Joint use of Field Campus proposed

By Dawn Unmel

Iowa City's housing market will again continue to see a major competition between apartment complexes and the University of Iowa, which is currently proposing a $15 million expansion of 1,000 student housing units.

A rental housing survey completed by the city's Planning and Programming Department in July 1983, found that the city had a shortage of 4,400 apartment units. The report predicted that a proposed expansion of the University's campus to the west will increase the already high demand for rental housing in Iowa City.

The report also noted that the city has a shortage of one-bedroom apartments, which are in high demand among the student population. The report recommended that new apartment developments be encouraged in the area to help meet the growing demand for rental housing in Iowa City.

City nut

By Kirk Brown

In a pleasant moment, I was at a lecture while on a field trip to the beach Monday during my stay in Minooka. I was with a group of students and the professor had just been reviewing our notes on the beach. It was nice to have a break from the class and enjoy the scenery. After the lecture, we took a walk along the shore and found some shells and rocks. It was a great way to spend the day and I look forward to more visits to the beach in the future.

Supreme Court hears argument in draft registration case / aide dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government defended its proposal to require 18-year-olds to register for the draft Monday and told the justices that the requirement was needed to ensure the military's ability to respond to emergency situations.

The court heard oral arguments from the government and the American Civil Liberties Union in a case that will determine whether the government can require young men to register for the draft.

The government said the registration system is necessary to ensure that young men are available to serve in the military in case of a national emergency. The ACLU said the requirement is an unconstitutional infringement on the rights of young men.

The case, United States v. Wardsboro, involves a 1980 law that requires all men aged 18 to 26 to register for the draft. The law was passed in response to the threat of Soviet arms buildup in Europe and the Middle East.

Germany's Easter protests climax with token military base blockades

MUTLANGEN, West Germany—More than 130,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators marched throughout West Germany Monday, staging a token protest at the U.S. Pfenning 1 military base, near Mutlangen, for the third time in a row.

Some 13,000 people named at the Pfenning base were blocked out of the facility, standing hands in a token blockade.

Some protesters carried signs saying: "America must go home," while others held up "peace" symbols on the tips of their hands.

Another 8,000 to 10,000 protesters held hands in a human chain around the U.S. command post in the Pfenning complex.

The headquarters of the Easter demonstrations in Pfenning announced that there were no injuries or arrests.

"The Easter demonstrations confirmed the popular will,"

Dr. Kretzschmar said.

Easter demonstrations circled the facility in a token blockade within five days of protests.

Recent scientific evidence science's ties cancer virus to AIDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Health and Human Services Department and research scientists report evidence that a human cancer virus appears to be the cause of AIDS, a disease that has killed hundreds of thousands of people worldwide.

The finding, released Monday by Dr. Robert Gallo of the National Cancer Institute, opens a new chapter in the fight against AIDS, a disease that has claimed more than 200,000 lives worldwide since it was first identified in 1981.

"We have discovered a new virus in patients with AIDS," Dr. Gallo said. "This virus is different from the virus that causes the disease known as hemophilia, and we believe it is the cause of AIDS."

The virus, which Dr. Gallo and his team have named HIV, or human immunodeficiency virus, is a retrovirus, a type of virus that infects the immune system and can cause a variety of diseases, including AIDS.

Dr. Gallo's team has identified two types of HIV, designated as HIV-1 and HIV-2. They have also identified several subtypes within each type.

The discovery of HIV is a major breakthrough in the battle against AIDS, and it opens the door to new treatments and potential vaccines.

"This is a significant day in the fight against AIDS," said Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. "We have now identified the cause of this devastating disease, and we are one step closer to finding a cure."

The discovery of HIV has led to the development of new treatments and potential vaccines.

"We are excited about the possibilities that this discovery opens," said Dr. Fauci. "We have already developed several experimental vaccines that are showing promising results in clinical trials."

The discovery of HIV has also led to new insights into the biology of the virus and the immune system.

"This is a new chapter in the study of virology," said Dr. Fauci. "We have learned a great deal about the biology of the virus and the immune system, and we are one step closer to finding a cure for AIDS."

Judging the judges

It is a sin to suggest that it is United States to make a political system that is as purely objective as possible — that, guided by law and precedent, the legal and constitutional systems. Attorney judges have little room to report personal bias into the advocacy process.

Yet behind the black-robed enhance an undesirable and with a common calling making judges are human beings, and they bring more in the bench than objective. Especially the legal baggage, they also bring their personal baggage. And, especially in difficult or "view" cases where it is impossible or impossi- ble to eliminate all of the emotional judgments, judges will be expected to respond to personal, moral and ethical standards to the best of their abilities and in a "true" respect. In this limited respect, the unspoken "law is politics" is quite true.

Such explanations do not explain the adhesive failure of the American legal system, but they do make apparent one of the most interesting aspects of a recent Ronald Reagan term. Free of the New U.S. Supreme Court justicess will be 78 by the next election, but it is not only by inexperience, but may be making it a statute that many vacancies will be filled during the next four years is a political fact that will loom large.

T he strong sentiment in this city against Central Auto Workers is not just a local phenomenon. Rather, it is a national problem. While there is money to be had in central California, the Central Auto Workers are certainly not an exception. The union is a large population of college- and university-educated auto mechanics who have joined the Central Auto Workers.

The Central Auto Workers, founded in 1924 by a group of young men, is a labor union that has been active in the auto industry for over 50 years. The union is dedicated to protecting the rights of its members and ensuring fair treatment in the workplace. The Central Auto Workers have a long history of fighting for workers' rights and improving working conditions in the auto industry.

The Central Auto Workers is proud to be a member of the United Auto Workers (UAW), which is the largest and most influential labor union in the United States. As a member of the UAW, the Central Auto Workers is able to negotiate with the auto companies on behalf of its members, and to protect their jobs, wages, and benefits.

The Central Auto Workers' headquarters are located in Des Moines, Iowa. The union has a strong presence in the state of Iowa and is active in the local and national political scene. The union is a member of the AFL-CIO, which is the largest federation of labor unions in the United States.

The Central Auto Workers is dedicated to the principles of democracy and equality. The union is a member of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT), which is a federation of 1.2 million members across the United States. The IBT is committed to upholding the democratic rights of its members and to empowering workers to make decisions that affect their lives.

The Central Auto Workers is also a member of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), which is the largest union of service workers in the United States. The SEIU is dedicated to improving the working conditions and wages of its members, and to promoting social justice and economic security for all workers.

The Central Auto Workers is proud to represent a diverse and dedicated membership. The union is committed to ensuring that all workers have a voice in the workplace, and to fighting for fair treatment and justice for all.

For more information about the Central Auto Workers, please visit their website at centralautosw.org. The union is always looking for new members and is committed to providing a strong voice for workers in the auto industry. Whether you are an auto mechanic, an auto repair technician, or any other member of the auto industry, the Central Auto Workers can help you stand up for your rights.

"Lost wages" Vegas

As the backhoe loader, military worker, bellhop, grabbers and nationalists strike on Las Vegas or with Las Vegas with no agreement to immediately start negotiating over the current contract offers, the service of the greatest American institution, the labor union, has never been clearer.

In our society, the AFL-CIO, the Teamsters and the Auto Workers are the principal organizations that represent the interests of workers. The policies that wage bargaining is for the manipulation and abuse of the system. The responses to the demands for reform and new approaches to work in the face of growing international competition are not inadequate.

Be not too quick, Walter Mondale was suggesting for his sake, and for the sake of the Dally Iowan, the community's newspaper. Now that he has become the clear favorite in the campaign for mayor, it stands to reason, we might do well to treat the press, reporters and critics with a tact and a sense of responsibility that one would expect in the city's tender age and the fact that we have treated our customers with respect, and OJ Simpson.

The Central Auto Workers is proud to have a captive audience in Des Moines. The theater chain has been running a drive-in theater on the city's north side for over 50 years. The theater is a popular destination for families and individuals, and is known for its diverse selection of films and fun attractions.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservative political groups Monday agreed to continue their review of federal regulations limiting political spending by political action committees.

The Federal Election Commission, which regulates elections, said Monday it would continue the review. The commission's next meeting is scheduled for May 15.

Ordinance

The ordinance was approved, with Byrd voting "nay," saying, "I could have voted for the ordinance, but I wanted to change it."

Housing

The city council has a major housing problem, said Mayor Mary Miller, who is running for re-election. She said the city needs to be more involved in building affordable housing.

Field

Larry Johnson, director of the conservation commission, said Monday the city has a "major issue" with the field. He said the city needs to invest in the field to make it more usable.

WILSON added that the commission needs to plan on revising its lease proposals after learning that the city's new lease would have a "negative impact" on the field.

"The lease would force us to close the field," said Wilson. "We need to have a new lease that makes sense for the city and for the community."

Decision making as well as acting decisively

"The majority of the people who write or speak against the camp have no idea what it is about," Raxson said. "I guess that bothers me a little bit. They have not taken the time to investigate the whole situation."

ROBINSON QUOTEs from a letter

"I have observed the schedule of the day. In short, I experienced what the boys are not destined to know. A serious wrangle is capable of giving rise to camps."

involved in the camp; it is necessary to examine the history of these gatherings in order to comprehend the ideas that the Iowa Intercollegiate verschill. The competition will be split into two parts: a day or one workout will not be qualified." The camp aims to improve the players' technique, awareness and mental toughness, to help them become better at what they do in the future.

Camp

Campers, including Coach Dan O'Leary, will be involved in the camp. However, it is not clear if the camp will be held at the Old Capitol. The exact location and dates are not specified.

"Making a decision in any setting is difficult, but especially so when you're trying to save a life. As a medical professional, I see the line on the chart and I can think about this scenario every time I walk into the Emergency Department."

In his letter, Robinson wrote, "I have changed the name of the facility in line with the advisory guidelines."

"I'm not sure what we have lost here and I'm not sure what we're going to do to prevent a recurrence. We've got some unanswered questions and problems that we're not sure about the outcome of the camp. It was a positive venture to help produce excellent results for Iowa wrestling."

"The camp has paid and will continue to pay all of the expenses, I am not sure how we're going to come up with the money to continue this program."

Sixers betting against odds in playoff series with Nets

(From press release)

The Sixers enter the fourth game of their playoff series with the New Jersey Nets looking to salvage a split series after losing Sunday night's opener 118-108. The Nets have scored 59 more points than the Sixers in the first three games of the Eastern Conference semifinal.

"They are a good team, but we are going to stay true to our game plan," said Sixers coach Doug Collins. "We are going to play defense, get the ball out of the Nets' hands, and take care of business."

The Nets, led by guard John Starks, are 1-1 in Philadelphia after losing the opener, but winning Game 2.

Photographer Ansel Adams dies at age 82 after illness

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — Photographer Ansel Adams, renowned for his black-and-white photographs of American natural landscapes, died Monday in his Monterey, Calif., home. He was 82.

Adams, whose work was widely regarded as the standard for photographic prints, was recognized for his black-and-white landscapes and his environmentalism. He was a member of the prestigious Society of American Photographers, and was the first non-biologist elected to the National Academy of Sciences.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia Adams. Services will be held on Monday at the Monterey Peninsula Community Church. Contributions may be made to the Ansel Adams Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 1601, Monterey, CA 93942.

Montreal forgets past season, prepares for Islander series

Montreal, which fell to the Islanders in the final round of the playoffs last season, has no intention of repeating history. "We're going to play our game, and we're going to win," said Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman.

Montreal, which has won eight of its last nine games, is confident in its ability to beat the Islanders. "We know we can beat them," said center Guy Lafleur. "We just have to play our game, and we'll be successful."
