect a change in U.S. policy.

A Foreign Ministry official said the continuing attacks by U.S.-backed rebels based in Honduras have Earlier reports said helicopters had attacked the boats, but residents later said crewmen told them a high-speed launch and fixed-wing airplanes were used in the pre-dawn assault.

Supreme Court decision allows communities to display creches

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A closely-divided Supreme Court ruled Monday that communities can display nativity scenes to celebrate Christmas, because creches are traditional, and secular, symbols of the holidays.

He said the Constitution calls for "accommodation, not merely tolerance, of all religions and forbids hostility toward

The justices reversed a lower court

not unconstitutionally advance religion is the first time the nation's highest court has directly ruled on public displays of nativity scenes, although the question has cropped up nearly every yuletide in recent years.

Burt Neuborne, legal director for the ACLU, called the decision "part of an obvious movement by the court towards a more sympathetic view of government involvement in religion.'

BUT, HE SAID, it "is not an open invitation to government support of overtly-religious events. This is not a green-light for prayer in schools."

In the nativity case, the federal government and Pawtucket city fathers argued that Christmas is a "secular folk festival" and that the creche was merely a holiday symbol.

Burger agreed, saying the Pawtucket display was intended to "celebrate the holiday and to depict the origins of that

He said the court refused to be involved in "mechanically invalidating all governmental conduct or statutes that confer benefits or give special recognition to religion in general or to one

But Justice William Brennan, in a 32page dissent, said the Pawtucket display 'amounts to an impermissible governmental endorsement of a particular faith.'

Also dissenting were Justices Thurgood Marshall, John Paul Stevens and Harry Blackmun.

The city had been displaying a creche, along with other Christmas decorations, for 40 years before the practice was challenged by a group of taxpayers and the ACLU eight days before Christmas

Senate debates amendment for voluntary school prayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate, its members first bowing their heads to plead for Divine guidance, began debate Monday on whether to repudiate the stand of the Supreme Court and allow children to pray aloud in public schools.

Across the Capitol, a band of congressmen began a string of speeches to keep the House in session all night to build pressure for a constitutional amendment returning voluntary - but vocal - prayer to

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker says backers are "very close" to having the two-thirds vote necessary for passage. He warned colleagues not to indulge in the "emotionalism that circles about this issue" and said he hoped to wrap up debate in two weeks. Later Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., leader of opposition to the amendment, asked Baker not to set a vote until June 1. Weicker said it will take three months to air the issue fully, but admitted "Sen. Baker thinks that's a little bit long."

Weicker said, "If you put the Bill of Rights up for a vote today, it probably would be voted down" and argued that students already have voluntary school

"THEY CAN pray at their lunch hour, they can pray when they step up to bat or before a math exam," Weicker said. "They can pray any darn time they want.'

President Reagan has crusaded for the proposal which has triggered an avalanche of mail and calls to members of Congress, some warning that foes of the measure would "burn in hell" for their opposition.

But Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told the Senate, "These are not religious zealots, but average Americans who want their children and grandchildren to enjoy the same simple privilege that they had as public school students.'

Senate action began with a prayer, as it does every day, but the chaplain noted, "Our hearts are heavy that prayer should be a controversial and divisive

"Brood over this place, and restrain anger, meanness, hostility and a vindictive spirit," prayed the Rev. Richard C. Halverson.

To supporters who said students should be able to pray out loud if the Senate can start every day with a prayer, Weicker said, "Maybe it is that the Senate needs prayer far more than children do."

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) - Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday he will "let the people decide" whether accusations concerning his use of state aircraft are fair or not.

At his weekly news conference, Branstad was questioned closely about a recently-released audit that says the governor's political trips in state airplanes violated the law.

Branstad said his "piggybacking" of incidental political trips into official business is not only legal, but safer and more economical of his time and tax

But he added: "When you get contacts or executives looking for another site, it's the people, the communities that are going to make a big, big difference. No development commissions can adequately replace those."

Gutierrez's expertise unappreciated by audience

By Lisa D. Norton Staff Writer

UDIENCES' lack of concert-going tact never ceases to amaze me. On Friday virtuoso pianist Horacio Gutierrez played Hancher Auditorium, offering masterful renditions of Haydn, Schumann and Beethoven, but immediately upon the first hand-clap following the performance, people throughout the theater rose to leave. If it's so important to get out of the concert hall, why do these people even bother to come in the first place? Thanking the performer with applause is part of the evening, and it would be hard to believe that this performance did not deserve a hearty thank-you.

I once heard of a couple who decided to leave the auditorium early, walked to the front of the stage to bid their favorite conductor farewell, then exited via the main aisle, all during the last symphonic movement of the concert. Let us hope Iowa City audiences never stoop this low, but Friday night gives one cause to wonder.

The concert opened with Haydn's Sonata in C Major (Hob. XVI: 50), a sprightly piece in the best tradition of the Viennese/Classical school. Haydn wrote the sonata in London between 1794 and 1795, his most mature period. Gutierrez's touch was appropriately light, his interpretation playful. Schumann's Fantasia in C Major (Op.

The last work on the program, though, went a little beyond the limits of reality. After an intermission, Gutierrez returned to play Beethoven's "Hammerklavier" Sonata (No. 29 in B-flat Major, Op. 106). Beethoven wrote this work between 1817 and 1818 - difficult years for the composer as he was already suffering from the deafness that plagued his later life, and the poverty that pervaded its entirety. Still, in spite of these odds, Beethoven with his "Hammerklavier" created a work of monumental dimensions both in its musical message and technical demands. It is his longest and most difficult sonata to play; few pianists ever mastered it during a lifetime. Franz Liszt, a well-known said that at the age of 10, in 1821, he played the "Hammerklavier" with great feeling, but also very poorly. It was not until 15 years later, when Liszt was 25, that the sonata received its first public performance.

THE STORY behind its name involves Beethoven's attempt to find a German word that equaled the Italian word, pianoforte. In 1816, he sent his Piano Sonata in A Major (Op. 101) to the publisher with the words, "For the Pianoforte or Hammerklavier." Unsure of the legitimacy of this word he required that it first be approved by a language specialist, and in 1817 the publisher wrote, "henceforth all our works that have German titles are to have Hammerklavier instead of pianoforte...." Beethoven's Sonata in B-flat (Op. 106) was subsequently published, and its nickname was born.

The first movement of this piece is energetic and powerful and, as Gutierrez pounded out the fortissimo climatic passages, the piano literally produce; but don't be deceived.

Perhaps that was the reason for many peoples' hasty exit. Perhaps Gutierrez's performance was so amazingly perfect that they failed to comprehend the effort involved in its production, and consequently failed to see the need to praise this performer for his talent and gift to us as listeners. In an age of stereos in nearly every home and car, and records and tapes within easy consumption of every listener, it is possible to imagine an audience that could be this confused. But let me take this opportunity to remind you once again; the live performance is very different from the music you listen to in your living rooms. Don't be deceived by the seeming ease

Women cagers have 'realistic' chance at NIT bid

By Thomas W. Jargo Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa women's basketball team is currently in a three-way tie for fourth place in the Big Ten and has a remote possibility of playing in a postseason tournament.

The Hawkeyes could "back in" to the 32-team NCAA tournament, which begins March 15th, according to Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer.

But a more realistic possibility for Iowa is the Women's National Invitation Tournament, an eight-team tour-

The Hawkeyes, who close out the regular season next weekend with road games at Michigan and Michigan State, are currently 15-10 overall and 9-7 in the Big Ten.

THEY ARE TIED with Northwestern and Michigan State in fourth place and stand far behind league-leading Ohio State, but only one-and-a-half games behind Wisconsin and Indiana which are tied for second place with 11-6 records. Last year, Indiana and Ohio State tied for the league title, but the NCAA selection committee chose only the Hoosiers to represent the Big Ten in the postseason tourney.

This year, Ohio State, with a 16-1 Big Ten record, has won the league title outright and will receive an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament. It might be possible for a second team to join the Buckeyes in the NCAA tourney, Stringer says, and that squad could even be Iowa.

"Traditionally only one team has been taken out of the Big Ten, and this year, that is Ohio State," Stringer said.

County to

from ADC

Johnson County is planning to ask parents who unknowingly received additional state child support payments during the 1970s to reimburse the state.

From approximately 1974 to 1979, about $12,000 in child support payments that the county Clerk of Court was supposed to send to the state as compensation for Aid to Dependent Children was sent to parents, according to Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White. The ADC program provides statefunded child support money to parents whose income does not allow them to adequately support their children. Parents' income must be below a set standard before they qualify.

In cases of divorce, once a parent who does not have custody begins mak-

Young signs lucrative pact with Express

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) -The Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League, offering "the market price, not overpaying," Monday signed All-American quarterback Steve Young to a four-year contract considered the richest pact in the history of professional sports.

Financial terms were not disclosed at a news conference, but reports have indicated the Brigham Young University quarterback's pact is worth up to $40 million, including deferred payments and charitable donations.

Young, who set more than a dozen NCAA records at Brigham Young and was runner-up in the Heisman Trophy balloting behind Nebraska's Mike Rozier, signed with the USFL after rejecting an offer by the NFL's Cincinnati Bengals.

"YOU HAVE TO pay market value," Express owner Bill Oldenburg said. 'He had a choice in America and he exercised that choice. It is a market price, not overpaying."

The contract reportedly pays Young about $2 million for each of the next four years. It also includes money for a 20-year scholarship fund at BYU and for Mormon missionary work. Young is a great-great-grandson of Brigham Young, the Mormon church

"It was a tough decision, but I followed my heart," Young said. "I'm excited about this day. I'm looking forward to it (the challenge) like nothing else in my life. This is not a lifetime decision. It's tough to have foresight at 22."

INSISTING HE wasn't spending long hours counting the zeros on the contract, Young said he did have some personal plans for the lump sum.

"I hope to fix up my car and take my girlfriend out to dinner, which I haven't done for four years, except for McDonalds," he said.

Young, who will start workouts with the Express this week, is not expected to play Sunday when the Express visits the Oakland Invaders. Former UCLA quarterback Tom Ramsey started the club's first two games, and rookie Frank Seuer of Kansas is also on the

> "It was not a decision made because of money," Steinberg said. "Steve is giving a significant amount to Brigham Young University and he's matching dollars with the Express to go to Los Angeles charities."

"It was a tough decision, but I followed my heart," says quarterback Steve Young about signing a $40 million contract. "I'm excited about this day."

WHEN PRESSED if the contract was the richest in history, Steinberg replied: "Is the IRS out there somewhere? I hate to characterize contracts, but I've not seen anything

Klosterman said he hadn't either. "In my judgment, it's the highest in history," he said. "You'd have to go back to the Joe Namath signing to find one as significant."

The USFL's New Jersey Generals signed 1982 Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker to an $8 million pact a year ago. In recent years, Moses Malone of the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers signed a six-year deal worth $13.2 million and Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees inked a 10-year pact worth $15 million.

YOUNG, WHO broke 14 NCAA passing or total offense records, had been negotiating with Cincinnati, which holds the No. 1 pick in May's NFL draft. Cincinnati told Steinberg it would draft Young, and Bengal official Mike Brown said his team would pay Young $3.5 million - $500,000 per season for five years plus a $1 million

"We are investigating the fiscal comparable to it.' feasibility of changing the system," Bulkley said. Bulkley said the discovery that the county was not forwarding child sup-

couldn't be sure that all of the cases

White said the state has been pressuring the county for the payments but will allow county officials to submit their proposal for repayment.

The state will assume supervision of local child support payments in 1986, when the Clerk of Court's office, along with several other county offices, becomes state administered.
