County requests Hall suit dismissal

By Tamara Rood and Sue Stoga
Staff Writers

An attorney representing Johnson County filed a motion Thursday in Johnson County District Court to dismiss James Wendell Hall's $3 million lawsuit as it applies to the county, which is named as one of four defendants in the suit.

The motion, filed by Cedar Rapids attorney James R. Snyder, claims the county is not liable for any damages Hall may have suffered as a result of a 1973 grand jury investigation into the murder of UI nursing student Sarah Ottens.

Ottens was found strangled and sexually mutilated in a fourth floor room in Rienow Residence Hall March 13, 1973.

Hall is suing the prosecutors and chief investigators in his case, claiming his right to a fair trial was violated. He was convicted of second-degree murder in 1974, and spent more than six years in prison before his conviction was overturned in 1983.

THE DISTRICT court ruled in November 1983 that Hall did not receive a fair trial because prosecutors failed to correct false testimony and withheld material and evidence that would have benefited Hall's defense.

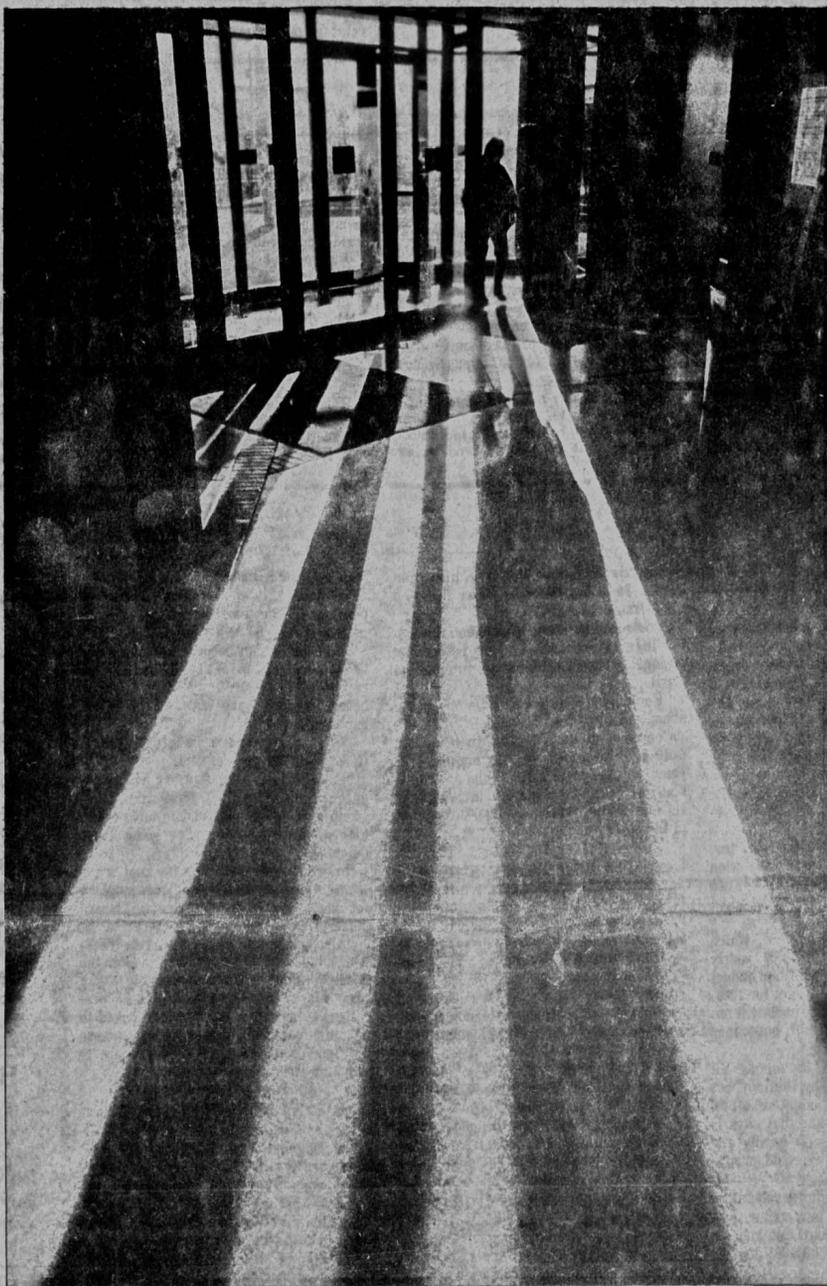

Johnson County is named as a defendant in the suit, along with former Iowa Assistant Attorney General Garry Woodward; John Jutte, a special agent of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation; and Carl Goetz, former Johnson County attorney.

In the motion, Snyder claims the county is "absolutely immune from liability" for any damages Hall suffered as a result of his trial.

Snyder cites Chapter 613 of the Iowa Code in the motion, which states the statute of limitations for claiming damages against a municipality or its employees is six months. Hall filed suit 10 years after he was convicted and nearly a year after the conviction was overturned.

According to Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White, the date when the six-month statute of limitations goes into effect is "something that needs to be determined by the court."

HOWEVER, WHITE told the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Thursday that the county is still liable. See Hall, page 6A

Sunlight and shadows radiate through the south entrance of Lindquist Center late Thursday afternoon as a pedestrian comes in out of the cold. The unseasonably cold temperatures of yesterday forced people to dig mittens, scarves and earmuffs out of the mothballs as temperatures plunged below zero for the first time this winter. However, the weather is expected to turn unseasonably warm today and continue through the weekend with highs expected to reach into the mid-50s Saturday; temperatures will probably not dip below 30.

Hijackers carry out death threat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Five Arab gunmen aboard a hijacked Kuwaiti airliner at Tehran airport Thursday shot to death two hostages, including an American, as at least 86 other hostages sat helplessly roped to their seats.

The killings brought to at least three the number of hostages slain in the three-day showdown at Mehrabad Airport. It was the first time hijackers singled out and executed passengers.

At least 86 hostages were tied to their seats aboard the Kuwait Airways A-300 Airbus when the hijackers marched two hostages to the plane's staircase and shot them to death. Thirty hostages were then released, leaving 56 aboard as the hijacking entered its fourth day early today.

The gunmen are demanding Kuwait free 21 people imprisoned for the bombings of U.S. and French facilities last December.

In Washington, the State Department said one of the two passengers killed Thursday apparently was an American, the second U.S. citizen slain since the plane was commandeered Tuesday. His body was riddled with six bullets.

"... It appears that two Agency for International Development employees have been murdered at Tehran airport," the department said, basing its statement on information from the Swiss government, which represents U.S. interests in Iran.

ONE MAN, believed to be an AID employee, was shot to death and his body dumped onto the airport tarmac from the airliner Tuesday, the department said.

In Wausau, Wis., the family of Charles Hegna, 50, a State Department employee for 20 years from Sterling, Va., said department officials told the family they were 99 percent certain Hegna was killed aboard the plane Tuesday.

Hegna's sister, Lorraine Williams, said Hegna had been in Yemen for AID and was traveling to Pakistan on the airplane when it was hijacked. "We don't know if he's alive or dead," she said.

The State Department said three AID employees en route to posts in Karachi, Pakistan, were among six Americans on board the plane when it was hijacked. Two of the Americans — a woman and her daughter — were released earlier.

The welfare of the remaining AID employee and the sixth American was not known, it said.

Iranian authorities said food and medicine were delivered to the plane Thursday night and new power packs connected to keep the lights on and fresh air running through the jetliner.

THE OFFICIAL Islamic Republic News agency said an Iranian Foreign Ministry official "condemned the shooting of an American diplomat by the hijackers of the Kuwaiti airliner and expressed the hope the hijacking will end peacefully."

A spokesman at the International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal called the hijacking the worst case ever of cold-blooded execution of hostages by hijackers.

"We have no records of such cold-blooded killings of passengers," ICAO spokesman Eugene Sochor said. "The only case we know of a cold-blooded killing was that of Lufthansa pilot Jurgen Schumann, who was killed by hijackers in October 1977."

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said the gunmen threatened to kill every American aboard unless Kuwait met their demands.

The news agency said the hijackers brought two passengers to the staircase of the aircraft in the afternoon, "and started counting down, threatening to kill them."

"ONE OF THE passengers requested a loudspeaker and after it was given to him, in a pleading voice, he introduced himself as the U.S. consul in Karachi and pleaded with Kuwaiti officials to meet the demands of the hijackers," IRNA said.

"Otherwise, he said, the hijackers would kill him."

Ten minutes later, IRNA said in the dispatch monitored in Beirut, "the hijackers then killed an American passenger by firing six bullets."

Thirty hostages were then freed, including a crewmember released for medical attention with the warning that if he did not return the pilot would be killed, IRNA said. On Tuesday and Wednesday 70 passengers — mostly See Hijack, page 6A

Student drinking afflicts college towns

By Dawn Ummel
Chief Reporter

A national survey of university communities may not reveal secret ways Iowa City can deal with problems created by the UI, but at least city officials know they are not alone in tackling issues such as student alcohol consumption.

"The main thing I got from the survey is that many problems university communities face are similar no matter where they are located in the country," Mayor John McDonald said.

"It's an interesting statistical survey," Iowa City Councilor Larry Baker said, "but there's nothing in the report that surprised me."

The study of 56 university communities was prepared by city officials in Newark, Del., and the National League of Cities. The study is a follow-up to a similar survey taken five years ago.

THE 1984 STUDY noted steps to solve problems between cities and universities have "gained momentum," but special concerns still exist. Problem areas include student drinking, enforcement of occupancy restrictions in off-campus housing for students and parking problems associated with automobiles owned by students and university personnel.

"There is very good cooperation with the university," Baker said. "The inevitable problems with parking and drinking are part of the package."

The 1984 study showed 74 percent of the cities surveyed cited problems with alcohol abuse. The survey taken five years ago stated 55 percent of the cities considered student drinking a special concern.

"The increase in cities reporting problems with alcohol may or may not actually reflect increases in abuse of alcohol at a local level," the survey stated. "The increase may reflect intensified nationwide concern about the abuse of alcohol, especially as it relates to drunken driving."

MCDONALD AGREED the statistical increase is due to greater awareness and not necessarily to increased alcohol consumption.

"Unless I've missed something, I don't know if (student alcohol consumption) has really increased that much through the years," McDonald said. "We're much more conscious about it with the trend in the last few years for state legislatures to tighten drunken driving laws."

He said Iowa City is taking steps to curb alcohol abuse by working with local bar owners. See City, page 6A

Study discusses drinking, housing issues

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

UI administrators and student leaders said they believe a 1984 survey of university communities is "fairly accurate" and "reflective of UI-Iowa City relations, which appear to meet the norm for cities with similar 'town-gown' cohabitation."

The recent study, conducted by the city of Newark, Del., in cooperation with the National League of Cities, expanded the data base of a similar study conducted in 1979.

The 1984 survey noted four major problems pinpointed by the 56 respondents, including alcohol, drugs, housing and parking concerns.

In the category of cities with combined permanent and student populations between 50,000 and 99,000, student alcohol consumption was ranked as the most common complaint. In 1984, 73.3 percent of the cities surveyed expressed concern about student drinking, while 55 percent of the cities polled in 1979 noted a similar concern.

Problems with drugs, housing enforcement, and parking were reported by 37.3 percent, 50 percent, and 60 percent of the cities respectively in the 1984 study.

CASEY MAHON, UI associate vice-president for finance, said she believes Iowa City is "victim to many of the same problems other college communities suffer from. "Obviously alcohol has caused an epidemic problem in our society and Iowa City is no different," Mahon said.

She added, "However, I feel the university has tried to meet and deal with the problem at an educational level. We have responded through programs and groups which encourage responsible drinking among students."

Mary Skourup, UI Office of Campus Programs staff member and faculty adviser for the UI student chapter of Drinking Responsibly in College, said she questioned to what degree, if any, drinking problems in Iowa City have increased.

"From my own personal opinion — and I have no statistics to back it up — I would say drinking has not become either a greater or lesser problem in Iowa City over the past five years," Skourup said.

"I basically think the abuse of any drug — and alcohol is a drug — has become a concern in this country. The emphasis now is upon education and reform," she added.

JOEL MINTZER, UI Student Senate treasurer, and Mike Price, a senate member, agreed student drinking is a problem in Iowa City.

Soviets rap U.S. industry

MOSCOW — The Soviets Thursday claimed the chemical disaster in India shows U.S. corporations endanger the Third World in a callous search for profits. "The tragedy in Bhopal is an immediate outcome of the criminal policy of profit at all costs pursued by Western business in the developing countries," the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya said. Bhopal is the worst chemical disaster ever, exceeding the estimated 1,000 deaths in an accident at a Soviet biological warfare plant in 1979.

China denies nuclear pledge

PEKING — A Chinese official said Thursday Peking will never bow to U.S. requests for further nuclear non-proliferation guarantees, needed so skeptical U.S. lawmakers can clear the way for $10-20 billion in potential nuclear sales to China.

"China's position on non-proliferation is very clear, as stipulated by Premier Zhao Ziyang," said a Chinese official. Zhao said, "we do not engage in nuclear proliferation ourselves, nor do we help other countries develop nuclear weapons."

Police bust major drug ring

STUTTGART, West Germany — Police smashed a ring smuggling drugs between West Germany and the United States, netting 5.4 tons of narcotics worth $97.7 million and arresting nine people, authorities said Thursday.

Dietmar Schlee, interior minister of the state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, said the ring was broken by West German police and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration after months of investigation. The drug phenylacetone, used to produce amphetamines, was confiscated in both countries.

Lebanon makes new proposal

NAQOURA, Lebanon — Lebanon presented Israel with a plan for its army and U.N. troops to secure the northern part of Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon Thursday and the two sides agreed not to disagree in public. Details were unavailable.

The Lebanese army was scheduled Thursday to move in along a southern coastal road near the countries' borders. But the Cabinet delayed the move until army commanders completed a fresh set of plans after objections from the Druze militia.

MX loses vital supporter

WASHINGTON — Opponents of the 10-warhead MX missiles, heartened by comments by one-time MX boosters, expressed new hope Thursday the costly weapon can be laid to rest in the 99th Congress.

The major source of their optimism was Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a longtime advocate of the MX who will become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in January. He changed his stance on the missile because, "I think we have enough."

Committee okays toxic tests

WASHINGTON — A Senate subcommittee has approved spending $8.4 million to build a U.S. Army facility in Utah called Dugway to test deadly biological toxins, a congressional spokesman said Thursday.

But an Army spokesman said the project will be kept "on hold" for awhile to assess the effects of a lawsuit filed by the Foundation on Economic Trends claiming the Army plans to experiment with botulin, a toxin that causes botulism. One gram of botulin is said to be capable of killing four million people.

Man faces sexual abuse charges

By Tamara Rood

Billie Dale Griffey, 47, of Kansas City, Mo., made an initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court on charges of second- and third-degree sexual abuse.

Sometime during May in Oxford, Iowa, Griffey allegedly coerced a 15-year-old into having sexual intercourse with him, and in June he allegedly made a child under 12 years old perform a sexual act upon himself, court records state.

Griffey was arrested Dec. 4 in Kansas City and brought to Iowa City. He is being held in the Johnson County Jail under $30,000 bond. A preliminary hearing on the charges has been set for Dec. 14.

Franklin Michael Einfeldt, 36, of 2259 Taylor Drive, made an initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court on a charge of going armed with intent to commit personal injury.

According to court records, Kyle Doolin told police that on Dec. 5 Einfeldt ran towards him with a small handgun, while they were in the drive of a service station at the intersection of Benton Street and South Riverside Drive.

Einfeldt then "brandished (the handgun) and pointed (it) in the direction of Doolin," court records state. Doolin then "turned and ran to avoid being shot."

Einfeldt is being held in lieu of $2,300 bond.

Robert Arthur Glover, 30, of 1819 Lower Muscatine Ave., made an initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court on a charge of second-degree theft.

Court records state on Nov. 19 Glover did not return a Chevrolet to Bill's Rentals, 1025 S. Riverside Drive, within 72 hours after the time specified in a written lease. A preliminary hearing on the theft charge has been set for Dec. 26. Glover was released to the custody of the Department of Adult Corrections.

Joseph Alan Neumann, 19, of 1527 Rochester Ave., made an initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court on a charge of driving with a suspended license.

Neumann was stopped Dec. 5 on Governor Street for having expired registration and license plates, court records state.

A routine check showed his license had been suspended for a failure to file financial responsibility. It was originally suspended for an OWI charge, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the charges has been set for Dec. 26. Neumann was released on his own recognizance.

Iowa City's first snowfall Wednesday, which created icy road conditions in the area, was the cause of two accidents involving UI Cambuses.

Sandra Bennet, of 2301 Friendship St., reported that her tan 1979 Dodge Aspen station wagon was traveling down a hill in the 700 block of North Dubuque Street when she stopped because of traffic traveling up the hill, according to Iowa City police reports.

As she was stopping, a Cambus, driven by Tom Moninger, 20, of 320 Ronalds St., struck the rear of a 1979 Chevrolet, driven by Diana Campbell, 28, of 2003 Southridge Drive, Coralville.

The bus then swerved into Bennet's lane and struck the front left fender and headlight of her vehicle.

In another incident Wednesday, a Cambus driven by Linda Rasmussen, of 320 S. Gilbert St., slid into a vehicle driven by Norman Kennel, of 803 E. College St., Wednesday afternoon.

The accident occurred on Newton Road. Kennel's vehicle suffered only minor damages, according to UI Campus Security police reports.

Report: Iowa City police received a report that a person in a 1973 Cadillac at 1203 Hiland Court looked as if he had been "asphyxiated." John Jones, 25, of 615 S. Governor St., was transported to UI Hospitals by ambulance where he is listed in stable condition.

Accident report: Ann Moses, of 15 Forest Glen, reported to Iowa City police Thursday afternoon that she had struck a tree in front of 1615 Ridge Road Wednesday evening.

Damage to her 1980 Buick Skylark is estimated at $1,200.

Accident report: A 1983 Oldsmobile station wagon driven by Russel D. Mott, 67, of 16 Gleason Ave., collided with a vehicle driven by Michael J. Lanoue, 28, of 328 Bon Air Trailer Court, causing extensive damage to both vehicles.

Mott was charged with failure to yield while making a left hand turn by Iowa City police at the intersection of Highway 6 and Industrial Park Road.

Tourism stalks corn as top Iowa industry

Although most Iowans would probably scoff at the thought of their home state becoming a vacationer's paradise, tourism has become Iowa's third largest industry.

Eastern Iowa is contributing to the growing popularity of Iowa tourism as interstate travelers selected the Amana Colonies and the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library at West Branch as two of Iowa's top three tourist attractions. The capitol in Des Moines was the third vote-getter.

Paul Comer, Iowa's tourism director, said the Iowa Development Commission submitted to Gov. Terry Branstad Thursday a request for an annual budget increase of nearly $600,000.

The Iowa Tourism Department, which currently operates on a $562,000 yearly budget, has requested a $1.4 million budget for 1985 and a $1.6 million budget for 1986.

Comer said the additional funds will not be used to hire additional staff, but rather for publicity and publishing.

"Iowa currently ranks 39 among all states in funds generated by tourism, but has the lowest tourism budget of all 50 states," Comer said. "What that says is we're doing a good job with hardly any publicity. Just think what we could do with some press."

A recent survey by the development commission reported a 2.7 percent increase in visitors to parks, museums and historic sites between the summer of 1983 and the summer of 1984.

Boosted by a $180,000 advertising campaign in national magazines and newspaper travel sections, requests for Iowa vacation information increased 37 percent over last year. There were 39,700 pieces of mail received by the commission in 1984 compared to 29,000 in 1983.

"It's a mixed bag of indicators but a pretty good season when you consider the erosion of seven straight rainy weekends early in the summer," Comer said. Comer credited strong business on both sides of the washout with saving the season, plus the "overwhelming visitor successes" of the Boone & Scenic Valley Railroad in central Iowa and Robert's River Rides on the Mississippi River.

Comer said the development commission funding request should come before the national appropriation subcommittee in April.

"For now I've just got to be optimistic about the situation," he said.

Comer estimated an investment of $1.5 million in Iowa tourism over the next five years will generate 1.25 million additional state visitors, $160 million in additional revenue and a minimum of 8,000 new jobs in the state.

Fire official offers tips on Christmas tree safety

Having the "real thing" for a Christmas tree may be more traditional than using an artificial tree, but real trees are also more susceptible to catching fire.

Restrictions are applied to real Christmas trees in Iowa City if they are located in commercial locations, including business establishments, fraternities, sororities and malls, according to the Iowa City Fire Department.

"The only thing we recognize is the flock tree because they're the only thing fire retardant," said Lt. Lavern Stahmer.

The fire department cannot regulate Christmas trees in private homes, but Stahmer offered some safety tips that may help to avoid a fire.

He said the earlier a real tree is purchased, the more it dries out and increases the risk of fire.

Large bulbs can become hot and ignite the tree, so miniature bulbs are recommended. Cords should be checked before use to make sure no wires are exposed.

The tree should never be left unattended if the lights are on, he said.

"It could go up (in flames) just like a gasoline soaked rag," Stahmer said. "They go up so fast that you should have a fire extinguisher handy. They're going to go quick."

He said candles should be kept away from the Christmas tree, and even smoking too close to the branches could start a blaze.

"Also, you don't want to place (the trees) near a hallway or an escape route from the house," Stahmer said, because it could trap people inside a house if it started on fire.

Real trees can be sprayed or flocked to become fire retardant, or residents can use artificial trees which are less likely to catch on fire.

Reagan suggests pay cuts for federal civilian workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan is willing to set a government austerity example by taking a 10 percent pay cut and "lead the charge" in winning public support for his proposed budget slashes, his spokesman indicated Thursday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes also said Reagan reaffirmed strong opposition to a tax hike, and told Republican congressional leaders there is no alternative to freezing spending.

"We must not spend one nickel more next year than we spent this year," the president told them.

Reagan outlined his views in a scene set for the start of a nearly two-hour meeting with GOP leaders. Budget director David Stockman followed him, reviewing the reductions one by one.

Incoming Senate Republican leader Robert Dole said there was "some discussion" of members of Congress and other officials "in high places" taking a 10 percent pay cut.

Asked about Reagan's willingness to cut his own $200,000 a year salary, Speakes nodded, then said, "I think the president will go along with a 10 percent ($20,000) cut."

Reagan's tough budget proposals, first revealed Wednesday, include a one-year 5 percent across-the-board pay cut for all federal civilian employees, starting in January 1986, to save $3 billion.

STRONG OPPOSITION is expected to that one, particularly from the government workers' unions and congressmen with large federal worker constituencies. Some 2.1 million federal employees, excluding the military, would be affected by the pay cut that officials said would result in savings of about $3 billion.

A federal pay increase of 3.5 percent in January will be allowed to become effective, officials said. The proposed austerity budget, which includes the pay cuts, would not become effective until the start of the next fiscal year, Oct. 1, even if enacted.

Dole told reporters, "It's going to be a challenge to fill the campaign promises."

"Obviously Congress is not willing to go along with everything," Dole said. But he called the proposals "a very good start," and said a tax increase would be a "last resort."

House GOP leader Bob Michel said some of the cuts would be difficult "to swallow" but that "we go to make some effort to do it."

The leaders indicated there is some sentiment for taking a look at cost-of-living increases, but Speakes insisted there would be no tampering with Social Security, and its cost-of-living hikes will remain.

So far, Reagan has not tipped his hand on whether he will support cuts in the military budget. To achieve his goal of $42 billion in spending reductions in the next fiscal year, he would have to accept some $8 billion from the Pentagon budget.

"I'm inclined to think he certainly has got the message" from members of Congress that military cuts are in order, said Michel.

Protesters reject apartheid

United Press International

Two teenage children of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and a high school friend were arrested Thursday at the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C. during a protest against the white-ruled nation's apartheid policy.

Douglas Kennedy, 17, a student at Georgetown Preparatory School, his sister Rory Kennedy, 15, and Derek Evans, 17, a freshman from Boston College, stood at the door of the embassy and sang, "We Shall Overcome," before they were handcuffed and taken away in patrol cars.

"This issue is one my father was very concerned with," Douglas Kennedy said before he was arrested. "My father's ideal for the world is very much alive."

The three youths were charged with intent to unlawfully protest in front of a foreign embassy, bringing to 28 the number of people arrested at the diplomatic compound since the demonstrations against South Africa began Nov. 21.

Most of the 300 people who attended Thursday's rally were youths, many from colleges in the area, and they chanted such slogans as "Constructive engagement leads to enslavement," and "Freedom yes, apartheid no."

Also joining the demonstration was Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., who said the protests were "not only to raise our voices against the inhuman, inhumane" system of apartheid in South Africa, but "to make our voices heard with our own government."

OTHER RALLIES were planned in Chicago, Mobile, Ala., Houston, New York and Boston, as South African Bishop Desmond Tutu, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, arranged to meet President Ronald Reagan Friday.

Wednesday, two congressmen, a New York Roman Catholic bishop and a Nobel Prize winner joined the ranks of those arrested in the protests against South Africa's racial separation policies.

Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., and Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., were among those arrested outside the Washington embassy, while five others, including Bishop Emerson Moore, were arrested at a protest in New York.

The protests, which began at the embassy on Thanksgiving Eve, moved across the country this week. To date, 40 people have been arrested nationwide.

At the White House, Reagan bowed to pressure and invited Tutu to the White House Friday to explain his policies toward South Africa.

Previously the White House appeared reluctant to set up a meeting with Tutu, who is vocally critical of Reagan administration policy of "constructive engagement," or quiet diplomacy, in dealing with the apartheid question.

U.S. demands UNESCO changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States this month will withdraw from UNESCO, a United Nations Organization believed heavily influenced by the Soviets, unless the agency makes immediate changes, a State Department official said Thursday.

"The chances of remaining are very, very slim," Assistant Secretary of State Gregory Newell said at a congressional hearing.

President Ronald Reagan announced a year ago the United States would withdraw from UNESCO (United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization), effective Dec. 31, 1984, because it was felt the interests of Western nations were being ignored even though the United States was financing about 25 percent of the UNESCO budget.

"Some feel UNESCO is the strongest platform outside of the Soviet Union for the Soviets to project their views," Newell said.

SINCE REAGAN'S announcement, the Paris-based organization made "a welcome effort" to change its management and operations, but the reforms fell short of the changes proposed by the United States, Newell said.

Specifically, the agency refused to accept two far-reaching U.S. proposals asking that 85 percent of the member nations approve the annual UNESCO budgets and would have guaranteed the protection of minority members' interests.

Newell said the United States will divert its annual contribution to UNESCO, assessed at $47 million for the coming year, to other cultural, educational and scientific organizations to help developing countries, and will maintain an "observer mission" in Paris to monitor changes at UNESCO.

Newell said the United States may return to the organization if it makes the needed reforms.

Pesticide survivors return home

BHOPAL, India (UPI) — The death toll in the city's worst chemical disaster passed 2,000 Thursday as hundreds of Indians who fled a choking cloud of poisonous gas returned to their homes facing a future threatened by blindness, kidney failure and liver disease.

The government of Madhya Pradesh state announced it had filed suit against Union Carbide, charging it caused the "death of a large number of people through negligence."

The Central Bureau of Investigation, India's equivalent of the FBI, seized plant records on the storage of chemicals and five Indian managers of Union Carbide's subsidiary who were arrested Monday on criminal negligence charges were being questioned, officials said.

A safety system failed to work because of the overwhelming volume of escaping gas. Plant workers managed to stop the leak after about 40 minutes.

Famine victims converge at camp

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — About 90,000 new famine victims have sought help at a refugee camp in northern Ethiopia's Tigre province, thousands of them in a "state of starvation" in the country where 250,000 people have already died, a relief official said Thursday.

The camp near Mekele, in Tigre province about 300 miles north of Addis Ababa, is one of about 100 in Ethiopia. U.N. officials estimate 250,000 people have died from a famine sweeping eastern Ethiopia in the past nine months.

regional autonomy in Tigre and Wallo. BOURASSA SAID each family at Maichew has about five people, and about 1,000 people — all Afar nomads — were arriving daily from the desert country of the vast Ethiopian highlands.

"These people simply don't have any other food," he said. The pressure on Mekele, a tiny dusty town of dirt roads and mud houses, was eased until the new arrivals this week.

Salvador rebels attack coffee mill

United Press International Leftist guerrillas attacked one of El Salvador's largest coffee mills, burning sacks of the country's most valuable export and causing nearly half a million dollars in losses, authorities said Thursday.

Rebels have declared war on coffee, El Salvador's most valuable export, as well as the cotton and sugar cane harvests.

Area residents reported guerrillas set on fire 400 sacks of coffee late Wednesday when four trucks hauling the beans were stopped near Berlin, 5 miles west of Santiago de Maria.

Palomo said the rebels also damaged the mill's main office and burned a power generator and radios at El Marquizado, located near the Usulután province city of Santiago de Maria, 52 miles east of San Salvador.

Pinochet defends state of siege

PUERTO MONTT, Chile (UPI) — President Augusto Pinochet said Thursday that Chileans "sleep peacefully" now because of tough measures used to arrest hundreds of political activists and banish them to remote areas of the country.

In Santiago, gunmen firing from the back of a pickup truck sprayed a police station with bullets Thursday night, killing one guard and seriously wounding another, said police commander Gen. Oscar Torres.

TORRES SAID at least four people attacked the station, and that one of them appeared to have been wounded in an exchange of fire with police.

He said the yellow pickup truck used by the assailants was found abandoned in the area of the attack.

Helicopters were called in to help police search for the assailants.

Meanwhile, Pinochet spoke at a dinner of prominent citizens of the southern city of Puerto Montt about the recent state of siege.

He said he ordered the arrests of hundreds of activists and had them banished to remote parts of the country, following the declaration of the state of siege Nov. 6, because they "provoked problems among the population and were the battle horse for terrorists."

"NOW WE HAVE tranquility and people sleep peacefully," he said.

Pinochet, 69, who has ruled Chile since overthrowing President Salvador Allende in 1973, said a political liberalization process under way before the state of siege began had failed.

"The political opening had bad results and demonstrated that the enemy, Marxism, is alive and well, working and infiltrating everywhere," he said. "We have to take steps to avoid that our democratic inclination fall once again in a situation of destruction, which is what the communists want."

The state of siege, he said, will remain in effect "until the situation becomes normal and we can continue conversations (with political leaders)."

University

source of entertainment for students around here," Mintzer said. "When I hear people making plans to go to something, they're usually talking about going drinking. I hardly ever hear anyone say they're going to a movie or something like that."

Price agreed, "I think it is a problem, but if you look at the Iowa City businesses that are thriving, most of them are bars.

"Students are Iowa City businesses' way of life — we are their bread and butter," he added.

But in general, the university representatives said they believe UI-city relations are good, especially considering financial burdens plaguing both bodies, Mahon said.

"The city and university share a common problem, which is insufficient revenues," she said. "The city doesn't have funds to do everything it would like to, and similarly, the university has many programs it would like to provide, but because of lack of funds, it's not possible."

MAHON ADDED the city and UI have "cooperated on a number of issues," including economic development, parking problems, and opening lines of communication between the two.

Although Mahon commended the relationship between the city and UI administrators, Mintzer said steps are currently being considered to improve communication between students and Iowa City officials.

Mintzer said he was recently contacted by Iowa City Councilor Larry Baker about the possibility of establishing an official liaison to improve relations between the city council, which he said he believes "would be a great step toward improving relations between the city and university."

"I also think the city would more often take students' concerns into consideration if we had a better record of voting in city elections," he added.

Mahon said an example of the cooperation that exists between the UI and city is "a marvelous program of mass transit operated at a very reasonable cost to the citizenry."

However, she also acknowledged a "definite parking problem" in Iowa City.

"Anyone who's ever tried to park a car here knows there's a problem," Price agreed. "First of all there aren't a lot of places to park, and secondly, it's as expensive as the devil once you do find a place."

Iowa City was joined by East Lansing, Mich., and Evanston, Ill., as the Big Ten cities included in the 1984 Newark study, in which 56 of 139 — about 40 percent — of those contacted participated.

ners and investigating ways to adopt a local ordinance to regulate the number of people permitted at "keggers."

City councils in Cedar Falls and Normal, Ill. — the homes of the University of Northern Iowa and Illinois State University — have already instituted laws limiting the number of people allowed at keggers.

At the council's Dec. 18 formal meeting some local bar owners will appear before the council to offer support in handling alcohol abuse in Iowa City, McDonald said.

THE SURVEY noted one positive aspect of the city-university relationship is the increase in joint ventures, ranging from economic development to the use of recreational facilities. Iowa City was cited in the study as desiring "expanded use of existing recreational facilities."

"The concept is to plan together and try to avoid added cost in the future due to duplicate facilities," Assistant City Manager Dale Helling said.

He said facilities that are shared by the city and the UI include tennis courts, racquetball courts and the city's indoor swimming pool.

Representatives from the UI recently appeared before the council to ask the city's support in developing a swimming pool adjacent to the existing pool at the Field House.

The UI is asking for financial support from the council and the Iowa City School Board to build a 85-by-25-meter pool that can be used by the Iowa swimming teams, high school swimming teams, UI physical education classes and recreational swimmers.

for claims against Carl Goetz, prosecuting attorney during the trial.

"If a county officer or employee is found liable, language in section 613A.8 would require Johnson County to pay all damages for anything Goetz did, except punitive damages," White said.

White said a section of the same statute exempts the county from punitive damage claims.

According to a letter to Goetz from the county's insurance company citing section 613A.12 of the code, Goetz may be liable for any punitive damages claimed against him "if actual malice or recklessness is proven."

White said the county is not liable for claims against Woodward and Jutte, whom they consider state employees.

"The county does not regard (Woodward) as being a county employee," White said. "He is advised to retain his own counsel or confer with the state."

White said the same situation applies to Jutte.

In this particular case, White said, the county is insured by Western Casualty and Surety Co. for approximately $300,000. He refused to comment on who would pay any damages awarded in excess of $300,000.

women and children — were freed. IRNA said relief workers "removed the body of an American passenger, who is said to be an employee of the U.S. Consulate in Pakistan, shot dead" by the hijackers.

A State Department spokesman said U.S. Consul General Lawrence Grahl was in Karachi, Pakistan, and not among among the hostages.

AN UNIDENTIFIED photographer, allowed to take pictures from the door of the plane after Thursday's shooting, reported two passengers killed and told IRNA he saw the "heads of the corpses."

A cleaning crew allowed onto the aircraft told IRNA the remaining hostages were "fastened to the aircraft's seats by ropes and the passengers seemed very tired."

Pentagon sources said the United States has not shifted any Naval forces in response to the hijacking for a possible retaliatory response. But two major ships were in the eastern Mediterranean.

The hijack drama began Tuesday when five Arabic-speaking hijackers seized the jet carrying 150 passengers and 11 crew shortly after takeoff from Dubai, United Arab Emirates on a flight to Karachi, Pakistan.

The fall of the Union

Virtually every UI student visits the Union several times during his/her college career, whether to lunch between classes, seek help from one of the many services offered there, socialize over a beer, create at the Arts and Crafts Center or simply have some good clean fun rolling a ball at a group of pins.

The UI administration, however, apparently does not recognize the importance of this part of campus life. If the most recent Union renovation plans are approved by the state Board of Regents in February, the ever-popular student pastime of "bowling for beers" will be only a fond memory.

The bowling lanes will be gutted and the Wheelroom beer taps will run dry, as both become victims — along with a number of other recreational services — of the administration's desire to improve traffic through the building and make the Union "financially self-sufficient."

If it seems strange that plans call for the loss of student services instead of improvements, one should examine the history of the project. These most recent proposals are the result of nearly five years of toilsome planning that has involved delays, inefficiency and false promises — not the least of which came when UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones said in September: "We hope this is it. There are a lot of constituencies to take into account, but we are trying to take in all their needs."

The overriding objective of improving traffic will force the UI Student Activities Center — which was relocated from the ground floor to the first floor in a 1980 renovation — to pack it all up again and move back downstairs. The student office will replace the bowling lanes, while, because of a proposed traffic link extending through the Illinois Room where Bijou films are shown, the movie theater will be moved to the current Student Activities Center.

Got that? UI Student Senate President Lawrence Kitsmiller said he believes the move downstairs will offer the student offices greater visibility. Ironically, however, Union Manager Jean Kendall said during the 1980 move that the first-floor relocation was made in response to student requests that their offices be made more visible.

Perhaps the Student Activities Center would be more visible on the ground floor. After all, the recreation area, the Arts and Crafts Center and the Wheelroom, all slated for extinction, are currently located there. Aside from the student offices, that floor will be little more than a tomblike shell of what it is now.

The administration's lack of concern for students in these plans is an especially bitter pill, as students could pay up to $9.75 per semester for the renovation if a proposal that $8 per student in mandatory student fees now funding a bond to build Hancher Auditorium — which has paid for itself — be annulled in favor of a Union bond. The renovation committee is also proposing a raise in the $1.75 students already contribute per semester.

Perhaps the majority of students do believe improved circulation through the Union is important enough to lay down this much money for it. But it will probably be easier for students to maneuver through the building anyway, as many of the services that attract them will no longer be there.

On the roads again

The Iowa Department of Transportation recently revealed proposals to increase gasoline and diesel fuel taxes by 5 cents a gallon. DOT officials said the purpose of such an increase would be twofold: to make the needed repairs in the state's some 112,000 miles of roads and to improve highways to enhance the state's economic development.

One big roadblock in the DOT's path is selling the public and legislators on the need for the tax. This could be a formidable task.

Last year, Gov. Terry Branstad's legislative proposal for a 1-cent-a-gallon fuel tax increase got a chilly reception from Iowa lawmakers. And in 1980, presidential candidate John Anderson called for a fuel surtax of 50 cents a gallon to promote conservation, finance research and development of alternative energy sources and reduce our dependence on foreign oil imports. That idea went over like the proverbial lead balloon.

The proposed fuel tax increase is a good idea for a host of reasons, however, not the least of which is that it would deal with problems before they become crises.

Cosmetically, many of Iowa's roads appear to be in good shape. But sooner or later the present stopgap asphalt overlays, which DOT official Ian MacGillivray says engineers refer to as "black paint," will break down and actually contribute to roadbed deterioration. Fuel tax revenues would support the more prudent, if more expensive, road reconstruction now.

An improved highway system could attract industries to Iowa, thus creating jobs and boosting the state's sagging economy. The kind of "economic development" the DOT should not promote is the kind that would help turn stretches of freeway — such as I-380 between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids — into neon-cluttered strips of beef-and-bun and jelly-and-trinket joints.

Better uses for a portion of the revenues would be to improve Iowa's mass transit systems and to develop its ailing railways, which can transport freight much more cheaply than trucks.

Finally, one of the best reasons for the fuel tax would be to encourage fuel conservation. The current world oil glut and relatively stable fuel prices are lulling consumers into a false sense of security. But with OPEC countries planning production cuts and the certainty of a very real oil shortage in a few decades, it is never too early to encourage conservation.

It would be one small step toward dealing with the crisis before it arrives, a habit in which we Americans are woefully out of practice.

Catatronics, cooks cause calamity

MARCH 14, 1985 — Even the approach of spring has not spared a reeling nation the effects of the wave of terrorism that has been sweeping over it during the past months.

Noon traffic in many major American cities came to a halt today as masked protesters set up folding chairs in busy intersections, sat down and did absolutely nothing, resulting in major traffic snarls. Police quickly arrested and dragged away the unknown protesters and refolded their chairs, but the gridlock on the affected thoroughfares took hours to remedy.

Processing of those arrested proved difficult as they all gave their names as "Uhhh..." but refused to spell it for harassed police officials.

Later in the day, pirate radio stations broadcast a statement by a previously unknown group promoting the rights of catatonics, the Stationary Front. "For too long, those among us who have chosen to boldly vegetate been subjected to involuntary hospitalization, unwanted counseling and continual nagging to 'do something, even if it's wrong."

"They have been subjected to epithets and slurs, such as 'bump on a log,' 'fossil butt' and 'couch potato.' Needless to say, they have remained unmoved by such tactics. Inertio-Americans have refused to follow the crowd, join the parade or jump on the bandwagon, and they have paid dearly for it. They don't march to a different drummer.

"The Stationary Front says 'Enough!' The jogging dog lackeys of the motive oppressors shall be made to pay. We have placed poisoned running shoes and walking shorts in sporting goods stores throughout America, while jewelry stores have been infiltrated by explosive self-winding watches. The moving class shall now be made to pay for their actions. Move and lose it."

Oddly enough, nothing more was ever heard from the Stationary Front. The group is now thought to be dormant.

APRIL 1985 — A weary nation has been beset yet again by random terror as record stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific were raided by groups of yeast-throwing hooligans who ripped selected LPs from the racks, placed them in greased baking pans and threw them into small portable ovens. In every instance, the groups escaped before police could respond.

Only later was it discovered that all of the destroyed recordings were of rock music. Later that same day, Rolling Stone magazine received a taped message from an obscure terrorist cell supporting the rights of baked goods, Gang of Flour, claiming responsibility for the raids. A highly placed source at Rolling Stone claimed the publication had no connections with the group, calling its members "crumbs."

"A new day has arrived for the baked of the world," said the tape. "For years muffins, bagels and croissants have been exploited, abused and thought of as mere food. That is a stale concept. You can't butter us up any more. The days when you can just sit on your buns are over. Poppin' Fresh is now poppin' off.

"Our first action was to strike back at a primary example of cultural imperialism, so-called 'rock' music. The media and biased history books have done their best to conceal the fact that musical form was, in its earliest, purest form, called rock and ROLL. All the credit due to the early baked pioneers of this multimillion dollar industry have been deliberately denied them.

"Unless a ransom is paid to Gang of Flour, these raids will continue. You will be instructed later about details concerning delivery and the amount of the ransom, which, rest assured, will add up to a lot of bread. We WILL have our cake and eat it, too."

Humes is an Iowa City writer. His column appears every Friday.

GOP senators fight right and Ron

WHEN WORD OF Senate Republican leadership decisions was announced last week, a former staffer at the Democratic National Committee observed that on the whole it was "bad news for the president and bad news for the Democrats."

To that generally accepted assessment, one might add: "But probably not bad for the country."

What the Senate Republicans did was choose leadership that represents independence from the executive branch and skepticism of their party's dominant ideology. At the top, there is new Majority Leader Robert Dole, the former chairman of the Finance Committee who has little but disdain for supply-side economics. His biting wit is frequently directed at the rightist sophistries of fellow Republicans.

Most of the other new Senate leaders are of the same stripe: new Whip Alan Simpson; Robert Packwood, who succeeds Dole as Finance chairman, Mark Hatfield at Appropriations; and Pete Domenici of New Mexico, who continues as Budget Committee chair.

FROM THE WHITE HOUSE, the problems are obvious. These men reject the president's belief that the deficit can be contained through domestic spending cuts alone. They dismiss the idea that deficits are not a problem and have no impact on interest rates.

They will do their best on the spending side, as Dole indicated with his announcement that the Senate would concentrate on spending before looking at tax legislation. But they will not treat the defense budget as sacrosanct. And they know that when spending has been squeezed to the limit, revenues will need to be increased.

They are not, nor will they be, rubber stamps for the White House.

That's why they are a problem for Democrats too. A major element of the Democratic plan for regaining control of the Senate in 1986 was based upon the belief that the economy would be in trouble and that Republican senators could be attacked as Reaganites who supported without question the policies that created the problem.

Whatever happens to the economy, it is clear now that Republican senators will have their own independent records on which to run.

FURTHERMORE, the Republicans have in Dole an accomplished fundraiser who is certain to help Republican candidates. And in Dole and Simpson, they have two spokesmen who are more telegenic and adept than their Democratic counterparts, Robert Byrd and Alan Cranston.

What's good for the country about all this is more problematic, as it consists largely of potential. But what Dole and his colleagues just might be able to do is open the door of reason and, with the help of pragmatists in the White House, nudge the president through it.

They may be able to bridge the gap between the president, who shows no sign of changing his mind on taxes or defense spending, and the Democrats, who have neither the ability nor the inclination to present an alternative and work out a compromise.

There is precedent. Dole, Simpson and Packwood have worked out reasonable compromises with Democrats on issues from immigration to civil rights to foreign aid — with less than no help from the White House. Even more to the point, Dole put together a compromise tax bill in 1982 that won compliments from tax reformers and "traditional" conservatives — and that probably saved both the economy and the president's re-election chances.

TO BE SURE, the times are different. After being blasted as the high-tax party all fall, the Democrats are not about to allow the president to accept salvation grudgingly. Dole faces the sizable task of getting the president to visibly and vocally support a tax bill before he can hope to get the Democrats on board.

More important, the obvious economic troubles in 1982 created a consensus that something had to be done, an air of impending crisis that was a great help in bringing both the president and the Democrats around. That crisis atmosphere may not, probably won't, be present next year.

Still, the election of Robert Dole and his like-minded colleagues offers at least the possibility of real progress on the deficit. If that progress is made, Reagan's dream of an extended period of national prosperity may well come true — and that, come to think of it, wouldn't be bad news for the president either.

High-tech horrors

To the editor:

Having recently returned to my hometown from the Silicon Valley area of Northern California, I applaud the remarks made by Natalie Pearson in her editorial (DI, Nov. 29).

The threats to environmental stability owing to the explosive growth of high-tech industry along Highway 101 between San Francisco and San Jose are profound and becoming increasingly severe. Not long ago, Santa Clara Valley B.C. (Before Computers) contained green pastures and orchards filled with trees blossoming white, pink and yellow.

Except for spots of color provided by millions of advertising signs and automobiles, the predominant scenery now is concrete and metal in shades of gray. The smog rivals that of Los Angeles; groundwater contamination from chemical solvents used by the industries threatens drinking supplies of many of the area's residents.

Let's not Californize Iowa, thereby creating an environmental crisis that, as is already happening in large urban centers, will overshadow any economic crisis.

The serenity and purity of Iowa's landscape infuses its people with the same qualities. Why tamper with a good thing?

Cultural imperialism

To the editor:

Racism has again infested our campus. It was not done this time in the revered name of the Hawkeyes, with paintings of homecoming Hawks attacking native American women helplessly tied up. Nor was it done by any local bars that attempt to limit the number of black patrons they admit.

Instead, it was another attack on the Arab community of Iowa City, this time disguised as a cultural event.

Israel on Campus, sponsor of Israel Awareness Month, asked you to join them in "traditional Israeli" food, music and dancing in order to learn about "their culture." But the culture they asked you to be aware of is the culture Israel has been stealing from the Palestinian people for the past 35 years.

On one flier, for example, the featured foods at the "Israeli Fest" were falafel, hummos and tahineh — all traditional Arab foods.

Simply occupying the Palestinian land evidently isn't enough. The Arabic culture must be stolen as well.

Oliphantine error?

To the editor:

I would like to express my disgust in regards to the Oliphant cartoon "Desert Patch Dolls" (DI, Nov. 26). It was distasteful, and the DI staff should have had more sense than to print a cartoon of this sort, which is not at all a laughing matter!

Swimmin' women

Coach Pete Kennedy's Iowa women's swimming team will put its 18-meet winning streak on the line tonight when the Hawkeyes travel to Lincoln, Neb. to challenge the high-powered Nebraska Cornhuskers. Things don't get any easier on Saturday as Iowa travels to Ames to meet intrastate rival Iowa State in Beyer Pool. Page 3B

Raveling: Tourney should be a 'Classic'

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

The big names might not be there, but this weekend's third annual Amana-Hawkeye Classic could very well live up to its name.

"This tournament should be a good one," Iowa Coach George Raveling said. "We don't have any of those Cinderella names like Georgetown or Louisville but people are going to see some great basketball."

The Hawkeyes, 4-1, are coming off a disappointing 54-50 loss to intrastate rival Iowa State earlier this week but Raveling said after viewing the films of that game, he is encouraged.

"AFTER LOOKING at the game film, I didn't really have any great concerns," Raveling said. "We got the better shots in the game but we just couldn't put them in. We had nine turnovers — there isn't a coach in the country that wouldn't love to have only nine turnovers. We out-rebounded them and we got more shots than they did. We played well in that game from many standpoints."

Poor outside shooting plagued the Hawkeyes in the loss — Iowa's guards hit only six of 25 shots — and Raveling said the performance by the Hawkeye guards wasn't typical and it affected Iowa State's game plan.

"Once they found out we weren't hitting from the outside they were able to shut off (Greg) Stokes," he added. "It was an unusual thing, our guards have hit in all the other games."

RAVELING SAID THE Hawkeyes have been in good spirits since Tuesday's loss. "Everyone has adjusted well," Raveling said. "It's been hard to get on 'em; it wasn't mistakes that beat us."

The Hawkeye coach added that the biggest concern he has playing in a tournament is playing games on two consecutive nights.

Iowa's first-round opponent tonight at 8:35 p.m. has only one win this year. Boston University's Terriers are 1-2 on the year, including an 89-72 loss to powerful North Carolina on Sunday at the Boston Garden and a loss at Bowling Green earlier in the week. The Terriers lone win was against Merrimack in the season opener.

Second-year Coach John Kuester is still looking to replace his top scorer from last season, Gary Plummer, who averaged 17 points and 10 rebounds a game last season.

BUT, THE OTHER four Terrier starters return, led by 6-foot-5 forward Mike Alexander. The junior averaged 15 points a game last season. Senior guard Shawn Teague was sixth in the nation last year in assists and will join junior Dwayne Vinson at the other guard spot in the Terrier line-up.

Sophomore Paul Hendricks will hold the other forward position while 6-8 junior Tom Ivey will start in the middle for Boston University.

Raveling said the Hawkeyes could be in for a defensive tussle. "They'll have five outstanding athletes on the floor," he said. "They'll get after us defensively. Their coach used to play at North Carolina so they do a lot of the same things."

"They'll mix their defense up and make life as difficult as possible for us," Raveling added. "Offensively, their one-on-one play could challenge us."

TONIGHT'S 6:35 P.M. match-up may be one of the better games of the tournament as 2-1 Southern California meets 3-1 Texas Tech. Both teams are basically veteran units.

At USC, Coach Stan Morrison returns 14 of 15 players from last season's 11-20 team. Nine of the Trojans losses were by six points or less and the sixth-year coach hopes that the experience will benefit his 1984-85 team.

The Trojans return one of the Pac-10's best in Wayne Carlander. The senior forward from Huntington Beach, Calif., was an all-Pac-10 first team member and an all-American honorable mention player last year. He led the Trojans in scoring (14.6), rebounding (6.0) and field goal percentage (52.9) for the second year in a row.

"WAYNE IS THE most consistent player I've been around," Morrison said, "and he's eager to go out on a high note."

The lone Trojan loss is to Memphis State in the finals of the Mid-South Classic. Southern California wins have come over Southern Mississippi and Wyoming.

the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars Thursday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Japanese men's and women's teams defeated Iowa.

Hawkeyes taste Japanese talent in dual meet

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

The score was academic but the crowd of 3,372 enjoyed the performance immensely as the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars defeated the Iowa men's gymnastics team, 285.7-276.4, Thursday night at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"I'm real proud of how things went," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "I'm happy that we got everybody here and we hope they'll come back."

The Japanese dominated the meet from the start, winning all nearly all of the six team events.

The bright spot for the Hawkeyes was the performance of junior Dan Bachman in the all-around. The Parma, Ohio, native took second place in the all-around behind Japan's Toshio Shimada.

SHIMADA SCORED a 57.15 to Bachman's 56.7. Japan's Toshinori Yonei finished third with a 56.6 while Stu Breitenstine finished in fourth with a 56.6.

"I'm feeling good," Bachman said. "I just wish I'd have hit my first event (pommel horse). If I could have done that, I think I'd have beat the guy for the all-around title, but overall I'm happy with my performance, I don't have anything to complain about."

Bachman also earned a second place finish on the horizontal bar (9.75) and thirds on the vault (9.55) and the floor exercise (9.6). Breitenstine took a second on the still rings with a 9.65 and tied with Bachman for third in the vault and horizontal bar.

Shimada won the vault with a 9.65 as the Japanese took top honors in all six events. Kazuri Tsuda won the floor exercise with a 9.7 while Yuickhi Nakata won the pommel horse with a 9.8.

Toshinori Yonei won two events, the still rings and horizontal bar. On the rings, Yonei scored a 9.65 and he won the horizontal bar title with a 9.85. Naoyuki Tearo won the parallel bars with a 9.6.

Hawkeye Kurt Karnstedt finished in a tie for fourth on the still rings with a 9.55 while Iowa's Randy Gentile was

The Hawkeyes were working without all-arounder Lenny Lucarello, who may miss up to six weeks because of a broken hand.

"We had some breaks," Dunn said. "We had some people that were in their first competition and in their first competition in front of a big crowd so I'm sure there were some nervousness. The score wasn't too bad under Competition I rules, the requirements are a little easier. Actually, it's a pretty good team score."

The Hawkeyes are idle until a Jan. 10 meet at Georgia.

Dunn said he would give his time off to concentrate on final examinations but he added he has some examining to do on his own — replacing Lucarello in the all-around.

"We'll take the weekend off, we've had quite a few meets lately," Dunn said. "We've got to work on filling the spots where Lenny was. With the Illinois and Ohio State meets coming up in January we'll want to be better prepared if he can't be back. We just didn't have time to get prepared."

Iowa finds starting point with loss

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's gymnastics team got off to a good start in their first dual meet of the season, scoring a 171.65.

The Hawkeyes lost the exhibition dual meet to the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars team which scored a 181.60, but Iowa Coach Diane Chapela was pleased with the performance turned in by the Iowa gymnasts.

"This was a great take-off point for this squad," Chapela said. "Overall, I was quite pleased and very proud of our team."

The Iowa scores range in the eights for most of the events, but Chapela wasn't as concerned with the scores as she was with what each gymnast did in their events. "Scorewise we're capable of higher performances; I thought they really looked good," she said. "The scores will take care of themselves."

IOWA GYMNAST Kim Burkard said the Hawkeyes looked good in the meet even though they still have a lot of room for improvement. "But I think we're off to a super start," she said.

The Japanese gymnasts proved to be all-star athletes during the meet by sweeping the uneven parallel bars, balance beam and all-around competition.

After two events, the Japanese gymnasts were winning the meet, 90.8-86.2 and increased their lead after three events, 136.4-128.05.

The Hawkeyes' lone winner in the dual meet was freshman Jennifer DuBois, who took first place on the vault. She scored a 9.1.

Mieko Ohara led the Japanese gymnasts to the dual meet victory by taking top honors in three events. Ohara posted a 9.6 on the beam, a 9.45 on the floor exercise and won the all-around with a 37.0.

The Hawkeyes travel to Normal, Ill., to take on Illinois State tonight.

Sutter apparently set to ink pact in Atlanta today

HOUSTON (UPI) — With every likelihood, Bruce Sutter is an Atlanta Brave.

Some remarkable change in plans, the prized free agent reliever is leaving St. Louis — and the Cardinals know it.

Both St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog and Atlanta general manager John Mullen have left the winter meetings — Herzog to his home in Kansas City and Mullen to Atlanta.

The Cardinals report that the Braves have scheduled a news conference for Friday morning in Atlanta.

Sutter himself was in Atlanta Thursday "looking around."

Judging by the Cardinals, the derby for the services of the spit-fingered fastball artist for all practical purposes ended Wednesday night. They sounded as if they had done all they could in their offer and were resigned to losing the key to their bullpen.

THE ATLANTA OFFER calls for six years guaranteed at $1.6 million a year. Half of that is up front, the other half is paid into an annuity at 12.5 percent interest. Various calculations place the value of the whole package at $1.2 million a year over 30 years.

While the pursuit of Sutter was all but over, other names attracted attention.

Racing a deadline to finalize the most glamorous trade at the meetings, the New York Yankees met with the agent for center fielder Rickey Henderson.

The Yankees, in their third deal of the meetings, conditionally acquired the speedster and now have until 5 p.m., Iowa time, to satisfy his contract demands.

Henderson is eligible for free agency after this season and his reported asking price is a 5-year deal worth between $8-10 million.

HENDERSON WAS NOT the only prize being pursued. The Chicago Cubs met with National League Cy Young Award winner Rick Sutcliffe. Also, "Trader Jack" McKeon kept trying to work a deal for his San Diego Padres. White Sox right-hander LaMarr Hoyt was the object of McKeon's pursuit.

The Yankees won the right to try to satisfy Henderson by working a multi-year agreement with Oakland.

But there are obstacles. Even if the Yankees can meet the financial conditions, there is the question of whether Henderson is eager for the media glare of New York.

Henderson is much more expressive on the basepaths than in interviews and his arrival in New York would subject him to tremendous scrutiny.

If and when the deal goes through, it would send three young pitchers and an infield prospect to the A's.

The pitchers are right-handers Jose Rijo and Eric Plunk and lefty Tim Lincecum. Stan Javier, a switch-hitting infielder, is also part of the package.

Virginia Tech's Smith wins Outland

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Virginia Tech's Bruce Smith, a 6-foot-4, 275-pound defensive tackle, was named Thursday winner of the 1984 Outland Trophy.

The Outland Trophy is given by the Football Writers Association to the nation's top collegiate interior lineman. Last year's winner was Dean Steinkuhler of Nebraska.

Smith, of Norfolk, was the senior leader on the nation's No. 2 defensive unit against the rush. He made 69 tackles this season, including 52 unassisted, and 16 quarterback sacks for 151 yards.

Two groups tied at Mixed Team golf tourney

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — Allen Miller and Pat Meyers, and defending champions Fred Couples and Jan Stephenson, battled rain and high wind Thursday to tie for the first round lead in the $550,000 Mixed Team Classic at 5-under-par 67.

One shot back at 68 were the teams of Craig Stadler and Lori Garbacz, Dan Pohl and Anne-Marie Pali, and Jim Nelford and Barb Bunkowsky.

Carter: Rose was offered Expo position

MONTREAL (UPI) — Pete Rose was offered the job of managing the Montreal Expos last season but turned it down because it would have involved abandoning his playing status and quest for Ty Cobb's record for most hits, Expos' catcher Gary Carter said Thursday.

Carter, who has been engaged in a war of words with Rose through the media this week, said his former teammate had been "out of line" in his characterizations.

Rose was quoted earlier this week describing Carter as an immature player who didn't have the right approach to the game.

"He was offered to manage the Montreal Expos, but only to manage, but he turned that down because he still wants to play," Carter said in a telephone interview from his home. "He definitely wants to get that record."

Rose, 43, needs only 94 hits to equal Ty Cobb's all-time career record of 4,191.

Augustana, Central to meet for title

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — Before the onslaught of the "big time" bowl games, let's hear it for Saturday's "Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl."

It puts college football into perspective — behind college academics.

The Stagg Bowl is the championship game of NCAA Division III, a group of 195 colleges where books are more important than the blitz and no football scholarships are offered.

Saturday's Stagg Bowl matches two small schools with big football prowess — Augustana of Illinois and Central of Iowa. Both bring perfect 11-0 records into the 11 a.m., Iowa time, duel at the College Football Hall of Fame's Galbreath Field near Cincinnati.

Augustana, which won last year's championship and boasts a 23-game winning streak, is favored. The Vikings have a big offensive line and love to run the ball. They have the best running attack in Division III. Coach Bob Reade's six-year record at Augustana is a staggering 55-8.

Central won the Stagg Bowl 10 years ago and is enjoying its 24th-straight winning season. Ron Schipper has coached the Flying Dutchmen all 24 of those years and has a 170-49-3 record.

White Sox ship Hoyt to Padres

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lamarr Hoyt, the American League's 1983 Cy Young Award winner, Thursday night was traded to the San Diego Padres in a seven-player deal with the Chicago White Sox.

In return, the White Sox acquired pitcher Tim Lollar, infielder Luis Salazar and rookie shortstop Ozzie Guillen.

Along with Hoyt, who was 24-10 in 1983 but 13-18 in 1984, the White Sox gave up rookie right-handed pitchers Kevin Christian and Todd Simmons, while the Padres gave up a rookie right-hander Bill Long.

Hoyt, who will be 30 New Year's Day, was the plum in the deal despite being a disappointment last year. His ERA slipped to 4.37 from 3.66 the year before.

He becomes the top starter for the Padres, who were concerned about the bearded right-hander's weight before making the trade. Hoyt's weight is listed at 222 pounds, but that may be a pressbook figure. The White Sox were never overly worried about Hoyt's weight, particularly after he blossomed into the ace of their staff in 1982 when he went 19-15.

Iowa overpowers No. 11 Lehigh, 44-0

By J.B. Glass
Staff Writer

Lehigh wrestling coach Thad Turner said he would need luck to defeat top-ranked Iowa.

Turner was right, but he didn't get any as the Hawkeyes blanked the No. 11 Engineers, 44-0.

Iowa travels to Penn State tonight to "flex its muscles" against the fourth-ranked Nittany Lions. Penn State, which had a top recruiting year, finished third in the nation last year behind the Hawkeyes and Oklahoma State. Iowa will meet Ohio State in Columbus Sunday.

Iowa (4-0), using just about its strongest line-up, recorded the most lopsided win between the two schools in 14 duals, in Bethlehem, Pa.

THE HAWKEYES' 134-pounder Greg Randall, returning to competition from a shoulder injury after 10 days, recorded the first of two pins on the night when he nailed Jim Frick in one minute and 40 seconds. "I just tossed him for a quick hip toss and got him on his back and slowly tightened him up," Randall said.

Lindley Kistler (167) pinned Charles Cook in 1:35 to win the fastest fall award of the evening. "This guy wasn't that good and I wanted to get a pin under my belt."

Iowa also recorded two technical falls (matches ending after one wrestler goes ahead by 15 points). Brad Penrith, 16-0 in 3:20 over David Ball at 118, and Barry Davis, 26-11 in 7:00 over Mike Price, at 126 each got the six-point wins for Iowa. The Hawkeyes received two major decisions (winning by eight and less than 12) from 177-pounder Rico Chiapparelli, 13-5, over Dave Garner and heavyweight Steve Wilbur, 11-3 over Steve Vesch.

THE OTHER MATCHES of the evening were close as both undefeated Jim Heffernan at 150 and undefeated Marty

Wrestling

Kistler, who cut his weight three pounds (under 158), by accident, won over their opponents 9-7. "That's our goal against everybody (a shut out)," Heffernan said. "Everyone is going to have to look sharper against Penn State because I know Penn State is gunning for us."

The two closest matches of the night came at 142 where Iowa's Kevin Dresser, using his riding time, beat fourth-ranked Peter Yozzo, 7-6.

At 190 Duane Goldman benefitted from two stalling calls (giving him one penalty point) and a dangerous position call, ending a final attempt by Paul Diekel of a takedown, worth two points, to beat Diekel 2-1.

"HIS WHOLE OFFENSE was to wait for my mistakes," Goldman said. "I was moving well but I've had a bad shoulder lately and I wasn't real confident in my shots. We'll be glad to come out of here as well as (we did) and head up to Penn State and really show them something."

Iowa Coach Dan Gable was happy with the shutout. "There was much better wrestling (Thursday night) than there was (Wednesday night) in terms of opponents. We had some tough matches, hardfought matches, you can tell (that) by the scores of some of the matches."

"However, I am a little disappointed in a couple of things," Gable said. "One, from my own squad, for some reason we were very tired tonight. I don't know what the reason was exactly but I'll find out. (Also), I was a little disappointed in Lehigh's line-up. They've had some tough times and I'll let them know that a little bit. I think they need some changes out here in terms of offering people scholarships."

Texas tackle DeGrate wins Lombardi Award

HOUSTON (UPI) — Defensive tackle Tony DeGrate of Texas Thursday won the prestigious Lombardi Award, presented to college football's top lineman.

The lineman from Snyder, Texas, was selected over three other players for the 15th annual award at a dinner sponsored by the Houston Rotary Club.

The award is named after Vince Lombardi, legendary coach of the Green Bay Packers, who died of cancer in 1970. Proceeds go to the American Cancer Society.

DeGrate had 147 tackles this season, 123 unassisted. He led the team with 13 sacks and 18 tackles behind the line.

The 6-foot-4, 278-pounder is the Longhorns' seventh player nominated for the award in 15 years. He is the second Longhorn to actually receive the award. The other was defensive tackle Kenneth Sims in 1981.

OTHER NOMINEES were Pittsburgh offensive tackle Bill Fralic, outside linebacker Jack Del Rio of Southern Cal and noseguard William Perry of Clemson.

Fralic, a 6-foot-5, 285-pounder from Penn Hills, Pa., was a finalist for the award last year and has completed a stellar career at Pitt. He was sixth in the Heisman Trophy voting this year and placed eighth last year.

His jersey, No. 79, became only the fourth to be retired in the school's history following those of Tony Dorsett, Hugh Green and Dan Marino. He also was a starter from the first game of his freshman year.

Iowa winning streak in jeopardy

By Tom Condon
Assistant Sports Editor

No doubt about it, the 18-meet winning streak possessed by the Iowa women's swimming team is in jeopardy this weekend.

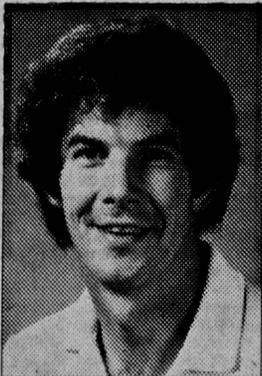

Coach Pete Kennedy will be taking his squad on its first crucial road trip of the season, facing a high-powered Nebraska squad tonight in Lincoln, Neb., before traveling to Iowa State Saturday to battle the 4-0 Cyclones.

Nebraska Coach Ray Huppert makes no bones about it being the biggest meet of the year for his squad. "We remember last year," Huppert said of Iowa's 74-65 win in the Field House Pool last January. "We get excited when we swim against a quality opponent such as Iowa. I think we're ready."

HUPPERT'S SQUAD had some impressive times in last weekend's Nebraska Invitational, qualifying five swimmers for the NCAA meet along with having some others swim lifetime bests, which has Kennedy worried.

"After the times I saw that they swam last week there's no question that they are a powerful team," Kennedy said. "On paper, they may have the edge in this meet."

In many other meets during the winning streak teams have had the advantage on paper only to lose when the

Ramsey Van Horn

Swimming

final results were in. "This is the kind of team that can come up with big swims when they need them," Kennedy said. "They've been able to dig down deep in the past and come up with the big effort and I hope they can do it again."

LEADING THE NEBRASKA charge will be distance freestyler Emily Ricketts, breaststroker Erin Hurley, and butterfly Dana Powers. Huppert has also been aided by the return to form of two juniors Shawna Gilmore and Linda Sebesta.

Huppert also has great respect for the athletes at Iowa. "Iowa's got a great team, no doubt about it," he said. "You don't get rated in the top 20 without great swimmers."

"Coach Kennedy has a great set of sprinters," Huppert added. "The thing that makes this meet so interesting is the fact that Iowa and Nebraska have the same strengths — sprinters and divers."

Kennedy did indicate that he has rested his squad some this week. "We rested a little and we will wear lacquer suits in the meets," he said. "Those swimmers that want to shave and go for national cuts will be allowed to do so."

"THE TEAM SEEMS real excited about this meet," he added. "They won't go down without a fight."

Another team that won't go down without a fight is Iowa State. The Cyclones were demolished 93-47 in Iowa City last year and Coach Ramsey Van Horn's squad is looking forward to the rematch.

"We are going to go after them," Van Horn said. "We have enough strength on paper to beat them but we just can't sit back and wait."

To Kennedy, this means Iowa State will be shaved, tapered and in lacquer suits for the meet. "Iowa State is swimming very well right now," he said. "I expect them to be ready for us, especially after us having a tough meet the night before at Nebraska."

IOWA'S DEPTH IN the sprints is Van Horn's biggest concern. Former Cyclone swimmer Donna Strilich along with Kim Stevens and Jennifer Petty could be too much for Iowa State.

"If we can do well in the distance events, we should be all right," Van Horn said. "If not, we could be in deep trouble."

Iowa State will be led by distance freestylers Lynn Campbell, Betsy Nowak and Amy Turner.

Iowa will be as healthy this weekend as any all season with the return of sophomore butterfly Allison Lloyd to competition after missing the first part of the season with a shoulder injury. Kennedy indicated that she will probably only swim the 100 yard events until she gets back to full strength.

Petty and Sophie Lindeskog were stricken with the flu earlier in the week but have recovered and will swim. Sheila Delaney will miss the meet due to injury and Jane Keating is still undergoing rehabilitation on her surgically repaired shoulder.

"It's too bad Jane can't go against Ricketts at Nebraska," Kennedy said. "Those two would put on quite a race."

Iowa to test 'defensive' Redbirds

By Melissa Rapoport
Staff Writer

Last week's road trip to San Jose, Calif., proved to be an "awakening" for the Iowa women's basketball team. Its 77-57 loss to two-time defending national champion Southern California opened the Hawkeyes' eyes of what it will take to be a nationally-rated team.

"They were able to within themselves find out who they are and what they're trying to accomplish," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "Also, they see the kind of players we saw in (Drake's) Wanda Ford and (USC's) Cheryl Miller. Those players set standards for us to go by."

"Now when you say, 'Do this and do that,' it's not like they can say, 'we haven't seen this, can females do that,'" the second-year coach explained. "It was difficult because I have another point of reference (from coaching at Cheyney State).

"I KNOW WHAT we have to be like in order to play, where we as a team never played at that level, so we don't know didn't know what to expect of ourselves or what's acceptable."

After playing such a competitive

week of basketball on the road, Iowa lost two emotionally-wired games against Drake and USC but ended the trip on a winning note with a convincing win over San Jose State, 67-45.

An entire week without competition has allowed the Hawkeyes to recuperate from their five-day trip and prepare for their home opener against Illinois State.

When Iowa takes the floor against the Redbirds Sunday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena, the Hawkeyes will compete against a defense they haven't seen too often.

"THEY ARE DEFINITELY a defense-oriented team," Stringer said. "That will put a lot of pressure on us, because they mix the zones up ... Zone defense could cause problems for us because we really only had a look at that kind of defense once this year."

With the first home game comes the jitters of playing in front of the home crowd and living up to their expectations. Stringer said it will be imperative for the Hawkeyes to quickly rid themselves of the "butterflies."

"With this team that we're going to play there's a couple things we've looked at," Stringer said. "One is that we're home, so we've got to be able to shake the nervousness up front ... We know what's expected of us, but we also have to recognize that Illinois State is a very, very tough team. Their tradition is there, plus their defense is so good."

BECAUSE THE REDBIRDS are such a strong defensive team, Stringer said it will take a combination of skills to beat Illinois State. "We're going to have to get back down the floor on transition," she said. "We can't throw the ball away, it's the most important thing going on out there — possession."

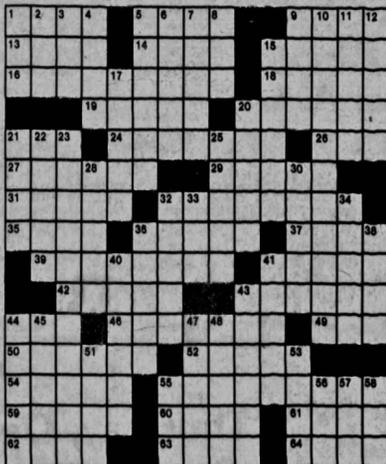

"We've got to have good shot selection," Stringer continued. "We've got to go to the boards, we need patience, patience, patience, which is necessary on offense and we need to play with a great deal of intensity."

"If they take and get a shot," she said further explaining the intensity level, "we've got to be sure it's only one and not a second or third shot. I think within all of us, we're going to have to concentrate."

Despite its ups and downs, the Iowa volleyball team ended its season on a good note at the Louisiana State tournament by competing well against 14th-rated Brigham Young and tying the Iowa record for most wins in a season.

Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said the Hawkeyes, who finished their season 25-16 and 8-5 in the Big Ten, had a successful season in lieu of a mid-season slump. "I think we had a good season," Stewart said. "We definitely had some a up and down season — like a roller coaster."

IOWA STARTED out strong with impressive wins at the Rice Tournament in Houston, Texas, before feeling the effects of a jam-packed schedule. An upset over 20th-rated Purdue snapped the lull, giving the Hawkeyes momentum until the Big Ten Championships, where the Boilermakers avenged their loss in first-round action.

Volleyball

"We played really well at Houston and to win the Rice Tournament," Stewart said. "Houston beat some good teams later in the season, like Texas. We started out strong and went through a slump."

"The... highlight (of the season) would have to be defeating Purdue here. And our disappointment would have to be losing to Purdue in the first round of Big Tens," she said.

Stewart said she will try to remedy the slump situation next year by scheduling less weekday matches. "The main thing is that it takes so much endurance to play through a whole season for any team," the third-year coach said. "It's very difficult to keep a high level of intensity."

"WE CAN'T PLAY that many matches and expect to do well. So, we're cutting down on our matches next year... Next year we're going to try to schedule less midweek matches and concentrate on weekend matches."

However, during preseason workouts, the Hawkeyes devised a set of team goals — everything from winning the Rice Tournament to winning a spot in the finals of the Big Ten Tournament. And although Iowa fell short on a few of its goals, it also exceeded a few of them. "I think we had high expectations, but you always have to think big,"

Stewart said.

"WE FELL SHORT in some of the LSU matches," she continued. "That was disappointing. It's hard to keep motivated when you have nothing to play for. The Michigan State loss was also a disappointment. But we exceeded our expectations in defeating Purdue."

Two matches at the LSU tournament did prove to be a rewarding experience. "In the match we played against BYU, we played with them," Stewart explained. "We could have gone either way that day. They were ranked 14th. I think it was good for our team to know they have the caliber to play with them..."

"We ended (the tournament and season) on a great match against Florida State in three (games)."

Sabres acquire Maloney from Rangers

Maloney, 28, was in his ninth season with the Rangers and had only two goals and an assist this season.

The Rangers, 2-8-2 in their last 12 games and 9-12-3 on the season, have been under fire from General Manager Craig Patrick, but Patrick refused to pin the blame for the team's lackluster start on Maloney.

"We are not blaming Dave for our poor performance of late," said Patrick. "Dave has been a great inspiration to this organization for 10 years but we feel we are making a change that will improve our club now and in future."

New York also sent minor league defenseman Chris Renaud to Buffalo.

STEVE PATRICK, 23, has scored two goals and two assists in 14 games with the Sabres and the trade unites him with his younger brother James Patrick, a defenseman on the Rangers. Steve Patrick, a first round draft pick of the Sabres in 1980, is in his fifth NHL season.

"Steve has good skills, but he hasn't really displayed them for Buffalo so far," said Craig Patrick of the 6-foot-4, 206-pound winger. "But the Rangers feel in our environment he can get the best out of his abilities."

The 23-year-old Weimer, in his second NHL season, had three goals and a pair of assists for Buffalo. He led Rochester to the American Hockey League championship in 1983 and was voted the team's outstanding defenseman.

A vote for college grid playoffs

Parity and perennial arguments over which team is No. 1 vs. a dramatic, climatic, not to mention an objective, finish to the college football season.

Here's three cheers for a championship playoff system for college football, similar to the excitement fans involve themselves with in March with the NCAA basketball tourney.

There is more than money involved. College football stagnates as the season reaches the 'hoopla' point of the campaign.

After the bowl committees hand out invitations and after various coaches argue why their team should be in a Jan. 1 game and why Notre Dame shouldn't. After all that, there is at most two games worth watching, besides the contest your team is in. Then it's over. And then the arguing continues about who is No. 1.

IT'S TIME COLLEGE football finds

J.B. Glass

Sportsview

out which team is really No. 1 rather than which team is the mythical champion.

The bowl season should be more than just festive type event. It should mean something.

There are too many sharp minds in the game of college football not to be able to come up with a suitable playoff system.

Sure tradition is nice. And it's great to follow your team on the road, unless the team ends up in Pontiac, Mich., which could happen this year. It is a nice way to end a season, but naming a real champion would be nicer, for the winners and for the fans, not to mention for the revenue collectors.

THE BOWLS WOULD probably lose some significance and it may elongate the season a few weeks but maybe teams can cut out some meaningless nonconference games. The playoff games could still be named after the present bowls, if you choose.

Some say it creates professionalism but if you don't think college athletes are close to professionals, look again.

It could be tough to choose the teams but it is tough to choose them now and it was tough to invent electricity.

However, a playoff system is a bright idea that deserves a chance. The system would probably promote college football more.

Academics may be a problem because of a longer season but, again, they are a problem now.

The bowl system works — okay. Just okay. It could be better.

THE SYSTEM WORKS for lightweight and middleweight college football and it is popular.

Teams could be selected on what the team did, not on what the team is.

There is a good chance college football's superbowl would be the best bowl of all.

The late Bear Bryant, although he benefitted from the postseason voting, said, "On the other hand, it gripes me to no end that after the bowls we give stage completely to pro football. They're competitors. Their playoffs knock us out of the box in publicity during the bowl season and they hulloaloo their Super Bowl as the greatest event in sports. I'd like to see us move in the ring against them during that period."

The NCAA is now seriously studying a playoff and it could be up for legislation shortly. Sure there are problems to be solved but wouldn't it be worth it? Some of those subjective arguments would remain.

C'mon. Give it a try — please.

Navratilova's streak stopped at 74

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd, once the queen of women's tennis, has earned a chance to wear a championship crown again, only it might not feel quite the same this time.

Evert Lloyd emerged as the favorite Thursday to win the women's singles title in the $1.5 million Australian Open when the reigning queen of women's tennis, Martina Navratilova, was upset by an unheralded teenager, Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, in the semifinals.

If Evert Lloyd should win her championship match with Sukova Saturday, she would earn her first Grand Slam event since the Australian Open in 1982. However, the victory would be somewhat bittersweet since it would not come against Navratilova, a player Evert Lloyd has not beaten since that 1982 Australian Open final.

EVERT LLOYD, the second seed, reached the final by defeating Australian Wendy Turnbull, 6-3, 6-3, in the semifinals Thursday. Evert Lloyd took control of the match by winning six straight games with the score tied at three games each in the first set.

Chris Evert Lloyd

Sukova's big serve and strong forehand shots defeated Navratilova, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5, in the other semifinal match.

Sukova's victory halted Navratilova's 74-match winning streak that covered nearly 11 months. It also stopped the defending champion's bid for a record seventh straight Grand Slam title and ended her attempt to post a Grand Slam within a calendar year.

Navratilova was last beaten in Oakland, Calif., in January by fellow Czechoslovakian Hana Mandlikova.

"I ALWAYS GET excited when I get close to losing, but I have been able to come through in most three-set matches this year," Navratilova said. "I made a great comeback but I didn't quite finish it off."

"The pressure was there, especially when I knew I had to hold serve from love-15, five-all in the final set. I thought that the pressure might get to Helena, too, because she has never reached this stage of a Grand Slam event before."

"But I don't think the pressure is the reason I lost. I've been under tremendous pressure for a long time, so it's just one of those matches when I didn't make the shots I could have made."

The first two sets were one-sided, but the final turned dramatic when Sukova broke Navratilova in the first and third games later to lead 3-0. Navratilova then rallied to tie 4-4 with a brilliant stretching forehand on the run to break Sukova. But the challenger recovered to break and forge ahead 6-5.

IN THE DECIDING game, Navratilova saved three match points with blistering winners, but finally bowed out when she hit a forehand service return wide.

"I think the key was I returned Martina's serve really well," Sukova said. "During this whole tournament, I was trying to play my matches calmly and cool and try to concentrate on every point and I think it has helped me a lot. I really didn't get nervous or anything."

Sukova, who upset Pam Shriver Tuesday, came reasonably close to extending Navratilova once this year when she snared six games at the U.S. Open in September in a quarterfinal clash.

In men's quarterfinal action, Mats Wilander of Sweden downed countryman Stefan Edberg, 7-5, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4. Kevin Curren of South Africa defeated Scott Davis of the United States, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3, and Ben Testerman of the United States defeated Boris Becker of West Germany, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Coach of the Year to TCU's Wacker

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — One of the things Jim Wacker has turned out not to be over the course of his 47 years is shy.

It takes only a matter of seconds, certainly no more than 30 to 45 of them, to become aware that Wacker enjoys doing just what he says he enjoys doing.

"I love coaching because coaching is teaching," Wacker said. "But I love selling, too. I love going up against the other coaches, trying to sell our program and our school. I love recruiting."

That's where Wacker is these days. He's in Austin and Houston and who knows where selling Texas Christian University to the youth of America.

He did a pretty good job of that the past two years, but his job was made a lot easier this season since his TCU Horned Frogs produced the sharpest turnaround of any football team in the country.

TCU WENT FROM a 1-8-2 record to 8-3, earned a bowl trip for only the second time in 25 years and came within one victory of representing the Southwest Conference in the Cotton Bowl.

For all of that Wacker was named Thursday as UPI's collegiate football coach of the year.

It makes no difference whether Wacker is speaking to a chemistry professor, a group of seminary students or the people whose bankrolls help finance the school's athletic department. He is apt to give them the same lecture and the theme of that lecture is that TCU is inevitably going to be a national champion.

"WE WERE SO close to winning the conference championship and going to the Cotton Bowl," he said. "We had that brass ring and let it slip away. We talk about the things you've got to do to hang on to it. You've got to make it happen."

"The pot of gold is still out there and we are coming closer. We will be pushing and grinding and reminding the players of what it takes to make a good team into a championship team. "And once you get to the Cotton Bowl you start talking about national championship."

Wacker admits he gets his share of strange looks when he launches into his national championship speech. But he is used to getting those kind of stares.

"IF YOU DON'T believe it, it sure isn't going to happen. The first year I was at Southwest Texas we told those guys they would be national champions (of NCAA Division II) before they graduated. They thought we were ridiculous. They hadn't even won a conference championship in 10 years. But it happened."

"I don't care what happened before and I don't care if it sounds stupid to everybody else in the world. We are going to talk it and believe it and strive for it and know what our goals are."

Classic

For Texas Tech, nine of 10 letterwinners return from last year's 17-12 team. Guard Bubba Jennings, who averaged 13.8 points per game last year, is Coach Gerald Myers' top returner. He was named second team all-Southwest Conference last season for his efforts.

In addition, 6-5 senior Vince Taylor returns. The forward led the Red Raiders in rebounding last year with 6.7 boards a game and he was named to the all-conference defensive team.

THE RED RAIDERS are 3-1 with their sole loss being a 59-57 double overtime decision to eighth-rated Washington Monday night in Lubbock, Texas. Texas Tech has defeated Chicago State, Utah and Texas-San Antonio. The games in Iowa City will be the first on the road this season for Myers' team.

"We should be improved since we lost only one letterman," Myers said. "The Amana-Hawkeye Classic will give us a good early season test."

"The loss (to Washington) obviously hurt," he said, "but at least we know we can play with bigger guys. USC and whoever else we play, possibly Iowa, will have big front-line guys."

The championship game of the tournament are scheduled for 8:35 p.m. on Saturday with the consolation game to be played at 6:35 p.m. at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Nearly 2,500 tickets remain for the tournament, according to Jim Rosborough, Iowa special events coordinator. Tickets are good for all four games and are priced at $25.

"There are tickets available for both evenings," Rosborough said.

If the past means anything, the Hawkeyes will be favored to win the tournament title. Iowa has won the previous two Amana-Hawkeye Classics, defeating Hawaii and Oregon State for the titles, and has dominated the all-tournament team the past two years as well. Hawkeye senior center Greg Stokes has been the tournament MVP the past two years.

Giants, Cardinals set for 'war'

United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals are gearing up for an all-out war with the New York Giants Sunday.

The Cardinals dodged the bullet last week with a big victory over New England and this week they'll be looking to gain more ground in the battle for a playoff berth in the NFC. And to show that they mean business, the Cardinals' running backs showed up for practice this week wearing military garb.

The feelings these two teams have for each other is less than amicable. You might even say they hate each other. Cardinal guard Terry Stieve says his teammates just don't like the Giants.

"I HAVE A personal dislike for the Giants," Stieve said. "To lose to those guys hurts awfully bad. We don't like them. They don't like us. We're going to strap down and go after them. We were in a nasty humor when we played the Patriots but we're always in a nasty humor when we play the Giants."

"The feeling is mutual," replies New

NFL roundup

York defensive end George Martin. "There is no love lost between us."

St. Louis, 8-6, will be pulling out all the stops this week because a loss would virtually knock the Cards out of the playoff picture. The Giants, 9-5, are in a three-way tie with Dallas and Washington for first in the NFC East, one game ahead of the Cardinals.

If they win their two remaining games, the Giants will capture the NFC East crown and it would be their first title of any kind since 1963. New York can also clinch at least a wild card berth with a victory Sunday coupled with a loss by the Rams to Houston.

THE LAST TIME these two teams met was three weeks ago at Giants Stadium and New York won 16-10. St. Louis running back Otis Anderson had a big day, rushing for over 100 yards, and the Cardinals were able to hold All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor in check. But New York's secondary shut down St. Louis quarterback Neil Lomax and his receivers.

Sunday's game is at St. Louis, where the Cards are tough to beat. The Giants, meanwhile, have had their troubles on the road. But this should be another tight battle and the defenses again should play a big part in the outcome.

"Both teams have a lot at stake," Martin said. "We don't want to lose and neither do they. Both teams need momentum going into the last game. Both teams are equally matched so it should be a great game."

The Los Angeles Raiders are at Detroit on Monday night.

The match-up between the Redskins and Cowboys in Irving, Texas, will be a classic as usual. Dallas would make the playoffs for the 10th-consecutive season with a victory over Washington.

The Steelers again look to clinch the AFC Central, but they'll need a win against the Browns and a loss by the Bengals to New Orleans to do it.

THE BEARS announced Thursday that starting quarterback Jim McMahon would miss the rest of the season including the playoffs because of the lacerated kidney he suffered one month ago against the Los Angeles Raiders. Chicago, which has already clinched the NFC Central title, will go with Rusty Lisch this week against the Packers. Recently acquired Greg Landry will be the back-up.

Los Angeles running back Eric Dickerson has been credited with 11 more yards to boost his official total to 1,792 yards on 326 attempts through 14 games. Dickerson is threatening the NFL single season rushing record of 2,003 yards set by O.J. Simpson with the Buffalo Bills in 1973.

Bears' McMahon lost for season

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon will miss the rest of the 1984 season including the playoffs because of the lacerated kidney he suffered one month ago against the Los Angeles Raiders.

The Bears formally announced Thursday that McMahon, the team's No. 1 quarterback, will sit out the remaining two games and any playoff contests the Bears have this season. But McMahon will be able to return for the 1985 season.

The announcement came after McMahon underwent a kidney scan Wednesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

"While the scan confirmed that a normal healing is in process," said Bears' General Manager Jerry Vainisi, "the club's decision reflects our concern that a return to the field in the near future could expose Jim to blows which might interrupt that healing process."

DR. MICHAEL CARTER, the urologist who has treated McMahon, also advised the quarterback not to return.

"He should be fine," Carter said. "There is a risk and he could take it. All we can do is advise him."

The bad news about McMahon came one day after the Bears signed 37-year-old veteran Greg Landry to be the backup to Rusty Lisch for the remaining two regular season games. Lisch replaced Steve Fuller, who had replaced McMahon. Fuller went down in Monday night's 20-7 loss to San Diego with a minor shoulder separation.

While the news about McMahon was not good, the Bears said they expect Fuller to be back in time for the playoffs.

"STEVE HAS HAD progress and we think he can start throwing at the end of the week," trainer Fred Caito said. "I'm optimistic he can return for the playoffs."

McMahon said he was very disappointed but not surprised that he will be unable to return this year.

"I could see it coming," said McMahon, who has lost 17 pounds since going down Nov. 4 against the Raiders. "I could tell by the way that it feels. I could take a deep breath and know that something was going wrong."

Caito emphasized that McMahon's healing has been progressing well and that the injury is not a career-threatening one.

"Jim's career will not be threatened," Caito said. "It was a serious injury. The scan we took Wednesday showed progress had been made."

McMAHON, WHO ALSO has been bothered by a bad back and a fractured bone in his throwing hand this year, admitted he felt snakebit this year.

"I kept wondering 'why me?'" said McMahon, who had been relatively injury free for most of his career at BYU and with the Bears.

McMahon revealed there had been some concern the lacerated left kidney might have to be removed.

"They talked about going on and if it wasn't healing, removing it," McMahon said.

As late as Wednesday, Bears Coach Mike Ditka had held out hope McMahon would be back, possibly as early as the final regular season game against Detroit. Caito defended statements made about McMahon's progress, saying, "He is an athlete. If it were you or me, we'd go home and rest six months. Jim has always been able to come back from injuries."

Kidney injuries rare in football

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Kidney injuries to football players are relatively rare compared to the assortment of banged up knees, shoulders and backs that are risks of the trade.

That uncommon element probably caused the Chicago Bears to hold out hope until the last minute that quarterback Jim McMahon would be able to return to the club this season.

McMahon suffered two lacerations of his left kidney after he was hit during the first half of the Bears' win over the defending Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders Nov. 4.

He was hospitalized for less than two weeks with the injury, and there was some concern that if the injury did not begin to heal, he would lose the kidney.

"IF THAT HAD happened, it would be the end of my career," McMahon said.

Because so few players come down with kidney injuries, the Bears' "medical team" consulted with doctors all over the nation.

"We called all over the country trying to get opinions," said team trainer Fred Caito. "We knew it was serious and it would take up to three months to heal. But nothing was definite."

McMahon had always shown remarkable resiliency toward injuries. He had a bad back earlier in the year but came back to play. He fractured a bone in his throwing hand, but missed just one game.

WITH THAT IN mind, doctors remained optimistic McMahon could come back even though as Caito put it,

"most of us would go home and rest for six months."

As late as Wednesday, before the latest scan, the Bears were still talking about McMahon returning this year. That was until the scan showed continued improvement but no where near the level that would allow physical contact.

Dr. Michael Carter, a urologist, said McMahon's kidney had continued to heal for the past months.

"The scan shows that healing is going on," Carter said. "But, there's still a long way to go. The kidney is not ready to take additional trauma at this time."

At one point, McMahon conceded he was concerned about losing the kidney. That would have meant an immediate end to a professional football career.

"I got a little scared about the blood count being so low," McMahon said. "There was some transfer of blood ... they also said it wasn't healing, they might have to take it out."

McMAHON ADDED because "kidney injuries don't happen very often to football players," there was still hope that he could return.

But McMahon, who had lost 17 pounds, considered normal for such an injury, had no physical activity during the rehabilitation.

"I told him he can start swimming and throwing the ball but he can't practice or start jogging," Carter said. "I don't think he likes to jog anyway."

McMahon has yet to see the replay of the hit he took from Bill Pickel and Jeff Barnes at Soldier Field.

Romance, science fiction make 'Starman' a delight

By Merwyn Grote
Staff Writer

STARMAN BEGINS in a somewhat curious way. When we earthlings sent the Voyager satellite spinning through the cosmos as sort of an all-purpose, to-whom-it-may-concern greeting card, it was stuffed with all sorts of bric-a-brac designed to illustrate the nature of our culture. Apparently one of the examples was a recording of the Rolling Stones singing "I Can't Get No Satisfaction."

While not wishing to belittle the Stones or their quintessential hit, I can't help but think they could have found a more appropriate artifact to greet the universe than that whining ode to 1960s discontentment. Fortunately the song has very little to do with John Carpenter's new film, except to provide a couple of good laughs and a contrast in moods.

Indeed, viewers should get plenty of satisfaction out of this greatly entertaining sci-fi, romantic fantasy. It is an enjoyable cross between a role-reversal Splash and a remake of E.T., with a large dose of Close Encounters of the Third Kind and generous flavorings of everything from Superman to Sleeping Beauty.

THE BASIC INTENT of Voyager's greeting was to tell other life forms to come on down and see us sometime. Starman's premise is someone taking us up on the invitation. One starry Midwestern night, a small space craft comes zipping out of the heavens. The U.S. military, showing its usual warmth to incoming visitors, immediately blasts it out of the sky and sends it on a crash dive into the wilderness of northern Wisconsin.

Emerging from the craft is a bright white light, apparently consisting of pure energy. The light makes its way across a lake to the cabin of Jenny Hayden (Karen Allen), a recently-widowed young woman, still very much in mourning for her deceased husband, Scott. She is understandably upset when she discovers the entity has taken a lock of Scott's hair from a photo album, but before you can say

"extraterrestrial," she finds Scott is back — in body, if not spirit. The celestial visitor has cloned him and now looks like the deceased husband (Jeff Bridges).

THE VISITOR HAS to get to the desert outside Winslow, Ariz., in three days to rendezvous with a mother ship or be left behind to die. He presses a rather frightened and naturally reluctant Jenny into service as a chauffeur and they take off cross-country. Naturally, the federal authorities are hot on their trail.

Along the way they meet a variety of good people (ordinary folk like waitresses, migrant Indians, a kid in hot rod, etc.) and not so nice people (authority figures like the police and the army, hunters and bullies). The Starman gets to experience the nice things about earth like human compassion, Dutch apple pie and sex, as well as the worst of society like guns, cigarettes and death. The Starman learns about the human race and Jenny learns to live and love again.

Starman is great fun, warmly funny and richly romantic, quite a departure for director Carpenter. Previously, he has been known for his journeys into horror with films like Halloween, The Fog and Christine and the darker aspects of science fiction with films like Escape to New York and The Thing. This is his first attempt at romanticism and he handles it surprisingly well, though I imagine he is helped considerably by Bruce A. Evans and Raynold Gideon's clever script and the excellent rapport between stars Allen and Bridges.

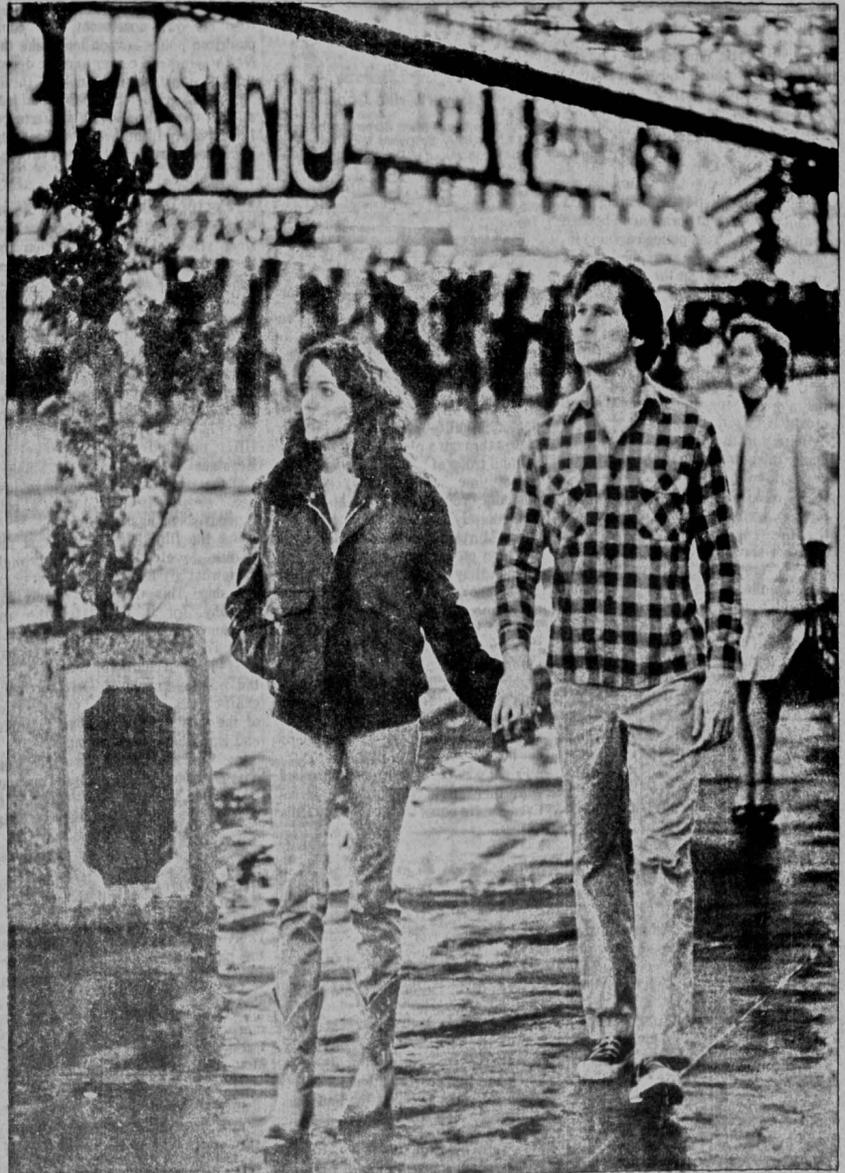

EARLIER THIS YEAR Allen tried romance with the maudlin Until September, a serious film about sexual relationships that failed to provide her with any decent material on which to base a character. Starman is fantasy and thus a little larger than life. This can be quite liberating, allowing a performer to play certain emotions broadly, without the threat of descending into soap opera.

In Starman, Allen's character has not yet adjusted to the accidental death of her husband, yet is placed in the situation of reliving her love for him, establishing a new and highly unlikely love affair and, in a strange way, acting out on her maternal instincts. It is a complex set of circumstances and a complex character. Allen makes the character touching and proves herself to be a very gifted actress.

Bridges is faced with a acting challenge of a very different sort. His character's knowledge of Earth consists almost totally of the mish-mash of languages and data put into Voyager. Basically, he plays a full-grown, highly inquisitive child, who must learn virtually everything from scratch, including how to walk, talk and even feel.

BRIDGES SEEMINGLY never fails to give a winning performance; here, he is especially good. He not only handles the task of taking his character from a blank entity, almost robot-like in movement and speech, to a full-bodied person, he also makes him sweet and innocent, endowed with a gentle humanity and appealing humor. There is an awkward gap at the beginning of the film. Allen confronts Bridges; then, without adequate transition, the two are seen driving toward Arizona. Since he can not yet speak comprehensible English and she is still very scared, the process of how he persuades her to accompany him was ripe for humor. For some reason, however, no such scene is in the film, leaving only a sudden, inexplicable jump.

But that is a minor problem. Starman is otherwise a beautifully done romantic adventure. It is a special film and comes highly recommended.

Jeff Bridges, a harmless alien, and Karen Allen, a confused but caring earthling, explore the streets of Las Vegas in "Starman." John Carpenter directed this romantic adventure.

Murphy's latest film is arresting

By Merwyn Grote Staff Writer

IT IS THE unwritten law of all modern police adventures that they contain at least one totally senseless car chase, preferably with a copious amount of automotive carnage. Eddie Murphy's new comedy, Beverly Hills Cop, gets this prerequisite out of the way immediately with a chase that is something of a humdinger. It involves a double-bedded semi, several dozen police cars and innumerable innocent automobiles that just happen to get in the way, though not for long.

The chase doesn't have much to do with the rest of the film and even Murphy himself is only along for the ride. It, however, is the only instance in Beverly Hills Cop where Murphy is just along for the ride. During the rest of the film, it is clear that he is definitely in the driver's seat. And he guides this star vehicle through some very tricky maneuvers.

The main plot of the film concerns Murphy's attempt to bring to justice the men who murdered his friend Mikey, a slovenly childhood buddy, ex-con and embezzler of smuggled German bonds. Murphy is a Detroit policeman named Axel Foley. When Mikey comes to visit, it is a joyful reunion until, of course, Mikey gets his brains blown out. Mikey's previous employer was a ritzy Beverly Hills art dealer. That is the only lead that Murphy has, so he packs his beat-up Chevy Nova and heads for the land of the Rolls Royce and the Mercedes-Benz.

NATURALLY, Murphy runs into a certain amount of trouble, but, surprisingly enough, not from the villainous art dealer-securitys thief-dope smuggler-murderer that he is pursuing. Murphy, and the audience as well, are fairly certain that the art dealer is guilty when he has Murphy tossed through a plate glass window by a small troop of thugs. It is only a matter of time before Murphy gets the smarmy crook and we all know that immediately.

No, Murphy's chief adversaries are the men on the Beverly Hills Police. Though they are too polite to actually say so, they don't cotton too well to this smart-mouthed, street-wise cop from Detroit. Certainly, Axel Foley is not their type of policeman. His atrocious manners are bad enough, but his grubby appearance is just too much. This is Beverly Hills and social graces must be observed. They want only to keep this interloper out of trouble and out of everyone else's hair.

For his part, Murphy is impressed with their style, if not their effectiveness. He notes that in Beverly Hills the police cars are cleaner and nicer than his own apartment. The computerized police station looks like the NASA command center and the detectives dressed in immaculate three-piece suits look as though they had just stepped out of Gentleman's Quarterly. It is a far cry from the dirt and poverty in the back streets and alleyways of the Motor City.

IT IS OBVIOUS the battle is not between good guys and bad guys, but between street-smarts investigation and by-the-book standards of procedures, between polite inquiry and aggressive action. It's not hard to guess which side the film comes down on. Murphy outsmarts his well-dressed Beverly Hills counterparts at every turn. It is to the film's credit, though, that while Murphy fools the police, he never plays them for fools. This type of adventure could have easily reduced the Beverly Hills policemen to the level of Keystone Kops, or worse yet, Smokey and the Bandit. They could have just been easy foils for Murphy's outrageous shenanigans.

But the film lets Murphy and the police develop a mutual, though somewhat grudging, respect and comradeship. This works out nicely for Murphy, for it eliminates the appearance that he is grandstanding the film. There is no doubt whatsoever that he is the main character and the star of the movie, but his is not the grubby character and the film allows the rest of the cast to contribute memorable and empathetic performances.

The one standout in the supporting cast is Judge Reinhold (Fast Times at Ridgmont High) as Billy Rosewood, a rookie detective on the Beverly Hills force. His sweet naive and middle-class goofiness plays nicely against Murphy's irreverent sassiness. Rosewood is kind of dumb and innocent and one suspects that a movie could have been wrapped around his character. Reinhold almost steals the movie from Murphy, but not quite.

AS FOR MURPHY, never for a moment can one believe that he is an actual policeman. On the other hand, there is no difficulty at all accepting that he is an extremely gifted comic actor using every opportunity to exercise his prestigious talents. Whether he is pretending to be a bullying government agent or an effeminate gay with a social disease, he skillfully buffaloes his way into places where he doesn't belong and out of situations that are nothing but trouble.

His Axel Foley is full of jive andchutzpah, yet he is openly aggressive and defiantly confident. Murphy is something of a groundbreaker in this respect. There have been other black actors in the past who have been forced without being apologetic, but he is the first black comedian who is so pointedly anti-authoritarian in his humor and so dominating in character.

Unlike, say, Richard Pryor, who is usually cast as the underdog who bumbles his way to success, Murphy's character is the one who remains in control of all situations and succeeds by skill and not luck. His sarcasm carries a pointed message and his aggressiveness could be offensive, but his "just kidding" demeanor softens the blow. Like the Beverly Hills police in the movie, he wins the viewer over in spite of his irreverence, or maybe, because of it.

Jewelry and metalsmithing exhibit to be held

A holiday exhibition and sale of work of UI jewelry and metalsmithing students will be held this weekend at the home of Professor Chunggi Choo, head of metalsmithing at the UI. The public is invited to attend the sale on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at 2 Glenview Knoll, River Heights, Iowa City.

A large number of works in a variety of metals will be presented at the sale. Jewelry, flatware, hollowware and other decorative and utilitarian works will be available. Pieces offered for sale also function as works of art, suited for both use and display. Several designs from the show are pictured in the December of TWA Ambassador Magazine.

AMONG THE displayed pieces is John Horn's first prize flatware design, which won this year's National Student Sterling Design Competition and was exhibited in New York. Also on display will be several jewelry pieces by Sandra Vandermay. Vandermay is one of twelve artists invited from throughout the nation to exhibit jewelry at the "Wearable Art Show" at Ree Schonlau Gallery in Omaha, Neb.

Choo, an artist with works in the permanent collection of the Louvre in Paris, France, and the Museum of Modern Art and the Metropolitan Museum in New York, will also be offering one of her textile designs for sale. Proceeds from the sale of her piece will go toward establishing a metalsmithing scholarship fund.

The nationally recognized UI metalsmithing studio is equipped to allow students to work in traditional jewelry and metalsmithing techniques as well as with newly developed technologies. The studio included the largest copper electroform facilities on a university campus in the United States. The instruction at the facility is designed to prepare students for an academic career as well as preparing them to establish their own studio or to work for industry.

Percussion ensemble to perform Sunday

By Kate Van Orden
Staff Writer

IN VOXMAN HALL, at the heart of the music building at 6:30 p.m. this Sunday, the UI Percussion Ensemble will be making some modern sounds, performing almost a history of 20th-century American composition.

The earliest piece on the program is a John Cage-prepared piano work, "Second Construction." Hearing Cage's trademark live will be a treat in itself, but also, as one of his early works (from 1940), it will show his development in the Schoenberg camp, while highlighting the rhythmical element of composition in the "percussive orchestra" of his altered piano.

Another student of Henry Cowell and Arnold Schoenberg, Lou Harrison, will be represented with his Suite for Percussion (1942). This work explores the sounds and sonorities hidden in an array of such diverse percussive "instruments" as automobile brake drums, coils of of semis, a washtub and other metal instruments. The beauty of the suite is the very different nature of each of the three movements and the breadth of its invention.

IN A MORE contemporary vein, minimalist composer Terry Riley's ground-breaking "In C" will be performed, with five keyboard instruments and string quintet. This early minimalist work consists of 53 brief figures in each part, leaving up to each musician the number of times to repeat the figure before going on, where to place the downbeat in relation to "the pulse," and how long to rest. Tantric and meditative, the piece ends when every musician has finished, and it takes a good deal of wherewithal to pull it off. Though originally heralded (in 1960s lingo) as one of "cosmic unity and universal vibes," the mood of "In C" creates could just as well be labeled as one of synchronicity. It is not just a period piece.

Steven Reich (who hung out with Phillip Glass in the late 1960s) refines what Riley was doing earlier. His Music for Pieces of Wood (1973) also is on the program. Scored for four pairs of claves, it is a supreme minimalist statement with a more focused meditative quality than Riley achieves with his broader instrumentation.

Other composers featured are Daniel Levitin, Lon Washburn and the UI's Michael Geary. Those who enjoyed Phillip Glass' performance here a few years ago, or like his music, must hear the Reich and Riley pieces are in order to understand where he's coming from. And Cage fans cannot miss the live prepared piano.

Clapp features 'Scratch' series

The UI Center for New Music will present the first in a series of programs by the UI Experimental Music Studios at Saturday at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall.

The series is entitled "Scratch," and the first program is "Scratch One." Directed by Kenneth Gaburo, director of the Experimental Music Studios of the UI School of Music, "Scratch One" will include "Count-Down," a performance by the freshman-sophomore theory class; "Steel Worker's Blues," which utilizes tape, slides and text; "Collaboration One," performed by the Scratch Ensemble; "Moving In Shadows," for solo clarinet; and "T(Here)" for solo flute.

The public is invited to attend the program, which is free of charge.
