The students' plan, formulated during a meeting of department heads, was inspired by a similar plan adopted by the University of Texas at Austin.

TO ILLUSTRATE this, James Grady, acting executive director of the board, said that it cannot be done in any other way except by the Regents.
Man sues Copper Dollar after fall

The Dally Iowan

The Copper Dollar bar, 830 E. Ave., is being sued for negligence by a local man who alleges he was injured in a fall through an open staircase door on March 30, according to Johnson County District Court documents.

Thomas V. Krier, Jr., 78, of Davenport, claimed the bar’s workers were negligent by failing to erect protective barriers around the stair cutout. Krier said lessonsuntere suffered a broken stall from the fall. Krier is asking for unspecified amounts.

The number of freshmen entering the UI this fall is the largest in any year since 1982. The number of freshmen totals 3,889, increasing by 184 students from last year's 3,705 freshmen. The increase in freshman totals is a reflection of the admissions policy recently developed by James O. Provost.

Provost said the increase in freshman enrollments reflects a trend continuing in the freshman class with an increase of 36 percent from 1981-82. He said the reason for the increase in freshman enrollment is due to the implementation of molecular biology and the introduction of the science core. Provost said this increase reflects the increase in the number of students interested in entering the UI.

The enrollment of 17,861 students is an 11 percent increase from last year's 16,103 students and represents an increase of 36 percent from 1981-82.

President Dan Win ter of the Iowa State Teachers Association, who will speak at the rally Saturday in Des Moines, said the aids will be available to all individual teachers and employees of the state government who are members of the union.

The rally will be held at the Old Capitol Center, 6th and E Streets. The rally will begin at 1 P.M. and conclude at 3 P.M.

Statewide on Strike

The rally is one of a series of statewide strikes planned by teachers across the country. The rally is the first of its kind in Iowa, and it is expected to draw hundreds of teachers and supporters.

The rally will feature speeches by Winter and other leaders of the teachers union, as well as music and other entertainment.

The rally is expected to be a major event for teachers in Iowa and across the country. It is a time for teachers to come together to demand better pay and working conditions.

The rally is also a time for teachers to demand an end to the war in Iraq, and for an end to the war on terror.

The rally is a call to action for all teachers and supporters of education. It is a time for teachers to stand together and demand a better future for all students.
WASHINGTON, D.C. — A special prosecutor Thursday found no criminal wrongdoing in a行政部门性 investiga­tion of Edwin Meese, and President Reagan said it revealed he will not make Meese his attorney general.

Special prosecutor Joseph B. Weis, in a 271-page report to a special court, said he found no basis to impeach the Attorney General, and on the basis of his report Meese will not resign.

"It is a great relief," Meese said when he read the report.

A political ally and mentor of Meese's, Republican Mark H. Hatfield of Oregon, said he was "relieved at heart and astonished at mind."

He added, "I'm not surprised we have two separate red herrings, at least."

Two days after the report was released to the public, Meese appeared on the CBS "Face the Nation" program to deny any wrongdoing.

"If we have been guilty of anything it is of a constitutional and institutional nature, and I stand with Mr. Meese," Hatfield said.

Hatfield and others in the party have made it clear they will stay with Meese, and the Republicans are working on legislation to protect him from further investigation.

"There is nothing new in the report," said Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, the House majority leader.

"I think that is the point of the report: that there is nothing new to find, and we are going to let the House of Representatives make the decision."
Iowa students’ tuition option praised

By Karen Bau

UI Student Senate President Lawrence Busse, a junior chemical engineering major, praised the student body for standing united on Thursday in their attempt to reduce tuition.

"The student leaders proposed the tuition increase, but if it were a student protest, a student protest is not acceptable," Busse said in the student Senate meeting Thursday night. "Other people have not agreed with the plan and are against it; but they have to be in agreement to carry out the plan.

The Senate has voted for a Tuition Wastewater project that will implement a tuition payment system to ease the burden of paying for college.

The project is designed to implement a Tuition Wastewater system to ease the burden of paying for college. It is a system of "pay as you go." Students are encouraged to pay their tuition each term instead of paying it all at once at the beginning of the semester. This system will allow students to pay for their education in smaller, more manageable amounts.

Some students have expressed concerns about the implementation of the Tuition Wastewater system. They fear that it will increase the cost of education and make it more difficult to pay for college.

"We are not against the idea of paying for education, but we do not think that the Tuition Wastewater system is the best way to implement such a system," Busse said.

The Senate also discussed other issues, including the implementation of a student senate and the creation of a student senate position.

"We believe that the student senate is an important part of the university and that it should be more involved in decision-making processes," Busse said.

The Senate is currently working on implementing these changes and will continue to work on them in the coming weeks.

Farms don't get big news nowadays. Of course, it has been nowhere to be seen for quite some time. But recently, a bill has been sponsored by a member of the House of Representatives in the United States. The bill is intended to increase farm aid, but the debate has been characterized by a mix of rhetoric and substance. Some speakers have focused on the importance of sustaining American agriculture, while others have highlighted the need for fiscal responsibility.

WASHINGTON -- The Supreme Court has ruled that Congress was not justified in extending the Voting Rights Act of 1965 to cover the District of Columbia.

The justices, in a 5-3 decision, rejected the argument by the District of Columbia that it should be covered by the act.

The case was brought by the District of Columbia, which argued that it should be treated like a state and therefore covered by the act.

The District has consistently opposed the extension of the Voting Rights Act to the District, saying it would create a special class of citizens.

The decision was released by the court in a statement by Chief Justice William Rehnquist.

The court ruled that the District is not a state and therefore not covered by the act.

The decision is a victory for the District of Columbia, which has long argued that it should be treated like a state.

The court's decision is likely to be challenged by the District, which has a long history of fighting for its rights.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP) — Loretta Woodard, a member of the 1996 Olympic team, has been named head coach at Kansas and assistant coach for the University of Kansas women’s basketball team, Coach Marvin Watkins announced.

Woodard for the last two seasons has been a volunteer coach and part-time academic counselor for the Jayhawks. The volunteer work helped her retain her amateur status for the summer’s Olympic competition. Watkins said Woodard will be in charge of assisting recruiting and will continue her on-court coaching duties, Washington said.

Boesen happy as assistant after nagging knee injury

By Melanie Rapport

Athletes, like anyone else, have their ups and downs. One day a student-athlete completes a practice with no problems while knowing whether the next day’s practice may be tough.

Boesen had the option of redshirting her senior year, but she didn’t want to redshirt. "It was the hardest thing I’ve ever done. It was just sitting there and not being able to do anything."

Boesen has been practicing for the past two years, and she said she knew I could do what I was trying to do.

Boesen said she had an adjustment to make.

Hayiweyks have a score to settle

Iowa's quarrel with Eastern Michigan.

"I think we have a better team than Michigan," gamemaker Dickey told this newspaper. "But they've got a better coach. That's about all.

"I would not want to see a step down to the Big Ten or the SEC."

He added "But it's the better team that wins."

Part of that step up is having more top athletes.

Iowa's strength lies in its defense.

Everyday is beautiful for fans at Wrigley Field

Chicago — It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood. That's why it was such a beautiful summer in the North Side neighborhood that centres on the home of the Chicago Cubs, Wrigley Field.

This July was the second straight month Wrigley Field was home to a full schedule, meaning the visiting National League teams were all playing there. The Cubs won 13 of their 18 home games, second best in the league, and their home crowd saw a 20-game winning streak. With a 79-81-1 mark, the Cubs are still in the race for a wild card, but their fans are enjoying the games.

The Cubs have a tradition of playing well at home, and this year has been no exception. They have won eight of their last 10 home games, including a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Monday night. The Cubs are now 29-19 at home and 23-28 on the road.

The Cubs have the National League's best attendance average this year, with an average of 34,413 fans per game. The team has drawn 2,906,573 fans through 76 games, an average of 32,169.

The Cubs' biggest home game this year was on August 1, when they defeated the New York Mets 3-2 in 10 innings. The crowd of 57,862 was the largest at Wrigley Field since April 13.

The Cubs have another huge game this weekend, when they host the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers have the best record in the National League, and the crowd is expected to be over 40,000. The game starts at 7:05 p.m. on Friday.

Wrigley Field is truly an iconic stadium, and it has a unique atmosphere that attracts fans from all over the country. The team has been playing at Wrigley since 1914, and it has been a favorite of fans for generations.

The Cubs have a rich history, and their fans are proud of their team. The Wrigley Field experience is one that cannot be replicated anywhere else.

The Cubs have a lot to look forward to this year, and they are off to a great start. With a home record of 29-19 and a road record of 23-28, the team has a chance to make some noise in the National League East.

The Cubs have a lot of talented players, including Kris Bryant, Anthony Rizzo, and Javier Baez. The team has a strong pitching staff, with the likes of Jon Lester, Kyle Hendricks, and Adbert Alzolay.

The Cubs have been playing well this season, and they are looking to continue their strong play. With the home field advantage, the team is hoping to make some noise in the division.

The fans are excited to see what the rest of the season holds for the Cubs. The home stretch is always a fun time, and the Cubs are looking to make some noise.

Bears searching for believers

One of the nation's top powerhouses, Iowa State, is no longer the unchallenged monarch. Iowa State is unruffled, playing four games in a row. Iowa State's defense has been its strength, allowing only 163 points in the season. Iowa State has been outscored by only 36 points in those games.

Iowa is off against Purdue on Saturday. Iowa is off to a 5-1 start. Last week against Illinois, Iowa was victorious. The Hawkeyes have scored 10 or more points in each of the last six games.

NEW YORK (UP) - Despite being ranked #15 in the nation, Iowa State is not overly confident. "We are going to take this game seriously," Iowa State's head coach said. "We understand the challenge and we are ready to face it."

Low key fans enjoy LeRoI rock 'n' roll

By Allen Thoig

A NONSENSE who habed about it, the LEdo Brothers looked less than happy, but they rolled through "Iowa Calendar," "Teddy Wilson," "Louie Bellson," and "Theodore Wilson" Wednesday night at the Dally Iowan. The band was well received by the crowd, but the stage (for whatever reason) seemed to be so close that the audience could practically touch the performers. Ed Koehler, drummer for the group, was so close to the audience that he had to roll up his sleeves, contrasting with his shirt wearing none wilder looks. And at the front, looking every bit like the backward wa>wa man, spread was standing in front of the audience. The small, presumably male crowd that witnessed this performance was treated to some of the best rock 'n' roll heard "round these parts in quite a while.

Violinist Kim's recital inspires warm response

By Kate Van Orten

A N IVEY who looked to appear at Charpie Bentall Thursday created a great event for students. Violinist Benny Rice played the solo violin of the symphony, in an effort to inspire students to listen to the music. Each student was given a coupon to use at the post-concert event, which featured the new album of the violinist, "The Waitresses," released November 1984. The album contains a selection of popular hits from the past decade, including "Knock on Wood," "I Want to Be Loved By You," and "Sonata in A Major." The Waitresses, a band from New York City, was formed in 1974 and consists of trombonist Steve Van Buskirk, vocalist Steve Doerr, and guitarist and vocalist Brian Aver. The band's music is reminiscent of 1960s rock and roll, with a blend of garage rock, blues, and country influences. The band's most successful album, "The Waitresses," was released in 1975 and has sold over one million copies worldwide. The album features hits such as "Knock on Wood," "I Want to Be Loved By You," and "Sonata in A Major."

New Martin movie is ‘All’ right

By ManRoy Grul

New York — Paul Martin, TV’s high-pitched widower, is not just wealthy; he is a banker. A banker with a degree of sophistication and wit that gives him the earmark of an instant classic. Which is why you'll find him in the new New York film "The Great Bank Valor," playing for laughs at the Palace Theatre near Madison Avenue and 58th Street.

Martin is a character played with great aplomb by actor Paul Martin. He is a banker with a degree of sophistication and wit that gives him the earmark of an instant classic. Which is why you'll find him in the new New York film "The Great Bank Valor," playing for laughs at the Palace Theatre near Madison Avenue and 58th Street.

Director debuts with Ul cast

KIRA CITY (AP) — Actor Paul Martin, who recently graduated from Harvard University in the spring, will make his directorial debut with "The Great Bank Valor," opening Friday at the Palace Theatre in New York.

Martin, who is also an accomplished singer and actor, was inspired to direct the film after watching a documentary about the banking industry.

"I was so moved by the film, I decided to turn it into a stage production," Martin said. "My goal is to bring this beloved character to life in a way that is both entertaining and educational."

Indian art overview refutes culture myth

By John Guarna

WHILE AMERICAN Indian art is known for its colorful subject matter and traditional techniques, the image of the artist may be too narrow, according to some anthropologists. At the same time, the Indian art market is growing, with more collectors and museums recognizing its value.

Almost 20 years ago, anthropologist Frank Smith began an art overview, proving that contemporary American Indian art is flourishing. The exhibition, titled "Contemporary American Indian Art: Prima Facie Proof That Contemporary American Indian Art Is Alive and Well," is on view at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte, N.C.

Smith's work was represented in art centers across the country, and the Mint exhibition is an extension of the original show, which was held in 1984 in New York City.

"American Indian art is often thought of as traditional and static," said Smith, "but we've shown that it's very much alive and well. We've pushed back the boundaries of what we think of as traditional and contemporary." He added that Indian artists are "making a mark on the contemporary art world." The show includes works by 36 artists, including painters, sculptors, and jewelers.

The exhibition is part of the Mint Museum's ongoing program to support Indian art. "We're trying to bring a lot of attention to this field," said museum director Mary Grinn.

The show is sponsored by the Indian Arts & Crafts Board, a federal agency that promotes the cultural and economic development of American Indian tribes. The Mint's exhibition is one of several that the board is supporting this year.

The show will be on view at the Mint Museum through July 21. The museum is open Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free.
