Date rape" presents dangers to women in Iowa City

By Terri Stanger

Deer between her fingers, a woman can still roar in Iowa

On Oct. 10, a 15th-annual report on rape and sexual assault was released in Iowa, offering a glimpse into the world of dating violence and rape.

In the last year, 11 cases of rape were reported to authorities. The majority of these cases were reported in the same month, but the report also highlights a pattern of violence that begins with the beginning of the school year.

1. "Date rape" is a type of sexual assault that occurs in a dating relationship and involves the use of coercion or threats to prevent the other person from seeking help or reporting the assault.
2. The report presents data on the number of cases of rape and sexual assault that occur in Iowa, as well as statistics on the age, race, and gender of the victims.
3. The report also provides information on the legal and medical consequences of rape and sexual assault, as well as resources for survivors.
4. The report is a valuable tool for researchers and policymakers who are working to address the issue of dating violence and rape in Iowa.

Final election results show GOP candidate popularity

Student votes boosted Evans' tally

By Wanda Rosche

The support of younger voters may have been as important to Evans' victory as any other factor. According to an Iowa City, University of Iowa, student, Evans' biggest strength was his incumbency, Ross said. He added that Evans received all incumbent congressional endorsements in his district. However, young voters, including those at the University of Iowa, called Evans' political views somewhat liberal. The victory revealed a lack of campaign funds and little, if any, of the efforts that the Harkin campaign had put in.

Though Iowa City, traditionally a Democratic stronghold, wasn't voting as heavily as in the past, Johnson County, according to a poll, cast more votes for Democratic candidates this year than it had in 1982. The Horace Mann precincts voted for Johnston, while the Senior Center precinct contained a large percentage of younger citizens who may have voted for Mondale.

In contrast, Mondale's strongest support came from traditionally Democratic precincts. However, young voters, including those at the University of Iowa, called Evans' political views somewhat liberal. The victory revealed a lack of campaign funds and little, if any, of the efforts that the Harkin campaign had put in.

Evans' strongest showing was in Iowa City. Mondale received 20 percent of the votes cast in the Horace Mann precincts, while Carter received 20 percent of the votes cast in the Senior Center precinct.

The number of votes casting their ballot for Mondale or Reagan, the Longfellow and Senior Center support districts, was almost as large as the number who voted for Mondale in the Longfellow and Senior Center support districts. Mondale's strongest showing was in Iowa City. Mondale received 20 percent of the votes cast in the Horace Mann precincts, while Carter received 20 percent of the votes cast in the Senior Center precinct.

Regents approve lower funds for UI construction

By Matthew Jaukka

The state board of Regents Wednesday approved a request by the University of Iowa to reduce funding for major UI construction projects by 30 percent.

The 30 percent reduction is an increase of $10 million in the annual budget for Iowa City’s University Administration Building pending approval from the state legislature.

The UI requested $62 million for an expanded E. Geisler Laboratory building and $8 million for a new Business Administration Building. The school officials said they need the $18 million in funding in order to complete important projects on campus.

The UI administration said the reduction was based on a smaller structure for the Engineering building, which also includes the cost of a partial structure from the Business Administration Building.

Brian T. Serafin, director of Facility Planning and Development, said the UI requested funding requests for the planning and design of five projects during the last legislative session. The state legislature did not fund those projects.

"The UI has been asked to reduce its requests by 30 percent and we will do that," Serafin said.

In addition to approving the planning funds for the new buildings, the regents also approved a $39 million capital plan for the new Business Administration Building.

The report states that the UI is not seeking any other funding requests for other academic areas.

"We are not seeking any other funding requests for other academic areas," Serafin said.

The UI is planning to complete those projects by 1998.

Hall to bring Iowa history to life

By Mary Boone

There's a place on the UI campus where recent history meets present day.

A portion of Iowa Hall honors noted Iowan historians, Thomas Mackbride, for whom the building was named. Charles Greene, editor of Charles Nuttgal and others agree to Macbride "when you go to the UI, you can't miss it." The museum has some of the most comprehensive series of exhibits especially series of the old exhibits of the Iowa Hall. Some women who urce using Macbride Hall's east entrance bring to the building the unique way in which it is occupied by the UI Main Library.

When Iowa Hall was remodeled the entire building was closed, and according to Mackbride, "it was a time for us to take a look in the museum and see how things have changed and, according to Mackbride, "we were surprised, what a difference it had made in the world."

Museum director said the museum would be open to the public for the week of Thanksgiving. The museum has some of the most comprehensive series of exhibits especially series of the old exhibits.

When Iowa Hall opened, the museum was designed to present geological, archaeological, and archaeological history of Iowa. Lacking development for the exhibits was the "natural history," according to Mackbride.

"I think people enjoyed the exhibits," he said.

"LARGE MURAL" reveals the story's work, trees, shrubs, and leaves will form complete, but simple educational displays will return to the museum on the main level.

"This world could have all been done," said Mackbride, "we have the capability of all of us to do this work. Unfortunately, we would have to plan the entire building to be restored, it," he said.

"A new exhibit has also worked with the Macbride Hall to develop a video version of Iowa's year long weather cycle."

"We want to maintain the traditional picture and put in the museum in cohesive framework of interaction with the exhibits," said Mackbride.

"It's a wonderful opportunity to be out here and have someone to help us make this a reality," said Macbride.
Sound and fury

Iowa City's noise ordinance took it on the chin Tuesday when Johnson County District Judge Harold Swailes, ruling in a case involving Iowa City Police, declined it "unconstitutionally vague" because it contained "little objective criteria . . . to guide enforcement officials . . ."

The ruling may not have been a knockout blow, but it did put the ordinance on notice .

To decide if a noise is a disturbance, police officers must determine whether "it is likely or reasonably probable that the noise will annoy or disturb a person or group of persons in the vicinity.

The ordinance would be meaningless, according to the judge, if it is impossible to determine if a noise would be "annoying or disturbing to a person or group of persons in the vicinity.

The constitutionality of the noise ordinance may be in question, but it is in the public interest in the fact that it is probably superfluous in light of the ordinance mentioned above, which is altogether too vague to be of any practical use.

For Mayor and Judges have done the city a favor by forcing it to reexamine the present ordinance.

The local business community can always be counted on for ideas about how to bring new industries to the city. Usually those ideas involve either local resident property taxes or the city itself.

One can only wonder whether the so-called tax-abatement program the Iowa City Council will discuss at its informal meeting Monday. A plan an industry of the future.

We need the business more than ever, but the city is in no position to do the business it needs to do.

One can't fault businesspeople for seeking whatever benefits the city will still provide.

Board seeks promise of new boilers from Branstad

The University of Iowa and Iowa State University will be making a request of Governor Robert F. Branstad to report consulting services that faculty members earn.

Previously, the UI policy did not require faculty members to report their earnings from consulting. The policy was implemented by the board of regents in 1982.

After last month's meeting, the board gave the request preliminary approval in a plan that would cost up to $1 million to implement. The fee is $225. This includes five nights lodging and round-trip transportation from Iowa City to Ft. Lauderdale. The event is March 9-15.

Wisconsin, Big Ten Relays have importance for Iowa

By John Whisenhunt

The Iowa men’s swimming team will host the first event of the Big Ten Relays this weekend at the University of Iowa Natatorium. The Big Ten Relays mark the beginning of the Big Ten swimming competition and are one of the most exciting events of the season.

The Big Ten Relays have been a staple of the Big Ten swimming season for over 50 years. The meet brings together the best swimmers from the Big Ten Conference, providing a competitive atmosphere that is unmatched by any other meet.

The meet will consist of 30 events, including 15 individual events and 15 relays. The meet will also feature the Big Ten records, which are set by swimmers who perform at the highest level of competition.

The meet will be held on Saturday and Sunday, with the best swimmers from the Big Ten Conference competing for individual and relay titles.

Swimming

DESPITE THE UNIQUENESS OF THE MEET, Coach Morgan said that some swimmers had complained about the meet. "We have more people who are involved in the meet than in the regular Big Ten meet," Morgan said.

"That is a disadvantage because we will be moving people around to get the best combination," Morgan said.

"It is a competitive environment for us," Morgan said.

"The meet has a unique format and is designed to provide a competitive atmosphere for the swimmers," Morgan said.

"It is a good environment for us to compete in," Morgan said.

"The meet is also a great opportunity for us to see how we stack up against the best swimmers in the Big Ten," Morgan said.

"We are looking for a competitive atmosphere for us," Morgan said.

Dallas hopes hot streak continues in the cold, wintry Buffalo climate

United Press International

The Cowboys are headed for the cold weather, but Dallas Coach Tom Landry is hoping that the Cowboys will not be caught off guard by the brisk breeze with the worst record in the NFL. The Cowboys, who have lost the only three games they have played in the NFL, are the underdogs in the Western Conference playoff game against the Buffalo Bills. The Bills are the only team in the NFL with a below-.500 record.

However, the game in Buffalo is no joke for the Cowboys. The Bills are the team that the Cowboys have to beat to get into the playoffs. The Bills have won 10 games this season, while the Cowboys have won 4. The Bills have the inside track on the AFC East title, while the Cowboys are fighting for a wild card spot.

"The Bills are a tough team," said Landry. "They have a lot of talent and they play hard. We have to be prepared to face them."

Wise Blood

Directed by Robert Altman
Based on a Novel by Flannery O'Connor

these days a popular tourist attraction in the South.

Wise Blood is an intriguing, often disturbing tale of good and evil.

"In the South," Flannery O'Connor wrote, "there is an absolute faith in the ability of man to be redemptive..." But this faith is tested in Wise Blood, where the protagonist, Hazel Motes, is a young, ambitious man who believes that he can achieve redemption on his own terms.

Hazel's quest for redemption leads him to make some unsavory decisions, including stealing an Indian mummy in order to make a profit.

"Hazel's" secondary characters, including his father, Enoch, and his landlady, Mrs. Hawks, are also depicted as flawed individuals who struggle with their own desires and beliefs.

"Wise Blood" is a dark comedy that explores the complexities of human nature and the search for redemption in a world that is often cruel and unforgiving.

"Wise Blood" has been described as a "bleak" and "enigmatic" portrait of the South, but it is also a deeply human story that resonates with readers and viewers around the world.

"Wise Blood" continues to be on view until Jan. 13.

New exhibits open at the UI art museum

Two new exhibits open today at the Old Capitol Center. One is "The Music Box," which features a collection of music boxes from various parts of the world. The other is "NATIVE AMERICAN," which showcases a selection of Native American art and artifacts.

The music box exhibit features over 200 music boxes, ranging from the 18th century to the present day. Each box has a unique sound and design, and visitors can try them out for themselves.

The "NATIVE AMERICAN" exhibit features a wide variety of objects, including pottery, clothing, and tools.

"NATIVE AMERICAN" runs through the end of the year.
