UI project probes senate race

By Wendy Rosche
Staff Writer

A possibly politically motivated break-in and harsh accusations from one of the state's Senate campaigns preceded Tuesday's release of a 441-page UI research project on the race between Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, and Rep. Tom Harkin, D-5th District.

During the conference, Hochheimer revealed that his office was broken into during the early stages of the semester-long project. He said he discovered Sept. 14 that the door to his office had been pried open during the night. Books and papers were rifled and his phone had been unplugged, but nothing of value was taken, he said.

HE DECLINED to comment on who may have been responsible for the break-in or what motivated it. Class members were not informed about the break-in until Tuesday. One student said Hochheimer told them he didn't believe it was connected to the project until Monday, when he received a "hostile" phone call from the Jepsen campaign.

During the past eight weeks, Hochheimer's class has tracked Jepsen and Harkin through Congressional Records, Federal Election Campaign contribution reports, newspaper articles, political interest group ratings and information provided from each campaign.

Throughout the news conference, Hochheimer was questioned about how his political affiliation may have affected the project results, but the instructor denied the results were biased. "I vote 'em as I see 'em, but that's between me and the ballot box," he told reporters.

Hochheimer said he was a registered Republican in California but did not elaborate on his current political views. Yet he said Jepsen's press secretary David Eno accused him of being a "radical socialist" during a "quite hostile" phone call Monday night.

"WHY WAS (ENO) so upset with me when we've never met?" Hochheimer asked.

He added, "Maybe they (the Jepsen campaign staff) thought there was something to hide" that might be revealed in the report.

Eno said Hochheimer's report "reflects very badly on the university," but claims he did not call Hochheimer any names and was not

Johnston, Evans get praise for campaigns

By Dawn Utterall
Staff Writer

Johnson County leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties praised both Cooper Evans and Joe Johnston for avoiding the negative campaigning that has plagued the U.S. Senate race in Iowa.

"I suspect (Evans') been home calling her and there, but not as a matter of practice" in the race between Republican Evans and Democrat Johnston for Iowa's 3rd District congressional spot, Johnson County Democratic Party Chairwoman Pat Gilroy said.

"Negativity really gets the attention of people and sticks in their minds, but there hasn't been very much negativity" in the 3rd District race, Johnson County Republican Chairman James Blahner said.

"My attempts Johnston has made to negative comments have not been used to be responded to in kind because Evans is so far ahead," said Blahner, who predicted Evans would "walk away with" the election.

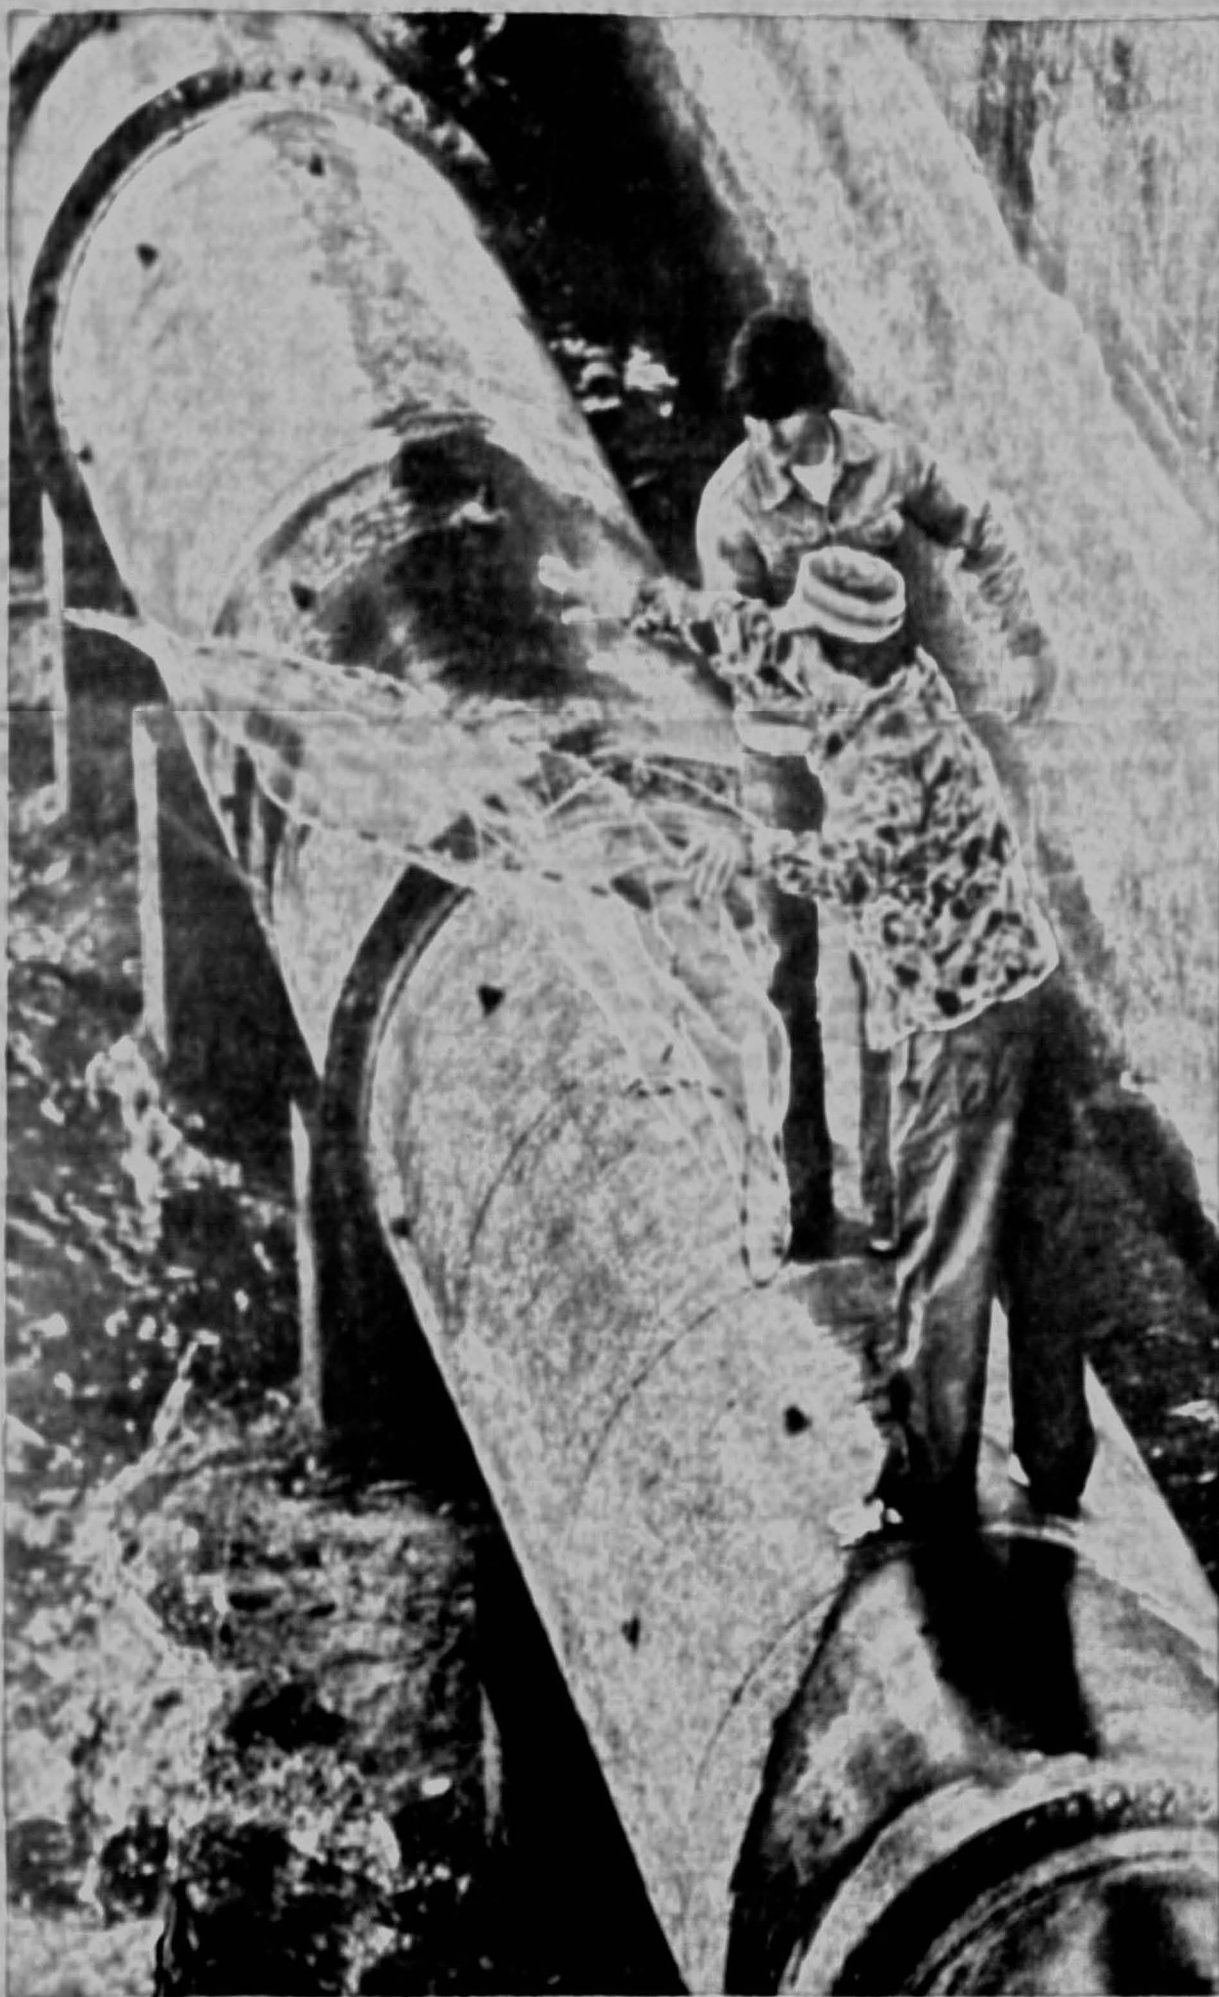

"EVANS HAS SO much blue support through the whole district that I'll walk away with it," he said. "People have seen him to be a very capable congressman."

However, Gilroy said she is not listening seriously to the polls that show Evans many points in front of Johnston. "Johnston could gain on the racial effect of (Tom) Harkin," she said. Harkin is opposing incumbent Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa.

"What's impressed me with Joe," Gilroy said, "is that he's kept (the campaign) on the issues" by focusing on the failure of Evans to lobby for measures to benefit Iowans.

Gilroy said there is "no comparison" between the Evans-Johnston race and the Jepsen-Harkin battle, which has been criticized for negative television and radio advertisements. Monday at a Des Moines press conference, Jepsen said he was ending his negative campaigning for the remainder of the campaign in order to focus on his voting record in the Senate.

Fishnet stalking

Balancing on an inlet pipe, Shane Semler flings a fishing net into the Iowa River Tuesday afternoon as Doug Beerling keeps a grasp on the rope. The two were using the net on the west side of the river below the Hydraulics Laboratory to catch shad, which they use for bait while fishing further down the bank.

Haunted Forest attracts crowds

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

They warned us, but we didn't listen. The signs read "Haunted Forest," "Go Back" and "Scram." We paid no heed.

We were the young and old among us, and we gave us all the scare we could bear.

"They" were members of the UI Division of Recreational Services who played host to an estimated 4,000 people at the Macbride Field Haunted Forest.

The Halloween project was the first major program held at Macbride Field since Recreational Services gained control of the 435 acres in July.

"This is the first year we've done this (the haunted forest), so we've had typical first-year problems," said Wayne Fett, recreational services graduate assistant and project co-director.

Both Fett and Recreational Services Director Barry Ostrander said the haunted forest, which opened Oct. 21 and will be open through tonight, attracted a much larger crowd than anticipated.

"I, PERSONALLY, was hoping for about 200 people each night and we've surpassed that by a long shot," Fett said. Approximately 1,200 people had journeyed through the haunted forest by last night, and Fett estimated a total of 4,000 will have been scared by werewolves and bears before they shut down tonight.

Ostrander said he "never anticipated this kind of response. It's really been more than we can handle at times."

Members of the UI Intramural Officials Association and Lambda Chi Alpha and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternities helped with the first UI haunted forest.

"It's been fun, but the nights get a little long at the end," said Brad Snell. Snell is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity who, disguised as Superman, led groups through the forest.

Groups of approximately 30 people were taken first to a campfire where they were told the customary scary stories about the woods and its resident werewolf.

"I can't see what's hiding out there in the woods, can you?" asked Lambda Chi Alpha member Doug Dudleston as thrill seekers crowded around the fire. "I mean, there are some real weirdos out in the world and who am I to say they're not hiding in this forest?"

AFTER SUFFICIENT fright was instilled in the hearts of participants, they boarded hayracks and began a journey past graveyards, headless horsemen and gravediggers, as well as witnessing a chain-saw massacre.

"The chain-saw massacre scene is

Assailants gun down Indira Gandhi

Sikh ambush leaves leader on critical list

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was shot and critically wounded in the abdomen in an assassination attempt Wednesday morning at her residence, police said.

The Press Trust of India said three assailants — members of the Sikh religion that has been seeking autonomy for the northern Punjab state — shot Gandhi eight times.

An official police spokesman told United Press International that Gandhi, 66, was wounded in the chest and abdomen in the shooting at 9:40 a.m. and taken to the All India Institute of Medical Sciences for surgery, police said.

Hospital sources said she was bleeding profusely and her injuries appeared "critical."

THE DOMESTIC NEWS agency, the Press Trust of India, reported Gandhi was shot eight times in an assassination attempt involving three assailants.

Security guards shot and killed two of the assailants and a third was arrested, the agency said. It said the attackers were three Sikhs — two wearing traditional beards and one clean-shaven.

More than a dozen doctors began surgery to remove the bullets from her body.

She was being given continuous blood transfusions, doctors said.

Gandhi has been the object of threats by radical Sikhs who blame her for ordering an Army attack on the Golden Temple of Amritsar — the holiest shrine of the Sikh religion — in June.

EARLIER THIS MONTH, four Sikhs were arrested by police who said they were on their way to New Delhi to assassinate national leaders.

Gandhi — the only child of the late

Indira Gandhi

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, father of independent India who died in 1964 — first became prime minister in January 1966.

She lost a re-election bid in 1977 but regained the prime minister's post in 1980.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said it was anticipated that President Reagan would be notified about the shooting. Officials in Washington were awaiting further details before commenting.

GANDHI TOLD UPI in an interview earlier this month that she did not fear assassination attempts.

"I am frequently attacked," she said. "Once a man poked a gun at me, another time in Delhi someone threw a knife at me."

"And then, of course, there are always the stones, the bricks, the bottles — especially at election time."

Kidnapped priest found dead

WARSAW, Poland — A pro-Solidarity priest was found dead in a reservoir Tuesday, 11 days after he was kidnapped by three national police agents in what authorities charged was part of a conspiracy to undermine the government.

The Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko was an ardent Solidarity supporter and known for his fiery anti-state sermons. Solidarity founder Lech Walesa called the death of the priest "a mortal blow" to Poles and appealed for national calm.

Terrorists threaten Herzog

JERUSALEM — The Jewish terrorist group that killed an Arab and wounded 10 others in a rocket attack on a Jerusalem bus threatened the life Tuesday of Israeli President Chaim Herzog, Israel radio reported.

The state-run radio said a man identifying himself as a member of the "Avengers" group called the presidential residence and said the Irish-born Herzog was "next in line." Herzog has in the past spoken out vigorously against acts of anti-Arab terrorism by Jewish groups.

Ammunition dump explodes

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Shrapnel from bursting rockets and bombs rained over Jakarta a second straight day Tuesday as firemen battled a huge blaze at a munitions dump that caught fire, killing 13 people and forcing thousands to flee a posh residential area.

The fire followed bomb threats against at least two of Jakarta's largest buildings Monday, a rash of bombings of Chinese businesses earlier this month and anti-Chinese rioting in the capital Sept. 12 that left at least 20 people dead.

Bolivia president ends strike

LA PAZ, Bolivia — President Hernan Siles Zuazo called off his hunger strike protesting charges he was involved in cocaine trafficking and accepted a Catholic church proposal for a political truce, a church statement issued Tuesday said.

Siles, 71, began the fast Thursday to dramatize the need for national political unity. The church said the proposal "will be published at the opportune time" and was designed to "find an understanding for the Bolivian family."

OPEC agrees to cut back

GENEVA — OPEC's 13 oil ministers tentatively agreed Tuesday to share a temporary production cut of 1.5 million barrels a day in a bid to bolster sagging world oil prices and prevent a global price war.

Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto, OPEC's acting president, said the production rollback would take effect Thursday and "everybody will take part in the production cut."

Reagan signs trade bill

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan signed an omnibus trade bill Tuesday, promising to use it to seek increased "free and fair" trade rather than new restrictions.

The new law gives a president greater authority to either open up trade or restrict it. Reagan and U.S. Trade Representative William Brock both stressed the administration is committed to the first of those courses.

Reagan vetoes youth job bill

WASHINGTON — President Reagan vetoed legislation Tuesday that would have borrowed an idea from the New Deal and put up to 37,000 young people to work on federal, state and Indian lands as part of a youth conservation corps.

The bill would have created year-round jobs for men and women 16 to 25 and summer employment for youths 15 to 21. In total, the bill would have provided 37,000 jobs. Reagan said the bill was based on a "discredited" approach to youth unemployment and duplicated programs under the Job Training Partnership Act.

A Belle Plaine, Iowa, man made an initial appearance Monday in Johnson County District Court on a charge of second-degree theft.

Court records state that Duane D. Snyder, 48, rented a number of items on two occasions in August from Taylor Rental, Highway 6 West, Coralville, and did not return them.

On both occasions — Aug. 16 and Aug. 20 — Snyder rented the items in the name of Sioux Land Wall Co. Snyder did not work for the firm at the time he rented the items and was not authorized to do so by the company, according to court records.

The total value of the rented items, which included a paint sprayer, mortar mixer, portable air compressor and a hose, is approximately $2,800.

Danny Lee Baines, 29, of 914 Fifth St., Coralville, received a two-year suspended sentence and was fined $1,725 Monday in Johnson County District Court for operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was under suspension.

Baines was also placed on probation with the 6th Judicial District's Department of Corrections for two years.

Court records state that when Baines was stopped by Iowa City police on July 27 for driving erratically on North Dubuque Street, he admitted to the officers that his license was under suspension.

Baines' license was suspended for six years in November 1980 when he was convicted as an habitual offender, according to court documents.

A North Liberty, Iowa, man was sentenced Tuesday to 60 days in the Johnson County Jail after pleading guilty to a charge of third-degree criminal mischief in Johnson County District Court.

Eric J. Schappveld, 19, was given credit for 17 days previously served and was placed on probation with the 6th Judicial District's Department of Corrections for two years. He is also to pay the fee of his court-appointed attorney when it is approved by the court.

Local business, officials honored by commission

The Iowa City Human Rights Commission announced it is honoring an Iowa City business and two individuals for their achievements in promoting human rights.

Sharon Doran's Academy, 111 East Washington St., was recognized because of its program to train and hire mentally disabled people.

Karla Miller, coordinator of the Iowa City Rape Victim Advocacy Program, was honored for her efforts to educate the community about sexual abuse and the legal rights of rape victims.

Marion Coleman, a public school teacher who has served as co-chairwoman of the Human Relations Committee of the Iowa City School Board and is past secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was recognized for her individual efforts in the field of human relations.

"We all feel extremely honored and are proud to accept this award," said Cindy Dolan, general manager of Sharon Doran's Academy.

This is the first time the Iowa City commission has presented human rights awards, but Phyllis Alexander, Iowa City human rights specialist, said she anticipates the program will be continued.

"Those who worked closely with this program said there were many very good nominations and the decision was really a difficult one," Alexander said. "On that basis alone, I'd say this program will probably be continued."

Plaques were presented to Miller, Coleman, and representatives of Sharon Doran's at an awards breakfast at the Iowa City Holiday Inn this morning.

CAC passes resolution to ease computer rental

The Collegiate Associations Council

passed a resolution Monday dealing with the UI personal computer rental in an effort to reword the guidelines for purchasing and leasing the equipment.

The resolution recommends reworking the payment plan for students who decide to buy the computers they have rented from the university.

The suggestions, which the CAC said would make the program less expensive for students, include reducing the overall system prices, reducing the loan interest charges and extending the payment of loans up to four years or upon final graduation.

The other part of the resolution recommends either part-time or full-time students be allowed to register to rent a computer. The current wording excludes part-time students, including graduate students.

CAC member Nicholas Hamy, the author of the resolution, said he wrote the resolution because "as a computer purchasing plan, (the guidelines) are not very aggressive toward student needs."

UI chess club boasts Iowa's youngest master

Move over, Bobby Fischer. Here comes UI's Ken Wallach, Iowa's youngest chess master.

Wallach, a 20-year-old electrical engineering student from Lincolnshire, Ill., is president of the UI chess club and a former two-time Illinois high school chess champion before coming to Iowa.

There are only seven chess masters in Iowa, and most of them are in their mid-thirties or older, Wallach said. Chess masters represent only the top 2.3 percent of all chess players, and the title is almost the chess world equivalent of a black belt, he said.

A chess master is a title given by the American Chess Federation, based on a mathematical formula of wins, losses and draws from 20 or more tournament games, Wallach explained.

A LARGE TABLE-TOP chess board dominates Wallach's living room at 414 S. Dubuque, No. 4. Wallach said he averages about two hours of chess-playing a day, "to keep in shape."

Wallach has traveled around the Midwest to compete in over 60 chess tournaments. He became a chess master in the Summer of 1983, and has been the president of the UI chess club for the last two years.

Wallach said he enjoys chess for several reasons. "I love the competition. It's just satisfying to play a good game of chess," he said.

"It helps me to think clearly," Wallach said, and added playing chess may lead to getting better grades.

Wallach enjoys the social aspects of the game along with the competition and challenge. "I've met a lot of people through chess," he said.

The UI chess club meets in the Union twice a week to play. They meet Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. and Wednesday from 6:30 to 10 p.m.

The club is relatively unknown, said Wallach. There are currently 12 members, but Wallach said "For every member there's probably five more avid chess players out there."

A LACK OF awareness about the club is probably the main reason for the small amount of members, Wallach said. The $6 annual dues may also be a factor.

"We're hoping to play other schools this year," Wallach said. Last year, Grinnell College's chess team came to the UI to battle it out with the UI chess club. UI lost by half a point, Wallach recalled.

This year, the club is trying to raise enough money to enable it to send an eight-person team to the Pan American Tournament, a 4-day tournament to be held in Kitchener, Ontario.

Wallach said getting funds for the chess club is a headache. "Is chess a sport?" was the question raised by Iowa City Recreation Services when representatives from the chess club went there in search of funding.

The UI Student Senate had referred the group to Iowa City Recreation Services because they claimed chess is a sport, therefore not eligible for funding.

Meanwhile, however, the debate over the classification of chess has led to a continued lack of money in the UI chess club coffers. "There's less than a dollar in there now," Wallach said.

Wallach raised $25 for the UI chess club at the Homecoming Student Activities Fair in September, when he played six competitors in chess simultaneously over the course of three hours.

Democrats gain in vote figures

Wendy Rosche
The voter registration figures indicate a shift in the county electorate that puts the Democratic party in a more advantageous position than they were four years ago, according to Johnson County Auditor Tom Slockett. Following the final day of voter registration last Saturday, 25,468 Johnson County residents had registered as independents, 24,012 registered as Democrats and 12,012 registered as Republicans.

Slockett said the figures indicate "a substantial shift in the last few years" toward the Democratic Party. "The overall pattern puts the Democrats in a more advantageous position."

The 1984 final registration figures show 41 percent of the voters as registered independents, 39 percent Democrats and 20 percent registered Republicans.

Registered voters in Johnson County

1984		Percent
Republican Party	12,144	20
Democratic Party	24,012	39
No Party	25,468	41
Total	61,624	100

1980		Percent
Republican Party	11,930	19
Democratic Party	22,529	36
No Party	27,651	45
Total	62,110	100

DI chart/Rosemary McMillan

agreed that the Democrats have a bigger advantage this year. "I don't know where (Slockett) got that idea," Balmer said. "I don't think there's been a very significant shift."

"I don't look much at percentages until election day," he said. Balmer added that he has seen a "dramatic shift to the Republican philosophy" in the Iowa City area.

Balmer said many new residents coming in to Iowa City are middle class and will probably vote Republican.

Pat Gilroy, chairwoman of the Johnson County Democratic Party, said if the Republicans feel there is a shift in the Republican philosophies in the area "then they ought to be running more candidates in Johnson County."

EVEN THOUGH there are still more registered Democrats in the area, Balmer said the Republicans will turn out at the polls in greater numbers than Democrats. "The key has always been who votes," he said.

"The Democrats especially will be surprised by the fact that we feel Cooper Evans (R-3rd District) will carry Johnson County and that will be an indication of the strength of the Johnson County Republicans," Balmer said.

"I don't see how they can calmly claim that Cooper Evans is going to win in Johnson County," Gilroy said.

Both Balmer and Slockett said the new system of postcard registration has helped voter registration in the county. Since July 30, 12,603 voter registration post cards have been processed.

Slockett called the postcard registration "favorable and positive. It was a record number since I've been in office."

One discrepancy in the final voter registration count is the number of people who no longer reside in the county, but are still registered to vote here. Slockett estimated that number at around 10,000 voters.

Lloyd-Jones all set for fourth term

Joe Stoga
As the campaign season winds down in its end, State Rep. Jean Lloyd-Jones, Iowa City, is already planning for her next term in office.

Lloyd-Jones, who is running unopposed, said she will push for a state lottery bill to help the Iowa economy get back on its feet.

"I think it is essential if Iowa is ever going to be a thriving economy," Lloyd-Jones said.

She said Iowa residents currently travel to neighboring states to purchase lottery tickets. An Iowa lottery, she said, would bring in revenue that could be used for education and social programs.

She is also aware of the importance of the Iowa railway system.

After a majority in the Iowa Legislature decided the railroad problem in Iowa should be handled by the federal government, Lloyd-Jones pushed for state action to help the railroad.

Jean Lloyd-Jones

"EVERYONE SAID it was a federal problem, but I believed the state needed to be the lever," Lloyd-Jones said.

As a result of her actions and those of other Iowa legislators, the Iowa Rail Financial Authority was formed. Lloyd-Jones said the authority has the right to issue bonds and acquire railroad property throughout the state. She said the authority was instrumental in saving the east-west railroad line.

Lloyd-Jones, 55, said she has been a supporter of the rail system because "it is the most economical and efficient long haul system" here in the United States. She stressed a rail system in Iowa is important to enable farmers to inexpensively transport their products.

"In order to ship grain out we need low cost, efficient transportation if we are going to compete with the Sun Belt states," Lloyd-Jones said.

According to Lloyd-Jones, the railway system is tied to the economy in Iowa. She said companies are leaving Iowa due to cheaper transportation and operating costs in other states.

LLOYD-JONES CITED the case of a printing company which moved to Iowa after they were promised rail service.

When the rail service was stopped, the company was forced to use trucks to transport their goods at a higher price.

Once the railroad started up again, the company was able to expand, bringing jobs and revenue to the state.

Lloyd-Jones also said she is a strong supporter of comparable worth. She said the problem with comparable worth is not that women are being paid less for doing the same job as men, but that they are not being considered for the same jobs as men.

"Men with more or less the same grade point as a woman will be put into a managerial trainee job while women will be slotted into an administrative assistant or secretarial position," Lloyd-Jones said. She said women need to be more aware of the business world and strive to obtain top positions in companies.

"Women need to learn more about corporate structure," Lloyd-Jones said. "They need to be more aware and become sharp."

Lloyd-Jones is an Iowa City resident and former president of the Iowa League of Women Voters.

Jepsen bows out of final debate

DES MOINES (UPI) — Sen. Roger Jepsen Tuesday bowed out of his final debate with Democratic challenger Tom Harkin, prompting the opposition to suggest it was because Jepsen "lost ground" in a debate the previous night.

Jepsen issued a statement saying he was canceling the Friday debate, sponsored by the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, because "Mr. Harkin is having difficulty with the previously established debate rules."

"At my announcement back in March, I stated I would participate in four debates," Jepsen said. "We've met our commitment. We have not heard back from the Harkin people and I won't allow this dilly-dallying to continue."

Harkin campaign manager John Frew said Jepsen may have pulled out of the debate at the last minute because of his performance at a Monday night debate in Sioux City.

Tom Harkin

Roger Jepsen

"OBVIOUSLY, the senator feels he lost a lot of ground in last night's debate," Frew said.

A controversy had developed over whether the candidates would be allowed to use notes during the final debate. But Jepsen's staff said his decision to withdraw had nothing to do with the notes issue.

Jepsen aide David Eno said the issue is Harkin didn't respond to a letter asking Frew to "advise us immediately" if Harkin did not plan to participate in Friday's debate.

Frew said he did not receive the letter until midnight Monday. He said he "didn't get 24 hours to respond to this."

Frew said Jepsen's campaign had suggested the Des Moines debate. He said Harkin's campaign had indicated it was even willing to debate with notes, although Harkin would have preferred a more spontaneous exchange.

"He's pulling out for no reason at all and it's unfortunate," Frew said.

PREW SAID Harkin has offered to answer questions from the chamber in a solo appearance Friday if the debate sponsors are interested in such an arrangement.

Rick Phillips, spokesman for the Greater Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber received word Tuesday of Jepsen's decision to cancel but said the announcement didn't come as a surprise.

"There's been some question as to whether it would happen," Phillips said, adding the chamber's board would decide whether to cancel the event altogether if both candidates are not present.

Jepsen said he believes "people will be relieved" that the candidates aren't meeting again.

"People are telling me they're sick of it all and not only are they getting tired of listening, I'm getting tired of listening to myself discussing the very same thing over and over," Jepsen said.

Accreditation likely for J-school

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

After nearly a year of preparation leading to three days of evaluation, the UI School of Journalism has been recommended for reaccreditation by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communication.

Members of the ACEJMC accreditation team began their UI evaluation Sunday and met with UI journalism and administrative officials Tuesday to report that they will recommend the school for accreditation.

Kenneth Starck, director of the UI School of Journalism, said the school has been accredited since 1978, but the accreditation applied only to its news-editorial sequence of courses.

"The emphasis, since the last time we requested accreditation, has shifted. Now over half of our students are enrolled in the mass communication lab sequence," Starck said. "For that reason, we felt it was important to try to gain accreditation for a larger portion of our program."

INVITATIONS FOR evaluation by ACEJMC must be extended by the school seeking accreditation and are generally issued every five years. The UI's 1984 invitation asked that the mass communication laboratory sequence, news-editorial sequence and journalism master's program be evaluated.

Starck said all three of the school's programs will be recommended for accreditation by the evaluation team. Because over half of all UI journalism students are involved in one of the three programs recommended for accreditation, the entire school will become accredited if the recommendations are accepted.

The accreditation team recommendations will be presented to the Accrediting Committee of ACEJMC in April and later to the entire ACEJMC body. A final decision regarding the accreditation will be made in May.

"I was led to believe that, in most cases, recommendations from the evaluation teams receive endorsement from the overall body (ACEJMC). In any case, I should sleep a little better tonight," Starck said.

HE ADDED, "It seems to me that with a program of our sort — with such a strong professional emphasis — that professional and academic accreditation is a very desirable thing to have."

Starck explained accreditation means "certain minimal standards have been met. As a 'J-school' director, I have never been satisfied with minimum standards."

Starck, who will be stepping down from his position as UI Journalism School director at the end of this academic year, said the accreditation process played a role in his decision to "stay one more year."

"SOME FACULTY members and Dean (Howard) Laster (former dean of the UI College of Liberal Arts) asked me to stay on," Starck said. "I said I'd stay if there was a special reason for me to do so. I guess the accreditation became the special reason."

William Zima, UI journalism associate professor, said he "expected nothing but a recommendation."

"I'm very positive about the recommendation, but I really did expect it," Zima said. "Of course I'm biased, but what the hell would I be teaching here for if I wasn't?"

If ACEJMC accepts the accreditation committee's recommendation next spring, the UI School of Journalism will join what Starck called "an elite group of schools." Approximately 90 U.S. journalism schools are accredited by ACEJMC.

Safety first is trick of the treat

By Greg Miller
Staff Writer

A dark, chilly, moonlit night with creatures roaming the neighborhoods is less spine-chilling than the real horrors that could be inflicted on Halloween trick-or-treaters.

The Iowa Department of Public Safety has published a list of safety tips for parents and motorists to be aware of when children in Halloween costumes are in the streets tonight.

"We always like to make sure that the young ones have adults along with them," said Iowa City police Capt. Don Strand. "It gets to the point where I'd like to have adults with them at any age, but particularly the little ones."

The Iowa DPS states, "Choose costumes that are fire-resistant or, if the costume is homemade, soak it in a solution of seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid in two quarts water."

IF A CHILD is carrying a jack-o-lantern, a small flashlight should be used instead of a candle in order to prevent a fire.

Since trick-or-treaters spend most of their time on the streets, special care should be taken to make sure the children can see and be seen.

"We like to see (trick-or-treaters) dress in clothing that does not obscure their vision so that they don't wander out in front of a car, and that it's visible enough that they are readily seen," Strand said.

"The make-up is nice because they don't have anything obscuring their faces."

Parents are also encouraged to only let their children trick-or-treat in the immediate neighborhood, and in groups, according to the state DPS.

"I would want the parents to inspect the 'loot' that they get after trick-or-treating personally," Strand said. "Don't let the kids start gobbling while they're on their way around, but take it home and pour it out and go through it."

"WE WOULD LIKE to see more of the sealed packaging than the loose candy," he said.

Police around the country have been alerted to call "Halloween Hotline" if any contaminated candy is found.

Halloween Hotline is an "in-house" study of contaminated candy by an unidentified confectionary company. Only law enforcement agencies are to call in reports of contaminated candy.

Other safety tips listed by the state DPS and mentioned by Strand are:

- Have children wear light colored outfits or place reflective strips on costumes to make them more visible.

- Encourage trick-or-treating early in the evening, when drivers are better able to see the children.

- Ask the children to use sidewalks or, if there are no sidewalks, walk facing traffic and far off the traveled portion of the road. Instruct them to cross streets only at corners, and to look both ways before crossing.

Freeze only way to cool down the Atomic Cafe

By Dr. Vernon P. Varner

AS PRESIDENT OF the Iowa chapter of Physicians for Social Responsibility, I wish to share with voters and members of this nonpartisan, nonpolitical organization will be fully aware of in this upcoming election.

The size of the nuclear arsenals that the United States and the Soviet Union possess is simply too awesome to grasp. The United States has approximately 30,000 nuclear warheads. As we understand it, approximately 10,000 of these are targeted for the Soviet Union and surrounding countries. Many reputable organizations monitoring the arms control issues and the nuclear arms control issues suggest that the Soviets have approximately 7,000 warheads aimed at the United States.

It is commonly accepted that if both nations would exhaust all of their nuclear arsenals, we would certainly not be able to survive. It is a common knowledge that if both nations would exhaust all of their nuclear arsenals, we would certainly not be able to survive.

WHAT IS EVEN MORE sobering is that in exchange of a mere 1 percent of nuclear arsenals may precipitate a nuclear winter that could last as long as two or three years, during which we would find ourselves in temperatures as low as 40 degrees below zero. These severe temperatures would occur in Iowa even if the nuclear exchange occurred in August. All fresh air would be frozen to the depths of four feet.

And when the globe would again reach a temperature at which we could survive, the loss of the ozone layer that would certainly occur with a massive nuclear exchange would allow so much ultraviolet light to penetrate the atmosphere and reach the ground that all organisms with eyes would be blinded. Even if we did not have a nuclear war that destroyed our population, the blinding of all animals that depend on their eyes, from cows to bees, would result in a complete collapse of our ecosystem. All of the animals that eat the flowers and plants pollinate upon eyes, and the death of these insects would result in the collapse of the reproductive cycle of many plants.

As if what I have already mentioned isn't severe enough, we have not yet said about the immediate effects of a limited nuclear exchange. It is beyond the grasp of the mind to understand that one 20-megaton nuclear bomb carries more explosive force than all the bombs, mortar shells, artillery shells, hand grenades, etc. that were expended by all combatants during World War II.

THE UNLEASHING of one 20-megaton bomb on a city like New York, London or Moscow would kill up to a million people; thousands of others would die later from severe burns. Most experts agree that the fire storm following the nuclear explosion would kill five times as many people as radiation and blast effects would.

It is frightening and sobering to note that one bomb can create 100,000 severely burned patients, and that there are only some 3,000 acute burn beds in the entire United States (this includes burn unit beds in military hospitals).

In addition to the devastating burns, a reflex glance at the fireball from as far away as 50 miles would result in blindness for thousands upon thousands of people, and the massive increase in atmospheric pressure would rupture eardrums in many more thousands of people.

We, as physicians, know there simply is no way that we as a medical community could even begin to respond to the medical consequences of even the most limited of nuclear exchanges.

A CURSORY GLANCE at the body of this essay might suggest that I do not have any hope. But I would not be actively involved if I did not have hope. I am involved for my children and for my children's children.

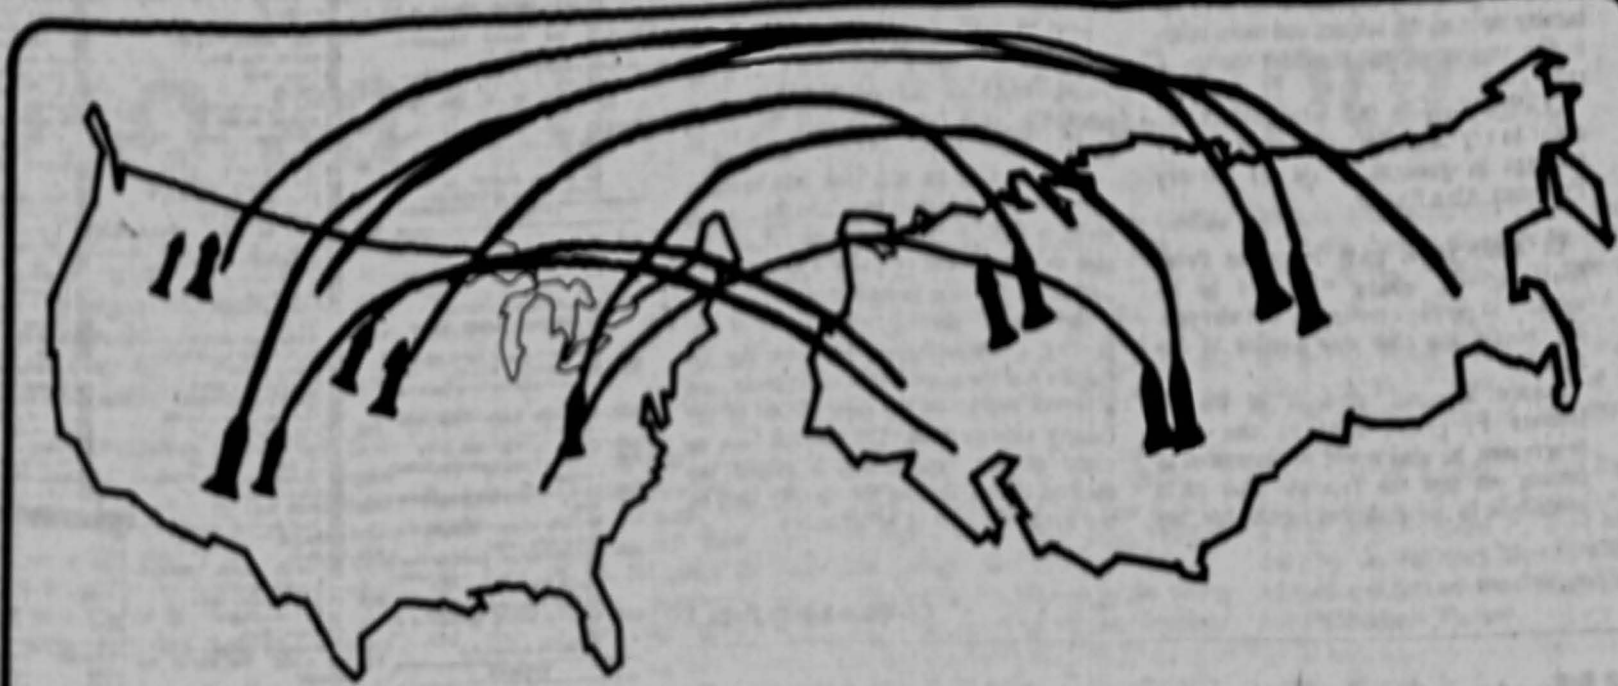

Many of our children believe that they will not live long enough to know love relationships and to marry, that they will not live long enough to bear children, that they will not live long enough to attain their goals in life. An even larger number are certain that they will not live long enough to die of old age.

I am saying as loudly and clearly as I can to all who will listen that there is something we can do. We can demand that our political leaders offer "the freeze option."

Defining the freeze would include a proclamation from the president of the United States that we would engage with the Soviet Union in a mutual, bilateral, verifiable freeze on the research, testing, production and deployment of all nuclear weapons.

It is comforting to remember that President Kennedy in 1963 offered such a freeze on the atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons. This ultimately led to the cessation of all atmospheric testing. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have strictly adhered to that treaty.

THE MOST COMMON question I am asked is: "But how can you trust the Russians?" The United States as well as the Soviet Union has the satellite surveillance capacity to determine immediately when a nuclear blast is even tested underground.

THE MOST COMMON question I am asked is: "But how can you trust the Russians?" The United States as well as the Soviet Union has the satellite surveillance capacity to determine immediately when a nuclear blast is even tested underground.

Further, our infrared scanning satellites orbiting the earth and focusing on the Soviets' test range with cameras that can photograph items as small as six inches in diameter and that have adequate resolution to read a car license plate if it were lying flat on the ground. It is, therefore, reassuring to know that even though the Soviets have proposed a mutual and verifiable freeze, we do not need to trust them to make sure they would adhere to such a freeze.

Closer to the earth, we have satellites orbiting the earth and focusing on the Soviets' test range with cameras that can photograph items as small as six inches in diameter and that have adequate resolution to read a car license plate if it were lying flat on the ground. It is, therefore, reassuring to know that even though the Soviets have proposed a mutual and verifiable freeze, we do not need to trust them to make sure they would adhere to such a freeze.

I urge you to ask your political leaders and those you are contemplating voting for whether or not they support the idea of a bilateral, mutual, verifiable freeze. That is the essential first step.

If we do not stop the nuclear race now and allow it to become miniaturized in cruise missiles, the age of verification will slip beyond us, and we will enter into a time when neither side will know how many weapons either side has. The small powers will be able to start accruing large nuclear arsenals by buying nuclear equipment and cruise missiles on the black market.

WE ARE AT A golden moment in history when we as a population can tell our leaders: "Enough, stop this nonsense!"

We need to say: "Let us freeze now!" We need to work vigorously to lower the massive arsenals that the United States and the Soviet Union hold. We need to take this matter into our own hands, and through the power of the ballot box remove leaders who are not responsive to our needs and who are not sensitive to the fact that a world in which our children can live can be easily extinguished within a few hours. Seventy percent of Iowans support the freeze — so where's the action?

It is essential that we freeze the further development of nuclear weapons and then move forward to reduce the stockpiles and give our children a chance.

I'm doing it for my children. I'm sure each reader has loved ones as helpless as they are. Do it for yourself, but if not for yourself, do it for them.

Set 'em up, Joe

To the editor:
The UI community will soon have the opportunity to greatly influence the outcome of what the Democratic National Committee has called one of the 40 most important races in the country, the 3rd District race between incumbent Congressman Cooper Evans and Democratic challenger Joe Johnston. Before casting your votes, please consider the following:

Do you favor a candidate whose policies do not favor Iowa? As a supporter of Reaganomics, Congressman Evans shares responsibility for the gargantuan federal deficit that has caused the highest rate of farm failures since the Depression in a state where eight out of 10 jobs are in agriculture or are agriculturally related. Evans was the only state representative among 36 congressmen who voted against a $1.8 billion supplemental emergency appropriation for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Do you support a candidate who seeks to escalate the arms race? Evans has voted for nerve gas, Pershing and cruise missiles, the B-1 bomber and the Trident II system. The Iowa Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign sent Evans a questionnaire about the most important issue of our time, and he failed to respond to it.

Joe Johnston enters this crucial election year superbly qualified to take Evans' seat in the House of Representatives. A native Iowan with experience in business, law and politics, Joe Johnston brings to voters a detailed farm revitalization program and a deep-rooted commitment to ending the arms race before it ends the human race. On Nov. 6 let's reject the inadequate leadership of Cooper Evans and elect Joe Johnston to Congress.

Say it ain't so, Joe

To the editor:
In politics, you can tell a lot more about candidates for office by what they do rather than what they say. Nowhere is this point clearer than in the case of Joe Johnston's bid for Congress.

Bluntly put, women are treated differently from men on his campaign staff. All the top positions — consultant, campaign manager and organization director — are held by men. Fully half the campaign came and went before a woman received a single paycheck. Of the total campaign payroll and expense reimbursement, 76 percent went to men and 24 percent went to women. These aren't opinions. These are the facts revealed by Johnston's latest election report to the federal government.

There is no way of hiding behind a smokescreen of aggressive rhetoric and vehement denial. Joe Johnston's record on the equal treatment of women is abysmal.

Conduct unbecoming

To the editor:
On Sunday, Sept. 23, 1984, the Tama-Toledo Jaycees conducted a Candidate's Night. Among the participants were Joe Johnston (Democratic candidate for 3rd District congressman), Minnette Doderer (spokeswoman for Mondale-Ferraro) and myself (spokesman for Reagan-Bush). While the saying "All's fair in war and politics" may have some truth to it, there are limits Johnston and Doderer far exceeded.

Johnston accused me of lying (I have since established that my statement was true) and, together with Doderer, through rudeness and shouting, disrupted the program for some time.

Later, Doderer suggested the possibility of a mental and/or moral character flaw in an employee who was dismissed from the Tama County Sheriff's Department. She did this with no knowledge of the individual or the details of the dismissal. It was a backhanded attempt to smear another candidate.

Details of the meeting have been reported in our local papers and on radio and television. A videotape recording is available to substantiate the accuracy of this letter. A number of Democrats have apologized to me for the behavior of Johnston and Doderer.

Their conduct was unpleasant and unfortunate. But if libel, malignment and rudeness are tactics that Johnston and Doderer deem acceptable. It is fortunate they have displayed them before we vote on November 6.

Congressman with clout

To the editor:
The Reagan administration's decision not to offer a paid corn set-aside for midwestern farmers in 1985 should illustrate once and for all that this is an administration with no commitment to either a livable price for grain farmers or preservation of the soil. The impact of the Reagan decision will be to depress prices further in 1985 by allowing unlimited production to add to the existing grain surplus.

Equally important, it demonstrates that Iowa representatives who side with the administration carry no clout with Iowa farmers. The 1.1 billion bushel surplus that was the trigger figure for requiring acreage idling in 1985 was itself the product of a compromise in the 1983 farm bill.

The 1.065 billion bushel surplus estimate by the administration — a hair-splitting justification for not offering an idling program — is itself the product of estimates by the Department of Agriculture that may yet prove to be erroneous.

The lesson is that Iowa needs representatives who will fight for Iowa farmers in seeking programs that will bring them a price that allows them to stay on the land, instead of being forced out in record numbers by another year of overproduction and non-profit prices. USDA figures show that in 1984, farmers have been receiving prices for their products nationally that are less than 90 percent of what they paid to produce them.

Joe Johnston, 3rd District Democratic candidate, has taken the lead throughout the 1984 campaign in recognizing the futility of this situation and in emphasizing that profitability, not debt restructuring alone, is what will restore Iowa's economy. With Joe Johnston in office, farmers would have some clout on issues that really matter to their survival.

NCPAC-Man

To the editor:
So Roger Jepsen wants to run a positive campaign from now until the election, eh? I'm not buying it. Now that NCPAC has moved into Iowa to do his mudslinging for him, he thinks he can come out of the pigpen and run clean. It won't work.

For starters, NCPAC's reputation is less than admirable. The same folks who brag they can come into a state and lie through their teeth about a candidate and leave his record untainted are mistaken. The people of Iowa know who they are; they know why NCPAC is here. If Jepsen thinks he can leave the dirty work up to Terry Dolan's goon squad and not be affected, he is a bigger fool than anyone expected.

The NCPAC attack is doomed. Instead of being able to make people focus on their allegations, they themselves have been the focus. NCPAC's credibility is nil. They have cried wolf once too often. Their smear campaign is being broken at the point of attack; Jepsen is the one who will pay for NCPAC's failure.

After he loses, NCPAC will pack up and ply their trade in another state.

When Ron talks ...

To the editor:
People often ask me, "What have you got against Reagan?" One of the best answers is to look at our history. Imagine — if Ronald Reagan had been born 200 years earlier, he could have been in on a lot of important decisions. At the writing of the Bill of Rights, he might have said: "I'm not against freedom. I just don't think it is the government's responsibility to protect the rights of its citizens."

And later, as a member of Lincoln's cabinet, he could argue against the Emancipation Proclamation. "Gosh, Abe, I don't like to see the slaves freed too, but don't you think that would hurt our economic recovery? High taxes are bad enough. Besides, plantation owners have had their rights ignored for far too long. How will they ever run their businesses if government doesn't get off their backs?"

And when the 19th Amendment, the one giving women the right to vote, was debated, I believe I could overhear him at the men's club: "We can't let this happen. They may be our partners in life, but I quite frankly don't think women are capable of casting intelligent votes. I'll never understand them." No kidding.

But Reagan really did become our top dog, and we heard things like this: "I believe in women's rights but the Equal Rights Amendment is not the way to guarantee them." And "I believe in a clean environment, but I don't believe it is the government's responsibility, and besides it won't help our businesses."

And "I believe in religious values in schools, before young people start making decisions on their own." And "I believe blacks should have the right to vote, but isn't it up to the states to decide who can vote?" (Luckily he came under enough pressure to sign the voting rights bill and allowed it to continue to exist.) And "I believe our children need better schools, but let's not assume schools need more money."

And so on.

Just the facts, sir ...

To the editor:
I cannot let Jeffrey Klinzman's assertion that "abortion is illegal in the Soviet Union" (letter, Oct. 29) pass. It is a patent lie. Abortion is quite legal there and is the only form of birth control available to the average Soviet woman.

Both Klinzman and Kevin Jay (letter, Oct. 22) throw around assertions about the Soviet Union that do little to ease the tension between the United States and the Soviets and even less to alleviate the problem of ignorance about the Soviet Union that is so prevalent among Americans.

I will not defend the Soviet government. I will, however, defend Soviet peoples. Let us not forget that the Soviet Union is a nation populated by human beings, not monsters.

Well, why would they?

To the editor:
This letter is in support of the candidacy of Mary Conklin, incumbent candidate for Johnson County Clerk of Court.

In my occasional visits and telephone conversations with that office, I have always found them to be quietly performing their duties and very considerate in their transactions with the public.

Why would the people of Johnson County want to replace this efficient operation with an unknown staff?

Union plans excluding lounge irk faculty

By Maudyline Ihejirika
Special to The Daily Iowan

Union renovation plans prompted discussion over the need for a faculty social facility during Tuesday's Faculty Council meeting.

Council President Donal Carleton distributed a letter received from R.V. Bovbjerg, a UI biology professor, concerning the now extinct Triangle Club — a UI club founded in 1899 to provide a location where faculty members could meet and mingle with administrators and civic leaders.

One of the reasons the Union was constructed sometime after World War I was to accommodate the Triangle Club, which occupied the top two floors of the building until 1977.

In his letter to Carleton, Bovbjerg complained that the renovation plans — scheduled to be finalized this week — do not include space for such a faculty club.

HE SAID MEETINGS in winter 1983 with UI President James O. Freedman and UI administrators left former Triangle Club members with the impression that the central administration would support some sort of faculty facility.

"We were urged to become part of the planning," Bovbjerg's letter states. "Planning meetings were attended, but little attention was given to this input. There did not seem to be a mood in the Union to consider faculty."

Bovbjerg went on to say the reinstatement of a faculty facility in the Union would afford a place for faculty to mix and foster the values of a "sense of belonging, stimulation... and values so congruent with our calling."

Carleton called for discussion and council members generally expressed the need for faculty input on the subject and more information concerning the plans for the Union renovation.

"Fairly early in the deliberations, we ought to try to get some sense of faculty feelings in general," said UI History Professor Alan Spitzer.

UI ASSOCIATE LAW Professor Peter Shane agreed, adding "I would be interested in people's feelings about why people thought the club was popular at one time."

Donald Marshall, director of the UI Honors Program, said as the year progresses, he also would be interested in finding out how the Triangle Club could contribute to the quality of faculty life, but added gauging faculty attitudes and the finalization of Union renovation plans could stretch over three or five council meetings.

UI Pharmacology Professor Michael Brody said he saw the need for a faculty facility as two issues. "One is whether there ought to be a faculty club or faculty organization. A more significant issue is whether the new facility will have available to it a place where faculty could gather for functions and other gatherings — which we really don't have now."

PEG BURKE, chair of the UI Physical Education and Dance Department, said she would like to see the council look into the possibility of a faculty facility. "If we do nothing, then we get nothing," she said.

Carleton said he will look into inviting more informed parties to talk to the council about a faculty facility in the future. He also said he would consider appointing an ad hoc committee to look into it.

The council also discussed ways of improving communication between the UI faculty and the state Board of Regents, and a recent report on the distribution of the faculty vitality fund. The council took no stand on the report, which stated the method of distributing the vitality fund on the basis of merit is satisfactory.

Cy Young saved for Hernandez

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Hernandez, the reliever who helped carry the Detroit Tigers to a championship and is now being traded, Tuesday won the American League Cy Young award in a close vote over Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals.

Hernandez is completing a long-term contract that originated with another club. Under the basic agreement between players and management, Detroit has until March 15 in which to negotiate a contract with Hernandez.

"I'd be willing to sacrifice a few dollars to stay in Detroit but not too many dollars," he said from his home in Puerto Rico.

The 28-year-old left-hander, who pitched in obscurity since 1977, posted a 9-3 record with a 1.92 ERA. He had 32 saves in 33 possible save situations.

HE WON THE AWARD with 12 first-place votes and seven each for second and third places from the 26-member panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America — two representing each club in the league. He finished with a total of 88 points.

Quisenberry had 44 saves, one fewer than the major-league record, along with a 6-3 record and 2.64 ERA. He received nine first-place votes, eight for second and two for third for 71 points.

Five points were awarded for a first-place vote, three for a second and one for a third.

Hernandez is the third American League reliever and the second Detroit pitcher to win the award. Relievers Sparky Lyle of the 1977 New York Yankees and Rollie Fingers of the 1981 Milwaukee Brewers previously won it and Denny McLain of the Tigers won it in 1968 and shared it with Mike Cuellar of the Baltimore Orioles in 1969.

"I THANK (Tiger manager) Sparky Anderson for giving me the chance," Hernandez said. "Sparky gave me the ball every single day to do what I did this year."

"I don't want to leave Detroit. I want to share my future with Detroit. I believe we have the ball club to win a lot more. I want to stay there. The fans there deserve a winner."

Following the leaders in the voting were Bert Blyleven of the Cleveland

Indians, who had a 19-7 record and a 2.87 ERA; former Hawkeye Mike Boddicker of the Orioles, who was the league's only 20-game winner with a 20-11 mark and a 2.87 ERA; Dan Petry of the Detroit Tigers, Frank Viola of the Minnesota Twins, Jack Morris of the Tigers and Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays.

A native of Aguada, Puerto Rico, Hernandez started the 1984 season with a 34-32 lifetime record. He lifted himself over the 500 mark lifetime with a 9-4 record in 1983 for the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies.

Gill will rush for Iowa mark against Badgers

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

When the Iowa football team takes the field against Wisconsin Saturday, fullback Owen Gill will likely be among the Hawkeyes participating.

Gill, who missed last week's game at Indiana because of a bruised kidney suffered in the Michigan game Oct. 20, said he'll be ready when the Badgers come to Kinnick Stadium for an 11:10 a.m. kickoff.

"I'll be ready. I'm feeling fine," Gill said.

That's good news for the Hawkeyes but bad news for the Badgers, who are looking for their first win over Iowa since 1978.

Gill is only 27 yards short of setting the Iowa all-time rushing record and Coach Hayden Fry said Tuesday at his weekly press conference that his 13th-ranked Hawkeyes will need to be healthy to defeat a Wisconsin team that is coming off a 16-14 upset win over Ohio State.

"WISCONSIN HAS REAL big size," Fry said. "They are the only team we play that comes close to Ohio State in physical size but they have superior skill people."

Fry added that the 5-3 Badgers have "the best personnel in this part of the country."

"This is the year that Wisconsin was to have a great team," Fry said. "They really have a tremendous football team."

When asked why the Badgers are 5-3 on the year and 3-3 in the Big Ten, Fry said, "I don't coach there so I don't know."

But Fry does know that his team will be in a battle in the nationally-televised game, especially if the Big Ten leaders think too much about a possible Rose Bowl berth.

"I KNEW THAT ONE of you guys were going to say that we've got it locked up," Fry told the media, "so I've been talking to my players and telling them that nothing is locked up — I'm not even so sure that Fort Knox is locked up. You guys aren't the guys who have to go out and see it up against those rascals."

"It's my job to make sure they know

Fry confirms three players have left team

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

Apparently because of a lack of playing time, three members of the Iowa football team have quit the squad.

Eric Hedgeman, who was No. 2 in the depth chart at linebacker, running back Booker Scott and defensive tackle Robert Oliver have all quit, according to Coach Hayden Fry confirmed Tuesday. The trio began not showing up for practice or team meetings the Sunday following Iowa's 26-0 win over Michigan.

"Booker is planning on transferring to some other university at mid-term," Fry said. "And the other two, we can't find them. I haven't seen or heard from them in over a week."

Fry said the players left the team voluntarily. "They didn't show up for meetings or practices so we assume they've given up football," Fry said. "All three are real fine athletes."

All three players had suffered injuries and Fry said slow rehabilitation time could have been a factor in their decision. Scott, a redshirt freshman from Davenport, and Oliver, a junior from Waterloo, have been recovering from knee surgery while Hedgeman, a Bridgeton, N.J., native, has had several injuries during his three seasons as a Hawkeye. All three spent the spring and summer rehabilitating.

"They came back this fall and I'm sure they were probably disappointed in their playing time because they were injured," Fry said. "I hate to lose any of them."

Joe Short swings through part of his routine on the pommel horse Tuesday in the North Gym of the Field House while working out with the Iowa men's gymnastics team. Short, a New Lenox, Ill., native, is a pommel horse specialist. The Hawkeyes opens its season Friday at the Big Eight Invitational.

Dunn's gymnasts will not tumble

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

The Iowa men's gymnastics team could have the type of rebuilding year that coaches dream of during the 1984-85 season.

Coach Tom Dunn's Hawkeyes are coming off an eighth-place finish in last April's NCAA meet and the fifth-year coach is faced with the task of replacing six gymnasts from that team.

The task might appear a bit ominous but things have been looking up in the newly-renovated North Gym of the Field House.

"I had thought that we might be having a bit after losing six seniors, but it appears that we'll score as well as we did last year," Dunn said. "The boys that competed last year have progressed and the guys that didn't compete are coming along real well."

Gymnastics

THE HAWKEYES HAVE scored above the 270 mark in their last two of three preseason intrasquad meets and Dunn will pick from 14 athletes when he makes his nine-man roster for this week's season-opening Big Eight Invitational at Lincoln, Neb.

"The attitude is much better this year than it was last year," all-arounder Stu Breitenstine said. "I really think we can be in the top three in the country. There are a lot of tough teams but I'm optimistic that we can do it if we work at it."

Teammate Dan Bachman agrees that the Hawkeyes could end their season at Lincoln, Neb., in next April's NCAA Championships. "I think that this year we're in good contention for

IOWA WILL AGAIN be strong in the areas the Hawkeyes have excelled in during the past few seasons. Floor exercise and horizontal bar will be the Hawkeye fortes while parallel bars and vault should give Iowa the most trouble early in the season, according to Dunn.

"We're going to be strong on floor exercise," Dunn said. Junior stand-out all-arounders Bachman and Breitenstine should join sophomore Lenny Lucarelli in pacing Iowa in the event. All three have the ability to score in the 9.5 range.

Iowa will also count on sophomores Tom Auer and Chris Stanicek along with Matt May in the event. May, the 1982 Washington state high school all-around champion, transferred to Iowa from Eastern Montana and under the NCAA's new transfer rule, he will be eligible immediately.

THE HAWKEYES MUST replace pommel horse specialists Joe Leo, an NCAA finalist last year, and Bob Leverence. Dunn will look to sophomore redshirt Joe Short. The New Lenox, Ill., native has "been looking real good," Dunn said. "He's been scoring in the 9.5 range at the intrasquad so he'll help replace Leo real fast. Paul Bengtson and Randy Gentile are pretty close and they'll be able to fill Bob Leverence's shoes."

Freshmen all-arounder Joe Thome, a former member of the Junior National Team, is also strong on the horse and should help Iowa there.

On the still rings, the Hawkeyes will be led by a pair of specialists, Mike Tangney and Kurt Karnstedt. Dunn's

Iowa athletes dance their way to stardom on center stage

By Mike Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

Come Friday night, 36 current and former Iowa athletes will be doing something very different with their talents.

Oh, you'll see Tom Snowberger twirling a bat; Mary McDermott twirling a six-iron and Jim Burkeholder holding a tennis racket. But some of them will be using the tool of their respective trades in the usual way.

The athletes, along with 100 dancers, will be a part of the production "Dance! Cheer! Fight! for Iowa." The show will be Friday night at Hancher Auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m.

A dress rehearsal of the show was given Monday night for members of the media and prior to the performance, the athletes voiced their feeling about being part of the show.

"MY PARENTS ARE coming up from Texas to watch me, so I think I'll be real nervous," said Burkeholder, who is a member of the men's tennis team.

"It's something new," said Snowberger, an outfielder for Coach Duane Banks' baseball team. "It's a good experience because it's something that I've never had a chance to do before. I get to see the dancers and they get to see the athletes and we get to know and appreciate each other's talents."

But how did the athletes get involved in the show? "We were at practice one day and Charley (Darley) asked if any of us were interested in being a part of the show," women's tennis player Kim Martin said.

IT IS EASY TO tell, after watching the dress rehearsal, that the athletes are taking the show just as seriously as their sport. Men's tennis player Jim Nelson may be taking it a bit more seriously though. "I need to have orthoscopic surgery on my knee," he said. "I put it off until (next) Monday just so I could take part in the show."

McDermott, who is a freshman on Coach Diane Thomason's golf team, has had some experience in dance and she knows it is difficult for some of the athletes to adjust. "I've done some dance in the past," she said. "I can tell that a lot of the athletes are real nervous when they are trying to get their steps down."

PART OF THE enjoyment for the athletes has been having the opportunity to get to know their fellow athletes. "I'm really getting to know some of the athletes in the other sports," Nelson said. "I mean, I just thought of Barry Davis as a tough-guy wrestler, but after talking to him for a while, I've really gotten to know him as a person."

Working with the dancers has given the athletes a new appreciation for the athletic skills that go into dancing. "The only real comparison I had was the movie Flashdance," Snowberger said. "You came in and see them working all day and you realize that they put in as much time as the athletes."

Nelson said the preparation for the show has been fun. "It's given us a chance to interact with the dancers," he said. "(Burkeholder) and I sat out one night and watched them rehearse. It's not like tennis or baseball because all of their movements have a lot more meaning and emotion."

Steve Carlino and Karin Hanson rehearse their pas de deux during a dance rehearsal for "Dance! Cheer! Fight! for Iowa" at Hancher Auditorium. The show includes performances by 36 current and former Hawkeye athletes.

NCAA will examine 'Hawkeye Insights' findings

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (UPI) — The findings of a Big Ten investigation into questionable course credit awarded to Iowa basketball players has been turned over to the NCAA office, Big Ten and school officials said Tuesday.

John Dewey, Big Ten assistant commissioner, told UPI the conference's compliance committee has "taken action" on the matter. He refused further comment, except to say he does not consider the matter closed and that the NCAA will review the Big Ten study.

The controversy involves a class called "Hawkeye Insights" in which six Iowa basketball players were awarded varying amounts of course credit. The course was designed to help athletes develop practical applications for their sports skills.

The teacher of the class, Professor Bradley Loomer, resigned from the Iowa Board in Control of Athletics when it was learned some of the players received credit for unfinished work.

Gable named to prep sports hall of fame

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable has been selected for induction into the National High School Sports Hall of Fame. Gable joins Jack Nicklaus, Harold (Red) Grange and Denise (Long) Andre of Iowa women's basketball fame.

The four athletes along with eight others will be inducted in the Hall of Fame on Dec. 11 in Milwaukee.

Fiesta Bowl considers BYU, Boston College

BOSTON (UPI) — The Fiesta Bowl is considering a New Year's Day showdown between Brigham Young and either Boston College or South Carolina.

Fiesta Bowl representatives plan to ask NBC officials this week whether the network will help the bowl sign BYU, which is currently ranked No. 3 in the nation.

BYU, which is a member of the Western Athletic Conference, could play in the Dec. 21 Holiday Bowl in San Diego. But the Holiday Bowl, which usually features the WAC champion as one of its participants, might have trouble attracting top-ranked opponents because it lacks a network TV contract and only pays its teams $470,000 each.

The Fiesta Bowl, which plans to pay each team $1 million, is expected to ask NBC to increase its payoff to finance a national championship game, which the network has hinted it would do, according to a report in the Boston Globe.

Seahawks waive veteran back Harris

SEATTLE (UPI) — Running back Franco Harris, who tried to keep his illustrious career going in Seattle after being waived by the Pittsburgh Steelers in training camp, Tuesday was released by the Seahawks.

His release marks the probable end to the career of one of the key players on pro football's dominant team of the 1970s. However, the 34-year-old veteran did not say if he would retire.

"I think he feels he's in really good shape and could play this year or next year," said Bart Beier, Harris' Pittsburgh-based agent. "Whether any teams are interested, neither he nor I know."

Harris spent 12 years in Pittsburgh. He was released by the Steelers following an impasse in contract negotiations.

On the line

Today's On the Line is dedicated to all Hawkeye Marching Band members, especially those from the great town of Mt. Vernon, Iowa.

You see, Mt. Vernon has not only produced some great Iowa football players but the town has also produced some of the finer members of the Iowa band.

But the real reason Mr. O.T. Line chose Mt. Vernon was because he recently visited the town and liked what he saw, namely the Mt. Vernon High School marching band during a recent game.

Because it took good ol' O.T. over two hours to find Mt. Vernon, he just doesn't have time to get more specific. Well, time for the rules.

Circle a winner for all 10 games on the ballot. Then choose a score for the Wisconsin-Iowa tiebreaker an put down, along with your name and telephone number. If you think the game will end in a tie, circle both teams. After the ballot is complete, bring it to Room 111 of the Communications Center by noon Thursday to have a chance for the prize.

Oh yes, the prize — a keg of beer, donated by the good people at John's Grocery, located at the corner of Market and Gilbert. If you need some food in a hurry, John's is the place to go.

As always, each person is limited to five ballots per week. DI employees and those under 19 are not eligible to enter.

Good luck and maybe O.T. will be able to give you more information by the end of the week.

Tie with Wildcats secures NCAA spot for No. 8 Iowa

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

A tie with Northwestern last weekend was what the Iowa field hockey team needed to remain one of the top 12 teams in the nation.

The Hawkeyes are ranked No. 8 in the final field hockey poll of the season and are guaranteed a spot among the top 12 teams picked to play in the national tournament.

Old Dominion continues to dominate the sport of field hockey this season and with its 18-0 record has been the unanimous No. 1 choice in each of the polls.

Northwestern hung on to second place in the poll despite tying Iowa last weekend, 2-2 in double overtime. Temple also held on to third place.

IOWA COACH Judith Davidson said the Hawkeyes are sitting in a good position going into the national tournament. "I don't think we could be in a better position. If they went with these top 12 teams, we will be in the playoffs."

Davidson said she was not expecting her team to move up in the rankings after tying the Wildcats. But she thought the tie might drop Northwestern a notch in the poll.

Field hockey

The Hawkeyes have played all of the top 12 teams this season except Old Dominion, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and Davidson is confident her team can match up against all the teams.

"I FEEL CONFIDENT that we can compete with any of these teams and probably beat all of them except Old Dominion which is in a class by itself," Davidson said.

The Iowa coach thinks her team is better than Temple and North Carolina, which Iowa lost to earlier in the season. She added her team is as good as Northwestern and should have beaten Rutgers and Maryland in pre-Big Ten action.

Murphy's Law goes wrong, 19-6

By Al Jardi
Staff Writer

Murphy's Law says that "if anything can go wrong, it probably will." That was the case for the intramural football team Murphy's Law after their 19-6 loss to the Bash Bombers in the first round of intramural football playoffs in the dormitory league Tuesday night.

"We lived up to our name," Sheldon Jensen, a team member of Murphy's Law said after the game.

Things started going wrong for the guys who live in on the third floor of the dormitory hall on their last possession of the game with the score 14 in favor of Bash Bombers. It all happened in seconds to Bash Bomber player Daryl McCalley.

"THE QUARTERBACK from the other team (Dave Stager) started running around the end to try and score," McCalley said. "Then he threw the ball forward to try and get it to one of his teammates (Gregg Brummer)."

"I looked up and the ball was in my hands and then my teammates started screaming for me to run even though my flag had fallen off. I forgot that the other team needed to touch me for me to be down and then I took off for the end zone."

McCalley also caught a 15-yard touchdown pass and the conversion pass from quarterback Dwight Kalenski for their first touchdown in the opening minutes of the second half to make the score 7-6.

Murphy's Law's Joe Lipinski caught a 10-yard pass from Stager in the first half but missed the conversion pass for the only scoring drive of the night.

"WE WERE NOT as organized as we should have been, especially when we were down deep in their territory trying to score," Brummer said. "Then we were also missing a lot of key players for the game."

"The field that we played on was terrible. There were so many slick spots that you could not move quickly or try and grab someone's flag."

The victory for Bash did come with a pregame scare. Their starting quarterback, Steve Treas, sprained his ankle while throwing a football around before going over to the Recreation Building Fields for the game.

But Kalenski, who usually plays wide receiver, came through in the clutch, according to Coach Steve McCoullough, floor resident assistant.

"Our starting quarterback injured his ankle while warming up and it swelled up too much to play. But Dwight came through and did a hell of a job for us," McCoullough said.

"But the muddy field conditions inspired us to win this game and we just played better than the other team," McCoullough said.

Fry

get if they're not at their best, they'll get beaten," Fry said. "We did a heck of a job coaching last week or we would have been defeated."

Fry said Iowa wasn't ready for the intense Huskies who fought the Hawkeyes to a 24-20 game before falling. "Indiana could have won all three games before they played us and they still have beaten us," he said. "I'll tell you this, it won't surprise me if they win a game this year. They are a very well-coached football team."

THE HAWKEYE INJURY picture is improving, Fry said, although he remains concerned.

"I have problems with my football team physically," Fry said. "I worry about the medical aspects ... I used to get real upset about it but I realize that Wisconsin just played Ohio State and some of their guys are bruised and battered, too."

Offensive tackle Dave Cronin may return this week, although Fry said he personally believes it will be another week, and tailback Ronnie Harmon is still recovering from a neck injury although he will play Saturday. "Ronnie's a very amazing young man," Fry said. "He'll be there."

FRY SAID THAT quarterback Chuck Long is still taking antibiotics for an elbow problem that flared up last Thursday. Long's elbow had to be drained and he didn't work out last Thursday.

"It's really mysterious as to why it happened," Fry said.

Long said Tuesday that his elbow is feeling fine. "They tell me that I'm fine now," he said. "It was just a minor thing."

Long said the build-up that was in his arm usually happens when a person has a cut or scrape.

The Hawkeye quarterback will find himself throwing against the Big Ten's top pass defense on Saturday. "Wisconsin is a good football team," Long said. "They'll come in here to win."

Gymnastics

agreed problem on the rings may be getting both gymnasts in the nine-man line-up.

"ONE OF THE REASONS that might occur is that our all-arounders are stronger on the rings," Dunn said. "We've got a lot of good solid 9.5 plus routines."

In the vault, Iowa will rely on Buckman and Breitenstine. Buckman is a former Big Ten champion in the vault. Dunn said Stanek has been a surprise during pre-season workouts in the vault. "He's really been looking good," Dunn said.

The parallel bars have long been an Iowa weakness, but Dunn predicts that it could be a Hawkeye strength by the end of the season.

Breitenstine, Buckman and Joe Horack will pace Iowa in the event this year. "This is potentially a good vault for us," Dunn said, "but right now we're having some trouble. We've got some good, tough routines and it might be more than they can handle at the present time but they'll grow into them."

THE HAWKEYES MAY again field the Big Ten's best horizontal bar team. Lacarello has had Iowa's best marks in the intramurals and Buckman and Breitenstine have performed consistently above 9.5. Auer, Thome and Horack will also add scores above 9.5 to the Iowa effort.

In the all-around, Buckman and Breitenstine look to lead the Hawkeyes. Breitenstine is recovering from shoulder surgery and Dunn said it has slowed him some during the fall practices.

Dunn's main worry about the 1984-85 Hawkeyes is a lack of experienced depth. "We can't afford any injuries," Dunn said. "We'll have to be careful this year because injuries could be a problem."

ANOTHER NEWCOMER in the Iowa gym is Ron Nasti, a transfer from Iowa State. Nasti, who was highly recruited by Iowa as a prep at York High School in Elmhurst, Ill., will debut this year.

Apr. 12-13 — NCAA Championships at Lincoln, Neb.

Iowa, defending champion Minnesota and Ohio State — will again be the league's best. Wisconsin should also be an improved team and could contend for the fourth position should one of the leaders stumble.

The only major rule change this year will see a return to six gymnasts being allowed to compete in each event with the top five scores counting toward the team total rather than only five gymnasts competing and five scores counting. Dunn said he has reservations about the change.

"WE'RE GOING BY the Olympic format which may be easier for people to connect the sport with the Olympics, but I don't like the idea of making the meets longer," he said. "Except for the fact that we'll be able to put more guys up on each event, I'm not real crazy with it."

The Hawkeyes will be facing the toughest schedule of Dunn's tenure. Iowa will meet all of the top 10 teams in the nation with the exception of defending NCAA Champion UCLA during the course of the season.

Iowa opens its home schedule with Iowa State on Nov. 29 and will meet the Japanese National Team one week later at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. National powers Penn State, Brigham Young, Ohio State, Illinois and Southern Illinois will also visit Iowa City during the upcoming season.

Horned Frogs jump into poll, Iowa 13th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas Christian and Fullerton State (Calif.) aren't items you normally think of as Top 20 material, but they certainly have the credentials to be there.

In the latest voting by the UPI Board of Coaches, TCU showed up 18th and Fullerton 20th. It was TCU's first appearance in the Top 20 since the Horned Frogs were eighth in 1959 and the first time Fullerton State has ever been ranked since moving up from Division II in 1974.

After a win at Indiana last week, Iowa moved up from 17th to 13th.

The top of the rankings weren't so surprising. Washington is ranked first for the third straight week and Texas is No. 2.

THE HUSKIES received 26 of 42 first-place votes and 608 total points after a 27-10 win over Arizona. No. 3 Texas had been No. 1 for two weeks earlier in the season, received nine first-place votes and 571 points after a 13-7 victory over Southern Methodist that knocked the Mustangs out of the Top 20.

No. 3 Brigham Young, No. 4 Nebraska and No. 5 South Carolina benefited from an upset loss to Oklahoma to move up.

17. Louisiana State (5-1-1)	66
18. Ohio State (5-2)	67
19. Texas Christian (5-1)	35
20. Fullerton State (5-0)	10

Note: By agreement with the American Football Coaches Association, teams on NCAA or conference probation are ineligible for the Top 20 and national championship consideration by the UPI Board of Coaches. The teams currently on probation are Arizona, Clemson, Illinois and Kansas.

The Southeastern Conference is still the nation's most represented conference with four ranked teams — Georgia, Auburn, Florida and LSU. In the only game pitting two Top 20 teams this week, Auburn visits Florida.

Raveling gets first recruit to commit

By J.B. Glass
Staff Writer

When a basketball coach starts to recruit, he usually begins at the top of his list, or at the point.

And Iowa Hawkeye basketball Coach George Raveling has done just that. He has found a point guard to become the first member of the new recruiting class.

Point guard B.J. Armstrong, from Birmingham, Mich., has orally committed to the Hawkeye basketball program.

Armstrong is a 6-foot-1 point guard who averaged 20 points per game at Brother Rice High School. He was an all-state selection, as he led his team to a 23-5 record and was named to the first-team all-state squad in Michigan's largest league, class A.

ACCORDING TO PEOPLE who have seen him play and his coach, Nick

Recruiting

Conti at Brother Rice High, he plays with the flair of former Indiana Hoosier and present Detroit Piston standout Isiah Thomas.

Armstrong will sign a letter of intent with Iowa Nov. 14, the first official day of the early signing period.

Armstrong becomes one of possibly four players Raveling seeks to sign in the early signing period.

Iowa started recruiting Armstrong the summer after Iowa assistant Coach Ron Righter saw him play in a basketball camp. Raveling then visited the Armstrong home and in early September, Armstrong visited Iowa City.

Besides Iowa, Armstrong was looking at Boston College, Michigan, Michigan State, DePaul and Kentucky.

Barry lacking moves in play-by-play position

Rick Barry has been thrown to the lions.

And currently the former NBA star is being eaten alive.

Barry may have had the moves on the court, but his move to the play-by-play position in WTBS' NBA coverage deserves a technical foul.

Ted Turner's cable superstation outbid ESPN and the USA Network for cable rights to NBA games for the next two seasons and so far the viewers have been the ones to pay the price.

Barry and Bill Russell will team up for two-thirds of WTBS' games while the experienced team of Skip Caray and John Andraiese will do the remaining third.

WTBS paid $20 million for two years for the rights, almost double the $11.5 million that USA and ESPN had paid for the previous two years. The network will telecast 55 regular season games and 20 playoff contests.

BARRY AND RUSSELL would both make quality color announcers and that's where the problems begin. Unfortunately, viewers get the idea that nobody wants to do the play-by-play call and the production comes off sounding like a lot of fluff without much action.

For Barry, millions of viewers are watching him be involved in an on the job training program. The quality of his work can only improve and that should be expected from him by the end of the year.

But the fact remains that local telecasts would have been the best bet for Barry until he became a respectable, polished announcer. A cable superstation isn't the proper outlet for inexperience.

THE LESS THAN dynamic duo replaces one of the more colorful announcers of the game, Dick Vitale on ESPN and USA's solid Eddie Doucette.

The absolute least WTBS could have done would have been to put Caray on the games until Barry was in a position to move up.

There is some relief. CBS still owns network rights to NBA games and will televise 11 regular season games and 20 playoff contests. Veterans Dick WTBS (Cable-15) will attempt to improve its NBA coverage even further when the New York Knicks and San Antonio Spurs do battle Sunday. Coverage begins at 7 p.m.

The Iowa-Wisconsin football game highlights Saturday's gridiron action as the Hawkeyes continue to strive for a fourth-consecutive bowl appearance. CBS (KGAN-2) will televise the game nationally beginning at 11 a.m. and Gary Bender and Pat Haden will be on hand at Kinnick Stadium to describe the action.

Fans will have a choice, though. ABC (KCRG-9) will televise the Miami (Fla.)-Louisville game and ESPN (Cable-32) will televise Gerry Faust's fight to keep his job when the Notre Dame Fighting Irish meet Navy at East Rutherford, N.J. Both games begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday.

The SportsView Big Ten game of the week is a real winner this week when 8 Indiana travels to Columbus, Ohio, to be beaten up by Ohio State — the loser in a 16-14 game at Wisconsin last week that dented the Buckeyes' Rose Bowl hopes. Why don't we make that 0-9 Hoosiers. KWWL-7 will have the memorial services beginning at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

CBS (KGAN-2) and NBC (KWWL-7) will have their weekly NFL doubleheaders beginning at noon on Sunday. This week's Monday night match-up features Atlanta and Washington at 8 p.m. on ABC (KCRG-9).

If you're sick of the NFL, why not try a little Canadian football for a change of pace. ESPN (Cable-32) will televise a CFL divisional semifinal game on Sunday beginning at 3 p.m.

An irritated Green labels rumors lies

CHICAGO (UPI) — An angry Northwestern Coach Dennis Green labeled as "bold faced lies" reports he would be fired as Wildcat football coach, adding he would re-evaluate whether he wanted to stay on at the Big Ten school at the end of the season.

Green, making his first statement since the Chicago Sun-Times reported Sunday he was on the verge of being dismissed by Athletic Director Doug Single, said he was "extremely angry and disappointed" by the incident. He said he was "appalled" that no one has been held accountable to verify the story which said he would be dismissed as early as Monday.

"The quotes of unnamed sources and the headlines that said Dennis Green was about to be fired were bold faced lies," Green told the weekly Chicago Big Ten luncheon. "The rest of the story lacks credibility and substantiality (sic) of facts."

AFTER THE PUBLISHED report, Single and Green met for three hours Sunday and Northwestern, 2-7 this year, issued a statement saying no action would be taken regarding Green's future at the school until the end of the season. Green has one more year remaining on a five-year pact.

Green emphasized he would also be the one reviewing Northwestern, which has had a history of losing football in recent years.

"In light of everything, I will re-evaluate whether I want to stay at Northwestern past the 1984 season," Green said. "I never had been in a situation where I needed a job more than it did me. And, gentlemen, this job is no different."

Green said the adverse reaction to Northwestern's program could not be measured although he did say it would not affect preparation for Saturday's game at Michigan State or the season finale at home against Ohio State.

"I AM EXTREMELY angry and disappointed," Green said. "There has been damage to the family and friends of the staff of Northwestern, football players and to the many supporters of the Northwestern program."

The flap surfaced after Northwestern fell behind 35-0 en route to a 49-7 loss last Saturday on homecoming against Purdue. Quoting a highly placed athletic department source, the Sun-Times reported Single was ready to fire Green as soon as Monday because of the poor play of the team. The paper also reported Single was incensed after having the door slammed in his face to the coaches' box in the press box.

Green defended his program's improvement over the past four years, admitting the loss to Purdue marked the team's worst game of the season.

"I HAVE MADE more progress in this program than anyone in this room imagined was possible," said Green, who has a 7-35 overall record at Northwestern.

Relief aces head free agent list

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs faced the prospect of being the biggest losers and quality relief pitchers the likelihood of being the biggest winners Tuesday with the completion of baseball's 58-man free agent list.

Five of the Cubs' pitchers, led by Jack Sutcliffe and Steve Trout, are among the free agents, while the prospect of obtaining free-agent relief pitchers like Willie Hernandez of the Detroit Tigers, Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals and perhaps Rolie Fingers of the Milwaukee Brewers must appeal to teams with realistic ambitions in 1985.

Hernandez' bargaining price went up Tuesday when he was named winner of the American League's Cy Young award.

FENNANT AND World Series winners have been decided more frequently with each passing year by a stopper in the bullpen and all three rank among the best even though Fingers has been injured often during the last two seasons.

The Major League Players Association released the final list of the 58 players who opted for free agency Tuesday morning with pitcher Ed Whitson of the San Diego Padres the last man to make it.

The Cubs stand to lose more than most clubs unless they open their pocket books wide. Besides Sutcliffe and Trout, starters Dennis Eckersley and relievers Tim Lincecum and Rick Reuschel have filed for free agency.

"We intend to sign every player we want to sign," said General Manager Dallas Green of the Cubs. "No one will outbid us."

GREEN IS EXPECTED to meet with Sutcliffe's agent, Dave Axelrod, this week although both sides don't expect agreement until after the draft next week.

The Cubs aren't expected to worry about the others until the Sutcliffe matter is resolved. Reuschel won't be re-signed but they can't afford to lose Trout, the club's only left-handed pitcher.

It's likely the Tigers, after his 33-save season, will make every effort to sign the 28-year-old Hernandez. But if Detroit does not meet his demands or trade him by March 15, then Hernandez can turn himself loose on a market that should be eager for his services.

General Manager Bill Lajoie has said the Tigers would not let Hernandez become a free agent. The main hang-up is that Detroit does not want to pay Hernandez more than it does starters Jack Morris and Dan Petry, each of whom reportedly fetches $800,000 a year under the terms of their long-term contracts.

SUTTER AND SUTCLIFFE figure as the most attractive commodities in the group of the players who filed for free agency.

Sutter, the ace reliever of the St.

Louis Cardinals, tied a major-league record with 45 saves this season and Sutcliffe hurled the Cubs within one victory of the National League pennant before collapsing in the deciding game of the playoffs against San Diego.

Sutter, who has saved at least 21 games every year since 1977, is another desirable commodity.

On other fronts:

The Philadelphia Phillies are reluctant to let reliever Tug McGraw go because of his popularity with the fans but are unlikely to make a serious effort to sign Sixto Lezcano.

The Baltimore Orioles are expected to make a strong pitch for Andre Thornton and say they will not re-sign Ken Singleton, who had a poor year as designated hitter in 1984.

General Manager Jack McKeon says he thinks Whitson, 14-4 last season, will wind up with the Padres while the Houston Astros are unlikely to make any real effort to keep either pitchers Vern Riffe or Mike LaCoss.

For the Giants from 1958 until he retired in 1970. He led the National League in fielding percentage in 1959, 1960 and 1961.

THE 31-YEAR-OLD joined the Giants' coaching staff immediately after retiring in 1971, becoming the manager of the club's triple-A affiliate in Phoenix. He had a 225-216 record at the helm of the Phoenix club over a three-year span.

Davenport left the San Francisco franchise for two seasons — 1974 and '75 — to coach third base for the San Diego Padres. He returned to the Giants in 1976, serving in various capacities — the latest as a scout.

Ironically, it was former manager Frank Robinson who dumped Davenport as a coach in 1982 and told him to assume scouting duties. Robinson himself was fired in August as the Giants were stumbling to their worst season since moving to the West Coast.

DANNY OZARK took over as interim manager for the rest of 1984, but decided to retire at the end of the season.

Davenport's name was first mentioned as a managerial candidate when Robinson was fired. Rumors circulated during Ozark's tenure that Davenport would eventually win the permanent post.

Those rumors intensified on Sunday when it was discovered that Davenport had left his job as manager of the San Pedro de Macoris squad in the Dominican Republic winter league to travel to San Francisco.

Giants call Davenport to manage

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jim Davenport, an organization man who patiently waited 26 years for a chance to run the San Francisco Giants, was rewarded for his loyalty Tuesday by being named the club's new manager.

General Manager Tim Lincecum made the announcement at an afternoon press conference as a smiling Davenport looked on. The two have been friends since they played together for the Giants in the 1960s.

Davenport said he was "a puppet" of management and was unfocused.

"Let me set the record straight," he said. "Jimmy is going to be his own man. We felt that he was the best man for the job at this point in our history."

TEAM OWNER BOB LURIE, who put the Giants up for sale after the dismal 1984 season, stood at the back of the room and did not participate in the announcement.

Haller said he explained to all candidates for the manager's job that the longevity of the position may hinge on who buys the team.

Davenport said the club has a long way to go before becoming a competitive team. San Francisco ended the 1984 season in last place in the National League West.

"We certainly are not proud of what happened last year," he said. "We had some key players get hurt. With a healthy (Jack) Clark and a healthy (Atlee) Hamaker, we can be successful in 1985."

The new manager played third base for the Giants from 1958 until he retired in 1970. He led the National League in fielding percentage in 1959, 1960 and 1961.

Media rock dancing in the dark

WHAT DOES IT mean when pop stars — perhaps the most intensely-watched and fussed-over celebrities presently before the American consumer — suddenly “go public” and start spilling their real guts and/or revealing (at long, long last) their “true” selves?

A) That they have a new album/video/tour/look and have been advised or forced into promoting it/they. Included here: Most everybody, from the “new” Everly Brothers and zillionaire Paul McCartney with his new “movie” (beware of video directors bearing scripts, Paulie) to Boy George O’Dowd with his beard (gasp!) and Cyndi Lauper and her latest bouffant. I must also include the recent unveiling of Kiss into this category (see below).

B) That they are preparing to leave the band, vehicle or style that has made them (more) famous and are testing the waters aforejump. See also: Lindsey Buckingham, Ric Ocasek, David Bowie (see below), but not too many others. It’s safer these days to stick with a winning formula and not to really try anything. John Lydon (if you don’t know he used to be Johnny Rotten by now, tough) says modern American pop music “stinks” and that British music is “utter pap” and likens Boy George to Liberace — and I guess he has a fair idea as to what trying something different is.

C) That they really and truly are trying to make their “statement” clear to a wider number of people than those who eat lyric sheets for breakfast and/or try to divine the future with them. In this category, based on recent evidence, is Bruce Springsteen (see below). Miles Davis (in that trademark gritty whisper that translates to print amazingly well) and damn few others, bub.

Whatever the case, the motivation(s) are almost always centered around career or personal aggrandizement. Lauper, McCartney, Ocasek and even Phil ‘n’ Don Everly have bigtime career breaks on the line these days — even Paulie could get taken to the cleaners if his Give My Regards To Broad Street doesn’t cut the box-office mustard. And everyone in the business realizes that Rolling Stone, Tiger Beat, Guitar Player and even your trusty daily newspaper are used strictly as a promotional tool.

John Volland

With the arrival of the pop media saturation point somewhere in the early- to mid-1970s — around the time the Sunday supplement of your friendly local newspaper got into the action — one man changed the face of media usage by the pop worldlet: David Bowie. It was Bowie who started using the media to help him create images and impressions, of himself and of pop music generally. Post-Bowie, it was not a question of where and when to be interviewed or how to be appraised, but instead it was the interviewee who laid down the ground rules for discussion and how the impression would be realized.

EVERYBODY WHO maintains a high-profile image these days, from Cyndi Lauper to Twisted Sister, owes just about everything to Bowie. He freed up the territory, scoured the publicity plain of those knee-trembling interviewer types. So it’s not surprising that it’s the former Thin White Duke who’s calling the pop revelation trend nowadays.

You’ll recall that it was Bowie the chameleon that seemingly chucked all the old costumes and poses for the “new, real” Bowie who emerged just prior to the release of 1983’s Let’s Dance and the subsequent Serious Moonlight Tour. He set us all up for serious discussions of who the hell the guy really was — and of course he fooled us again.

Now, following the release of Tonight, his latest Iggy Pop Support Network offering, Bowie’s clammed up. One interview, and that was it. Besides some work with the Ig and sundry “experimental” tracks, Bowie says he doesn’t know what’s around the corner: “I don’t know... I never bloody know.” If you believe that, I have several of Elvis’ toenail shavings you might be interested in.

BUT THAT ATTITUDE might presage the end of this brand new wave of revelations, of which Kiss and Springsteen are the most amusing and interesting examples, respectively. Talk about going from the sublime to the ridiculous...

Kiss, of course, has delegated their exposure to the teenthrob fanzines of the country. Blazing forth from Faces of Rock like a neon comet this month was a story about the new “uncovered” boys, wherein they tooted their own horns like the practiced-hype virtuosi they are. Complete with fab photos, it was a story to make even the most ardent First Amendment supporter run for the spray paint.

What’s ironic about the new Kiss is, of course, that they’re just as boring musically as they ever were — the loss of the visuals you loved to hate is the loss of the only thing the ex-New York Dolls imitators (and now arena-rock clones) ever had going for them.

And Springsteen? Hold your breath, America, but the guy’s for real. The Boss has actually survived almost 10 years amidst the glitz with most of his integrity intact. In his recent interviews in magazines, on MTV and elsewhere, Springsteen vividly creates an image of a rocker who cares. “I like doing the old songs now, because I really feel they let the years in — they don’t feel limiting.” Can you imagine Mick Jagger saying that about “19th Nervous Breakdown”?

FURTHER, THE BOSS remembers Watergate, he eats right, none of the E Streeters do nasty foreign substances (save the occasional Budweiser) and he really seems to care about the kind of lives his fans are leading. True, he’s doing videos; true, he’s done 12-inch remixes of “Dancing in the Dark” and “Cover Me”; and true, he waves flags an uncomfortable amount for a rebellion figure.

But who else but Springsteen would say: “I don’t know about the question of what rock ‘n’ roll means to anyone. I think everyone has got to answer that question for themselves at this point.”

Can we have an Amen? Thank you. Volland is a DI staff writer whose column on arts/entertainment appears every Wednesday.

Ryders gallop into Crow's Nest

By Allen Hogg
An Entertainment Editor

THE LONG Ryders, a four-man Los Angeles group touring in support of one of the finest debut albums of the year, trot back into Iowa City tonight for a Halloween concert at the Crow's Nest.

The band, last seen here this March at Gabe's Oasis, return to town following the release of Native Sons, the group's Frontier Records LP and the crispest, most self-assured debut disc these ears have heard yet this year. Featuring such cuts as "Final Wild One," a no-holds-barred tribute to Jerry Lee Lewis, and the folk-rockish "Still Get By," Native Sons rings with a pure American sound. Even though most of the material is original, the listener can hook into the songs immediately. The band members have a firm grasp of the rock 'n' roll tradition; they make the music sound both completely new and nostalgic.

Native Sons (The Long Ryders' debut album) rings with a pure American sound. Even though most of the material is original, the listener can hook into the songs immediately. The band members have a firm grasp of the rock 'n' roll tradition; they make the music sound both completely new and nostalgic.

Night life

PRODUCED BY veteran soundman Henry Lewy (who's worked with such artists as Eddie Cochran, Don Everly, Joni Mitchell and Neil Young) Native Sons sounds as though it could have been recorded in 1969 at a secret jam session between the Byrds, the Band and Creedence Clearwater Revival.

The depth of the Long Ryders' music reflects the various backgrounds of the band members. Guitarist Sid Griffin is a native Kentuckian who has led "cult groups" with names like "The Unclaimed" and "The Frosties." Steel guitarist/multi-instrumentalist Stephen McCarthy is a Virginia boy whose roots are in traditional country music. Hollywood native Greg Sowders has a background which includes a stint playing drums for the Los Angeles ska band the Borboys. And bassist Tom Stevens attempted a solo pop career before moving to California from his native Indiana.

THE GROUP FIRST recorded together on the 1983 PVC Records EP 10-5-83. It was in support of this record that the group came to Gabe's last spring. It was far from a perfect show — the group seemed extremely tired from a long drive and their commitment to playing original music caused them to repeat songs two and sometimes three times. Still, the group's potential was evident even then. With another half a year of touring under their belts now, hopefully they'll have fine-tuned out the live performance problems.

Tonight's concert coincides with the Crow's Nest's annual Halloween costume contest. First place of $100 will go to the person with the best costume, and other prizes will include beer, T-shirts and Long Ryders records. Contestants for the costume contest must be registered at the door by 11 p.m.

Theater to present classic movie series

The "Classic Movie Series" returns for its third year to the Paramount Theatre in downtown Cedar Rapids. This year's films include:

• Sunday, Nov. 4 — Key Largo, a 1948 John Huston melodrama starring Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Lionel Barrymore and Edward G. Robinson as a tough gangster holding people captive in a Key West hotel during a rough storm.

• Sunday, Dec. 16 — The King and I, a 1956 film of the Rogers and Hammerstein musical starring Deborah Kerr as a British schoolteacher who is hired to educate the children of the King of Siam (played by Yul Brynner) and gradually falls in love with him.

• Sunday, Jan. 6 — North by Northwest, a 1959 Alfred

Hitchcock film starring Cary Grant as an alcoholic advertising director who is caught up in an underworld nightmare when he's mistaken for a spy by secret agent James Mason and his accomplice Eva Marie Saint.

• Sunday, Feb. 17 — Shane, a 1953 epic Western directed by George Stevens and starring Alan Ladd as a gunfighter coming to the aid of homesteaders and Jack Palance as the villain who forces him into action; and

• Sunday, Mar. 24 — Three Coins in a Fountain, a 1953 comedy starring Dorothy McGuire, Jean Peters and Maggie McNamara as three American secretaries in Rome who wish for romance at the Fountain of Trevi, sparking all sorts of amorous adventures.

'Blind Date' makes a good impression

By Kelly McNertney
Staff Writer

AN EVENING with the Iowa City band Blind Date is a little like an actual blind date. Looking at the advertising poster for Blind Date, it's hard to tell exactly what you're in for. "Playing primarily fresh original music," the poster reads, "a must for anyone with a fancy for the fringe."

And once into the performance, it's hard to tell where the evening is going to go next. The band's two acoustic pillars sometimes play in perfect unison, and other times venture off into simultaneous (not always harmonious) solos. Lead singer John Albertson seems to embrace a David Bowie style of singing, even though the material is often far from Bowie's musical style. And although most of the evening is dedicated to original music (kind of an acoustic hard rock), the band throws in a few familiar tunes for the audience. But the Rolling Stones, Pink Floyd and John Cougar Mellencamp re-dubs are a sharp contrast to the rest of the performance.

PROBABLY MOST like a blind date was the unassuming conveyed by the band when playing in the informal atmosphere of The Vine last Saturday. It needed a stage to accommodate Albertson's theatrical gestures and to accentuate the contrasting guitar styles of Mike Stone and Mike Michalik. It needed a little distance from the audience, who listened attentively most of the evening, but was in too serious a mood to sing-along when called upon by the band.

For its upcoming performance at Amelia Earhart's Deli on Nov. 9, the atmosphere might better suit its needs. The group's members aren't the guitar-on-knee folk singer types who can establish intimacy with a small audience in a small place. (Stone and Albertson played with the local band Viewpoint, and Michalik has toured with Chitlins and other groups from the Dubuque-Wisconsin area.) While Amelia's doesn't exactly have a stage, it might give these guys the space in which to relax and better attempt to present themselves as they wish to be seen.

For a blind date, they're really not so bad; it's just that, like many blind dates, they look better against some backdrop than others.

You don't have to be an "A" student to know you should always be prepared.

It doesn't take a genius to know just how important a Sheik condom can be. Measuring a thin three one-thousandths of an inch, Sheik condoms offer the perfect balance of strength and sensitivity. If they were any thinner, you wouldn't feel quite so safe. Any thicker and you wouldn't feel all there is to feel. In fact, Sheik condoms are tested up to seven different times by advanced scientific techniques—including individual electronic testing.

Yet, with all their strength, they feel so natural you'd swear you weren't wearing a condom at all.

For a limited time, you can send for a Sheik sampler pack. Send your name, address, plus $2.00 to: Sheik Office, P.O. Box 3137, Dept. S, Hillsdale, NJ 07205.

Syrupy series lacks substance

By Merwyn Grote
Staff Writer

THE FIRST thing one should know about "Louisiana," Cinemax's first attempt at a mini-series, is that it is trash; pure, unadulterated pulp-fiction trash. That is not to say that it isn't good trash, even potentially great trash, but it is trash nevertheless.

It is the video equivalent of those paperbacks that fill the bookshelves at drugstores and supermarkets. You know the type, mammoth volumes that are about the length of an average Bible, cover a time span of about the same length and frequently have words like "Passion," "Lust," or "Desire" in their lurid titles. In fact, "Louisiana" is based on two such novels from France (though most viewers will immediately recognize that it is really based on Gone with the Wind, Birth of a Nation, Mandingo and dozens of other Hollywood Civil War movies).

THE STORY CONCERNS Virginia Tregan (Margot Kidder), an uppity young woman born in Louisiana but raised and educated in Paris. She returns to her southern homestead during the 1840s to claim her inheritance from her late father's estate. Unfortunately, she discovers that daddy had more creditors than ready cash, and she finds that she is the next worst thing to being totally destitute; she is poor, white trash.

Virginia stays with her godfather, Adrian Damville (Lloyd Bochner) and immediately loses her heart to Clarence Dandridge (Ian Charleson),

"Louisiana" has all the earmarks of great trashy soap opera. The ample plot moves along at a spritely pace with the next trying situation popping up before the viewer has had the opportunity to digest the utter absurdity of the preceding situation.

Television

the aloof caretaker of the Damville plantation. But Clarence has already lost a vital part of his anatomy in a lover's duel some years before and rejects her amorous advances. Rejected, but by no means dejected, she connives to sabotage her godfather's torrid romance with his mistress so that she can take over the position of mistress of the Damville plantation.

THE NEXT THREE hours deals with Virginia playing mother hen to the Damville brood, riding roughshod over the family through all of its trials and tribulations, doing her part for the Confederacy during the Civil War and, in general, being a stalwart figure as the various other cast members begin dropping like flies. She also maintains a lustful (though by necessity platonic) romance with Clarence.

"Louisiana" has all the earmarks of great trashy soap opera. The ample plot moves along at a spritely pace with the next trying situation popping up before the viewer has had the opportunity to digest the utter absurdity of the preceding situation. Secondary characters weave their way throughout the wicked narrative, always appearing at the most apt moments.

And ironies? This film has them by the truckload. Virginia gets into a tizzy because she discovers that her slaves have learned to read and write. So naturally when her only daughter is raped and murdered the only witness is a mute slave, who can only name the killer because he can read and write. When Adrian's eldest son, also named Adrian, is killed in battle, who pulled the trigger? Why it is Adrian, Sr.'s illegitimate son (he, too, named Adrian), who was born to the mistress that Virginia ousted at the beginning of the story.

"LOUISIANA" IS NOT quite a parody, but it does come awfully close. When Virginia arrives on a riverboat, the strumming of a banjo announces her appearance. The death of a slave is accompanied by a haunting black spiritual. And, of course, the viewer knows that it is time for the Civil War to start because suddenly the soundtrack swells to the sounds of "Dixie." These clichés would be unbearable if the film took itself seriously for even a moment. But fortunately the filmmakers sense the tawdriness of the material and just have fun with it.

The one having the most fun is obviously Margot Kidder, who plays Virginia as though she were a cross between Scarlett O'Hara and Lois Lane, with large doses of Mildred Pierce, Alexis Carrington and any randomly selected Bette Davis character thrown in for flavor. It is Kidder's first chance to play the central figure in big glossy epic like this and she makes the most of every opportunity that the screenplay gives her.

AS THE LOVESICK caretaker with the sexual problem, Ian Charleson doesn't get to do much. As he described the part, he basically stands in the background and sulks. He does, however, sulk with great sincerity. And his morose, sullen passivity makes for a nice contrast as Kidder ravenously chews up the scenery.

Admittedly, "Louisiana's" silliness can begin to wear thin, particularly as its three-and-a-half hour running time drags on. But it is silliness that knows its place. Its only goal is to entertain and like a good southern hostess, it succeeds by going out of its way to please. And it spins a whopper of yarn in the process.

Brass act to be trumped up by Cedar Rapids symphony

By Laura Behrens
Special to The Daily Iowan

IT'S BRASS week at the Paramount as the Cedar Rapids Symphony Orchestra continues its subscription concert season Saturday and Monday. From the piercing trumpets of Stravinsky's Petrushka through Mozart's Concerto No. 4 for Horn and Orchestra to Richard Strauss' Rosenkavalier Suite, the high points should all be forged in brass. Igor Stravinsky's ballet Petrushka was composed about 1911, the second of his three most outstanding pieces for the legendary Ballet Russe of Paris. (The Firebird and The Rite of Spring are the other two.) Written to highlight the piano, the ballet is the story of the puppet, Petrushka, whose historic perspective is sometimes lost on audiences in America, where fairs and festivals are so much different than those in Europe.

PETRUSHKA IS the puppet character found in all old Russian fairs. His counterpart in Britain is Punch; in France it is Harlequin and in Italy it is Arlecchino. Petrushka's one striking resemblance to the Pincocchio of Walt Disney studios is that he is imbued with human emotion. Stravinsky tells Petrushka's story in four tableaux. The first sets the scene of a medieval Russian fair, introducing us to the Puppetmaster and his three charges. The second scene shows Petrushka's lonely love for the Ballerina puppet, who rejects him. In the third scene, Petrushka discovers his love in the arms of the third puppet, his rival, the Moor. The ballet ends when the Moor kills Petrushka, whose ghost rises above the fair even as the Puppetmaster demonstrates to the crowd that Petrushka was no more than wood, stuffing and paint.

YOU WON'T SEE ALL this at the symphony concert, naturally, but you will hear Stravinsky's incomparable ability to paint a story with the colors of the orchestra. The CSRO will perform the full ballet (rather than the abbreviated suite), in Stravinsky's 1947 concert version.

Music

The second half of the concert begins with Concerto No. 4 for Horn and Orchestra in E-flat major, K. 495 by Mozart. The soloist will be Dale Clevenger, principal horn for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, which is renowned for its brass section. Clevenger records for RCA and Deutsche Grammophon, teaches at Northwestern University, and plays with a number of chamber ensembles in the United States and Europe. He is also music director of the Elmhurst Symphony of suburban Chicago.

THE CSRO'S OWN horn section will get a chance to shine in the concert's final selection, the suite from the opera Der Rosenkavalier. This is Richard Strauss's most popular opera, filled with sweeping waltzes and lustrous colors of fin de siècle Vienna. It opens with one of the great horn passages of the literature, and it should shine especially in the friendly environs of the Paramount.

As CSRO Music Director Christian Tiemeyer stated, "This is quite a concert for everybody." Curtain time for the concerts will be 8 p.m. at the Paramount Theatre in downtown Cedar Rapids. Student rush tickets go on sale for a reduced price of $3.50 a half an hour before the concert. There are few acoustically disappointing seats at the Paramount, so these seats are a bargain. An ID is required to purchase student rush tickets.

At the Bijou

Night of the Living Dead. Awoooooo! It's Halloween, boys and girls, and the Bijou is celebrating the occasion with some sca-a-ary movies. This one is the first of George Romero's Dead series, with the dead rising to eat the flesh of the living. It sends shivers up the spine just thinking about it. You can see it here first and then go home and see it again on MTV. At 7 p.m.

• I Walked With a Zombie. Oh, no, another thriller! This one is a 1943 spine-tingler from director Jacques Tourneur. It stars Frances Dee as a nurse who goes to the West Indies, only to encounter some strange voodoo rituals. It's just too scary! Awooooo! At 9 p.m.

• Monty Python and the Holy Grail. Unless you find laughter frightening, this film isn't very scary. But this British comedy troupe's spoof on the Arthurian legends is pretty popular, and an extra showing has been added. At 5 p.m.

Television

On the networks: If you don't know who Elvira is, this Halloween gives you ample opportunity to find out. The vampish Vampira and horror movie hostess appears first on "The Fall Guy" (ABC at 7 p.m.) in a tale about a haunted house that unites veteran actor John Carradine with his three sons, David, Keith and Robert for the first time on camera. Later she chats with Joan Rivers, Joan Collins and Vincent Price on "The Tonight Show" (NBC at 10:30 p.m.).

• On cable: The Mistress of the Dark is at it again as she hosts "Elvira's Halloween Party" (MTV-1 at 7 p.m.), a marathon of spooky videos and other nonsense topped off with a showing of Night of the Living Dead at 11 p.m. TBS-15 has its own Halloween celebration lined up with Alfred Hitchcock's The Birds at 7:05 p.m.; The War of the Worlds at 9:40 p.m.; and "The Night That Panicked America," a TV-movie recreation of Orson Welles' infamous 1938 radio broadcast, at 1:40 a.m.

Radio

Thrills and chills are coming across the airwaves tonight as well, with KRUI's Radio Theatre (89.7 on FM) presenting the classics of Halloween horror from 6 p.m. to midnight. And on KUNI's "Progression" program (90.9 on FM), disc jockey Al Schares will rock the graveyard beginning at 9 p.m.

Music

Visiting English professor Jean Vache and members of the UI School of Music faculty will present a talk and demonstration showing the relationship between Baroque poetry and music at 12:30 p.m. in Harper Hall.

Art

The UI Museum of Art continues its "Nourish the Lunchtime Connoisseur" series with the film The Crooked Beak of Heaven, showing ceremonies of Northwest American Indian tribes. The screening accompanies the "Native American Art in Iowa Collections" exhibition, which will close on Nov. 4. At 12:30 in the museum.

Nightlife

The Long Ryders, a four-man Los Angeles group specializing in an American sound reminiscent of a cross between the Byrds, the Band and Creedence Clearwater Revival, return to town to help celebrate the Crow's Nest's Halloween costume party. A $100 prize will be awarded to the person sporting the best get-up.

• The Service, a Dekalb, Ill., outfit playing "twisted modern psychedelia," perform at Gabe's Oasis tonight.
