Small named to five committees

By Barry Beeler

Tom See Arthur Small, Dubuque, was appointed last week by the Iowa Senate to four standing committees and one appropriations subcommittee.

Small said his biggest challenge will be serving as the chairman of the Senate Small Business and Economic Development Committee.

"The committee's main focus will be to bring new and existing businesses to Dubuque to provide employment," he said. "Dubuque is a great community with a lot of potential, and the committee's job will be to make that potential a reality."
Fiction becomes fact for 'professional' students

By Andrew Laske

About 15 UI graduate students majoring in law, medicine and business administration will be writing about a profession, instead of surgery techniques, at a seminar this semester.

They will be writing short stories, essays and peer reviews, for professional prose, seven teaching assistants from the UI Writers Workshop will be teaching graduate students in the area of fiction writing techniques.

The new and experimental program, "Professional Fiction Applied to Professional Prose," is being funded by the Education Foundation, which annually awards between $1,000 and $2,000 to professionals for new programs.

The course has seven sections -- one for business administration students, two for law students and two for medical students.

The ASSUMPTION is that by learning to write fiction they will improve their professional prose," said Carol Kercheval, a T.A. assigned to a business administration section.

"It's like learning a new skill, a T.A. who will teach a course section in the law school, said the purpose of the course is to "try a new approach to some of the problems that haven't worked in the past," such as basic narrative writing.

"We think this program might have some benefit that has not been overlooked before," she said.

"We're trying to write," said Jeanne Kercheval, a T.A. assigned to a medical section, "fiction isn't really all that different from any other writing."

"The Writing Workshop," said Millennials, "is our hope that we can get a lot of interaction and help from it.""
161 aboard Kuwaiti jet hijacked to Iran

KUWAIT (AP) - An Arab-speaking woman held a Kuwaiti passenger jet carrying 161 people, including 50 Americans, for 21 hours before flying it to Iran on Tuesday after a 12-hour standoff.

The nervous, hijacker-wearing a headscarf and carrying a suitcase-was actually an Arab-speaking interpreter who was traveling to Iran, a security official said.

The impressed hijacker told him she too had been hijacked.

The hijacker's own reported.

Grenadians celebrate as Blair claims landslide

WINSTON, Grenada (AP) - The landslide victory by the United National Party in Grenada's general elections on Saturday was a major victory for the party in the Caribbean nation.

The party emerged as the clear winner in the six-seat House of Assembly, winning seven of the 12 seats up for grabs.

The Grenadian government will now focus on economic development and rebuilding the economy after a series of natural disasters.

At the heart of Ethiopia's situation is the way the international community—the wealthy countries—have been very accepting and supportive of its ways. No one has openly questioned the official stance except the United States. Yet, the international community has not come clean about its support of Ethiopia.

This situation is not new. In 1974, the student movement in Ethiopia began. It was a peaceful, non-violent movement to demand the release of political prisoners and the end of the regime. However, the government responded with violence and repression. Many students were arrested and disappeared.

The situation in Ethiopia today is similar to that of 1974. The government continues to violate human rights, including the right to free speech and assembly. The international community, however, continues to support the government through economic and military aid.

There are some who argue that the international community's support is necessary to maintain stability in Ethiopia. However, this argument fails to recognize the long-term costs of supporting authoritarian regimes. The human suffering caused by these regimes is not justified by the short-term benefits.

The international community must do more to hold the Ethiopian government accountable for its actions. This includes providing greater support to the opposition and human rights organizations, and more robust enforcement of the human rights situations.

The international community cannot continue to support regimes that violate human rights. The future of Ethiopia depends on ending the repression and allowing for a genuine democratic process.

Cyclones unrelentless Hawks, 54-50

By Jeff Stratton

Iowa State basketball Coach Johnny Orr didn’t expect to see the result of the first game of the NCAA Midwest Regional until late Tuesday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"This is the biggest win of my life," said coach Jeff Stratton.

The Hawkeyes could come. The Cyclones ran off 11 straight points to grab the lead on the Hawkeyes. Virgil made a lay up off of a steal to put Iowa 36-35. Iowa Coach Lute Olson was definitely happy with his team’s next game, "We’re not used to playing defense, but we did a good job tonight."

The Cyclones moved on to the Sweet 16, but an Iowa comeback attempt fell short as the Cyclones held on for a 54-50 win. Iowa State will now face Kansas in the regional final.

Chiapparelli battles to regain form

By B.J. Glass

After playing 14 minutes in OSU’s 68-55 win over Illinois on Sunday, freshman forward Kevin Chiapparelli had nothing but a single floor score to his credit.

But, while being reduced to a bench role with starters Joey Jeffries and Mark Titus out due to injuries, Chiapparelli found his own way to contribute to the Buckeyes’ cause.

In OSU’s 68-55 win over Illinois on Sunday, Chiapparelli had a season-high 10 points, including three 3-pointers.

Indians hold onto Thornton for $4 million
The Cleveland Indians re-signed free agent pitcher Roger Clemens on Tuesday to a four-year contract worth $4 million a year. The contract will keep Clemens with the Indians through 1998, according to team officials. Clemens, who won a record 20 games for the Indians in 1997, had been seeking a contract worth more than $5 million per year. The Indians had been trying to sign Clemens for several weeks, but had been unable to come to terms. The Indians were also seeking to re-sign relief pitcher Dave Burba, who had had a successful season in 1997.

A Christmas Story is best present of season

by Ron Grimsby

The Christmas season is the perfect time to give to those we love with the gift of a film. "A Christmas Story," a delightful little gift, made its 24th anniversary debut at Hancher Auditorium. The film, based on a book by the film is the story of a nine-year-old boy named Ralphie who has a love for his BB gun. The film is set in the 1930s and has the texture of an elegant Sherlock Holmes mystery like Murder by Decree, yet it is also a mindless ineptitude of childhood horrors telling details that are funny, yet gently satiric.
Anderle’s intaglios address macabre side of time

by John Greene

The current exhibition at the UI Museum of Art, "Anderle's Intaglios," is to the macabre what the mysterious is to the mundane. Anderle's intaglios faucet only a handful of melodramatic visions, bis generally marveled over and accessible. His images cover a year. Anderle’s pictures are imbued witb an excitement and beauty that happenl in our times. The artists who have achieved acclaim for their art contemporaneously have done so by creating content that is timely and relevant. Anderle often offers one of the most honest, most revealing aspects of life. His work is known for its sharp, biting wit, and often its content is aligned with the current political and social climate. The images in this exhibition are daring, thought-provoking, and often quite disturbing. Anderle's renditions strips the figures of their pretentious garments, postures subjecting them to the violence of the work itself. The figures in other series, however, have a more delicate, nuanced quality, and often serve to highlight the darker side of life. The power of Anderle's work is its ability to capture the essence of the human condition, and to do so in a way that is both immediate and timeless. This exhibition is a testament to the power of art to challenge and provoke, to offer insight and perspective on the world around us.
