Casey admits inadequate briefing

William Casey acknowledged Thursday he failed to keep the Senate Intelligence Committee adequately informed about CIA operations, particularly the mining of Nicaraguan harbors.

A committee statement, issued after a closed session with Casey, said the spy chief had agreed to keep the nator better informed hereafter.

During the session, Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., withdrew his resignation as co-chairman, a gesture he announced last week in protest to the CIA information gap. Casey called Moynihan Wednesday and urged him not to resign, the senator said.

"The committee agreed that it was not adequately informed in a timely manner of certain significant intelligence activity in such a manner as to permit the committee to carry out its oversight function," the statement

"The Central Intelligence Agency has pledged its full cooperation," the quirement to provide the committee with prior notice of 'any significant anticipated intelligence activity,' as provided by the Intelligence Oversight

Casey had come under harsh criticism for not adequately informing the committee of the mining operation. In an effort to mend fences with the committee, Casey met individually with members of the committee earlier in the week

Committee Chairman Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said earlier he would insist on hearing from Casey "who actually is conducting this mining? Was it chartered out to other companies or have we used U.S. Naval vessels? Have they stopped it? What damage was done and to what ships?"

But Goldwater added the committee knows most of the answers already.

Friends tell of Caldwell's alcohol use

By Patricia Reuter

Benjamin Caldwell's drinking problem and how it affected his relationship with Ellen Egan was the focus of testimony Thursday in his second-degree murder trial.

Several of Caldwell's friends testified that drinking to intoxication sometimes changed Caldwell's personality and his behavior toward his 21year-old fiancee.

Under cross-examination by defense said that Caldwell drank "a lot" the year and a half before Egan's death, including beer, vodka and gin. Albertson said drinking became a "weekend ritual" for Caldwell and his friends and usually took place at Albertson's apartment or at parties.

Albertson said Caldwell was "belligerent, aggressive and ignorant" when he became intoxicated, and he sometimes could not remember things he had said or done while he was drunk.

'Was Ben belligerent toward Ellen when he was intoxicated?" Spies

"Yes, sir," Albertson said. "Vocally, mostly. They had loud, vocal arguments, generally rootless arguments ... picky things.

Albertson testified that he had seen Caldwell "lose control of his emotions" when he was drunk, and say 'crude" and "unkind" things to Egan.

INTOXICATION BY ALCOHOL is the defense Caldwell is relying on in the murder trial. County Prosecutor Linda McGuire is attempting to prove that a beating Egan received from Caldwell in the early morning hours of Oct. 30 caused a "blunt trauma" to Egan's head and her death. In his opening statement Tuesday, Spies told the jury Caldwell is an alcoholic and that was intoxicated at the time he hit

Another friend of Caldwell's, Dan Dwyer, testified that "alcohol played a part" in quarrels between Egan and

Dwyer said Caldwell came over to his apartment after he found out Egan was dead. He testified that Caldwell was crying and seemed "confused, hurt and shocked" when he came over that morning. Dwyer also said Caldwell told him in a "very disbelieving" way that he might have had something to do with Egan's death because he "slapped" her during an argument early that morning.

Spies asked Dwyer if Caldwell ever said he intended to kill Egan.

"No, to the contrary," Dwyer said. "Ben said he never intended to hurt

Caldwell was a "really good guy" who was "sensitive and intelligent" when sober, according to another friend, Scott Killip.

Killip and Dwyer were with Caldwell and Egan at a party on Muscatine attorney Leon F. Spies, John Albertson Avenue early in the evening of Oct. 29. Both men testified Thursday that Caldwell was drinking vodka mixed with orange juice at the party, and Killip also said that he could tell by Caldwell's actions that he was drunk when they later attended a party on South Dubuque Street. KILLIP SAID CALDWELL and Egan drank together often, and that Egan would also become intoxicated during those times.

Killip said that "jealousy tended to surface" when Caldwell was drunk, and he remembered several arguments Caldwell had with Egan while he was intoxicated. Killip said, however, that he never saw Caldwell strike Egan during any of their arguments.

Egan and Caldwell had an argument at the party on South Dubuque Street the evening before Egan died, according to several people who testified

Timothy Determan and Tim Miller, neither of whom knew Egan or Caldwell before the party, said they saw the couple arguing on the porch of the house.

Determan said Egan looked like she was trying to go back in the house "and get away from the conversation," and Caldwell tried to block her path. He said that at one point the couple walked off the porch and away from the house, but returned about two minutes later with Egan running about "six or seven steps" in front of Caldwell.

Miller said he did not hear much of what the couple said to each other, but he did hear Caldwell twice call Egan a "slut." Miller testified that he only heard the word, not the context in which it was used.

Neither Determan nor Miller said they could tell if Caldwell or Egan had been drinking or were drunk. Testimony resumes today at 9 a.m.

Another warm one today, folks, as the temperature will rise to 26 Celsius. A 60 percent chance of rain should also be noted. The chance of rain will continue tonight as the low dips to about 9. Skies will clear Saturday and the high will be about 17. You will recall from Thursday's forecast that 26 is about 80 Fahrenheit.

By Carlos Trevino

Students searching for a job in order to stay in Iowa City this summer should have happy hunting "if they keep looking and leave no stone unturned to find one," according to Mary Earnest, a Manpower Temporary Services employment representative.

Professionals in both the public and private sector agree that students will benefit from having a large employer in the UI, but job seekers should be able to find jobs "in about anything you can think of for a university town," said Judith Harper, UI director of student employment

"The outlook for local businesses is very optimistic," said Keith Kafer, Iowa City Chamber of Commerce executive vice president. "I think you'll find that employment possibilities are

DESPITE SUCH optimistic predictions, Iowa Job Service Assistant Manager Don Menke said: "There's always a lot more job applications than obs. Besides college students, you'll have many high school and junior high school kids applying for jobs, too."

Menke, who finds jobs for unemployed Johnson County residents, said students "should look in as many places as they can. ... Summer is always a better time to look than fall or

Menke said Johnson County's unemployment rate is the lowest in Iowa at 3 percent, but many business people operating small stores will probably

"Students should look at the service better for part-time and temporary areas, like restaurants and fast-food places," he said. "But there's really no place a student shouldn't look. "You > never know who might be hiring.' Earnest agreed with Menke. "Like it or not, restaurants are the only true alternative for students for finding just summer work," she said.

> "IT'S PERSISTENCE that gets a job," Earnest said. "Keep looking and something will turn up, especially in the summer."

Although restaurants may be the main source for jobs, students may find employment in hospitals, offices, construction yards or seed-corn fields.

'Maybe the smaller stores won't be hiring; their employment is somewhat constant," Kafer said. "But if you look to bigger places, like Sears, J.C. Penney or Younkers department stores, these places may need people. They all expect a good summer.

Kafer added that factory work may not be as available as department store or restaurant jobs, "but Sheller-Globe may be seeking summer help. They're one of the biggest helps to students wanting factory work," he said of the local auto parts manufacturing firm.

Menke said Job Service will hire students at minimum wage to fill 800 twoweek openings for seed-corn detassling

"ONE THING we do have is a lot of seed corn that needs to be detassled.' lenke said.

Manpower, which supplies workers "when you have more work than workers," hires students for temporary spot jobs "and there will be a lot of those this summer," Earnest said. "We employ more students in the summer because they are available.' The UI is the single largest employer of students, providing more than 8,500 predominately part-time jobs. Sixteen percent of those positions are filled by students involved in the federallysubsidized college work-study

The UI employs about 2,500 students the summer. Some traditionally available part-time jobs include "being a library aide, working at the University Hospitals, grounds and building upkeep, clerical ... it runs the gamut, Harper said.

"Other jobs the university needs to fill include people in laundry services, food service and some people working for Cambus.

There's a large range of jobs out there; all you have to do is keep looking," Harper said.

CEDAR RAPIDS - City school officials Thursday bowed to a judge's order and said they will not cancel three remaining soccer games with a high school junior varsity team that has a girl player. In a ruling Tuesday, a federal judge had ordered teams from Cedar Rapids to compete against the Iowa City West High team, which also was under a court order to allow Amy Chu, 16, to play on the squad.

Last week, members of a Cedar Rapids high school junior varsity team walked off the field in the first game Chu played under the court order. There is no girls soccer program in Iowa City. The utility filed a request last May for a 35.5 percent rate hike. The $44.6 million increase request was to pay the company's share of the new $648 million Louisa Generating Station near Muscatine.

In a story called "Jury hears evidence on Egan beating" (DI, April 26), it was incorrectly reported that court testimony in the second-degree murder trial of Benjamin Caldwell stated Caldwell and 21year-old Ellen Egan, who died last Oct. 30, had both attended a party at 191/2 S. Dubuque St. the night of Egan's death. They did not. In the same story it was reported that Coralville Police Detective Barry Bedford testified Caldwell possessed a certificate showing he had earned a second-degree black belt in karate at the time of Egan's death. Actually, Bedford testified it was a first-degree certificate.

In a story called "Handwriting specialists aid student's acquittal" (DI, April 4), it was incorrectly reported that questioned documents examine Ordway Hilton, who testified in the recent trial of a Ul student acquitted of forgery, had said he examined photocopies of the phony Hitler diaries published in the German magazine Stern. Actually, copies of them. The DI regrets the errors.

Space policy expert blasts expense of Reagan defensive weapons plan

University Editor

"Space is American as apple .... Space is the combined genius of the American people.

Testimony to this is the fact that Americans spent more than $200 million to see the movie Star Wars. Moreover, now the president wants to sink $2.5 billion this year and $3.7 billion next year into the research and development of a real "Star Wars" defensive weapons system.

Space policy expert John Pike told an informal gathering at the UI Thursday of the mystique that area beyond the ozone holds for many Americans, yet said the "totally wild" spending increase for space weapons proposed by President Reagan baffles him.

REAGAN PROPOSED creating U.S. capability to intercept incoming Soviet missiles with laser anti-ballistic missiles weapons in a March 1983 speech.

According to White House plans, funding for development of this weapons technology will peak in 1989 at $7.5 billion. Pike, whose article "Antisatellite Weapons and Arms Control" will appear in May's Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, said the total anti-ballastic missile (ABM) weapons' price tag will near $26 billion.

This figure, arrived at by an official panel sanctioned to determine the workability of Reagan's plan, provides for rapid acceleration toward deployment, he But even after 1989, Pike said, "All

Pike blasted Reagan and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger not only for pursuing this Star Wars notion so vigorously, but for their simultaneous reluctance to enter into serious arms negotiations.

Health research project displays shown at Bowen

More than 130 health-related research projects will be on display at Bowen Science Building today for the ninth annual Research

'We've got a lot of outstanding and diverse posters on display," said program chairman Michael J. Brody, UI professor of phar-

"All the researchers are supposed to be with their projects Friday from 1:30 to 3 p.m.," he

Many of the projects are very specific and technical, with titles such as "Purification and properties of N-formyl-L-methionine amidohydrolase activity from pig kidney: Identity with acylase-I.

"It's not really for the lay person," Brody said, referring to many of the projects as "sophisticated.

THE POSTER EXHIBIT results from experiments examining the effect of stress on rats, low energy lasers on wound healing in pigs, the information on alcoholism presented to medical students, and cancer tumors in

The posters will be on display on all four levels of Bowen Science Building today.

"We're hoping to have a higher turnout this vear because the Iowa Academy of Science plans to visit Friday," Brody said.

City, national league protest transfer of cable regulation

In protest of legislation that would strip Iowa City of its power to regulate cable television service, the Iowa City Council will ask Rep. Cooper Evans, R-3rd District, to vote against a bill now before the U.S. House of Representatives.

Cities currently have the power to negotiate franchise agreements with cable television companies in order to determine rates and programming. But a recently introduced bill would prevent cities from establishing price ceilings, transfer negotiation for franchises from cities to the Federal Communications Commission, and set a maximum municipal franchise fee of 5 percent of a cable company's gross revenues.

The bill, which is now before the House Commerce and Energy Committee, is being protested by the National League of Cities, Iowa City Mayor John

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND why Congress is willing to take control away from all municipalities," McDonald said. "I think it's very important for cities to have control ... to negotiate these franchises for better programming."

McDonald, who said the FCC cannot regulate codes and enforcement as well as cities can, added: 'Without having control, cable services could dicwhat type of programming will be provided. The municipalities would have nothing to say in the mat-

W.O. "Bill" Terry, chairman of the Iowa City Broadband Telecommunications Commission, said, "I think the feds are sticking too many fingers into too many places.'

But Terry said he saw no real problems resulting from the enactment of federal guidelines because, People on pay service will pay for what they want to see ... if they don't want it, they won't pay.

"But for all practical purposes, the Broadband Commission would be dissolved," Terry said. "The commission is not in favor of the bill, and we've asked the council to contact Evans about it."

BUT THE LEAGUE of cities' lobbying is being countered by lobbying from the cable networks, ac-cording to McDonald and Assistant City Manager Dale Helling

"The main reason (the bill might pass) is because the cable companies are pushing for it," Helling said of the legislation. "My observation is that the cable companies would be enhanced in negotiation franchises and there is a financial advantage.'

McDonald said: "We will have no recourse left to handle cable TV. It'll be handled at the federal level ... they are not going to monitor every station

Travel services slash prices for Olympic-bound round-trips

By Rob Kincaid

If you can find a place to stay in Los Angeles during this summer's Olympics you'll have no problem getting there. That's because an unexpectedly weak demand from residents outside of California has forced airlines and other transportation services to slash or adjust fares to the Los Angeles area, according to Iowa travel consultants.

The round-trip airfares "have changed quite a bit - coming down (in) the last few months," said Marcia Lesan of All Travel Services, 216 First Ave.,

Anticipating surging demands for flights to California, United Airlines originally boosted rates on a Des Moines-Los Angeles ticket to $700, said Trish Boegel of Hawkeye Tours in Des Moines.

United, the largest carrier departing from Cedar Rapids for the Summer Olympics now offers roundtrip fares for as little as $349

Frontier Airlines and Ozark Air Lines also offer air transportation to Southern California. Ozark flies the Cedar Rapids-San Diego route for $448 roundtrip; and Frontier goes from Cedar Rapids to Los Angeles for as low as $399 round-trip.

HAWKEYE WORLD TRAVEL, 125 S. Dubuque St., offers packaged travel arrangements from Cedar Rapids which include round-trip airfare, hotel accommodations, and tickets to three Olympic events. The Olympic packages are priced from $1,389 to $1,519 depending on hotel choice, said Hawkeye World Travel Manager Michelle Hem-

One airline, America West, offers a $290 round-trip fare from Des Moines to Los Angeles during the Olympic peak period of July 28-Aug. 12.

Buses and trains also offer transportation at comparable rates from Iowa to the Los Angeles area. Amtrak, the nation's rail passenger transportation system, offers transportation to Los Angeles from Osceola, Iowa, for $289 round-trip during the Games. Many trains have already been booked - especially first class sleeping cars - but some seats are still available on Amtrak, a spokesman said.

Greyhound Bus Lines round-trip to Los Angeles from Iowa City will cost an Olympic-bound spectator $258. But, according to a reservation agent, the price is subject to change within the coming months.

AFTER OLYMPIC-GOERS arrive in the Los Angeles area, they'll be faced with finding lodging and local transportation - and lodging in the immediate Los Angeles area isn't easy to find.

Most nationwide motel chains are filled, although Los Angeles' downtown Best Western has openings at a $250 per night based on double occupancy during the Olympics. The current rate is $50 per night, said a Best Western reservations agent. Howard Johnson's, Marriott and Ramada Inn hotels have no vacancies in the immediate Los Angeles area.

Budget Rent-A-Car, the official car rental agency of the 1984 Olympic Games, offers a subcompact car with unlimited mileage for $319.95 a week during the Olympics. Budget's current weekly rate for a subcompact is $129.

Avis will provide a subcompact with unlimited mileage for $190 per week during the Olympic

Spring in the air

Spring is a time for traditional festivities on college campuses. Iowa State University holds Vesha, Drake University sees a variety of events in conjunction with the Drake Relays, and here at the UI Riverfest ushers in the season. They also hold an annual bacchanal at the University of Illinois, but the atmosphere there is a bit more rarefied than can be attributed to mere spring fever.

Students at Illinois each year observe "Hash Wednesday," this year held on April 18. Not to be confused with a religious holiday, the event brought 500 students to the campus quad to flagrantly flout marijuana laws. The event, when it first began years ago, was intended as a political protest against marijuana laws. But these days, Hash Wednesday isn't taken quite so seriously. "Everybody doesn't come out here to give a political message," Illinois junior

Keith Jachim said. Sophomore Steve Silbar said many students use the gathering as an excuse to have a good time, but added he thought the protest would eventually reach its goal of demonstrating to the U.S. government it is 'never going to beat it (marijuana use), so they are just going to have to give in."

"Everbody gets high at one time or another," Silbar said. "The joint is institutionalized. The working man comes home and has a joint, just as the businessman has his martini.

But senior Bill Moyer noted, "Although I recognize it as a protest, it has become a party because of the capitalists ... The repetitiveness of the whole thing year after year has taken the cutting edge out of it. Hash Wednesday used to make a much stronger point than it does now."

Unsportsmanlike conduct

When members of a hockey team at a Catholic high school in St. Paul, Minn., dispatched a stripper with a birthday greeting for a teammate this week, school officials were not amused

Twenty-one of the team's 22 players including the birthday boy - were suspended for ordering the "Strippergram" during the state high school hockey tournament last month. The only player not disciplined was at a doctor's office while the scantily clad-woman sang a song to the guest of honor.

Officials of the East St. Paul school learned about it two weeks later. The suspensions were announced Monday.

"This is conduct unbecoming a Hill-Murray student," athletic director Brother Francis Carr said. "This sort of conduct is unacceptable.

The players will have to make up the work they miss during their suspensions, but they won't lose any academic standing or athletic eligibility.

"They're basically very good kids," a parent said, "but the prank was in bad

Khulief and UI administrators disagree as to whether the former graduate student's assistantship was actually terminated by Haug or if Khulief resigned voluntarily.

In his March 7 response to the Graduate College's recommendations, Khulief asked the college for its opinion "about the legality of my dismissal as the regulations and rules of the University of Iowa are concerned." Schulz replied, in a March 15 letter:

"I note you characterize your separation from the University of Iowa as a dismissal. The separation from the university has previously been characterized as a resignation; however, I understand that you believe that you resigned in the belief you would otherwise be terminated.'

Schulz then cited a section of the UI Operations Manual that reads: "If at any point, the assistant acquiesces in the decision to dismiss him, the matter shall be deemed closed."

Schulz wrote, "Because you (Khulief) voluntarily resigned your position ... it is, therefore, unclear to me what remedy you seek or how you wish to proceed.

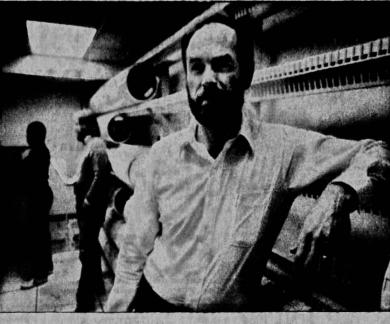

In his final report Jakobsen initially called Khulief's termination a "firing." Later in the same report, though, Jakobsen states that Khulief signed a "voluntary quit" form on his own ac-

KHULIEF TOLD the DI that he still believes Haug's actions in "terminating" his assistantship violate provisions in the Operations Manual concerning "Graduate Assistantship

Dismissal Procedure." These procedures specify that: · Before the assistant is dismissed, unless the "assistant's status as a student or degree candidate at the university is suspended or terminated." the assistant's immediate supervisor should hold an informal conference to "inform him of the complaint lodged against him, and initiate attempts to resolve and adjust the matter.' • If the informal conference does not resolve the problem "the dean, after consulting with the appropriate departmental executive officer and any others he may wish to consult, shall decide whether dismissal is warranted."

JAKOBSEN'S FINAL report notes. "Although Haug and Khulief met regularly, none of these meetings could be considered to have been a conference to evaluate job performance." In an interview with the DI last week,

Haug agreed he did not confer with either UI College of Engineering Dean Robert Hering or Division of Materials Engineering Chairman Kwan Rim before he told Khulief that his assistantship was being terminated.

But Haug said he "talked with people in the administration before I did any of the paperwork."

Because he is unsatisfied with the Graduate College's recommendations Khulief said he has taken his complaint to a lawyer "who is studying the case."

Employee fired

In addition, the UI administration, as well as the board of regents, has examined charges that Haug unfairly treated former UI, and eventually CADSI, computer programmer Dave

Webb, who began working for Haug in the UI Center for Computer Aided Design in August 1981, was hired as a "half-time" computer programmer for CADSI in October. He was fired from the company on Dec. 5.

Webb claims his dismissal from CADSI "was unexpected and without reason or prior notification."

Webb's dismissal from CADSI, and subsequent departure from the UI, prompted UI Assistant Information Engineering Professor Ron Vogel to write a letter to the regents expressing his concern about Webb's firing.

Vogel said he sent his letter to the regents because he wanted the board to be aware of some of the circumstances involved in Webb's firing. "I just wanted the board to get an advance look at how the company will operate."

THE REGENTS must eventually grant final approval of the UI's planned transfer of its "intellectual property" a special computer software package used to test mechanical designs - to CADSI when the company identifies investors. R. Wayne Richey, board executive secretary, sent a copy of the letter to Freedman. Ellis, chairman of CADSI's board of directors, said he conducted "personal inquiries" into Webb's

Webb's dismissal letter was written by Matt Rizai, the company's vice president for engineering and development. The letter reads, "This letter informs you that your duties in the CADSI operation are terminated and you are no longer on the CADSI payroll as of December 5, 1983." The letter was dated Dec. 5.

Rizai refuses to comment on Webb's dismissal, but Haug said Webb was given numerous verbal and written warnings that his performance was not satisfactory.

Haug said Webb was fired from CADSI "simply because he didn't perform ... he refused to do what he was asked to do."

WEBB ADMITTED he received several letters from Rizai concerning "the completion of some reports I was working on." But Webb maintains the letters did not "specify a completion date for the reports or express that my job was in jeopardy."
Following his dismissal Webb met

A three-month UI Graduate College investigation concluded he "may have acted precipitously" in firing a research assistant. The state Board of Regents has also investigated complaints from a former CADSI employee.

Dorsey Ellis: "Not following procedures is something anyone can do - it was a human mistake that is not uncommon in universities."

with Haug, asking him if he knew that Webb was going to be fired from CADSI. Webb said he also questioned Haug "about my employment status with the university."
According to Webb, Haug said he discussed Webb's dismissal with Rizai the previous weekend, agreeing with Rizai's decision "to let me (Webb)

Webb also said, "Ed told me there was sufficient funds only to pay me half time through the end of January" at the UI Center for Computer Aided

Design labs. Webb then conferred with UI Coordinator of Employee Relations Gerald Murphy about the possibility of filing a grievance against Haug. Murphy said he informed Webb of his "employee rights," but did not suggest a course of action he should follow. The day after meeting with Murphy, Webb and Haug met again to discuss his employment status at the labs. "I told Ed that I would file a grievance against him if he did not restore me to full-time employment," Webb said. "A few minutes later, Ed agreed to restore me to full-time status, with the understanding that I would submit my resignation at the end of January."

BUT HAUG TOLD the DI that Webb never threatened to file a grievance against him. "I agreed to put him on full-time to give him time to look for Webb, now working with the California-based computer firm Silvar-Lisco, said he agreed to leave the UI at the end of January despite the fact that "I speculated I could probably regain my job through some type of political action, but (I) had no idea how long this might take.'

Although Webb has been the only employee fired from CADSI, two of Haug's former foreign graduate students have turned down offers to work for the company.

Both UI Assistant Mechanical Engineering Professor Parviz Nikravesh and Vickram Sohoni received doctorates under Haug and contributed a large amount of the research used in developing the software package CADSI hopes to market. Much of this research was funded by the U.S. Department of Defense

a likely future customer of CADSI. Sohoni has since begun working with Mechanical Dynamics, Inc., a Michigan-based software firm that is that he (Haug) didn't follow proper expected to be CADSI's primary competitor. Nikravesh is planning to take a faculty developmental leave from the

Former student dissatisfied

Former UI foreign graduate student Om Agrawal has also expressed dissatisfaction with the treatment he received from Haug.

Agrawal was working as a graduate research assistant in the UI Center for Computer Aided Design when he decided last August to transfer to the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle. Agrawal said he left the UI because he felt Haug "was utilizing me badly." According to Agrawal, Haug was assigning him to do research that was not related to his doctorate thesis in order to "keep me here longer."

Haug dismissed Agrawal's charges, calling the former graduate student a "funny duck."

Haug, who came to the UI in 1976 after working as chief of concepts and technology at the U.S. Army Armament Research and Development Command in Rock Island, Ill., said, "Some students need to be pushed more than others ... Agrawal and myself disagreed about that."

AGRAWAL SAID he considered filing a formal complaint against Haug, but decided not to because "Idid not understand the different levels of bureaucracy" at the UI.

However, a friend of Agrawal's submitted a letter listing Agrawal's criticisms of Haug to the Graduate

Associate Dean Jakobsen met with Agrawal in Iowa City early in February. Agrawal said the meeting with Jakobsen followed a letter and phone conversation inviting him to discuss his criticism of Haug with the Graduate College. Jakobsen, who was still investigating Khulief's complaint when he met with Agrawal, refused to comment on the content of their

However, Ellis said the advisory committee "has a broad charge; it will be available for students who have complaints and problems.'

Advisory panel

Despite the charges that have been made against Haug, the UI administration continues to express confidence in the abilities of CADSI's top executive officer.

"There is no evidence to indicate that there has been any problem except procedures on one occasion," Ellis said, referring to Haug's dismissal of Khulief's assistantship. "And not following procedures is something anyone can do - it was a human mistake that is not uncommon in universities."

Ellis also pointed out that the UI has set up an advisory committee to "oversee the Center for Computer Aided Design." Ellis said the advisory committee, which is made up of Schulz and UI Professors John Kennedy and Rex Montgomery, was formed to "monitor the operation of the CAD center so there will be no reality of, or appearance of, abuse of the university's educational and research mission with its involvement with

Cautious praise

Usually the sound of city officials congratulating each other grates on the ear, but occasionally the praise is deserved. Tuesday was one of those times.

That day the Iowa City Council unanimously passed an amendment to the city's human rights ordinance. The vote marked the successful completion of a tightrope walk for the council.

It had promised to be a no-win situation for the council. As it was originally worded, the amendment promised to protect parents, homosexuals and people receiving public aid from discrimination in obtaining housing. However, it did not protect those people who don't want to live in housing complexes that allow children. The council seemed destined to uphold one group's rights at the expense of the others.

City councilors, sharply divided on the subject, decided to set up an ad hoc committee composed of city residents and members of the housing and human rights commissions to study the problem. The ad hoc committee, by a 4-3 vote, recommended several compromises to the amendment: exempting dwellings where 75 percent of the tenants are 55 years old or handicapped, all owneroccupied homes that are converted into apartments and any future four-plexes in which the owner lives.

The changes, while not a perfect solution, go far to strike a balance between the rights of parents and the rights of individual renters. Had the compromises not been accepted, the council would have left one side out in the cold.

But before the mutual congratulations get too heavy, the council needs to consider that such a divisive issue may come up again. In the meantime, the council needs to tinker with additional ideas quotas, special zoning — to make housing open to all.

War plunder

During the Nazi era in Germany, many of the experiments conducted by government-employed scientists and physicians were more exercises in applied brutality than legitimate attempts to obtain data. Nazi researchers developed more efficient means of mass execution for the death camps, conducted sexual experiments aimed at manipulating human reproduction and genetics to elevate the master race, and studied the progressive deterioration caused by untreated wounds and bacterial infections. The guinea pigs in these experiments were human beings: Jews, Poles, homosexuals, political prisoners, enemy

Recently the media has reported that scientists are using the data from brutal Nazi experiments in their own research. While newsworthy to the public, this was hardly new information to the scientific community, where use of any pertinent information available has always been the logical practice.

Among the areas current researchers are particularly interested in is Nazi research into hypothermia. In the Nazi experiments, humans were lowered into huge tanks full of freezing water and left for hours. The subjects' reactions were monitored, sometimes until death. Other times the victims were removed, and various means of revival attempted for scientific comparison.

No reasonable person should suggest that scientists not use such data (which for obvious reasons are unavailable from any other source) when used in the interest of humanity.

But controversy does exist concerning what should be said about the origins of the data used. Despite some arguments that science must remain objectively detached and make no moral judgments. a note attached to published research deploring the methodology used by the Nazis to obtain their data hardly seems detrimental to science. If anything, such notes would provide a healthy reminder of the limitations of objectivity. When science becomes bereft of such minimal humanitarianism, the criminal abuses of Nazi "science" may be

Restoring the creed

"The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well."

That's the Olympic creed, as written by French educator Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who in 1896 revived the games to promote interest in education and culture and to foster better international

But international understanding, quite evidently, is no longer a theme of Olympic competition. Competition in the world's political and business arenas now overshadows competition in the

The Olympic stories with the biggest headlines are not about Olga Korbut, Mark Spitz or Nadia Comaneci. The big stories are about Palestinian terrorists murdering Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Games, the United States organizing a 62-nation boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games, and the Soviet Union threatening not to attend the 1984 Los Angeles Games.

De Coubertin's vision of an international forum of athletic competition has been shattered by the political differences of participating countries. While training their minds and bodies for competition, the world's athletes must now prepare for the possibility that their governments may not allow them to participate for political reasons.

Why, as in 1980, should Norwegian athletes be forced to throw away their athletic training and aspirations because the Soviet Union invades Afghanistan? Should we force Olympic hopefuls to pay the price for our political policies? We have reached a point where our political conflicts threaten to destroy the very spirit of the Olympic Games.

The International Olympic Committee must take bold - and perhaps unpopular — steps to block these political interferences. The simplest solution would be to permanently locate the Olympics in Greece, where the games originated and where we might revive the spirit of modern international competition.

Coverage criticism

I hesitate to write this letter as I've become most discouraged recently with the lack of attention paid to minority issues by The Daily Iowan and the media establishment generally, particularly when the focus is of a non-black (read "minority") concern. This lack of coverage reduces the legitimacy and authority any news organization can claim in being respsonsive to its Hispanic and Native American readers.

Why should I expect any more responsible reporting from a student newspaper? I guess it has something to do with the promise of young professionals mixed with the racial and ethnic diversity present on this Big Ten campus. The DI relishes daring attacks upon the greek system, but put your real money where your policy is and we have a no-show

I am well aware that the DI received ample notice of the Native American Colloquium held on campus April 13 and 14. The keynote speaker was Dr. Don Bowen, president of the Association of American Indian Physicians and medical director of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation in Oklahoma, which was recently featured on a PBS "Nova Special" on March 27. Dr. Bowen's lectures on Friday and Saturday were eloquent and informative statements about Native American health issues and broader health concerns.

At a time when the country publicly debates the election of our next president, social welfare issues are key components of every candidate's agenda. Indian health services have been at the forefront of the current administration's attack upon social health systems, and if the current administration is re-elected, this country will see this policy implemented on a broader, more national scale. (Minorities historically have been the victims of conservative

I recognize the economics of a daily newspaper. Any given day's publication must attend to a variety of interests. In the issue following Dr. glowing review, one would think that

Bowen's presentations (April 16) the DI chose to cover (again) John Waters' appearance on campus and for some reason was compelled to highlight (again) some of his films' more outrageous scenes. Ironically, however, I am not so disgusted with Mr. Waters' work as I am with the journalistic policy of the DI staff, which gave him nearly a half-page write-up and ignored the contributions of Dr. Bowen.

The right path

In answer to Jackie Cartier's alternative regarding paths on campus (DI, April 16) 1) I would prefer that students exercise their respect for the environment by not making paths between buildings. There are plenty of sidewalks to get from one building to another. Are students really that lazy that they can't walk a little out of the way to aid the environment?

2) Cartier's suggestion about paving all the paths is simply not acceptable. I do not wish to see the world become one gigantic parking lot. I would prefer grass that breathes some life into our environment to hot pavement that radiates nothing but heat into the

Missing quality

To the editor:

This letter is in response to John Voland's review (DI, April 16) of a recital given by pianist Stjepan Radic.

For us piano lovers, Chopin playing is the supreme test of a musician. So I looked forward eagerly to Mr. Radic's recital April 11, but unfortunately was disappointed. Judging from Voland's we attended two different concerts. In his all-Chopin recital, Mr. Radic demonstrated a level of technical skill that few may equal, but there would be little point in equalling even if you could. His Chopin was utterly devoid of emotion, warmth or heart. Every work on his program was played too quickly. The lyricism of the opening movement and the Largo of the B-minor Sonata suffered especially; even the fiery, virtuosic finale was overdone, with Radic pounding through it in a mad scramble. Chopin's music demands a singing legato, precise phrasing and an infinite variety in tone color. Instead, one was presented with choppy, unmusical phrasing, a muddied and unbalanced melodic line and with a soprano (sic) all evening. One wonders if Mr. Voland is a pianist, or indeed, a musician. Music of this calibre really defies analysis. Chopin is not explained; he is felt. This is the essential quality missing from Mr. Radic's performance.

How's your corner?

To the editor:

Until now, I usually haven't found anything of substance in Hoyt Olsen's opinion articles. However, his article of April 18 is one of the best I have seen from any writer.

I am in complete agreement with his view that somewhere along the way, we have lost our will to commit ourselves to making a more just society for everyone. Don't ask me the cause for this loss, because I don't know the answers. All I do know is that as students and as the future political, educational, business and social leaders of the United States, we have the ability as well as the obligation to take a hard look at this country's situation, to face up to its deficiencies and to do something about them.

How can we do it? If each of us could allow ourselves to become more sensitive to the feelings and needs of other people, this would be a start.

Sure, everyone has the drive to make life better. But the sad thing about this drive is that it is directed only toward material gain, with only person in mind: ourselves. If this drive at improving life was geared more toward the "intangible" aspects, and if respect for the welfare of others was included in this drive, things could be made better for everyone.

I realize that no one can change the world alone. But we can at least work on our own little corner, because little corners add up.

Tom Haywood

Ounce of prevention

To the editor:

The unfortunate occurrence of Marvin Gaye's death is another example that should shine a brighter light on the dangers involved with such easy accessibility of guns. The reason for Gaye's father having or wanting to use a gun is a total maze to me. To think that a quarrel on a minor issue such as Gaye's insurance policy (or a case I know of that involved a shooting because the garbage wasn't taken out) is in my opinion totally unnecessary.

I feel we should all take the time to look closer at the reasons for our quarrels and try to resolve them before they become a more drastic issue and lead to fatality.

Reagan toasts Chinese friendship, talks of high-potential trade areas

PEKING (UPI) - President Reagan, his hand strengthened by a long-sought agreement on nuclear cooperation, opened a state visit Thursday by declaring the Un-ited States and China "share a sincere desire for peace and prosperity" that outweighs their differences.

"I come to China representing the sincere desire of the American people to be good neighbors to the Chinese people," Reagan said during a dinner given in his honor by President Li Xiannian on the first night of his six-day visit.

Reagan, a longtime ally of Taiwan and the first U.S. president to visit China in nine years, struck a chord of friendship and cooperation after a ceremonial welcome in the shadow of the imposing Great Hall of the People and an initial meeting with Li.

With more substantive discussions set to begin today when Reagan meets twice with Premier Zhao Ziyang, neither leader raised the touchy issue of Taiwan, choosing instead to keep attention focused on the highpotential areas of trade and economic development.

HOLDING A GLASS of mao-tai, Reagan offered a traditional toast of "ganbei" the Chinese equivalent of "bottoms up" to the health of China's leaders and "further success in advancing the relations of our two countries. As expected, administration officials said one potential boon to bilateral trade relations would be announced today by Reagan: an agreement that would enable China to purchase U.S. technology and expertise to implement an ambitious commercial nuclear power program that could cost $20 billion.

Afghan rebels lose strategic valley to government troops, reports claim

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) - Statecontrolled Kabul television reports Afghan rebels have been "driven out" of the strategic Panjshir valley, according to a Western diplomat who Thursday expressed doubts about the claim.

The television broadcast late Tuesday said an Afghan government assault "completely secured" the valley from guerrilla chief Ahmad Shah Masood and his followers but did not mention that the offensive was conducted mostly by Soviet forces, the diplomat said

If the rebels did lose the Panjshir, the defeat would constitute a major blow to their effort, depriving them of an area they have used as a launching point for attacks on the Shomali valley, diplomats said.

THE SHOMALI IS the main land supply artery between the Soviet Union and Kabul and enables the Soviets to maintain the embattled Afghan government.

However, the diplomat said, "Given the Kabul regime's history of announcing defeats of resistance forces which did not, in fact, take place, we view the recent claims of victory in the Panjshir at this stage with considerable skepticism."

The Soviet Union launched a major new offensive in Afghanistan that began Saturday with high-altitude saturation bombing of the Panjshir, which begins 50 miles north of Kabul, the Afghan capital, diplomats

The assault was the seventh Soviet attempt to defeat rebels in the valley, led by Masood, 30, who heads a force of about 7,000 rebels in the 50-mile-long valley.

Masood is the best known of several Islamic rebel leaders fighting to expel some 105,000 Soviet troops from Afghanistan and to oust the country's communist government.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS reportedly were used in the Soviet-led assault along with some 500 tanks and armored personnel carriers, diplomats said.

. Kabul television carried a long report, saying in effect that Masood and his band had been driven out of the Panjshir Valley and that the band no longer existed," the diplomat said.

The broadcast, which repeated claims made by Kabul radio, did not make clear the fate of Masood and his followers, whether they escaped or were killed or cap-

Afghan rebels based in the Pakistani city of Peshawar have denied the Soviet offensive was successful.

The Western diplomatic source, who asked not to be further identified, said his information from the Panjshir "has so far been sparse" and insufficient to obtain a complete picture of the situation.

Golfers hosting Big Ten tourney

By Thomas W. Jargo Assistant Sports Editor

The faces of Iowa golfer Cookie Rosine and Hawkeye Coach Diane Thomason tell the story of this weekend's Big Ten Women's Golf Championships.

For the first time in nine years, the conference tournament will be played on Iowa's par-72 Finkbine Golf Course. Nine teams, Northwestern does not field a team, will battle for the league championship, beginning with 18 holes today followed by 36 holes on Saturday and a final 18 on Sunday.

Despite losing last year's individual champion Cathy Kratzert to graduation, defending team champion Ohio State will be the tournament favorite this year. The Buckeyes, led by Cheryl Stacy's 22-round average of 76.7, currently have four golfers with season averages un-

STACY'S AVERAGE currently leads the Big Ten, and Buckeye teammates Meg Mallon, Caroline Keggi and Lesley Waring all have averages that rank in the top 10.

Also, Ohio State has had huge success on Finkbine recently. Last fall, the Buckeyes easily outdistanced Michigan State to win the Lady Northern Intercollegiate at Finkbine, carding a sparkling 54-hole total of 898 Ohio State also won the Iowa Invitational last spring on the Iowa Battling the tough Buckeyes for first place and possibly hampering Iowa's chances at an upper division berth are Minnesota, Indiana and Michigan State.

FOR ROSINE, a senior from Galesburg, Ill., playing on her home course in the biggest tournament of the year is a perfect way to close out a stellar fouryear career. That's why the veteran's face brightens with anxious enthusiasm when she discusses the Hawkeyes' chances of placing in the upper division of

Big Ten.
"I really can't explain it," Rosine said about her enthusiastic approach to her grand finale as a Hawkeye. "I just think I'm so much more positive. It's a combination of everthing - partly what we learned from (sports psychologist Eddie McAuley), the way we are playing now and it is our last tournament."

For Thomason, who is closing out her ninth year at the helm of the Hawkeyes, the home course advantage provides the young Hawkeyes with an opportunity to make a lasting impression on the rest of the league. That's why she admits to being quite nervous while cautiously anticipating to-See Golf, page 4B

Hawkeyes ready for spring test

By Steve Batterson

Saturday will be final examination time for the Iowa football team and before class is dismissed for the summer, Hawkeye Coach Hayden Fry is looking for continued improvement on the final day of spring practice.

The public is invited, free of charge, to watch the annual spring game beginning at 1:05 p.m. Saturday in Kinnick Stadium. The game will be split into four 10-minute quarters.

In keeping with a Fry tradition, the contest will pit the No. 1 offense and defense against the rest of the team. "We never have put the No. 1 offense of the things you try to do in the spring is build confidence and sometimes when the No. 1 teams meet you do raise the risk of injury."

THE HAWKEYE STAFF has been looking throughout the spring to replace 22 graduating seniors, 20 on offense and that has been the main concern, along with preventing injuries.
Fry said the lessons haven't been easy for the offensive players, either. "We don't baby them from a learning standpoint," Fry said. "We take all the defenses we anticipate we'll see in the first four games of the season and throw them at them and challenge them to learn it. It's kind of like an ac-someone has to lose," Fry said. "One celerated physics class. They're learn- to see much of that on Saturday.

Fry has cut the number of scrimmages by 50 percent this spring and Saturday's contest will be only the fourth time the Hawkeyes have battled. Because of that, Fry is cautious in predicting what Iowa fans can expect as a new offense challenges a relatively veteran, and deep defense.

OUR OFFENSE MAY have a difficult time moving the ball against our

No. 2 defense," Fry said. The Hawkeye defense, which the Iowa coach claims may be as talented as the 1981 season's unit by the end of the year, will attempt to become a big play-type of defense, but don't expect

'Our defense should be able to complement our offense this year," Fry said. "You probably won't see much of our big play defense on Saturday because we'll limit what we'll do."

The Hawkeyes will also operate with a standardized kicking game on Saturday by fair catching all punts and having only one defensive player rushing.

ON PAPER, Saturday's game may look to be a rout. Last spring, the No. 1 unit dropped the remainder of the team, 51-14, in front of 22,500 fans, Fry said earlier this week that a drop off remains between Iowa's top two units. "There is quite a drop off to the

"There aren't many No. 2 or No. 3 people that have shown they can challenge for No. 1. Now, that's not true on

Fry said that even though some rogress has been made this spring, there will be plenty of work to do this fall as Iowa prepares for its Sept. 8 season opener at home against Iowa

"We're at a certain level of expectation," Fry said. "I've been pleased with the progress that we've made at our open positions. "We will have a lot of important progress to make in the fall when we come back," he said. "I'm very pleased with the overall physical

Reynolds blanks ISU in opener; darkness gives Cyclones a split

By Phil Berger

It has been a seasons of ups and downs for the Iowa softball team, but mostly downs.

And Thursday, the Hawkeyes took their roller coaster to Ames to battle Iowa State - a team that has a pattern similar to the Hawkeyes.

Iowa left Ames with a 14-22 record after splitting a doubleheader by scores of 3-0 and 4-3.

In the first game, the Hawkeyes got a solid, if not exceptional, pitching performance from Diane Reynolds. The Hawkeyes most consistent thrower allowed just three hits in raising her overall record over the .500 mark at 9-8.

BOTH TEAMS FAILED to score in the first inning but in the second inning, Iowa drew first blood when Chris Cochran doubled in Chris Tomek who had singled. Then Reynolds and Iowa State's Lori Young practically pitch for pitch until the sixth when Iowa scored two in-

lowa seniors Inman and Reddy face test from Gopher Swedes

By Jill Hokinson

There's not a better way to end the season than with two of the best teams in Big Ten tennis meeting.

Seniors Mike Inman and Sunil Reddy will compete in their last two dual meets as Hawkeyes this weekend against Minnesota, which has lost only to Illinois in Big Ten competition, and Wisconsin, which beat Iowa earlier in

"These next two teams will probably be the best two teams we play," said Inman, who plays at the No. 1 singles spot for Iowa. "I look forward to them. They're more of a challenge, and I think they will be fun."

Inman and Reddy, who plays in the No. 2 singles position, will face their greatest challenge of the season against Minnesota, which is ranked 16th in the nation.

THE GOPHERS ARE led by two Swedes who are ranked nationally. Fredrick Pahlett, a sophomore, handles the No. 1 position for the Gophers. Pahlett was runner-up in singles com-

Inman met up with Pahlett at the Big Ten Championships last year. The Sioux City native lost a close match to Pahlett in three sets, losing 7-5 in the Reddy will take on Stefan Erikkson, who is ranked in the top 20 in the country. Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said Erikkson is "clearly the dominant player in the Big Ten at No. 2."

INMAN SAID HE would give the No. 1 and 2 players from Minnesota the edge, but he isn't counting Reddy and himself out of the match. "I've got to think that they are favored in the match," he said. "But, we'll do the best we can."

Inman's philosophy for the weekend and for all matches is doing the best he can, and whatever happens, happens,

Reddy, who played two years at St. Ambrose College in Davenport before transfering to Iowa, said his main concern going into the match isn't how well he does, but how the team does. "I really don't care about each match," the No. 2 player said. "I think for the

Powerful Iowa bats pummel Bees; division-leading Badgers next foe

The Iowa baseball team stung St. Ambrose College of Davenport Thursday night, 23-6, in a baseball game that lasted three hours, 45 minutes at John O'Donnell Stadium in Davenport.

The ball consistently had trouble finding its way into the gloves of the Bees. The game was a full of errors in which only four extra base hits were recorded.

The big hit of the evening was a triple by Tom Snowberger of Iowa. Other than that, the only extra base hits were doubles recorded off the bats of John Knapp and Jim Drahozal of Iowa and Butch Van Getzen of St. Ambrose. The rest of the 30 hits recorded were made mainly of scratch singles.

BOB HOLPUCH WAS the winner for Iowa, raising his record to 3-0. The loser for the Bees was Mark Bartling as he was knocked out of the contest in the first inning as the Hawkeyes posted 10 runs on seven hits and two St. Ambrose errors.

Iowa's record now stands at 23-19 as it moves into this weekend's action against

Big Ten West Division leader Wisconsin in a pair of doubleheaders at the Iowa diamond. Saturday's games will begin at noon with Sunday's contests set to start at 1 p.m.

Last year's Wisconsin team finished with a 22-17 record but the Badgers suffered heavy graduation losses. Currently, Wisconsin is 20-20-1, including a 3-2-1 Big Ten mark in the West Division.

Wisconsin has come around under firstyear Coach Steve Land.

"WE'RE STARTING TO be more competitive now as the season progresses we're starting to pick up a rhythm," Land said. "I don't think we're really a team of one or two hitters. It's a group effort of eight or nine guys who are going out to hit the ball.

their bats together and starting to slap that ball around.

The Badgers swept a pair of doubleheaders this week, sweeping Wisconsin-Parkside, 4-3 and 7-3, and dropping Loras, 7-3 and 9-2.

What has held Wisconsin together much of this year is its pitching staff which is headed by Steve Hestnes and Scott Sabo.
"SCOTT HAS BEEN very inconsistent so far this season but threw his best game last weekend against Illinois," Land said. "He's been hampered by nagging injuries and it seems like now he's beginning to put it all

Throwing in Saturday's doubleheader for Wisconsin will be Tim Haines and Sabo while pitching in Sunday's contests will be Mike Bentheimer and Hestnes.

Paul Zach, a transfer from Iowa, has been a solid player for Wisconsin in limited action so far this season. Zach hit .284 with five home runs and 33 RBI's with 13 triples in two seasons with Iowa.

He transfered to Wisconsin after suffering a freak back injury in 1982. Zach is not scheduled to compete in this weekend's

MONTREAL (UPI) - Mats Naslund scored two goals to lead Montreal to a 4-2 against Montreal's concerted checking and upset over the punchless New York Islanders Thursday night, giving the Canadiens

Positive Iowa netters seek victory

The Iowa women's tennis team is entering the final weekend of a season that has been of little success as far as wins and losses are concerned, but that has done nothing to dampen the spirits of Iowa co-coach Cathy Claussen.

This weekend's final road trip has the Hawkeyes traveling to Michigan today and to Michigan State on Saturday to close out the regular season and Claussen is still hopeful Iowa can break into the win column.

"I really think we can get (the win) at Michigan State," Claussen said. 'Maybe the Michigan match (this afternoon) can get us fired up because we tend to play much better on the second day of a road trip."

BOTH THE HAWKEYES and the Spartans have gone through the Big and Claussen believes that the from Michigan last season, the Sparcloseness of Iowa's scores (the Hawkeyes have lost three, 5-4 matches in conference play) will give her squad a big advantage.

Claussen also announced there will be a change in the Iowa line-up for the first time since she, and Ruth Ann Gardner, took over the team in mid-season from Cathy Ballard.

Freshman Michele Conlon, who has been one of the few bright spots in the Hawkeye line-up this season, defeated senior Sara Loetscher in a challenge match earlier this week. The win enabled her to move up to the No. 2 position for this weekend's duals. Loetscher will play in the No. 3 posi-

"Michele has been playing extremely well this spring," Claussen said. "I hope the change will help strengthen us at both positions."

tans left Iowa City with an easy 7-2 win while the Wolverines were stunned by the Hawkeyes, 54.

Iowa then proceeded to finish sixth at the Big Ten meet, losing 6-3 to Michigan in the match for fifth place. Conlon leads the Hawkeves with a sparkling 10-2 record this spring in ngles but No. 1 player Jenny Reuter is the only other player at or above the .500 mark, currently sitting at 10-10.

Despite their poor record this season (4-13, 0-7 in the Big Ten), the six Hawkeye players have not lost their positive attitudes, which was initially surprising to Claussen.

What I have emphasized with this team is practicing hard and playing well," she said. "Wins have been hard to come by, but if the players continue to work the wins are bound to come."

Promoters deny mob has clout

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Three of boxing's leading promoters Thursday angrily challenged the state attorney general to back up allegations that organized crime figures have infiltrated Atlantic City's multimillion dollar boxing industry.

Promoters Bob Arum of Top Rank, Dan Duva of Main Events and Russell Peltz of Peltz Promotions, who handle almost all of the nationally televised fights staged in the casino resort, accused Attorney General Irwin Kimment officials of engaging in "McCarthyism" with unsubstantiated statements about the alleged mob role.

"I want to categorically state that there is no organized crime involvement in boxing in this state," said Arum, pounding the podium at a news

"I SAY THIS TO the attorney general: if you sincerely believe there some organized crime involvement in boxing, name a name. Name one

The promoters were responding to published reports that the New Jersey

State Police and the Division of Gaming Enforcement, which regulates the resort casino industry, have been probing ties between organized crime figures and the boxing industry.

Thomas Cannon, a spokesman for Kimmelman, said the attorney general would have no comment on the promoters' remarks. But DGE director Thomas O'Brien denied his agency has conducted a investigation into organized crime ties to boxing.

O'BRIEN NOTED that the backgrounds of all three promoters are being routinely investigated in connection with their applications for casino service industry licenses, which are required for all individuals doing business with casinos.

O'Brien said the license investigations have not turned up any evidence of widespread organized crime involvement in the Atlantic City boxing

"We haven't detected that such a pattern exists, (but) I'm not going to comment on specific instances,"

The State Commission of Investigation, a legislative agency, last year began looking into possible changes in the way that New Jersey regulates boxing. The probe of organized crime connections apparently was part of that study, but of the three promoters, only Peltz said he had appeared before

"THEY RATTLED OFF some names and wanted to know if I recognized any of them," he said. Asked whether he did, Peltz sa knew the name of Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo from news accounts of his alleged role as head of a Philadelphia crime family said to be operating in Atlantic City and in southern New Jersey.

But the three, each of whom has been in the boxing business for more than 15 years, denied any contact during their careers with alleged crime figures.

"I wouldn't know an organized crime figure if he came up to me and introduced himself," said Duva, a 31year-old attorney who added that he had "no control" over who attended his

SCARFO, A FORMER boxer, and several of his associates are fight fans who were seen frequently at Atlantic City matches before the State Casino Control Commission banned them from entering any of the resort's nine gam-

The promoters did not rule out the possibility that organized crime figures might have hidden ownership interest in some fighters.

"Anything is possible - anything," said Arum, who also is a lawyer and once worked for then U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy. "There may be guys in the Kremlin who own fighters. How do we know?"

The promoters warned that the allegations could have a devastating effect on the industry in Atlantic City, which has become a major boxing venue since the start of casino gaming

Arum predicted fight fans watching televised boxing matches from Atlantic City will now "be looking for Al Capone to float like Peter Pan out over the ring" as a result of publicity given the charges.

Davidson presented Robert Ray award

Iowa volleyball player Dee Ann has been named the winner of the 1984

Robert F. Ray Scholarship Award.
Davidson, a Cedar Rapids native, was a co-captain of the 1983-84 volleyball team and was named all-Big Ten second team this season. She was also named first team all-Big Ten academic and was named to the Dean's List for two semesters

The Robert F. Ray Award, which provides an athlete a scholarship of up to $1,500, is awarded to a studentathlete who is determined to be outstanding in areas of athletics, academics and leadership. The winner is determined by directors of athletics and approved by the Board in Control of Athletics.

Gymnasts to USGF meet

Three Iowa men's gymnasts will compete at the United States Gymnastics Federation regional meet this weekend in Madison, Wis.

Sophomores Dan Bachman and Stu Breitenstine along with freshman Lenny Lucarello will attempt to advance to the USA Championships, the qualifying meet for the U.S.

"This weekend is the first leg of the Olympic trials," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "If someone has scored a 110 or higher during the year they qualify automatically.

The top 72 gymnasts in the country advance to the USA meet, which will be held at Northwestern in two weeks on the basis of regional scores.

"Dan's already qualified (because he scored over a 110 at the Big Ten meet), but he felt he could use another meet,' Dunn said. "Stu's chances would be very good and Lenny has a reasonable

Oilers, Steinkuhler agree

HOUSTON (UPI) - The Houston Oilers Thursday reached a tentative contract agreement with Nebraska guard Dean Steinkuhler as the club's No. 1 pick in the NFL draft.

Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg said he had reached a "basic agreement" with Steinkuhler's agent. Jack Mills, over the telephone and that Mills would fly to Houston from Boulder, Colo., to finalize the contract. 7-2.

"What we must do is get the contract written and agree to the exact language. This takes time, but I am confident that we will get this matter settled and have Dean in town (Friday)," Herzeg said.

"Jack is one of the most respected player agents and now that we have gotten this far, I do not anticipate a problem," Herzeg said.

The Oilers drafted Steinkuhler as its No. 1 choice in Tuesday's NFL draft the No. 2 selection overall - behind fellow Cornhusker teammate Irving Fryar, who already has signed a fouryear, $2.65 million deal with the New England Patriots.

"I'M REALLY NERVOUS." Thomason said while shuffling about her office in the Carver-Hawkeye Arena preparing for the tournament. "The thing is ... it's anybody's tournament, and if we can just get consistent efforts ...'

That's a mighty big "if" for Thomason. The Hawkeyes haven't found that consistent effort all spring. But Thomason and Rosine both have aspirations that consistency will guide the Hawkeyes over the "rough" terrain of Finkbine

There are three reasons why Thomason and Rosine wish to accentuate the positive this weekend. The first being McAuley's valuable contribution to the team. McAuley is a sports psychologist who has been worktheir mental outlook to the sport.

THE SECOND REASON is the home course advantage that Finkbine provides the Hawkeyes golfers. "In four years, I think I've hit on every spot on that course," Rosine quipped.
"We know what clubs to use — We don't have to pull out our yardage books. We're just more familiar with the course.

Rosine says family, friends and Hawkeye fans surrounding Finkbine's tees, fairways and greens will help each Hawkeye golfer. "It can get mighty lonely out there on the course all by yourself," she said. "It will be nice having the home crowd and relatives rooting for us.'

The final reason, Thomason says, is ng with members of the golf team on that the Hawkeye golfers have been looking forward to the Big Ten meet all year, which could explain their sub-par performances to date. "Julie (Edgar) told me she has been looking forward to this all year," Thomason said. Joining Rosine and Edgar on the links for Iowa will be sophomores Lynn Tauke and Mary Baecke, junior Amy Bubon and freshman Kathy Beck. Stacy, who placed third at the Big Ten meet last spring and won the Lady Northern last fall as a sophomore, is the tourney favorite to win medalist

BUT THE BUCKEYE sophomore will have a long list of quality golfers that will try to upset her. Among them are Minnesota teammates Nancy Harris and Kelly Skalicky, the Indiana duo of Michele Redman and Lynn Dennison and Michigan State's Barb Mucha. But Thomason says the Hawkeye golfer to keep an eye on is sophomore

Mary Baecke, who ranks 18th in the Big Ten in season average with 82.5. Baecke is coming off a second-place finish at the Kansas State Invitational 10 days ago in Manhattan, Kan. Thomason said the Hawkeve sophomore "is really playing well right now," making her a legitimate threat to win the title.

Finkbine is in good shape, according to Thomason, and the grass lining the fairways has been allowed to grow, which should make it a rough time for everybody. "Anybody who strays from the fairways should be penalized,' Thomason said.

Hurdler Dees eyes Drake mark

DES MOINES (UPI) — Mississippi hurdler Tony Dees and Texas javelin thrower Einar Vilhjalmsson are set to begin assaults on Drake Relays records Friday in the 75th anniversary of the annual track and field event.

As many as 16 university-college, special events and women's records are in danger of falling during the twoday competition, relays director Bob Erhardt said Thursday. Seven of those Drake marks already have been surpassed this year by a team or individual registered for the same event in this weekend's relays.

Dees tied the 110-meter high hurdles Drake mark of 13.68 seconds last year and should have a good shot of claiming it outright when the preliminary heats get under way at 2:05 p.m., today.

"TONY DEES IS one of the best hurdlers in the world," said Erhardt, who includes Dees in his list of a dozen or so Drake participants likely to make an Olympic team.

Dees tied Big Eight outdoor champ

Albert Lane of Missouri for first at the Paper Tiger Invitational with 13.71, but his best this year is 13.67. The finals are set for 2:11 p.m. Saturday.

The javelin throw opens Friday's field events with Vilhjalmsson a heavy favorite to shatter the old Drake record of 259-9 set by Southern Illinois' Bob Roggy in 1978. Vilhjalmsson, the Icelandic national record-holder, set the U.S. collegiate record with his winning throw of 303-1 at the Texas Relays. He won the Southwest Conference championship, 275-4, NCAA title, 293-1, and placed fourth in the World Games.

THREE OTHER ENTRIES in the javelin have bettered the Drake Relays record this year: Alabama's Siggy Einarsson, Texas Peter Borglund and Kansas State's Ray Hansen.

to fall in the men's university-college division. The relay will close the twoday event at 5:33 p.m. Saturday.

Texas freshman James Lott, who jumped 7-51/4 at the LSU Invitational, leads a field of eight Drake high jump participants who have exceeded the Olympic standard of 7-41/4.

Defending champion Brian Tietjens, an Iowa State sophomore, set the Drake record of 7-5 last year, but 7-41/4 is his best this season. Alabama's Tom McCants has jumped 7-5 indoors this year and Big Ten indoor champ Ron Jones of Indiana has cleared the Olympic standard.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS' 4x400-meter relay at the Paper Tiger Invitational. 3:02.71, is the world's fastest time for this early in the season. Southern Methodist set the Drake Relays mark

The high jump and the 4x400-meter at 3:03.21 in 1983, but the Salukis will relay are the two other records likely have extra incentive with a shot at the Grand Slam - wins at the Texas. Kansas and Drake Relays.

SIU anchor Michael Franks, a solid Olympic contender, is ranked third in the world in the 400-meter run. Baylor, which has been clocked at 3:03.24, Oklahoma State and Iowa State are expected to give the Salukis their biggest challenge in the 4x400.

The only other Grand Slam candidate is Iowa State freshman El Moutawakil, who will take aim at the 400-meter hurdles record of 58.11 set by Prairie View's Lynne Gamble last year. Moutawakil, a naitve of Morocco, set a collegiate record of 55.69 in the Kansas

Steve Scott, the top U.S. bid for a 1984 gold medal in the 1,500-meter run, and Calvin Smith, the world's fastest at the 100-meter dash, also are registered for the Drake Relays.

Blue Jays overpower Oakland, 7-4

Toronto and Oakland staged an Exhibition Stadium slugfest Thursday and the A's won the home run derby with the aid of their new slugger.

Veteran Dave Kingman, acquired by the A's in the off-season when there were few other takers, drove in five runs with his eighth and ninth homers of the season to power Oakland to a 7-4 victory over the Blue Jays in a game featuring seven home runs. All but one run in the game came from the long run homer to make it 6-1.

Kingman took over sole possession of the major-league lead in homers and also stretched his league-leading RBI total to 24. Kingman now has nine homers and 21 runs batted in over the

Giant of big band, Count Basie, dies

Count Basie, giant of the big band era who kept his tradition alive until cancer overtook him, died Thursday. He was 79 and one of the key figures in the history of jazz.

Basie, who had been in Doctors Hospital, Hollywood, Fla., since March 27 for treatment of a severe ulcer, died of duodenal cancer. His adopted son and business manager Aaron Woodward was at his bedside when he died in his sleep at 3 a.m. Iowa time.

"He was very strong," said Woodward, "He had a strong will to live in spite of all the physical problems. He fought like a champion." His death came little more than a year after that of his wife of more than 40 years, Catherine.

"He certainly made a notch in musical history," said Benny Goodman, 75, who first heard the Count on a radio broadcast in Kansas City and brought the young and talented pianist under his tutelage. "He was a wonderful man. He was a big force in music."

Dr. Leo Schildhaus, Basie's physician, said the Count "had cancer at the head of the pancreas. It eroded into the duodenom, causing the ulcer. He was not a candidate for surgery. He did not get here to us soon enough

It was the second time in three months that Basie had been hospitalized in Hollywood, about 20 miles north of Miami. A diabetic, he had been admitted five days before he was scheduled to perform two shows Feb. 11 at a local musical theater.

He missed the second show because of illness and returned to the hospital for an additional three days. Basie went back to his home in Freeport, Bahamas, but entered the hospital again on March 27.

Woodward said Basie's body would be flown to New York and would be on view at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Venture Funeral Home in New York City. His funeral will be held at noon Monday at the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City, followed by a private burial.

Count Basie swung far from his Red Bank, N.J., birthplace. Caught by the then-still-crazy jazz hooks in Kansas City, he went on to play in and ultimately form various orchestras that would be taken on numerous world

Count Basie

"Chief," "Bill" and "Count" Basie built a throne in the swing dynasty that will leave its marks far beyond any carelessly cited "end of an era."

Basie was a subtle player, leaving room for the shine of the band as he clipped away at the bare bones of a composition. His style has been described as "simple" but we know better: no one will ever duplicate the quiet, smiling charm of the Count.

Early on - and even into the '60s he struggled with the weariness of onenight stands and the stupidity of racial prejudice. His talent as a player, writer and road daddy make him one of the founders of a solid swing style that made the world snap its fingers in syncopated rhythm. Family man, receiver of Royal Honors in Britain, Basie played to the last; when "ghost bands" continued to profit from a financially outmoded but stylistically immortal idiom, Basie was up there onstage, caressing the ivory keys with his mighty all.

He was a crowd pleaser and a conservative artist, hesitant to hop on new jazz trends but always eager to get the feet tapping, the fingers snapping and the crowd swinging. Count Basie Orchestra trumpet player Joe Newman recalls a typical moment in the Panther Room at Chicago's Sherman Hotel, "He would watch an elderly couple and wait until he'd see them begin to tap their feet; then he'd know the band was in the right groove.'

"Blue and Sentimental," "Jumpin at the Woodside," "Swingin' the Blues;" the Count is no more, but the tours and sprees of continental gigs. reign of swing is with us forever.

'Burden of Dreams' tells directors' risks

By Craig Wyrick

IRECTOR JOHN LANDIS' current trial once again brings to light many of the ethical problems and questions involved in filmmaking. Landis is charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of actor Vic Morrow and two young children during filming of The Twilight Zone — The Movie in July 1982. How far should filmmakers go to make their films look realistic? How much risk should a filmmaker take to please an audience?

Take the case of Werner Herzog, a man who is willing to go to almost any length to bring reality to the screen. Les Blank's Burden of Dreams (showing this weekend at the Bijou) documents Herzog's struggle against the forces of nature and the will of man to make Fitzcarraldo (next weekend at the Bijou). At one point near the completion of Fitzcarraldo, Herzog stages a bit of reality that has 70 percent chance of success and could cost the lives of 20 to 30 men. Herzog's dreams make Landis' look mundane by com-

"I live my life or I end my life with this project," says Herzog halfway through Burden of Dreams, and we believe him. At this point, Jason Robards, the original star of Fitzcarraldo, has taken ill and is unable to complete the film, even though 40 percent has been shot; Mick Jagger has to pull out for the Tattoo You stadium tour. Herzog leaves the jungles of Peru to recruit a new star -Klaus Kinski. The adventure has just begun in the dense Peruvian jungles.

TO REVEAL the rest of the story would be unfair (and many of you have complained that I too often give away the story). Unfortunately, Les Blank's cameras are often not running at crucial moments, and we have to hear the stories from Herzog. But for the most part Burden of Dreams rivals the adventure of Fitzcarraldo and may even surpass it — the reality is much more volatile than the fantasy. But Herzog's reality stayed within boundaries; it might have been a different story if someone had been killed during filmmaking.

Andrzej Wajda has encountered problems of a much different nature making his films. Living in Poland until martial law was declared, Wajda's films became infamous for their ofter volatile political nature; the ending of his Man of Marble was censored, and Man of Iron, with a cameo by Lech Walesa, lead to his arrest in 1981, just after martial law was declared.

Now in France, Wajda finally has the freedom to make any political message he pleases, so it initially comes as a surprise that his first film outside of Poland, Danton, would turn back the clock to the political squabbles of the French Revolution - until you look deeper than the surface.

Danton is a grand accomplishment: film that's entertaining and fascinating on the surface and also engrossing as an allegory of the situation in Poland today. Even those unfamiliar with the French Revolution or Polish politics should find the film captivating. I only wish they'd had historical films like this in high school instead of the dry Encyclopedia Brittanica productions that always put me

TO CALL DANTON historical would be misleading - it's as alive and exciting as any "topical" family melodrama. Of course, the French Revolution is an endless source of dramatic material, especially when compared to the rather dreary American Revolution of the same

Gerard Depardieu plays the con-troversial Danton, who was regarded as a political opportunist by his enemies and a defender of the poor and oppressed by his allies. Depardieu's portrayal of the brutish yet gentle, friendly yet ruthless leader packs a punch felt centuries later.

Wajda cast the roles of Danton's enemies (Robespierre, others) with fellow Poles, a fascinating tactic to outline the similarities between Robespierre and the current Polish government. But the performances in Danton, particularly Depardieu's, create a complex portrait that doesn't fall easily into an allegorical state-ment; and that's why Wajda's Danton is so excellent.

If Danton is an indication, the political risks Wajda has taken with his career have most certainly been worth

J.T. moves audience in lowa appearance

By Ann L. Scholl Special to The Daily Iowan

UESDAY, AS I was sitting in the plush Des Moines Civic Center, waiting for the arrival of James Taylor, I kept telling myself, "Ann, you're crazy. You have a 7:30 a.m. quiz in Spanish tomorrow ..." But once J.T. took to the stage, clad in a white Tshirt and khaki pants, I quickly forgot about my obligation.

Before he even opened his mouth, the crowd greeted him with a standing ovation. Taylor bowed humbly to the crowd, then entertained alone for the first three songs while his band stayed backstage. I must admit that "Something in the Way She Moves" brought tears to my eyes, something J.T.'s songs are notorious for. He sang 'Mona'' (a tune about a pig he received as a gift), and a bluesy piece called "It's Cold Outside" by Frank Loesser. Taylor referred to the latter as a "love song to myself," and with the use of a reel-to-reel he proceeded to 'sing a duet" with his recorded voice. His band made their debut in "On the Roof," a 1962 Drifters hit. The group made up of Dan Dugmore (electric guitar and pedal steel), Billy Payne (keyboardist, formerly of Little Feat), Des Moines native Rick Shlosser (drums), and longtime Taylor bassist Lee Sklar ("the man behind the Shroud of Turin," J.T. called him) - played basic rhythms, steering clear of the flashy stuff. It was nice to see a group that didn't have to depend on stage antics to put on a good show.

THE FIVE PRESENTED a little jazzier version of "Mexico" as J.T. improvised on the melody. This ability to stray away from the original without losing quality was evident throughout the show. The band's only fault was Shlosser's constant drum beat on such songs as "Handy Man" and "Country Road." It tended to interrupt the sweet, clear sound of Taylor's vocals, and it made me wish the foursome would go backstage again.

On "Bartender Blues" the band redeemed itself. Dugmore played some fine pedal steel, and Shlosser's heavy beats began to blend in. J.T.'s gentle voice provided pleasant relief from the usual eardrum-shattering concerts that one expects from pop entertainers.

Before taking a 15-minute break, J.T. kicked his band (and his shoes) off, and used tapes again on "Shower the People," a cut from his 1976 LP In the Pocket. For a good stretch of the tune, Taylor sang a capella, much to the appreciation of the audience who once again gave the man a standing ovation. After the intermission, J.T. came back on stage alone. His 1969 hit "Carolina In My Mind" was continually interrupted by latecomers venturing back to their seats. Fortunately, the distractions were few during "Sweet Baby James," the title cut from his million-selling 1970 album (his first) of the same name. The tune was

THROUGHOUT THE CONCERT, the crowd roared encouragement and appreciation to J.T. He graciously accepted their praise with a "thank you,

The lyrics to "You've Got a Friend," "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight" and "Your Smiling Face" all seemed to be directed toward the audience, as J.T. smiled and did a little footwork. It was obvious that the 36-year-old and his band were having a good time.

J.T. started off stage with his group, but let himself get talked into doing one more number. He closed the show with "Fire and Rain," using his soft guitar strumming and tender lyrics to bring back those darn memories and tears again. A glance around the auditorium proved that my eyes weren't the only misty ones in the house.

Magical operas bow at Hancher

HEN YOU'RE standing in the wings watching a grandfather clock, a fairy princess, some small frogs and a dancing dragonfly rehearse their curtain call routine, you know it's some kind of different entertainment that you've witnessed - or might have imagined you did.

That's just a partial list of the fantastic characters who will appear on the Hancher Auditorium stage at 8 tonight and Saturday night as the UI Opera Theatre, the University Symphony Orchestra and faculty members of the UI School of Music collaborate on performances of two 20th century one-act operas: Igor Stravinsky's The Nightingale (Le rossignol) and Maurice Ravel's The Enchanted Child (L'enfant et les sortileges).

Director Beaumont Glass said the two operas were chosen for their accessability, their shared element of fantasy and their contemporary status: "These are both great examples of 20th-century opera," he said.

"I THOUGHT ABOUT putting the two of them together after hearing a Metropolitan Opera broadcast of The Nightingale about a year ago. My wife kept playing the cassette I'd recorded of it, and I knew we had something."

They certainly do have something. The two short operas, each about 45 minutes long, combine to form what is perhaps the most technically ambitious evening of opera the Opera Theatre has yet put on. And the large ensemble casts of both works push the company's numbers to over 200, including the orchestra and technical personnel. It's a huge undertaking.

Stage Manager Scott Stevens, who has 15 various technicians he's responsible for, said he's coping with the evening's huge technical demands by "trying to stay organized. I'm writing everything down on little pieces of paper. Then I lose the papers," he said with a grin. "During The Enchanted Child when all those little frogs hop around, I ask myself, 'What am I doing here?' I guess I must like being here."

After having seen dress rehearsals of both works Wednesday night, I'm inclined to agree with him .

decade apart (Nightingale, started in 1908, was finished in 1914; Child was completed in 1924), come to share a stylistic distinctiveness from very different directions. Stravinsky frankly admitted his large debt to Mussorgsky in writing Nightingale, comparing the posed this first scene in 1908, before he had worked on the three great ballets of the early 1910s that were to make him world-famous: The Firebird, Petrushka and The Rite of Spring. When the scene shifts from the

Kremlin scenes in Mussorgsky's Boris

Goudonov. But the musical similarity to Mussorgsky ends with the first scene of Nightingale. Stravinsky had com-seashore to the forest, the music undergoes a radical shift: gone are the THE TWO OPERAS, written a scene in the Emperor's palace with the soothing late-Romantic harmonies, the melodic vocal lines. Instead we encounter the bad-boy Stravinsky of Rite of Spring: odd harmonies, spiky vocalises and jangling orchestral textures. It's quite a switch, but it's not all that unexpected coming from a notable surprise artist as Stravinsky. And in performance the University Symphony, conducted by James Dixon, handled all this well (even if it was their first complete rehearsal), as did the singers - as per Stravinsky's instructions, the singers taking on the roles of the title character and the Fisherman (the character that binds the whole story together) stand in the pit and dancers enact the roles

RAVEL'S CHILD, on the other hand, was planned from the beginning to be a pastiche of different styles. "There is a bit of everything in it," Ravel wrote to Colette, the fablist who wrote the work's libretto. "There's a bit of Massenet, a bit of Puccini, some American music and some Monteverdi. It promises to be amusing." Indeed, the story of a bratty boy who has the tables turned on him by suddenly animated furniture and anthropomorphized animals and insects is amusing and captivating, and Ravel's wonderful musical twists - a ragtime number for a teapot, a slow sinuous duet for two cats, and so on make the one-act opera whiz by.

More importantly, the twin bill is a perfect introduction for children and peratically hesitant college students. Both operas are sung in English (generally clear and crisp English, at that); both are highly entertaining (no overweight blond women in spiked helmets singing for 20 minutes on end here); both are self-contained; and both are musically delicious.

"THE AUDIENCE I hope to entice with these operas is the UI audience," Glass said. "I'd like to see them change their minds about opera. That's something I'd like to give them - as a

Who knows - with such charming small-scale works as these, as well done as they are, he might just have done it this time.

Tickets for The Nightingale and The Enchanted Child are $9, $8 and $6.50 ($2 less per ticket for students) and are available at the Hancher Box Office tonight

Criterium course to test the best

A lot can happen in 10 years. In that time, Bicyclists of Iowa City went from an organization that started with one ambitious peddler and has grown to a total membership of 600 cyclists, 30 of whom participate as Racing Team members. And on Sunday, the Old Capitol Criterium, one of the largest and most prestigious bike races in the Midwest will above the prost skilled. Midwest, will showcase some of the most skilled bikers in the nation. This year's course is 1.2 kilometers long and runs through the heart of Iowa City. The race will not only be a test of speed, but grit as well. The course is very dangerous and has many tough turns and grueling laps that the biker will have to overcome. Overall, the course will test the skill, endurance and courage

THE OLD CAPITOL Criterium has events for all ages and levels of expertise. The licensed events are sanctioned by the United States Cycling Federation (USCF). The levels are divided by age and sex and the classes include youngsters (boys and girls ages 4-7), citizen boys and girls (ages 8-11, 12-14, 15-17), USCF junior boys and girls (ages 12-14), USCF junior men and women (ages 15-17), citizen men and women, and USCF senior men and women.

The senior men's class is divided into four categories that correspond to the rider's ability. Category four consists of newly licensed riders. The lower numbered categories are attained by winning or placing in a certain number of designated races.

Some of the events at this year's Old Capitol Criterium will be of a fun nature. There will be a big wheel race for the budding enthusiasts and future champions as well as a unicycle race.
