Officials say renters to see perks, stabler rates

cent

By Mark Leonard staff Writer

e 1984 Student Publications Inc.

The Iowa City housing market will begin to stabilize this year and renters will see the end of huge rent increases as competition between apartment complexes begins. Norman Bailey, president of the Greater Iowa City Apartment Associa-tion, estimated there is now a 5 to 7 percent vacancy rate in Iowa City, compared to a 1.6 percent vacancy rate found in a 1982 city housing market

"I think with all the building done here in the last couple of years that the pressure is now off the Iowa City housmaybe some greater incentives to live in some of the newer complexes."

A rental housing survey completed by the city's Planning and Programm-ing Department in July 1983 found that a two-bedroom apartment in Iowa City cost an average of $422, including utilities. The price for a one-bedroom apartment was $289 and the average three-bedroom apartment ran $631. In 1975, a three-bedroom apartment cost a renter $286. A one-bedroom apartment cost $166 and a twobedroom apartment cost $223.

ing market," Bailey said. "I think this another rental survey of the housing means we'll see more stable rents and market. Marianne Milkman, an associate planner for the city, said the survey should be completed in approximately one month.

Developer Mike Furman said rents will remain high for people who want to live close to the UI campus.

'These close-in apartments will never be vacant," he said. "You'll always be able to find somebody willing to pay those prices to be close to campus ... so the rents will remain higher in those complexes." Furman said apartment complexes in the outlying areas of Iowa City and Coralville will suffer the most if enroll-THE CITY IS currently conducting ment at the UI decreases in the coming

City Councilor Larry Baker said, "The apartments close to downtown are always going to be viable. I think it's the apartments in the outlying areas that might have a problem attracting renters.

"The apartment owners I have talked to - some of them are lowering rents, but none of them are raising rents." Baker estimated the vacancy rate in Iowa City between 3 and 4 per-

Members of the Fair Rent Coalition, a group organized before the last city election, say the Iowa City housing market still favors landlords. Last fall, the group proposed an ordinance that would have established a fair rent board to regulate city rents. That ordinance was defeated in the November city election.

KAREN KUBBY, a member of the Fair Rent Coalition, described the housing situation in Iowa City as "healthy

She said, "I don't think Iowa City is overbuilt with apartments. I think we've come a long way. I'd say it's a healthy market right now and that means renters are going to have more of a choice."

The 1984 Statistical Profile of Iowa put together by the Iowa Development Commission states that Iowa City led the state in the number of permits issued for new housing developments last year. More than 220 building permits were issued for the Iowa City area. Des Moines was second in the state - 216 building permits were issued there.

Although Iowa City has been a haven for apartment construction in recent years, Jeff Denburg, a member of the Fair Rent Coalition, said he wants to see the results of the city's rental survey before commenting on the availability of housing here.

"I don't think there has been a sufficient change in the housing market yet," Denburg said. "I've seen no decrease in rents and if there's an See Housing, page 8

Joint use of Field Campus proposed

By Dawn Ummel

UI officials are now pinning their hopes to renew the Macbride Field Campus lease on an ambitious recreation agenda unveiled last week by the UI Division of Recreational Services. The UI's 25-year lease on the Field Campus expires June 30, and the UI is competing with the Iowa Conservation Commission for control of the license to the 620-acre property north of Iowa City, which is owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Harry Ostrander, director of recreational services, said the new proposal looks at "how the area could ction with much more recreational programming. In the past it's been a op-in type of facility.' The corps has criticized the UI in the past for not encouraging public use of the facility, which has been the site of many experiments conducted by UI ents and faculty. Ostrander and other UI administrators met with members of the servation commission Friday in Des Moines to "talk to the conservation commission to see if there is interest by either party for a joint proposal.

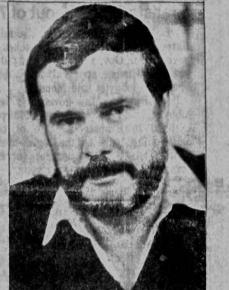

City okays new changes in rights law

By Carlos Trevino

Three compromises to proposed amendments in the city's human rights ordinance received the overwhelming approval of the Iowa City Council during its informal meeting Monday. The changes will probably result in the ap-proval of the expanded human rights ordinance at tonight's meeting.

The proposed amendments to the human rights ordinance, the subject of heated debates and two years' planning, would bar landlords from discriminating against people who have children. receive public aid. All the changes on the amendment which were agreed upon Monday describe what types of rental housing, apartments and rooms would be exempt from the ordinance. John McDonald Exempted dwellings include buildings where 75 percent or more of couples "converting their home into the residents are 55 years of age or different apartments to supplement older, or handicapped; all currently their income. owner-occupied buildings and houses; an owner-occupied house which is converted into four or less apartments; and senior citizen and handicapped residences. 'There's been a lot of compromising all the way around," Mayor John McDonald said. "It has not been an easy task.

Both parties still desire sole possession of the lease, but express a willingness to cooperate with the other in managing the Field Campus.

OSTRANDER SAID the conservation commission "received quite favorably" the UI's proposal, which must be turned in to the corps' Rock Island, Ill., office by May 15. "Basically, we will pursue the license on our own as would the conservation commission with the understanding that no matter who gets the license we will get back together," he said.

Some of the new programs planned by Ostrander include a day camp for children, summer sports camps for sailing, canoeing and wind surfing and family activities such as a weekly "family sing-along" by a campfire llowed by Walt Disney movies. He also said intramural activities could be moved out to the Field Campus, along with setting up rental and instructional programs in cross-country skiing, sailing and canoeing

'The problem is there has not been a great deal of recreational programmng. They (UI administrators) asked me to take a look at the situation," Os-

President Reagan, in a playful mood, tosses a coconut while on a brief trip to the beach Monday during his stay in Honolulu, Hawaii. Secret Servicemen accompanied Reagan and his wife Nancy. Later in the day, Reagan spent time preparing for his upcoming visit to China where he will meet with leaders to discuss such issues as Taiwan, trade and diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

"I THINK it is only fair to say that they (an ad hoc committee) did not agree on different (compromises) from both sides of the issue," McDonald said of the changes that were approved on a 4-3 vote.

The ad hoc committee was formed by the council after a public hearing was held on the matter. The committee was composed of representatives of the Iowa City Human Rights Commission, the city's housing committee and the public, including landlords.

'One of my concerns from the beginning was for the elderly people who want to live in a children-less environment," McDonald said.

McDonald explained that his concern for senior citizens extended to retired

But McDonald's concerns, as well as those of other councilors who had opposed the original amendments, were apparently resolved by the new changes. "I think it's an excellent compromise," said Councilor Ernest

Zuber, who had previously denounced the amendments. But, Zuber explained, the ad hoc committee could have produced other alternatives that could have been agreed upon by more of its members. "I wouldn't call a 4-3 vote a compromise," he said.

"I LIKE the recommendations very much," Councilor William Ambrisco said, adding he still had a concern for students and young adults who do not want to live in a building that allows children.

"It's an undue hardship on the children and on people who want to rent places ... the grad student who's studying and doesn't want to hear children," Ambrisco said.

Teach-in tells of an upgraded Nicaragua

By Kirk Brown Staff Writer

UI Associate Anthropology Professor Douglas Midgett characterized the U.S. government's policies in Nicaragua as "scandalous" before about 40 listeners at the Union Hawkeye Room Monday evening.

Midgett said he believes recent U.S. involvement in the Central American country, such as the Central Intelligence Agency-backed mining of Nicaraguan harbors, illustrates "the situation appears to be almost out of control.'

Midgett's comments were part of a "teach-in" on Nicaragua, sponsored by the Cental American Solidarity Committee, and New Wave, a UI activist

In addition to Midgett's remarks, the audience also listened to comments from New Wave member Bob Hearst and viewed slides presented by Edna Jones, a member of the Central American Solidarity Committee. Both Hearst and Jones have recently visited Nicaragua.

"The purpose of this teach-in is to give people a basic introduction of what is happening in Nicaragua," Hearst said.

JONES SAID she believes U.S. policies in Central America have forced the Nicaraguan people to "consider themselves in a state of emergency.'

She showed a slide of citizens in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, digging trenches "because they fear a U.S. invasion."

Jones said her visit to Nicaragua also made it clear that while "the Nicaraguan people like Americans they are afraid of our government." Hearst prefaced his remarks by telling the audience that his experiences on a cotton farm in Nicaragua have disproved much of "what I am reading in the newspapers and what the (U.S.) government is telling us."

Hearst stressed that although the Reagan administration considers Nicaragua's government to be Communist, "the population of the country participates directly in the govern-

"The form of government they have is very democratic ... everyone participates," Hearst said. "The people are interested in politics, they want to take part."

Hearst also pointed out that the Nicaraguan government - which "the U.S. is spending millions of dollars to try and overthrow" - is extremely dedicated to enriching the educational ability of the nation's population.

"THE FIRST THING the Sandinistas did was teach people to read," Hearst said, explaining that before the Somoza government was overthrown in 1979 "60 percent of the population was illiterate." But, Heast added, due to an intensive national effort by the Sandinista government to educate people, that figure fell to 13 percent within the span of a year.

"Since the Sandinista revolution in 1979 health care has become a national priority," said Jones, who visited the country last November with a U.S. House of Representatives delegation on health care. "One of their major successes has been in reducing infant mortality."

Food prices spur island riot

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic --Rioters angered by food price hikes Monday poured into the capital's streets, burning stores and cars and looting food shops. Witnesses said police opened fire, killing one man and injuring 30 other people. In some poor neighborhoods, gangs of youths erected barricades and set fire to tires piled in the streets. Police wearing riot gear fired teargas grenades at one group of youths. When the crowd failed to disperse, the officers opened fire with shotguns and automatic weapons.

Cash switch seals Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria - Nigeria sealed its land borders Monday to prevent citizens from taking money out of the country in advance of the introduction of new currency scheduled for Wednesday. After Wednesday, the current bills will no longer be valid in Nigeria, black Africa's richest nation.

Chief of Staff Brig. Tunde Idiagbon, the country's second highest official, said the borders would be closed through an exchange period scheduled from April 25 to May 7 to prevent "sabotage" of the new currency.

EPA sets limits on pesticide

WASHINGTON - Mandatory nationwide limits on the pesticide EDB in grain-based foods were imposed Monday by the Environmental Protection Agency, promising vigorous enforcement against contamination.

The mandatory standards are the same as the voluntary state guidelines it released to limit the potentially cancer-causing chemical in a wide variety of grain-based food products. They set uniform maximum tolerance levels for state enforcement where, in some states, no regulation existed at all under the voluntary guidelines.

DES MOINES - Despite some notable flareups between the two branches of state government, Gov. Terry Branstad did well this year in winning approval of his legislative agenda, a lobbyist said Monday.

Dick Ramsey, the governor's legislative lobbyist, said 48 out of the 72 programs outlined in Branstad's State of the State address Jan. 10 passed the Legislature in some form. That is a 66 percent success rate, compared to 86 percent last year.

Chu seeks to force C.R. teams to play among the substitutes By Colleen Kelly Staff Writer

One week after gaining a court order allowing her to play on the boys' junior varsity soccer team, 16-year-old West High junior Amy Chu is asking that court to force Cedar Rapids high schools to play ball. The Cedar Rapids Jefferson High junior varsity team refused to play West High last Thursday, the first match in which Chu was allowed to play on the boys' team. Chu filed a lawsuit against the Iowa City School Board April 16 to gain the right to play soccer on the boys' team. Chief U.S. District Court Judge William Stuart issued a temporary injunction that day, allowing Chu to play on the team until April 26, when the case would be decided.

But the Jefferson soccer team put a damper on Chu's victory when they forfeited a match to West after she took the field. The Cedar Rapids School Board does not allow its teams to compete against coed teams. "The game began and continued for about 12 minutes (before Chu started playing)," said West High soccer coach George Zimmermann in his affidavit filed with the court Monday. "At that point, with Iowa City ahead 2-0, the substitutes were put in. Amy was

"AFTER ABOUT a minute of playing, the Jefferson players started to leave the field," he said. "About six players remained and seemed reluctant to leave. They were exhorted by their teammates to leave and finally did so."

The West High team is scheduled to play three more games this season against Cedar Rapids schools.

Chu's attorney Philip Mears states in a brief filed in Des Moines Monday, "The Cedar Rapids defendants are acting knowingly to prevent Amy Chu from enjoying the same rights on the West High soccer team which are extended to boys - including most importantly the right to play in competition if qualified."

"The cancellation of games by Cedar Rapids with Iowa City because of Amy's presence negates Amy Chu's constitutional right and Iowa City's constitutional duty," Mears added. Mears also asked the court to extend the injunction that is allowing Chu to play to "enable the defendants to determine their positions." The Iowa City School Board is scheduled to discuss the case at its meeting today. Robert Cruise, the Iowa City School District's attorney, would not com-ment on the case Monday.

Supreme Court hears arguments in draft registration / aid dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The govern-ment told the Supreme Court Monday regulations denying student aid to young men who have not registered for the draft is not intended to catch wrongdoers but to remind young men to register.

But opponents of the rule told the justices it illegally punishes young men who fail to register and violates the Fifth Amendment by compelling nonregistrants to incriminate themselves by making statements that could be used to prosecute them.

The Minnesota Public Interest Research Group is challenging the aid regulation on behalf of six students who have not registered for the draft and need federal aid to continue their educations.

A federal judge struck down the regulation, saying that making student aid contingent upon registration violates the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination and amounts to a "bill of attainder" - illegal, legislative punishment for crimes without a judicial trial.

The judge issued an injunction against the regulation but the government won a stay from the Supreme Court allowing it to impose the aid rule while the high court considers the case. U.S. Solicitor Attorney General Rex Lee told the justices the rule is not intended to punish wrongdoers but, instead, is "a reminder" to students who inadvertently fail to register.

"IT IS AN INCENTIVE to register," he said.

William Keppel, arguing for the stu-dents, said the regulations "substitute a presumption of guilt for a presumption of innocence." He called them "an affront to the dignity of citizens." Keppel attacked the regulations on constitutionally conservative grounds, arguing they were an example of "the increasingly pervasive reach of government" that could result in demanding "citizens to swear or certify that they have not committed any crimes" to receive any economic benefit from the government

Chief Justice Warren Burger asked Keppel if the regulations were not analogous to other laws under which people who fail to repay student loans can be denied federal economic benefits

"The repayment of the loan," Keppel responded, "is not a crime. The failure to register is a crime, punishable by a fine and up to five years in jail."

To date, however, the Justice Depart-ment has brought only 16 indictments for non-registration.

Lee noted that late registrants become eligible for aid as soon as they certify that they have registered and that the government does not prosecute late registrants.

BUT KEPPEL SAID that students who belatedly comply with registration laws in order to receive aid are not granted immunity and could be prosecuted in the future.

"The government would always have that club hanging over them," he said. "There is the potential for criminal prosecution.

The draft was abolished in 1973 and registration ended in 1975. But registration was revived by President Carter in 1980 in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. There is still no draft, but young men are required to give the Selective Service their names and addresses.

The law itself has been upheld by the high court. Opponents had challenged it on the grounds of sex discrimination. But the Supreme Court ruled last summer that women can legally be excluded from registration.

UI seeks $100,000 to form business incubation center

By Robyn Griggs Staff Writer

Despite predictions by an Iowa High Technology Council member that the UI could profit from the creation of a small business incubation center, UI Development Coordinator Bruce Wheaton said making money would not be the facility's primary goal.

The UI has applied for a $100,000 grant from the High Technology Council to develop the center – which would offer a cheap space for small, young companies to tap into the UI's equipment and research - and expects to receive the money next month.

"The basic purpose (of the center) is to encourage creation of independent technologically-based ven-tures," Wheaton said. "The benefits to the university are probably indirect or at least not going to enrich the university financially in the short-run. We would be, I think, naive to have that as our principal goal."

Wheaton added the venture "would be established probably in a way different from CADSI." Computer Aided Design Software, Inc. is a for-profit private computer software corporation formed by the UI last September.

COUNCIL MEMBER James Churchill, however, said he believes the center "could be profitable," because the UI will share in the royalties and patents of products stemming from the businesses' research.

He also said the center would "create jobs and create some more tax bases" in the community. "I think the whole concept would be generally rewarding for the state.

"I think it would facilitate and enhance working relationships between small businesses and academia - so much of small business is not aware of what is available to them," Churchill said.

Wheaton said the center would benefit the UI in creating research and job opportunities. "Collaboration with business certainly can cross-fertilize research at the university and provide a source of employment for students and graduate students."

UI Professor of Urban and Regional Planning Mike Sheehan, who said his department has "had a long-term interest in economic development in Iowa," however, charged that the UI is "smelling

Sheehan, speaking not for his department but as a "concerned citizen," said he has "been concerned with a lot of policies in the past, ostensibly to create jobs, but, in fact, a lot of them reduce jobs."

He added, "I suspect that it (the center) won't work too well," saying one of the center's goals of "product enhancement," could lead to automation and elimination of jobs.

SHEEHAN ALSO said he believes the UI is violating a policy espoused to his department by UI Associate Vice President for Educational Development and Research William Farrell that "the university is only to be involved in pure research."

"As to whether the university can make money off it is one thing and whether the university ought to be is another question. ... All of a sudden someone dangles a few bucks in front of the university and they go jumping off after it," he said.

Wheaton stressed that the center will not rely on UI funds. "It really is at the present something we've requested funds from an external agency to do," he said.

The $100,000 requested grant would cover the majority of salaries and hook-up of computers from the center to the UI Weeg Computing Center. The businesses making use of the service would eventually pay for the time at the going rates, he said. The center would be located at the UI Oakdale Campus in a residence hall that is being vacated. "It's being vacated for other reasons - we're not putting students out on the streets," Wheaton said. The High Technology Council is expected to discuss the proposal at its May meeting, then the plan would have to be approved by the state Board of Regents.

"If the council acts at its next meeting, it would not be an unrealistic goal to begin operating next summer," Wheaton said.

Solomon appeal has local backing

By Susan Yager

As the U.S. Supreme Court heard both sides of a case questioning whether male college students should register for the draft before receiving federal financial aid Monday, local activists and financial aid officials expressed hope the law would be reversed.

The Solomon Amendment, which took effect in July 1983, is currently being appealed to the Supreme Court. Mark Warner, UI associate director of financial aid, said although he does not personally support the amendment, the UI must comply with the law.

Warner said in the 1983-84 academic year, the UI has had about 14,000 students who were forced to comply with the law and he expects an equal number next year.

About six people refused to sign the required statement verifying their draft registration. Those students still received some financial assistance, but they did not receive Title IV funds, he said, which are restricted by the amendment

WARNER SAID, "I personally think

with the law.'

He added that the responsibility for the enforcement of this "burdensome" law is in the wrong hands. "I don't think the responsibility should be the respon-sibility of the educational institution to police students who are complying or not complying with the law."

A spokesman for the UI Student Coalition Against Registration for the Draft, who wished not to be identified, said the group has been engaging in "outreach programs" to inform students of the implications of signing the required statement.

The group will also engage in a national letter-writing campaign to encourage students to voice their opinions on the matter, he said. "As to the Solomon decision, we're going to be watching that very closely."

SCARD expects to get increased funding from the UI Student Senate for next year, he said, giving the group means to increase its activities in the controversy

HE SAID SCARD is following the position of the Minnesota Public Information Research Group, which is defending six people who have refused to sign the selective service statement on their crimination against people applying for financial aid," he said. "In addition, it is an infringement against their privacy." Karl Bremer, editor of the MPIRG State Watch newspaper in Minnesota, said they have been doing as much as they can to turn the decision around. Aside from taking the case to the Supreme Court, the group has encouraged a state senator to lobby to repeal the amendment, and has held numerous educational forums.

"We're working toward trying to educate the public that it's more than just signing your name on a piece of paper," Bremer said.

As a result of the group's efforts, he said, Hamline University in St. Paul established a support fund for students who needed financial aid, but who did not wish to register for the draft.

Bremer cited three reasons, based on the U.S. Constitution, that MPIRG opposes the amendment: it represents a bill of attainder, which legally imposes guilt and punishment on a singled-out group of people without benefit of a trial; it violates the Fifth Amendment against compelled self-incrimination; and it does not allow for due process of

Germany's Easter protests climax with token military base blockades MUTLANGEN, West Germany (UPI) -More than 100,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators marched throughout West Germany Monday, staging a token blockade at the U.S. Pershing-2 missile base at Mutlangen to wind up five days of Easter protests.

Some 15,000 people massed at the Pershing-2 base at Mutlangen and circled the facility, clasping hands in a token blockade

Some protesters carried signs saying "Americans go home," while others clutched crosses engraved with the names of their home towns

Another 12,000 anti-missile protesters held hands to form a human chain around the U.S. munitions depot in the Frankfurt suburb of Hausen, chanting "Stop the rockets.'

Holding replicas of Pershing-2 missiles and banners lettered "Jobs instead of missiles" and "Swords into plowshares," they marched back to the downtown area of the city for a rally.

Demonstrators turned out in all of West Germany's 11 states for demonstrations Monday, ending five days of anti-missile protests staged by trade union, student, religious and opposition political groups.

Organizers claimed 375,000 people took part Monday, but police estimated the crowd at about 100,000. Police said there were about 15,000 protesters in Dortmund; 6,000 in Hanover; and 10,000 each in Heilbronn, West Berlin, Cologne, Munich and Nuremberg. AUTHORITIES SAID all of Monday's demonstrations were peaceful and no incidents were reported.

The headquarters of the Easter demonstrations in Frankfurt announced "more than 600,000" took part in the fiveday anti-nuclear campaign. There was no independent confirmation of the claim. At Mutlangen, Robert Jungk, a German author, addressed the crowd, accusing Washington of waging an aggressive foreign policy and calling on American troops to go home.

Mutlangen, 35 miles east of Stuttgart, houses the 56th U.S. Field Artillery.

At least one battery of U.S. Pershing-2 nuclear missiles is stationed there as part of NATO's plan to put 572 Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in western Europe to counter a buildup in Soviet rockets.

Witnesses said police kept out of sight in Frankfurt but shadowed marchers in trucks following violence late Sunday at Frankfurt airport's controversial new runway

About 150 protesters hurled Molotov cocktails, marbles and steel ball bearings at police guarding the runway, a police spokesman said

Nicaraguans kill 25 rebels; army guards Salvador dam

United Press International

Nicaraguan government troops killed 25 U.S.backed rebels and wounded at least 35 others in two clashes in the country's northern provinces, the official Sandinista newspaper said Monday.

On the Salvadoran war front, some 1,200 government troops launched a drive against leftist rebels who the army feared would attack the country's newest hydroelectric dam, military officers said.

Nicaragua's official newspaper, Barricada, said the German Pomares Battalion clashed with rebels the Honduras-based Nicaraguan Democratic Force (known by its Spanish acronym FDN) killing 25 and wounding at least 35 others.

The fighting occurred last Thursday and Friday near the towns of Wiwili and Quilali, about 100 miles north of Managua, the newspaper said.

"FDN COMMANDER Mike Lima entered Nicaragua with 600 men in two columns in attempts to steal medicines, food and ammunition, where they were met by troops of the Pomares Battalion in the hills 5 miles from the town of Wiwili, in Jinotega province," First Lt. Juan Francisco Vindell, the battalion's commander, told Barricada

On Friday, the battalion fought the CIA-funded rebels at Quilali, some 18 miles to the west in Nueva Segovia province, preventing them from settling in the mountains, Vindell said.

He said 12 Sandinista troops were wounded in the first clash but gave no casualty report for the second fight.

NBC News reported Monday night that Soviet machine guns are now being used by Americanbacked rebels in Nicaragua.

The news report said the guns were seized from Palestinian guerrillas by Israeli troops who invaded Lebanon in 1982

Egypt breaks ties with Costa Rica

SAN JOSE Costa Rica (UPI) - Costa Rica's foreign minister said Monday the decision by Egypt to sever diplomatic ties with his nation was a reaction to lobbying in the United States to move the American Embassy to Jerusalem.

Egypt cut off diplomatic relations with El Salvador and Costa Rica over the weekend after El Salvador became the second country, after Costa Rica, to move its embassy to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

Costa Rica moved its embassy to Jerusalem two vears ago.

Costa Rica named its ambassador to Spain, Enrique Obregon, as concurrent ambassador to Egypt last month

Foreign Minister Gutierrez said he believed Egypt's decision to cut diplomatic relations with

THE REPORT SAID Israel, at the urging of the United States, has armed a quarter of the rebel army. It said former Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon offered the machine guns after two trips to Honduras. It said the CIA keeps a close inventory of the guns. In El Salvador's Usulutan province, government troops searched for guerrilla camps around the towns of Villa El Triunfo, Estanzuelas, Nueva Granada and Jucuapa, military officials said. Leftist guerrillas were camped along the Lempa River north of the 15 de Septiembre dam, 43 miles east of San Salvador, the officials said. The hydroelectric dam, inaugurated last Sept. 15, was slightly damaged in a Dec. 31 guerrilla mortar attack just before rebels with explosives destroyed the nearby Cuscatlan Bridge on the Pan American Highway

Col. Julio Cesar Yanez, commander of Usulutan province, said two soldiers died and eight were wounded Sunday in a battle with rebels south of the dam.

IN SAN VICENTE province, Col. Ricardo Rodriguez Murcia said guerrillas exploded charges and damaged a high-voltage pylon leading from the dam, knocking out electricity to the eastern province.

Interim Salvadoran President Alvaro Magana Monday received and began studying a controversial bill passed 10 days ago to eliminate U.S.-funded voter registration lists in the run-off presidential election.

Moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte and far-right candidate Roberto d'Aubuisson will face each other in the May 6 runoff.

Magana told a San Salvador radio station that he would veto the law, as requested by the Central Election Council, only if it violates the Salvadoran con-stitution. He said he probably would decide today.

Costa Rica was the result of "debate in the United States" calling for the transfer of the U.S. Embassy to Jerusalem.

"THE DECISION (by Egypt) has less to do with us than with the idea launched by U.S. presidential candidates for the United States to make the same move," Gutierrez said.

A bill has also been introduced to the U.S. Congress to move the American embassy to Jerusalem. Costa Rica has interest in maintaining relations with Egypt, Gutierrez said.

Gutierrez said the move was not very significant in terms of commercial ties between Egypt and Costa Rica, because Costa Rica's principal exports are coffee and bananas, which are available to Arab nations from closer places.

Recent scientific evidence ties cancer virus to AIDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Health and Human Services Department Monday announced strong new evidence that a human cancer virus appears to be the cause of AIDS, and that a vaccine may be developed against the deadly syndrome within three years

HHS Secretary Margaret Heckler and scientists from the National Cancer Institute and federal Centers for Disease Control said a new variation of a virus suspected in AIDS since last year is apparently the cause of the disease, which has claimed more than 1.700 lives.

She said scientists had hit the target - that of finding the cause of AIDS - and were "only two or three rings away from the bull's-eye itself.'

AIDS destroys the body's immune system, leaving victims open to a variety of fatal infections and cancers. In the United States, AIDS strikes primarily homosexual or bisexual males, drug users, Haitian immigrants and hemophiliacs.

It is believed AIDS can be transmitted through transfusion of blood products and intimate sexual contact.

As of April 16, the centers had recorded 4,087 cases and 1,758 deaths.

Techniques were developed for the first time to grow the virus in large quantities. This makes a blood test for the virus possible, the scientists said.

ALTHOUGH THE DISCOVERIES will not be of immediate benefit to people who already have AIDS, they will help scientists figure out how the disease progresses, detect the disease before symptoms develop and possibly prevent its spread to hemophiliacs and blood-transfusion recipients by identifying the virus in donated blood.

"It just begins a whole series of miracles that can occur as result of these discoveries today," said Dr. James O. Mason, head of the disease control centers, using the strongest language any researcher has used publicly when talking about AIDS research.

Other scientists were careful to point out it will take some time and further research before the 'miracles', if any, can begin.

"It will take months before these findings are confirmed. They need to be confirmed - in view of such a tremendous problem we are facing - before we assume the cause has been identified and stop looking for the cause," said Dr. Paul Volberding, head of the AIDS clinic at San Francisco General Hospital. "We need to make sure what the National Institutes of Health researchers found is not another infection people are getting after getting AIDS. We will now be looking in San Francisco for evidence of this virus," the chief of oncology said in an inter-

DR. EDWARD N. BRANDT, assistant secretary for health, said that providing careful human testing achieves acceptable results, a vaccine could be on the market in two to three years.

Screening of blood could begin in six months, he said, but it is uncertain if blood donations or donors themselves would be tested for evidence of exposure to the virus.

The newly-discovered virus is named HTLV-III, for human T-cell lymphotrophic virus, a member of the retrovirus family, which has been under suspicion as a cause of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, since last year.

The virus was isolated by Dr. Robert Gallo, head of the National Cancer Institute's tumor cell biology laboratory. Gallo and other teams developed techniques for isolating, detecting and growing the virus. Their papers will appear in the April 23 edition of the journal " Science.

Two other types of HTLV virus had been described previously. The first, HTLV-I, was related to AIDS last year by Gallo and had been the focus of AIDS research in the United States since.

French researchers, however, linked another retrovirus, lympadenopathy-associated virus, or LAV, to AIDS. Mason claimed Sunday he believed the French virus was the culprit.

JAY A. LEVY said his virus laboratory at the University of California, San Francisco, has confirmed French studies and was now trying to infect animals with the virus to prove it is responsible for the disease.

"The full answer will come when we look at the nimal work," he said.

After other researchers confirm the virus is the culprit, he said, "we need at least two years to produce a vaccine and even more time for clinical trials to see if it works.

"That whole process will take several years before the vaccine would be available to the public. We must remember during all that time the epidemic will continue.'

Holly Smith of the San Francisco AIDS Center said the news was good, but "we are cautioning people that they cannot assume that this is the cause of AIDS or will lead to a quick cure. It would be a wonderful breakthrough, but we want to say to people that it would not mean a cure."

NEA accuses Reagan of starving education system of needed funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) - America's largest teachers' union Monday accused President Reagan of perpetuating "educational disarmament" by reducing the federal share of public school financing to the lowest level in nearly 20 vears.

The National Education Association, in a report based on figures from state departments of education, said the federal share is expected to be 6.4 percent this school year, the smallest since 1964-65.

Mary Futrell, head of the union, said the figures are evidence Reagan, while calling for better schools, has failed to provide the needed dollars.

The NEA has endorsed Democrat Walter Mondale for president, having repeatedly criticized Reagan on inadequate funding for educational purposes. She told a news conference Reagan has continued the "unilateral educational disarmament" cited in a 1983 report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education that triggered a mounting campaign to upgrade schools.

"IN A NUT SHELL, the Reagan administration is proposing and advocating that we continue this quoteunquote unilateral act of disarmament by not properly funding education and by not implementing" needed and costly

reforms, she said

Futrell applauded the Reagan administration for focusing attention on schools, but said it now must back words with dollars.

·多斯·斯克-斯尔克·阿

The NEA report showed the average salary of a teacher this school year is expected to rise 6.3 percent, from $20,715 to $22,019.

The salary hike is above the projected inflation rate for that period, but the NEA noted that teachers' purchasing power will still be 6 percent below what it was a decade ago. Futrell has called for an average starting teacher salary of $20,000 to $25,000, with a figure of about $35,000 for experienced teachers.

EPA: Find risks of Gulf toxic burn

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Plans to burn some of the most toxic wastes known to man on incineration ships in the Gulf of Mexico should be cut back severely until the environmental risk is better understood, an EPA report urged Monday.

But the report proposes going forward with four research voyages in the gulf over a one-year period, to better assess the risk. Incineration vessels would burn a total of 3.3 million gallons of highly toxic chemicals that include PCBs and DDT in that limited program.

The recommendations to top EPA officials urge that the government back off and evaluate the full-scale ocean incineration proposal that has generated enormous public opposition in Gulf Coast states and has even been denounced by famed oceanographer Jacques Cousteau.

"EPA must build a greater level of public confidence that the agency is taking a rigorous, carefully reasoned approach in evaluating the disposal of liquid hazardous wastes." said Steven Schatzow, EPA director of water regulations and author of the Schatzow's suggestions for the intermediate incineration, however, drew immediate criticism from Greenpeace, an international environmental group that focuses on protecting ocean resources. The group vowed to challenge the plan through the EPA hearing process.

"THE TESTING they need to conduct does not require burning 3.3 million gallons of toxic chemicals," charged Jon Hinck, toxics project director for Greenpeace.

"They are proceeding with this even though they don't know the fate of the burned materials."

Under Schatzow's recommendation, firms operating the incineration ships Vulcanus I and Vulcanus II would receive special research permits allowing them to urn less than 5 percent of the amount EPA originally proposed last October.

The permits also would ban any burning of dioxin-contaminated substances.

The burning would be done about 200 miles off the Texas-Louisiana coast.

Last fall, the EPA tentatively proposed burning 79.7 million gallons of wastes on about 100 voyages of the Vulcanus ships. They are owned by Chemical Waste Management of Oak Brook, Ill., and its subsidiary, Ocean Combustion Service of Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Judging the judges

It is fair to suggest that in the United States we enjoy a judicial system that is as nearly objective as possible - that, guided by duly enacted statutes and the traditions of common law, American judges have little room to inject personal bias into the adjudicatory process.

Yet behind the black-robed grandeur exists an undeniable subjective element in all judicial decision making. Judges are human beings, and they bring more to the bench than objective. mechanistic, analytical legal equipment; they also bring their political baggage. And, especially in difficult or "close" cases where precedent does not dictate an obvious outcome, judges can be expected to resort to personal, moral and ethical standards to assist them in finding a "just" result. In this limited respect, the oft-heard "law is politics" is quite true.

Such realizations do not signal the wholesale failure of the American legal system, but they do make apparent one of the more intimidatng aspects of a second Ronald Reagan term.

Five of the nine U.S. Supreme Court justices will be 76 or older by inauguration day, making it probable that as many vacancies will be filled during the next presidential term. For Reagan, that would mean a total of six of nine appointments. Undoubtedly the court's collective philosophy would shift sharply to the right.

The pool of life-tenured, Reagan-appointed judges on the federal bench illustrates his "ideology first" tendencies. Of the 132 appointments, 13 are women, seven are Hispanic and only two are blacks. "The worst record of any administration in over two decades" in naming blacks, says Sheldon Goldman, a University of Massachusetts political science professor.

In addition to ignoring affirmative action efforts, Reagan has appointed judges who share his views on busing and other civil rights agendas, and on his opposition to Supreme Court decisions on abortion, the death penalty and school prayer. The latest appointee, whose confirmation is now pending, is J. Harvie Wilkinson III, a 39-year-old University of Virginia law professor. Despite an impressive academic record, Wilkinson is criticized by Senate Democrats for his tender age and the fact that he has virtually no courtroom experience.

As much can be expected of any president, but the considerable percentage of federal and Supreme Court judgeships likely to be filled during the next four years is a political fact that will loom larger as November approaches.

simple marketing questions. For example: Does the location of the theaters in Iowa City affect business? When The World According to Garp finally came to town - after its successful Hancher premiere - it was stuck out at the Cinema theaters in the Sycamore Mall, the farthest theater from its most likely audience - the campus crowd. Ditto The Year of Living Dangerously and numerous others. Time After Time, directed by UI graduate Nicholas Meyer, wasn't even brought to town after a resoundingly

'Lost wages' Vegas

As the bartenders, culinary workers, bellhops, stagehands and musicians strike on in Las Vegas with no agreement in immediate sight, we might do well to reflect on the current sad state of that great American institution, the labor union.

It seems old age has finally caught up with the AFL-CIO, the Teamsters and the United Auto Workers. No politicians want to be associated with such embarrassing senior partners; unions' responses to domestic policy-making have become bickering and cranky (and non-productive); their greatest asset - the ability to wring concessions from big business - has become a liability because of small-minded leadership. More important, the singular threat to the unions' continuing health has come from foreign labor practices: half the wages and twice the productivity.

Not too long ago, Walter Mondale was apologizing for his links to the AFL-CIO, trying to downplay the influence that institution had on his campaign. Now that he has again become the clear Democratic front runner, this "liability" is no longer paid such close attention. There is room on the Mondale bandwagon for the old folks now.

But in Vegas things are different. In Vegas the unions are showing some flexibility (but not too much), some real negotiation savvy (but not too little) and, of course, some muscle (but not too much - arrests aside). It is indicative of the times that the media is portraying unions as the bad guys, throwing tantrums over 50 cents an hour and busting the heads of the innocent little scabs who've materialized to replace them.

Since the walkout began April 2, 378 people have been arrested by Las Vegas police and Clark County sheriffs. These people were defending their livelihoods and, perhaps understandably, had to resort to violence to get their message heard over the racket of the jingling of dollar slots and the cheers and groans from the gaming tables.

The unions' demands are reasonable in light of the hotels' annual profits of over $4 billion: a 5.2 to 8 percent wage increase and the addition of fringe benefits. The hotels, meanwhile, want to eliminate the guaranteed 40-hour work week for a third of their employees, to eliminate many legal work holidays (Vegas seldom pauses for reflection) and to juggle the work schedules of its employees at will - regardless of seniority.

The negotiators for the two sides are not impossibly far apart. The Nevada Resort Association's last money offer called for wage and fringe benefit increases of $1.34 an hour over a five-year period. The unions want a four-year contract that tops out with wage and benefit increases totalling $1.94 an hour.

But that's a very important four bits - it marks the difference between an old age for organized labor marked by senility, lack of will and incredible nearsightedness and a hale old age, full of surprises and a reserve of strength.

Labor cannot back down in Vegas - too much of its future is riding on the bet.

of how Central States targets Iowa City. Unlike most businesses, Central States doesn't think Iowa City has a tral States continues to bring in a bevy large population of college-educated

Of those four foreign-language films, two arrived in Iowa City for special reasons: one was Merry Christmas, Mr. Lawrence, half in English, half in Japanese, starring box office draw David Bowie; and the other was the silent classic Napoleon, which gained wide distribution because of Francis Ford Coppola's involvement. (Besides, it didn't have a word in it, foreign or otherwise). Eliminating those, two films means that five times more bad teenage sex comedies came to town last year than foreign films. And when I say bad teenage sex comedies, I mean bad; not good teenage sex comedies like Risky Business; not mediocre teenage sex comedies like All the Right Moves; and not even bad, but popular, teenage sex comedies like Porky's. We're talking unbelievably bad. We're talking Screwballs, Private School and Goin' All the Way, the stuff drive-in theaters are made of. And this was before the Iowa Theater closed, the theater where Diva and The Gift opened.

CENTRAL STATES cannot continue to treat the press, reporters and critics blame, or even to pinpoint problems.

movies in depth, the DI has a duty to be honest with our public; so when Cenof mediocre to bad products and continues to treat reporters like fleas, we have the duty to report it.

In addition to refusing to comment to the press, Central States has tried to flex its muscles at the press in a number of other ways. A few examples: Local managers informed the DI that they would no longer be able to give our critics passes ("orders came from the home office"); local theater advertisers removed movie ads from the DI "orders came from the home office"). And the home office in Des Moines has recently hung up on three DI reporters, often after giving the reporters a barrage of verbal abuse. One high-ranking local employee told us that Central States' removal of the ads is "like biting our nose to spite our face." The result of all their attempts to ignore and pressure the press has only made us all more aware and vocal about the problems created by this Iowa City monopoly.

We critics here at the DI have to gather our news of Central States second-hand, through the local theaters. Since we've always been told that "the home office makes all the decisions," it's often hard to attribute the Iowa City market: we've become the run-off town, the place where products come after they've played well in other cities, unless they are major releases. It doesn't matter to Central States, because they have a monopoly on what first-run films Iowa City gets; they don't have to worry about competition bringing in the products earlier. The Bijou barely has enough money to stay in the revival business, let alone compete in the firstrun market. And besides, they can't they are tied to showing non-theatrical films.

The Central States monopoly can send popular films back to Iowa City to take up space that could be filled with more recent, and better films; last year 18 films returned to town after already lengthy runs. Trading Places even came back two extra times. Why? Because the older a product gets, the cheaper it is to rent. And even with lower turn-outs, the theaters can manage to sell enough at the snack bar to keep the theater in operation; without competition, there's no danger of losing business to more recent films.

Central States seems, at times, to be running a "break-even" operation in a city that could, with a little intelligent marketing, become a bonanza.

It becomes obvious that Central States has often acted inadvisedly in its like a bunch of fleas to be picked off The local theater managers, par- dealings with Iowa City when you ask successful world premiere in Hancher.

Ask a lot of simple marketing questions, and there's no doubt Central States works in mysterious ways. The real question is if Central States even considers Iowa City as a viable market to be exploited.

MAYBE my analysis is wrong. But Central States won't talk. I have this itching feeling I'm right, that the Central States monopoly doesn't consider Iowa City an important market that needs some TLC (Tender Loving Care). They can sell the Iowa Theater to Burger King, split the Englert in half and sell the Astro, too. But if they don't start taking into consideration the fact that Iowa City is filled with intelligent human beings and needs intelligent marketing (one idea: half of the Englert could be an "art house' theater); needs intelligent discussion (or at least some kind of discussion), then critics and moviegoers may well take some action. The battle may call for a drastic measure - a boycott of Central States' snack bars in Iowa City theaters this summer.

If Central States won't allow intelligent discussion, maybe they'll understand something that hits them in the pocketbook.

ORE THAN HALF a century ago, the young men of St. Louis recognized the need for a leadership training program for young men in the community. Only older successful businessmen held leadership positions in St. Louis at that time. Getting leadership training through the "school of hard knocks" did not allow for a young man to fail and stay on the path to civic and business leadership. To correct this problem, the young men of St. Louis formed the first Jaycee Chapter to offer leadership training and put that training to use in performing community service projects. Today there are 400,000 Jaycees in 9,000 local organizations throughout the nation.

Many of the wives of the Javcees formed auxiliary organizations to assist the Jaycees. In the last 20 years, a tremendous metamorphosis of these organizations has taken place. Their primary function is now not one of an sidered part of the leadership training process. They even have their own committee chairs for jointly run pro-

The Jaycee-Ettes have all the training programs at their disposal that the Jaycees do and are encouraged to make use of them by their officers just as a Jaycee would. The same resource materials are also available to both organizations. Projects are run separately or jointly, as the individual group decides.

NOT JUST anyone can be a Jaycee or a Jaycee-Ette. To be a Jaycee, you must be a male between the ages of 18 and 35. To be a Jaycee-Ette, you must be a female between the ages of 18 and

To be a member of either organization, you must believe in God. Not some god, but the Judeo-Christian God. To join either organization, you must believe in free enterprise as the best way to achieve economic justice; not

You must also believe that people should be free to best achieve their potential.

You must believe in the rule of law to be in either organization, not rule of man's disgression.

You must believe in the brotherhood of man and that earth's greatest treasure lies in human personality. You must believe that service to this humanity is the best work of life.

These are very rigid political, religious, gender, age and philosophical requirements. Because of these very rigid requirements, a suc-cessful homogeneity has been established within each group to more effectively deal with the problems of training young men and women to be tomorrow's leaders.

Since many of the projects the two groups run are joint, why not throw the two groups together? The reasons are many:

FIRST, the homogeneity of the roups would be reduced and therefore be less effective, allowing for a lower participation level from both the men and women in the leadership training programs. Studies show that fewer people participate and open up when the groups have been mixed, so both sides suffered.

Second, there would be half as many officers needed; half as many people would get the experience of serving as a local, state or national officer. Officers must serve viable functions, or else they serve no purpose and provide no training benefit.

Third, the committee jobs would be cut in half, providing less chance for the men and women to put their leadership training into practice. These also will be cut in half by eliminating one group.

Therefore, what we are faced with is a very, very few people who don't or won't fit into the structure as it exists. They want to change that structure to satisfy themselves, even if it is to the detriment of the vast majority of people involved in the two organzations and to themselves.

Barring women from the Jaycee-Ettes bars them from potentially important contacts for their own career advancement. Any career person knows talent and drive can be useless if you lack the right contacts, the right friends. The Jaycee-Ettes can provide those friends. But only for women, as it now stands, and that is just.

trander said.

Larry Wilson, director of the conservation commission, said Monday he didn't have an opinion on the UI's informal proposal, but he did reaffirm that the prospect of a joint lease "just muddies the issue. There should be one lease owner and that should be the conservation commission."

Wilson said: "If the conservation commission gets the lease, the role of research projects and endeavors will be a function of the university. If we win we will see that the role of education is still considered.'

WILSON ADDED that the commission does not plan on revising its lease proposal after hearing the UI's new ideas. "We have already told the corps that there are things we can do to increase publicity (of the Field Campus) and we stand firm with that," he said.

Woody Woodward, commodore of the UI Sailing Club, said he is "optimistic about the university's chances for renewal." The sailing club has a major interest in the Field Campus because the organization operates a boat house and fleet of "almost 50 different boats," Ostrander said.

Currently the sailing club is open to the public, but users of the group's facilities must be club members. Ostrander said under the new proposal "we would take a portion of the boats and make them available for public rental on a day-to-day basis" to nonmembers.

Kenneth Moll, UI associate vice president for academic affairs, said, 'Any proposal that we might turn in we will try to make as attractive as possible and think about the functions we want the Field Campus for."

Moll said the corps does not know whether the UI will turn in a new plan, but "we indicated to them that we are interested in further discussion on a joint proposal." He added no decision has been made on the conservation commission's involvement if the UI regains control of the Field Campus. nor on how much money the UI will have to spend on the recreational programs.

Continued from Page 1 Ostrander said the proposed programs will be "self-sufficient through registration fees or rental fees." He said his six full-time staff members will run the programs, but the UI may need to hire a graduate assistant with a special background in outdoor recreation. He also mentioned the possibility of staffing the programs with interns in forestry, park management or natural resources.

Ostrander said the emphasis would remain on programmatic development because facilities improvement will be limited to opening more roads, restrooms and water facilities. "Most of it we can pretty well do with the ex-isting facilities." new three of the nine demands because he was doing something in the same areas they demanded.

One of the demands that the central administration wanted to change was the point system of the camp, which, according to Robinson, is like a university pass-fail situation.

"THE IOWA INTENSIVE camp has a point system which is based on one of the most motivational schools in the country," Robinson said.

Nevertheless, Robinson agreed to the changes, which he did not "totally" agree with. "I agreed to the changes The resignation of Iowa assistant wrestling Coach J Robinson is a matter because I believe in the idea of comof integrity, and the UI administration promise and to keep the camp at the UI In a lengthy prepared statement Monday, Robinson brought out for all the benefits it would bring out."

Rumors have circulated as to what Iowa assistant Coach J Robinson's Iowa Intensive Wrestling Camp was like. The answer is vague at best. According to Robinson, one would really have to experience it. Robinson explained the camp as a place that provides a service found no where else in the country, a place to grow both "mentally and physically." "It is hard, it is demanding, it teaches a very strict work ethic," Robinson said. "It requires one to perform to achieve a goal. It is not for everyone that comes. The majority make it through and have a positive experience. It is an exceptional program, not for kids that are not already skilled in wrestling.

"THE STAFF IS equally committed. They are required to do everything the kids are. It is a camp that leads by example." Robinson said.

As to the camp as being lucrative in the press, Robinson said, the camp gives more back to its staff of 45 then any other camp in the country. "It provides income for coaches, provide summer jobs for athletes, to have the No. 1 premier camp in the country and help kids who want to be good have a chance.

Robinson also said, the camp provides the UI almost $90,000 in hous-See Camp, page 2B to start Hawkeyes at Drake

By Melissa Rapoport Staff Writer

With heptathalon competition officially begining today at the 75th annual Drake Relays in Des Moines, Kathy Gillespie will be working to improve her performance and start the Iowa women's track team off on the right foot.

"Right now, I want to improve on my performance from a couple of weeks ago," Gillespie said. "I want to do better in most of my events and I want to improve my point title. You have to have 5,300 points to qualify for NCAA nationals, so hopefully, I'll get closer to that."

"I know Kathy is looking forward to the competiton," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said. "She really enjoys the support the Iowa fans give her. We're all looking forward to seeing her compete and start Iowa off at the Relays."

DESPITE NOT BEING in tip-top shape after a year of not competing because of a strained groin muscle, Gillespie is now healthy and assistant Coach Bill Knoedel believes she is not only capable of qualifying for nationals, but has a good shot of winning the event.

"She's healthy," Knoedel said. "Her injuries are pretty well gone. Her main concern now is being out of shape ... She's only had a month of practice, she needs at least two months of back-to-back practice to get her back in shape ... She's not in the shape she should be in for a life-time best, but she should get a seasonal best.

"She has a chance to win," Knoedel continued. "There's no doubt about it. I think she may even qualify for nationals.

Being back on her feet, Gillespie is going into the competition ready to give it her all. "I feel like I'm healthy," she said. "And I feel I'm ready to give it my best shot."

Knoedal and Gillespie both expect the heptathalon competition to be high caliber. "It should be pretty good," Knoedel said. "The competition at the Drake Relays is always the best in the country.'

"The competition should be pretty good," Gillespie added. "I know of a couple of girls that will be competing that I competed against in past years, so overall, it should be pretty good."

Monday's cut was to have narrowed Sam Perkins of North Carolina, Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma and Dave Gavitt, chairman of the selecPage 2B - The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Tuesday, April 24, 1984

Boosting its unblemished record to 7-0 and holding those seven teams scoreless, the Iowa women's rugby club dumped Madison, Wis., last weekend, 18-0.

Despite the poor weather conditions, the Hawkeyes scored 12 of their 18 points against Madison in the first half, lifting their total points to 170. "We played the whole first game in the rain," team spokesman Jean O'Leary said

"We had to try and change our game plan (because of the weather)," she continued. "It was so windy that it didn't make any sense to try and pass

In the first half, Sherry Edwards, Trudy Grout and Robin Walenta each scored one try.

IN THE SECOND half, Brenda Weare was credited with the sole try, while Tanya Fry kicked a conversion which is comparable to a field goal in football), making the score 18-0.

This weekend, the club will travel to Minneapolis to face Minnesota and Chicago - two teams which might threaten Iowa's unbeaten record. "I and Melendez added a conversion and a think this weekend in Minneapolis, we should get the competition we need if not more," O'Leary said.

The Iowa men's rugby club defeated Graceland, 6-0, in the championship game of the Grinnell Invitational in Grinnell, Iowa.

Mike Moews scored the only try and Hiram Melendez added one conversion in the final game.

In first-round action, Melendez scored the only points of the game with a penalty kick, defeating Central College of Pella, Iowa, 3-0.

IN THE SECOND round, Iowa blanked Newton, Iowa, en route to the final game. Paul Tweed scored a try, days.

Rafting trip offers Old Capitol Criterium 'outstanding rapids'

By Phil Berger aff Writer

For all of you who have vivid memories of Burt Reynolds, dueling banjos and especially the "backdrop for the movie Deliverance," then you should consider partaking in the annual Whitewater Rafting Trip at the end of finals week.

All those interested can attend an informational meeting and slide show on April 30 in the Kirkwood Room of the Union. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m

The trip will be sponsored in conjunction with the Georgia State Recreation Department, and participants will be able to raft on the Chattehuga, Hochi and Nongalahila rivers in and around Georgia.

Wayne Fetts, program coordinator, said that the trip is held every year. He added that in the past it has been "great fun" and "the rapids are outstanding.'

roundings are lush and beautiful and there are plenty of stunning Oak and Maple trees lacing the rivers.

The trip is run for 18 people, but Fetts said that "there are still some spaces available." Rafters will leave Iowa City on May 11th and return on the 15th. The cost for the trip is $160, which includes food and transportation. Fetts said that the trip is run by a well-qualified staff which is "very experienced" in the skill of rafting. Fetts also explained that, even though the rivers are advanced, rafters won't have to worry about safety because of the experience of the staff. "It is completely safe," he said, adding that it is a great chance for people to really see what rafting is like for themselves and not just learn about it in a class

The Chattehuga was the river that was used in filming some of the most suspense filled scenes in the movie. So rafters will ultimately get their chance to be Burt Reynolds and fight the 20foot waves of the rough Chattehuga, but they won't have to fear being shot FETTS ALSO SAID that "the sur- at by bow and arrows because that's only in the movies.

Robinson said, was done without gathering all the facts. "The two individuals that played the biggest part in the Kirk Rentz incident were never interviewed. How can one gain a feel of what a camp is all about without first meeting some of the people that are involved.'

Some of the facts that were reported about the camp and Robinson read, were wrong, according to the coach. "We treat them like grown-ups and that's how they want to be treated. I don't think the incident was representative of the camp at all," Robinson said. "If you want me to go write an article about the Univesity of Iowa and find someone who flunked out, it would

"It amazes me what has been lost sight of. The guidelines were supposed to be an attempt to prevent a reoccurrence of last summer's incident. No problem was ever brought about the finances of camp in five years. It was a positive venture to help produce positive results for Iowa wrestling.

"The camp has paid the university for the services it uses. I do not think it is fair now to take control of a situation that has caused the university no problem. "

Sixers betting against odds in playoff series with Nets

Sports

The 76ers enter the fourth game of their playoff series with the New Jersey Nets tonight striving to even the series and return the match to Philadelphia to accomplish a feat unseen by NBA fans in more than a quarter of a century.

Philadelphia, rallying from two-straight losses to defeat the Nets, 108-100, Sunday at the Meadowlands Arena, knows the odds are against the club. The last time a team rebounded from a 2-0 deficit in a fivegame series was in 1956 when Fort Wayne came back to defeat the St. Louis Hawks.

But that doesn't faze Philadelphia one bit. "You see this ring?" Julius Erving asked as he held up his finger with the 1983 NBA championship ring on it. "I don't want to lose what it stands for and want another.

IN OTHER PLAYOFF games tonight, the Nuggets (leading 2-1) square off against Utah at Denver; the Suns (leading 2-1) take on Portland in Phoenix; the Hawks confront Milwaukee (leading 2-1) in Atlanta; Washington hosts Boston (leading 2-1) and Seattle (leading 2-1) hosts Dallas.

New York, which holds a 2-1 lead in its series, plays its fourth game against Detroit Wednesday ht in New York.

Los Angeles was the only team to sweep its series, eliminating Kansas City, 108-102, Sunday. The Nets are also hoping to make history, for the > eight-year old franchise has never before won a playoff. To do so, it must eliminate the poor free throw shooting and turnovers that plagued its game Sunday following its upsets in the first two games at the Spectrum.

THE NETS CONVERTED only nine of 21 free throws and made seven turnovers in the final period, including three in the last minute.

"We lost the game on the foul line," Nets Coach Stan Albeck said. "They shot 24 of 27 and we shot nine of 21. We're still ahead 2-1 and if someone would have told me the same thing at the end of three. I'd have taken it. The Sixers changed their line-up and eliminated our quickness going down court."

"We got three turnovers in the last minute and that helped," Erving said. "It's difficult to sweep anyone and I didn't come here expecting to lose.' Erving scored 27 points and Moses Malone finished with 21 points. Buck Williams had 21 points for the Nets, and Micheal Ray Richardson - who terrorized the 76ers with his wide-open floor game at the Spectrum - had 16 points. Otis Birdsong, who had predicted the Nets would sweep the series, hit for only three of 13 shooting.

Montreal forgets past season, prepares for Islander series

United Press International

Montreal hopes to secure its future in the NHL playoffs by forgetting its past season and concentrating on the distant past.

The Canadiens, who host the Islanders in tonight's opener of their best-of-seven Wales Conference final, are trying to forget they lost three-straight games to the Islanders this season and were outscored 21-7. "When the puck is dropped, we'll have the same chance they do," said Mats Naslund, Montreal's leading postseason scorer with three goals and seven Perhaps as important, the Canadiens want to protect the record five-straight Stanley Cup championships won by Montreal from 1956-60. The Islanders have won the last four Stanley Cups.

IN THE CAMPBELL Conference finals beginning Tuesday, the Oilers host Minnesota, which gained its meeting with Edmonton with a 4-3 overtime victory over St. Louis Sunday in the seventh game of that

New York Islander General Manager Bill Torrey has been impressed by the job done by Montreal here.

Coach Jacques Lemaire. "They have learned Lemaire's system of shutting down the opposition," he said. "They're like a counter puncher in boxing, they send one man in and hope the other guys make a mistake."

Lemaire, for his part, makes it clear he greatly respects the Islanders. "I've said it before and I'll say it again. There's no doubt the Islanders are the best team in the league. They're strong everywhere, in goal, on defense and on offense.'

BUT NASLUND POINTS out the advantage of being the underdog.

'They're expected to win - in a way, they don't have the right to lose," he said. "We've got

Co-works highlight play festival

OR TWO BUCKS at the door, theatergoers can enter familiar and foreign worlds every night this week during the third Playwrights' Festival sponsored by the UI Playwrights' Workshop, already underway in various places on campus.

The seven productions and the six readings of works in progress by playwrights from the workshop and visiting professionals range from contemporary comedy to impressionistic political drama.

This semester the playwrights have been working extensively with directors and actors to refine acts, moments and tensions they have been contemplating and researching for months and longer in some cases.

Greg Lindeman, whose Delicate Ears is about "the problems carnival people have with each other and the outside world," has seen his play through five drafts since Christmas.

"That means looking at it, seeing glamour of Katmandu and Shangri-La, how it works, throwing stuff out, trying but the primitive lifestyle tied to the something else," he said. Symphony slips beside starry solo

A THE PARTY PARTY

T'S POPULARLY believed that a stellar soloist, grimacing, emoting and sweating her or his way through a popular concerto, can save an otherwise lackluster performance and even a whole concert.

'Tain't so, though, as Saturday night's Cedar Rapids Symphony Orchestra concert at the Paramount Theatre gave eloquent testimony.

Pianist Tedd Joselson, still something of a wunderkind at age 33, made as much as could be made of Tchaikovsky's infamous First ("Somewhere My Love") Piano Concerto in B-flat minor, Op. 23, at this late date: He trilled magnificently, had the forte power of several locomotives moot was the fact that Tiemeyer and sitively and sweetly. It was obvious, too, that Joselson had mapped out this work for himself well in advance - he and conductor Christian Tiemeyer haggled consistently throughout the performance over who would pause when and for how long, and when and who would round off phrases and musical ideas. Appropriately (I say this because the Tchaikovsky is emphatically a soloist's concerto), Joselson won four falls out of five, and generally his ideas made musical and contextual sense.

blown brass, hesitant entrances. Oddly, Tiemeyer used a score for this work while foregoing one in the two other pieces on the program; one wouldn't have known it from the seeming lack of care that went into its performance.

This was doubly disappointing in light of the rough-yet-ready performance of Shostakovich's Fifth Symphony (in D minor, Op. 47) that followed intermission. While Tchaikovsky's more delicate muse is bruised by rough treatment, Shostakovich's rocky sardonicism might just actually benefit from it the CRSO's performance wasn't clean, wasn't pretty and wasn't polite, but it was powerful and very affecting. And Tiemeyer knew just where to place the telling accent and the eloquent sforhall CONTRARY TO the evening's general trend of aloof playing were the solos in the Shostakovich - here was expressive playing of a high order. Flautist Sherry Lile, clarinettist William Wellwood, hornist Charles Gavin and concertmaster Don Haines (better known to UI audiences as second violinist of the Stradivari Quartet) all turned in lovely vignettes, each well-characterized and well-suited to the musical moment.

Opening the evening was a sprightly if somewhat cartoonish performance of the Overture to Smetana's The Bartered Bride - cartoonish in that I expected Disney-imagined Czech dancers to come boiling out of the orchestra pit at any moment, so emphatically Bohemian was Tiemeyer's accenting and pacing.
