The 123-member, 30-state law enforcement community, which received a ban on air travel for licensed pilots in late 1983, has been a matter of concern for years. The ban was enacted by the FAA after it was determined that a large number of pilots had been involved in accidents, including a fatal crash in Texas in 1982.

In a recent article, the FAA stated that it would be impossible to determine which pilots were involved in the crash, but that it was believed to be the result of an intentional act, possibly suicide. If I were to teach at the University of Iowa, I’d have one thing on my mind: the number of students in each class. As a professor, I believe that the number of students in a class should be limited to ensure that each student receives individual attention.

This fall, the center, which serves as a resource for students preparing for the SAT or ACT, had 7,000 students. The center had about 3,000 students in 1981. According to the center’s director, the number of students has increased by about 50 percent in the past five years.

"There are times in the year when we’re not quite sure," said the director of the center’s state director. "We’ve had more than 10,000 students come to the center this year."

Iowa City, Dec. 26 (UPI) - Somali hijackers let a midnight deadline pass without carrying out the threats they said they will blow up the jetliner because they are furious, their spokesman said after the meeting.

"We will pray the hijackers will not carry this threat out and shoulder it on Somali soil," Wolde said. The hijackers had set a 12:01 a.m. (0201 GMT) deadline for the hijacking in the city of Bishoftu in Ethiopia, which was extended to 4 p.m. (1600 GMT) Wednesday. It was the third deadline passed back on the hijacking since the plane landed in Ethiopia Sunday.

"We will not blow up the hijackers according to the demand of the hijackers," Wolde said. "We still have the hijackers."

"The heads of the hijackers are involved, hostage, they are insane," Wolde told reporters. "They are hypnotized. They will carry out the threat, they will not carry it out.

"We pray the hijackers will not carry this threat out and shoulder it on Somali soil." Wolde said.

WOLDE said the hijackers, who described themselves as a government peace delegation, were carrying out the threats because they were upset by the response of the Somali government to their demands.

"We have not received the guarantee for the release of the Somali hijackers. They are furious," Wolde told reporters.

The hijackers, though temporarily detained by the government, have not been reconciled to the federal government's stance on the hijacking.

"The Somali hijackers have passed the midnight deadline. We will not comply with their demands. The Somali hijackers will blow up the jetliner," Wolde said.

WOLDE said the hijackers have been given promises by the government, but they have not been fulfilled.

In a statement broadcast over state radio Thursday morning, Wolde said negotiations were continuing and that the hijackers were willing to negotiate with the government.

Nineteen percent of the American electorate is now the position of the bride who, having been wooed, entered into the second marriage in some kind of legal arrangement dealing with the fourth quarter. This gives the government the opportunity to avoid paying alimony and child support to three individuals. Iowa City's Line Street may not replace Fifth Avenue in New York City as the nation's trendiest street, but it has its own appeal to shoppers. With a bustling and friendly atmosphere, it has become a haven for those seeking clothing and accessories.

The move, Raveling said, was his decision and his parents', who are both members of the Iowa City community. "It's a special place, and we wanted to be a part of it," he said.

The store carries items from New York, such as designer clothes for men and women, leather jackets and shoes, and some of the most exclusive designers in the world. It's the perfect place to find the latest fashion trends without breaking the bank.

"With the recent changes in the area, it's become more of a destination for people who enjoy shopping," Raveling added.

Nicklaus' put worth $240,000 in Skins game

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) - Jack Nicklaus has a teak pipe to bid the 5th hole and won $51,000 in the Skins game at the scottsdale Golf Complex.

Neither Nicklaus nor Ed Pathos have earned a skin in the three previous rounds. So Nicklaus decided to take the lead with his put at the 5th hole. The 5th hole is a 220-yard par 4 with a water hazard in the middle of the fairway and Nicklaus was able to make a putt from about 15 feet. The put was dimples deep and Nicklaus whooped it up and put the ball in the cup. He then hit the ball back to the tee and made his next putt. The Skins game is a friendly competition where a team of four players bid on each hole. The player with the lowest score on a given hole wins a skin, which is cash. The player who wins the most skins wins the game.

Stevens leads Cyclones past Brandon

ASSOCIATED PRESS - All-American center Todd Stevens scored in six of the first nine positions, including 19 in the second half, as Iowa State defeated the University of Idaho 84-71 in NCAA basketball action Tuesday night.

The Cyclones, who are currently ranked No. 4 in the nation, started slowly and trailed by three points early in the game. However, they took control in the second half and won comfortably. Iowa State's Todd Stevens was named the game's MVP after scoring 31 points on 12 of 19 shooting. He also grabbed 13 rebounds.

Dock qualifies for U.S. Team

By Steve Bernstein

Scores for the second round of the U.S. Open were published today. In the 2nd round play, Jack Nicklaus led the field with a score of 192. Other strong finishes were led by Lee Trevino with a 194, Tom Purtzer with a 195, and Tom Weiskopf with a 196. The top 16 finishers in the 2nd round will qualify for the U.S. Open. Nicklaus, who is the defending champion, will be one of the favorites to win the tournament. Nicklaus is looking to win his 12th U.S. Open title and become the first player to win the event seven times. The tournament starts on Monday at Pebble Beach Country Club.

Hawkeyes tie record for victories

Steve Thompson

Despite a disappointing fourth-place finish at the Big Ten Invitational, the Iowa volleyball team was not too concerned with its showing in the Midwest regionals. The Hawkeyes were eliminated in the first round of the NCAA tournament when they lost to Nebraska, 3-1, in the regional final.

"It's not too disappointing," said Coach Jay Hllock's Hawkeyes (19-12), who were seeded third in the Midwest region. "We played well in the first round, but we simply couldn't match Nebraska's intensity in the second game. We were too passive in our attack and too conservative in our defense."

"We knew we had to play better in the second round," said Thompson. "We had to put more pressure on our opponents and use our variety of shots. But we just weren't able to execute our game plan as well as we had hoped.

"We're disappointed with the result, but we're also pleased with the progress we've made this season," said Thompson. "We've improved as a team, and we're looking forward to next year."

Linda Lee, a scientist, comes to Earth to study a rare alien. She meets Superman, who is also a scientist, and they fall in love. The movie is a romantic comedy with some action sequences. Brenda plays the role of a teenybopper, and Teri plays Supergirl, a superheroine. The movie is a light-hearted takes on the superhero genre.

Indeed, the movie is a bit of a bore. The performances are average, and the special effects are not very impressive. The movie is more of a romantic comedy than a superhero movie.

The movie is not very successful in the box office. Despite having a good cast, the movie did not do well at the box office. The movie was released in 1984 and grossed $12 million.

Some people think that the movie is a bit of a bore, but others think that it is a fun movie to watch. The movie is a bit of a bore, but it is not a bad movie. The movie is worth watching if you are a fan of superhero movies.

international film festival breaks attendance records

CHICAGO — The Chicago International Film Festival celebrated its 20th anniversary by breaking records in attendance, although initial attendance figures are not yet available. Festival creator and director Mark Fish said that the 1984 totals surpass those of any previous year.

In addition, this year’s Festival, which ended Sunday after a 15-day run, programmed more than 70 films from 22 countries, and audiences opened its doors to the public, including many Chicagoans who attend each year. The festival was sponsored by the Chicago International Film Festival, Inc., and the city of Chicago.

The Maki, by Indian director Prakash Verma, won the Chicago Festival’s top award, the Gold Hugo. The feature film jury also awarded a Golden Hugo to a feature film from Mexico, and the audience selected one film each from India and Italy as their favorites.

The festival featured many world premieres, including the films "The Electric Chair" and "The Last of the Mohicans." The latter was directed by James Cameron, who won an Academy Award for his direction of "The Terminator." The festival was held at the Showplace in the Loop.

Other films, such as "Manzanita," Los Angeles and "Czechoslovakia," Italy, also went on display.

The festival also screened a number of other films, including "The Man from Uncle," "ERAN," and "The New Wave." These films were shown in theaters throughout the city.

On the television Jane Fonda won an Oscar on Sunday night, but in the print media she was already losing ground. In one p.m. newspaper article, the former movie star and single-minded activist was portrayed as a cold, calculating, manipulative creature. In another p.m. newspaper article, the actress was portrayed as a professional, hard-working actress. In one p.m. newspaper article, she was portrayed as a role model for young girls everywhere. In all these stories, the actress was portrayed as a woman who is not only successful in her career, but who is also successful in her personal life. In all these stories, she is portrayed as a woman who has overcome many obstacles, and who has made many sacrifices to get to where she is today. In all these stories, she is portrayed as a woman who is not only successful, but who is also respected by her peers.
