Major renovations of Union may start in spring

By Karen Burns
Special to The Daily iowan

After several years of being stalled in planning phases, Union renovation plans have reached final stages and UI officials are now waiting for the go-ahead to fund the $8.5 million project. "We hope that this is it," said UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones. "There are a lot of constituencies to take into account, but we are trying to take in all their needs."

"We've been working for several years to improve the use of the Union," UI Vice President for Student Services Phillip Hubbard said.

Jones said one of the primary objectives of the renovation plans — which have been evolving for about five years — was to improve traffic circulation moving north to south in the building.

This will be accomplished with a link extending from the patio to the current Illinois Room.

THE ILLINOIS ROOM, currently a theater for Bijou movies, will need to be moved. As Bijou films must be shown in a room without pillars — which would obstruct movie viewing — and with the ceiling height necessary for a raised floor, Jones said the theater will be moved to the current Student Activities Center.

"The Student Activities Center is almost a mirror room (to the Illinois Room)," Jones said, adding the plans call for the Student Activities Center to be moved to the bowling lanes of the Recreation Center located on the ground floor of the Union.

Following the renovation, bowling lanes will no longer be available.

Jones said the bowling lanes "seemed to serve the (students') needs the least ... (and) lose about $95,000 a year."

IN ADDITION, the counseling center and career resources offices of the UI Career Services and Placement Center will be relocated, but Jones said he is unsure where they will be housed. Demolition should begin this spring and the entire project should take slightly more than two years, Jones said.

Bussard/Dikis Association Limited of Des Moines — the same architectural firm currently working on the Field House — will be drawing up the Union proposal.

"They (Bussard/Dikis) have been excellent in communicating with the Union, page 6

Gathered at the exit door of the Illinois room in the Union, about 25 protesters make noise during the Bijou showing of the movie, Peeping Tom. Blowing whistles, banging pot lids and shouting, they demonstrated against pornography and especially the role that women play in pornography.

Coalition blows whistle on 'Tom'

By Greg Miller
Staff Writer

About 25 protesters, most of them female, blew whistles, banged pan lids and yelled chants denouncing pornography's exploitation of women at the Bijou's second showing of the feature Peeping Tom Tuesday night.

The group, calling itself The Women's Action Coalition on Pornography, said the purpose of the protests Monday and Tuesday was "to educate the community about violence against women in film, specifically Peeping Tom."

According to the Bijou calendar, the 1960 film is the "tale of a psychopathic photographer who is fascinated by watching fear on the faces of his subjects."

"Iowa City has enough problems with rape and violent crime. I think it is irresponsible use of the university's funds to bring in a film that promotes rape and violent crimes toward women," said Seaghan Brown, a UI student participating in the protest.

BROWN ADDED, "The Bijou calendar calls this film 'art,' and I feel this is a film directed toward violent dissent toward women."

The protesters gathered in front of the theater at about 6:30 p.m. and walked in a circle holding signs reading, "Women's hatred is not art" and "Porn kills." One woman's sign read, "My life is worth more than this film."

Protester Tess Catalano read an article that opened, "Pornography is an essential issue because pornography says that women want to be hurt, forced and abused; pornography says women want to be raped, battered, kidnapped, maimed; pornography says women want to be humiliated, shamed, See Protest, page 6

LINDA DONELSON, who attended the public hearing, told the council Tuesday night that "a downtown site for the liquor store is not appropriate."

She noted the present Iowa City liquor store ranked second in sales in the state last year and the "statistics relate to the population of university students" in Iowa City.

A downtown liquor store, Donelson argued, "would increase the sales of liquor to students" since much of the UI student population lives near the downtown area.

"I ask the council tonight to write a letter to the state (Beer & Liquor Control Department) opposing the downtown site," she said.

The state representative at the public hearing last week told residents who opposed a liquor store in Iowa City that citizens would have to take their objections to the council.

Mayor John McDonald said Tuesday that the council has adopted a "non-position" on the matter because the council has not been consulted by the state on the location of the liquor store.

"I FIND IT ironic they told the group (at the public hearing) to appear before the local governing body," he said. "In the past, usually they don't pay attention to anything we say. When did the change of attitude suddenly take place at the state level?"

Councilor Clemens Erdahl said the 1978 council "did write a letter approving a downtown location" for a liquor store.

Erdahl, who served on the 1978 council, supported writing the letter to the state at that time. "But it's true that things have changed and we're not begging as much for retail in downtown Iowa City," he said.

Erdahl said it is "certainly within our power to write a letter" to the state Beer & Liquor Control Department and he added "we might be ducking the issue" by not writing a letter.

BUT HE SAID he doubted he would support the letter. "It's not fair to say that people who don't have autos have to go farther" to travel to a liquor store, Erdahl said.

Iowa City's only state liquor store is located at 1922 Keokuk St.

Councilor Ernest Zuber said he would be surprised if a letter reversing the city's stance could prevent a mini-liquor store from coming to downtown Iowa City.

House, Senate conferees okay defense compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators Tuesday approved a compromise agreement on a defense budget and produced a defense authorization bill with a $297 billion price tag.

The negotiation deadlock was broken last week when House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Senate Republican leader Howard Baker reached agreement on the size of the defense authorization and appropriations bills for the fiscal year that starts Monday and on the MX missile.

Under the plan, the total amount authorized for defense purposes in fiscal 1985 is $297 billion. The total amount that will be earmarked for spending in an appropriations bill is $292.9 billion, an increase after inflation of about 5 percent from fiscal 1984 spending.

THE MX compromise calls for two votes in each chamber in March, separated by no more than a day. It also asks for $1 billion for work on 21 missiles approved last year. The first vote will be on whether to authorize spending another $1.5 billion on 15 to 21 more missiles, and the second will be on whether to actually provide the money.

The conferees started work Monday at 10 a.m. and finished shortly before 2 a.m. Tuesday, resolving a total of 1,200 differences in the legislation. The package now must be endorsed by the House and Senate.

Other major provisions of the authorization bill include permission for no more than two successful tests of the U.S. anti-satellite weapon, a missile mounted on an F-15 fighter. Those tests may only continue if the president makes certain assurances to Congress.

CONFEREES threw out House language placing a moratorium on the deployment of sea-launched, nuclear-tipped cruise missiles, instead requiring a report from the Pentagon on ways to differentiate between conventional and nuclear-tipped missiles.

The conferees cut the president's "Star Wars" research effort, more properly known as the "Strategic Defense Initiative," trimming $150 million from the $1.77 billion request.

Local leaders question lottery impact

By Greg Philby
Staff Writer

Although state legislators say Iowa City could benefit indirectly from state revenue raised from a lottery, some Iowa City business leaders "haven't the foggiest idea" how the city would be affected if a state lottery is implemented.

Gene Kennedy of Dubuque, who is lobbying for the passage of a state lottery, said 2,500 to 3,000 ticket outlets would likely be set up in Iowa. "The lottery is passed, many of them in convenience stores. The stores, he said, would probably keep 5 to 6 percent of the ticket sales.

Although liquor stores may carry some of the tickets, "they have enough to do with what they're doing now," Kennedy said. "The vending should be open to anyone."

PERHAPS more important for Iowa City, however, is the revenue gained by the state that would likely be placed in a general fund. Currently, there are "dozens of suggestions" on where to put the money if a lottery should be started, Kennedy said. "Everybody has got his own sacred cow they want to feed."

State Rep. Richard Varn, D-Solon, said, "Depending on how the bill is written as to where the money is put, if it is in a general fund, it can be spent for anything. So there is the possibility it may be spent on education and some areas for our local economy."

Varn also said the added state money from a lottery could help cushion Iowans against future tax increases.

Jeff Romine, assistant vice president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said, "I haven't the foggiest idea of all about the economic or social effects (of a lottery) or where tickets might be sold. I don't know enough about the subject to know if the money spent on a lottery ticket might be spent on something else."

MAYOR JOHN McDONALD said, "I'm not that familiar with lotteries. As I understand it, it is a source of revenue for the state. I don't know what impact there would be on a local municipality. The only way I can see that it would benefit a municipality is on the state level, because obviously they fund different types of things."

Gov. Terry Branstad, who blocked previous attempts to begin a state lottery, has recently made statements indicating he might have changed his mind on the subject. During an informal news conference this month, he said, "I'm not sure I would stand in the way if it (a lottery bill) came up again."

Kennedy said the current problem with getting a lottery approved "is the fencing back and forth between the two political parties. But the bottom line is that the people want a lottery and they are going to get it."

He said the lottery issue will be brought up in the next legislative session.

KENNEDY SAID people in eastern Iowa, such as Iowa City and Dubuque, would be "gung-ho" for a lottery.

Varn said, "My position now in looking at the lottery is that there are many, many Iowans already playing a lottery (in neighboring states). It isn't just a question of whether Iowa has a lottery, but who benefits from it."

Kennedy said the state could receive an average of $50 million annually from a lottery, but the impact on municipalities is less direct.

In Illinois, which has operated three lotteries for several years, businesses selling the tickets gain some revenue from ticket sales.

Ghandi frees Golden Temple

In a nationwide broadcast on radio and television, Gandhi said the government would turn over the shrine to the Sikh high priests "as soon as necessary arrangements have been made." She did not mention a date.

VACAVILLE, Calif. — Mass murderer Charles Manson was set afire Tuesday with paint thinner in a prison hobby shop by another killer during an argument over religion, authorities said.

Prison spokesman Bill Hartwell said Manson's attacker, a Hari Krishna, apparently threw paint thinner in Manson's face and tossed a match at him. Other inmates extinguished the flames almost immediately and Manson was taken to the prison hospital. He is listed in good condition with second and third degree burns on his face and hands.

Man acquitted on mischief charge

By Nick Schrup
Special to The Daily Iowan

A Johnson County man was acquitted of second-degree criminal mischief Tuesday by a Johnson County jury.

David Scott Butler, 18, 423 Highway 1 South, Apt. 17, was charged June 30 for allegedly causing about $832 damage to a vehicle owned by Old Capitol Motors, Highway 1 South, by intentionally striking it with his own car.

According to court documents, Butler had made a tentative arrangement with the car dealership to purchase a Volkswagen, but the car was sold to another individual before the transaction with Butler was finalized.

Courts

The Volkswagen was found with about $832 of damage the morning of June 30 by employees of Old Capitol Motors who were arriving for work.

A Johnson County Sheriff's deputy while investigating the incident learned Butler had a brown car that looked similar in color to the brown paint found on the damaged silver Volkswagen.

THE DEPUTY later found damage to Butler's car that matched the damage to the Volkswagen.

Butler was arraigned on July 4 and released on his own recognizance.

Also in Johnson County District Court Tuesday, Hazen Duane Beggs, 22, 1014 Sheridan Ave., made an initial appearance on a charge of second-degree theft.

Court records state Butler arranged for a $2,802 loan from Iowa State Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. Clinton St., by using collateral that he did not possess.

Beggs allegedly used a 1978 boat and trailer and a 1979 outboard motor as collateral for the loan.

Beggs obtained the loan on Nov. 10, 1983, but court records state the ownership of the boat and motor were transferred to another individual on Nov. 5, 1983.

Damage to the three vehicles has not yet been determined.

City council concerned about fountain climbers

The Iowa City Council expressed their concerns Monday night for the safety of children who play on the fountain north of the Holiday Inn in the pedestrian mall.

Councilor Bill Ambrisco said he is worried about children and people who climb on the upper portion of the fountain and around the bricks that become slick when they are wet.

Although City Manager Neal Berlin explained the fountain was "designed by a community group as being a participatory structure," Ambrisco said some action should be taken to prevent it from being "an attractive nuisance."

Berlin said he would refer the council's concern to the city's Design Review Committee.

Should council packets be on 'floppy disks'?

Iowa City Council member Kate Dickson has an alternative to the pile of papers the councilors receive in their weekly packets.

"Each one of us (the councilors) should have a personal computer," she told the council at its meeting Monday. "Then we could put this material on floppy disks."

At least one city official, City Clerk Marian Karr, already puts a copy of the council packet on microfilm for city records.

City Manager Neal Berlin said he would look into Dickson's suggestion.

"We'll try anything," Berlin said. "But it isn't going to happen tomorrow."

UI placement officials pen overseas job guide

For teachers who think the prospect of working overseas sounds interesting and exotic, two UI career placement officials have authored a book describing how to find an overseas job as well as providing a few words of caution.

The book's authors, Rebecca Anthony and Gerald Roe, who work in the UI Educational Placement Office, say they wrote the Educator's Passport To International Jobs because, "Hardly a day goes by without someone coming into the office to ask about overseas jobs."

Anthony and Roe said people often seek overseas employment because of the opportunities it provides to see the world and enhance performance skills.

The book describes how to conduct an international job search, tips on what recruiters seek in applicants, how to obtain information about positions and what an educator can expect from teaching overseas.

"Delays and hang-ups which a teacher would never experience in the states may be fairly common overseas," Anthony said. Also, they said that an overseas job isn't the answer to unemployment.

"Besides requiring experience, the market is highly competitive, especially for Europe, and the Middle and Far East," Roe said.

Their book, published by Peterson's Guides, Princeton, N.J., is available at local bookstores.

Wheaton named head of UI technology center

W. Bruce Wheaton, a UI research coordinator, has been appointed director of the Technology Innovation Center on the UI Oakdale Campus by the state Board of Regents.

The Technology Innovation Center was established by the regents in July to encourage economic development through the growth of technology-based industries in Iowa.

The center, which is being funded through a two-year, $181,000 grant from the Iowa High Technology Council, will lease office and work space on the Oakdale Campus to private businesses that need to develop and market new products based on new technologies.

In return, these businesses will be provided with a link to the UI's Weeg Computing Center and secretarial help, as well as the opportunity to consult with UI faculty members knowledgeable in their market area, provided access to UI table TIC will also coordinate access to UI research facilities and expertise.

Wheaton, who was the principal author of the center's application to the High Technology Council, has served as development coordinator in the UI Division of Sponsored Programs since 1981.

He has earned a bachelor's degree and a doctorate from the UI, and was named an outstanding graduate in liberal arts. He also received the H.K. Fairall Scholarship for the Study of Modern Literature.

Plan may expand local school district

By Colleen Kelly
Staff Writer

State Sen. Joe Brown, D-Montezuma, said his plan to consolidate Iowa's 439 school districts to fewer than 120 would not alter the Iowa City Community School District very much.

"If every school district in Iowa were like Iowa City, I wouldn't even propose this plan," Brown said. "This plan might make the Iowa City school district a little bigger, but that's all."

Iowa City School Superintendent David Cronin said the Iowa City school district already implements some of the suggestions Brown plans to draft into his legislation, such as a seven-member school board and principals who evaluate classroom teachers.

However, some of Brown's other suggestions, such as a full-time principal for every school, may not work out in Iowa City. "In a district like ours, where we have some buildings with fewer than 250 students, it's not very cost-effective to have a full-time principal in every building," Cronin said.

BROWN'S PLANS would consolidate the districts, but not the schools themselves. "In the past, we've had people suggest consolidating schools because they thought it would be a lot cheaper," said State Sen. Art Small, D-Iowa City. "But this was refuted by those who argued that busing costs would be high, as would the societal cost of a community losing its local school."

He said his plan would save money on administrative salaries and increase the educational opportunities for students while keeping them in the local schools.

"It is really not good public policy to pay a superintendent $40,000 a year in a district that has maybe 120 students (from kindergarten to high school)," Brown said.

He feels the plan would improve the education of students in very small districts: "I know the plan is controversial, but as it stands now, some students in Iowa don't have the same opportunities to get a good education as others do," Brown said.

CRONIN SUGGESTED the plan "might be something to shoot for," but said it might be "politically impossible to consolidate the districts in one fell swoop."

School board member Dorsey Phelps said,

"There are some real problems with what (Brown) is trying to do. He has some very valid points in his arguments ... but I know that administration is something very necessary and helpful."

Brown also suggests school board members be paid $3,000 a year to encourage more lower-income people to run for a school board seat. "I don't know any poor people serving on a school board, because they can't afford to mount a campaign to win the position," he said.

Cronin added, "A few years ago I would have been flatly opposed to paying school board members, but in light of the time commitment and the out-of-pocket expenses people incur running for the school board, I could be supportive of that."

Faculty wants more discourse in senate

By Denny Pope
Staff Writer

Improving the "quality and quantity" of UI faculty-administration consultation will be among the four major goals of the UI Faculty Senate this year, President Donal Carliston told the senators Tuesday.

In the past, the UI administration has been criticized by some faculty members for making decisions before fully consulting the faculty, he said.

The senate "will work diligently to ensure that faculty viewpoints are expressed" to the administration, Carliston stressed.

The group will also attempt to broaden faculty involvement in UI governance matters. Carliston said he would like to see more faculty involvement in the form of increased participation on various UI faculty committees.

He said he has noticed that sometimes "many faculty members shy away from committee appointments," and although he "doesn't propose to solve it all," Carliston said he would like to see more faculty involvement this year.

ANOTHER ISSUE facing the senate, according to Carliston, will be to "continue to deal with the budget crisis," particularly faculty salaries.

During the year he hopes to solicit feedback on the appropriateness of last summer's "vitality fund" — which boosted most faculty salaries an average of 4.5 percent over the last two years. Carliston also hopes to "keep these (budgetary) problems in the public eye" throughout the year.

In addition, Carliston expressed an interest in "considering ways in which the quality of academic life can be improved for faculty."

"A tongue-in-cheek" idea, Carliston joked, would be to build a "large faculty club with handball courts and a pool." Realizing this would not be feasible, Carliston said although he does not have a proposal for doing so, he would like to "increase faculty cohesiveness."

HOWEVER, Carliston said one step toward improving faculty relations would be to implement the office of a "faculty ombudsperson," although he noted it "appears unlikely" that will occur this year.

Richard Remington, UI vice president for academic affairs, told the members of the senate he "expects a good year at the UI."

He explained this year may be the "first year in several" that the UI will not have budget reversions. "This is something new in my experience," he added.

Remington also told the faculty a "new indoor record" has been set this year in UI student enrollment, although he believes this will be the last year an enrollment record is set.

The number of UI students is up to 29,712, down only 2 percent from the projection of 30,402 made by the UI last winter.

"I DON'T THINK that's too bad," Remington said of the earlier projection.

He attributed the 2 percent margin of error to a lower return of UI juniors and seniors than expected. Remington said the UI began to suspect fewer juniors and seniors would return this fall after the UI Academic Advising Center reported a large number of transfer inquiries last spring.

He added, UI Registrar Jerald Dallah will do a survey of those who did not register this fall to find out why.

In other business, William Boe, chairman of the Committee on Selection of Central Academic Officials, announced the UI Office of Finance and Budgeting will be reviewed this year. It was earlier believed the review would be postponed because Dorsey Ellis became vice president for finance only last winter.

New doctorate program to study nervous system

By Marcia Festen
Staff Writer

Plans are now being developed for a new UI doctorate program concentrating on the study of the structure and function of the nervous system that will begin next fall following approval by the state Board of Regents Thursday.

The neuroscience program will provide a multi-disciplinary approach to the study of neuroscience, aiming toward the development of an integrated understanding of conceptual and methodological approaches to the nervous system.

Courses in neuroscience are currently offered at the UI within several traditional departments, but the regents approval will enable the UI to have a more defined and cohesive program, said Robert Fellows, coordinator of the new program, adding the program will offer a centralized organization to coordinate departmental efforts.

"I THINK THIS is a very exciting development because it really brings together a group of people who are on the east side of the river and the west side of the river that want to collaborate their research," Fellows said.

Implementation of the program has been discussed for a number of years, said Rudolph Schultz, dean of advanced studies in the UI Graduate College. The UI already has 40 faculty members in eight departments to provide instruction, and all the necessary laboratory equipment is on hand, Schultz said. The remaining costs to the UI will be nominal general expenses, he added.

The estimated costs for the program will be $67,000 each year for the first three years. This cost includes funds for graduate assistants, general expenses and support staff.

EXTERNAL FUNDS for the program are available from the National Institute of Mental Health grants. Additional grants are expected to be awarded by the National Institute of Health.

Students will be able to enroll in the program next fall. Fellows estimated enrollment will begin at five students and increase by five students each year up to a steady enrollment of 20.

Throughout the rest of the academic year, Fellows and other UI faculty members involved will be developing a working curriculum for the program.

The program will offer a core course encompassing molecular, cellular, systems, development, and behavior neuroscience; a course in advanced technologies in neuroscience and its own research seminar, Fellows said.

Students will also elect courses from existing UI departments.

The neuroscience field has grown rapidly over the past decade. "Ten years ago there were different areas of what is now neuroscience. The barriers between these have really fallen," Fellows said.

$180 million Agent Orange claim for vets settled

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday approved a $180 million settlement chemical companies must pay to veterans exposed to Agent Orange in Vietnam and suggested the government may have known in advance of the herbicide's dangers.

He said the government had the ultimate responsibility for taking care of Vietnam veterans and their families and urged the government to fulfill the "nation's obligation" in helping those exposed to Agent Orange, used to defoliate the jungles of Southeast Asia during the war.

Attorneys said it was the largest product liability claim ever to be paid, but the final determination of how much money each vet and his family receives is still to be decided at more hearings.

The veterans blamed Agent Orange for health problems including cancer, miscarriages by their wives and birth defects in their children.

The seven companies that made Agent Orange insisted the plant-killing chemical, used to destroy enemy cover in the Vietnam jungles, was harmless in small doses.

THE DEFENDANTS were: Dow Chemical Corp., of Midland, Mich.;

Monsanto Co., St. Louis; Diamond Shamrock Corp., Dallas; Uniroyal Inc., Middlebury, Conn.; T.H. Agriculture and Nutrition Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Hercules Inc., Wilmington, Del.; and Thompson Chemical, Newark.

The judge said before deciding the size of the payments to individual vets and their family, hearings must be held on how much money will be paid to veterans' lawyers.

Whether or not Agent Orange was the cause of the veterans' illnesses, the judge called on the U.S. government to fulfill "the nation's obligations to Vietnam veterans and their families."

He countered the government's contention that it was immune from liability in the case, citing "substantial additional evidence" that government officials may have known in advance of Agent Orange's risks.

Frank McCarthy, president of Vietnam Veterans Agent Orange Victims, hailed the approval as "the only victory of Vietnam for Agent Orange victims."

But Wayne Mansulla, a Washington attorney representing 2,000 Agent Orange victims, said he was "very discouraged" by the approval.

House expected to approve more security funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats backed a request for more money to improve security at U.S. embassies Tuesday, but criticized the Reagan administration for not seeking enough money in the first place.

The administration is preparing an emergency request for an additional $366 million to help guard against a repeat of the truck-bomb attack on the embassy in Beirut last week in which two Americans were killed.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said the additional money is absolutely justified, but he recalled that budget director David Stockman cut $150 million from the administration's original request for security funds earlier this year.

"Obviously the administration didn't send a supplemental (appropriations request) that was large enough," he said. "Now they realized their mistake."

HE SAID the Democratic-controlled House has never denied an administration request for funds to protect Americans stationed abroad.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the administration scaled back its plan to improve security at U.S. embassies around the world and then did not use all the money it was given.

But the security failure in Beirut "absolutely, categorically had nothing to do with money. They had all the money they needed," he said.

"The problem in Lebanon was the urgency was not applied and the extent to which precautions should be taken were not adequately contemplated," he said. It "had nothing to do with the Congress not being willing to give the administration every penny it needed... it had to do with not implementing the plan."

Gas purchasing pacts dissolved

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — More than 50,000 service station operators will be allowed to buy any brand of gasoline they choose under the settlement terms of a 13-year-old lawsuit filed against the nation's major oil companies.

Industry experts disagreed, however, on whether it would mean lower prices for consumers at gasoline pumps.

The class-action antitrust lawsuit, filed in 1971 in federal court in Philadelphia, charged the oil companies had engaged in restraint of trade in the sale of gasoline by requiring dealers to purchase gas from their parent oil company.

The oil firms involved in the lawsuit were Amoco, Atlantic Richfield, Amerasia Hess, BP, Chevron, Cities Service, Exxon, Gulf, Mobil, Phillips, Shell, Texaco and Union.

THE STATION operators' lawyer, David Berger, said the settlement would allow service station dealers who lease their stations from one of the major oil companies to buy gasoline from any source, as long as they make it clear to the customer it has not come from their parent firm.

Industry experts could not agree on what impact the settlement, which affects 50,000 of the nation's 140,000 conventional stations, would have on the consumer.

Edwin Rothschild, assistant director of the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, a consumer group in Washington, said it could reduce pump prices by several cents a gallon. "The agreement could be very good for consumers because it allows dealers to shop around for lower-priced gasoline and to compete more effectively," he said.

Democrat: Reagan has EPA 'agenda'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recently-obtained documents show President Reagan has a "hidden agenda" to dismantle the EPA's superfund toxic waste cleanup program, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said Tuesday.

Dingell, who heads the House Energy and Commerce Committee based his comments on confidential notes of presidential counselor Edwin Meese and presidential assistant Craig Fuller that were previously withheld from his panel.

"President Reagan has refused to state his future plans for the superfund program because he has a 'hidden agenda' which is unacceptable to the American people," Dingell said in a written statement.

Union

departments and constituencies on campus," Jones said.

In addition to relocating organizations, the Union roof will be repaired and heating-ventilating and air-conditioning systems will be renovated.

IN AN EFFORT to create funding for the project, the Union renovation committee has proposed mandatory student fees that were being used to pay for a bond to build Hancher Auditorium — which has now paid for itself — be defeated to a Union bond, Hubbard said.

"The Hancher bond will be paid off with reserves," said Hubbard. "So the fees collected for the Hancher bond (should) go back to the general education fund."

But instead of sending that money into the general fund, the renovation committee proposed the funds be channeled into a bond for the Union, Hubbard said.

Currently, UI students are paying $1.72 in mandatory student fees per semester for use of the Union. Hubbard said the renovation committee is proposing a small increase in this fee next time UI tuition is raised, in addition to the $8 per student per semester fee that was being used for the Hancher fund.

However, "Everything is subject to change," Jones said. "This is the latest tentative plan."

Council

"The state said it was not at the hearing to decide whether or not a liquor store would be here, but where it would be located," Zuber said.

The state Beer & Liquor Control Department has selected Iowa City as one of 11 communities for a mini-liquor store. The five bids received for an Iowa City mini-liquor store are all in the downtown area.

A DECISION will be made by Nov. 30 on where a store will be located in Iowa City.

Hallberg told the council one argument given for another liquor store in Iowa City is that it will alleviate congestion at the present liquor store.

"Downtown Iowa City does not have ample parking for (a liquor store)," she said. "I can see cars circling the street waiting for pick-ups" if a store is developed downtown.

Hallberg noted that a proposed mini-liquor store site in the Old Capitol Center would not be convenient for parking either because customers would not want to drive into the Capitol Street parking ramp just to visit the liquor store.

Lottery

merce, said, "Everybody seems to sell a lot of tickets here, but as far as the ramifications (on business), I haven't noticed anything different."

A woman who identified herself as an employee of the Illinois Quad City Chamber of Commerce said, "We've always had people from Iowa come to this side of the river to do purchasing, and I think a lot of the people that come over to buy lottery tickets shop" for other items as well.

HOWEVER, she added, "I don't think (the economic effect) is that great. I don't think it necessarily goes hand in hand and I don't think it brings business into town. You can buy tickets anywhere. What would be more important is what would the state government do with the money taken in."

Wanda Shatzer, manager of a lottery ticket outlet at the Book Emporium in Peoria, Ill., said there "have definitely been a lot more people" at the store since they began selling lottery tickets last November, "but it hasn't necessarily affected the retail end. People who want lottery tickets come in with that goal in mind. It's like two businesses."

It is "extra gravy" for businesses to sell the tickets in Illinois, Shatzer said, because they receive five cents out of every dollar's worth of tickets sold and also a percentage of the winners' earnings from tickets sold by their business.

Protest

defamed; pornography says that women say 'no,' but mean 'yes, yes' to violence, 'yes' to pain."

UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones observed the protest and said, "The University of Iowa is based on the free exchange of ideas," adding, "The fact that there is that right and that this is a university environment means that we have to put up with a lot more expression."

ONE VIEWER, a UI teaching assistant who wished to remain anonymous, said he heard the protesters from inside the theater. "The thing that really offends me is that they don't have respect for the First Amendment. The First Amendment has to be absolute because no one can decide where the freedoms exist. Who can draw the line and say this is pornography and this isn't?"

The protesters handed out a flyer defending their interpretation of this freedom, however. "The First Amendment is not absolute. First Amendment rights must be balanced against potential injury to a group. The First Amendment also protects the right to protest and dissent. Those who are opposed to pornography are censors, and seek censorship of pornographic materials," it said. Women are censored economically because "they lack money and access to the means of production to make films."

LYNN VanDEVENTER, a UI student who saw the film, said, "I was upset because my right to see the movie was denied. I spoke to one female protester and she said she hadn't seen the movie. I found it hard to take them (the protesters) seriously."

VanDeventer added, "There was nothing in the movie that was pornographic or demeaning towards women."

Matthew Buckingham, another UI student who watched the film, said, "The film shows the exploitation of women and the psychiatry that in the end makes fun of itself. It was sarcastic."

"I feel they could have chosen a more relevant film for a protest of that caliber. The protest was misdirected in this case. I thought the protest didn't match the film. None of the protesters I talked to admitted to seeing the film."

ONE FEMALE protester, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "I can't see paying $1.75 for seeing this movie as entertainment. I would like to see it in a classroom for study and discussion."

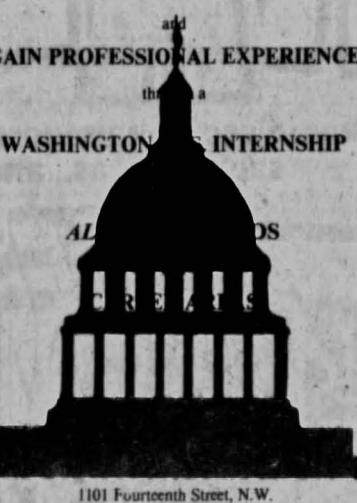

Another anonymous female protester said, "We have alerted a lot of women to the fact that a pornographic film is being shown."

"Pornography is exploitative and exercising power over a person or persons. I believe that there is a myth that pornography deals with sex. Pornography is exploitation and power plays."

Freedom and dignity

The Rape Victim Advocacy Program's map, released Monday, of locations and incidences of sexual assaults in the Iowa City area, provides a clear visualization of what many who have lived here any length of time know: that Iowa City is not a safe place to live.

According to the map, it's particularly unsafe if you're a woman who has to travel near the dorms, the UI Hospitals or out Burlington and Jefferson Streets from downtown — routes traveled daily by many Iowa City women.

The situation has received enough attention in recent months that actions have started to reduce the danger. The RVAP's Whistlestop program, which provides warning whistles to women who might be walking alone at night, and its Women's Transit Authority, a late-night taxi operation scheduled to commence in 1985, should provide some measure of safety to those who avail themselves of the services.

In addition, the Iowa City Police Department has been more than willing to put additional officers on the street in problem areas and has provided a good deal of help in instances where assaults have been reported.

And the Iowa City Council has in the recent past installed lights in areas troubled with crime of both a sexual and a nonsexual nature.

The city council, however, will receive another study on increased street lighting in Iowa City this week. The RVAP map points out not just the need for that increase but the places where the increase could be applied.

While financial expenditures of any sort are being given close scrutiny, there is no allocation that should have any priority over the safety of a given city's residents. The city council should take both the lighting study and the RVAP map under closest consideration. No price is too high to pay for the freedom, dignity and well-being of half our population.

As they lie dying

The car bombing at the American embassy in Beirut last week is another sign that President Reagan's foreign policy is full of sound and fury but signifies nothing. His policy consists essentially of rhetoric without action.

When campaigning against Jimmy Carter in 1980, Reagan blamed the Democrat for the embassy takeover in Iran, saying inadequate security and a lack of foresight permitted the seizure. He promised that on his watch, such events would not occur because he would respond forcefully to any terrorist activity.

Reagan said the same thing 18 months ago when the embassy in Beirut was first blown up, and some 60 people were killed. He said the same thing when a car bomb later killed some 260 American service men.

What Reagan fails to understand is that by threatening and not acting, America's credibility is reduced and security weakened. He turns the country into a loudmouth that blusters without effect.

It is not true, as he said, that nothing can be done to prevent such attacks. There is much that could be done. First, the embassies in countries that are particularly unsettled could be better protected. Fences, gates and guards can prevent vehicles from entering U.S. compounds.

The government could require all vehicles be searched, that only American marines be allowed to drive any vehicle into the compounds, and that special areas away from the buildings be established to house vehicles.

Second, Reagan could refrain from threatening retaliation if a terrorist attack does occur. If we cannot or will not retaliate, then at least we do not look impotent for promising what we do not deliver.

Third, and most important, he could actively pursue policies that reduce the causes of terrorism. Reagan largely ignored the Middle East his first two years in office, and the trouble grew. When he did intervene, it was to send fighting men to sit, exposed, in the middle of a gang war.

Reagan has not, unfortunately, worked diligently to negotiate a settlement between the Palestinians and the Israelis and among the various Christian and Moslem groups in Lebanon.

Reagan is rather like Anse in William Faulkner's As I Lay Dying: He believes saying something makes it so. That may be true on a movie stage, but it is not true on the world stage. He needs to learn the difference.

And in this corner ...

The battle between Gen. William Westmoreland and CBS continues unabated, thanks to a ruling by federal Judge Pierre Leval Monday denying the network's motion to dismiss the $120 million lawsuit.

Westmoreland claims the CBS documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," falsely accused him of distorting information about the number of Vietcong soldiers in South Vietnam during the 1960s.

CBS counters it presented a valid picture of Westmoreland's involvement in a cover-up — even though it suspended the documentary's producer, George Crile, for failing to follow ethical journalistic practices in obtaining interviews.

Were it not that the Westmoreland-CBS case concerns issues basic to our democracy — freedom of expression, the right of the public to know abuses of power — the court fight would be a farce.

As Westmoreland's side accuses CBS of unethical journalistic practices, its own hit man, former TV Guide reporter Don Kowet, used the same practices to get the interviews that damned the CBS exposé. As CBS accuses Westmoreland of threatening the First Amendment, its own procedures go much further in jeopardizing freedom of speech.

The more it drags on, the more the Westmoreland-CBS fight looks like a pro wrestling match: It's two big bullies in a too-small ring, and you hope they both knock the stuffings out of each other.

Resourceful plan can help state

GROUNDWATER is said to be one of the more important recent environmental issues. It's not a moment too soon. The coming clash of interests over the availability of reasonably cheap, clean and plentiful water must not be allowed to begin without informed referees.

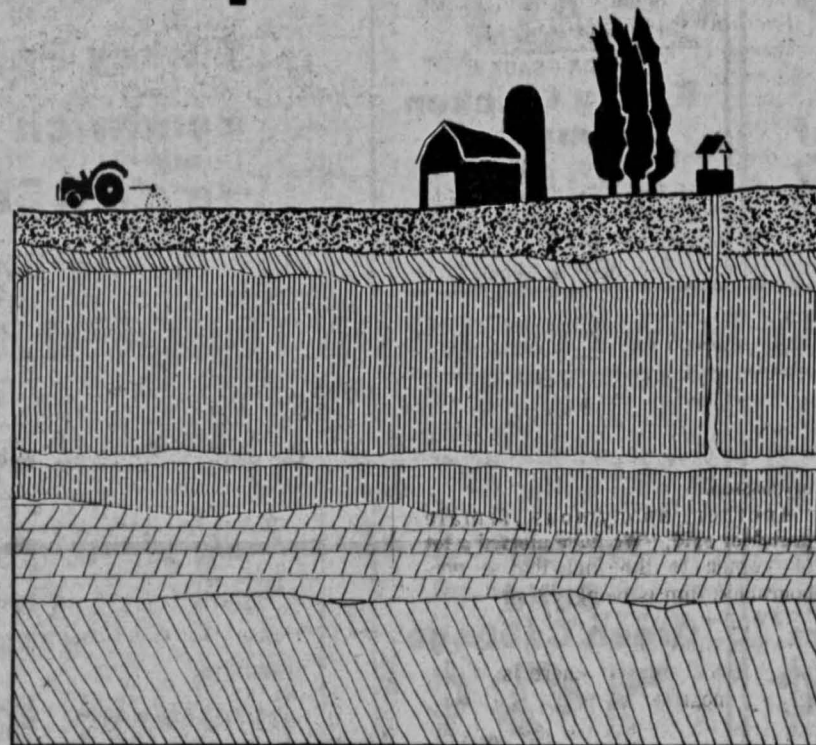

Fortunately, many states are realizing their responsibilities in this area and taking steps to enact and guide management of groundwater resources. In our part of the country, Minnesota and Illinois have adopted such plans, and Iowa is in the process of doing so.

The proposed guidelines are being drawn up by the state's Department of Water, Air and Waste Management and are to be submitted to the Iowa Legislature in January. Brian Barofka, project manager of the state water plan for WAWM, said a draft of the plan will be released in late October or early November, and public hearings will be scheduled for sometime after that.

The need for a comprehensive approach to questions of water use and abuse is perhaps illustrated indirectly by Iowa City's handling of a problem at its sanitary landfill.

FOR SOME YEARS groundwater has been seeping into the landfill and combining with the organic wastes therein to form an ooze called leachate. The leachate then oozes toward a nearby stream. Past attempts to contain the leachate have failed; currently the problem is controlled by collecting the leachate in storage ponds, then hauling it by truck to the city's already-overburdened sewage treatment plant.

The city hired Stanley Consultants of Muscatine to study the problem and propose a solution. The Stanley solution, which has not yet been submitted to the Iowa City Council for approval, involves digging a trench around the landfill to intercept the groundwater and divert it into the nearby stream. The trench would be nearly a half-mile long and average 22 feet deep, and would be laid with drainage tile. The plan could cost up to $248,700.

The Daily Iowan/Rosemary McMillan

Derek Maurer

WAWM's only role in the affair is to approve whatever solution is finally decided upon and to check on the city's progress from time to time. Iowa City Public Works Director Charles Schmadeke said WAWM simply doesn't have the staff to act as consultant in such cases. That's corroborated by others who doubt WAWM has enough staff even to carry out its mandated responsibilities throughout the better communication among the myriad of government agencies, private concerns and municipalities regarding groundwater resources. It is intended as a link between those with technical expertise and those who make decisions that affect groundwater use, allocation and quality.

THIS INITIATIVE, ongoing studies of aquifers and groundwater resources by the Geological Survey and the WAWM study all signal growing awareness of the importance of forming cogent policies for groundwater use and protection. WAWM's Barofka acknowledged that competing interests will have to be mediated in the state's water plan, as declining resources may not meet demand in the decades ahead.

It is thought that perhaps 95 percent of the United States' freshwater is stored in the beds of rock beneath our feet, and it is known that groundwater is the chief source of supply for most people. Shallow supplies are susceptible to contamination from surface activities, most notably farming but also waste disposal and chemical storage.

Water from deep wells in southeast Iowa probably fell as rain more than 12,000 years ago, pointing to the non-renewability of groundwater resources, at least in terms of our short lives. It is imperative that the integrity of water resources be protected as a matter of public policy and that policy be set with an eye toward the distant future.

Industrial, mining and oil drilling (yes, oil drilling) interests will make their voices heard during the public input phase of WAWM's water plan formulation and in the legislature as final policy is hammered out. Let's hope there also is someone to speak for conservation and for the interests of coming generations.

Choosing a union—another viewpoint

By Julie Henderson and Connie Bates

OVER THE PAST four years, the state has convinced us that so long as we secretarial and clerical employees are unorganized, we shall never be dealt with differently from the currently organized groups. When the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers (AFSCME) bargains for blue-collar workers, we get what they bargain for whether we want it or not.

Think about it. When the AFSCME contract compressed merit steps and froze wages, we received the same treatment. We really wanted to be thought of as a separate group with our own needs and problems — and with our own solutions. But the state and the union wouldn't allow it.

In the last secretarial union election, one of us co-chaired the Concerned Staff Committee. At that time, she opposed AFSCME in order to vote "no representative."

WE BOTH NOW SUPPORT the Iowa Secretaries' Association (ISA), however, because we believe secretarial and clerical employees of the state need competent representation to address our many specific needs and concerns.

We believe that ISA can effectively address those concerns. We're pleased with the professional support ISA receives from the Iowa State Education Association, and we are excited about the possibility of clerical staff being represented by our own leadership.

The time has come for secretarial and clerical employees to join together to form our own organization, to find our own answers to our own problems.

The last opportunity for UI secretarial and clerical employees to vote is Thursday at the Union. A vote for "no representative" this time is a vote for AFSCME. We're voting for ISA, and we urge all other secretarial and clerical workers to join us.

Julie Henderson and Connie Bates are secretarial employees at Iowa State University.

The official policy

To the editor:

The Palestinian students and their associated student groups should be commended for crying out against injustice and wanton murder at the rally commemorating the deaths of Palestinian refugees at Sabra and Shatila.

One of the speakers emphasized that massacres should never be forgotten, including that of the six million Jews killed by the Nazis. It is unfortunate this apparent concern for Jews has never been an Arab policy. In fact, the official Arab policy speaks for itself:

"I declare a holy war, my Moslem brothers! Murder the Jews! Murder them all!"

— Haj Amin al Hussein, Mufti of Jerusalem, 1948

"We shall never allow Israel to live in peace. We shall never allow it total security. Every Israeli will feel that behind every wall there might be a guerilla who is aiming at me..."

— Farouk Kaddoumi, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization's political department, 1981

David Rosenthal

The sporting news

To the editor:

I felt that your (Sept. 5) front page article concerning the favorite sports of candidates Joe Johnston and Cooper Evans was a boring waste of good space.

With the election for Iowa's 3rd Congressional District seat coming so soon, it is important voters are informed of each candidate's views on political issues, not their preferences in the world of sports.

I'd like to see The Daily Iowan reporting more news on the front page, and less human interest trivia.

Board tightens grip on basketball ticket policies

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

Students who sell their basketball tickets to non-students in the future will have to suffer the consequences if they are caught.

A new ticket policy will go into effect this season which penalizes students who sell their tickets to non-students or allow someone else to use their ID, said Jill McLaughlin, ticket committee chairperson, at the Iowa Board in Control of Athletics monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Any student who sells his ticket to a non-student and is caught will forfeit all future ticket privileges, and a ticket that is accompanied by a different ID will cause the owner of the ticket to lose the use of the ticket for two games.

McLAUGHLIN SAID the penalty was added because it wasn't fair for students to sell tickets to non-students when there were so many students who couldn't get tickets. She added the problem has been "getting more and more blatant every year."

"But, we still encourage students to sell tickets to other students," she said.

The ticket committee also separated the tickets available to students into four categories.

A full season ticket, which includes the four games during the holidays, will cost $63 and a full season ticket without the holiday games will cost $49. Only students with a priority of three years or more will be allowed to purchase a full season ticket.

A SPLIT SEASON ticket, consisting of seven games, will be sold for $24.50, but split-season ticket holders will also have the option to buy a ticket for the holiday games at an extra cost of $7. Tickets for the Amana-Hawkeye Classic will be sold separately for $25 a piece.

As in the past, the tickets will be sold on a lottery basis based on a priority the student receives for the number of consecutive years he has purchased a ticket. Tickets will go on sale Oct. 1 at Carver Hawkeye Arena, and the last day to buy a ticket will be Oct. 10.

The ticket committee expects there will be a shortage of tickets available to students again this year.

Associate Athletic Director Larry Bruner said the athletic department expects 3,300 students with a priority of three, 3,000 students with a priority of two and 6,500 students with a priority of one to apply for tickets this season.

A TOTAL OF 6,000 tickets have been allocated to students this season. Bruner said if all 3,300 priority-three students buy full season tickets, only 2,700 ticket will be left. The department would then be able to fill only 5,400 applications for split season tickets.

The athletic department hopes to have more tickets available to the public because of the holiday ticket option.

Athletic Director Bump Elliott said the new system will make it possible for more people to see Iowa basketball games.

The Board decided at the meeting that the Academic and Achievement Committee should continue studying the problem involving the amount of time

Fry: Beaten Hawks still should shine

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

The Iowa football team may be "pretty well beaten up," as Coach Hayden Fry puts it, but the Hawkeye coach said at his weekly press conference Tuesday that he isn't giving up hope that Iowa will have a good football season.

"The sun don't shine on the same dog each day and that's why I keep my faith," Fry said.

Turnovers have plagued the Hawkeyes in their first three outings this season and a statistical comparison with last year gives Fry an answer as to why Iowa is 1-2 this season compared to a perfect 3-0 mark last year.

"We've definitely made progress," Fry said about his offense. "We've made progress in moving the football, eliminated some of the losses and a lot of the penalties. What we haven't done is eliminate the turnovers."

Hayden Fry

Fry SAID IOWA committed three turnovers in its first three games last year compared to 12 this year. "They've all been critical, too," Fry said. "About 75 percent of our penalties have been critical, too. It's just been one of those years."

Fry later said his staff explains the problems and doesn't dwell on them. "If you dwell on the problems, you might as well hang up your hat and say adios," Fry said.

The Hawkeyes continue to lead the Big Ten in total offense, a situation Fry admits is more than he expected while starting nine new players on the offensive side of the ball.

jury, is questionable for the Illini game, Fry said, and it is likely that Owen Gill will start at fullback with Ronnie Harmon taking the top running back position.

"I IMAGINE THAT Owen will play some running back and some fullback," Fry said. "He did an excellent job on Saturday."

Fry said that Gill is the only player on the team that can play both the fullback and running back positions and if Bush does return to the Iowa line-up, Gill would move back to his old spot.

"Bush isn't definitely out of this game but he is very questionable," Fry said.

But beating the injury bug isn't Fry's main concern. The sixth-year Iowa coach said his team is meeting a team that looks very similar to the Illinois team that won the Big Ten championship last season and represented the conference in the Rose Bowl.

"I'VE BEEN HAPPY with the line's progress," Fry said. "They're still making progress. The question is can we hang in there mentally and physically to play a real fine Illinois team."

Fry said six starters missed most of the team's practices last week and several more are sitting out this week.

"To play as tough as they did really makes me proud," Fry said. "As much as you hate to lose a game, the teams we've lost to have been class football teams and they don't take cheap shots."

Iowa fullback Fred Bush, who missed the Ohio State game with a foot in-

"THEY LOOK SIMILAR on film. They've got the same numbers, only different names. Somebody ought to investigate that to see if they brought anybody back," Fry jokingly said. "They didn't play well in a couple of games but in the second half of the game against Michigan State they looked tough."

Fry said he expects a very physical game from the Illini defense.

Iowa women's tennis Coach Charley Darley hopes he will never have to wait as long for a win as he did Tuesday in the Recreation Building.

Darley's squad took five hours and seven three-set matches to dispose of Iowa State, 6-3 for its second win of the season.

But the victory didn't come without a fight. "Iowa State was much tougher mentally today than we were," Darley said. "They showed no negative body motion out there; they just never quit. I was very impressed with their effort."

The Cyclones took wins at No. 4 and No. 6 singles as Sue Mobed and Kathy Reisinger held on for three-set wins.

THE HAWKEYES GOT wins from Jenny Reuter, Michele Conlon, Jennifer Forti and Pennie Wohlford.

Tennis

nifer Forti and Pennie Wohlford. Conlon and Wohlford were convincing winners. Forti and Reuter had to rally after being in control of their matches.

"I was disturbed with the way we eased off in some matches," Darley said. "We can't continue to do that."

All Iowa needed was one win in the doubles to clinch the match, but it would not come easy. At No. 2, the Hawkeye duo of Reuter and Kim Martin were seemingly in control of a second set tiebreaker, leading 5-1.

But Iowa State's Elaine Kostopoulos and Tami Pollard fought back to win 8-6, forcing a third set that the Iowa team finally took 6-3.

The clincher came at No. 1 where Forti and Pat Leary rallied from a set down to win just before the No. 2 match was finished.

IOWA HAD TO default the No. 3 match when Wohlford had to quit in the third set with back pains. Darley doesn't believe the injury is serious, but he didn't want to take any chances.

Cyclone assistant Coach Tim Wiser was ecstatic with the play of his team. "We had a slow start to the season, but we really came out and played hard today. We're getting tougher and tougher each week and I'm looking forward to the rest of the fall."

Wiser was impressed with Iowa's depth but he had some reservations mixed in with his praise. "They had a real tendency to lose their concentration," he said. "Some of their players let leads slip away. We've done lousy in tiebreakers all year, but we did well today."

Darley had praise for the play of the doubles teams. "They played very well," he said. "They played aggressively and came to the net and that is a good sign."

Iowa will be back in action this weekend at the Northwestern Invitational in Evanston, Ill.

Cubs come out of hibernation to celebrate first flag since '45

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cub fans have come out of hibernation to celebrate the team's first flag in 39 years and the faithful are hoping to continue their party through mid-October.

In a city-wide celebration, usually reserved for New Year's Eve, Cub fans broke loose years of frustration by hailing the 1984 Cubs as National League Eastern Division champions. The Cubs reduced the magic number to zero behind Rick Sutcliffe's two-hitter against the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1, Monday night in Pittsburgh.

Fans spilled onto the streets Monday night, singing "we're No. 1" and singing the Cubs new theme song, "Go Cubs Go" that was written by lyricist Steve Goodman. Goodman, known best for his "City of New Orleans" song by Arlo Guthrie, died last week of leukemia at age 35.

FANS CLIMBED above the rainshell on Wrigley Field and rooftops in apartment buildings around the field, waving Cubs pennants and setting off firecrackers.

Illinois Gov. James Thompson was among those celebrating the Cubs' win in his hometown of Chicago.

"Tonight is Cubs day; tomorrow is Cubs day; so is the next day and the next day and the next day, right on to Detroit," Thompson said.

Fans woke up to headlines in the Chicago Sun-Times that proclaimed "At last" in typesize reserved usually for the ending of a war. The Chicago Tribune, owners of the club since 1981, noted in smaller type, "Cubs win! Holy Cow! Leading their front page story with 'The suffering is over.'"

THE CUBS, WHO haven't won the World Series since 1908, will begin play next Tuesday at Wrigley Field against the Western Division champion San Diego Padres. The two teams split 12 games during the regular season.

Games one and two will start at 1:25 p.m., Iowa time, one hour earlier than originally designated because of the problem with late afternoon shadows at lightless Wrigley Field.

Sutcliffe will start against Eric Show.

"We want to savor this now," Sutcliffe said, "but the real celebration will be if we can win the pennant and get into the World Series."

Leon Durham, Cubs' first baseman, said the team is hoping to face the Tigers, their opponent in 1945 when the Cubs lost to the Tigers for the world's title.

Cold weather keeps the Hawkeyes cool

The cold weather slowed other people on Tuesday along with Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry, but the Iowa football team took the weather quite well.

"It is expected to frost now. It would only happen in Iowa," Fry, who was in his winter parka for the first time this year, said.

"It was a good practice and we've been working on preparation for Illinois since Monday and we'll look at them each day of the week and stress their offensive and defensive schemes and work on fundamentals."

Fry is also hoping that some of the Iowa's injured players will be able to get into uniform and practice before Saturday's contest. "We hope and pray some of our wounded guys can get back and workout before the end of the week," he said. "So far the injuries are coming along pretty good."

Trail Blazers, Bowie agree to terms

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers and first-round draft choice Sam Bowie agreed to terms on a lucrative six-year contract Tuesday that team officials said will make the 7-1 Kentucky center the third-highest paid rookie in NBA history.

The agreement, which came just four days before the opening of fall camp, was reached in New York between Bowie's agent, Larry Fleisher, and Los Angeles attorney Allen Rothenberg, president of the Los Angeles Clippers, who represented the Trail Blazers in the lengthy negotiations.

Hawkeye Knapp named all-American

John Knapp, the third baseman on the Iowa baseball team was named to the "Baseball America" freshman all-America team. Knapp was a second-team selection as a designated hitter.

The 6-foot-3, 185-pounder from Des Moines led the Hawkeyes with a .395 batting average, including nine home runs, 43 runs batted in and eight stolen bases. He was also a first-team all-Big Ten choice.

Bruins will hang Esposito's number

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Boston Bruins All-Star center Phil Esposito will have his old No. 7 hung from the Boston Garden rafters at the Jan. 17 game between the Bruins and the Calgary Flames, it was announced Tuesday.

A pennant with Esposito's name and his number will be raised to the rafters of the arena for permanent display, along with those of six other Bruins players previously so honored.

Dorothy, the official maintenance engineer of the 1984 On the Line contest, says that too many ballots are having to be disposed because entrants aren't following the rules.

That clogs up the trash cans, which fills up the garbage trucks which means we've got trouble right here in River City.

So, in other words, please, please, please follow the rules so Dorothy can enjoy her leisurely pace through the Communications Center each evening picking up little piles of vendoland cups and neatly discarded candy bar wrappers.

To help Dorothy with her work, we present the rules for The Daily Iowan's football prognostication contest, On the Line.

All you have to do is circle the winner in all 10 games on this week's ballot, including the tiebreaker (that's where Dorothy's workload increases). Then, predict the score of the Texas-Penn State game that will be played Saturday in East Rutherford, N.J. If you believe the game will end in a tie, circle both teams.

Sign your name and phone number on the bottom of the ballot and return it to Room 111, Communications Center by noon on Thursday. Contestants are limited to five ballots. DI employees are ineligible as are persons under 19 years of age.

This week's lucky winner will take home an eight-gallon keg of beer provided by Stonewalls on Iowa Avenue — one of Iowa City's best nightspots.

Good luck.

Suffering Hawkeyes drop three notches

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

After suffering two losses on the East Coast, the Iowa field hockey team dropped to ninth place in the first NCAA field hockey ranking of the season.

The Hawkeyes were ranked sixth in a preseason poll, but losses to Stanford, ranked No. 13, Temple, ranked No. 4, and North Carolina, ranked No. 5, caused the field hockey squad to fall three notches.

Old Dominion received all seven first place votes for a total of 140 points and was followed by Connecticut at No. 2 and Big Ten rival Northwestern at No. 3.

BACK LEE ANN Detwiler said she was surprised to find out that the Hawkeyes were ranked in the top 10, but thought the Hawkeyes were voted into the top 10 because of their past records.

Last year, the Hawkeyes tied for first in the Big Ten race with Northwestern and finished fifth in the national tournament. Iowa also spent five weeks at No. 3 last season.

Forward Deb Brickey said she was glad the Hawkeyes were ranked ninth. "I didn't think we would be ranked in the top 10" after the team's losses last weekend.

Iowa begins Big Ten action this weekend, but Detwiler said the Hawkeyes can still move up in the rankings. Wins against upcoming opponents Northwestern and Penn State would definitely push Iowa up in the rankings, she said.

"I DON'T THINK anyone is counting us out," Detwiler said. "I know we're not."

To advance to the national tournament in November, the Hawkeyes need to finish in the top 12 or receive an automatic berth by winning the Big Ten championship.

The defensive player said the Iowa team is playing good enough to move up; the players just need to get the ball in the goal.

"We're playing excellent field hockey now," she said. "It's just coming down to scoring."

Both Detwiler and Brickey said they thought the Iowa team played well over the weekend and shouldn't have lost to Temple or North Carolina or tied Rutgers.

"I thought for sure we would drop out of the top 10," Iowa Coach Judith Davidson said. "I think what kept us in this week was that the other coaches know that we're a good team."

The Iowa team is in a scoring slump, Detwiler said. The Hawkeyes outshot their opponents in all three games but only ended up with four goals over the weekend.

Detwiler said the team is emphasizing scoring in practices this week to get out of the slump. She added that once the Hawkeyes find the goal, there will be no stopping them.

Common bond between runners comes about in a variety of ways

Have you ever noticed that there seems to be a common bond between runners?

I have noticed this bond on many occasions and in many different ways. Sometimes I'll just be walking down the street and I'll see someone else with a running shirt on and I'll think, "They run just like I do. I wonder how they did (in that particular race)?"

Have you ever thought when you're running on one of your favorite routes when you see another runner coming your way that they are probably running for most of the same reasons that you are.

Of course you'll give them the complimentary nod (if you are becoming just a little bit tired by that time in your workout) or a nice healthy, "Hello!"

RUNNERS HAVE A strong feeling with other runners because they share a few basic ideas about what their doing.

Even last weekend when I was in Columbus, Ohio, Daily Iowan Photography Editor Dan Nierling and I took a run before the Iowa-Ohio State football game and the runners that we happened to run by on the way all gave us that healthy "Hello!"

I was running in a place where I have never been before and the people, of course didn't know me, but they identified with the fact that I was a runner and that they didn't say hello just because they knew me.

It also didn't have anything to do with the fact that I was a good runner or a bad runner or how old I was or what I looked like.

RUNNERS COME FROM every age group and every shape and size thought imaginable. They feel that way about other runners because of a bond that makes other runners feel that they are doing something that they enjoy and makes them feel good.

If you think this sounds so odd, how many people to you walk by in a normal day that you have never met before and you say hello?

In all practicality, runners are pretty conceited and they think they're better or just a step ahead so to speak of everybody else. If you're getting yourself in shape and you're looking and feeling better everyday because of your running why shouldn't you feel that way.

Running is one of the few individual sports that can make you feel part of group and in a few weeks the nation is going to get a glance to what a bunch of runners can do.

STROH'S BREWERY and the Brooks shoe company on October 13 are sponsoring the largest single-day running event in history to help restore the Statue of Liberty.

The 8,000-meter run is to be held Oct. 13 in over 120 cities to get the Statue of Liberty "back in shape" for its 100th birthday to be celebrated in 1986.

The nearest places to participate in The Stroh's Run for Liberty will be in either Moline, Ill., or in Des Moines.

The registration fee is $8 before Oct. 5 and you mail all entries to the Stroh's Run for Liberty, P.O. Box 49207, Atlanta, Ga., 30359. Before each run, each entrant will receive specific information on the run in their area and a Stroh's Run for Liberty T-shirt.

Iowa City marathon advance race registration is due by Oct. 1. The price is $7 for Iowa City Strider members for 5,000 and $8 for the 10,000, half or full marathons. The price for non-members is $9 and $10. Late race registration is $12 and $13 respectively.

Psychiatry helps peak performance

By Jeff Stratton
Staff Writer

For those of you who don't think your golf game is up to par, or if you can't dominate a basketball game the way you used to, help may be here.

Gene Gauron, UI professor of psychiatry, has written a book entitled Mental Training for Peak Performance, that he said, "is an attempt to describe a program for mind development."

"Coaches can make use of this book," Gauron said, "and the serious or not so serious athlete can use it. It is for anyone interested in peak performance."

Gauron said Mental Training for Peak Performance contains a variety of material concerning the mental aspect of performance. "There is a combination of material to think about," Gauron said. "There are mental exercises, and stories about athletes and teams for human interest."

THE BOOK HAS 15 chapters and is 190 pages long. Topics covered include the powers of the mind, managing tension and stress, body awareness, self-rejuvenation, programming the unconscious mind, cognitive restructuring, peak performance, mental preparation for competition, team building and cohesiveness, fear of failure and fear of success.

Gauron said he has worked for the last five years with many of the athletic teams on campus as a sports psychologist. "I've worked with men's swimming, gymnastics, baseball and tennis," Gauron said. "I've also done some work with the women's golf team, the gymnastics team and the tennis team."

GAURON HAS ALSO worked with some individuals from other Iowa sports teams. "It has been hit and miss with individuals from track, basketball and football," Gauron said. "But one way or another I have had contact with about every sport."

Mental Training for Peak Performance is available at some bookstores now. Gauron said that Prairie Lights and Iowa Book and Supply have the book in stock now and the Union Bookstore will be getting some copies in the near future.

So, if you are interested in the mental workings of athletic competition, or are looking to improve your performance in intramural games and recreational pursuits, you may want to give the book a look.

1984-85 STUDENT TICKET POLICY
1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price.
2. Students will receive a priority based on the number of consecutive years they have purchased an official basketball ticket at the University of Iowa with no loss in priority for student exchange programs off campus or home field illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. Student tickets will be on sale at the Athletic Department commencing October 1 and closing October 15, 1984. These tickets will then become available for pickup beginning November 15, 1984. The student I.D. card must be presented at the time of pick-up so that the student name and number can be stamped on the student tickets.
4. The public sale will open immediately after the student sale closes, therefore, a student who has not ordered by October 15 will have no further opportunity to buy a ticket for the 1984-85 season.
5. A University student may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight, provided he/she has the additional student credit only, but each individual student must pick up his/her own ticket and sign for it.
6. Each I.D. must correspond to the check being used to pay for the ticket.
7. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member of that group.
8. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by I.D. card and a current registration certificate. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. Anyone who sells a ticket to a non-student will forfeit all future student ticket privileges. The penalty for a violation of university policy on I.D. and tickets will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games.
9. Annual Exchange Classic tickets will be available to students at $15.00 per seat for the tournament. This is a special event and is therefore not on the season ticket.

White may have 'twist' for Iowa

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — Coach Mike White, happy with an improving running game, says Illinois wants to continue its offense, but may add a few twists Saturday when it travels to Iowa City to play the Hawkeyes.

Illinois ran for 201 yards and passed for 208 in a 40-7 win over Michigan State last week.

Establishing the running game early and sticking with it was a key to the win over Michigan State, White said Tuesday at his weekly media luncheon, and will also be the key to beating Iowa.

"We have to use what we have. We have to use our backs. We have to use (Ray) Wilson as well as (Thomas) Rooks, and (Eric) Wycoff as well as (Jackie) Johnson," White said.

"WE HAVE TO exhibit patience. We took a stride in that direction against Michigan State and now we have to do a better job of it.

"(Iowa is) the best all-around team we will face to date," White said. "They have experience. They have all-America people on defense. They're going to be tough to move the ball on. We know they will remember last year. They have plenty of incentive. We do too. We are still defending our conference championship," White said.

Illinois, which lost on the road in the Rose Bowl in January and against Stanford Sept. 15, will have to concentrate on a specific game plan to counter Iowa's home field advantages, White said.

"YOU CAN'T DWELL on their advantages, but they're obvious," he said. "We have to identify what it is that we're going to do and we have to work so damn hard on it, that when we do it we do emotionally."

And White, who before the season said he was working on formations using both Jack Trudeau and back-up quarterback Ken Cruz at once, said fans will see some new things against Iowa.

"We did a lot of things against Michigan State that we have not done before. And we intend to do some things this week that we have not done before, to try to give us some sort of an advantage," he said.

"That could be anything from a style of defense to a style of offense."

Houk retires from Red Sox post

BOSTON (UPI) — Veteran Boston Red Sox manager Ralph Houk Tuesday said he would retire from baseball at the end of the season.

"It's been a hard decision for me to make," Houk said. "I've enjoyed my four years here in Boston. I want to thank (team owners) Haywood Sullivan and Mrs. (Jean) Yawkey for the confidence they had in me."

Houk said he plans to spend more time with his family, which has had to endure "the hardships of travel and ups and downs of the game of baseball."

"I'm happy I can end my managing career in such a great baseball city as Boston," Houk said.

We won't be in any rush. We'll take our time to see who's available."

He said he respected Houk "too much to put pressure on him" to return, "especially given the time he has put into his decision."

"I don't think anything will replace the fun I've had from the game of baseball," Houk said. "It's hard to leave the players, who I feel had given 100 percent through some trying years and are now ready to go all the way in '85."

Until recent weeks it was assumed Houk would manage the team in 1985. Although his current contract expires Sunday, team owners had consistently supported him and offered a contract extension.

Houk frequently voiced his belief that the Red Sox are close to being a contender in the American League East.

"THIS SHOULD BE a hell of a ballclub next year. This team is pretty close to being a contender right now, and our record since we've put this lineup together (including recent acquisitions Mike Easler and Bill Buckner) indicates that," he said Monday.

In the past month Houk, who turned 65 in August, has mentioned that the rigors of travel were beginning to wear on him. He has said that salary was not a consideration in deciding whether to return.

He played in the Yankees organization for 12 years. For eight years Houk was a catcher in the big leagues, hitting .272.

HOUK IS IN his 20th season as a major league manager, all in the American League. He had two stints as manager of the New York Yankees, from 1961 to 1963 and 1966 to 1973.

He was the only manager ever to lead his team to World Series victories his first two years, and was general manager of New York from 1964 to 1966.

In 1974, Houk moved to the Detroit Tigers, who were in the process of rebuilding. He helped break in Alan Trammell, Lou Whitaker, Lance Parrish and Jack Morris, the players who are the nucleus of this year's Eastern Division champions.

Board

athletes should be allowed to miss classes due to games.

IN THE PAST, the Board has asked coaches to avoid scheduling games during midterm and finals week. But, the Academic and Achievement Committee will now look into establishing guidelines or a policy for coaches to follow.

Board member Bonnie Slatton said Wisconsin is the only school in the Big Ten which has definite policies regarding the amount of class time an athlete can miss. Athletes at Wisconsin can miss only six weekdays a semester.

In other business, Casey Mahon presented the Board with a report on the indoor practice facility and the outdoor track. The total estimated cost for the indoor facility is $3.1 million. The athletic department will also have to spend $250,000 to improve the electrical services for the facility.

The athletic department will begin taking bids for site construction on the practice facility Oct. 2 and then "begin digging holes within a week," Mahon said. She added the indoor facility is expected to be completed between September and October next year.

Fill work on Iowa's new outdoor track has already begun and the site should be ready for construction to start next spring, said Dick Gibson, UI director of facility planning.

Cubs

Durham said. "Bring on the Tigers."

"Let's enjoy this and take on the Padres," said outfielder Keith Moreland, one of nearly a dozen former Philadelphia Phillies that Cubs' General Manager Dallas Green brought over since 1981 to resurrect the Cubs.

Tickets for the playoffs were as hard to get as a winning lottery ticket. More than 2 million postcards were sent in for 7,000 tickets for public sale. The club's ticket manager, Frank Maloney, said he hoped to have the notification process completed by Wednesday.

The Cubs' victory in clinching the pennant was their 93rd, marking one of the most remarkable turnarounds in professional sports. Last year, the club went 71-91 and this year's 50-plus turnaround ranks as one of the most dramatic in history.

JIM FREY ALSO got a place in baseball history. The first-year Cubs' manager, a coach with the rival New York Mets last year, became the first manager in baseball history to win a flag in his first season in both leagues.

Frey, who won with Kansas City in 1980, had long downplayed any premature celebrating.

"But I knew after we came off the all-star break that we were going to be a serious contender," Frey said. "It just feels great."

Ironically, the flag marked Chicago's second straight after the rival Sox won the American League Western Division title one year ago. Last year's title was the first for a Chicago team since the Sox won the 1959 pennant.

Chicagoans had hoped for a city series but the Sox fell out of contention.

"FIRE! THE BAND'S ON FIRE!"

SHANGOYA INTERNATIONAL WILL BE AT THE CROW'S NEST TONIGHT.

Shangoya is an eight piece Calypso-Reggae band with members from four different countries. Their diverse backgrounds give the group a scintillating cross cultural sound and their variety of tropical rhythms set your feet to dancing. Shangoya was formed in 1973 by transplanted Trinidadians Aldric Peter Nelson and Neil Moran-Guevara (who has performed many times at the Nest as guitarist for The Tony Brown Band and has now returned to Shangoya.)

The name Shangoya literally means "Goddess of Fire", and brings to it's followers a warm, high, energetic feeling of international togetherness. The band has won numerous awards, including Best Regional Reggae Band, and has appeared in concert with such internationally known performers as STEEL PULSE, BURNING SPEAR, PETER TOSH and THE CLASH. Past Shangoya members have helped launch such bands as Macumba, Ipso Facto, Caribbas & Sweet Taste of Africa.

Shangoya's present lineup includes Aldric Peter Nelson (vocals, sax, flute, guitar, percussion), Neil Moran-Guevara (Guitar, vocals), L.C. Adams (bass), Robert Coleman (keyboards), Aaron Jenkins (drums), Eric Heim (guitar, vocals, sax, percussion), Lance Pollonais (steel drums, vocals, congas, percussion), Brian Alexis (congas, percussion, vocals) and Keith Edwards (sound engineer).

Duck's Breath zany antics 'dare to be seen' this week

By Kelly McNertney
Staff Writer

L EON MARTELL once vowed to make the felt tip-penned fire-breathing duck on his arm into a real tattoo, if the group was still together after 10 years. Well, it's been 10 years, and Martell is going to have to live up to his word ("...and totally deface my lily-white flesh?"), because Duck's Breath Mystery Theatre is together and going strong — the best it's ever been.

Merle Kessler's Ian Shoales, the cynical, clipped journalist, is appearing "irregularly" on ABC's "Nightline" and somewhat more regularly on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered." Mr. "I have a master's degree in..." Science, Dan Coffee's condescending creation, is also heard on NPR, along with the super-sports parody, "Stump the Stallion," hosted by Duck Jim Turner.

THEY HAVE received a $5,000 National Endowment for the Arts grant for the production of "Duck's Breath Home-Made Radio!" a 90-minute production first aired on NPR. The Duck's Breath Scholarship Fund (for anyone silly enough to want Duck's Breath listed on their resume) has raised $20,000 dollars for UI theater students. And they have a computer. "We're not sure exactly what to do with it yet," manager Steve Baker said.

The five Ducks (Bill Allard, Dan Coffee, Merle Kessler, Leon Martell and Jim Turner) are the original group which began performing 10 years ago in the Union, the Boulevard Room and Gabe 'n' Walker's Saloon in Iowa City. They were students with more energy than was needed to survive the UI theater program. After two years, they packed up and headed for the West Coast with stars in their eyes and two-hundred dollars to blow. They lived low, took some hard knocks and finally ended up where they are today: still on the West Coast.

What do they remember most about Iowa City?

"The Boulevard Room."
"Hamburg Inn No. 1, which isn't there anymore, by the way."
And what do they miss?
"The calmness of the Midwest."
"The weather."

THE WEATHER? Turner, who offered that curious answer, quickly explained himself. "The problem with San Francisco is there isn't any weather. There's just climate. I love Iowa's weather. I grew up in Iowa so my whole basis for understanding what day, what month it is is the weather. In Iowa, when it's August, right, you know it's August."

Are the Ducks worried that all their recent success and attention will go to their heads, thus endangering the group? Martell confidently answered that the Ducks would never "sell out" like that.

Theater

Kessler said he's ready to sell out now. Martell continued, explaining that none of the Ducks would ever be a "Rick Springfield, especially now that we're getting older than teen appeal age."

Kessler said, no, he still has teen appeal. The 10th anniversary of the group, which Martell so dreads, is to be celebrated in San Francisco, and in the true California tradition: "We're going to do a show, like, on a Friday, and then blow a whole lot of money on partying and mass suicide."

THE DUCKS ARE ALSO looking forward to their performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Macbride Auditorium. "It's our home town, you know," Turner said. They will give a premier performance of "Oedipussy." "We've combined the James Bond myth with Oedipus, the Sophocles myth. James Bond is in love with this woman who is actually his mother. And it goes on from there," Martell said. The rest of the material will be mostly new, as is typical of their shows here.

When the Ducks aren't traveling and doing live shows (they spend about three months out of the year on the road), they are each busy with personal ventures in the show-biz world. Martell is "working on being a performance artist in Los Angeles." Allard works with a production company in San Francisco. Coffee is a busy Mr. Science. Turner is doing a solo show ("queasy comedy — a little more left field than Duck's Breath"). Kessler, of course, is the paranoid Ian Shoales in his spare time, a character that he said is based on Rolling Stones and Esquire writers of 10 years ago: "all those hard-hitting journalists who ended up writing more about themselves than what they were supposed to be writing about."

WHAT DO THE Ducks see in the future? "Movies, movies and movies," Turner said. One screenplay, "Zelda, Cow from Hell" has been temporarily abandoned, but they hope to soon reorganize and try again. "Out of Control," a half-hour children's comedy series is premiering now on public television. "Something a little different than the usual Duck's Breath material," Baker said. "The humor had to be toned down a little, of course."

In the meantime, fans can expect the usual "sophisticated screw-ball comedy," as they prefer to call it. ("It's screw-ball by guys who should and do know better, but do it anyway.") They paddle merrily along, extracting humor from everyday experiences, mixing satire with silliness, off-beat with off-the-wall. Their promotion bulletin describes it as "a mix of odd costumes, grotesque facial expressions and general misinformation for the audience." And one mustn't forget the famous old Duck's Breath motto: "Dare To Be Stupid." They believe in taking such chances.

Writer, Duante's Virgil visit 'Infernal' Iowa City bars

LOOK, I don't exactly know how the whole thing started. I mean, I thought I'd seen it at those parties after the Cubbies clinched it — until last night ... last night when that Virgil guy took me to the upscale bars downtown. I thought maybe I'd see what the action was like. Instead, I wound up taking a damn tour of downtown and running into brownnosers, Republicans, sleazebags, business majors ... damn, you name 'em, I met 'em. That was the longest night I ever spent. Like when Virgil and I ...

Hang on, chief. Why don't you hang on a minute and catch your breath? You look all out of sorts. Kick back, have a smoke. Good. Now, start at the beginning. And just take it easy, all right?

"Well, it started at the Pentacrest. The sun was setting, and after running into a few militant Palestinian students and political science majors I met this guy in long flowing white robes, a Cubs cap and New Balance running shoes standing next to the Homecoming marker, or whatever the hell that thing is. He looked like one of those self-designated preacher guys that harangue passing students, you know. But he was ... something else.

"HOWDY," HE SAYS to me. 'My name's Virgil, and I'm here to show you around the really happening spots in this town.' I asked him how he expected to get into those places wearing athletic shoes. 'No problem,' he says, 'I've got connections in high places.' Meaning, I guess, that he knows Mayor McDonald or somebody who hangs out at Wilke's Tap.

"So I says, 'Sure. Be my guide through the sad halls of the College Street Plaza,' I says. And he chuckles, lights up a huge panatela, and says, 'Follow.'

I think I've heard this somewhere before ... "So this guy Virgil and me truck off toward this place on Washington that sells high-ticket burgers and stuff. Lots of polished brass, crystal chandeliers and all that jazz, you know. Looked pretty ... expensive.

"THE WEIRDEST thing was this sign, though ...

Sign? What sign? "Well, on the entrance to the plaza facing J.C. Penney's there was this big neon thing in purple and pink that read, 'Abandon all coin, ye who enter here.' It was as bright as day, but no one else seemed to see it. Virgil just snickered and pointed past it. 'This is the place,' he says. And I ... Well, I trembled. I don't know why, exactly. It wasn't cold or anything. It was just ... creepy."

Uh-huh. So? "So we went into this place on Washington, like I told you. We stepped inside and saw a huge crowd of people all wearing their Phi Beta Kappa pins. They were all drinking huge tumblers of Tanqueray and tonics and talking about their GRE scores and their law school offers. And they were all wearing this odd-colored war paint, I guess, on their noses — a kind of dark brick color."

Hmm. "ANYHOW, we wandered over toward College Street up the plaza and went into another place with lots of polished brass and chandeliers, etc. This one kind of smelled like Italian cooking, though. But that was about the only difference — that and the clientele."

How so? "Well, it was like a Reagan/Bush pep rally or something. Lots of little elephants. Practically everybody was drinking Manhattans and clapping each other on the back. And boy, was the cash rolling in! I never saw so many $100 bills in my life! It was positively scary.

"Virgil tapped me on the shoulder and says, 'Fact is, these guys don't really know what they're doing. It's just a belief they've adopted out of reflex or genes.' He sighed and signaled us to go.

"The next stop on our tour was just across the way. Not so much polished brass here, but lots of wood and MTV screens. The joint was packed so tight I couldn't help brushing against women as we made the tour. And as I did I was totally taken over by, well, lustiness. I couldn't get sex out of my mind. I was obsessed. Then this really good-looking babe starts talking to me.

"YOU KNOW, I could really go for a hunk like you," she says. 'Just so long as you're willing to die for love, I could go for it right now.' And I was in such a haze I was in the process of going for it when Virgil grabbed me and hustled me out of there.

"The lure of the sleazebags is sure 'nuff strong, 'eh boy?' he tittered.

"And so on and on and on it went, all through the night. My senses reeled; I think I fainted a couple of times. The wildest bunch was probably those Reaganite Democrats; Virgil and I came across them in that nice new hotel in the plaza."

I thought folks wearing track shoes — not to mention flowing white robes — couldn't get in places like that.

"As soon as Virgil whipped out his gold Amex card, he could have been wearing pasties and a G-string and still gotten in. In fact, I think I saw some folks actually wearing pasties up on the sixth floor of the place. They called themselves 'panderers' or suchlike. I was getting really confused by that time, I can tell you."

UNDERSTANDABLE. So how did it end up? "Well, somehow we got down to the bottom of the parking structure on Dubuque Street and, as we turned a corner we saw a fleet of black Mercedes. Sitting atop the last one was Lisa Birnbach. 'This is the source whence all the lust for trend springs,' says Virgil, who had started talking funny all of a sudden.

"Birnbach was throwing around Oxford button-downs and bottles of Polo aftershave and shouting the Harvard fight song. Then Virgil grabbed me by the lapels and says, 'Hold fast! There is no way but by such stairs to rise above such evil.' Pointing to the exit stairs, he says, 'Now go, and be more aware of the world in which you walk.' And then I passed out. When I came to, I was back safe in my bunk at Burge, blinking my eyes and sure I had dreamed the whole thing, except ...

Yeah? "Except I was broke and my Visa was snapped in two. And I saw Virgil hitching a ride out of town on North Dubuque."

Hancher to present Blackstone

Blackstone the Magician will bring his show of classic illusions to Hancher Auditorium for a 3 p.m. performance this Sunday, Sept. 30.

Harry Blackstone carries on the tradition begun by his father, the Great Blackstone, presenting a fast-paced, family show that combines comedy, music, sleight of hand tricks and razzle-dazzle productions of mystifying illusions.

Blackstone is a throwback to the old style top hat-and-tails showman, with the delivery of a tent-show evangelist as he picks the pockets of unwitting volunteers from the audience and accomplishes feats of apparent precogni-tion. Missing is the suggestion that occult forces are at work in any of the illusions, leaving the audience to enjoy the fun of being fooled.

In 1980, Blackstone became the first magic act on Broadway since 1942 and, with 112 performances, the longest running illusion show in Broadway history.

Tickets for Blackstone the Magician are $6, $8, $10, $12.50 and $15 for the general public and $4, $6, $8, $10 and $12 for UI students, senior citizens and persons 18 and under.

Blackstone tickets may also be purchased as part of Hancher's Sunday at 3 Series, a four-evening package offering a discount of over 30 percent.

Emmy Awards fail to entertain

By Merwyn Grote
Staff Writer

THE STAGE design for last Sunday's presentation of the 36th Annual Emmy Awards was bizarre, to say the least. The main set featured a giant head and shoulders cutout of a bespectacled family watching a television set, represented by an oversized pair of rabbit ears antenna. Instead of lenses in their glasses, however, they had large TV screens, each of which was broadcasting a large glaring human eye. The effect was creepy. These huge immovable cartoon figures with video eyes watched over the ceremonies with bleary-eyed fascination, dwarfing all the winners and presenters who paraded before them.

I am not sure whether these video-eyed figures were supposed to represent the typical American viewing family or simply the ones who survived Sunday night's three-hour-and-forty-minute-endurance test, but I am certain that it was one of the most hideous looking sets ever used on an awards show.

UNFORTUNATELY, the set was

one of the few interesting things in the entire program, which proved once again to be too long on time and too short on entertainment. One noticeable development this year was the breaking of the strangle-hold that NBC has had over the ceremonies for the last couple of seasons. NBC still won more than its rivals (11 to ABC's 6 and CBS's 9) but its previous awards blockbusters like "Cheers" and "Hill Street Blues" had to share their accolades with more conventional programming.

There were some surprises, the biggest of which was probably Tom Selleck's winning of best actor in a drama series. Usually performers in action-adventure series are overlooked for awards. Selleck obviously did not expect to win, and the Academy obviously did not expect him to win either, having prepared a bunch of loser's jokes for him to read afterwards. But Selleck's "Magnum, P.I." character, with his right-wing leanings and post-Vietnam anxieties, makes him more complex than the usual TV detective and the award was not out of order.

ALSO PLEASING was the award to Jane Curtin (actress in comedy series, "Kate and Allie"). The show was an instant hit last spring, but its short run normally would have curtailed Curtin's chances. One of the most underrated members of the original "Saturday Night Live" troop, it is gratifying that Curtin's comedy gifts are finally being recognized.

Certainly Curtin and Selleck deserved to win more than John Ritter (actor in comedy series, "Three's Company") or Pat Harrington, Jr. (supporting actor in comedy series, "One Day at a Time"). Ritter's shameless mugging and Harrington's lame macho parody hardly classify as outstanding performances, but since both are veterans of long-running, recently cancelled shows, the Academy members must have felt justified in rewarding them for endurance if nothing else.

As usual, some of the losers were more noteworthy than many of the winners. Considering that she was overlooked last year for her performance in "Who Will Love My Children," Ann-Margret seemed like a sure thing to win best actress in a drama special for "A Streetcar Named Desire." But Jane Fonda won for "The Dollmaker," partly because it took a twelve-year effort to get her film completed. If there is one thing that award voters love, its rewarding someone for a long, hard effort.

NOT SO SURPRISING was the fact that "Buffalo Bill" was once again skunked. This nasty little sitcom was a critical darling, but its unbridled cynicism was just not meant to appeal to a wide audience.

As for the show, the producers seem to do everything imaginable to drag it out.

Selleck served as host. He was charming, sincere, polite and utterly boring. One would think that the Academy would have learned by now that these affairs need an emcee with a sharp wit and preferably an acid tongue to keep the show bearable. Last year Joan Rivers proved to be perfect for the job, but apparently some minor gripes from sensitive viewers about her taste in humor scared the Academy into reverting to an emcee, who like the show itself, was safe and dull.
