Kim criticizes U.S. attitude toward South Korea

By Wendy Rose

The rejection of democracy in South Korea lingers as an attitude change within the U.S. government, op

By Doc Freeman

Kim said it is time for the U.S. government to recognize U.S.-based South Korea as a separate state.

When the U.S. government changed its policy toward South Korea from "status of Taiwan" to "Republic of Korea," it left the door open for a solution that would allow South Korea to become independent.

However, the U.S. has not yet made any commitment to support South Korea's request for independence.

Kim said, "The United States government has a responsibility to promote the principles of freedom and democracy in the world, and it is time for us to take action to support South Korea's struggle for independence."

Kim added that the U.S. has an obligation to support the democratic movement in South Korea, which is fighting for its survival.

The South Korean government has repeatedly called for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea, and the U.S. has yet to respond to these requests.

Kim said, "The U.S. has a responsibility to support the democratic movement in South Korea, and it is time for us to take action to support this struggle."

Kim concluded that the U.S. must take a strong position against South Korea, and that it is time for us to take action to support the democratic movement in South Korea.
Beer cans earn teen court charge

By Tamara Rood

A group of 15-year-old girls has become the first to face charges in a Johnson County District Court for possession of beer after a brief police action at the University of Northern Iowa.

The action was taken on Monday evening, as a group of four University of Northern Iowa police officers were responding to a report of a disturbance at a residence hall on the University's Downtown Campus. At the scene, the officers observed a group of girls, some of whom were drinking beer.

The officers approached the group, and one of the girls, a 15-year-old high school student, was found to be in possession of a beer can. The officers then searched the residence hall, and found that several other girls were also in possession of beer.

The girls were charged with possession of alcohol, and were released on their own recognizance.

Construction and renovation projects at the University of Iowa are being held up by a controversy over titles, according to UI officials, the failure to meet those construction deadlines is causing the UI financial and educational problems.

It's very hard to figure actual costs, because construction is a complex process, said UI spokesperson Bartkevicus. Elderly ‘Santas’ to answer letters forwarded to local senior centers

By Sue Shimp

For the fourth consecutive year, the Iowa City post office will be helping children throughout Johnson County believe in Santa Claus.

Approximately 75 letters addressed to "Santa" will be forwarded to the Iowa City Post office, the Iowa City Senior Citizens Agency, the Iowa City Senior Center, and residents at the Iowa City Post Office. Dan Greg said, "It seemed like a natural thing for us to do." Greg said. "Every year the post office gets a certain amount of letters addressed to 'Santa.' Over the years, we've discovered that they are destroyed. The thought occurred to me that we should do something.

People at the post office send postcards to the children acknowledging their letters. Greg said. "We've been sending cards to the Santa Club and reminding the children that he's been there and for good reason." Greg said.

Greg said, "I'm sure Santa would be pleased with the cards we sent and in keeping with the time, the letters have been personally addressed.

"I get a kick out of doing it. It's not that hard but that parents don't have to write the kids back and personally address them."

Besides forwarding the letters, Greg said. "We're sending the letters to the families through our active doctors wing."

"We have a group affiliated with the churches that will provide some extra assistance for economically disabled families." Greg said. "We're doing this with a small program, but it's not a formal program."

"The seniors have been so happy with the cards and some of the gifts requests made by children, they do not usually have a lot of contact with their families," Gregg said. "So it seemed like a natural thing for us to do.

"Besides forwarding the letters, Gregg said, "we are also giving the seniors something to look forward to."

"We're going to answer letters from all the post offices or special drop boxes at local post office to Santa, and the North Pole."

Gregg said, "We'll match that so we're looking for about $4000 a total contribution," he said. "It's only a drop in the bucket, but we're doing something for the elderly residents and children around the country as well as helping out in Ethiopia.

"We might not be able to answer every letter, but we have been as pleased as they are about the response from the seniors." Greg said. "We're pleased that we have been able to supply the seniors with a certain amount of the items that they have been asking for.

"The seniors asked for different things than children do," Walker said. "The seniors asked for food, clothing and blankets."

"The seniors have been so pleased with the gifts requests made by children and reindeer thanking the seniors for answering their letters."

TRANSAFRICA PLANS TO SPREAD PROTEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The TransAfrica assistance movement, which in 1980 had identified with the liberation* of South Africa’s Black people, is now taking on new momentum in the United States in protest against the continued imposition of U.S. sanctions on Cuba.

"This is a front-page story in the Black press and there is something about which every Back South African knows," he said. The protest has also been joined by a number of U.S. officials who have worked on the issue of Cuban sanctions.

The protest is being held in response to the release of 152 Cuban leaders imprisoned without charge or trial in South Africa, in protest against the apartheid government policy toward the country and to apartheid policies in national elections.

"The South African Masses," a statement read in the late 1960s, "the first mass action in the United States, is quite a journey from its origins," said Hank Fussell, executive director of TransAfrica. "It is a sign we need to pay attention to African policy and to stop African policy."

U.S. presses Pinochet regime

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Reagan administration, after an in­tense review of U.S. policy in Chile, has decided to pressure Gen. Augusto Pinochet into ending torture and to maintain the possibility of mediation between the military junta and the out­going government of President Frei.

After weeks of efforts to get the State Department, White House, Con­gress and other agencies, U.S. officials have been unable to persuade Washington to act.

The Reagan administra­tion, however, has been doing its best to leverage with the repressive junta. The president of the State Department, a former, had recently said he had heard of "a strong shift" in Washington's stance toward Chile's military regime. "The shift in the White House," one official said, "was in the right direction.""

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) - Tamil separatist guerrillas have massacred an estimated 60 civilians on Sri Lanka's southern coast in the worst violence since the country's 1983 civil war, authorities said Thursday. The deaths were among 150 people killed by the Tamil rebels last Saturday, when 40 people died and 200 were wounded in clashes with government security forces in the southern coastal town of Batticaloa.

The government said Thursday it had ordered a military offensive for a third day in an effort to suppress the guerrillas, who have rejected a call for a Christmas truce.

Abatement

The local ordinance would provide a property tax abatement for new and improved machinery and equipment, aiming to foster the development of our economy and create more job opportunities. Ray Muston, president of First Commercial Bank, supports the ordinance, stating, "It's a win-win for everyone. It will help the existing industry base in Iowa and simultaneously enable us to attract new industry."

"Well, said the memo stated, "we don't want to create a situation where our competitors are being subsidized by our tax dollars for activities that we are not able to duplicate or even duplicate for a smaller price."

questioned the need for new and improved machinery and equipment and whether the ordinance would not lead to an unfair advantage for some businesses. Ray Muston, president of First Commercial Bank, defended the ordinance, saying, "We don't want to give a competitive advantage to our competitors."

Kim

Contract negotiations are expected to begin in about two weeks. The state will present major proposals to the state's proposal Jan. 16 in Des Moines.

Other topics covered by the proposals include: insurance, prescription drug and dental insurance, workers' compensation, mental health and financial assistance, and the State Law Enforcement Division.

AFSCE will also seek an increase in the base pay for state workers who have not received raises in the last two years.

Gibbons added that the majority of the health insurance policy fully paid by the state for the employees has been cut from $25,000 to $20,000.

"It's the proposal presented to the state's proposal Jan. 16 in Des Moines. We're happy to negotiate a comparable worth policy with the state."

"I think we are going to make sure that every dollar is spent wisely and that the state is going to receive the best possible outcome for every dollar spent."

Hayes 'offensive' to Patriots

By Steve Batterman

No further questions about the Iowa basketball team's offensive ability may be bandied about.

Coach Rich Falk has been referring to the Hawkeyes' offensive team this season by blasting 'the Wending Train'.

"The Hawkeyes ended any speculation whether they will be an improved Big Ten as a player and a coach for 1984-85," Falk said. "We decided at halftime that we were going to have some fun on offense."

"We put up 51 points and we still have to go to the huddle and say, 'We're not ready to go in.'"

"We need to work on defensive production, but we still have to win with the kind of team that once we get the ball in our hands, we can make some points."

"The Wildcats are a good team. They have a lot of players who are going to score, but we still have to improve our offensive production."
