Three Amigos

By Dave Burnett

Mondele is in the spotlight in its efforts to keep delegates at its presidential convention in Baltimore after the three Amigos defeated a bid to move the convention to New York.

According to the Democratic National Committee, Mondele is one of the companies that have been working actively to maintain the support of the Minnesota delegation that lost the February primary.

The three Amigos are currently gearing up for a meeting with each other to discuss their future plans. They have not made any formal decisions yet.

The three Amigos are: Bill Clinton, George McGovern, and Al Gore. They have been working together to keep delegates at the convention and to present a strong united front for the Democratic Party.

The delegates will gather in Baltimore for the convention on August 17-19, and the three Amigos will be there to lead the fight for a strong Democratic Party.

Scholars examine rhetoric of science

By Angelo DeRosa
Spokesman-Review

"I think television is an important medium," said relaxing around the room. "It provides an opportunity to reach a large audience and to discuss important issues." The discussion was part of the annual gathering of authoritative scholars, held at the city's central library.

The gathering included prominent scientists, historians, and ethicists who came together to explore the latest research in science and technology. The event was sponsored by the city's educational board and was open to the public.

The scholars discussed various topics, including the ethics of genetic engineering, the implications of artificial intelligence, and the challenges of environmental conservation. They also debated the role of science in society and the importance of scientific literacy.

"Science is a powerful tool," said Professor John Nelson, a prominent ethicist. "We must ensure that it is used responsibly and for the benefit of all people." The event concluded with a panel discussion featuring some of the leading experts in the field.

The gathering was well-attended, with hundreds of scholars and laypeople in attendance. The city's mayor expressed his support for the event, saying "We must continue to promote the importance of science and education in our community."
Jepsen praises 'dynamic recovery' of nation in local bid for re-election

By Mark Leonard

Iowa City Attorney Joe Johnston, who is challenging incumbent Roy Cooper Brum, D-Iowa, for his congressional seat this fall, has announced Friday his bid for re-election.

"I am a leader who can ride back into Iowa," Johnston said, "to make this country great again." He added that the nation is trying to recover, but "we need leaders who can recover." Johnston said he hopes Iowa voters will "come here because it's a political battle, and we must not give up. We must take it to the people of Iowa, the state, and people working in the country, and make it happen." Mann: Don’t invest in South Africa

By Jeff Riceburn

"The great Ipswich of America should never do business with South Africa," Iowa black African Morris Mann told a group of journalists and students Thursday in the first of a series of talks sponsored by the Iowa City Book Festival. The event was sponsored by the UI African-American Studies Program.

"We have a moral and political obligation to stop this apartheid policy," Mann said. "We all have a responsibility to this country and to the world to do something about this." Mann said the country is divided over apartheid, but most don’t realize the full extent of what is taking place in South Africa.

"We have been able to survive because we have been able to say no," Mann said. "We must continue to say no to this policy and support those who are oppressed or killed." Mann said the country is divided over apartheid, but most don’t realize the full extent of what is taking place in South Africa.

South African stand

When the US Senate passed a resolution Thursday urging the South African government to withdraw more than $2.3 billion that it has invested in South Africa, the government responded by threatening to sue. It is doubtful whether any of the resolutions passed by the Senate this year will have any effect on policy. A bill that would have mandated the violation of a long-standing congress resolution to review the South African government's policy on black South Africa has not been introduced in the Senate this year.

A policy change would have been politically impossible for the South African government. The administration has shown little empathy for the voteless community's interests. A bill that would have mandated the violation of a long-standing congress resolution to review the South African government's policy on black South Africa has not been introduced in the Senate this year.

Favored spikers storm to title

By Mike Condon

When the new players currently listed on the line, colored lime-green, took 11:15 on the court preliminary in the CRAW-ob-All Tournament, it was easy to see that they were the favorite team in the tournament. And Coach Sandy Stewart’s squad was definitely designed to win. Stewart and her players were participating in the preliminary round of the tournament, which began at 9:30 a.m. at the Field House.

The Hawks, using the strong setting of Linda Greens, the superior serving of Joanne Lamb and the powerful spiking of Dee Ann Davidson, defeated Mark Reel and Kathy O’Brien, 3-0, 25-13, 25-9, to win the championship.

Champion Orioles are early birds as baseball action gets under way

United Press International

Baseball scouts have always maintained that it is the last days of the March Mad Season that count, because much of the nation's best prospects have reached the age of eligibility by that time. Philadelphia's front office has been the nation's best, with the Expos making their first move over the weekend.

Minnesota won its first game of the Big Ten title last month, and was really taken third on Rafael Ramirez' single and Steve Schmidt also are in search of some second and third in the National League season.

Dawson stars despite a leg injury as Montreal ends spring with win

Championship

Pennsylvania, one of the many teams from the Big Ten, was on the list of the nation's best, with the Expos making their first move over the weekend.

Gymnastics

DENNIS BARKER's 10.5 on the floor exercise, which was the best of the night, and his 12.5 on the pommel horse, was the highlight of the night, as well as the team's performance as a whole. Barker's score of 12.5 was the highest in the nation.

Funk guru George Clinton inspires dancing soul feet

By Paul P. Dinsmoor

George Clinton, godfather of funk, is in town tonight, and he's bringing along a host of musical acquaintances. Clinton is the founder of Parliament-Funkadelic, which he left in 1988 to form the more experimental Bootsy Collins. Clinton's latest project, Parliament, is a darkly humorous movie with a message that is as the film itself: "Don Juan, Op. 8," is a suite of chamber music inspired by the characters of the Don Juan series. The film features music by renowned composers, including George Clinton, Bootsy Collins, and Andrew Lloyd Webber.

Nightlife

The Fun at the Blue is Black Music is on again tonight at Paradise. This is a revolutionary sound that is making its way around the world. It is a combination of funk and jazz, and it is called "Fun." The music is played by a group of musicians who are called "Fun." The music is very lively and it is very popular.
