Bush to negotiate chemicals in Geneva

"Our goal is to eliminate from this earth one of the most horrible and terrifying weapons known to mankind," Reagan declared during a ceremonial sendoff for Bush intended to highlight the president's latest arms control initiative.

The Soviet Union responded by calling the effort a "propaganda campaign." Bush left late Monday for Geneva, where he will present a draft treaty on chemical arms Wednesday to the 40-nation U.N. Committee on Disarmament Upon leaving Andrews Air Force Base, Bush said, "I can't say I'm optimistic now. I'll have to wait until I get there." He refused to address the Soviet charge of propaganda, saying, "I'm not going to cloud the issue by getting into a shouting match with the Soviet U-

However, in a speech to the Daughters of the American Revolution earlier Monday night, Bush said he is hopeful "because I do not believe the Soviet leadership wants war." and that it "must have reasons to want a breakthrough in the control of chemical weapons."

"THE WORLD - the whole world really wants the abolition of all chemical weapons," Bush said. "I am off to Geneva to try to make this dream become reality.' With U.S.-Soviet negotiations on the Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora said Monday his forces will establish a provisional government in a town inside the 2,000 square miles of Nicaraguan territory the guerrillas now claim to control.

In Honduras, Gen. Walter Lopez Reyes, the new head of the Honduran armed forces, said Monday he favored negotiated settlements to the crises in Central America but added joint U.S.-Honduran military maneuvers will continue.

And in Washington, the Reagan administration named State Deparment Legal Advisor Davis R. Robinson as its official agent in the suit the government of Nicaragua has filed with the International Court of Justice at the Hague.

A court official said the U.S. government chose Robinson to handle court communications with Washington because he is in Brussels to lead an American team of international law experts in a sea boundary dispute with Canada that opened in the court earlier this month.

Pastora, a former Sandinista military leader known as Commander Zero, said ARDE (the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance) controls more than 2,000 square miles of territory in southern Nicaragua, including the southern port city of San Juan del Norte, 200 miles southeast of Managua on the Caribbean Coast.

THE REBELS said they seized San Juan del Norte Friday after a weeklong siege. It is the first town the guerrillas have been able to take and control of nuclear arms suspended, Reagan called the trip "an extremely vital mission in the cause of peace. He wished the vice president "Godspeed" and touted his draft treaty - the latest in a series of election-year peace feelers - as "a first-rate proposal."

At the same time, Reagan again outlined reasons why Congress should approve his request for money to build a new chemical weapons-production facility, saying the United States must not be caught unprepared.

In Moscow, the official Soviet newspaper Izvestia said the treaty draft is accompanied by "pre-conditions" previously labeled unacceptable and is not a serious proposal for agreement.

The newspaper did not elaborate on the "preconditions," but Moscow has repeatedly said U.S. requirements for verification are unacceptable.

"Whipping up a propaganda camaign around the draft convention, the U.S.A. wants to conceal its real position on the issue ... to intensify preparations for chemical war and obstruct the negotiations in Geneva on the prohibition of chemical weapons," Izvestia charged.

BUT REAGAN expressed hope that Soviet officials and others "will resond seriously and respond in good faith" after careful study.

Alluding to the negotiating obstacles that lie ahead - notably a U.S. demand for inspection of actual or suspected storage and production facilities - he conceded success "won't be easy to achieve." He said, however, his in-

Acting dean of liberal arts named

By Dawn Ummel Staff Writer

> Gerhard Loewenberg, chairman of the UI Political Science Department, has been named acting dean of the UI College of Liberal Arts.

UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington announced Monday that pending approval by the state Board of Regents at its Iowa City meeting Wednesday, Loewenberg, 55, will assume the position July 1. At that time current Dean Howard Laster, citing health reasons, will resign the post he has held for seven years.

"I'm delighted," Laster said Monday. "I think he is a first-rate scholar and a first-rate human being. I look forward to working with him in the transition.'

Laster said the only words of advice he could offer Loewenberg would be, "Hang in there." He said the interim period before a permanent dean is chosen will be an "interesting time" for Loewenberg as he faces the College of Liberal Arts 5 percent budget cut, high enrollment and "less flexibility of resources."

The College of Liberal Arts is the largest college on campus with 16,858 students this semester - about 60 percent of the total UI enrollment.

Loewenberg, a 12-year veteran of the UI Political Science Department, received his bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

BEFORE JOINING the UI faculty, Loewenberg chaired the political science department at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., from 1963 to 1969 and served as acting dean there in 1968 and 1969.

He has been granted a Fulbright award, a Guggenheim Fellowship,

Ford Foundation and National Science Foundation awards for research on the role of parliament in political systems. Loewenberg was unavailable for comment Monday evening.

Laster said he and Loewenberg will "get together as soon as it's convenient, but I don't want to submerge him in too many problems too soon.' Laster could not guess how long Loewenberg's term as interim dean would last, but predicted there would be a "gap" until a permanent dean is selected.

Laster said if the committee searching for a new dean "lucks out" they might skip over Loewenberg and appoint a permanent dean before July 1, however, he predicted there would be an "interval between my completion and the permanent replacement.'

The leftist Nicaraguan government admitted the rebels controlled the isolated town of some 6,000 people, which is in a jungle region with few roads. It is reached only by rivers, which the rebels control, and by sea.

"This means that we have under our control (a large segment) of Nicaraguan territory. To accomplish that we have counted on the massive support of the Nicaraguan people who have been freed from the anguish of living under the communist yoke," Pastora said in an interview with journalists in San Juan del Norte.

Pastora, who broke with the Sandinista government over its increasingly Marxist leanings, said ARDE will place the capital of the provisional government in the town of Sarapiqui, located in "liberated territory," within the next few days.

"The members of the Sandinista Popular Army know that they are struggling against their own people but, many do not desert the army for fear of being killed by their Cuban and Soviet bosses who watch them," Pastora said. He said the rebels had mined the port of San Juan del Norte to prevent a counterattack by sea and taken control of an airport in the captured city.

IN HONDURAS, Lopez, 43, was formally installed Monday by President Roberto Suazo Cordova at a military post three miles south of Tegucigalpa. Lopez led the March 30 ouster of former Honduran armed forces chief Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez and several other top military commanders. The government named Lopez to the top post several days after the shakeup.

"The armed forces are disposed to back up all the actions taken by the constitutional government of Honduras in the aim of finding a peaceful, negotiated solution to the conflicts in Central America," Lopez said.

"If the Contadora Group offers viable ways of reaching those aims, we (the armed forces) will offer them our unconditional backing."

Regents expected to okay dispute policy

By Robyn Griggs Staff Writer

Gerhard Loewenberg

The long-awaited decision on UI Faculty Dispute Procedures may be finalized this week as the UI administration and faculty present the most recent modification to the state Board of Regents.

Officials expect the board to accept the new clause at the regents meeting Wednesday, but the UI professor whose tenure case spurred the rewording said he is not sure the new wording would "make a difference in the real world." The UI Faculty Senate approved a sial faculty dispute procedure "reasonableness clause" last month and the rewording was subsequently approved by the UI administration.

The agreement came following a continued debate over the wording stemming from a decision made by UI President James O. Freedman last year to overrule a faculty dispute committee and send UI Assistant Anatomy Professor Asa Black back to his department.

Black, who is in the process of suing the UI, the regents, former UI Anatomy Department Chairman language is "much clearer," adding, administration) dropped the whole thing a year after they went to the Board of Regents and beat up Peg Burke about it."

"Hopefully, no one will get caught in my position again."

He added: "I don't know how much difference it will make in the real world, because the president still has the authority to do what he wants. Freedman can still do anything he likes ... he's just going to have to come up with another rationalization."

Freedman based his decision to deny tenure on the "reasonableness clause" presently in the dispute procedures. The clause presently states that tenure can be denied "if reasonable persons could disagree" whether the faculty member has a "clearly adequate record of achievement.'

The new wording, drafted by UI Associate Law Professor Peter Shane, states: "Thus, the panel shall sustain the challenged decision unless the panel is of a firm and definite conviction based on the faculty member's record that denying the faculty member such tenure, promotion, or reappointment was manifestly unjustified."

WASHINGTON - Attorney General William French Smith's round-the-world excursion in 1982 cost taxpayers more than $683,000 not counting hotel bills according to documents obtained by United Press International under a Freedom of Information request that took 18 months to process.

Smith, the most widely traveled attorney general, has spent at least $1 million in overseas travel since 1981. The cost of his round-the-world trip is double the pricetag of the most expensive overseas trip in 1983 by a congressional delegation.

The surtax would also apply to the franchise fee paid by financial institutions.

Council to consider lifting building ban

By Carlos Trevino Staff Writer

City

Two major issues involving local developers will be debated by the Iowa City Council tonight, according to Iowa City Mayor John McDonald.

The council will discuss lifting the ban on all residential and commercial development on the city's east side and the possibility of requiring developers to add "mini-parks" to subdivision developments.

Local developers have publicly denounced the city's ban on east side construction - prompted by inadequate sewer lines - and have also claimed the proposal to require parks in residential areas is "ill-advised."

McDONALD SAID the council must take action on the problems but, "I don't know what will happen."

Developer Bruce Glasgow has said the council is "against development," but McDonald said Monday, "We have to give these people some way to go. And it's not just developers ... it's also carpenters, plumbers, electricians, and all the people who supply them materials. This moratorium has shut down an entire industry.'

McDonald's wish to allow construction on the east side was echoed by Councilors William Ambrisco, Kate Dickson and Ernest Zuber. "I don't think that moratorium had total blessing from the councilors before," Zuber said Monday. "I sure hope that something can be done, but I don't know if it will be."

AMBRISCO SAID he does not think the 10-month-old ban will be lifted immediately due to problems of the Run-dell Street "horseshoe" sewer, but said the ban could be lifted in the next several months. Charles Schmadeke, the city's public works director, said the sewer at Rundell Street "backs up into the basements of homes along there and bub-bles out of the manholes."

The current moratorium is also keeping builders from applying for building permits and other city building requirements. McDonald said of the developers, "We should give them a head start, so they won't be far behind when the problems are resolved."

COUNCILORS ARE divided on the Mandatory Parkland Dedication ordinance that would force developers to provide parks in new subdivisions.

The Iowa City Board of Realtors has said the ordinance, as written, "has hidden problems" and that it could cost as much as $1,800 more per lot - a cost which would be passed on to the home buyer - to provide the parks. Zuber said the parks would mean higher costs to homebuyers and regular maintanence costs. "What will it cost the city to maintain these parks?" Zuber asked. "I don't like these little parks anyway." But Dickson said, "If we don't (require parks), we can't expect the developers to do anything. Every vacant lot could end up with a building on

UI to request renovation funds

By Dawn Ummel Staff Writer

The UI will ask the state Board of Regents at its Iowa City meeting Wednesday to approve $1.2 million in construction contracts, with the major portion of that money going to finance the third stage of the Field House renovation.

The UI is seeking approval of a $1,102,920 contract awarded to Burger Construction Company, Inc. of Iowa City to reconstruct racquetball and squash courts, two floors of offices, activity rooms and research laboratories. Completion of this final stage in the remodeling project will make the Field House racquetball courts ready for classes in the fall. The regents had approved in January the UI's request for $1,375,000 to locate a contractor. In another request, the UI will seek the board's approval of a $47,041 contract awarded to Frantz Construction Company, Inc., of Iowa City to renovate the sundecks topping Burge and Daum residence halls. The project will replace roofing surfaces that have allowed water to leak through to some dormitory rooms. Reconstruction will begin in May at the end of the semester, said

Wayne Graeve, assistant director of The source of these funds is the UI maintenance for UI residence ser- Hospitals Building Usage Funds. vices.

GRAEVE SAID the original budget called for $85,000 to complete the sundeck project, but lower bids saved the UI about $38,000.

The UI is also seeking approval of $192,150 to open bidding on four new construction projects, including three projects involving the UI Hospitals. The money will finance construction in the psychiatric hospital and neonatal suite, so that these areas will conform to standards set by the State Fire Marshal.

Finally, the UI is seeking approval of a consulting contract awarded to Neumann-Monson Architects of Iowa City to plan the construction of a new Cambus office near Kinnick Stadium. Neumann-Monson will also plan an addition to the Cambus maintenance garage on South Madison Street. The total consulting fee will be less than $32,800. Cambus dispatcher Jeff Jahn said Cambus will soon add two buses to its fleet of 14, and the transit system is "definitely outgrowing" its present home.

Three men charged in theft of radar detector equipment

By Patricia Reuter

Three arrests were made during the weekend as the result of an investigation by five area law enforcement agencies into car break-ins and radar detector thefts, according to reports filed Saturday in Johnson County District Court.

Arrested Saturday by Iowa City police were Michael Leroy Smith, 22, 1305 SW Franklin Circle; Patrick Joseph Kelly, 20, 303 N. Riverside Drive and Kurt Randall Anderson, 21, of Ankeny, Iowa.

According to court records, Smith and Kelly were charged with one count each of third-degree theft for allegedly selling an Escort radar detector to Mike Hoogerwolf for $100 last August. The report states that the serial number on the device matched the number of a detector reported stolen by Harry Dunlap III April 20, 1983. Kelly faces an additional charge of third-degree theft for selling a radar detector to Dave Henderson, of the Johnson County Sheriff's Department March 13. The serial number on the detector matched the number of a radar detector reported stolen in Cedar Rapids March 11, by Char J. Helgens. Court records state that Henderson bought the detector from Kelly for $100, and Kelly "promised" to acquire five more units for Henderson for $100 each.

Smith was also charged with attempted seconddegree burglary after Iowa City Police Detectives Mike Goldberg and Paul Sueppel witnessed and photographed Smith attempting "to enter both doors and the hatchback" of a vehicle they had parked at the Capitol Street Parking ramp March 3. The report

'Dr. Suess' wins special Pulitzer

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Los Angeles Times, The Wall Street Journal. The New York Times and the Boston Globe each captured a pair of Pulitzer Prizes Monday, the most prestigious awards in journalism.

A special Pulitzer was awarded to Theodor Seuss Geisel, more popularly known as "Dr. Seuss," who after 47 years of writing children's classics such as "The Cat in the Hat," finally has a book on the adult best-seller list.

The Pulitzer for fiction went to William Kennedy for his novel "Ironweed," which is the story of a former baseball player turned murderer.

The Pulitzers honor outstanding achievements by newspapers as well as exemplary performance in seven categories of arts and letters. They have been awarded annually since 1917. The awards, announced by the Pulit-

Southern California's growing Latino community. The Times also won the Pulitzer for editorial cartooning by Paul Conrad, a 1950 UI graduate, who previously won Pulitzer citations in 1964 and 1971.

The meritorious service award is regarded as the highest honor among the 12 Pulitzer citations for newspapers

IT WAS PRESENTED to two editors and 11 writers who conducted more than 1,000 interviews and polled nearly 1,500 southern Californians on social, cultural and political issues that resulted in a 27-part series entitled Latinos.

Karen Elliott House, newly named as foreign editor of the Wall Street Journal, won the Pulitzer for her international reporting on the Middle East. Vermont Royster, who writes the column "Thinking It Over" in the Jourpromises Reagan made to King Hussein of Jordan.

John Noble Wilford, of The New York Times, won for national reporting for his ability to convey "the wonder and reality of science" in stories that ranged from "space war" weapons to the mysterious tug of "Planet X" on Uranus and Neptune.

Paul Goldberger, 33, the Times senior architecture critic, won the criticism award for his stories on architectural development across the United States.

A TEAM OF seven staff members at The Boston Globe won the special local reporting prize for a series of stories investigating racial tension in Boston. Globe chief photographer, Stan Grossfeld, 32, also won the spot news photography award for pictures from Lebanon.

Four newspapers won the remaining

PAC campaign funding rule won't come before election

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide if political action committees can spend millions of dollars campaigning for presidential candidates they back, but it will not rule before the November election.

Ignoring pleas by the Democratic Party and the Federal Election Commission to rule before the upcoming election, the justices said they will consider the case this winter and issue a ruling sometime next year

That leaves PACs free to spend an estimated $40 million on 1984 candidates, including President Reagan.

At issue in the case is a federal ruling striking down a $1,000 limit on PAC spending to support presidential candidates in the general election.

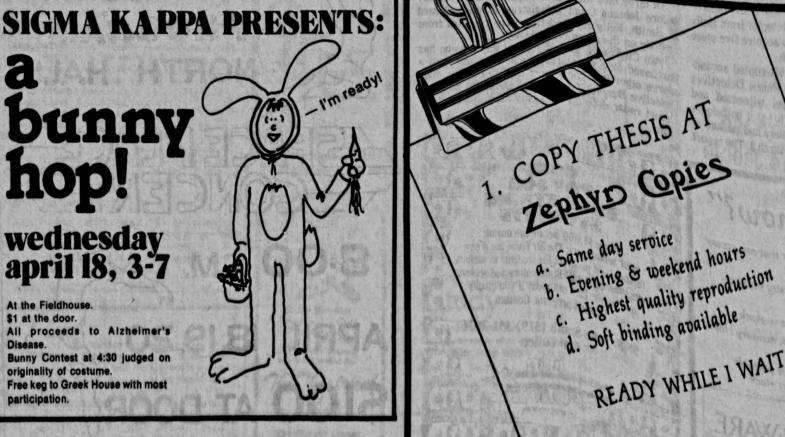

PACs - private political groups - can spend money regardless of whether a presidential candidate has authorized it. But the ruling would prevent them from spending more than $1,000 on a presidential candidate who receives money from the special federal fund established to finance presidential campaigns.

PACs spent some $13.7 million to back Reagan in 1980, including primaries. They spent $8 million on Reagan in the general election - including about $4 million spent by the National Conservative Political Action Committee and the Fund for a Conservative Majority.

DEMOCRATS ARGUED that the conservative groups exceeded the limits set by the Presidential Campaign Fund Act of 1971. That act created a federal presidential campaign fund - taxpayers contribute to it by checking a box on their federal income tax forms - and set the $1,000 limit on PAC spending for presidential candidates to get money from the fund

The law was passed to eliminate the possibility that wealthy groups could use their financial clout to influence a candidate.

But a three-judge district court in Pennsylvania struck down the limit last December, saying PAC spending does not have a serious potential to corrupt or create the appearance of corruption

CAC votes to stick with 17 cents per student for Health Iowa funds

By Dan Hauser

The UI Collegiate Associations Council voted Monday night to stick with its reviously passed recommendation of 17 ents per student per semester for Health lowa, a fledgling health-awareness

Philip Hubbard, UI vice president for student services, has recently proposed to allocate Health Iowa $7,500 more in mandatory student fees than was decided in a ioint meeting between the CAC and the UI ident Senate in early March.

CAC executives will meet with Hubbard Wednesday to get his reaction to the up's rejection of his counter-proposal for the health awareness branch of UI Student Health. CAC President Tom Palmer asked the councilors if they would rather stick with the old recommendation of 17 cents, not fund the group at all or approve Hubbard's proposal. Councilor John Katsulas said, "We should stick by our guns" and fund Health Iowa 17 cents.

"I was in favor to zero fund them, but we did make a compromise with the senate," said CAC Treasurer Jeff Devitt. He said if the administration does not approve of student government's recommendations, it can substitute its own recommendation.

Palmer has said he considers Health Iowa a low priority compared to other student services because only 850 UI students used the program in its first year and this use was concentrated in the residence halls.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, Murray Hill, chairman of the UI Research Council met with the CAC to discuss the proposed revisions to the UI Operations Manual.

Some councilors questioned the research council's proposed one-year release clause that would force UI researchers to release information a year after the experiment has been completed.

Hill said when the council was deciding on a time limit, the group thought a oneyear period was not "unreasonable" because it takes time to put out a report. President James O. Freedman is asking different groups on campus for input on changes in the Operations Manual so he can compile a recommendation to send to the research council.

Last Thursday night the UI Student Senate passed a resolution calling for the addition of a committee to review questions which arise in research release procedures.

Several councilors questioned the need for such a committee. Councilor Leah Royce asked, "How can we trust the committee?'

Palmer and CAC Vice President Sharon McMulin said they would have to rely on personal trust.

PC

"Then why not trust the researchers" for their own reports on research they are conducting, Councilor Jeff Dwyer said. McMulin explained the idea of the committee is to prevent disputes over the release of research information from going

Mercy offers public free I.D. cards for quick medical history information

By Susan Yager

Mercy Hospital kicked off a new free community service called the Mercy Emergency Care Card Monday, presenting the first card to Rep. Cooper Evans, R-3rd District.

The card is a wallet-sized identification card containing a personal medical history stored on a microfiche insert. The card is to e used in emergency situations. Additional nformation on next of kin phone numbers, nsurance coverage, physician's name, and organ donor information are also on the microfiche ministrator, said in an opening speech at the ceremony, the card "can be used not only at Mercy here, but it can be used anywhere where microfiche equipment is available.

Evans took the card saying, "I'm used to using cards for quick access," referring to his identification card which allows him into the Congress.

LINDA MUSTON, Mercy's director of community relations, said the card was designed to make people more aware of Mercy's new emergency medical care facility, and also as a symbol of "outreaching medical care," noting that 60 percent of Mercy's patients come from surrounding communities.

The new service is aimed at both prevention and wellness. Muston said the hospital hopes to reach 10,000 people through the program.

People may obtain a card by filling out an emergency medical information form available at Mercy's emergency care unit. The personalized card, including two fluorescent orange stickers to be placed elsewhere on the person's property to note the possession of the card, is then mailed to the home in four to six weeks.

Mercy representatives also made forms available Monday at the health fair at the Iowa City Senior Citizen's Center.

Muston said she was not yet sure how much the free service will cost Mercy, say ing it would depend on how well the public

S.W. Africa terrorists blamed for envoys' deaths

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (UPI) - The bomb that killed two U.S. diplomats in South West Africa does not appear to have been intended for the Americans and instead may have been a "pure act of terror," officials said Monday.

An American official said the U.S. liaison office in the disputed territory would remain open despite the attack.

The bomb killed U.S. liaison office head Dennis Keogh and Lt. Col. Ken Crabtree when it exploded near their Toyota Land Cruiser as they filled up with gas in Oshakati, near the Angolan border 360 miles from the Namibian capital of Windhoek.

The explosives, apparently packed in a cooking gas can of the type used on camping trips, also killed a civilian in another vehicle and a station attendant

"There is a real possibility it was a mere coincidence, mere chance," said a South West African government official. "It was a pure act of terror." "The police are pursuing an intensive investigation but there is no immediate evidence that the attack was aimed specifically at these men," Police Inspector Kierie du Rand said. Howard Jeter, a diplomat attached to the U.S. liaison office in Windhoek, appeared to support the theory that the attack was random.

"To my knowledge, SWAPO (South West African Peoples Organization) has never opposed our presence in Namibia," he said.

SOUTH AFRICAN officials, who administer the territory in violation of U.N. resolutions, blamed the rebel group for setting the bomb.

But SWAPO, whose proindependence guerrillas have fought a 17-year war against South African control of the territory, also known as Namibia, denied involvement in the blast. In statements in Zambia and Algeria, SWAPO said South Africa was responsible for the blast.

The U.S. liaison office in Windhoek was opened six weeks ago to help monitor a U.S.-mediated cease-fire agreement between South Africa and Angola.

In Washington, the State Department said Monday it has no information on who planted the bomb, or why the bombing took place.

But, said a State Department spokesman, "The tragic deaths of our representatives in Namibia this weekend remind us of the terrible cost of the conflict in southern Africa." "The United States is committed to trying to bring about peace in southern Africa, and our liaison office in Windhoek is there as part of that effort," the spokesman said.

As part of the Feb. 15 accord, South African troops have been pulling out of southern Angola and Angolan authorities are seeking to keep SWAPO guerrillas out of the zone, which borders Namibia

Violence marks Namibia's fight for autonomy

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (UPI) - South Africa and the South West Africa Peoples Organization (SWAPO) are struggling over how to bring independence to the only African country still effectively ruled by a colonial power.

South West Africa, more recently known by the name it will acquire at independence. Namibia, was established as a German protectorate in 1884 during the so-called "Scramble for Africa" of European powers seeking imperial conquest.

The 1970s were characterized by attempts to work out an internationallyaccepted peace settlement for Namibia. South Africa stonewalled such a settlement despite assertions by Pretoria it wanted an independent Namibia.

THE UNITED STATES came late to the conflict. In 1977, the United States emerged as the leader of a five-nation Contact Group of western countries who began once more to grapple with an independence settlement for Namibia

U.S. Embassy official dies in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - A gunman firing from a taxicab killed the Salvadoran head of security at the U.S. Embassy Monday barely a mile from the mission, authorities said

In other violence in El Salvador, leftist guerrillas killed 37 soldiers in a hail of rocket fire in the bloodiest ambush recorded so far this year, military sources said.

The embassy official, Joaquim Alfredo Zapata Romero, 59, died in his car from four bullet wounds to the head, neck and chest, witnesses said. His wife Yolanda was shot in the mouth but a daughter traveling with them was unharmed, they said.

Witnesses said the unidentified gunman in the passenger seat of a taxi pulled up beside Zapata's car, stopped at a major intersection during the morning rush hour in the west of the capital, and opened fire.

They said the gunman and the taxi driver escaped from the scene by speeding away to the north. No group immediately claimed responsibility.

of the shooting "with profound regret." "The Department of State condemns all such acts of violence and terrorism,'' said department spokesman John Hughes.

Zapata was an 8-year veteran of embassy security, the highest-ranking Salvadoran on the embassy staff and headed the 200-member security force of Salvadorans, a mission spokesman

He ranked just below the embassy's Regional Security Officer, an American.

Among his duties was coordinating security arrangements with the Salvadoran government for the visits of high-ranking American officials, such as Cabinet members and the vice

Bay of Pigs aftermath bred covert war doubts

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Kennedy administration expected the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion to work with the impromptu help of local Cubans but in the aftermath admitted "we have to give real thought" to whether covert wars should be waged at all, declassified documents showed Mon-

The CIA-sponsored invasion by up to 1,500 Cuban exiles took place 23 years trying to bring Cuba back from comago today and ended in disaster when counter-attacking Cuban government forces destroyed the rebels' ammunition ships and prevented reenforcement.

Top administration officials went to Capitol Hill shortly afterward to explain in closed sessions what happened. Transcripts released by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee show some contradictions about the prospects for an anti-Castro revolt:

Dean Rusk, Secretary of State under Kennedy, said May 1, 1961, "There was never any supposition that some 1,200 men could conquer Cuba, but there were alternatives. ... The first was to spark an uprising by many elements in running a covert war.

Then-CIA Director Allen Dulles, testifying the next day, however, sought to correct that view, saying "We did not count on ... any immediate uprising.'

Two weeks later, Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the original plan was "to put a certain number of people in an area where they were to trigger off uprisings throughout Cuba, and if they did not succeed, they would go into guerrilla areas as guerrillas."

DULLES SAID it was expected that if a beachhead could be established, other Cubans would join the invaders. But he acknowledged that, "A majority of the people probably still adhered to Castro.

Dulles said the invasion, "even disastrous as the result may have been" was "just the first shot in what is going to be a long and difficult operation in munism.' Some members of the committee expressed bewilderment at the operation. "Any fool who has studied this particular matter would, I think, have arrived at a different decision than the Pentagon and the CIA," said Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont

Other members, notably Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., complained that Congress had not been consulted in advance

Rusk, in testimony foreshadowing problems faced by the Reagan ad-ministration's efforts in Central America, discussed the difficulty of

"THE EFFORT to let this go forward as though we were not in-volved, at least in the background, I suppose on the face of it now seems to be impossible," he said.

"We have to give real thought, and this is being done in the executive branch, as to the nature of activities that border on this type of thing, to see to what extent it is possible for the Un-ited States to take part in such matters without accepting full, open and public responsibility," Rusk said.

The rights stuff

Civil rights activists in Congress have hard and quick work to squeeze into the remainder of this session's calendar. Their task is to reverse a recent Supreme Court ruling, and at stake is the efficacy of 20 years worth of anti-discrimination law.

In 1977, Grove City College, a small Presbyterian school in Pennsylvania, refused to sign an "assurance of compliance" form promising to obey federal sex discrimination rules. (Title IX of the 1972 federal education law prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex at any school receiving federal funds.) The government took the college to court; Grove City lost, then appealed.

When the case reached the 3rd U.S. District Court of Appeals in 1981, the Reagan administration pushed for a narrow interpretation that would allow Grove City and about 10 percent of similar, federally-funded colleges to legally evade Title IX.

The administration proposal was not adopted, but early this year the Supreme Court ruled Grove City was exempt because the school's federal loans and grants are not administered by college officials. Under the ruling, only the financial aid office, not the school itself, must comply with Title IX.

Civil rights officials in the administration maintain the decision extends to Title VI, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Age Discrimination Act - pivotal rights laws affecting blacks, the handicapped and the elderly. The malignancy of the Grove City decision is almost guaranteed by time and the acquiescence of lower courts unless Congress can intervene.

Democrats and Republicans in both the Senate and House are supporting legislation introduced last week that would change a critical phrase in each of jeopardized laws, effectively reversing the Grove City decision and prohibiting similar rulings in the future. The task of passing the bill, however laborious, beseeches aid from the conscientious in Congress.

"The Supreme Court let us down," says co-sponsor Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore. And the Reagan administration, which has alloted only 8 percent of the top, full-time presidential appointments to women and minorities, appears determined by its support of Grove City to maintain its poor record.

A matter of life

When the terminally ill patient should be allowed to die is a perplexing question that becomes even more difficult with each advance in medical technology. Current procedures allow for the sustenance, in some cases, of patients who are without reasonble hope of recovering, thus forcing literal life-or-death decisions on the patients themselves, their families or guardians, and medical professionals. And too often, because legal and ethical standards in the area are unclear, such decisions become even more trying

Bully tactics tarnish U.S. image

By C. Maxwell Stanley

HE UNITED STATES, a nation founded on the sanctity of the rule of law, is behaving like an international outlaw. In a series of actions, the Reagan administration has shown that it will not allow international law, which this nation was instrumental in developing, to get in the way of its questionable policies in Central America.

Disturbingly, there appears to be a pattern of lawlessness emerging in our actions toward our Latin neighbors. It began with the domestically popular, but legally inexcusable, invasion of Grenada last October. Since then, the administration has supported El Salvador (despite the way it ignores internationally recognized human rights), covertly supported efforts to overthrow the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and built military facilities in Honduras large enough to support an American invasion force. Now that the CIA has mined the ports of Nicaragua, the administration has vetoed a United Nations Security Council resolution condemning the mining and announced that the United States will not be bound by any World Court decision concerning Central America. Perhaps even more alarming than this recent behavior is what the Reagan administration may have in mind for the future. A recent New York Times report cites administration sources admitting to a Defense Department policy shift whereby U.S. combat forces would be used in Central America if present strategies do not defeat the leftist forces in the region.

Guest opinion

Secretary of State George Schultz, in a recent speech, called for the use of preemptive military force abroad as a desirable and necessary means to achieve U.S. foreign policy goals and to protect U.S. interests. He went on to accuse those who oppose these militaristic tactics as people who seek alibis for inaction or who advocate "formulas for abdication."

NOT ONLY do our actions represent a breach of the international law we helped to create, but they also cost us the Soviets in Afghanistan and Africa, researches international policy.

dearly in credibility as a nation. We were alone in blocking the Security Council resolution against our mining of the Nicaraguan harbor. We have strained our relationships with two of our close allies, Great Britain and France. In fact, our behavior has been denounced by prominent leaders in Great Britain as "terrorist action." Adding to our lack of credibility is the self-contradiction of our own actions and pronouncements. We highly condemn Iranian threats to mine the Straits of Hormuz, but we mine the ports of Nicaragua. We properly deplore Soviet overt and covert military activities in Afghanistan and Africa, but we invade Grenada, using the same "we were invited" excuse as > and we covertly aid rebels attempting to overthrow the government of Nicaragua.

The United States properly seeks friendly and democratic governments in Central America. Will they be achieved by means of covert and military action contrary to the concepts of international law? Are they not more likely to be gained by seriously pursuing negotiations as proposed by the Contadora nations -Columbia, Mexico, Panama and Venezuela - and by extending a strong, helping hand to overcome the poverty and disillusionment that nourishes the rebels?

CIA ACTIONS and the Pentagon's contingency plans besmirch the image of the United States as the paragon of the rule of law in domestic and international affairs. These actions appear more like those of a bully threatening the local citizenry with violence while boasting to the authorities that he is above the law.

Surely our legitimate goals can be achieved within the boundaries of agreed-upon international law and without shedding the blood of our youth in ill-conceived military adventures. Neither the CIA nor the Pentagon should be permitted to carve the destiny of the United States contrary to the accepted patterns of international conduct. The end sought does not justify the means used. We are made of better stuff. We must remember that right makes might and not the other way around.

by the intrusion the of state or federal government into the process.

Now a group of the nation's leading physicians is seeking to change the way critical medical decisions are made by establishing conditions under which it would be ethically defensible to withhold treatment from the hopelessly ill.

The guidelines, published last week in the New England Journal of Medicine, suggest that the patient's role in such decisionmaking is paramount and that it is advisable to limit treatment when it would only prolong the process of dying. They also suggest that the high cost of medical care for the dying be taken into consideration.

The guidelines also apply to "harder" cases, in which severely handicapped or injured patients are unable to make rational decisions about their health. In those situations, physicians are encouraged to look first to any pre-illness written statements the patient may have made regarding health care, and then to an appointed proxy or family members in order to make a "substituted judgment" on behalf of the incompetent.

Although the guidelines have no legal effect, they are an honest, insightful attempt to clarify a murky legal/ethical area. Critical medical decisions should be made privately whenever possible. A consistent, professional approach to such matters will ensure that they are made responsibly, without the need for governmental or legal intervention.

Knuckle-rapping

To the editor:

I'm writing regarding the black disc jockey's firing at the Stadium a few months back. It comes to my attention that he was fired because he played too much rap music and was drunk on duty. The Stadium has now hired a former Iowa football player, presently with Miami Dolphins. I have been to the Stadium on numerous occasions when the "well-known" Reggie was playing the music. Reggie played rap music continuously, and I take it the management didn't complain about this to Reggie. If something was said, he apparently didn't bother to listen, because the next time I went there it was the same thing. So I don't think that was the main problem.

There are questions yet to be answered. Is Reggie allowed to do the things that the other black DJ couldn't because of his name? And are they afraid that if they fired Reggie, he'd have the power to close down the bar? Don't get me wrong. I'm not against Reggie. It's just that firing the first DJ was unfair because Reggie is playing more rap music than what was allowed previously.

'Please re-lease me ...'

To the editor: It has come to my attention recently from reading several articles in The Daily Iowan that the UI will probably not renew its lease for the Macbride field campus

That would be a big mistake. As one who has enjoyed and used the field campus many times (which probably sets me apart from most other students), I know what a valuable asset it is to the university and the public. Because it is not criss-crossed with nature trails or dotted with boat docks and concession stands, the field campus possesses a nice, "undisturbed" quality that places like Lake Macbride and the Coralville Resevoir lack. Since the field campus has this highly desirable and unusual excellent place to do research and is also one of the best wildlife habitats in the area. Places like these are rare enough as it is. We don't need to let the Iowa Conservation Commission have the field campus so they can develop and commercialize it; there are plenty of developed and commercialized recreation areas in Johnson County already. Therefore, it is in the UI's and the public's best interest to renew the lease for this unique piece of property.

A day at the races

To the editor:

Now that the Riverfest Riverrun is history, I feel it is necessary to comment on a few of the "surprises" that my friends and I encountered last Saturday.

I knew that there were organizational problems when, at 7:55, someone made the announcement, Will everyone connected with the Riverrun please meet over here?" (The first race was supposed to start at 8:00.)

When the 5K-10K race was about to start, there was one quick, barely audible announcement at the front of the pack, 'The 1 r ce will start 10 minutes after the sace starts." In the information p and it said that the 5K and 10K races would start at the same time and that the 10K runners should start in the back. Many people didn't hear the announcement and ended up running part of the 5K race until they got to the 10K turnoff and realized no one was taking it!

In the middle of the 5K course, I was as "surprised" as everyone else when I realized the course had been changed from what was printed on the application blanks. Most of us didn' appreciate the 200-yard hill thrown i at the two-mile point!

The final "surprise" came at the finish line, where some obnoxio woman in a yellow warm-up suit so busy shoving "bandits" (peoplrun without officially entering) course, that she was getting in of those of us who were entere the races I've been in, I have anything as ridiculous as this! bandits want to do is hear the. time and then they step off the course. I w s in the process of passing two band when she leaped in front of me to pu them off the course. After a full-scale collision, I was able to cross the finish line two positions behind where I would have finished otherwise.

I certainly hope that next year they get people who know something about roadracing to be in charge of the Riverrun.

Howard film makes big 'Splash'

By Craig Wyrick Staff Writer

OOKING OUT across the vast wasteland of teenage sex comedies and slasher sequels in town this weekend, Splash becomes an oasis in the desert of comedy, a place to hang your cap for a few hours of dreamy, if not delirious, enjoyment.

Splash is the first film to be released under Walt Disney's new adult film label Touchstone, and it has become the biggest opener in history for Disney. Though Tron and Tex tried to forge new frontiers for Disney, it looks like Splash will be the movie that finally spreads Disney's audience to keep up with the demographics of today's moviegoers. And much of the thanks must go to director Ron Howard and his team of creative talents.

It might seem odd to start discussing the style of 30-year-old director Ron Howard, when just the other day he was meandering through Mayberry (as Opie in The Andy Griffith Show) and Milwaukee (as Richie on Happy Days). But Howard, after getting his start directing a feature-length theatrical feature Grand Theft Auto for Roger Corman, already has a number of directorial efforts to his credit, though most were made-for-TV movies.

HOWARD PRODUCED his first big hit behind the camera, Night Shift, last summer. Starring "Happy Days" costar Henry Winkler, comedienne Shelley Long, and talented newcomer Michael Keaton, Night Shift told the story of two late-night morgue employees who open a warehouse of prostitution. Despite its generally adolescent humor, Night Shift featured the comedy performance of the year by Michael Keaton and some interesting direction by Howard. As we also see in Splash, the New York locations looked incredibly realistic and earthy, a style that grounded the film's comedy in reality. It is interesting to note that the producer and writers on Splash are the same team from Night Shift.

Splash is not as funny as Night Shift (probably because there is no one in it as funny as Keaton), but it is certainly much more satisfying as a film; it's a fairy tale in modern times, with an "And they lived happily ever after" ending. Despite its PG rating, this is rageous than Night Shift's; a lonely bachelor finally meets the girl of his dreams, but she turns out to be a mermaid. This, of course, leads to complications in their relationship.

SPLASH IS, at times, very uneven, mixing romantic-melodrama and farcical comedy into an uneasy blend. Tom Hanks, in a finely subdued performance, is the lonely bachelor, Allen Bauer, who just can't seem to fall in love; Daryl Hannah is the mermaid who goes in search of Allen after a close encounter with him underwater. Out of water, Hannah has legs, a conceit supplied by mermaid lore; and once in New York, she adjusts quickly to the new environment after watching Avenue. Allen's newfound friend adds luster to his life, but she keeps her Splash's premise is even more out- secret locked away until a maniacal researcher exposes her, much to Allen's shock and disappointment. Howard brings on the talent of two "SCTV" actors, with mixed results. John Candy is genuinely hilarious as Freddie, Allen's brother; it's been a long time since the obese Candy has given us something to laugh at. Eugene Levy, however, lacks sincerity as Walter Kornbluth, the selfish scientist who wants to expose the mermaid to an unsuspecting public. Too often Levy inhabits the false front of a character in a "SCTV" sketch and in Splash this insincerity clashes with the rest of the cast. The scenes where he runs around throwing water on the wrong women detracts incredibly from the focus of the film.

Splash really shines when compared to the current glut of films in town. In another year, Splash might have been a minor success; this spring, Splash is a hit

Jagger sues for old 'rubbish'

NEW YORK (UPI) - Rock superstar Mick Jagger appeared in court Monday to try to stop his former manager from releasing incomplete Rolling Stones material from the 1960s because it is "rubbish" and damaging to the band's reputation.

In a bitter legal battle, the Stones sued former manager Allen Klein in U.S. District Court in Manhattan over a contract that gives Klein's recording companies control of Stones songs recorded before 1970.

A key issue is whether Klein has the right to license the rock group's music and films, lucrative video cassettes and discs and whether the Stones are owed royalties.

Jagger told the judge that under a 1972 settlement, the Stones and Klein agreed Klein could keep the unreleased 1960s recordings for "archival purposes" but could not use them commercially.

"They were mostly unfinished they were rubbish," Jagger said. "We didn't want them to be put out because they would do damage to our reputation."

Judge Thomas Griesa complained several times that he could not hear Jagger clearly through the court sound system. "Are you used to microphones?" Griesa asked with a grin.

Steve Kramer, lead singer of Minneapolis-based The Wallets, delights the Riverfest Concert crowd with a set of zany tunes Saturday afternoon in the Union Main Lounge.

Favorite performers delight small crowds at Riverfest

By Allen Hogg

HE WORST THING about Saturday's Riverfest Concerts was the weather. Overcast skies, cold, damp air and occasional rain forced the main stage acts to take shelter in the Union Main Lounge instead of playing on the Union Field, where it is traditionally held. The weather also kept the crowd smaller and somewhat less enthusiastic than usual. In no way, however, did it prevent some fine music from being played.

The concert started shortly after 11 a.m. with local favorites the Misstakes. The Misstakes, a four-man band out of Springfield, Mo., began the hour of sets with their original brand of power pop (heavy emphasis on the power). Impeccably dressed in mod attire, they played professionally, only occasionally allowing their disappointment with the small morning turn-out to show. After finishing, they packed up quickly in order to catch a plane to St. Louis, where they were opening for Culture Club that night.

The Misstakes were followed by Boys With Toys, who serve as sort of an Eastern Iowa cross between the Stray Cats and the Violent Femmes. Clad in rockabilly garb, the trio showed some rough edges, but generally were energetic as they belted out their garage-style rock 'n' roll.

THE MOST PLEASANT surprise of the concert was Non-Stop, a very assured four-man group out of Cedar Falls. Probably the least well-known band playing on the main stage Saturday, they mixed their rockabilly/country and Western material with a very urbane sensibility and gave what was perhaps the tightest musical show of the day. Look for them at the Crow's Nest Thursday night, where they will be opening for those Elvis Brothers.

Following the Non-Stop and an excruciatingly long hour-and-twenty-minute break, the Riverfest Concert hit a peak in both attendance and showmanship with the Wallets, a five-man group of zanies out of Minneapolis. Featuring cheesy organs, Frankenstein vocals, a fun knowledge of rock history and an accordion, the Wallets entertained the crowd with a truly bizarre set that included their German-polka version of "Louie, Louie," a revved-up rendition of the children's song "There Was an Old Woman Who Swallowed a Fly" and "How to Dance Better," a number whose lyrics were read from an Arthur Murray dance instruction book. They finished with a xylophone-led encore of the Temptations' "My Girl." Weird.

Because the show was running late, Chicago's B.B. Spin performed next, going out of schedule so they could get done in time to play at the Crow's Nest that night. B.B. Spin, another five-man group, gave a slick performance of their rhythm-and-rock num-

FOLLOWING B.B. SPIN, the crowd thinned out considerably, but those left remained enthusiastic for Iowa City's own Subsonics who finished the concert. The Subsonics came across as somewhat smug on-stage, but generally entertained what was left of the audience with their hard-rockin' sound.

Riverfest Music Committee members Luis Sierra and Bonnie Burket, and Don Muller, Riverfest Music Committee chairman in charge of organizing the concert, also made several appearances, keeping the crowd amused and informed of other Riverfestoriented goings-on.

After the show, Muller noted the scheduling problems that plagued the show, which was broadcast live over student-radio KRUI, but generally considered it a success. "I think it went really well," he said. "I was pleased with all the work people put into it."

Hawkeyes outlast Illini for first conference win By J.B. Glass

Although it was not a pretty sight, Iowa won its first Big Ten baseball game of the season by beating Illinois, 14-8 Monday afternoon in Champaign,

The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was canceled after a late start in the first game because of a rain drenched field. The games were rescheduled after rain postponed Sunday's action.

Smith, Moller ignore rain, win at Boston

BOSTON (UPI) - Geoff Smith of Britain, running in only his second marathon, Monday won the raindrenched 88th Boston Marathon, easily beating his nearest challenger by more than four minutes.

Smith, 30, finished in two hours, 10 minutes, and 34 seconds, just 1:43 off the Boston record set by Alberto Salazar in 1982. Runner-up in the men's division was Jerry Vanasse, 26, of New Milford, Conn., with a time of 2:14:49. Lorraine Moller of New Zealand won the women's division in 2:29:28, topping nearest challenger Midde Hamrin of Sweden by more than four minutes. It was Moller's 11th marathon win in 14 career attempts. Hamrin, 26, of Sweden finished in 2:33:53.

Hawks sweep into Big Ten race

By Mike Condon Assistant Sports Editor

All Michigan softball Coach Bob DeCarolis could do was just stand and stare at the spot. Seconds before, his Wolverines and the Iowa Hawkeyes were locked in a 1-1 tie heading into the bottom of the eighth inning at the Hawkeye Softball Complex Monday morning.

But with one swing of her powerful bat, Hawkeye center fielder Linda Barnes set DeCarolis to staring. After on an error. She advanced to third on a looking at one Linda Allen pitch to lead off the inning, the Iowa City native cracked the next pitch all the way to the fence, some 225 feet away from the plate in right-center field and raced all the way around the bases with the winning run.

BARNES' BLOW, combined with a four-run, sixth-inning rally in the nightcap, put Iowa back in the hunt for the Big Ten title with a sweep over Michigan, 2-1 and 7-4. Iowa is now 3-3 in the Big Ten, 10-15 overall.

DeCarolis was obviously disgusted with his squad, which dropped to 2-6 in the Big Ten, but had plenty of praise for the Hawkeyes. "We kicked the ball around a lot," he said. "But you have to give Iowa a lot of credit, they have big bats and they put the ball in play and forced a lot of our errors." Indeed, in the opener, the Hawkeyes did tie the game on a Wolverine miscue. After Michigan put a run on the pitch by Michigan starter Mary Foster. "It wasn't Barnes' hit that beat us, it was that wild pitch," DeCarolis said. THE GAME THEN turned into a pitching dual between Reynolds and Foster until the Michigan starter ran into some trouble and was replaced by Allen in the fifth. Iowa blew a bases loaded chance in the seventh when Diane Jircitano grounded into an inning-ending force. But Reynolds set the Wolverines down in the eighth to set up Barnes' game-

It appeared the Hawkeyes would make quick work of Michigan in game two. After one out in the first, Jircitano singled, Barnes walked, Lisa Nicola singled and Mary Wisniewski hit into a fielders choice, giving Iowa two runs. The score held until Michigan unloaded for four big runs off Hawkeye starter Julie Kratoska in the third.

JODY HUMPHRIES THEN singled to load the bases. Carol Patrick singled home Thomas before Alycia Seegert unloaded a big double, driving in Morrow and Humphries. Patrick came home on a wild pitch to end the scoring. It could have been worse but Nicola turned a fabulous double play to end the threat.

Iowa got a single run in its half of the third on a beautiful play by Nicola who went to third on a hit-and-run single by Chris Tomek. When Michigan threw to second in attempt to get Tomek, Nicola dashed across the plate just ahead of the relay throw.

The score held until the sixth when Kratoska again ran into trouble and Iowa assistant Coach Pat Stockman, still filling in for Ginny Parrish, who is nursing a bad back, went to freshman Tracy Langhurst.

THE CEDAR RAPIDS native put out board in the first against Diane Missy Thomas led off with a walk. the fire, again with the help of Nicola and catcher Lisa Engdahl, who combined to cut down Michigan's Leslie Bean at the plate.

Iowa came to bat in its sixth and promptly put Michigan away for the third-straight game. Chris Cochran led off with a single and Carol Bruggeman ran for her. Engdahl then came up and executed a perfect slug bunt down the third-base line for another hit.

Alice Darland came into run for Engdahl before Liz Ryan lifted a fly to right that dropped between Humphries and Patrick, loading the bases. Kirscher grounded out to short, driving in Bruggeman to tie the score. Jircitano then grounded to short and Darland beat the throw home to give Iowa the lead, 5-4.

BARNES SINGLED in Ryan and Jircitano came in on an error on a grounder by Wisniewski to complete the Hawkeye scoring. Langhurst then shut the door on Michigan in the seventh, gaining her fourth win of the season against as many losses.

'Langhurst did a great job against us weekend," DeCarolis said. "She had a good change-up going and kept our hitters off balance. She's a good little competitor and doesn't let anything bother her when she's throwing." Stockman was pleased with the way the Hawkeyes got the bat on the ball. "We came out and played together as a team," she said.

cheered him on. He was nearly a mile ahead of his nearest challenger when he crossed the finish line. "I ran as I felt," Smith said, "I thought (over the first five miles) 'I've got to control myself.' "A couple of times on downhills I said, 'Let's have a go.' But then the winds hit and I said, 'Let's play it safe.' ... I planned to run it the way I ran it."

Smith, a senior at nearby Providence College, went out quickly, leading at the early checkpoints and forcing the pace of the race.

His time at the halfway mark was 1:04:14, giving him an average of less than five minutes per mile at that point. He slowed between the 15- and 20-mile marks when he knew he was well in the lead.

SMITH MAINTAINED A 2:10 pace through the first 15 miles, which he completed in 1:13, a lead of approximately two minutes over his nearest challenger.

Third-place in the men's went to Domingo Tibaduiza of Colombia in 2:15:40. Juan Zetina of Dallas placed fourth in 2:15:41, and Keld Johansen of Denmark finished fifth in 2:16:36.

Moller, who thought she needed at least a 2:32 fime to gain a spot on New Zealand's Olympic marathon team, said, "I think I'll be selected now. I hope so."

Countrywoman Allison Roe, a former Boston winner, led for most of the first 19 miles. She competed with a hamstring injury the cold weather was expected to aggravate, particularly on the hills.

"I thought I had it made when I passed Allison on Heartbreak," said Moller, a strong finisher who trains with Roe in New Zealand. Moller said she was not worried about Roe's early lead (almost a minute at 14 miles). "That's the way Allison runs, to go out pretty fast and hold on.

pool native finished more than four minutes ahead of runner-up Jerry Vanasse of New Milford, Conn., and strengthened his claim to a position on his nation's 1984 Olympic team.

"I ran as I felt," said Smith, who looked as if he had spent the morning watching the marathon on television rather than running the grueling 26 miles, 385 yards from Hopkinton to Boston.

Smith, a former Olympian at shorter distance races, said he had to restrain himself from picking up the pace through the first five miles, even though his split time for the distance was nearly three minutes faster than the pace set last year when Alberto Salazar set the course record of 2:08.51.

"I planned to run it the way I ran it," he said.

SMITH, A FORMER firefighter who did not switch from playing soccer to distance running until 1976, also scored a victory in his battle with Britain's Olympic officials, who have not named him to the Los Angeles team despite an impressive performance in the New York Marathon last October.

Smith led through most of the New York race but was caught near the finish line by New Zealander Rod Dixon. Still, Smith ran the fastest time ever recorded by a first-time marathoner.

After Monday's triumph, Smith said he was not sure what British Olympic officials would do.

"I don't know," he said. "It should impress them. It impressed me. I just concentrated on relaxing."

IM action dampened by rainy conditions

By Phil Berge Staff Writer

The rains came down on the intramural sports parade last weekend during the Riverfest activities.

And mother nature prevented many of the sports from even being able to complete the first round of tournament play. Intramural softball was the hardest hit. That tournament had to cancel its first round games and didn't get underway until two days later than expected. There were 36 games scheduled for the first round in a league where there are 100 teams vying for the title. The UI Division of Recreational Services doesn't expect the first round to be completed until tonight at the earliest.

Rec Services also said that they had to move Thursday's games back to Sunday with Friday's games finally getting underway yesterday. All games will be played at the Hawkeye Softball Complex, if weather permits.

Other sports that will be swinging into action this week are the canoe races, volleyball and ultimate Frisbee.

Soviets' complaints are 'puzzling' to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Monday it is "a little puzzled" by Soviet complaints about the Summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

A U.S. spokesman, John Hughes, referred to statements made earlier in the day by Marat Gramov, chairman of the Soviet Olympic Committee, in Moscow.

Gramov claimed the United States has violated a number of charter rules, including housing and entry requirements.

"The U.S. Embassy in Moscow is keeping the right to deny to members of the Soviet delegation entry to the United States. This is a gross violation of the charter," he said.

Hughes said only one man was denied a visa, and that was because he had been identified previously as a KGB agent.

by a group of American women's runners to force Olympic officials to schedule 5,000and 10,000-meter events for them in the Summer Games

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A federal court

judge Monday denied an injunction sought

The runners, including track star Mary Decker, filed suit last August alleging sex discrimination. But U.S. District Court Judge David Kenyon refused to enjoin the defendants and add the women's races.

"While the plaintiffs have submitted a volume of material, much of which presents with clarity the male-oriented approach taken in the Olympics in its modernday inception and for many years, the plaintiffs have not shown sufficiently that the defendants have violated the standards set forth in these laws," Kenyon said in his ruling. "Therefore, the requested injunctive relief must be denied."

OLYMPIC ORGANIZERS disagreed, saying the act does not apply to the Games because not everyone can participate, only an elite class of athletes. But McGreiry likened the Games to a

"The plaintiffs have presented an issue which cannot but arouse a sympathetic reaction," Kenyon said. "There must be great frustration for a woman athlete with the talent and determination to be the best and who, had she been a man, could compete in one or both of these events.

"Ignorance and insecurity appear to be essential elements to the wholesale discrimination against a person or a particular group. In recent years, many laws have been designed to discourage arbitrary and unfair differences in treatment.

"The court is obliged to follow these laws. The burden is on the party seeking the enforcement of these laws to present sufficient evidence that the law has not been obeyed. This has not been done in this case.

Dallas looks to prove point in initial playoff appearance

United Press International

Sports

Dallas, as befitting a booming Sunbelt power that even has its own television show named after it, has entered the NBA bigtime.

The four-year-old franchise plays its first post-season game ever in the first round NBA playoffs beginning tonight. In playoff action tonight, Seattle is at Dallas, New York at Detroit, Washington at Boston, Milwaukee at Atlanta and Denver at Utah.

Three playoff series begin Wednesday: the New Jersey Nets are at Philadelphia, Phoenix at Portland and Kansas City at Los Angeles. While NBA teams are sometimes criticized for half-hearted play during the 82-game regular season, the playoffs seem bring out the best in a team.

DALLAS, PERHAPS MORE than any other team, will try to play its best in order to prove that its entry into the playoffs is no fluke. In the last four seasons the Mavericks have scratched their way out of the depths of the NBA to second place in the Midwest Division. They earned the home-court advantage with a road victory over Los Angeles last Friday. "We're playing well," Dallas Coach Dick Motta said. "Winning the home floor is a great accomplishment for this team. Nobody expected us to do anything like it this year."

The club won 43 games this season to clinch second place in the Midwest Division and the fourth best record in the Western Conference. The expansion Mavericks won just 15 games in their inaugural season in 1980-81.

THE SUPERSONICS HAVE a decided advantage due to their experience in post-season competition. This year marks the team's sixth appearance in the playoffs in seven years. Although the Mavericks have only two players who have ever been in a playoff game, Motta is not fazed. "You have to remember, though," Motta said, "that these kids have played in big games in college before. This should not be overwhelming.

"I have spent the last month trying to prepare them for it. I hope they are ready. I think they will respond

At Boston, the Celtics - who have a league-leading 62-60 record and won the Atlantic Division title take on the Bullets, who finished last in the Atlantic Division with a 35-47 mark.

At Milwaukee, the Bucks hope to move on from their 50-32 record and Central Division title to defeat the Hawks, who finished 40-42.

At Detroit, the New York Knicks, 47-35, take on the Pistons, 49-33. And Denver, third in the Midwest Division with a 38-44 record, meet the divisionwinning Jazz, 45-37.

Future of women's basketball could change with smaller ball

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) - Nora Lynn Finch, chairman of the NCAA women's basketball committee, thinks the sport is two ounces and one inch away from a sharper, faster game that better displays the skills of women

She'll take her arguments to the annual meeting of the rules body next month and ask them to approve a smaller ball for the women's game next season.

"Two ounces doesn't sound like much does it? But as soon as you pick it up you notice how you can use your wrist," said Finch, a former coach and now assistant athletic director at North Carolina State.

Rules for women's basketball are currently established by the U.S. Girls and Women's Basketball Rules Committee. Finch believes the 19-member committee is going to approve the new ball during its meetings this week in Reston, Va.

"THE WOMEN'S BASKETBALL Coaches Association has sponsored research on the small ball and is very much a proponent," Finch said. "It could take effect for this coming season."

"It's going to make a better game," she said. "We have smaller hands. We shoot better. We pass better. We dribble better and fumble the ball a lot less. Suddenly, women are going to do things with this ball they couldn't do before. Our self-image will be boosted significantly."

The smaller ball option is among a number of rules changes that have been proposed to pick up the pace of women's basketball

Others include lowering the basket and making the court smaller. Finch said neither of those is financially feasible. She questions how many administrators, especially at the high school level, would be willing to cough up the money to have dual facilities.

"There's an attitude problem among the media who want our games to look like men's games," Finch said. "We're just not as tall. We're just not as fast. Our game is a finesse game. It's a totally different game. It's a game played at a high-strategy level.

She believes something must be done to combat a basic public relations problem faced by women's college basketball.

All-Star nominations

NEW YORK (UPI) - Baseball fans will be able to choose from 144 players on the the 1984 All-Star ballot, it was announced Monday by Baseball Com-missioner Bowie Kuhn.

Voting for the starting All-Star lineups begins May 18 and runs through June 30. This year's game is scheduled for July 10 in San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

Three players - Rod Carew, Reggie Jackson and Pete Rose - have appeared on the ballot every year since the voting was returned to the fans in 1970. Carew is the all-time leading vote getter and is looking for his 15th consecutive starting selection. Jackson has been named to start 10 times and Rose seven.

Nineteen players, among them Cleveland's Julio Franco, Toronto's Jesse Barfield and Lloyd Moseby, the Chicago White Sox' Ron Kittle, Los Angeles' Mike Marshall, Baltimore's John Lowenstein and the New York Mets' Darryl Strawberry, are listed on the ballot for the first time.

Four teams - California, Houston, the New York Yankees and St. Louis have placed eight players each on the ballot, while Atlanta, both Chicago clubs and Milwaukee have seven apiece.

regional meet in Cedar Falls. The Hawkeyes, favored going into the meet could do no better than fourth in the tournament won by Drake. Northern Iowa finished second and Iowa State was third.

The Hawkeyes played very poorly in pool play, finishing only 1-5. However, Iowa did come back strong on the second day to finish with a 3-5 record. "I was just very frustrated," Stewart said. "We had the potential to win the tournament, but we played like we'd never been near a volleyball on Friday. The only positive thing was that we ended on a good note."

Dantley tops NBA list

NEW YORK (UPI) - Utah's Adrian Dantley won NBA scoring honors for the 1983-84 season with a total of 2,418 points and a 30.6 average, the NBA announced Monday. Dantley, who led the Jazz to the Midwest Division Title in the Western Conference, made 802 field goals and 813 free throws in 79 games this season. The 6-foot-5 forward captures the top scoring prize following a 1982-83 season in which he played only 22 games due to torn ligaments in his right wrist. Mark Aguirre of Dallas was second with 2,330 points and a 29.5 average and Kiki Vandeweghe of Denver was third with 2,295 points and a 29.4 average.
