Reagan ends trip to China with pacts

PEKING (UPI) - President Reagan ended his five-day stay in the Chinese capital today by concluding three trade and cultural agreements he said would "broaden and strengthen" Sino-American ties.

Reagan arrived at the massive Great Hall of the People for a short ceremony, signed tax and cultural agreements, and initialed a nuclear cooperation agreement, which were concluded despite discord over the

"Today, we are taking further steps to broaden and strengthen our ties based on shared principles of mutual respect and mutual benefit," Reagan said. "Let us hope that ... each of us will continue to learn about the other and this important new friendship of ours will mature and prosper."

Following the ceremony, Reagan and his wife Nancy headed for Shanghai, the final stop on the president's historic six-day China visit and the nation's most populous city.

Reagan signed a bilateral tax treaty to spur U.S. investment in China and a pact that resumes cultural exchanges, which were curtailed by the Chinese last year after the United States granted asylum to tennis star Hu Na.

THE CENTERPIECE was the initialing of an agreement that will permit U.S. companies to sell nuclear technology to China and compete for a projected $20 billion commercial nuclear power program during the next

Nuclear power is central to China's modernization plans, and the breakthrough in nearly three years of tortuous negotiations came only after China bowed to the dictates of U.S. law on the handling of spent nuclear fuel. The agreements gave Reagan the ammunition he had sought to claim progress toward better Sino-U.S. relations. However, nettlesome issues remain, especially arms sales to Taiwan and restrictions on access to U.S. technology and economic aid.

Reagan stopped at a small souvenir market set up by Chinese authorities to satisfy his request to mingle with the average citizen.

Chinese "peasants" milled around until Reagan arrived and then, on cue. went to their assigned spots as stall owners and customers. U.S. officials said they believed both customers and shopkeepers were public security

REAGAN COMMITTED a faux pas when his wife, Nancy, decided to buy five handmade toys to hang on her Christmas tree. The president gave the shopkeeper a 10-yuan note ($5) - double the price of the goods - and told him to keep the change, unaware tipping is not allowed and is considered an insult by many. Humiliated, the shopkeeper ran after Reagan and thrust the change into his hand.

Reagan told reporters the market was evidence that capitalism is 'flourishing' in this communist nation of one billion people.

In meetings Friday and Saturday, Reagan faced harsh criticism of American foreign policy and a warning that Taiwan still has the potential to cause a "major setback" in Sino-U.S.

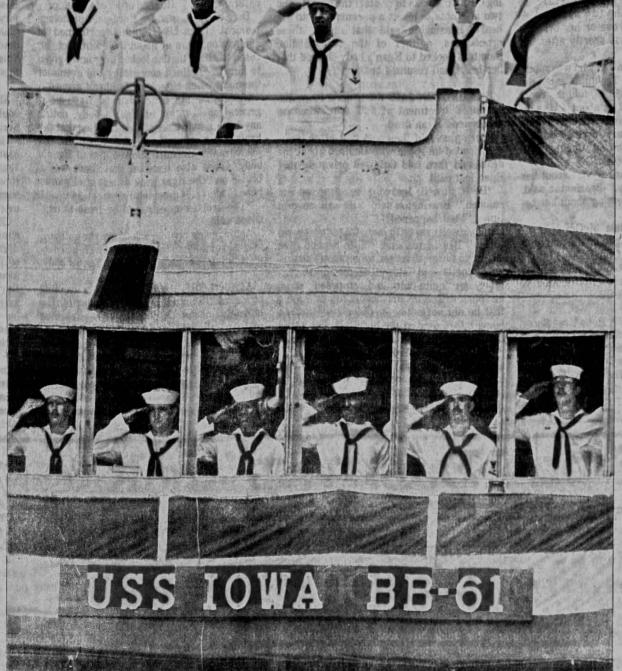

Reagan also had a hard time with the Chinese censors, who twice deleted references to democracy, capitalism and God from speeches Peking had promised to broadcast unedited nationwide.

Naval ceremony salutes revival of USS lowa

By Tom Buckingham

PASCAGOULA, MISS. - The U.S.

Navy raised a 41-year-old, 58,000-ton friend from the dead Saturday.

As Vice President George Bush, Secretary of the Navy John Lehman and Gov. Terry Branstad looked on, a bugler summoned the crew of the USS Iowa on deck at approximately 2:30 p.m., officially recommissioning the vintage battleship. The Iowa is the second World War II battleship to reenter service in the modern fleet. The first, USS New Jersey, was recommissioned in January 1982. It is currently stationed off the coast of

About 12,000 people came to the Ingalls Shipyards to cheer as crew members took their positions. And as they came aboard, the ship suddenly sprang to life. Its radar and anti-aircraft equipment began twisting and turning, its cruise missile launchers rose skyward, all its bells and sirens sounded and the crew pointed its 5- and 16inch guns toward the crowd.

The ceremony marked the end of a 14-month, $402 million overhaul for the Iowa. During that time she was fitted with eight four-barrel Tomahawk cruise missile launchers, four fourbarrel Harpoon anti-ship cruise missiles and four Vulcan Phalanx weapons systems to defend the ship against air and missile attacks. The 5- and 16-inch guns, which have been on the ship since it was first commissioned in 1943, were cleaned and reactivated.

THE BATTLEWAGON took President Roosevelt to the Casablanca conference in 1943, and fought in the Pacific in 1944 and 1945. The Navy mothballed the Iowa in 1949 but it was in 1991 to serve in Korean war. It was decommissioned for the second time in 1958.

The renovation of battleships has been one of Lehman's pet projects. Of the other two Iowa-class battleships, the Navy plans to reactivate the USS Missouri but the fate of the USS Wisconsin has not been decided. The See lowa, page 6

Battleship reactivation spurs protest

A small group of "concerned Iowans" gathered Saturday afternoon between the UI Art Building and the Iowa River to protest the $402 million recommissioning of the battleship USS Stephanie spokeswoman for the group, said the protest was held to coincide with the recommissioning ceremonies held in Pascagoula, Miss. The event in Mississippi featured Vice President George Bush and Gov. Terry Branstad.

The protest was put together by a coalition of different groups, including New Wave and Children Acting for Nuclear Disarmament.

"While the USS Iowa holds the attention of Iowans, we want to stress the accelerated build-up of our (United States) military forces," Weiner said. The protesters sang and sent sees private support rise 10 percent

By Kirk Brown

UI President James O. Freedman Sunday credited a "heightened awareness" of the UI's importance among its "alumni and friends" as a reason private contributions to the UI Foundation climbed by about 10 percent in 1983 from the previous year. Figures released by the Foundation last week showed the UI's private fundraising agency received $30,026,343 in 1983 from private gifts, pledges and

UI Foundation President Darrell Wyrick said he believes the increase in private donations is linked to "the Foundation's continued efforts to encourage annual support of specific colleges, schools, departments and programs from among alumni and

"outright gifts" donated to the UI increased dramatically in 1983 to $15,018,861 — an increase of 20 percent from the previous year. The other half of the Foundation's money came from pledges, trusts and bequests to be received in the future.

Freedman said another reason the UI has received increased private support is because "the donors are convinced we spend their money wisely."

He is hopeful these donors' view of the UI's importance and responsible spending policies will compel them to give even more money in the future possibly beginning next fall.

Freedman said the Foundation's board of directors met Friday and voted to have an "independent firm conduct a feasibility study" that will give UI officials an idea of "a reasonable (dollar) goal" to expect for the campaign.

Following the completion of the feasibility study, Wyrick said the Foundation will slowly begin the campaign, spending a "considerable period of time" on attracting "leadership gifts," which consist of large donations contributed by individuals.

Although the fund-raising campaign for Freedman's "Proposal for the Future" is still in the planning stages, Wyrick listed several campaigns the Foundation currently is conducting, including the "Campaign for Iowa Hall"

Student pins hope for future on transplant

By Robyn Griggs

Thuy "Tony" Pham, like many graduating UI seniors, woke up March prepared to take a big step into his future. Looking toward a career in electrical engineering, he was scheduled for an important job inter-"I just want to find a good job in engineering, just lead a normal life. I just want to work," Pham said. "We want to support a future family that we have already planned," his wife of six months added. Therefore he tried to disregard his feelings of nausea that morning and told his wife the blood he vomited was orange juice. "He refused to see the doctor because midterms were coming up and he didn't want to miss the job interview," Kim Pham said. However, Pham never made it to his interview. He continued to vomit blood

Originally diagnosed with chronic hepatitis, Pham was recently informed his liver is cancerous. Unless he can raise more than $80,000 for a liver transplant in Memphis, Tenn., he will probably die within a year.

"THEY DID TESTS, all kinds of tests, and found out he has a tumor in his liver," his wife said. "The abnormal cells cover most of his liver, so if they remove the liver he won't have any normal liver to function."

"The liver transplant is the only option I have," Pham said. "I think I don't have many days left if I don't get the transplant.'

Doctors have told Pham he is a good candidate for the transplant because "he is so young and has a good heart and everything," Kim Pham said.

Doctors: Egan injuries cause unsure

By Patricia Reuter

With the aid of autopsy photographs and slides, four physicians answered attorneys questions in Johnson County District Court Friday about what caused Ellen Egan's

The third day of testimony in the seconddegree murder trial of Benjamin P. Caldwell centered around the efforts of the UI Hospitals' emergency room staff to resuscitate Egan, and the two autopsies one on Egan's body and one on her brain performed by pathologists shortly after her

Dr. Richard Brasington Jr., who was supervising the UI Hospitals Trauma Center the morning Egan was brought in, told the court that a call was received at about 5:20 a.m. Oct. 30 informing the staff that a female patient in "cardio-pulmonary arrest" was being transported by Johnson County Ambulance to the trauma center.

"We asked the ambulance team about her (Egan's) medical history," Brasington said. "And someone said something about her being beaten up."

County Prosecutor Linda McGuire is attempting to prove that Egan died as a result of a beating she received from Caldwell early in the morning of Oct. 30. Defense attorney Leon F. Spies is relying upon intoxication by alcohol in Caldwell's defense.

CORALVILLE POLICE Detective Barry Bedford testified Wednesday that Caldwell told him that he and Egan argued the night before. He also told Bedford that he shook and slapped his 21-year-old fiancee and banged her head against the bathroom door of the duplex they shared at 713 Fourth Avenue

Place in Coralville. Bedford said Caldwell called an ambulance the morning of Oct. 30 when he could not wake Egan.

Two of Caldwell's friends who also testified last week told the court that Caldwell told them Egan was conscious after he hit her and that the couple made up and went to bed.

Brasington testified that the trauma center team used a number of emergency resuscitation techniques on Egan that morning including drugs; ventricular defibrillation, (using electric shocks to re-start the heart); and two attempts to insert a pacemaker into her heart. Brasington said that during these procedures, neither of the two cardiac monitors hooked to Egan's body showed that her heart had resumed beating.

BRASINGTON SAID the trauma team discontinued treatment at 6:37 a.m. when he pronounced Egan dead.

Brasington told the court that after treatment ended he spoke with Bedford about the death and then told Caldwell privately that Egan had died.

'He (Caldwell) looked quite surprised and stunned," Brasington said. "He said several times 'What happened?' '

"(Caldwell) said 'Oh man, Oh man' several times," Brasington said. "Then he said 'I've got to go home, I've got to go home." The doctor said Caldwell seemed uncomfortable, but "quite calm and composed" when he spoke with him. Brasington told the court that he did not notice any signs of Caldwell being intoxicated at the hospitals, but added that he was not looking for any at the time. Johnson County Medical Examiner Dr. T.T. Bozek testified that he received a call at about 7 a.m. the morning of Oct. 30 to "proceed as soon as possible" to the UI Hospitals emergency room. Upon arrival, Bozek said he saw the records kept by the trauma team which showed the "superhuman effort" they put into the resuscitation attempts on Egan.

WHEN HE EXAMINED Egan, Bozek said he saw "notable bruise marks about the body" including contusions on the lips, chin, small of the back, eyes and elbows.

"Things didn't seem right," Bozek testified. "(It appeared) she did not die of natural causes." He then ordered an autopsy. Dr. Steven P. Olson, a third-year pathology resident at the UI Hospitals, performed an autopsy on Egan at about 8:30 a.m. Oct. 30. Olson testified that he looked over notes given to him by Bedford concerning the events of the night when Egan and Caldwell argued.

Olson told the court that he first did a general observation of Egan's body, noting any scars and bruises. Olson testified that the bruises he observed were those in the photographs McGuire showed him of Egan's body. Olson also testified that there was a bruise on "the right back aspect of (Egan's) head," above and behind her right ear.

"The bruises appeared to be fresh to us,"

Again, using photographs from the autopsy, Olson explained to the jury what he found during the internal examination of Egan's body.

AMONG THE FINDINGS were a swelling of the scalp and two areas of bleeding into the underside of the scalp by the right ear which matched the "trauma" or external bruise. Olson also stated that there were "some diffuse areas of hemorrhaging" under the scalp which suggested that areas of the scalp that did not show bruising may have been affec-

Student senator opposes allocation, accuses group of rights violations

The national debate over policy in Central America moved into the UI Student Senate budgeting arena last week as one student senator fought against funding the Central American Solidarity Committee because of "its support for the rebels of El Salvador and the Sandinistan government

The senate's Budgeting and Auditing Committee had recommended giving the solidarity committee $1,906.22 in mandatory student fees, but Thursday night Sen. Steve Grubbs moved to "zero fund" the activist group because he believes its activities violate the human rights clause of the senate's Budget Protocol Act.

This exchange came during the senate's final budget allocation meeting of the year where it allocated more than $168,000 to 39 student groups and nine commissions.

Grubbs quoted from the senate's Budget Protocol Act, "'In no aspect of its (UI's) programs shall there be differences in the treatment of persons because of race, creed, color, national origin, age, sex, and any other classification that deprives the person of consideration as an

SENATE TREASURER Joel Mintzer said he didn't believe the human rights section of the Budget Protocol Act applies to the Central American Solidarity Committee, because the group does not discriminate in its membership at the UI.

Mike Price, a representative of the Central American Solidarity Committee said he "deeply resented" the copied material Grubbs had circulated through the senate

After debating the group's funding President Lawrence Kitsmiller decided the recommendation to zero fund the group was not germane. "The group complies with human rights," he ruled.

Grubbs challenged the chair's ruling, but the move failed to receive the two-thirds vote needed to overrule the chair.

ANOTHER PROPOSAL to zero fund came in regard to the UI Student Right to Life program and was made by Sen. Doug McVay. He said he felt the group was violating the Budget Protocol Act by misrepresenting itself to the senate.

He said the Right to Life's literature display in its office does not conform with the group's stated purpose. He said during his visit to the office he found literature on gun control and acid rain, but could not find sufficient literature on abortion.

Mintzer said the senate would be "limiting freedom of expression" if it only allowed groups to display material for their organization. He called McVay's proposal to zero fund Right to Life "guilt by associa-

Educators' overseas experiences generate valuable cultural insights

Two Iowa City couples who have taught in foreign countries told how they balanced the financial and travel opportunities with the strain of adjusting to a new culture, at a program sponsored by UI Educational Placement Office last week.

"When I graduated from high school in northwest Iowa, I had been to Sioux Falls, Minneapolis and Chicago," said Joyce Whalen, who taught in Saudi Arabia for three years. "Little did I know that, at this point in my life, I would have traveled around the world three or four times."

Whalen and her husband, Ralph, spent three years in a company-sponsored school in Saudi Arabia, where they learned to accept the Saudi culture.

'There's no alcohol in Saudi Arabia. There are no dance halls. There are no movie theaters," Ralph said. "There's not a lot to do. They (the schools) like to hire people from the Midwest. They say that it's because we're hard workers. I think it's because we're used to having nothing to

John and Nancy Stiles, who lived in Brussels, Belgium, for a year while John taught at an American-sponsored school, said living overseas had its bad points.

we couldn't find jobs here."

"WE FOUND IT financially more feasible to teach overseas than to teach here.'

Nancy Stiles, also a teacher, said that not having a job in Brussels was difficult for her. "I could not get a working permit in Belgium, so for any work I did, I was paid under the table. ... I was used to being a productive person and having my own money, and that was all gone." She added,

"I do not at all consider it a waste of time." Both women said they did not have as much freedom overseas as they do here. "I didn't feel really free to travel around," Stiles said. "You can't just hop on some train, since you don't know where it's going because you can't read the map."

"Women are not allowed to drive in Saudi Arabia, so wherever I wanted to go, Ralph had to take me," explained Whalen. She said she would always wear a long skirt if she was leaving the school compound as a concession to the custom that women be covered outside the home.

When you live in somebody else's culture, you have to pretty much accept what they expect from you," she said.

THE STILES'S rejected the criticism that a teacher should not bring her or his children overseas. "It's an outstanding opportunity for kids," said John Stiles. "Your kid comes home and says 'Can I go to Andre's house?' and you find out Andre's father is the ambassador from France." "And you look outside and see the limo waiting," added Nancy Stiles. The program on teaching overseas was presented by Rebecca Anthony and Gerald Roe, both of the UI Educational Placement Office. Anthony and Roe have written a book on finding overseas teaching jobs and they made some suggestions to the audience about applying for jobs.

The authors stressed that overseas teachers must be adaptable and willing to forego some of their American comforts. "Employers are wary of junk-food junkies and TV addicts," Anthony said. "They prefer that you indulge in Dubuque, than go through withdrawal in Dakar."

"An employer simply can't afford to be embarrassed by a teacher who is naive, provincial or unwilling to adapt to being a million "magnetic resonance imaging system" that operates like an X-ray machine but replaces the radiation with a magnetic field and radio waves.

"We place the patient in a strong magnetic field and transmit radio waves into the patient," said Dr. James Ehrhardt, UI professor of radiology who is in charge of the system. Ehrhardt said the waves range between the AM and FM radio frequencies that "have been around the Earth for hundreds of millions of years without

During an open house in the magnetic resonance imaging center Friday. Ehrhardt said magnetic resonance's advantage over radiation techniques such as the "CT-scan" is its sensitivity to the body's soft tissues - muscles, organs and blood vessels. Magnetic resonance, however, is at a disadvantage to X-ray procedures in examining bone fractures because magnetic resonance only detects hydrogen, must keep their distance from the UI Hospitals' six-ton magnet that exerts a magnetic field 10,000 times stronger than the Earth's magnetic field.

During a demonstration for media representatives, Dr. Val Dunn, a radiologist recruited to work with the new system, showed how a wrench suspended from a string is drawn toward the core of the system by the strong magnetic field.

"The very strong field may exert a torque or twisting action which may disrupt the way it (a pacemaker) is implanted in the body," Ehrhardt said.

Dunn also said a "switching mechanism" common to pacemakers can be changed from a "demand mode" operating only when the heart needs regulating to an automatic cycle that runs constantly.

Dunn said the UI Hospitals' Magnetic Resonance Imaging Center in the basement of John W. Colloton Pavilion opened three weeks ago and has examined about 40 peo-

DUNN SAID the UI Hospitals' system, manufactured by Picker International, has yet to receive approval from the Food and Drug Administration. He said until approval is granted, which should be within three weeks, UI Hospitals will not charge for the examinations because the studies are investigational.

This summer Dunn hopes to begin charging for the 30- to 60-minute exams, where the only sensation to the patient is a "thumping" sound while the patient is inside the tunnel of the magnet.

"One lady said it reminded her of being at the Bahamas. She loved it," Dunn said. Dunn said multiple sclerosis is one disease that is more readily detected with magnetic resonance. "In many individuals all other imaging modalities are not as good," he said. "Patients have been totally normal by other techniques but with magnetic resonance show abnormalities.'

Ul's tougher admissions standards result in fewer applications for fall

UI officials are already witnessing the effects of a new admissions policy designed to limit enrollment in the overcrowded College of Liberal Arts beginning this fall.

"We've lost about 500 applicants because of the toughened admissions standards," said John Moore, UI director of admissions and financial aid. As of Friday, Moore said 6,532 incoming freshmen had applied to the UI. He said this number sounds large because a lot of students are "shopping around" and don't necessarily plan to attend the UI.

Resident students applying for admission into the College of Liberal Arts this fall must show an American College Testing score of 24 if they do not rank in the upper half of their class. Previous applicants resident students the required ACT score has jumped from 22 to 25 for students not ranking in the upper 30 percent of their class. Previous requirements set the class rank at the upper 40 percent.

Moore said UI officials predicted the enrollment rate would drop by about 500 students and so far applications are following that prediction. But Moore said he is not ready to make predictions on how many new freshmen the UI will actually receive, though 10-year enrollment projections show the UI could have 11,630 freshmen and sophomores this fall.

"THE ORIENTATION packet is a better key to predict that by," he said, referring to a brochure mailed to all students admitted to the UI. In the brochure is a reply card students must return to reserve a date for orientation, when they plan their fall

Marilyn Dunham of the UI Orientation office said, "Every freshman and transfer student admitted gets one." She said the cards were mailed April 16 and students should return them by June 8. But she said the orientation office will "try to accommodate all students" if cards are returned

Moore said 1,878 transfer students have applied to the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Engineering. Although this figure is down by about 120 students, Moore said this is "not surprising because transfer applications always lag behind."

"We know freshmen are down because of the tougher admissions standards, but transfers are later in getting their stuff in," he said. "They wait until they're further into their second semester to see whether or not they want to change.'

McDonald says compromise is key to negotiating new utility franchise

By Carlos Trevino Staff Writer

Iowa City councilors and Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric officials will need "to do a lot of compromising" before the city enters another franchise agreement for utilities by 1985, Iowa City Mayor John McDonald said Sunday.

"I don't think the franchise will pass in its present form," McDonald said of the current 24-year-old agreement with the gas and electricity company. "There will have to be some compromising on our part and of Iowa-Illinois.

Negotiations center around four main issues, including the city's interest in charging Iowa-Illinois a "nominal" franchise fee, the duration of the next franchise agreement, the need for high transmission lines and the debate about who will pay for underground electrical lines in the downtown business district.

"There isn't a franchise fee in effect at this time, but there's a possibility of imposing one," McDonald said.

UNDER IOWA LAW, Iowa-Illinois could raise utility rates to pay for the franchise fee, which McDonald called "a major stumbling block," for the enactment of a

Another area of controversy, according to T.T. Hoogerwerf, local manager of Iowa-Illinois, is the duration of the franchise agreement. In a letter to the city, Hoogerwerf states that his company wants a 25-year agreement, but may accept a 20year pact.

McDonald said, "The feeling of the council is to have the agreement for less than 25 years. But I don't know how long the council will agree upon."

The four city councilors elected last November said during their campaigns they preferred a short-term agreement, ranging from five to 15 years, instead of 25. A third area of concern involves Iowa-Illinois' desire to build high transmission lines in residential areas to "provide adequate service because of the accelerated

IOWA-ILLINOIS records state that the peak demand for electricity in the city rose 20.4 percent in 1983.

and phenomenal growth in electrical consumption," Hoogerwerf states in his letter.

The city does not want the transmission lines installed. "People are upset with the aesthetics of the high power lines ... they are large and noticeable. Some people do not want them near a residential area ... because of a safety factor," McDonald said.

"We do not want them (high transmis sion lines), or shall I say we'd be very reluctant to give approval to do that." Councilors are also worried about who will pay for the installation of underground lines in the downtown area. Hoogerwerf states that if Iowa-Illinois i to continue paying for underground wiring to meet city ordinances the cost would be passed on to the city through rate in

"Due to economic conditions, they (Iowa Illinois) can't pay for it," City Manager Neal Berlin said. "There's still three blocks in the downtown business distric that need underground (wires)."

THE CITY'S current franchise agree ment expires in January 1985 and McDonald said he does not know when a new agreement will be reached.

"Once the council decides, and makes an agreement, it goes to the voters in a referendum," he said. Hoogerwerf said: "We do not believe voters would approve franchises that increase electric and ga

Diablo starts up to cheers, protest

AVILA BEACH, Calif. (UPI) -Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant engineers burst into applause Sunday as they set off the facility's first nuclear chain reaction, and deputies outside arrested five people protesting the start up.

"I'm pleased. This ends a long journey for Diablo Canyon and simultaneously begins a bright, new energy chapter for California," said plant manager Bob Thornberry.

But demonstrators outside the oceanside plant said the start of low-power testing will show that Diablo Canyon is "an engineering

Four women and a man who walked inside the plant's gates were arrested by San Luis Obispo County Sheriff's deputies.

Mark Padovan, the resident Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector, said the $4.9 billion plant's Unit One reactor went critical at 1:07 a.m. Iowa time, culminating more than a decade of controversy and setbacks.

During the first hours of lowpower test operations, the plant produced "only a few watts of power," officials said, less than one percent of Diablo's capacity.

About six hours after the nuclear start up, Thornberry said a valve was found to be allowing reactor coolant water to flow into a holding tank. But he said the water was not radioactive and the leak was quickly halted.

"IT'S BEEN CORRECTED and there never was any danger,' Thornberry said, adding the diversion had "no significant effect" on the reactor's coolant level.

"Everyone started clapping pened. It's been a long time now and it was a real feeling of accomplishment," Podavan said.

The 2,200-megawatt twinreactor plant started up more than 10 years behind schedule. Its history has been littered with legal challenges and design and construction flaws.

Diablo's opponents claim the plant, situated three miles away from the Hosgri fault line, is unsafe because it cannot withstand a strong earthquake.

The facility underwent substantial earthquake modification in the early and late 1970s and the plant's owner, Pacific Gas & Electric Co., insists it can operate safely even in the face of a 7.5-magnitude

Richard Krejsa, a biology professor at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, told the crowd of demonstrators, "Diablo Canyon is an engineering nightmare. Last week was Easter. This week, a resurrection of spirit is due and we are capable of doing that. We need thousands and thousands of people here to express their opposition."

Opponents also have said the effects of radiation released during Diablo's normal operation or during an accident have been unex-

Environmentalists claim the plant will damage the delicatelybalanced ecosystem of the central California coast by raising the temperature of the ocean water it uses for coolant.

Peace of minds

Peace-minded Iowans, don't despair.

The re-commissioning of the USS Iowa this weekend is not typical of the usual posture of Iowans on matters of war and peace, as events happening in the state in the next few weeks show.

News of battleships gives way to ambassadors next Friday and Saturday in Cedar Rapids, as the city noted for its international exports will host "The Management of Global Change" conference featuring United Nations Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick. Her conservatism will be balanced by experts like Harvard's Gene Sharp, who will conduct a "National Defense Without War" conflict resolution workshop, and Bishop Maurice Dingman, who will speak on the moral challenge of interdependence.

UI Law Professor Burns Weston and UI Political Science Professor James Murray will also lend their wisdom to the proceedings. The opportunity is a rare one here among the cultivated fields; Iowans can shuck their hick stereotypes and help postulate solutions to the global crises.

A less intellectual and more gut-level appeal for conflict resolution will go out May 19 and 20 when Iowans are expected to flock to the Peace Chautauqua at the Living History Farms near

Peter Seeger ("into his fifth decade of picking our consciences and hearts"), Holly Near and Iowa City-grown Greg Brown will join in this folksy call for reconciliation and coexistence. Again the chance doesn't come up every day to return to Woodstock, commune with the elements and believe for a couple days that protest songs can really eliminate strife, hate and nuclear

Pulp policies

Science fiction writers - in pre-empting the development of submarines, television, artificial intelligence and spacecraft have wielded trend-sensitive eyes and healthy imaginations. Ronald Reagan, lacking both, would be worse at writing science fiction than he was at playing one-dimensional movie roles, if

The president's call for a protective shield of laser anti-ballistic missile weapons is an unfeasible demand, an incredible fiction in terms of time, technology, economics and law. Space policy expert John Pike, speaking at the UI Thursday, outlined the specific obstacles blocking administration plans for arms in orbit. His evaluation, taken with the more vehement criticism waged by other scientists and legislators, implies that Reagan, when speaking of space weaponry, is out of his genre.

The first fallacy in his plot is one of capability. In March 1983, Reagan alluded to laser ABMs as if the single step toward their development was a corraling of concentration by American scientists. Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has said laser and particlebeam weapons are questionable possibilities "for the simple reason that they require several as yet unattained major scientific and technological breakthroughs." The earliest a system could be deployed would be the year 2000, according to Pike. Such farfetched vision, in defiance of circumstance, may produce astounding fantasy, but it flounders as realistic science fiction and is superfluous as public policy.

The second problem is money. Although White House projections call for a maximum of $7.5 billion for ABM lasers in 1989, the total tab for the weapons might reach $26 billion by that time. Pike said. And his analysis is conservative. The cost of the High Frontier concept, currently in the defense community's hopper, has been placed at $40 billion by proponents and between $200 and $300 billion by the Armed Forces Journal. Such figures are cosmically incongruous next to the deficit, the still sputtering economy and the already monumental discrepancy between social and military spending. Any novelist concocting a nation that spends so much on gadgetry would need to invent humans who eat no food and work all day to support the government.

Finally, Soviet and U.S. negotiators condemned ABM weapons in treaty 12 years ago, agreeing they are not defensive. The firststrike threat sent to the Soviet Union by the deployment of laser ABMs would be enough right now to upset the balance of power. And while nuclear war has been a successful scenario for authors such as Pat Frank and Peter George, contemporary writers often shun the post-apocalyptic sub-genre after realizing its only realistic end is a bald earth.

The consequence of all this is dangerous pulp. Reagan should abandon his fantastic manuscript and leave dark futures for those who don't write for keeps.

Fervor's fires quelled by water

PRING HAD COME, warm and smothering, and beyond the Frisbee game and the svelte bodies lying in the grass were a small crowd and a preacher who was beating the air with his fulminations. Probably no one saw the man coming from far away.

"Listen to me, people. Do you know what my Father says? He says the earth and all its elements are going to pass away. They're going to pass away and melt with fervent heat (2 Peter 3:10). But something's going to remain, people. Do you know what's going to remain? The Word is going to remain and Heaven and Hell are going to remain. Praise God, He's going to gather his children to Him, but do you know what's going to happen to the rest? He's going to say: Depart from me, you sinners, into everlasting fire - I never knew you' (Matthew 25:41)."

Meanwhile, a thin man, mostly bald, dressed in dull flannel and khaki, had arrived at the congregation. Sweat beaded his forehead. In each arm he carried a bucket heavy with water.

THE MAN walked to the preacher. "Friend," asked the preacher. "Are you here to be born again?"

The stranger spoke with a low intonation, almost never raising his "Friend," the minister would not be

"Listen to me," the preacher returned savagely. "God does not make threats. There's a Heaven and there's a Hell and God casts those who do not accept Him forever into Hell."

"That's why I came," said the stranger. "I'm going to put out Hell, and if someone will lend me a match I'll burn Heaven to a cinder.'

"Listen to me ... " the preacher began again, then stopped, shocked, and took off running - chased by two shirtless men laughing wildly and carrying the buckets of water.

Meanwhile, the man walked away silently from the crowd, smoking a cigarette. He drew a drag of smoke through his narrow cheeks. He continued walking slowly, oblivious, toward the now-falling sun and the river in the distance.

Riverrun redux

To the editor:

Mr. Wyatt, did you run in the same race I did at Riverfest? The registration packet I received said the 5K run would start at 8:30 and the 10K at 8:40. Also, just because the first race started at 8:05, I didn't feel there was a need for too much anxiety. The packet also said that any comments were welcome so next year's race would be better. Did you use the box in the gymnasium for suggestions?

Your big final surprise sounded like it might have put you in the hospital. A full-scale collision sounds quite awful, but somehow you managed to finish. To think it cost you two places. Oh my!

I suggest that you apply for Riverfest Riverrun director next year and spend 20 hours a week for 3 months organizing the race since you seem to know so much about roadracing.

I congratulate Evan Oliff and his Riverrun committee for an excellent job. Be assured that one complainer out of 900 entrants is a job well done. David Diers

Help yourself

To the editor:

For several months support for the formation of a collective bargaining unit to fight for graduate student interests has been building on this campus. The reasons for this movement's growth are, I think, obvious. The UI's fiscal crisis has dramatized the vulnerability of graduate assistants to arbitrary budget cuts, cuts that harm not only our graduate programs but the academic careers of thousands of undergraduates who are dependent on the services of miserably paid and overworked teaching assistants. Moreover, the graduate assistant community suffers from a wide number of grievances ranging from IRS harassment to nonexistent daycare facilities for our children.

Constituencies within the university community will never receive recognition and benefits unless they demonstrate a willingness to organize and fight for their rights. Graduate assistants have traditionally been one of the most abused constituencies in this university. The 17th-century French writer LaRochefoucauld assures us that "self-interest blinds some, but enlightens others." No one will help graduate students if they refuse to help themselves. Certainly our administration seems far too preoccupied with propagandizing on behalf of the joys of technocracy and corporate expansion into academia to assert itself on behalf of our student community's human needs. Therefore I urge all my colleagues to respond affirmatively to the graduate assistant organizing drive that will lead to collective bargaining and a stronger voice in university affairs for graduate assistants.

Rebels: Zapata was in death squad

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - Leftist guerrillas Sunday charged that a top-ranking Salvadoran security official working at the U.S. Embassy who was slain in a terrorist shooting had been a member of a right-wing death squad.

As proof that Alfredo Zapata was a member of the death squads, the rebels' clandestine Radio Venceremos presented a communique from one of the right-wing hit teams that denounced the killing and praised Zapata's work as an "anti-communist fighter."

Zapata, 59, was the highest-ranking member of a 200-man Salvadoran security force assigned to protect American diplomats at the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador. He was shot to death in his car April 16 by a gunman in the assassination would be "harshly" White, now a prominent critic of President Reagan's policy in El Salvador.

Khadafy issues Britain warning

Moammar Khadafy threatened to take "reciprocal action" against Britain and accused London of attacking the Libyan Embassy, the Libyan news agency JANA said Sunday.

"Now time has come to treat Britain in a reciprocal manner after it has been confirmed that Britain protects terrorism and the enemies of the Libyan Arab People," Khadafy was quoted as saying.

Britain severed diplomatic relations with Libya last Sunday, several days after a gunman inside the Libyan Embassy in London fired on a crowd of anti-Khadafy protesters, killing a policewoman and injuring 11 demonstrators.

Iowa catcher Jeff Gurtcheff walked up to the plate, and with one swing of the bat, the Hawkeye baseball team wrapped up a doubleheader sweep over Wisconsin on Saturday.

Defending champion Ohio State dominated play at the ninth annual Big Ten Women's Golf Championships at Iowa's Finkbine Golf Course over the weekend, but a young group of Iowa Hawkeyes succeeded in attaining its goal of placing in the upper division by finishing fourth.

To prevent scouts who may have been in attendance from seeing too many Hawkeye plays, Iowa Coach Hayden Fry limited the offensive and defensive patterns. "We were pleased with the game in that it is so restricted offensively and defensively with what they could do.'

Iowa's all-Big Ten quarterback, Chuck Long, later estimated the Hawkeyes used about one-fourth of their running plays and one-fourth of their passing plays in the game.

"THERE'S STILL A lot on the bookshelf right now," Long said. "I'll bring it out in the fall."

Fry said he traditionally limits the number of plays, citing the possibility of Iowa State and Penn State scouts in the crowd. 'We don't know if they're there, but they might be," he said. "We know Iowa State sent a scout last year and we sent an assistant coach there for "We really restricted ourself today,"

Blocking was a big concern of Fry's, saying the line had made improvements throughout the month-long spring practice session, but failed to show them on Saturday.

"Any time our running backs got anything today, they did it on their own," Fry said. "There wasn't any blocking for them.'

Unable to claim top honors, Hawks clinch lowa records

By Melissa Rapoport

DES MOINES — Although the Iowa women's track team didn't bring home any top honors, the Hawkeye participants did succeed in setting two Iowa records and several personal-best records.

"I had hoped our people could have placed a little bit higher, but there were some good performances and some things accomplished this weekend at the meet." Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said.

"There were two Iowa records, a personal best for Nan Doak in the 5,000 meters, an outstanding anchor leg by Vivian McKenzie in the sprint medley relay and two outdoor track bests - one in the 4x100 and one by Penny O'Brien in the 1,500.

"WE STILL NEED to be a little more competitive," Hassard said. "But again, a meet like that is so high level that it's hard to come home with high

In the finals of the sprint medley relay, McKenzie, who usually runs the 100 portion, was moved into the anchor-leg position because of an injury to Elaine Jones. Despite not running the 400 competitively in over a year, McKenzie, who Hassard said "ran a very outstanding race," rose to the occasion and clocked a split of 54.2 seconds.

The relay, which also included Jackie Moore and Davera Taylor, finished fifth in an Iowa record time of one minute, 43.54 seconds.

In setting an Iowa record of 16:06.18 in the 5.000, Doak, running unattached, competed against top competition in an event which she has only competed in twice in the past seven months. The record-setting time was also an all-time best for Doak.

"DOAK RAN VERY well," the Hawkeye Coach said. "Betty Jo Springs (North Carolina's four-time All-American) didn't show. She competed very well. She shows more speed. She was able to break away with the pack and run with the leaders."

Although O'Brien didn't place in the 1,500, she succeeded in setting a personal-best record of 4:27.8. The women's division of the Relays in previous years consisted mostly of Midwest schools primarily Big Ten and Big Eight universities. But in conjunction with the rise of women's athletics, over 50 women's teams from all over the nation were represented at the meet, creating a high-caliber

"The women's fields are getting much more competitive at Drake," Hassard said. "The biggest improvement has probably come in the field events, and there's also more of a nationally representative group of athletes in almost of all the events.

"THE COMPETITION is much more intense in all the events, so it's getting tougher for our athletes to place at Drake."

Although Mary Mol had hopes of winning the high jump competition, she placed a respectable third place with a five feet, nine and a quarter inches

Graduate Assistant Brenda Calhoun, who competed for the Hawkeye Track Club in the 100 hurdles. also clinched a third-place spot. Calhoun's time was 14.16. "Brenda Calhoun's doing well," Hassard said. 'She beat Kelly Mathews, who beat her at the Kansas Relays last weekend."

The 4x100 relay set a seasonal-best record and finished seventh, but Hassard wasn't totally pleased with the performance, saying the last two legs of the race didn't run up to their potential.

In the field events, Gail Smith placed seventh in the finals of the shot put with a throw of 47-3, and Janet Adams finished sixth in the the javelin with a 138-foot throw. "Janet Adams in the javelin threw well and Gail Smith did well to make the finals in the shot." Hassard said.

Hawkeyes win first title event in 17 years of annual Relays

By Brad Zimanek

Except for one "foul up," the Iowa men's track team had an outstanding weekend at the Drake Relays in Des Moines.

The "foul up" occured in the 4x800 relay when Iowa's team of Caesar Smith, Ricky McCoy, Paul Chepkwony and Andy Wiese ran third and was a just a fraction of a second behind Baylor and Eastern Michigan. However, Iowa was later diqualified. Iowa was disqualified because McCoy, in the second leg, apparently interfered with a Baylor run-

"It was a disappointment because we had a group of 10,000 people there and only one person happened to see the foul," Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler said. "I appealed the disqualification, and the other coaches, including the Baylor coach, were unaware of anything that happened. But I guess that it is just one of those things, though."

IOWA ALSO WON it's first Drake Relays event in 17 years, taking the 4x100 shuttle hurdle relay in 58.71 seconds. This was Iowa's first victory at Drake since they won the 4x400-meter relay title in 1967. Iowa's team was made up of Ronnie McCoy, Gary Jacobson, Todd Wigginton and Doug Jones. The Hawkeyes also received an excellent performance from their 4x100 relay squad which finished second behind Baylor in 39.48, which was just fourhundredths of a second short of the victory.

Iowa also took a third-place finish in the sprint medley with a time of 3:16.17. "The sprint medley team ran well," Wheeler said.

"Kenny Williams ran a split of 45.6 for the 400 in his leg, and Chepkwony ran 1:48.3 in his 800 leg. They ran sensationally; we changed up the rotation a little bit. They performed admirably in taking third.

"YOU TAKE A look at the Big Ten teams or the Big Eight teams that were there - Ohio State, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota - and if we compare, we clearly excelled over all those teams by slight margins.

Iowa, after placing behind those teams at the league indoor meet, is looking to improve and move its way up the Big Ten ladder when the outdoor championships take place May 19-20 in Columbus,

"It's a long time away, but with (Ronnie) McCoy and Smith back and our sprinters legs being steady, we are looking at a very successful Big Ten and NCAA meets," Wheeler said. Mike Lacy broke his own Iowa school record in the triple jump while placing third with a jump of 50 feet, eight and three-quarters inches. Iowa also had Chepkwony and Robert Smith compete in the intermediate hurdles and the 100, but both were unable to qualify for the finals.

Norm Balke and Gary Kostrubala also competed for Iowa in the discus and shot puts but were unable

Gophers edge error-prone lowa

Iowa's softball team was taken three out of four times at Minnesota last weekend.

After losing the first contest of the four-game set Saturday, 4-1, to the Gophers, the Hawkeyes bounced backed and looked as if they might just be ready. But as things progressed, Minnesota was more prepared.

In the opening game, Minnesota got all it needed in the second inning. Gopher Barb Drake led off the inning with a base hit off losing pitcher Diane Reynolds (9-10). Barb Solberg followed with a walk.

Then Julie Sinminski attempted successfully to sacrifice the runners. The Hawkeyes, however, did not take the offering as Sinminki got to first base on

ANN SLIS THEN added a run batted in single and Diane Portner, who was three for three on the day, followed with another RBI hit. Minnesota scored twice on three hits, a walk and a sacrifice which turned into an error. Mary Lee Hanson was the winner (12-5), her first of three wins for the

The fifth inning knocked Minnesota out for good. Iowa tallied five times, all unearned runs, on two hits and four errors off loser Drake.

The key hit, after Minnesota should have been out of the inning was a Chris Cochran bases loaded three-run double. The six runs were the most runs scored on Minnesota this season.

With Sunday came two more loses for Iowa, 3-0 and 3-2.

Hanson was the winner as Reynolds picked up the loss in the first game.

Golfers see 'fears' become a nightmare

By Greg Anderson

Sports

Iowa men's golf Coach Chuck Zwiener was worried going into this weekend's Northern Intercollegiate in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"This will be the best meet we've played so far this season," Zwiener said, "in terms of the field and the quality of the course.

"With a couple of bad rounds," Zwiener added, "you could fall to the bottom." The Hawkeyes had a few bad rounds in Michigan, and they almost fell to the bottom. Iowa finished 14th at the 15-team intercollegiate, carding at score of 1,181 for 54 holes. Zwiener didn't know if his team could handle 36 holes Saturday on the tough University of Michigan course, one that he called "the most difficult course we'll play this season." The

ONLY ONE HAWKEYE golfer shot below an 80 on the second 18 Saturday. That put Zwiener's squad in a deep hole and they didn't recover on Sunday. Only one Hawkeye had a par round this weekend and that was Guy Boros. The sophomore shot a 72 in Saturday's first round. Boros fell to an 87 on his second round and he finished the tournament at 238.

The bright spot for Iowa this weekend was probably in the play of junior Trent Dossett. After starting the season as Iowa's number two scorer, Dossett had not been finshing as high during the Hawkeyes' past few meets.

Dossett, though, led Iowa at the Northern Intercollegiate with rounds of 75, 76 and 75 for a 226 total.

Senior Eugene Elliott was Iowa's number two scorer with a 230 tally.

COACH JIM BROWN'S Ohio State squad was a runaway winner for the third-straight weekend. The Buckeyes posted a score of 1,124, which was 18 strokes ahead of Big Ten rival Illinois.

Wisconsin was in third with 1,147 strokes, while Eastern Michigan had 1,151 and Purdue rounded out the top five at 1,153. Ohio State's Chris Perry won his second-straight meet, gaining medalist honors at the Northern with a 217 total. Wisconsin's Bob Gregorski was three strokes behind Perry.

There was a tie for third place between Buckeye Clark Burroughs and Eastern Michigan's Bob McNiff at 221. Northwestern's Jim Benepe and Lenny Hartlage from Purdue also tied with After completing the regular season schedule, Zwiener and his squad will now begin preparation for the Big Ten meet May 11-13 in Bloomington, Ind. "We would just like to improve and start playing towards Big Tens," Zwiener said. "That's the name of the Young artists share new vision

By Suzanne Richerson

TUDENT ART, though often rough and "in process," em-bodies qualities of immediacy and freshness that many times get lost as the artist matures and perfects techniques. Thus a show of student art works carries the excitement of testing and seeing with new vision and translating it sometimes into new art.

Robert DeHoet, in his untitled black painted wood structure, has a sense of fresh perspective in his use of angles Art and space to suggest (perhaps) a chair form embellished with gold lines and circles — a free-form object with references to both calligraphy and hieroglyphs.

Sean Steve McGuire's tubular 'Drive Thru" dramatizes itself with bright, pure colors. A series of cylinders winding in random directions seem to point to the flashiness of structures of often questionable purpose.

mixed-media construction of a globular mass, medical tubes, a meat hook and a deer hoof, that comments on the destructive forces of technology

Michelle Grossman's cibachrome prints of night scenes exude an eerie, almost sinister sense, and Peggy Chezum, in "Rain, Rain Go Away," creates a nostalgic scene using the reflective aspects of a rainy pavement as they contrast with a white umbrella and dark, leaf-strewn lawn.

AN ETCHING of Bill Sackter by

Donald Martin captures the likeness of the now-famous local figure, and a computer-generated print, "Pool No. 4" by Mary Ann Kellar, marks a new development in art and technology.

Though a number of paintings, etchings, photographs and sculptures appear in the show, several art forms do not. For the sake of both the public and the students who are interested in where art is going, some of the diverse possibilities of form would be welcome

The UI Student Art Exhibition, a juried show of 32 works, appeared at Old Brick through last Sunday.

Pottery exhibit shows influence of era, place

By Suzanne Richerson

ISTORICALLY, pottery making extends as far back as the beginning of civilization. And since it developed from the needs of cooking and storage, its mundane origins contribute to the shapes and concepts that have continued to dominate the art /craft.

In the current exhibit of pottery on display at the UI Museum of Art, the museum's own works combine with a large collection of medieval and Renaissance tin-glazed ware gathered by John Philip Kassebaum.

As a survey, "The Potter's Art" covers a wide range of so called 'rough" pottery making of the sort Art used for practical purposes, from the museum's own early Etruscan pieces to a group of modern works that stray from their humble and practical roots.

The Etruscan works, the earliest chronological pieces and the first to confront the viewer, include two large kraters as well as a biconical urn that dates from the eighth century B.C. and a terra cotta votive offering of an in-

The Kassebaum Collection itself, in the large main gallery, traces the path of the white tin-glazed ware that begins in Persia, where plates decorated with aquamarine coloring predominates.

THE SPREAD of Islam affected the pottery not only of Spain but of the Italian maiolica and the works created in France, Holland and England. Curious examples of the technique as used in the European countries include such items as a 1720 English Blue Dash Charger painted with the popular Adam and Eve temptation scene and a pair of oval bowls, one French and one English, with identical allegorical scenes, a female form and numerous children, depicting fecundity.

One richly sculpted bowl, a biologist's dream, sports relief designs of a large fish, a beetle, a snake, a frog, abstract designs in graceful and com- a lobster, a butterfly and a lizard. Its plex arabesques and brilliant use as a serving bowl might be questionable but as a visual feast it delights and overwhelms the eye.

As a sharp contrast, the museum's Southwestern pottery reveals the highly geometric and abstract qualities of the pueblo potters' works. Particularly notable are two elegant blackon-black pieces by Maria Martinez, the renowned potter of San Ildefonso, and a polychrome bowl by Lucy Lewis of Acoma pueblo.

In a side gallery a group of contemporary pots and sculpted ceramic pieces indicate a departure from the traditional expression modes of the

"The Potter's Art" continues at the museum until May 5.

The Strange One (1957) Ben Gazzara made his film debut in this steamy, disturbing tale of sadism in a Southern military school. Gazzara fairly trembles with hate, frustration and pain - all those good things you expect in a 1950's Hollywood product. At 7 p.m.

On the networks: The anguish of parents facing the sudden disappearance and subsequent murder of their son is vividly brought to light in the fact-based 'Adam" (NBC at 8 p.m.), starring Daniel J. Travanti and JoBeth Williams. Photos of missing children were shown at the conclusion of the movie when it was aired last October and resulted in locating 12 of them. Tonight's showing will feature more photos of missing children. No such moral duty is at play, however, in the network
