Student leaders to submit alternative tuition plan

By Kirk Brown
Chief Reporter
and Marcia Festen
Staff Writer

UI student leaders said Monday they may submit alternative proposals calling for smaller tuition increases next year than the approximately $7.4 million increase recommended by the state Board of Regents executive secretary Friday.

Regents Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey's recommendation to the board this month will call for tuition increases of 6 percent for resident students and 12 percent for non-residents.

Student leaders stressed they will try to present the board with an alternative tuition increase proposal in an attempt to reason with the regents rather than relying on impassioned protests as in the past.

"If we make a reasonable proposal, there is a chance for success," said senate treasurer Joel Mintzer. "Screaming won't work. We can't say, 'if you do it (tuition increases), we'll burn down buildings.'" However, student leaders said it will be several days before any alternative proposals are formulated because they need time to analyze the 55-page report that accompanied Richey's recommendation. "It is hard to say if 6 or 12 percent is good or bad, we have to go through the report," said UI Student Senate President Lawrence Kitsmiller.

KITSMILLER ALSO said the proposed increases are higher than the 4 to 10 percent increase he anticipated following conversations with Richey this summer.

Mike Skinner, chairman of United Students of Iowa's legislative committee, said his group will attempt to coordinate with student leaders from Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa to put together an alternative proposal.

Board President S.J. Brownlee said he believes the board will view any proposals submitted by student leaders with an open mind. "In the past the board has made some small changes to them (proposed tuition increases) on occasion."

But Regent Art Neu said lagging state appropriations will give the board little choice but to increase tuition by some amount.

"We are between a rock and hard place," said Neu. "The board will look at these increases carefully, but I don't think they will be horrified."

RICHEY DEFENDED the size of the tuition increases he is recommending to the board, pointing out that the $7.4 million increase is less than half the size of the $15.4 million tuition increase the regents approved last fall for the 1984-85 academic year.

But UI Collegiate Associations Council President Larry Lassister said he doesn't believe comparing the two increases is valid.

"Last year was outlandish. To compare it (this year's proposed increase) to that would be unfair," he said.

Mintzer agreed with Lassister that the regents should not compare this year's proposed tuition hike with previous increases. "Last year was more than twice too much ... We can't let the regents get away with that argument," he said.

Student leaders also warned if tuition continues to climb every year, some students — especially those not living in Iowa — may not be able to afford to attend classes at Iowa's three state universities.

Noting the dilemmas of two UI student senators who were unable to return to the UI because of financial reasons, Lassister said "it will be very sad" if this trend continues.

HOWEVER, BOTH Brownlee and Neu said the regents have not adopted a policy of raising tuition every year, despite annual increases since 1981 and during 10 of the last 13 years.

Skinner said another disadvantage to the proposed tuition increase is that See Tuition, page 5

Pulling for the Pope

People in Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupre, Quebec, who gathered to meet Pope John Paul II Monday, pull at his robe as he moves through a crowd of Indians during the second day of his visit to Canada. Traveling through the country by limousine and train, the pope struck out against discrimination by calling for increased medical aid for the handicapped and legislation to guarantee the political power of the native population.

Whiteway owner closes up shop

Special to The Daily Iowan

Whiteway Super Market, 212½ S. Clinton St., closed Saturday for an indefinite period of time, opening the possibility that a mini-liquor store might locate at the site.

The building that houses Whiteway's, the 12-unit Whiteway Apartments and Shear Moves hairstyling shop, is owned by Investors Unlimited. The Iowa Beer & Liquor Department received a bid from Investors Unlimited two weeks ago for a proposed mini-liquor store to be located at 212 S. Clinton St.

Bids from four other firms were received by the department to open a liquor store elsewhere in the Iowa City area. A decision on which bid will be accepted will not be made until late November.

"I THINK OUR location would be excellent for that type of store," said Max Selzer, one of the three partners in Investors Unlimited. "It's close to the parking ramps and it's close to the downtown pedestrian mall area."

Selzer said he was surprised to hear that Whiteway's, Iowa City's last downtown grocery store, had closed its doors.

Mervin Rotter, Whiteway's owner and manager, closed his business Saturday without letting his employees know about it until the day of closing, according to Leslie Larson, a tenant in Whiteway Apartments.

Other tenants at Whiteway Apartments said they saw Rotter giving away food before the closing of the store Saturday.

Whiteway Apartments manager Dave Baker speculated the store, which he said was known for its meat section, closed "because the store hadn't changed with the times."

Keith Kafer, executive vice president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said, "I was quite surprised that Whiteway's had closed. I had heard rumors from time to time that they might close, but I didn't expect to hear it now."

KAFER SPECULATED that another grocery store would probably not open at the site. "At one time they were the only game in town. Now with the number of supermarkets, 7-Elevens and other convenience stores, there are several places in the area where you can buy groceries."

Rotter could not be reached for comment Monday. Selzer said he was not sure of the expiration date of Rotter's lease with Investors Unlimited.

Construction work that began this summer is still continuing at the site. Selzer said Investors Unlimited is "still in the process of remodeling the front of the building."

Councilors: Sewer firm pick limited

By Dawn Ummel
Chief Reporter

The Iowa City Council Monday informally approved the selection of Metcalf & Eddy Inc. to design a new sewage treatment facility for the city, but some councilors questioned why the council was not able to choose from more firms that were reviewed by the city's Wastewater Facility Committee.

The Iowa City Council reviewed six plans Monday provided by local architects to solve off-street parking problems and to utilize a vacant lot downtown. Page 5

"I thought the idea was to get it down to a couple of firms and have a mild recommendation" from the committee before the council made the final decision, Councilor Clemens Erdahl said.

The committee recommended Metcalf & Eddy Inc. of Arlington Heights, Ill., after interviews with two other engineering firms and inspections of sewage facilities already designed by the competing firms.

LOCAL BUSINESSMAN Noel Willis, a member of the selection committee, told the council that Metcalf & Eddy and another competing firm — The Parsons Corp. — both provided $30 million schematic plans to improve the city's sewage treatment facility.

Willis said both concepts were similar to a $46 million design proposed by local engineers Veenstra & Kimm Inc. Engineers and Planners that the council in December voted against starting.

Erdahl said he "didn't like it when we get in a situation where so much is decided before it comes to us."

However, he said, "Less than a year ago, three of us (councilors) were courting disaster because we were ready to go with" the Veenstra & Kimm plan that would have wound up costing the city $16 million more than the latest design plans.

Other councilors also expressed surprise that the council was being asked to approve a final selection instead of choosing the better of two firms.

Clemens Erdahl: "I thought the idea was to get it (sewage treatment facility design) down to a couple of firms and have a mild recommendation."

"I thought the council would be involved in the selection process between two firms," Councilor Larry Baker said.

Committee member Dick Gibson, UI director of Facilities Planning, said the committee had saved the council "a lot of time and energy" by making a final recommendation to the council.

CITY MANAGER Neal Berlin reminded the council that if it was not satisfied with Metcalf & Eddy after negotiations began with the firm, the council could ask the committee to investigate The Parsons Corp. again.

Councilor Bill Ambrisco said he felt "very comfortable with where we stand today" and approved the committee's recommendation.

Councilor Ernest Zuber also expressed his support of the committee's selection. He said the council should "treat them the same as any committee established by the council and go along with their recommendations."

Although Baker asked if both Metcalf & Eddy and The Parsons Corp. could design final renovation plans for the city's sewage treatment system, See Sewer, page 5

New taxes head Mondale's deficit reduction plans

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Walter Mondale, telling President Reagan "enough is enough," Monday presented a four-year plan to slash budget deficits by slowing the military buildup and increasing taxes, mainly on the wealthiest Americans.

At the Democratic presidential campaign, Mondale said 75 percent of the new taxes would be paid by the upper 14 percent of the wage earners. A family of four making $100,000 would pay $2,400 more a year in taxes, they said, while the same family earning $30,000 would pay about $95 more.

The tax would amount to $85 billion a year by 1989, Mondale's last year in office if elected.

All money raised by the tax hikes would go into a trust fund that could be used only to reduce deficits. Mondale said he would also institute a "pay as you go" plan to forbid new spending unless there was a source of revenue to pay for it.

SAYING THE PEOPLE have the right to know what to expect next year before they go to the polls on Nov. 6, Mondale challenged Reagan to divulge his budget plan.

"Enough is enough, Mr. President," he said. "You can't hide your red ink with blue smoke and mirrors. Let's tell the truth about the future."

Mondale said Reagan is following a strategy of "saving all the bad news for after the election."

"We will find out after the election that he wants to go after Social Security, Medicare, student loans, school lunches, the environment and the rest," he said.

Reagan, asked about Mondale's plan during an Oval Office photo session, dismissed it. "It's nothing new," he said. As for his plans for tackling the deficit problem, the president said,

"All the things we've been trying to do since 1981."

REAGAN'S POLITICAL adviser, Lyn Nofziger, was much tougher, saying Mondale's plan is "a recovery-killing concoction...ready-made to produce a recession that will throw millions of Americans out of work again, pile new and higher taxes on the backs of the average citizen and make deficits higher, not lower."

When fully implemented in 1989, the plan would cut the projected annual budget deficit of $263 billion by two-thirds, to $86 billion, roughly half what it is forecast to be this year.

Key elements of the deficit reduction would be a $25 billion annual cut in the growth rate of the Pentagon budget and $85 billion in new taxes in the final year. Mondale also said he would add $30 billion in social program spending, in part to restore cuts made under Reagan.

EVEN WITH the $25 billion cut, the defense budget would still grow at a rate of 3 percent to 4 percent a year — about half the rate Reagan favors.

Mondale would modify the 1981 Reagan tax cut program that slashed federal revenue by an estimated $750 billion over five years for those with higher incomes.

Indexing — adjusting tax tables to account for inflation — would be restricted for families making more than $25,000 only to the amount that inflation exceeds 4 percent. Inflation has been running below that level this year.

There also would be a 10 percent tax surcharge for families with an income more than $100,000, and a minimum 15 percent tax imposed on all businesses.

Police open fire on Hindus

HYDERABAD, India — A child died in a bomb explosion and police shot and killed three rioters Monday, pushing the death toll to 14 in two days of Hindu-Moslem violence in two Indian states, officials said.

Police opened fire when the Hindus began lighting fires and tossing rocks. Officials said three Hindus were killed and nine were wounded. Authorities said 20 policemen were hurt in rock-throwing by the Hindu mob, 20 suspects were taken into custody and a three-day curfew was put into effect.

Peruvian rebels raid villages

AYACUCHO, Peru — Leftist guerrillas armed with submachine guns raided two Andean towns and killed at least 14 peasants who had formed vigilante squads to fight them, survivors said Monday.

The survivors, who Monday reached the Andean state capital of Ayacucho in search of medical aid, said the Maoist "Shining Path" guerrillas were punishing the villagers for forming vigilante "self-defense" bands and for working with government troops in the area.

Iraq proves its strength

KUWAIT — Iraq said its warplanes struck a "large naval target" Monday near Iran's vital Kharg Island oil export terminal in the Persian Gulf to prove its ability to block Iranian trade in the nearly 4-year-old war.

The war claim came a day after Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Iraq's pledges to destroy Kharg Island were "futile" and vowed to keep fighting until Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was overthrown.

Eastern chief defies Soviets

BONN, West Germany — Rumanian President Nikolai Ceausescu, again defying Soviet pressure, will visit Bonn despite abrupt cancellations of trips to West Germany by East German and Bulgarian leaders, officials said Monday.

Rumania, an East bloc maverick that often takes an independent stance in foreign policy, was the only Soviet ally to defy the Los Angeles Olympics boycott and attend the games.

Nicaraguan labor signs pact

Nicaragua's leftist government secured an agreement Monday from labor leaders to resolve disputes at the workplace without strikes because such job actions have "no place" in revolutionary Nicaragua.

"The strike is a conquest of the workers to put pressure on capitalist exploiters," junta member Victor Tirado told the third national assembly of the Sandinista Workers Central. "But in our situation, it is not correct."

Filipinos face new disaster

Thousands of villagers fled their homes Monday to escape molten lava flowing from an Indonesian volcano and a separate volcanic eruption in the Philippines hurled fiery boulders and threatened villages in that nation's second natural disaster in a week.

After the worst typhoon in 30 years smashed into the Philippines, killing 1,475 people, the eruption sent flaming boulders rolling down the peak's northwestern slopes for 2,000 feet, incinerating trees along its path and sending puffs of smoke skyward, visible for miles.

Mount St. Helens threatens

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Workers near Mount St. Helens were evacuated Monday after U.S. Geological Survey crews flying over the volcano confirmed it has entered a new dome-building eruption.

The lava dome in the southwest Washington volcano has been growing over the past few days, while rockfalls and earthquakes have increased, geologists said.

Taylor's attorneys ask to withdraw

By Patricia Reuter
Staff Writer

Attorneys for Jerry Taylor, former assistant editor of The Hawkeye Review, filed a request in Johnson County District Court Monday asking the court to allow them to withdraw as his counsel.

According to court records, attorneys Edward M. Blando and David L. Baker of Cedar Rapids say they agreed to represent Taylor only during the time a temporary injunction was being sought against him by former Hawkeye Review editor-in-chief Jeffrey Renander.

The injunction was requested by Renander to prevent Taylor from having access to corporate assets while a dispute over the administration of The Hawkeye Review was in litigation.

Renander filed a lawsuit Aug. 3 accusing Taylor of illegally firing him as editor and chairman of the board of the conservative campus newspaper.

Blando and Baker also filed a motion Monday asking for additional time for Taylor to find a new attorney and to answer Renander's charge of wrongdoing.

A hearing was scheduled for Friday on a motion for default due to Taylor's failure to answer the charge by the Aug. 28 deadline. A hearing on Taylor's attorneys' request to withdraw as counsel and the request for more time is scheduled at the same time.

Courts

A Solon, Iowa, man made an initial appearance in Johnson County District Court Sunday on charges of assault and burglary.

Michael Ross Scherich, 19, was charged Saturday with assault causing bodily injury and first-degree burglary.

According to the police report filed with the court, Scherich allegedly entered the Solon residence of Bill Hall and was confronted by two teenage girls.

The report states Scherich told one of the girls, who had filed criminal charges against him in another county, that he would leave the residence if she would drop those charges. When she refused, the report states Scherich hit her with a closed fist and pushed her, causing the girl to suffer bruises and abrasions.

Scherich appeared before Johnson County Magistrate Stephen Gerard II who released him from custody under supervision of the 6th Judicial District Department of Adult Corrections.

Jacque Marie Thomas, 30, and Jon Kevin Kreiter, 32, both of Solon, Iowa, made initial appearances Saturday in Johnson County District Court on charges of possession of cocaine.

According to court records, police observed Thomas kneeling in front of Kreiter in the alley of the 200 block of Iowa Avenue Friday holding a vial containing a white powdery substance under his left nostril. The records state tests showed the powder was cocaine.

Kreiter was released from custody on his own recognizance. Thomas was released after posting $500 bond.

Spencer W. Wert, 58, of Geneseo, Ill., appeared before District Associate Judge John R. Sladek in Johnson County District Court Monday on a charge of carrying weapons.

According to the police report filed with the court, Wert was stopped Sunday by an Iowa State Patrol officer on Interstate 80 at the Tiffin interchange and charged with speeding, failing to dim his headlights and operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

After Wert's arrest, the report states, the officer searched Wert's car and found two pistols concealed under the driver's seat. One of the guns was a .25 caliber loaded automatic pistol.

The officer reported that when Wert was standing next to the car he threw something into the ditch at the side of the roadway. Wert told police he had thrown away ammunition clips for both guns.

Wert was released from the Johnson County Jail after posting $2,000 bond.

Israel on Campus group to apologize for pamphlet

The Israel on Campus student group will apologize to the UI Student Senate at Thursday night's meeting for distributing a flyer last week that allegedly portrayed Arabs as terrorists.

Following complaints from members of the General Union of Palestine Students, the student senate decided to warn Israel on Campus concerning the flyer at last week's meeting.

"It was just a mistake; we should have said this (cartoon) is meant to represent the PLO. It was not recognizable this is what we meant," said Todd Winer, co-president of Israel on Campus.

However, Winer said he will also alert the student senate that Israel on Campus has complained about literature published by both the Palestine group and New Wave, another UI student group, for several semesters.

"It's a problem with all these negative group attitudes. We are running into a problem with New Wave and GUPS handing out propaganda," he said. "We have to act on it; we can't let it go by and let people think it's true."

Winer said his group is completely opposed to the Palestine and New Wave groups and will do anything to stop this propaganda.

Liquor stores to open at 8 on football days

Football tailgaters will be able to buy their favorite liquors two hours earlier than usual during home football Saturdays this fall, following a decision by the Iowa State Beer and Liquor Control department to open local liquor stores at 8 a.m.

Judy Seib, administrative assistant to the department, said Iowa City store number 52, 1922 Keokuk St., and Coralville store number 200, U.S. Highway 6 West, will open two hours earlier this year on home football Saturdays to help serve the football crowds. The stores are normally open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.; they will continue to close at the normal time.

The stores opened early last Saturday for the Iowa-Iowa State game and will also open early on Sept. 15, Sept. 29, Oct. 20, Nov. 3 and Nov. 10.

Voters to decide school levy's fate

By leen Kelly
Staff Writer

Today's school board elections will determine whether the Iowa City School District will have $10 million to spend on physical improvements over the next 10 years. Voters will renew or reject a 20-year-old, 67½ cent levy that costs the average Iowa City property owner about $30 a year. The levy, which comes up for voter approval every 10 years, can be used for the purchase, upkeep and remodeling of grounds and buildings.

"We want to emphasize that this tax is already in effect, and the voters would just renew it," Superintendent David Cronin said.

THE DISTRICT established a steering committee and speakers' bureau for the levy to improve its chances of renewal. District administrators are not expecting a major push against the amendment, as "it seems any formal opposition would have surfaced by now," Cronin said.

Philip Leff, a local attorney who is a member of the steering committee, told the audience at the "Meet the Candidates" forum last week: "In order to meet those kinds of expenses and needs (for buildings, grounds and equipment) the voters of the district have two choices.

"One is to approve this levy, or you may elect to support a bond issue in which the bonds are sold and the school district in fact borrows money to fund particular projects from time to time," Leff said.

"There are no other alternatives for funding these improvements," he added.

LEFF TOLD the audience that borrowing the money "is far more expensive" than keeping the 67½ cent levy. He said the district had just paid off a bond issue of approximately $4 million, which was raised to more than $7 million by the interest charges.

The school board has listed some projects as priorities for the next 10 years if the levy is renewed. They include spending funds on the West High vocational facility, the City High gymnasium, Kirkwood kindergarten, Hoover media center, a payment on the physical plant, refurbishing Lincoln school and Southeast Junior High, and an auditorium for West High.

Committee on T.A. union makes 'steady' progress

By Marcia Fester
Special to The Daily Iowan

A UI Graduate Student Senate ad-hoc committee exploring the possibility of unionizing UI teaching assistants is finally "getting things off the ground" following delays last spring.

"We don't expect overnight results. We are like moles, moving slowly and methodically," trying to "hash out how one forms a union in this context," said UI History T.A. Tom Smith, a committee coordinator.

The idea of unionization for T.A.s was brought up last spring during controversy over state budget cuts in education. At that time a survey was sent out to the graduate student body for feedback on issues concerning unionization.

"It was thought by many graduate students that some kind of body or association was needed to take care of the teaching assistants' interests ... something going beyond what graduate student senate is chartered to do," said UI American Studies T.A. Andy Martin, graduate student senate president.

THE SURVEY WAS sent to many university departments, and the response was overwhelmingly in favor of forming some sort of union, Martin said.

The initial goal of the committee is to get the T.A.s from the various departments together to sort out how many people feel unionization is a good idea.

"It can be quite a struggle in a university context to find and contact as many T.A.s as possible," Smith said. "There is not much contact with people from the various departments — we have literally dozens of working places within the university."

SMITH PLANS to gather graduate students together within the next few weeks before the unionization process begins. At that time officers will be elected and committee members will sign cards of intent.

Then the committee will contact federal labor officials and the UI administration, draw up a constitution and hold elections. Currently a local labor lawyer is helping the committee lay the groundwork.

This process "tends to take a long time; it is very grueling work," Smith said. "I feel we have some outstanding people (on the committee) and some strong and legitimate grievances. We have solid contacts with a lot of people in university departments and a lot of support from people on graduate student senate."

"I think it's premature to comment on it," James Jakobsen, associate dean of the UI Graduate College, said of the unionization proceedings.

CAC raps proposed tuition hike

By Karen Burns
Special to The Daily Iowan

The UI Collegiate Associations Council heatedly debated how to respond to the approximately $17.4 million tuition increase that will be recommended to the state Board of Regents next month, but the group came up with no concrete plans.

Monday night's meeting on how to counter the increases. "We need to present (to the regents) an intelligent, reasonable response with documented facts and figures," said Larry Lassiter, CAC president, of Board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey's proposed 6 percent tuition increase for Iowa residents and 12 percent increase for non-residents.

However, the members could not agree on what action should be. "I'm all for trying to stop it," said CAC member Nicholas Humy, a UI literature teaching assistant, "because if you don't scream, they'll continue to make them (tuition increases)."

Jeff Devitt, CAC vice president, said the CAC should send the right signals to the regents. "We should react in proportion to the increase," he said.

THE 6 PERCENT difference between in-state and out-of-state tuition hikes was attacked by some members as being unfair, while others defended it.

"If you want to promote the state, you can't increase tuition (for non-residents)," Tracy Stoen said. "You've got to bring outsiders to help Iowa grow."

Mike Reck said he likes to see students from Chicago, Indiana and other areas attending the UI, adding that his education would be "lessened" without them.

However, Dale Herbeck, a T.A. in the UI Communication and Theatre Arts Department, argued that Iowans pay taxes for the universities, qualifying them for a lower tuition.

A CAC member who asked not to be identified suggested the proposed increases should be used to cap enrollment at the "overcrowded" regents universities, because the UI currently has approximately 5,000 more students than it can accommodate.

CAC MEMBER Cecilia Ham, said the tuition hike would keep the poor from receiving an education and suggested raising enrollment standards instead to "keep the mediocre students out, not the poor students."

The group must agree on what action will be taken on the matter before mid-October, when the regents will vote on the proposed increase.

In other business, the CAC unanimously voted to pass a charter recognizing the CAC Book Coop — the used book-exchange store located in the Union — as a UI student group. The charter is necessary for work study and tax purposes, Lassiter explained.

THE COUNCIL also passed an amendment to the charter to prohibit the store from selling books for a profit.

In addition, the council appointed UI student Paul Thompson as the new director of the UI Course Evaluation Commission, which provides students with class information beyond what is contained in the Schedule of Courses and the general catalogue.

Thompson told the CAC members that the commission plans to place the additional class information in a computer program accessible to all UI students.

In the past, the material has been published in book form, which is useful for one semester before it needs to be updated, he said. He said the computer will make updating easier and less expensive than printing a new book each semester.

Last urban renewal parcel needs parking, council told

By Dawn Ummel
Chief Reporter

If the Iowa City Council wants to use the last parcel of the downtown urban renewal project for commercial and retail development, part of the land must contain a parking facility, a local consultant told the council Monday night.

"You'll kill a developer looking at that site without some parking facility" planned for it, said Rick Rich of Rich and Associates.

The council reviewed six conceptual plans provided by local architects Hansen Lind Meyer and Rich and Associates to solve the city's downtown off-street parking problem and to utilize a 45,000-square-foot vacant lot directly east of the new downtown Holiday Inn.

"Whatever use you put in (the vacant lot), you don't have a lot of options open for parking," Rich said. "You have to look at where to park people that use a facility" on the urban renewal parcel.

THE PLANS developed by the architects included commercial space on the parcel with parking stacked on top of the commercial building, a separate parking facility connected to the neighboring Dubuque Street parking ramp, or a parking garage built above Burlington Street and connected to buildings south of Burlington Street.

"We have an opportunity to be a little innovative here on our last urban renewal parcel," Mayor John McDonald said. "I'm for parking, but I don't want to get the cart before the horse" by developing the parcel after parking is put on the lot.

The city has already planned a two-level addition — 180 parking spaces — to the Dubuque Street parking ramp at a cost of about $1 million.

"The role parking plays on that (urban renewal) site will only be determined after we have finished a study" of the downtown parking needs, City Manager Neal Berlin said. The city is currently working on that study.

"We'll ultimately have to decide how to develop the parcel and then the parking afterwards," Berlin said.

COUNCILOR BILL AMBRISCO asked whether it would be possible to build an underground parking facility in the area.

"The basic underground garage costs more (than garages above ground) for pure construction," Rich said. Costs are higher for underground lots, he said, because of the need for ventilation and security.

"People perceptually have a problem dealing with underground garages" because of the security problem, he said.

All the plans shown to the council would take away the Dubuque Street exit from the Dubuque Street parking ramp.

"I do like the concept of using Dubuque Street strictly as an entrance," McDonald said. "With the (Holiday Inn) hotel and the (Hawkeye State) bank, that short little block is going to become a nightmare for us."

By Colleen Kelly
Staff Writer

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce said it will guarantee Iowa City will have an eight-lane track for the Junior Olympics.

The Iowa City School Board said Monday night it will allow the chamber and the Iowa City Council to fund the addition of two lanes to the six-lane track at West High.

"Our top priority is to guarantee a track so that there is no chance that the Junior Olympics will not come to Iowa City," said Chamber President Ernest Lehman.

The Junior Olympics will be held in Iowa City Aug. 5-11, 1985 and 4,000 athletes are expected to participate. The event is expected to attract more than 10,000 visitors to Iowa City and bring in close to $1 million to local businesses.

LEHMAN SAID the chamber has estimated the addition to the track will cost about $40,000. The chamber has offered to pay 50 percent of the cost to add the two lanes, and Mayor John McDonald said the council will pay the remaining half.

McDonald said the council and the chamber still hope to use a track the UI plans to construct, but the UI will not guarantee the track will be ready for the Junior Olympics.

Several board members expressed concern that the revamped track at West High would bring community pressure to install seating, lights, concessions, rest rooms, scoring and timing devices so that large meets could be held there.

Because the board has long-range plans for installing a similar facility at City High, some members are reluctant to incur "the extra expense of duplicate facilities," said board member David Woodruff.

Hughes in Iowa to fight arms race

CEDAR RAPIDS (UPI) — Former Iowa governor and senator Harold Hughes, armed with a videotape describing what a nuclear attack would do to Iowa, Monday began a four-day swing around Iowa to rail against the nuclear arms race.

Hughes, scheduled to speak in 11 of 15 Iowa's largest cities this week, urged Iowans to support candidates dedicated to ending the arms race.

"My 1968 Senate race was decided by 1.5 votes per precinct," he said. "Each citizen makes a difference."

The four-day trip was organized by the Stop the Arms Race Committee of Iowa, a bipartisan group that has endorsed Tom Harkin for the U.S. Senate and Berkley Bedell and Jim Leach for the House of Representatives.

Iowa City has been designated as one stop during the week-long tour. Hughes will show the videotape following a speech at the home of Jim and Mary Larew, 215 Wolf Ave., at 8 p.m. today.

Hughes, who said "exorbitant" military spending must stop because it is causing "sky-high deficits and interest rates," also announced distribution of a 17-minute videotape called, "Who Can Give Us Hope?"

"At this very moment, all of Iowa's cities over 10,000 or 20,000 population probably are targeted," he said. "By the State Department's calculations, if the 13 Iowa cities over 25,000 were hit with 1-megaton bombs, over 1 million Iowans would be killed or injured outright."

Sewer

Berlin said that would produce a "tremendous amount of duplication" because the two companies provided similar plans.

"I'm optimistic based on the work done so far," Berlin said of Metcalf & Eddy's plan.

Berlin said improving the sewage treatment facility would consist of "basically constructing a new plant on the existing site."

IN OTHER BUSINESS relating to the sewer treatment plant project, the council delayed approving the selection of Boettcher and Co. of Denver, Colo., as financial consultants to the city in matters relating to the sewage treatment project because another consultant wants to be considered by the council.

Mayor John McDonald said Dain Bosworth Inc. contacted him Monday wanting to present its position as financial consultants.

"They were unaware we were this close to getting financial consultants and they want an opportunity to make a presentation," McDonald said.

Tuition

the diversity of the UI student body could be reduced if non-resident students continue to be burdened with disproportionately higher tuition increases than residents.

Mintzer predicted if tuition becomes too expensive for non-resident students, the UI will become "too Iowan."

According to Mintzer, when he first enrolled at the UI two years ago, tuition for non-residents was about "twice as much as what residents had to pay. Now it is almost three times as much."

Although Richey said Sunday last year's tuition increase did not decrease the number of non-resident students attending Iowa's three public universities, his report notes the financial burden on these students is increasing.

"Non-resident students pay a substantially larger share of the average instructional costs than students who are Iowa residents, and this share will increase due to the proposed tuition rates," states Richey's report.

In an effort to offset the effect of the tuition increase on students, Richey's report also recommends the regents increase state-supported financial aid programs by 9.8 percent for the 1985-86 academic year.

Survey paints rosy job portrait

By Wendy Rosche
Special to The Daily Iowan

Iowa City, like the rest of the nation, should enjoy a stable employment market during the last quarter of 1984, according to a recent employment survey by Manpower temporary help agency.

Fred Fluegel, manager of the Iowa City Manpower office, said 30 firms in Iowa City are called every three months when they are conducting the survey. Those figures are then fed into the international headquarters for Manpower to create the nationwide poll.

"In our area, 19 percent of the employers polled planned staff increases during October, November and December, while another 5 percent felt they would decrease employment. Another 76 percent anticipated no change," Fluegel said.

During the fourth quarter of 1983, 17 percent of the employers in this area planned to increase their work force, while 3 percent expected reductions in employment.

MAYOR JOHN McDONALD said the Iowa City area remains stable, in part, because of the UI. He said the number of people employed by the UI, along with the number of students, makes for a "pretty stable economy."

Keith Kafer, executive vice president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said many Iowa City industries tend not to be affected by recessions in the economy. Therefore, he said, the Iowa City employment picture has remained stable over the years.

"It indicates that this economy is in good shape and that it will continue that way," Kafer said.

He added that the construction industry in Iowa City will probably remain very stable in contrast to the usual nationwide drop in construction during the fourth quarter of the year.

"The number of jobs from the construction industry has not fluctuated very much in the past few years," Kafer said. Much of the construction work in the Iowa City area has been on UI projects and new housing units for students.

FLUEGEL SAID construction in the Iowa City area is above the national average.

"Iowa City is really a hotspot as far as construction is concerned," Fluegel said. "This is an area which has low unemployment, has a good economy, has a lot of culture; it has a lot of sophistication, certainly has sports programs, we've got youth by the bucketload. What more do you want out of a place to live?"

Tom Bullington, manager of the Iowa City Job Service office, said he has seen a recent increase in the number of available part-time jobs. He said many employers increase their work force in the fall as UI students come back to school.

ACCORDING TO Bullington, retail, clerical, janitorial and service occupations have recently been hiring in the Iowa City area. Bullington said there are also jobs available for skilled workers, such as mechanics and carpenters.

Bullington said part of the growth in construction jobs comes from students who quit their construction jobs in order to return to school.

The national survey conducted by Manpower indicated lower planned increases in employment for the Midwest. The largest projected rise in employment is expected in the South, as 30 percent of the employers polled planned to increase their staff.

In the Midwest, 24 percent of the employers surveyed planned a staff increase. This figure was down 2 percent from last year's poll and down 7 percent from this summer's forecast.

The Midwest tied with the West for the largest number of employers planning a decrease over the fourth quarter. Ten percent of the Midwestern and Western employers said they expected staff reductions.

Health library marks anniversary

By Rob Kincaid
Special to The Daily Iowan

Tours, special demonstrations of equipment and a birthday party complete with cake and cider will highlight the 10th anniversary of UI Health Sciences Library's dedication this week.

The anniversary celebration began Monday and will continue through Friday, marking the union of health-related libraries on the UI campus in September 1974, according to head librarian for Health Sciences Library David Curry.

Tours of the facility will be held Wednesday and Friday mornings at 9 and today and Thursday at 3 p.m., Curry said.

IN ADDITION, during the week, "We'll have special demonstrations of on-line database bibliographical searching," Curry said, adding it would be beneficial for UI medical students to learn to use the system for research purposes.

The demonstrations will take place today, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. and also from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. throughout the week.

Included in today's activities will be the announcement and presentation of the first annual John Martin Award for a UI medical student who has written the "best paper on the history of medicine." The award will be presented by William Bean, professor emeritus in the UI internal medicine department, during a History of Medicine Society meeting.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY with cake and cider will follow the Wednesday morning tour. "It's just a fun sort of activity. You don't have to listen to a talk or anything," Curry said.

Curry invites students to attend the birthday celebration, which will follow the approximately 30-minute tours. The birthday event will be held on the grounds of the library. In case of rain, the event will be held in the library's gallery.

A videotape, "Body Image and Sexuality as Affected by Cancer and Its Treatment," will be shown Thursday at noon and 12:45 p.m. "Before and after the video tape, we will have a new video disk that we will be demonstrating," Curry said.

FRIDAY, THE FINAL DAY of the celebration, the winner of the week's contest — to correctly identify the number of health issue reports written by UI authors during the 1983-84 academic year — will be announced.

Manatt questions GOP fund use

DES MOINES (UPI) — The campaign of Sen. Roger Jepsen and the State GOP headquarters may be accepting illegal contributions from the National Republican Senatorial Committee, Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt charged Monday.

Manatt, at a Des Moines news conference, charged that the National Republican Senatorial Committee has transferred a total of $64,402 to Jepsen since Jan. 1, 1979, to pay for a host of campaign expenses.

Manatt said those funds went to pay for such things as recording studios, satellite hookups to television stations and political ads and said the expenses appear directly linked to the campaign.

In addition, Manatt charged that the committee has sent another $110,950 to the Iowa Republican party since Jan. 1, 1983.

MANATT SAID none of those transfers appear on reports the state party must file with the Federal Election Commission.

He said the transfers of money create "a pattern of deception," and he said the same types of transfers are occurring in 21 other U.S. Senate campaigns the Republican Senatorial Committee has targeted this year.

"The state might be on a Watergate watershed with the campaign of Senator Jepsen," Manatt said. "Let's not have an Iowa Senate election where we re-visit the sins of Watergate."

Manatt said the campaign contributions appear to be in excess of Federal Election Commission limits and that the absence of the contributions on the state party and the Jepsen committee's disclosure statements appears to be a violation of FEC reporting laws.

He would not say that the contributions were illegal, but said only that they are "violating the spirit of the Watergate reform campaign financing laws."

JEPSEN CAMPAIGN staffers denied any wrongdoing but declined further comment on Manatt's allegations.

State GOP Chairman Rolf Craft called Manatt's charges a smokescreen.

Also in Iowa, Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., known as the father of the 55 mph effort, Monday urged members of a highway group to re-double their efforts for passage of a bill mandating a national drinking age of 21.

Howard, chairman of the Public Works and Transportation Committee, was the keynote speaker during opening day activities at the annual meeting of the National Association of Governors' Highway Safety Representatives.

A vote for the future

Iowa City voters will be deciding today whether to approve a 67½-cent levy that will go toward the purchase, upkeep and remodeling of grounds and buildings in the Iowa City School District.

The levy, which will cost the average Iowa City property owner approximately $30 per year, will raise $10 million for these improvements over the next 10 years.

Voters are not voting to approve a new levy but rather to approve the continuation of a tax that has been in effect the past 20 years.

Without the levy, the Iowa City School District would be forced to sell bonds in order to raise capital for any improvements. A recent $4 million project funded by this method actually cost the school district $7 million after it was finally paid off.

The benefits of voting for the levy clearly outweigh the benefits of voting against it. During the next 10 years, the money from the levy would be targeted toward the West High vocational facility, the City High gymnasium, the refurbishing of Lincoln School and Southeast Junior High, among other things.

In light of these facts, Iowa City voters should vote in favor of approving the 67½-cent levy.

How soon we forget

The Iowa Poll, published Sunday in the Des Moines Register, concerned the rehabilitation of Richard Nixon, particularly in the minds of young adults. But what the poll really tells us is that many of these young Americans know nothing about their country's history.

One young man said: "You have to understand that the president that we compare with Nixon is Carter, and there is a real difference to us between Carter and Nixon. When Carter left office, the country was not in the best of shape."

Some older Americans and those who learned in their history class about the period could tell him a number of things. It was in the early 1970s that the trade deficit became a major worry. It was then that loss of American jobs overseas began to cause concern.

It was also then that the first oil shock, the 1973 oil embargo, began an inflationary spiral that raged by the end of the decade and was intensified by the 1979 oil shock. And when Nixon left office, he was in the midst of a constitutional crisis that saw a sitting president having the House of Representative vote articles of impeachment.

Nixon's accomplishments were, in fact, meager. He also allowed Johnson's Great Society programs to continue; for the most part, however, those were not Nixon initiatives. He opened the door to China, after having earlier been one of the leading door slammers. He negotiated arms control with the Soviet Union, but so has every president since Eisenhower except Ronald Reagan.

Carter's list of accomplishments is actually much better. He achieved, at personal political risk, the historic Camp David peace accord between Egypt and Israel. He achieved an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union. He concluded the negotiations for the Panama Canal Treaty and got the treaty through Congress; that treaty was responsible for a slow warming of Latin American countries toward the United States.

He also supported the Great Society social programs, but began an effort to make them more cost-effective. His record on the environment was excellent and included support of alternate sources of energy and a plan to clean up toxic waste dumps. And his human rights policy was, according to human rights groups, responsible for a perceptible easing of human rights violations.

What the poll says, then, is that many Americans, particularly the young, know very little history. When school districts begin to push for better math and science education, they should remember that knowledge of our history gives us the tools to understand our present and to shape our future.

Here's to good friends

Just when there were signs that Iowans were beginning to dry their desire to drink and drive — alcohol-related traffic deaths fell 51 percent in the first half of 1984 — the agency that governs the state's liquor monopoly, the Iowa Beer and Liquor Control Council, is threatening to change its name to the Sales Council.

Before many of Friday night's drinkers had sobered, the state's Iowa City and Coralville outlets opened their doors to liquid breakfasts donned in black and gold.

Though liquor is prohibited in Kinnick Stadium, the council felt that because a number of game times have been advanced for television, tailgaters need more time to get drunk. On home game days, fans can now buy booze at 8 a.m.

ISU, UNI, and Drake fans won't get this privilege. Aren't we special? You bet. In each of the last three years, retail liquor sales statewide have fallen, but sales at the Iowa City store have risen.

The move the agency claims is one of "convenience" to customers is really one of profit motivation. "People get drunk enough without additional hours," Iowa City Police Chief Harvey Miller said.

Such is only one of several actions taken by the council of late that demonstrate its increasing inability to simultaneously maximize control and revenues. Gift certificates will soon be available to patrons and a promotional advertising supplement will be published to commemorate the agency's golden anniversary.

So long as it is a state-run monopoly, the system will inherently suffer from inefficiencies — submaximum revenues, unnaturally high prices, limited selection. These are costs the state must accept if it is to ultimately succeed in controlling sales.

But when the state begins actively promoting sales rather than simply providing liquor, it forgets its purpose of controlling alcohol in favor of exploiting its use and its users.

Debaters just want to have fun

FOR ONE SUCH as this writer who has jumped the fence between politics and political commentary, the question comes at least twice a week. "With the heavy politicking getting underway, don't you wish that you were back in the middle of it?"

Until last week I could always answer honestly and fervently: "No!"

But no longer. Behind the thundering rhetoric of the campaign's opening week, we have one of the more interesting exercises of modern American presidential politics — the debate over debates. Within both campaigns and in meetings between Reagan and Mondale staffers, the whys, whys and wherefores of a head-to-head meeting between the two candidates are being thrashed out.

That exercise has been a semipermanent feature of the political process since 1960. Though Johnson and Nixon successfully avoided debating their opponents in 1964, 1968 and 1972, the meetings still took place within the campaigns. One group tried desperately to generate enough public pressure to force a confrontation, while the other schemed just as frantically to come up with a good reason for avoiding it.

IN 1976 and 1980 I had the good fortune to be right in the middle of the process, and it was as fine an exercise in bluffing and conniving as a person could ever hope for. Two of my old adversaries from the Republican side, Dean Burch and Jim Baker, are at it again this year. Since our record is 1-1, I can't help but fantasize about a rubber match.

If there is one single thing that makes debate negotiations so much fun it is that the negotiating strategy, so painstakingly hammered out in advance, is of necessity based upon the flimsiest of assumptions. And in the event itself, a good portion of those assumptions turn out to be wrong.

In 1976, those of us in the Carter camp wanted the first debate to be on domestic rather than foreign policy, figuring that a president and a commander-in-chief enjoyed a natural advantage on the latter. We also wanted Carter to have the last rebuttal, figuring that final impressions were the most important.

We ended up with exactly what we wanted in both cases — and lived to regret it. A technical problem caused us to lose the audio and a good portion of the audience just as Carter began his closing statement. And Carter won the debate on foreign policy but lost the one on domestic policy.

IN SEPTEMBER of 1980, we were eager to debate, as underdogs usually are, but we didn't want John Anderson included. At that time, he was taking three votes from Carter for every one he took from Reagan. Reagan was no more anxious to risk his lead by debating than he is today and was determined to make sure Anderson participated.

That was September. By mid-October, the game had changed completely. The polls were showing the race a dead heat with attitudinal shifts underway that delighted the Carter camp and dismayed our adversaries.

The moment we saw the polling data, we knew what was coming. Reagan would toss John Anderson overboard and accept our oft-repeated challenge of a one-on-one debate. We began to discuss whether there was any way to duck. Perhaps, it was suggested, we should issue a 24-hour ultimatum, hoping that the Reagan people had not seen the polling numbers yet and would fail to take us up on it. In the end, we decided that such a move would be too cute by half.

As it turned out, it wouldn't have made any difference: Reagan accepted our earlier challenge well before 24 hours had passed. As for Anderson, we ended up drawing almost exactly the same number of votes from both candidates.

The other fascinating aspect of debating about debates is the opportunity, so rare in political contests, to sit face-to-face with your adversaries. It is a chance to take their measure, assess their intelligence and flabbiness.

THOUGH THE practical benefits of this close-in observation are ephemeral, the opportunity is so intriguing that both sides invariably come up with a ploy or two designed to test the opposition's mettle under fire.

In 1976, we tabled a demand that the moderator refer to both candidates as "Mister" — none of this pompous "Mr. President" stuff. As expected, the people on the other side hit the ceiling. "Ridiculous, preposterous, asinine," they said. Which, of course, it was. The one exception was Baker, who sat quietly with a faint smile on his face. He saw our calculated provocation for exactly what it was and didn't intend to be taken in.

Though both sides are appropriately close-mouthed about this year's negotiations, it is a sure bet that the same combination of serious horse trading and just-for-the-fun-of-it tomfoolery is underway. And yes, I do have an occasional hankering to be there.

But it's also nice to know that paying the mortgage and keeping groceries on the table don't depend on those flimsy assumptions and half-baked strategies.

Expert tells how to make millions!!

I'VE GOT IT, and I'm going to give it to you absolutely free. A sure-fire way to make a million in the fast-paced, high-rolling world of publishing.

Generic tabloids.

You know tabloids. Those things that block the only entrance to the grocery checkout. "Liz Gains Weight!" "Liz Loses Weight!" "How You Can Gain Liz's Lost Weight!" You've seen them.

But have you read them? Well, I have. It's not the sort of thing you like to admit, but a half hour in line can drive you to desperate measures.

And, okay — I've bought them... once or twice... but only for, you know, research.

My research shows that the stories in these magazines break down into roughly seven categories. Seven easily isolated areas of reader interest. Seven specialized markets ripe for harvesting. Seven ways for anyone — yes, even you — to make a bundle.

Here they are, without cost or obligation, my seven suggestions for generic tabloids. I include titles, helpful tips and titillating headlines.

• "I'll Be..." Astounding animal stories: "Gerbil Tows Tot to Safety." "Doberman Recalls Past Lives." "The Strange Case of the Clairvoyant Canary." Stories must deal with the supernatural or superheroic, to distinguish them from my next category:

• "What a Cat!" Adorable animal stories: "Boy and Dog." "Girl and Cat." "Dog and Cat." "Cat Shares Rattian Basket With Suffolk Sheep." "Mama Cat Raises Orphan Chicks." Good photo possibilities.

• "Did You Hear?" Rumor and innuendo, for people who don't like to mess up their minds with a lot of facts. "What If Mick Married Linda?" "What Does Rock Wear to Bed?"

• "Was My Face Red?" Humiliating experiences. "The Day J.R. Forgot His Lines." "The Night Cher Wishes She Could Forget." Could also include the reader's painful memories: "Gee, I Guess I Should Have Checked." "I'm Sorry, Was That Your Wife?"

• "Go Figure..." Events not explained by ordinary means. "Alphabet Soup Spells Out Ten Commandments." "Wallet Lost at Normandy Appears in Miami Glove Compartment." "Talking Teapots." "Singing Trees." Also anything that spontaneously combusts.

• "Why Bother?" A weekly detailing of the outside forces that run your life and prevent you from achieving fame, fortune or your desired weight. Could include biorhythm, numerology, voodooism and astrology.

There they are. The big seven. Pick one, two or all of them. It's all there, waiting for you — glitter, glamour, glitz.

All you have to do is stoop and scoop it up. Kathy Kyte is an Iowa City writer.

Bad review

To the editor:

I read with some interest Michael Balch's guest opinion (op-ed, Sept. 4-5) concerning The Hawkeye Review, and though I agree that the Human Rights Commission's ruling on the use of faculty and staff mailboxes was fuzzy, I have to disagree with him on other issues.

The first is that The Daily Iowan has a monopoly. Anyone who thinks that has to be in a coma. The town is flooded with publications of all kinds and from everywhere in the world. And a lot of them are free. Check the library.

The second is that The Hawkeye Review is published by a student organization. It is not, just as it is not funded by the Collegiate Associations Council or the Student Senate. The student organization, Students for Traditional American Freedoms, with which it has been associated, is defunct.

None of the people on the Review's editorial board (all one of them) is a student, and in its latest issue, only two (maybe three, but since there are three Tim Millers in the phone book, we'll split the difference) of the twelve people listed as contributors or staff are students.

If the mere presence of an article written by someone who happens to be a student makes The Hawkeye Review a student publication, then what does that make The Des Moines Register, which regularly publishes articles by university students, staff and faculty?

The third is that the presence of The Hawkeye Review encourages "intellectual vitality and integrity," open debate and all that stuff. Insults, threats and slander do not encourage anything but mindless, highly emotional fights.

Anyone who does not know what I am talking about should pick up some back issues and see what they think about "jungle bunny" cartoon figures, jokes to the effect that 11-year-old Samantha Smith should have been on the Korean airliner shot down by the Soviet Union, or the blanket dismissal of everyone to the left of Jeffrey Renander as a drug-addicted, unwashed, homosexual scum. That's not a free exchange of ideas. That's infantile.

And the fourth is The Hawkeye Review's own contention that it is non-partisan. Jeffrey Renander, editor, is on salary working for The Committee to Re-elect a Responsible Senator. That committee is part of a larger collective. I quote from The Des Moines Register, Sept. 3, 1984:

"Leroy Corey and Company of Cedar Falls are cranking up for their fall number on Tom Harkin. The Committee to Re-elect a Responsible Senator, the Mid-American Conservative Political Action Committee and The Hawkeye Review, a conservative Iowa City newspaper, are all part of Corey's operations, and it will be their job to run the 'negative campaign' against Harkin."

The Hawkeye Review has often maintained in its advertisements that it has a readership of 15,000. I can't help but wonder how many of these people are, like myself, unwilling recipients of a journal that refuses to be honest about what it is and what it does.

And if that journal is so willing to lie about things that are so easy to check out (everything I've cited in this letter I tracked down in less than an hour), what is stopping it from lying on every page it prints? Why should I believe the political right to be anything but completely amoral, dishonest, cynical and selfish?

Cartoon draws apology

To the editor:

It has come to the attention of Israel on Campus that the recent leaflet we distributed has offended some sectors of society. With the deepest sincerity, we apologize for doing so. Our intent of the cartoon, to depict Palestine Liberation Organization terrorist members, was not clearly recognizable.

The purpose of placing this cartoon in our leaflet was to illustrate our anger and discomfort with the anti-Israeli propaganda, individuals, and groups that have adulterated our campus life. Israel on Campus, assuming a role of an educational entity, maintains a policy of fairness. Future leaflets will be in accordance with this policy.

Mondale challenges Reagan to face problem of deficits

United Press International

Walter Mondale threw some fresh red meat into the impoverished political arena Monday in the form of a sweeping tax increase and deficit cutting plan that brought the Republican lions out snarling.

"It's nothing new," President Reagan said of his Democratic rival's proposal in Philadelphia to reduce the federal deficit by two-thirds in four years with $85 billion in new taxes aimed at the wealthy and imposition of pay-as-you-go financing of new government programs.

"He told us several weeks ago he was going to raise the people's taxes, and now he's repeating it," the president told reporters as he greeted a delegation of Baptist ministers at the White House.

"You pay as he goes," Vice President George Bush said in Raleigh, N.C., where he was campaigning with Sen. Jesse Helms. "If he can sell the American people on the fact he's going to cut spending, the leopard is really changing his spots."

AT A NEWS conference in Winston-Salem, N.C., Bush said he "would be very surprised if the American people believed this was the way to salvation."

"My prediction," he said, "is that the Democrats running for office are going to be running away from him (Mondale) as fast as they can on this."

But the Democratic candidate gave as good as he got in a news conference on the long-promised details of his program, and the Democratic reaction was favorable.

"This is the most detailed and specific plan any candidate for president has ever advanced," Mondale said.

"I challenge Mr. Reagan to stop avoiding the deficit issue and start telling you what he intends to do about it. Mr. Reagan, all my cards are on the table — face up. Americans are calling your hand."

Mondale said, "The economic Dunkirk Mr.

Reagan once warned of has arrived — and on (his) watch. Mr. Reagan's response is to duck."

HOUSE DEMOCRATIC leader Jim Wright of Texas said, "To observe with approval and admiration the candor of Mr. Mondale in presenting a clear-cut, precise, unambiguous program on reducing the deficit."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said, "Today we saw the contrast between the two nominees for president. Mr. Mondale gave us a budget. Mr. Reagan gave us a photo opportunity."

O'Neill added, "I have a question for the president: If you would walk a mile for a camera, why will you not take the single step of sending Congress your budget plans?"

But Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Mondale failed to address the spending side in any substantive way. "He's going to reduce the deficit by reducing interest rates, and he's going to reduce interest rates by reducing the deficit," she said in a statement. "That sounds to me like a dog trying to catch his own tail — no clear direction there."

SPEAKING ABOUT MONDALE, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told a news conference. "He is again relying on what I would say was a tried and true Carter-Mondale principle. That is, spend more, tax more, lean on the Federal Reserve to put in more money supply, inflate the economy and gain more taxes that way."

House Republican leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., noted in a statement that Mondale has accused the administration of "cooking" budget numbers and said, "If the Reagan administration cooked its numbers, Mr. Mondale has fried his to a crisp."

"Mr. Mondale wants to make the federal government rich by making Americans poor," Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said in Washington. "His budget abdicates our responsibility to America by not trying to incorporate pro-growth economic policies."

Chile stifles public protests

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — On the eve of its 11th anniversary in power, Chile's military government Monday renewed its special powers to control dissidents and censored press coverage of mass protests in opposition publications.

Opposition groups called on Chileans to bang on saucepans in their homes, honk car horns and "make a racket" during President Augusto Pinochet's address to the nation at midday today.

The government renewed for another six months the "State of Danger of the Disturbance of Internal Peace," which enables it to curtail civil liberties, arrest people without warrants, suspend the right of assembly and expel people from the country.

Today marks the 11th anniversary of the bloody coup Pinochet led against the leftist government of Salvador Allende in 1973.

A military edict banned four opposition magazines from using photographs or carrying front page headlines about anti-government protests last week in which nine people were killed.

One magazine that had already been printed was not allowed on the streets, and the others prepared to go to print appeared with empty spaces instead of photographs.

"The press is partly responsible for the violence by magnifying insignificant incidents," said police chief Gen. Cesar Mendoza.

Government lawyers, meanwhile, filed lawsuits against nine opposition leaders on charges of subversion and inciting to overthrow the government by calling for last week's protests.

"We are going to continue calling protests until freedom and democracy are restored," said oil workers' leader Jose Ruiz Digiorgio.

Israeli planes strike PLO base

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes bombed a Palestinian base before dawn Monday in the hills outside Beirut, killing a senior Palestinian guerrilla in Israel's second air raid in Lebanon in two weeks.

Three other people were reported wounded in the attack on a three-story building and an ammunition dump in Bhamdoun, a Druze Moslem village in the Shouf mountains 12 miles southeast of the capital, Lebanese security sources said.

"All our planes returned safely to base and the pilots reported good hits on the targets," an Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said after the raid, only the second known nighttime air attack on Lebanon in two years.

The raid on Bhamdoun, a day after Moslem Cabinet minister and Shiite militia leader Nabih Berri urged suicide attacks against Israeli occupation troops in southern Lebanon, came amid new signs of a rift between Moslems and Christians.

Peres secures Labor's favor

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Shimon Peres won final approval Monday from his reluctant Labor Party to form a national unity government with the rival Likud bloc and become Israel's eighth prime minister in the nation's 36-year history.

After four hours of debate, the Labor Party's Central Committee cast aside its reservations that threatened to derail the accord and voted 394 to 166 to allow Peres to form a bipartisan administration with caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Labor Party Secretary Haim Bar-Lev announced the vote totals as the meeting broke up late Monday in Tel Aviv.

Shamir's Herut Party — the leading faction in the Likud coalition — is expected to approve the unity accord today, and Peres will present his new government to parliament Wednesday.

UNDER THE ACCORD, Peres will serve as Israel's eighth prime minister until 1986 and then be succeeded by Shamir, who will serve 25 months. The bipartisan Cabinet will remain unchanged.

The proposed political partnership of the rival blocs followed inconclusive July 23 elections in which neither Labor nor the Likud won enough seats for a majority in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament.

Struggling to overcome growing opposition within Labor to the agreement, Peres said the alternative to a unity government would be new elections that could lead to another Likud administration.

The Likud has been in power since Menachem Begin became prime minister in 1977. Begin, who retired last September, was hospitalized Monday for treatment of his prostate and was reported in good condition.

LABOR OFFICIALS said resentment was running high over the allocation of key economic Cabinet posts to Likud ministers and the ascent of former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon to a position of influence in the Cabinet.

Peres came under fire from the kibbutz faction of Labor, which has 120 representatives in the Central Committee. In a stormy meeting, the kibbutzniks decided to stay in the party despite objections to a bipartisan Cabinet.

Hours before the Central Committee vote, a delegation of activists from Peace Now — the group spearheading opposition to Israel's military involvement in Lebanon — met with Peres to protest Sharon's inclusion in the new Cabinet.

Sharon, architect of the June 1982 Israeli invasion of Lebanon and currently a minister without portfolio, was slated to receive the powerful post of trade and industry minister.

Sharon was forced to resign as defense minister last year after a commission found him indirectly responsible for the 1982 massacre of Palestinian refugees in Beirut by Christian Phalangist militiamen.

Gable decision may be announced today

By J.B. Glass
Staff Writer

The Dan Gable vs. USA Wrestling struggle continued Monday as both sides remain at a standstill.

Werner Holzer, president of USA Wrestling, the governing body of American wrestling, said Monday from his Chicago-area home, that an announcement concerning Dan Gable's future is in the works, but not ready.

"We've got everything prepared, but we aren't sure when we're going to release it," Holzer said. "It could be late in the day (today). Until then, we will not have any comment."

On the other side, Gable is apparently preparing a reaction, which USA Wrestling reportedly wanted.

Evidently, USA Wrestling does not want to release anything until an appropriate response comes from Gable. The 1984 U.S. Olympic freestyle coach, on the other hand, may wait for USA Wrestling's announcement.

NEITHER GABLE OR Holzer would comment beyond that.

Last week it was reported that Gable had been censured by the USA Wrestling Board of Directors, for his role in the Randy Lewis-Lee Roy Smith issue, concerning "favoritism."

However, it has not been determined what that censure means and what its effect on Gable's future in international wrestling will be.

The Board of Directors held a three-day meeting in Palatine, Ill., late last week to discuss the matter.

"There is one major problem," Gable said. "That is between some people that work for USA and myself and a couple of the other coaches."

IN A RECENT interview with Gable, he said, "I maybe layed back too much and flowed with a lot of things and said,

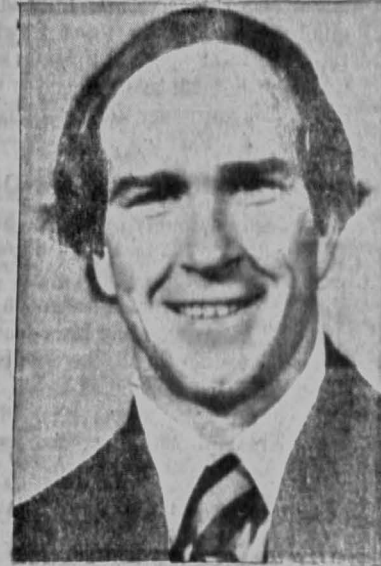

"well, they're the boss and that is the way it should be." I think if I initially (spoke out with more force) this maybe wouldn't have happened. If I said, 'Hey this is the way it should be.'"

Also, Gable commented on what a sad situation the whole ordeal is. "The Lewis-Smith thing is a sad situation for some people; for Lee Roy Smith."

Gable was an assistant on the 1976 squad and was head coach for the 1980 Games which the U.S. boycotted. Internationally, he has also served as head coach for the U.S. team in the World Cup.

As the head coach at the World Championships in 1977, 1978 and 1979, Gable produced three golds, five silver and four bronze medals. In 1980, he was inducted into the USWF Hall of Fame. He is the youngest member ever to be named to the hall.

Gable earned national fame in 1972 when he won a gold medal at 149.5 pounds at the Summer Olympics in Munich. Since his 181-1 record in four years at Iowa State, Gable has added titles from the Pan American Games, the Russian Tbilisi tournament and the World Championships.

Darley takes new approach to tennis

By Mike Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

Optimism always abounds for athletic teams as they prepare for a new season, but for the Iowa women's tennis team, the 1984 fall season brings many new changes that have players and coaches alike more excited than usual.

The Hawkeyes are now under the direction of Charley Darley, who was hired last June as a replacement for Cathy Ballard, who resigned during last season.

Darley, who played his collegiate tennis at Minnesota in the late 60s, is welcoming back five players from last year along with three new players.

The only losses from last year's squad are Juli Weinstine, who decided not to return to the squad, and Sara Loetscher, who completed her eligibility and is now serving on Darley's staff as an assistant coach along with Su Ortel.

HEADING THE LIST of returnees is sophomore Michele Conlon. The Iowa City native finished last season with an impressive 25-4 overall record. She will be joined by fellow sophomores Jenny Reuter, Kim Martin, Lisa Rozenboom and Jennifer Forti.

Reuter played No. 1 most of the spring for the Hawkeyes while Martin spent much of the season in the No. 4 position. Rozenboom joined the team in the spring and played at No. 6. Forti played last fall but was declared academically ineligible for the spring. The St. Louis native has shored up her grades and is back with the team.

The newcomers are freshmen Pennie Wohlford and Pat Leary along with sophomore walk-on Dale Kekorkian of Palatine, Ill. Wohlford was recruited as Pennie Pick but has since chosen to use the name of her stepfather.

THIS IS DARLEY'S first collegiate head coaching position after spending many years coaching junior players in California. The new coach is pleased by what he sees so far in the early going. "I think (practices) have been going pretty well," Darley said. "The players have been really receptive to what we're doing and their skill work is looking strong."

The players are as equally impressed with their new mentor. "I just love it so far," Rozenboom said. "We spend our time to the fullest and we are always doing something constructive."

Conlon echoes her teammate's feelings. "Things are just going great right now," she said. "I just love the diversity of practice because there is never a dull moment. We are constantly doing new drills and the different forms of conditioning sure help promote team unity."

Pat Leary, a freshman on the Iowa women's tennis team grins as she returns a volley during a practice session Monday afternoon in the Recreation Building. Iowa opens its season Thursday against Iowa State.

THE DIFFERENT FORMS of conditioning of which Conlon speaks have nothing to do with a racquet or a tennis ball. "We've been spending a good deal of time playing basketball, football and soccer," Darley said. "The players really enjoy it and after a while they will find that they will become better at these sports along with improving conditioning."

Another change for the Hawkeyes will be the lack of challenge matches for the fall season. "I plan on using the fall as an exhibition season," Darley said. "Each player has one or two things in their games that need work and that is what the fall matches will be for."

"I HAVE A GOOD idea of where I want to play people right now," he added. "But the two things I want to see this fall are good positive mental attitudes and all out effort all the time."

Darley has a doctorate in psychology from Stanford which he uses with his team. "We are going through mental training as well as physical," he said.

Huskers first, Hawks fifth in grid poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nebraska rolled to victory in its opener and benefitted from a loss to previously top-ranked Miami (Fla.) to become the third team in as many weeks to be voted No. 1 Monday by the UPI Board of Coaches.

The Iowa Hawkeyes rose nine spots to fifth after Saturday's win over Iowa State, 59-21.

Nebraska crushed Wyoming 42-7 to move up from second. The Cornhuskers held the No. 1 position throughout the 1983 season before dropping to second after a loss to Miami in the Orange Bowl last January.

Defending national champion Miami fell 22-14 to Michigan Saturday, slipping to eighth in the ratings while the Wolverines vaulted to No. 2. Miami was voted No. 1 last week after knocking off preseason top-ranked Auburn in the Aug. 27 Kickoff Classic.

NEBRASKA RECEIVED 32 of a possible 37 first-place votes and 549 overall points as the ratings were shuffled by upset losses to four ranked teams.

Michigan received four first-place votes and 452 points. Texas, which has not played yet, held third with two first-place votes and 432 points and Clemson moved up one spot to fourth with 411 points after a 55-0 clubbing of Virginia.

Brigham Young jumped six places into sixth following a 47-13 win over Baylor. The Cougars also received a first-place vote.

Total points are based on 15 points for first place, 14 for second, etc.

No. 7 UCLA, Miami, No. 9 Boston College and No. 10 Auburn complete the top 10. Boston College improved seven places after a 38-31 upset of Alabama. UCLA slipped from fourth following a lackluster 18-15 win over San Diego State. Idle Auburn fell four places.

ROUNDING OUT THE Top 20 are No. 11 Ohio State, No. 12 Oklahoma, No. 13 Penn State, No. 14 Oklahoma State, No. 15 Southern Methodist, No. 16 Washington, No. 17 Florida State, No. 18 Southern California, No. 19 Georgia and No. 20 Alabama.

The Big Eight, Big Ten, Pac-10 and Southeastern Conference each have three schools in the Top 20. In Michigan and Iowa, the Big Ten has two of the five top-ranked teams.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI College Football Board:

Hawkeyes 'rewarded' with week-long Texas road trip

"She (Coach Sandy Stewart) wants to put more pressure on us at practice because she didn't think we handled the pressure" says Iowa co-captain Dee Ann Davidson.

By Melissa Rapoport
Staff Writer

The Iowa volleyball team will travel to the land of 10-gallon hats, J.R. and the Dallas Cowboys today for four days of competition at Texas, Houston and Rice.

First on the itinerary the Hawkeyes will play top-rated Texas Wednesday and Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart hopes her team will improve over its last performance. "I want to play well," Stewart said. "We didn't play well Saturday (against Nebraska) ... and at Texas we face one of the best teams in the nation."

From Texas, Iowa will travel to Houston to take on the Cougars and to compete in the Rice Tournament. "The other teams aren't rated, but it's good competition," Stewart said. "It's kind of a present for doing well last year. It's like a reward."

Volleyball

IOWA CO-CAPTAIN Dee Ann Davidson said playing in Texas will benefit the team experience-wise. "Since we had a successful year, she (Stewart) wants to get out of the Midwest for exposure to other teams."

Stewart believes her team has a good chance of returning to Iowa City as winners. "The tournament is definitely winnable," the Hawkeye coach said. "We have the potential and I think we can beat Houston on the road."

Big Ten foe Michigan State will also play Houston and compete in the Rice Tournament this week, along with Tulane, Kansas, Western Illinois, Lamar and Houston.

Michigan State Coach Annelies Knoppers just wants a steady level of play. "Our main goal is to play consistently since it is the beginning of the season," she said.

IN LAST YEAR'S conference match-up between Iowa and Michigan State, the Hawkeyes came out on top 15-9, 15-10, 13-15 and 16-14. And if Iowa should meet the Spartans in the semifinals or the finals, Knoppers expects the match will be close.

"I assume it will be a close one," Knoppers said. "Each team has matured. Both teams have experienced players back. In fact, we have all of ours back, so it should be even closer than last year."

Stewart will be starting the same line-up of co-captains Linda Greshing and Davidson, seniors Julie Michelletti and Denise Watson along with sophomores Lana Kuiper and Kathy Griesheim. "We will have the same starting line-up," she said. "It's really close between Denise Watson and Ellen Mullarkey. Denise has the experience, but Ellen has had all-around good play."

COMING BACK from a serious knee injury, Stewart praised senior Cathy Arsenault for her persistence and diligence. "Cathy Arsenault will be one of the first off the bench to serve," Stewart said. "I was really doubting she would even be playing this year ... She's made a really good comeback. She's one of our best defensive and back row players."

After Saturday's loss to Nebraska, Davidson said practice was more intense. "She (Stewart) wants to put more pressure on us at practice because she didn't think we handled the pressure as well as we should have, so it was more intense," Davidson said. "We went back to the basics and worked on individual skills."

Sportsbriefs

Hawkeyes leave their mark on NCAA statistics

The Iowa football team is rated in the top 10 in several NCAA statistical categories in information released Monday by the NCAA.

The Hawkeyes are second in scoring offense with a 59-point per game average. Iowa is 10th in passing offense with 289 yards. Iowa's rushing defense is fifth in the nation after allowing only 28 yards. Saturday's opponent, Penn State, is ranked eighth.

Individually, quarterback Chuck Long is second in the nation in passing efficiency with a 231.9 rating. Hawkeye running back Ronnie Harmon is rated in two categories. Harmon is fourth in the nation in all-purpose rushing with a 231 average and is fifth in the country in kickoff returns with a 33.5 yards per kickoff average.

I-Club ready to serve-up breakfast again

The Johnson County I-Club is again sponsoring a series of breakfasts at the Highlander Inn on the Friday morning preceding home football games.

A crowd of 548 people attended last Friday's meal to hear UI President James O. Freedman and Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry. Members of the cheerleading squad, the pom pon squad and the Hawkeye Marching Band are in attendance as well.

The next breakfast is scheduled for Friday beginning at 7 a.m. Tickets, which are available at the door, sell for $5.50.

Tebbutt wins Iowa Open championship

Iowa golfer Greg Tebbutt, a fifth-year senior from Bettendorf, Iowa, won his first Iowa Open golf championship Sunday at the Burlington Golf Club. Tebbutt finished with an even-par 216 in the 54-hole tournament.

Tebbutt defeated former Hawkeye golfer Dave Rummels and Terry Rummels of Fort Dodge by two strokes to claim the title. The three were tied going into the final round.

Cardinals deal Stuper to Reds

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Monday said pitcher John Stuper has been traded to the Cincinnati Reds to complete a deal in which the Cardinals acquired switch-hitter Paul Householder.

Stuper was 3-5 with the Cardinals before being optioned to Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League earlier this season. The right-hander was 2-3 with a 3.86 earned run average with the Triple A club.

Chargers trade Muncie to Miami

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers Monday announced the trade of running back Chuck Muncie to Miami for an undisclosed draft choice, two days after Muncie missed the team's flight to Seattle for Sunday's game against the Seahawks.

Coach Don Coryell said he did not believe Muncie's account that he missed the flight because the tires of his car had been slashed. Coryell said Muncie was being traded "for the good of the team."

Muncie had missed a team meeting last weekend and had exchanged words with Coryell on the training field last week.

Muncie, a nine-year pro, came to San Diego from New Orleans in 1980. Muncie, 6-3 and 230 pounds, clocked a 4.5 40-yard dash in training camp.

Rugby team beats Cyclones, women's team not so lucky

By John Gilardi
Special to The Daily Iowan

If you thought the action in Kinnick Stadium was rough and tough on Saturday afternoon, just talk to any member of the men's or women's rugby clubs about their matches on Saturday morning.

Luckily there were no serious injuries to players on either team, but most of the players were feeling the pains and bruises of a well-played match on Sunday, according to both coaches.

The UI men's rugby club was victorious over Iowa State, but by a much lesser score of 9-4 than the football team's 59-21 thrashing. The women's club did not fare so well, losing 13-0 to Chicago. The loss, however, does not knock the women's team out of their top ranking in the Midwest.

"IT WAS OUR first game of the season and we hadn't practiced that much," Tanya Fry, women's head coach, said. "A lot of new players gained valuable playing experience and we'll be back in top form soon. This loss won't knock us out of the top spot. One game isn't going to do that."

In the men's match, ISU scored a try, similar to a touchdown, early in the first half and Iowa countered right away with a penalty kick by Hiram Melendez to make the score 4-3. Iowa opened up the match with three minutes left in the second half when Mike Moews scored a try from five yards out and then Melendez made the conversion to put Iowa ahead for good 9-4.

"EVERYONE PLAYED really well for us," Jerry Murphy, club president, said. "During the first half we were very shaky and had problems holding onto the ball. Then we got our act together."

"This had to be our best team effort in two years and I've been playing on this team for eight," Melendez said. "We have been trying to rebuild our team and it all came together for us on Saturday."

The next home game for the men's club is Sept. 29 against Northeast Missouri State University. This Saturday they will be at Cedar Rapids.

On Saturday, the women's club will travel to Milwaukee and on Sept. 22, the women's club will host St. Louis.

"We are always looking for new players and we do not have a deadline for joining," Fry said.

THE IOWA ICE HAWKS are looking for new players with any level of playing experience and the club is looking for people who want to see hockey grow in the Iowa City area, according to Billy

Sportsclubs

Vigdor, president.

"We're looking for people who want to help build a rink in the area and who are also interested in making another television show for the Iowa City public access channel," Vigdor said. "Anyone can request to have our program from last year played. We are looking for ideas for the new TV program also."

For those still interested in signing up to play, there are still a few openings left on the second team. A $100 deposit for each player is needed by Wednesday evening to either Vigdor at 351-4063 or Tom Evans at 337-6265. A meeting will be held on Sept. 19 in the Union at 7 p.m. to plan further activities for the season.

THE UI KAYAKING Club has set up the first Tuesday of each month for meetings at 7:30 p.m. in Room 27 of Trowbridge Hall. Pool practice hours are from 9-11 on Sunday mornings in the Field House pool.

A trip to the Wolfe River is planned in conjunction with the Touch the Earth Program for Oct. 5-7. The group will be leaving late Friday afternoon, kayaking Saturday and Sunday morning, and returning Sunday evening.

"This trip is geared for the beginner but anyone can sign up. The Rec Services office (in FH 216) is taking care of the registration," Sara Felts, a member of the Kayaking Club, said.

The UI bowling team will be starting tryouts on Sept. 17. An open house will be held at the Union Wednesday, Sept. 12 from 7-11 p.m.

THERE WILL BE a bridge club meeting in the Harvard Room at 5:30 on Sunday. Winners in last week's competition were Ruth Swanson and Louise Hornung in the NPS game and Mary Mullen and Shirley Moore in the EPW game.

The UI Lacrosse Club will have an organizational meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the Northwestern Room in the Union. Practices start Sept. 12 at 4 p.m. on the Field House field. All interested players should contact Rick Schreuder at 337-8599.

On the line

Our house prognosticator, O.T. Line, is still in amazement over the fact that former Daily Iowan sports editor Jay Christensen was able to walk away with the keg last week. But this is another week, with another 10 games and another keg.

This week's eight-gallon barrel of suds will be donated by the Copper Dollar, the best pool bar in Iowa City, located on Iowa Ave. Now to win this keg of brew you have to follow the rules.

The first requires you to circle the winners of all 10 games, including the tiebreaker. After you've done that, be sure to put down the tiebreaker score for the Michigan State-Notre Dame contest at East Lansing, Mich. You must do both to be eligible to win.

Then you must sign your ballot and put your phone number on the bottom and deliver the ballot to Room 111 of the Communications Center by noon, Thursday and not a minute later. Again we are limiting entrants to five ballots per week and you must be 19 years of age to enter and prove it. DI employees are not eligible.

We're tough, but fair. Good luck.

Swoope back on Illini team

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — All-Big Ten defensive back Craig Swoope, acquitted of federal drug charges during the weekend, rejoined the University of Illinois football team Monday.

Coach Mike White said the decision to allow Swoope to rejoin the team was made after consulting with Chancellor Thomas Everhart, Athletic Director Neale Stoner and the dean of the College of Fine and Applied Arts.

Swoope was found innocent Saturday after a nine-woman, three-man U.S. District Court jury deliberated his case for more than 13 hours over two days.

Prosecutors accused Swoope of using cocaine and keeping drugs and drug-sale profits in his university dormitory room. He was charged with conspiracy, possession and distribution of cocaine.

Swoope was benched for the first two Illini games, both victories. White issued a statement through the university reinstating the junior defensive back.

Criner: No excuses for errors

By Mike Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

After Saturday's 59-21 whitewash at the hands of the Iowa Hawkeyes, Iowa State coach Jim Criner and Cyclone linebacker Lester Williams offered no excuses, just reasons.

"You know there are no words of wisdom when you get your fanny beat as bad as we did," Criner said. "I don't think we're as bad a football team as the score indicated."

"On the other hand, you can't make the number of offensive mistakes we made early and keep the defense on the field and expect to win," he added.

The mistakes which Criner talks about came early and in bunches. The game was a tight defensive struggle for the first 11 minutes until Iowa defensive tackle George Little broke through and put the hit on Cyclone quarterback Alan Hood, forcing his pass to fall into the waiting arms of Dave Strobel, who scampered 38 yards for the first of eight Iowa touchdowns.

THAT WAS TO BE the first of eight Cyclone turnovers on the day against an Iowa defense that was as good as the second-year Cyclone coach thought they would be. "I think they are as good as I thought they were," he said. "I said they were one of the best we were going to play. What do you want me to say, that they can beat Jesus Christ? That would be the next step. I said it before and I'll say it now, they're real tough."

Williams, who finished as the Cyclones' leading tackler with 11, said it was simply mistakes that led to Iowa State's downfall. "Mentally, it didn't seem as if we were all in the game," Williams said. "We were making a lot of errors that you just can't make against an efficient team like Iowa."

"DEFENSIVELY, I thought we played well early," he added. "But once we got behind and started scrambling, we didn't think about what we were supposed to be doing out there which made it harder for us to get back into the game."

Despite the setback, both Criner and

Williams saw bright spots in the Iowa State performance. On offense, the play of reserve quarterback Alex Espinoza drew praise from Criner. "I was very pleased the way Alex went in and played," Criner said. "He is sort of like a bar room fighter in that whenever things breakdown, he goes in and makes things happen."

Defensively, Williams said the Cyclones showed they could stack up against a quality offense. "I think we showed that we can play as a unit out there today," he said. "This loss hurts more than last year's because we knew we were better prepared coming into the game. But I look at this as a learning experience and we should be ready when we play Drake."

Tomczak fighting to regain position

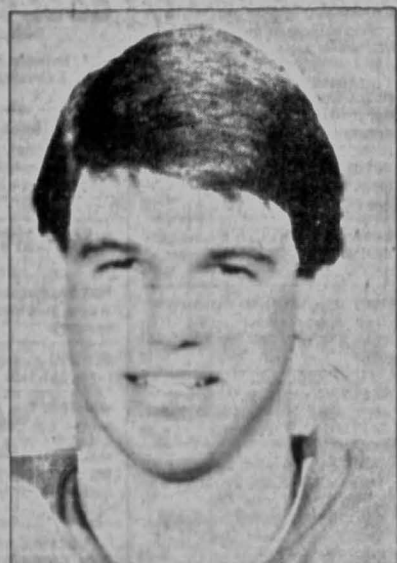

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State's starting quarterback job for Saturday's game against Washington State is up for grabs between incumbent Jim Karsatos and Mike Tomczak, who would like to reclaim the position he once held.

Tomczak, Ohio State's regular quarterback the past two years, suffered a broken right leg during the annual spring game May 5. He sat out last week's 22-14 win over Oregon State in the season's opener, but is ready to return to action.

Dr. Robert Murphy, Ohio State head team physician, read a statement at Coach Earle Bruce's weekly press luncheon Monday, saying the medical staff had cleared Tomczak for "full contact effective immediately."

BRUCE, WHEN ASKED what the statement meant to him, said: "It means he's ready to play and he's in competition for the starting quarterback job."

Asked if Tomczak will start, Bruce said, "I can't say he will start, but I can't say he won't."

Nevertheless, Bruce has closed workouts this week, a practice he usually only uses for the "big" games. Junior tailback Keith Byars, who rushed for 182 yards in 34 carries and scored two touchdowns, was named the offensive player of the game for his performance against Oregon State.

The defensive player of the game was freshman safety Terry White, who led the team in tackles with 12 and broke up two passes.

Bruce was pleased with the work of his veteran offensive line, all of whom graded 70 percent or more, led by guard Jim Lachey at 79 percent.

"LACHEY HAD A very fine game," said Bruce, who also praised the play of backup tailback John Wooldridge.

Bruce said two defensive players who did not start — linebacker Chris Spielman and middle guard Darryl Lee — played well in the time they were in, adding, "obviously those two should play more."

Spielman, especially, caught Bruce's eye and could have earned himself a starting shot with his 10-tackle performance in the second half against the Beavers.

Bruce was not happy with the special teams play against Oregon State, which saw among other things, a dropped snap from center on an attempted punt, another punt that was almost blocked, and a blocked field goal attempt.

Remake of 'The Merry Widow' retains frothy charm of original

By Merwyn Grote
Staff Writer

IF YOU SHOULD waltz into the Bijou this week to catch a showing of Ernst Lubitsch's 1934 musical comedy The Merry Widow, do not be alarmed when the titles announce The Lady Dances. The two films are one and the same. It seems that in 1952, MGM decided to remake the durable property one more time (it had also been an Erich von Stroheim film in 1925), so to avoid confusion, a possible jinx and self-competition, they gave the Lubitsch production a new and innocuous title.

Whatever the name, the film is a pleasing little trifle and a welcome addition to the Bijou's Lubitsch retrospective. The series began last week with Trouble in Paradise, which just might be the quintessential Lubitsch production, a tale of charming scoundrels, genteel lust and ever-so-dignified deception, told with a wink of the eye and a crooked smile on the lips. The Merry Widow offers much of the same and, for the most part, an abundant opportunity to experience the elusive "Lubitsch touch."

THE LUBITSCH TOUCH is difficult to explain. Perhaps it could best be described as a particularly witty visual shorthand, making great use of the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words. For example, the first image in The Merry Widow is a map of Europe. Suddenly a magnifying glass appears and focuses in on an otherwise unnoticeable patch of terrain called Marshovia. Through this clever device, Lubitsch immediately tells the viewer a great deal about the film's setting, its importance to the world and the significance of the story he himself is telling. That is a Lubitsch touch, an exercise in pure style.

Style is the essence of Lubitsch during the late '20s and '30s, when he produced a series of lighter-than-air fables about romance in fictional, exotic European locales. The Merry Widow is a perfect addition to this period. Loosely based on an operetta by Franz Lehár, it is the story of

The Merry Widow

Directed by Ernst Lubitsch. Written by Ernst Vajda and Samson Raphaelson. Produced by Irving Thalberg.

Queen Delores Ulla Merkel
King Achmed II George Barbier

the widow Sonia (Jeanette MacDonald), an extremely wealthy woman who is enjoying a state of mourning so completely elegant that even her corsets are black. She catches the eye of Captain Danilo (Maurice Chevalier), a roving Romeo who immediately falls madly in love with her, just as he falls madly in love with every other woman he meets. When he announces his love, she shows her reciprocal affection by packing her bags, leaving the country and heading for Paris.

THIS CAUSES great distress to the ruler of Marshovia, King Achmed II (George Barbier), because Sonia owns 52 percent of the country and the loss of her tax revenue could bankrupt the kingdom. He decides that she must be courted and married by some patriotic Marshovian who will return her to the country. He vows to search for the most irresistible lover in the kingdom, but needs to look no further than his own bedroom where Danilo is busy wooing the lovely Queen Delores (Una Merkel). At first he wants to have Chevalier's ears cut off, but instead decides to punish him more severely by making him listen to MacDonald sing a half dozen irritating operatic ditties. So Danilo is off to Paris as well.

What follows is the usual round of mistaken identities, misunderstandings, innuendos and breezy shenanigans. It all ends happily, of course, but with that extra little bit of Lubitsch sarcasm: the lovers take their wedding vows while locked securely in a prison cell — a delicious bit of ironic symbolism.

The Merry Widow was made by Lubitsch while he was on loan from his home studio of Paramount. At MGM he worked under the studio's boy wonder, Irving Thalberg, who maintained a legendary control over the films he produced. Unfortunately, while The Merry Widow undeniably has the Lubitsch touch, it also has the Thalberg touch, or at least the MGM touch.

THE OPENING and closing sequences of the film are clearly Lubitsch, but, through the middle, MGM's tepid brand of melodrama seeps in, souring the light, airy confection of the director's usual style. When Chevalier and MacDonald get serious in their discussion of love, the film grinds to a standstill. A light-weight vehicle such as this was not meant to carry the burden of heavy-handed soap opera.

The film is also lavishly overproduced, which is one of the reasons that it was a major financial failure. Budgeted at over $1.6 million, the film has huge, oppressive storybook sets and ridiculous, overly staged dance sequences. Working under the notion that if 10 dancers are good, 50 will be great, and if 50 is more than enough, then a hundred is just right, Thalberg and Lubitsch crowded the dance scenes to the point where they resemble choreographed stampedes.

Between MacDonald's shrill trilling and Chevalier's thick accent, what is left of the original operetta is rendered virtually incomprehensible. Which is just as well, because the music is secondary to the cheerfully glib romantic banter that the two stars do so well. Also busily stealing scenes is Lubitsch regular Edward Everett Horton. No one, but no one, was more adept or endearingly affable at playing silly asses and pompous fools than the bumbling Horton.

If, in the end, The Merry Widow seems to be much ado about nothing, then so be it. Lubitsch's goal, at least during this period of his career, was simply to amuse and charm. And, for the most part, the film does that in a very merry way.

Entertainment today

At the Bijou

Poetry in Motion. Ron Mann's 1982 documentary features contemporary poets, including Jim Carroll, Tom Waits, William Burroughs, John Cage and Allen Ginsberg, reading and discussing their works. At 7 p.m.

• The Merry Widow. This is another in the Bijou's series of Ernst Lubitsch films. Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier traipse around Europe overcoming the traditional obstacles until the traditional happy-ever-after, or at least Lubitsch's version thereof. At 8:45 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Liberace guest stars and Brooke Adams stars as a social worker who badgers 13 mentally handicapped young people into becoming skilled puppeteers in "Special People: Based on a True Story" (CBS at 8 p.m.). Tony Randall hosts "America Stayin' Alive" (KCRG-9 at 7 p.m.), a survival manual for modern society.

• On cable: Famous fun couples of the cinema is today's theme: Sandra Dee and then-hubby Bobby Darin starred in 1962's If a Man Answers (TBS-15 at 8:05 a.m.), a pleasant imitation of the Doris Day/Rock Hudson romps of the era. But why settle for imitation when Doris and Rock are on view in 1959's Pillow Talk (WGN-10 at 9 a.m.)? For less humorous highjinks, catch Bogie and Bacall trading saucy remarks amid murder and blackmail in Howard Hawks' 1946 classic, The Big Sleep (WGN-10 at 7 p.m.).

Music

Randy Schilling, whose voice has been gracing UI opera productions for several years now, bids Iowa City farewell before leaving for Austria in a benefit concert at St. Wenceslaus Church (630 E. Davenport) at 8:15 p.m.
