like the audience was going to see a play under the covers by flashlight. But no nostalgia here; yards and yards of white cheesecloth were draped and pulled into sphincter-like gatherings that served as walls. What you saw was cool sails, frozen clouds. At first it seemed lovely, strange, spare; but later it was unrelenting.

The abstract sculpture in the center of the set also added a touch of the sophisticated atmosphere, but I couldn't shake the illusion that it was really a ritzy hobby horse and ultimately one of the crowd would jump on it and ride away for her or his lost

Good theater's got to move an audience, stir up whatever's there. The blood and gossip of Shem Bitterman's Strategies of the Beast did that to a full house during the Playwrights Festival. being seemingly blind to recent cultural shifts. Paul Simon, prior to the Central Park reunion concert with Art Garfunkel, commented that the concert would enable much of the audience to jump back through time and be 18 again. A similar spirit informs P.E.R.R.O., coming across in the same tone as the highly commercialized eulogies of the '60s that glut airwaves and marketplaces alike.

No matter what one thinks of punk culture artistically, they deserve credit for one important realization: that problems may remain the same in content, but their form changes, sometimes drastically. The forms they have taken on in recent years have been matters the punks have taken

This fact becomes all the more apparent in light of projects like P.E.R.R.O. If Kantner and the gang genuinely wish to see the social visions of their formative years become something more than museum pieces. some hard thinking and more than a little reorientation are needed to bring it up to date.

Panel: Restructure Liberal Arts College

By Kirk Brown Staff Writer

The present governing structure of the UI College of Liberal Arts is inade-quate and needs to be modified or completely overhauled, say a growing number of UI faculty members and ad-

This perceived inadequacy has prompted the college to study various governing options and Dean Howard Laster to call a special meeting of liberal arts faculty Wednesday.

"It is unlikely that the present system (of government), which continue unchanged without in-creasingly depriving the faculty of an effective role in governance and Professor Robert Wachal. without depriving the next dean of the possibility of providing leadership," states an April 30 preliminary report authored by the Ad Hoc Committee on the Governance of the College of Liberal Arts.

The ad hoc committee includes six liberal arts faculty members, including committee chairman UI Political Science Professor Gerhard

AS A RESULT of the committee's report, Laster, who is resigning from his post July 1 because of health problems, called a special meeting of the college's faculty Wednesday.

Loewenberg, who has been selected to take over as acting dean of the college when Laster steps down, said the purpose of Wednesday's special Loewenberg, UI Physics and meeting was "to initiate discussion and Astronomy Professor James Van examination" of several alternative governing structures for the college. At the meeting Loewenberg said, "It has become apparent there has been increasing interest by the faculty in the governing of the college."

Presently the college, which with more than 18,000 students is the UI's largest, is governed by what has been termed a "sparse" number of administrators, including: one dean, two part-time associate deans, a part-time temporary assistant dean and one fulltime assistant to the dean.

Three of these positions have been added by Laster during his seven-year tenure as dean. Nevertheless, Laster

Vitality fund allotment begins

By Robyn Griggs

The long-awaited faculty vitality fund that UI officials hope will make UI faculty salaries nationally competitive is now a reality and today UI officials will discuss distribution of $8.5 million to the UI colleges.

UI administrators have agreed the fund should be doled out on the basis of

Despite differences of opinion among UI faculty leaders and administrators expressed to The Daily Iowan in March as to how the salary boosts should be distributed, UI Vice President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said Wednesday, "There has never been any disagreement either by the Board of Regents or any of us but that it will go on the basis

The $8.5 million vitality fund from scheduled tuition increases was approved by the Iowa Legislature last month, in addition to a 6.6 percent state-funded salary increase for all faculty members.

"We certainly expect that each department in Liberal Arts will be able to get something more than 6.6 percent," Howard Laster, dean of the UI College of Liberal Arts, said, but added, "Don't forget that's making up for two years of frozen salaries."

LASTER ADDED he has "a general idea of what to expect" in allocations, but, "there could be some surprises." Ellis said distribution of the fund "involves consultation throughout the structure - it involves department executive (officers), deans and the vice president for academic affairs."

Richard Remington, UI vice president for academic affairs, said the distribution will be "a highly individualized kind of business - it's really based on the evaluation of merit of individual faculty members and in a sense filters up through the departments and colleges to my office.'

Once allocations are made to the departments, Laster said, "each individual will be separately evaluated by each department, but we'll also be setting aside some funds for specific areas that have some needs.'

He said, "Areas losing to the competition in salary levels" will receive extra support.

THE FACULTY members will be evaluated by DEOs on the basis of "quality and effectiveness of teaching and efforts of scholarship or creative See Faculty, page 6

Reagan says communism at our door

Reagan warned Wednesday that 100 million people face communist en-slavement, "chaos and anarchy" if Congress fails to vote enough money to protect the vulnerable democracies of Central America.

The threat to the United States "is at our doorstep," he declared, and he cautioned against listening to "the new isolationists" who espouse "a policy of wishful thinking" reminiscent of the appeasement of Adolf Hitler before World War II.

"We can and must help Central America," Reagan declared in a nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office. "It's in our national interest to do so and morally it's the only right thing to do. But helping means do-

In restating his arguments for additional military aid to El Salvador and CIA-backed Nicaraguan rebeis, Reagan said that if Congress fails to come through with the money, all of Central America could fall to Sovietand Cuban-backed subversion.

Pressing his case for an $8 billion package of long-term economic and security aid for the region, including urgent military assistance for El Salvador, Reagan said the United States has evidence of a planned fall offensive by Cuban-backed Salvadoran guerrillas, designed to bring down the newly elected government.

REAGAN HAS FOUGHT with Congress over $62 million in emergency aid for El Salvador, where the United States is heavily committed to supporting the government's battle with leftist guerrillas.

Likewise, Reagan has run into trouble trying to win $21 million for the CIA-backed "contras" battling the Marxist-led government of Nicaragua for their role in promoting revolution in the region.

In making his case, Reagan said, "The issue is our effort to promote democracy and economic well-being in the face of Cuban and Nicaraguan aggression, aided and abetted by the Soviet Union."

Congressional objections to Reagan's policy are riveted on two points - fears of deepening U.S. military involvement and concern over the CIA-backed mining of Nicaragua's

Democrats bristle over 'militarism'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congressional Democrats sharply criticized President Reagan's speech on Central America Wednesday night, saying he is too militaristic in his approach to the region's problems.

Reaction

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass, said Reagan offered a "call to arms in Central America. What we wanted was a call to peace.'

"His prescription now is clear: more ammunition, more U.S. involvement, more force, more deaths," said O'Neill, adding that Reagan dashed hopes "for an end to the mining, an end to the covert war against Nicaragua."
"The Democrats in Congress

are prepared to support President Reagan, or any president, when the president's policies make sense and advance the interests of the United States," Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., said in the Democratic response to Reagan's nationwide address. Democrats, said Barnes, "stand ready" to help U.S. friends in the region and elsewhere, but they do not support administration actions "that tend to widen the war, increase the tensions and Americanize the conflicts in Central America.' Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., said by putting the blame on Cuba, Reagan "reveals his gross misunderstanding of what is occurring in the region. His speech was warlike, irresponsible and will not move the Congress to Feldstein, whose feisty insistence on speaking his mind brought him into open dispute with the White House, announced Wednesday he is quitting as chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers. A day after his latest disagreement with the administration, Feldstein told reporters he will be leaving his job July 10, and added that he has no regrets about having come to Washington.

The experience, he said, has been "unique because, while any organization is likely to have infighting and pettiness, it's only in the White House environment that all that gets printed in Feldstein's 21-month tenure on the council has been marked by repeated, sharp differences with the president and with Treasury Secretary Donald Regan. But his letter of resignation, delivered to the president Tuesday, economic policies "In the past three years, you have changed the course of America's economic history," Feldstein told Reagan. "Inflation is down sharply and monetary policy is following a course that should prevent a return to increasing inflation. The reduction in government domestic spending that you have achieved distinguishes your administration from any that has come

Reagan told reporters he had not fired Feldstein and he was sorry to see him leave. In a letter to the economist, the president said, "During the past two years, you have given me the benefit of your great knowledge and experience, and I want to thank you personally for the job you have done."

WHITE HOUSE spokesman Larry Speakes said no pressure was put on

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Martin was filled with praise for Reagan's Feldstein to resign and he noted that the Harvard economist had long said he planned to return to the university before September so he would not lose his tenure as a professor there. Feldstein, 45, was appointed to the high-visibility council job in August 1982 after Murray Weidenbaum resigned. He said he is leaving in July so he will have time to prepare for his classes at Harvard in the fall.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Feldstein was "about the administration's last link to economic reality."

Despite his warm words for Reagan, Feldstein has vigorously disputed White House policy on key economic

THE LATEST disagreement flared Tuesday when major banks raised the prime rate from 12 to 121/2 percent. The White House, especially sensitive to an increase in interest rates during this election year, blamed the rise on the Fed, saying it was not making enough money available for lending and thus had forced the banks' to act.

Feldstein saw it differently. "The Fed is pursuing the right kinds of policy," he said Tuesday, in keeping money growth moderate for fear that too liberal a hand would lead to higher inflation.

Feldstein's chief bone of contention with the White House has been the $180 billion federal budget deficit. While Reagan has agreed that the deficit should be cut, Feldstein has publicly gone much farther, warning that the nation will pay dearly for such heavy

He disavowed parts of Reagan's 1985 budget and his views so angered Reagan that the president told members of Congress they could "throw away" Feldstein's economic report.

Council approves bond bid by pharmaceutics company

By Jeff Eichenbaum

A newly formed Iowa City pharmaceutical corporation may soon receive up to $3 million in industrial revenue bonds if no one opposes the move at a city council public hearing on June 5.

Iowa City's Director of Finance Rosemary Vitosh, said a "memorandum of agreement" expressing the city council's support for the issuance of IRB's to the Pharmaceutical Development Systems Corporation was approved by the council late Tuesday night.

The company plans to build a 40,000 square-foot plant in Iowa City's industrial park at Heinz Road. Company officials are hoping to open the plant by Mayor John McDonald said the company has applied for the IRB's and the council passage of the agreement was "the initial step" toward issuing those bonds. Vitosh said the council will decide whether to issue the bonds after the public hearing. McDonald said although the council has not yet discussed whether it should issue the IRB's, he believes the council will support it.

"I DON'T HAVE any real problem with it. I think in a situation like this, this was the reason to have and issue IRB's. This company will attract more business in Iowa City."

Councilor William Ambrisco also supports issuing the IRB's. "Mainly, this is what I'm all about economic development."

He said the pharmaceutical company will "provide a source of jobs, and income; by putting property on the tax rolls. I'm in full support because I think it's the kind of business that will flourish" in Ambrisco said so far there has not been "any indication" of opposition to granting the company IRB's. "This is the kind of business that would attract other kinds of businesses - I see nothing but plant's operations and light demand on water and sewage facilities as positive aspects of the plant. Jerry Fangman, the firm's vice president of technical services, has said the corporation will employ about 25 people during its first year of opera-

COUNCILORS ALSO cited the cleanliness of the

The corporation also plans to spend about $10 million to expand the plant in the next five years, and may eventually employ 100 people.

Production during the first year will be limited to a dialysis concentrate: a chemical used during kidney dialysis. That concentrate "is basically a gallon of water with chemicals in it," Fangman said.

After the plant undergoes expansion, it will begin to produce other pharmaceutical products.

Police were sent to the scene, but found no suspects.

Local fellowship worshipers inspired to speak in tongues

People of diverse religious affiliations unite as members of Grace Fellowship to practice the biblical phenomenon of speaking in tongues at the Abbey Inn in Coralville.

'Glossolalia" is the official word for speaking in tongues. Speaking in tongues refers to the spontaneous utterance of unidentifiable and random Most linguists say the analyzed samples of glossolalia do not resemble any known language, although Russell Schomers, Grace Fellowship assistant pastor, said there are patterns of human speech

In 1978, 19 people organized Grace Fellowship under the leadership of Pastor Thomas Gildow. Today the fellowship has about 250 members, Schomers

There are Lutherans, Catholics, Baptists, Quakers, Presbyterians and Methodists in the fellowship, Schomers said. He estimates 10 to 30 percent of Grace Fellowship's members are UI students. And about 10 percent of the members of Grace Fellowship do what Schomers calls "splitting the difference" - meaning they belong to another church also and attend services at both churches.

Grace Fellowship, with offices at 802 S. Clinton St., emphasizes an informal approach to worship and the gifts of the Holy Spirit, which include speaking in tongues, interpretation of tongues, prophecy and

THE TENETS of Faith and Doctrine of Grace Fellowship say the evidence of the Baptism of the Holy Spirit is "the initial physical sign of speaking with other tongues as the Spirit gives utterance and by the subsequent manifestation of spiritual power in public testimony and service."

ues is like Schomers said. The members "look to the worship leader to initiate the release" of the tongues. The average duration of glossolalia in a Grace Fellowship service is two or three minutes, but it varies, he said.

At a 1977 convention in Kansas City, 50,000 people joined together in a simultaneous display of glossolalia that lasted 10 to 15 minutes, Schomers

About 95 percent of the members of Grace Fellowship have the gift of tongues, Schomers said. However, only about 10 percent of those people initially experienced glossolalia at Grace Fellowship.

'Most people have their first experiences just with friends or praying alone. People seek out those who have common ground," Schomers said.

Joan Baker, a housewife from Hills, Iowa, was one of the first members to join Grace Fellowship. Baker had her first experience with speaking in tongues in 1976. She was alone in her house reading the Bible when she felt a sensation 'like warm honey." Then she began to speak in tongues. "It was beautiful," Baker said.

SCHOMERS REMEMBERS his first experience with speaking in tongues. In 1976, he was at a friend's home. While his friends prayed with him, Schomers felt something physical inside of him. "I felt a warming sensation in my chest, which rose up into my throat and came out of my mouth," he said.

Some Grace Fellowship members have the gift of interpreting tongues, Schomers said. However, "interpreting" doesn't necessarily mean the person can interpret the speech word-for-word.

Prophecy is another gift of the Spirit associated with a charismatic church like Grace Fellowship. A prophecy is "an inspired utterance, something that touches you in a positive way," Schomers said. "It may exhort, comfort or edify the congregation or certain people in the congregation.'

John Munson, a 43-year-old journalism lecturer at the UI, became involved with Grace Fellowship through his wife, who had become involved through a Bible study group. "I was relatively horrified that my wife was involved," he said.

Munson's 15-year-old daughter also became 'spirit-filled." Then, he began to attend services at Grace Fellowship. "It didn't seem so outlandish after a while .... There was a time when I associated all fundamentalists with anti-intellectuals and redneck southerners.'

Munson, 718 Dearborn St., now plays bass in the Grace Fellowship band, which includes an electric pianist, four violinists, a drummer, a guitarist and a wife greets members at the door with a hug. During the service, there is an interlude in which members greet and hug each other.

For about half an hour there is music, handclapping, dancing, waving of arms, energetic singing and speaking in tongues.

About a month ago a woman in the fellowship donated 11 acres of land to the organization to build a church. The land is located on the Indian Lookout hillside, Schomers said. The fellowship could conceivably hire a professional contractor to build a church and the fellowship members could finish up the interior. Schomers said planning was at a "very preliminary stage.

Munson has mixed thoughts about the recentlyacquired land. He said although some people in the congregation have building skills, the fellowship may "run the risk of losing its spiritual thrust" by undertaking such a project.

John P. Boyle, associate professor and director of the UI Religion Department, said Grace Fellowship seems to have many of the characteristics of a sect, as defined by Ernst Troeltsch in "Social Teaching of the Christian Churches." Sects are usually small, oosely-organized yet cohesive religious groups, Boyle said. A sect manages to act like a family because of its size, but tends to place higher demands on its members, such as recruitment or

In addition, members of a sect usually join on a voluntary basis, in contrast to a mainstream liturgical church where many members are simply born into it, Boyle said.

BOYLE SAID sects and sect-like groups remain healthy "as long as the group stays small." Such groups tend to withdraw from the world, he said. When such a movement gets too large, it absorbs members who aren't as fervent or dedicated as the original members, resulting in what Troeltsch labeled a "routinization of charisms."

The growth of Grace Fellowship may reflect the strong missionary stance common to sect-like Christian groups, Boyle said.

The increase in membership has been "slow and steady," Schomers said, but he added that the fastest increases have been in the last two years. In 1980, there were between 120 and 140 members and at last count there were 250 members.

Schomers said the increases reflect the awareness that Grace Fellowship is "not a fly-by-night opera-

Jaywalking: it is a hazard and a hassle for drivers, "easy and fast" for pedestrians, an insolvable problem for police and campus security, and a very common phenomenon for Iowa City.

Manouchehr Amin, an Iowa City bus driver for three years, said jaywalking is so prevalent - especially on Washington Street outside the Old Capitol Center mall - that he doesn't even notice it anymore. "You expect people to walk in front of

"People don't realize that a 13-ton bus full of people just won't stop," said Cambus Manager Michael Jaywalkers say Iowa City is a "walkers' town," because most people don't have cars, and because the UI campus is in the center of town.

"If you keep your pace up while driving, there's no problem, and if you don't impede cars when you cross, there's no problem," said a well-dressed man, too busy to stop after he crossed the street through

UI student Sam Young explained, "I don't want to slow down on my way.' Young said he is very aware of how he crosses traffic and that "people don't go that fast through

UI student Michele Issac said she moves into traflic more when she is jogging or on her bike, as retaliation, because I'm getting exercise so they should give me the right of way."

IN GENERAL, most jaywalkers are in too much of a hurry to explain their behavior. Most pedestrians who cross streets contrary to the lights, however, proceed with caution, usually waiting for spaces between cars.

"The biggest percentage have respect for traffic."

The UI's chances to retain the lease on the Macbride Field Campus are looking brighter since UI officials presented their latest proposal to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Monday. "I haven't read the whole proposal yet, but it has more recreation that we want, said Dorothy Anderson, real estate specialist to the corps, which has leased the 620-acre nature preserve to the UI for the past 25 years.

Anderson will be a member of the committee making the recommendation to award a new lease to either the UI or the Iowa Conservation Commission.

"Whatever the recommendation is it will go to the division office in Chicago," she said. Anderson said the division office "generally follows" the recommendation set forth by her office.

"It's quite an extensive plan and a drastic change from the previous plan," Anderson said of the UI's new proposal that beefs up recreational activities at the Field Although UI officials were optimistic that a final decision would be made near June 1, Anderson said she "hates to put a definite date on it because I don't know how long the review will take." The current lease expires June 30.

2nd Quebec gunman shoots two people, holes up in house

QUEBEC (UPI) - A man armed with a 20-gauge shotgun wounded two people Wednesday before barricading himself in a house ringed by police who used a robot dubbed "Inspector Hercule Poirot" as an intermediary.

The incident occurred a day after a gunman shot his way into the nearby Quebec legislature, killing three people, wounding 13, taking a hostage and holding hundreds of police at bay for nearly five hours before surrendering.

That suspect, Canadian Forces Cpl. Denis Lortie, was charged Wednesday with three counts of Quebec Constable Yvan Pinel said the latest shooting may have been motivated by the attack on the legislature. Police identified the suspect as Jean-Claude Nadeau, 39.

Busting sodbusters

On Tuesday the U.S. House of Representatives dealt decisively with one of the least glamorous but most important environmental issues of our time — soil conservation.

The House passed a "sodbuster" bill aimed at curtailing the alarmingly high rate of topsoil erosion. The bill would cut off federal farm program benefits, including price supports, from any farmer who plows and plants on highly erodible land that has not been in production in the last 10 years. The measure would also create a "conservation reserve" by paying farmers to convert erosion-prone land already in crop production to pastureland or to some other soil-conserving use.

There can be no doubt that a bill like this is needed. Rep. Berkly Bedell, D-Iowa, told the House that three dump trucks could be filled with the topsoil that erodes annually from just one acre of Iowa cropland.

The White House, the American Farm Bureau Federation and Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., oppose the bill, claiming it is too costly and that the penalty provision "confiscates property rights."

Farmers are among the most heavily subsidized business groups in the country. Paying farmers for a conservation reserve is not an attractive idea, but the cost - from $50 million to $100 million a year over the next three years - would be a relative flea bite compared to the tens of billions of dollars paid to farmers in other forms of benefits. Besides, it seems to be a sad fact of life that American taxpayers must pay farmers to do the right thing.

The sodbuster penalty would infringe on no one's rights. It is simply a legitimate give-and-take arrangement with farmers. If farmers can take crop subsidies and other benefits from the government, at public expense, they can abide by some sane and needed land use regulations, both for the public good and, ultimately, for their own good.

The game isn't over

The elections in El Salvador are over, and moderate candidate Jose Napoleon Duarte has apparently won. That's nice, but it's not the ball game. One sort-of-free election does not make a democracy. Not when the military has shown no sign of being willing to submit to civilian rule. (The military deposed Duarte in the 1970s.) Not when the loser is associated with military and civilian death squads that assassinate people they don't like. And not when there is a bloody civil war.

The Reagan administration is arguing that the election of Duarte justifies continuing military aid to El Salvador. With certain restrictions, military aid can be justified. But the administration and the Congress should build into the granting of military aid clear conditions and give an unequivocal promise to

If Duarte is deposed or assassinated by the military, all aid should stop immediately. If the death squads are not halted at the least, and brought to justice at best, all aid should stop. If Duarte does not make a good faith effort to negotiate with the rebels for an end to the war, the aid should stop. And if political reform and land and other economic reforms are not implemented, the aid

Equally as important, economic aid should be increased. If Duarte is going to take wealth and power from the ruling elite, he is going to need money to buy them out. Health and education are also important needs, if Duarte is going to maintain the allegiance of the population.

Finally, the administration should halt those activities that threaten to widen the war. It should make peace with Nicaragua and stop militarizing Honduras. Instead, increased economic aid should go to Honduras and Costa Rica, both of which are relatively democratic and both of which are having severe economic problems that make them vulnerable to political unrest.

If these things aren't done, the election of Duarte will mean nothing. It will just be one run in a long and losing ball game. Linda Schuppener

Defense on a diet

There is a worm eating at the heart of the American people's standard of living, the worm of military expenditures. The longrun stability of the standard of living depends crucially on the balanced and proportional growth of all the sectors of the

Between 1977 and 1982 the American economy grew at an inflation-adjusted annual rate of 1.6 percent. However, between 1977 and 1983 military expenditures increased at an annual rate of 5.1 percent. This differential was achieved at the expense of all the other sectors of the economy.

Last week, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger announced a plan to cut military expenditures in 1985 from a 13 percent annual growth rate to one of 7.8 percent. The House of Representatives, on the other hand, called for a ceiling of 3.5 percent annual growth.

Weinberger's 7.8 percent is, without a doubt, ridiculously high. But the economy's growth trend during the last few years indicates that even the House's ceiling is too high.

If the current standard of living of the American people is to be maintained, the gargantuan demands of the Defense Departament will have to be sized down to the levels allowed by economic growth, that is, to no more than 1.6 percent annual growth, or a reduction of about $31 billion in the current $305 billion Pentagon

Bus runs could bring rent relief

By J.R. Priest

INK, A UI STUDENT activity that links people who share mutual interests, is conducting a survey to deter-mine the number of UI students who would be interested in living in Cedar Rapids if there were a suitable commuter system between there and Iowa

If students could live in Cedar Rapids and had access to a good commuter system, it would help relieve two critical housing problems for students at the UI: the high cost of rental units and the shortage of such units.

Rental costs in Iowa City are from 50 percent to 100 percent higher than rates in Cedar Rapids, and there are only half as many units available as in Cedar Rapids.

In July 1983, the Iowa City Planning and Programming Department completed a rental housing survey. It found the average cost of a one-bedroom apartment was $289, a two-bedroom $422, and a three-bedroom $631. According to Marianne Milkman, associate planner for Iowa City, another survey in spring of 1982 indicated a 1.6 percent vacancy rate in apartment complexes in the Iowa City-Coralville area.

Another study, recently published by Norman Bailey, president of the Greater Iowa City Apartment Association, projected a 5 percent to 7 percent vacancy rate in the near future, which would somewhat relieve the current Guest opinion crunch. A higher vacancy rate could provide some some relief to the housing problems by ending the huge rent increases of the past few years. It could even result in slightly reduced

NEVERTHELESS, there are substantial differences in comparable costs and availability of rental units between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids. To make a comparison, a phone survey was conducted of nine of the major complexes in Cedar Rapids to determine an average rent range. Only the high end of the one-bedroom range approached the average rents of Iowa City. One-bedrooms in Cedar Rapids rented from $195 to $280, compared to Iowa City's average of $289; twobedrooms rented from $215 to $355 compared to an average of $422 in Iowa

The Cedar Rapids vacancy rate is also considerable. According to Dick Rehman, president of the Metropolitan Housing Association of Cedar Rapids, an informal poll indicated a 6 percent to 8 percent vacancy rate or an average of 960 to 1,280 units available each month. It should be noted the vacancy rate does not include Marion or Hiawatha, which would add a few thousand more to the total. The result is an availability in Cedar Rapids potentially even greater than twice Bailey's current Iowa City estimate of

There are, then, two advantages to renting a two-bedroom apartment in Cedar Rapids. One is a $90 to $200 a month savings coupled with a good bit more privacy than sharing a onebedroom apartment. The second is the doubled availability of affordable hous-

The primary drawback of living in Cedar Rapids and going to the UI is the lack of a good commuting system. Commuting by bus could prove cheaper and a better use of time to study or relax. Currently both Kincaid and Jefferson lines offer service between Cedar Rapids and Iowa City. A round trip ticket costs about $6. And Kincaid Coaches offers a 10-trip commuter ticket at $23.40. By comparison, the price of gas for a car would average a minimum of $20 per week. Depreciation, maintenance and parking add to the cost of commuting by car.

CURRENTLY, there are not enough bus runs between the two cities. Both lines offer three departing times seven days a week. Tom Fleckenstein, who owns Charter Coaches, offers a partial solution with a series of runs open to all commuters, not just students, throughout the day.

Rapids at 6:15 a.m., arriving in Iowa journalism

City just before 7 a.m. and then ading back to Cedar Rapids. The second run would begin at 8 a.m. From then on, it would run about every three to four hours until about 7 p.m. Fleckenstein says commuter tickets could cost about $30 per week and offer an unlimited number of rides. A $20 ticket would be good for one round trip per day. These figures would depend on he ridership. Such a schedule would satisfy most of the problems of commuting between Cedar Rapids and Iowa City and would allow students to take advantage of lower rental rates in Cedar Rapids. The largest question is how many stu-dents would actually want to commute. This should be answered by the LINK survey. Fleckenstein figures there would have to be a minimum of 100 people commuting per week to make the service profitable.

Currently there are 16,326 UI students living off campus, with 3,092 commuting from outside Iowa City. Further, 2,181 students list Linn County as their home.

Others besides students would benefit from an expanded commuting system between the two cities. UI employees, sports fans, Kirkwood students and shoppers would benefit. Others may find such a service a welcome relief to winter driving.

Those interested in a system like this should call LINK.

Fact and fiction To the editor:

What is intellectually dishonest and morally reprehensible about William Tatter's recent Journal-ese, "Cause for concern begins at home" (DI, May 7), is that he deliberately includes sufficient references to actual events organized by the Central American Solidarity Committee to induce the reader to believe that the story he tells is based on fact. Perhaps Tatter has fictionalized the content sufficiently to protect himself and the publisher against libel. But the readers of the DI should be informed the exchange between the offended "activist" and the "ragged-looking woman" was entirely the invention of the author. Once again The Daily Iowan and Doug Herold have shown their bias and ignorance in relating the events in the Middle East in his editorial "Media masters" (DI, May 2). It seems the DI likes to use Israel when it wants to show what an anti-establishment paper they are.

Israeli attacks against terrorist positions always seems to be front page news in the DI, while attacks against Israel get fourth or fifth page. Is it Israel's fault that newspapers chose to run stories of the rescue? True, Israel did supply information on the attack, but they have no control over who prints accounts of it.

Compared to other sources in the region, Israel can be relied on to present clear and accurate information. Where was the outcry when the Red Crescent (run by Yassir Arafat's brother) reported the number of homeless in southern Lebanon as a result of Israel's action as 600,000. There aren't even 600,000 people in all of southern Lebanon. There was no media outcry because many journalists were afraid of Arab extremist actions if they were little stories that deliberately confuse Almost the entire Israeli population is in the military, for it is surrounded by nations sworn to wipe it off the map. Israel has been forced to protect itself through military power, one thing the Arab governments seem to understand. What is Israel supposed to do when Arabs continue to terrorize their civilian population? It has long been Israel's policy not ot succumb to terrorism. Was it the action of a dictator that released the Jews at

> Since an Israeli operation becomes a 'media event" (something they have no control over) the DI decides to criticize it and the Israeli military. Does Herold know how it feels to live in the constant threat of exploding packages, shootings or all-out war? Before he calls the Israeli military a dictatorship, he should look at what the Israeli people are up against. I shall always be proud of the Israeli military for the way it protect its citizens against insurmountable odds.

Islanders seeking to drill Oilers in Stanley Cup

HICKSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — New tice and both professed respect for the York Islanders Coach Al Arbour Oilers, but were confident the Islander stressed execution and cutting off the passing lanes in practice sessions for Thursday night's opener of the NHL Stanley Cup best of seven final series with the Edmonton Oilers at the Nassau Coliseum.

Arbour repeatedly told the Islanders they must be physical and pointed out that the Calgary Flames had extended Edmonton to seven games in an earlier playoff round with tough hockey.

Arbour and General Manager Bill Torrey met for 15 minutes after pracsystem will contain Edmonton.

"We don't have a real good book on them because we don't play them that often," Arbour said. "We played them last year, of course, and three times this season, but those games were early. We have a pretty good idea of what kind of club they have and we know what we have to do. The thing is getting everybody to do it."

THERE'S SPECULATION that Torrey received some tips on how to play Edmonton from his good friend, Calgary General Manager Cliff Fletcher. They shared a chalet during the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

"Our season was one period too long," Fletcher recalled recently. "But if you play the body against them, they don't like it."

Arbour agreed, saying, "It has to be physical. It has to be execution against them, especially when we don't have the puck. They play firewagon hockey. They are a good skating and passing club, with obviously good goal scoring.

We have to take that away from them. Calgary played them physically and we Arbour indicated the finals will be a different series than the six-game semifinal triumph over the Canadiens.

"MONTREAL PLAYED the onetwo-two system a lot," he said. "They really opened up when they got behind. Edmonton doesn't play like that and uses a much more freewheeling style.

"They'll make certain adjustments, but I don't believe they can change their style overnight or would they

Arbour and most of the Islanders discount the 10-straight victories they hold over the Oilers, including last season's four-game sweep in the Cup

"You've got to forget the 10 straight," Arbour cautioned. "You've got to be ready for now. The past doesn't mean much."

Isles captain Denis Potvin, who admitted he was playing against the pressure of trying to match Montreal's five-straight Cup championships, said, 'you can bet winning five straight

"I have not been disappointed with our overall level of play. History says once we get past the first round, things usually work out for us and we're past the first round."

Center Bryan Trottier, who has played physical hockey throughout these playoffs, recalled, "Edmonton was a little chippy last season when things went badly for them. The moment you bump, their sticks and elbows come up. They don't like it." Edmonton won't be intimidated by New York's past Stanley Cup record.

N BELOW TO:

Nobody knows how the Iowa men's golf team will do at the Big Ten meet

The Hawkeyes have had a season of bouncing up and down the leader board, and Coach Chuck Zwiener doesn't see things changing at this weekend's Big Ten meet in Bloomington, Ind.

"With this team, I haven't been able to make any predictions," Zwiener said. "One time I thought we would not play as good and they did well.

"Then I thought they would do well and they fell flat on their face," the Iowa coach said. "It's hard to tell." One thing that isn't hard to tell, though, is who the favorite will be this

OHIO STATE is currently on a fivemeet winning streak and they have also won eight out of the last nine conference titles. Most observers agree that Coach Jim Brown's squad will take their ninth in a row at Indiana.

"Ohio State is very strong," Zwiener said. "They have got to be the odds on favorite, without a doubt." Indiana Coach Bob Fitch doesn't doubt it.

"Ohio State is still the king and Indiana is still chasing," the 28th-year Hoosier coach said. "The biggest change is that Illinois is becoming competitive and could be a factor." The Illini won their opening meet of the season, the Illinois Invitational, and have been consistent top finishers all season long.

Another top finisher could be Purdue. The Boilermakers also won their home meet, and they usually join Illinois near the leaders.

COACH JOE CAMPBELL'S 1981 squad was the last team to unseat Ohio State. The ninth-year coach said his crew may surprise the Buckeyes again.

"This team could beat them (Ohio State)," Campbell said, "if we have the right people playing in there and playing well.

"We only have to beat them once and that is May 12," Campbell added. "We just have to let them know we're there. A lot of good football teams lose when they're ahead and they try to find a way not to lose.'

Soviet allies begin boycott of Olympics

Moscow's first ally to join the communist boycott of the Los Angeles Summer Olympics Wednesday amid reports that a rival "Red Olympics" for East Bloc nations was being organized in the Bulgarian capital of Czechoslovakia hinted strongly i would boycott Los Angeles as well, and Greece called for the Games to be given a permanent site in the nation where they began more than 2,000 years ago.

Moscow denied it withdrew from the Los Angeles Olympics to avenge the U.S.-led boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games and said it acted because Washington was injecting politics and commerialism into the Olympics. The Bulgarian statement was similar.

"THE PLENUM of the Bulgarian Olympic Committee considers it impossible for Bulgarian sportsmen to give back the Games "their true take part in the Olympic games in Los Angeles," said a statement issued by the state news agency BTA.

The Bulgarian statement said extremist political and religious groups in Los Angeles "with their hostility against the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, and the other socialist countries" posed a threat to communist athletes.

Czechoslovakia, another close ally of Moscow, left little doubt it would go along with the Soviet Union and Bulgaria.

A commentary carried by the Czech news agency CTK said Moscow's boycott was a "responsible decision" designed to "protect its sportsmen from anti-Soviet hysteria, offenses and physical assaults.'

POLAND SAID its Olympic Committee would meet next week to decide whether its athletes would attend the Los Angeles games.

There was no comment from East Germany - one of the Olympics' most successful medal-winning nations but it was expected to join the boycott. In Athens, Greece, Greek President Constantine Karamanlis responded to the growing Olympics boycott by calling for the Games to be permanently held at their original site, Ancient nature which they had in ancient In Washington, President Reagan said he had "a great feeling of disappointment" and wished the world was as civilized as ancient Greece, which interrupted wars to compete in the

THE OFFICIAL Soviet news agency Tass said Moscow's boycott decision was made because the Olympic ideal was marred by threats of violence, commercialization and attempts to exploit the games for political purposes.

"This is the principled and consistent position of the Soviet National Olympic Committee, prompted by its profound concern for the continued purity and unity of the international Olympic movement," Tass said.

Cribbs walks out; Stallions file suit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) -The Birmingham Stallions filed a $20 million lawsuit Wednesday against Joe Cribbs to force the U.S. Football League's leading rusher to end a walkout over higher pay before Friday night's game against Jacksonville.

Stallions President Jerry Sklar said Cribbs failed to show up for practice Tuesday and apparently was carrying out a threat to walk out on his contract.

Sklar said Cribbs' five-year contract called for him to be paid $2.35 million. He said the former Auburn running back wants more than double that amount, apparently seeking to become the highest-paid player in the league. Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals is considered the toppaid player in the USFL now at $6 million over four years.

"JOE IS ONE of the highest-paid players in professional football, and we feel his demands are unwarranted and unjustified," Sklar said.

Cribbs, a three-time NFL all-pro in four seasons with the Buffalo Bills, leads the USFL in rushing with 1,105 yards, averaging five yards a carry. He broke the Stallions' previous season rushing record of 907 yards.

The Stallions' lawsuit was filed in Jefferson County Circuit Court and asked the court to declare Cribbs' contract with the Stallions enforceable and order him to play.

Cribbs, who earlier waged a court battle to get out of his contract with the Bills and play for the Stallions, reportedly contends his contract is void because the agent who represented him, Jerry Argovitz, has since become one of the owners of the USFL Houston Gamblers and that represented a conflict of interest.

Gridders have to make the grade

By Gabriella Bodo Special to The Daily Iowan

Many Iowa football players don't experience their professors giving them "a break" during the season as many people would believe they do, according to a majority of the Hawkeye football players interviewed last week. "My professors treat me just like any other student," quarterback Chuck Long said. "A lot of my teachers are not even involved in sports."

Wide receiver Greg Hammann of Bellevue, Iowa, said that he had never experienced being given a break either. "I have never really experienced it," he said. "I just make sure I'm prepared and get things done."

OTHER PLAYERS said, if anything, their teachers are harder on them.

"I have some teachers who actually treat me more harshly than other students just because I am a football player." junior offensive guard Kelly Nose guard Hap Peterson echoed this feeling. "If anything, they treat me harder," he said.

Others said that it depends on the

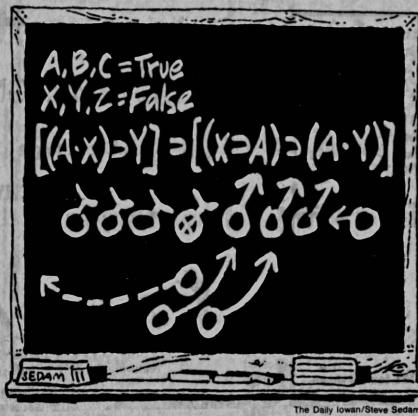

"They do give me a break, but not all the time," running back Owen Gill said, "Some let me hand papers in late, and sometimes others let me take a make-up exam if I'm not ready on the day the exam is given because of practice, or something. It depends on the teacher.'

Offensive tackle Mike Haight said that he has experienced the same kind of breaks as Gill. "Sometimes they do, but it depends on the teacher," he said. "When they do, though, I don't know if it's because they like me or because I'm a football player."

WHEN THE PLAYERS do poorly in a class, they automatically get special help. Tutors are available to any athlete who wants one, and tutors are also assigned to athletes who get below a 2.3 grade point average.

O'Brien, a general studies major, said he does attend a study hall three times a week to help him in his studies.

Players also said that any of the athletes whose GPA is higher than a 2.3 and still want help, have the responsibility of getting a tutor on their own See Hawkeyes, page 3B

Hawkeyes look for positive ending with four games against Buckeyes

Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa softball team, coming off one of its best series of the spring last weekend at Indiana, will be looking to close the season on a positive note in four home games against Ohio State.

The first two games are scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday. The conclusion of the series will start Saturday at 1 p.m. All four games will be played at the Hawkeye Softball

The Hawkeyes enter the series with a 21-27 record (7-13 in the Big Ten) while Coach Dianne Thompson's Buckeyes are 19-22, 5-15 in the conference.

"Our kids are playing really well right now," Iowa Coach Ginny Parrish said. "We beat them twice on our spring trip last season but we went out there and they took three out of four from us during the Big Ten season. They are an up and down team, we

Iowa is not without stars of its own. Senior Linda Barnes and junior Mary Wisniewski both sport solid .291 batting averages on the season. In Big Ten play, sophomores Lisa Engdahl and Chris Tomek have swung the big sticks, hitting .304 and .302 respectively.

On the mound, sophomore Diane Reynolds is currently 12-10 (3-7 in conference play) with a 1.10 ERA. Freshman Tracy Langhurst is 6-9, 4-4 with a 1.42 ERA.

Reynolds and Langhurst are expected to et the starting nods for the Hawkeyes on Friday according to Iowa assistant Coach Pat Stockman, who has once again been filling in for Parrish, who is still being troubled by a back ailment.

"I would imagine (Ohio State) will be a good test," Stockman said. "We've been hitting the ball much better ... I'm hesitant to say we're (hitting better because it is late in the season) because hitting is so much concentration.'

The Hawkeye squad will also have their final examinations out of the way by Friday. "I imagine we will be very relaxed for

Ice Hawks skate around community bringing attention to new organization

By John Rinehart Special to The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Ice Hawks, the newly organized hockey club on campus, is a growing organization that is not only promoting its sport, but is demonstrating the need for an ice surface in the Iowa City area.

The Ice Hawks consist of 40 members whose backgrounds range from beginners to experienced league players. The club was officially recognized by the UI Student Senate last November and has since been under the guidance of recreational staff member John Bowlsby

Even though the club has only been on campus for six months, it has been in Iowa City since last winter. The club had roots that go back to 1980 with the founding of the Cedar Rapids Flyers, a local hockey club who Dan Selinger, Ice Hawk president, and other Iowa students played for.

"OVER HALF of the team was University of Iowa students," Selinger said, refering to the Cedar Rapids club. "We decided to bring it to Iowa City and make it a university club.

Thus the Cedar Rapids Flyers evolved into the Iowa Ice Hawks. Like the Flyers, the Ice Hawks continue to play in the Dubuque men's Hockey League, which is made up of small teams from schools and Clubs in Iowa and neighboring states.

Next year, the Ice Hawks plan to "dump out of the league" and play games with The ice could also be covered with a hard other Big Ten schools along with other surface for activities that have nothing to the time.

college clubs from around the Midwest. But in order to do that, the Ice Hawks must find some ice in Iowa City.

JOHN O'NEIL, the team goalie, said that if the university cannot provide the rink, 'we will just go to a private investor."

O'Neil also said that once the private investor furnished the rink, the university would take over. "It may not be done this year, but I would say by next year we will have a rink.'

"They have a tough road ahead of them," said Harry Ostrander, director of Recreational Services. "Ice hockey is extremely expensive and has never been a big sport in Iowa."

Earlier attempts by Iowa have been made to facilitate an area suitable for hockey and other ice sports. Ostrander pointed out that a pond in City Park had been maintained by Rec Services, but proved unfeasible because prime skating was during semester break.

Four years earlier, an indoor facility was proposed in conjunction with the university and the city, but died due to lack of support.

Most observers now feel that with the university's budget problems, it will take more than a newly generated interest in the sport to have an ice facility added to the campus. "The club will have to take a leadership role here," Ostrander said.

A NEW FACILITY, whether it be indoor or outdoor, could be used for many other purposes such as figure and speed skating. The ice could also be covered with a hard

Dr. David Leslie of the physical education department said that a facility would allow skills classes to be offered in ice sports such as hockey. He also said that he would like to see a rink furnished "if there is a way of raising the money without jepordizing other programs."

Student Senate granted $150 to the club, which was predominately spent for publication and exposure. Rec Services is helping finance equipment, skating time, vans for the 90-mile trip to Dubuque and back and the rental of the Five Flags Center.

Hawkeye CableVision has videotaped the Ice Hawks, suited up in full uniform, passing the puck on a baseball diamond. The tape will be aired this month in order to give the group publicity and help promote their cause for a rink.

"Our biggest problem is that no one knows we exist," Selinger said. Hockey draws big crowds on campuses that have a team sactioned by the NCAA. A facility on this campus would allow Iowa to become exposed to the sport. "You could take portions of some of the exsisting buildings on campus, such as the Rec Center and the Field House Armory, and convert them into indoor ice facilities," Ice Hawk center Bob Stensby

"Hockey is one of the better spectator sports there are," Bowlsby said. "But there are not many people that are going to follow you back and forth to Dubuque all of

Nothing is finer than arts in Carolina

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) - After seven years, the Spoleto Festival U.S.A., a cornucopia of the arts lovingly guided by founder and artistic director Gian Carlo Menotti, is no

The 17-day extravaganza of opera, classical music, dance, theater, jazz and visual arts, which will offer more than 120 events beginning May 25, has carved its own niche among the myriad of annual international festivals.

"We're beginning to have a very sophisticated audience," said Menotti, the two-time Pulitzer Prize-winning composer.

"In the old days, people wanted to know what we were giving. Now they know the quality is going to be high so all we have to do is announce the festival and we start selling

With a $400,000 debt that lingered from 1978 paid off and its financial picture stable, the 1984 festival's major difference is the new general manager, Philip Semark, who once handled the Joffrey Ballet's business details.

Semark mounted an earlier, slightly more aggressive marketing campaign with a off handsomely with record advance ticket

"This year's program is very Spoleto," he said. "It does cover a lot of bases, and is not that different from previous festivals I have

THE $2.8 MILLION program features five operas; four dance companies; the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra; a Rachmaninoff concert featuring pianist Byron Janis; two theater companies; jazz performances by Dizzy Gillespie, the Ramsey Lewis Trio and others; 32 midday chamber music programs; and a fireworks-studded finale at the 18th-century Middleton Place plantation with an all-British program of orchestral works.

The major opera offerings will be a lavish production of Lehar's The Merry Widow, directed by Fillipo Sanjust; Menotti's tragic tale of Queen Juana of Castille, Juana, La Loca, which the composer will direct himself; and the Richard Strauss masterpiece

Two comedic operas — Rossini's Il Signor Bruschino and the American premiere of Salieri's The Little Harlequinade — were last-minute additions to the festival and will be double billed by the Bari (Italy) Opera Company. The productions are being underwritten by the Italian government.

Two Australian theatrical works also will have their American debuts. The Handspun Theatre of Melbourne will perform Nigel Triffit's surrealistic spectacle, Secrets, and David Williamson's comedy, The Perfectionist, which provides a unique view of women's liberation, will be presented by the original cast from the Sydney Theatre

OTHER MAJOR MUSICAL events include a return appearance by the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra with Pinchas Zuckerman; the Emerson String Quartet; Daniel and the Lions, a medieval liturgical drama performed by the New York Ensemble for Early Music; and performances by the Westminster

Dance Company of New York and the Pacific Northwest Ballet of Seattle will perform several major contemporary works, including a homage to George Balanchine. Also on the dance program are Foolsfire of New York, which uses clowns, mimes, jugglers and dancers in presenting its "New Vaudeville" routine, and Tandy Beal and Company of Santa Cruz, Calif.

Break dancing, an acrobatic blend of gymnastics, ballet, martial arts and pantomine popularized by New York street gangs, also will be offered as a full-scale production complete with lights and costumes, Semark said.

The festival's art exhibitions, which regularly include relatively obscure contemporary artists, include bronze sculpture by Arman, ceramics by Rick Dillingham and relief works and sculpture by Tom Bianchi.

"Spoleto has some real quiet attractions -La Loca, Daniel and the Lions, Secrets and Foolsfire — that people will see and be transfixed by them," Semark said. "They will be the real sleepers this year.

The Bunnymen's rythm duo keeps its new EP hopping

By Greg Leanhart

HE EXTENDED play record, usually about 20 minutes long, was originally created to showcase new talent by putting them into a competitive price range. It has proved so successful, however, that the format is now used as a marketing tool for more established

One such band is Echo and The Bunnymen, who have enjoyed a fair amount of popularity in England while they have remained largely ignored in the U.S. (despite admirable promotion by Sire Records).

Sire seems to have a surprising amount of confidence in building an audience for The Bunnymen in this country. Instead of writing them off after the commercial failure of their fine Porcupine LP and chasing down the latest Duran Duran clones, Sire has thoughtfully put out a rather intelligent EP titled simply Echo and The Bunnymen. Included are two excellent songs from Porcupine, two older, more

"radio-caliber" tunes, and one live track from 1983.
Although the most immediately striking thing about The Bunnymen is the melodramatic vocal style of Ian McCulloch, it's actually the rhythm duo that is the group's most unique feature. Les Pattinson plays a sort of "lead bass" as he and drummer Peter deFreitas expertly accompany McCulloch's singing. Guitarist Will Sergeant supplies fills which effectively decorate the sound, rather than dominating it as do most of his contemporaries. Still, when called upon, he can deliver the aural goods, as shown by his driving lead and crumpling finish on the live, "Do It Clean." For the better part of "Never Stop" and "Rescue," however, Echo and The Bunnymen use a "less is more" strategy, utilizing the simple one-two punch of bass and drums to set off McCulloch's powerful vocals.

ON THE TWO cuts off Porcupine, McCulloch, in his melodramatic zeal, often careens painfully close to singing completely off pitch. This could be a bit disconcerting, to say the least, were it not for the wise production by Kingbird in meeting the intensity of McCulloch's vocals with the eerie string instrumentation by Shankar. On "The Cutter," when McCulloch moans, "Will I still recoil when the skin is lost ... / Will I still be soiled when the dirt is off?" and the instruments crash in from all sides, it sends a shiver down the spine.

For the uninitiated, Echo and the Bunnymen is a great introduction to one of England's most exciting bands of the past five years.

The Buzzcocks, on the other hand, always had the obstacle of Pete Shelley's rather pedestrian vocals to overcome. Were it not for their usual exuberant playing, Parts One, Two, Three, a collection of their last six singles in 1980 would be a dismal failure and regrettable final offering from a fun band. The majority of the tunes are eminently forgettable, especially by Buzzcock standards.

When these songs were recorded in 1980, the Buzzcocks were in a slow process of drifting apart. Perhaps Pete Shelley was beginning to feel crowded by Steve Diggle's songwriting. Each of the six songs on this EP, three each by Shelley and Diggle, were originally released as singles containing one song by each writer, with neither designated as the A side. The members of the band contended they wanted the public to pick their own "hits," instead of having them chosen ahead of time.

Overall, the stories behind the songs are more interesting than the songs themselves. For example, Pete Shelley claims he spent "a few weeks" on acid while writing, recording, and mixing "Are Everything." Unfortunately, his "acid song" ends up lacking bite, and its follow-up, "Strange Thing," fares no better. It sounds like a song by a guy who just spent a few weeks on acid.

THE DIGGLE SIDE of the disc opens with the guitarist doing his best Paul Weller imitation on 'Why. She's a Girl From the Chainstore." But its tale of a generic woman waiting to be purchased in marriage never reaches the level of Weller's considerable writing talents. The bleak outlook of "Running Free" ("Here in suburbia/ There's nothing left to see/ I just want to spend my time running free"), coupled with Diggle's weary singing, surprisingly adds up to the best song on the EP

The only fathomable explanation for the re-release of these songs four years after the demise of the Buzzcocks is to capitalize on Pete Shelley's recent solo success. Don't get suckered by IRS Records this EP is not representative of Shelley's current synth-rock direction. Longer, and better, Buzzcocks LPs can be found in cut-out bins at an even better ECOND ALBUMS are a troubling lot, made more so by the blessed curse of initial acclaim. And so it is that in the wake of Murmur, which ended 1983 at or near the top of every significant critics' poll, comes now Reckoning, the second full-length release from R.E.M. - the supposed answer to the "Are they really ...?" questions surrounding this surprising foursome of Georgians.

Fitting, then, that Reckoning begins with the straightforward gallop of "Second Guessing," wherein Michael Stipe (in shockingly understandable fashion) returns the questions -"Why're you tryin' to second-guess me?" "Who will be your book this season?" - and then politely dismisses the heightened scrutiny with the confessional, "Here we are. Here we are."

But in addition to "Second Guessing" (and the record's title, defined as the "calculation of a ship's position" or "a settling of accounts") there is little else to suggest that R.E.M. is overly aware of its sweetheart status, let alone trying to impress. Rather, it's the same Berry/Buck/Mills/Stipe going along their merry, unaffected way, concerned not with formulae, but only with unconsciously redefining the boundaries of American pop.

I'M SITTING through this record for the umpteenth time as this is written, and it's long since been clear that repeated exposure to Reckoning is as rewarding as was the same with regard to 1983's Murmur. As the side moves into "Letter Never Sent" and the mysterious lament of "Camera," Stipe, weaving in and out of a pair (or so) of thick guitars, is whining about things like flooded catacombs and being alone in a crowd. Now and then, as if unsure of the lyrics himself, he supplies a hook's worth of the improvisational "uh"s and "ooh"s that give so many R.E.M. tunes a delightfully unfinished feel. It's as if they were still putting together a number of these songs even as you listen.

R.E.M. records are stuffed full of enough country twang, modern psychedelia and lyrical obscurity to make them border on the inaccessible, but they never go so far. The hooks pull you back time and again, and on each ride something new sneaks out of the Stipian hidden agenda.

'Beer Drinking Games' loaded with possibilities

By Kirk Brown

Editor's note: In a stunning coup, The Daily Iowan's talent negotiators announced late last night that they have signed has-been television, recording and movie stars Bob and Doug McKenzie to an exclusive contract spanning the rest of this semester - all two days of it.

Less than two years ago the McKenzie brothers were household names, thanks to the popularity of their weekly Great White North segments on SCTV.

But a cheap record and an even cheaper movie followed. They were such unmitigated financial flops that these two drunks are willing to do virtually anything for a six-pack.

So, being the compassionate folks we are, the DI has agreed to give the McKenzie brothers a new lease on life by writing literary book reviews (what else were we supposed to let them do ... they're over-qualified for sports or editorial writing). So here, in its entirety, is their maiden critical effort ...

Books

OUG: DOOT, DOOT, doo, doot do-do-do. Do do-dodoo-to-do-do.

Bob: Knock it off, hosehead. You can't write out our theme song because no one will be able to hear it or tell what it's supposed to (belches) be.

Doug: Oh, right, I like forgot, eh. So how about another brewski (belches)? Bob: Good idea, eh, because that leads us to today's topic, which is beer. Doug: (belches grossly) Beauty, eh? Like me and my brother are experts in this field and we have read a book, eh? And it's a beauty (belches) that all of you beer drinkers should know about. Bob: Yeah, and like this book is called The Complete Book of Beer Drinking Games and it was written by these three Yankee hosers, Andy Griscom, Ben Rand and Scott

Doug: And let me tell you, it is a good book for people who like to have a good time with brewskis, eh? Like it has a whole bunch of good games like Beer Golf, Stack-the-Cans, Chug Boat and Beergammon.

Bob: Plus the book has also sorts of useful information. Like 30 different names for beer, including our favorite, brewski, brew-hahs, tweners, suds, juice, sauce ..

Doug: Knock it off already, hoser. Bob: ... beevo, golden nectar, spirits,

Doug: You are like making a fool of us really bad, hoser. You didn't even read the book because you can't read because, like, Mom never let you go to school because you were too ugly

Bob: No way, hoser, you aren't going to make me look dumb. I read the book and understood all the words with less than six letters.

Doug: Take off, eh? If you read it so well then maybe you should tell the readers what its, like, main point was. Bob: Oh right, hoser. You just want me to tell the main idea because it's like too complicated for some hoser like you that just looks at the pictures.

Doug: Too deep for me, was it? Hosehead, you can be so obnoxious and stupid sometimes, like it's really embarrassing to be your brother. The main, like, theme of this important literary book is that people like to drink brewski and there our a lot of games they can play to, like, enhance this experience.

Bob: Well said, hoser. I am, like, surprised you figured that out. I like agree completely. In fact, this book was so interesting it only took me five sixpacks to read it.

Doug: Beauty, eh? (belches) I really liked the part where the authors talked about "How I Went Into a Bar With Ferns and Lived to Tell About It."

Bob: Like, it was really frightening, eh? But the book was also useful. I used three cases of brewski just mastering the techniques for the "perfect chug."

Doug: Three cases, eh? What a liar. You are such a lightweight, like three cans of American beer and you're ready to, as the book says, start bootin' all over the place.

Bob: Oh, like I am so mad now. hoser. We'll see which of us can drink the most. Let's, like, go get some cases of some great guzzling beer like our favorite, Canadian Molson

Doug: Okay, hoser, but like first I have to write my, like, closing sentence. So all of you readers, remember, there is an old German proverb in this book that says it all. "There is no such thing as bad beer; some are bet-

Lame duck rock gig flying into the Nest

Special to The Daily Iowan

ONIGHT THE Crow's Nest provides the perfect way to celebrate the end of a long school year. The Fertile Crescents will be on hand, giving their farewell performance.

The Fertile Crescents have built an amazingly strong following in a short period of time. The first bonafide Crescent gig took place at the Union Wheelroom in February, where they opened for Chicago's overly hyped Phil & The Blanks. The Fertile Crescents stole the show, proving that rock 'n' roll hearts will win over big egos and expensive sound equipment every time.

The band has since played in the Union's Battle of the Garages, edging out a victory over The Huns. The group has also performed successful shows at Amelia Earhart's Deli and at Riverfest.

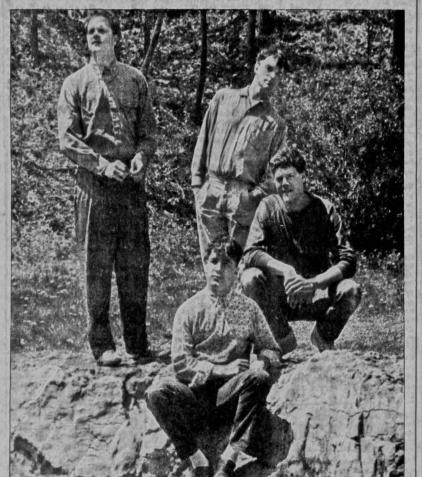

The Fertile Crescents have managed to become one of the finer local rock acts. Although the band likes to keep things simple, the group's sound has evolved through the use of an added horn section, and also through the use of minor guitar gimmickry. The rapid improvement made by the group is similar to that made by Cruisin/The Ones in 1979-80.

Although the Fertile Crescents play primarily cover material, they are unlike practically any other cover band. The band's repertoire includes such post 1977 rock gems as "Standards" by The Jam, and "Jump Boys" by the Undertones. The group also utilizes recent material from The Cure, The Three O'clock, and The Violent Femmes.

Unfortunately the Fertile Crescents are breaking up just when they are reaching their full potential. So tonight marks the last chance to see one of Iowa City's greater musical surprises of the year. Get there early and fill up the dance floor.

Entertainment today

At the Bijou

Slow Attack. The lowa City premiere of German director Reinhard Hauff's 1981 story of an ex-con who wants to write a novel. Starring Kurt (Berlin Alexanderplatz) Raab. At 7 p.m.

• Stage Fright. Hitchcock returned to an English setting for the first time in more than a decade to make this 1950 murder mystery. Starring Jane Wyman, but Marlene Dietrich steals the show. At 9 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Love hits the rocks tonight as "Cheers" (NBC at 8 p.m.) closes shop for the season. Sam and Diane's stormy romance collapses in tonight's cliffhanger. Will love bloom again? Tune in next fall. And if that weren't enough bad news. Joyce serves notice on Frank and walks out of their marriage on "Hill Street Blues" (NBC at 9 p.m.). Meanwhile, an actor knows that his career is on the skids when he is profiled on shows like "Celebrities ... Where Are they Now?" (ABC at 8 p.m.) Included in the search of the once-famous is a reunion of the cast

• Bette Midler, Ken Wahl, Rip Torn and director Don Seigel all agree that making Jinxed (Cinemax-13 at 9 p.m.) was one of the worst experiences of their careers. But despite their animosity toward the film and each other, the movie itself is pretty good; a quirky and unpredictable comedy about murder, suicide and high stakes gambling Midler seems to be having more fun in Bette Midler is Divine Madness (Cinemax-13 at 12:10 a.m.), an energetic concert film directed by Michael Ritchie.

KSUI (91.7 mHz), 8:30 p.m. The Cleveland Orchestra is guest conducted by Toronto Symphony music director Andrew Davis tonight in a program featuring works by Mendelssohn (his overture, "The Hebrides"), Beethoven (the Piano Concerto No. 5 in E-flat, Op. 73, the "Emperor," with Radu Lupu as soloist) and Rachmaninov (the Symphonic Dances).

The Fertile Crescents are playing their farewell performance (honest! one of the guys is going to practice law, of all things) at the Crow's Nest tonight. Come on down and get funky.

• The Grass Roots are playing a benefit concert at Regina High School Gymnasium tonight at 8. It's sponsored by the Iowa City Jaycees (probably the only people in town who remember them) and all proceeds go to help fight muscular dystrophy. Tickets are $5.50; $2.75 for children under 18.

• Rich Amelang brings his gigantic eclecticism into the intimate spaces of the Sanctuary tonight through Saturday.
