Restaurateurs claim fast food war has enough Iowa City combatants

In Iowa City, there are a number of fast food restaurants vying for customers. Among the popular chains are McDonald's, Burger King, and Subway. Although there are only a few restaurants, they all attract a large number of customers.

By Sue King

Recently, a number of new restaurants have opened in Iowa City, bringing the total number of fast food establishments to 10. This has caused a war of words among the local restaurateurs.

"There is a war going on in Iowa City," said Jerry Barlow, owner of Barlow's, a popular fast food restaurant.

"We've had an influx of new restaurants over the past year, and it's been tough," said Barlow. "But I'm not giving up. We have a steady stream of people in the last six months and that's what's important.

Carbide to make补偿

LAUDERDALE, N.C. - United Carbide Corp. said it will offer to pay up to $120 million in compensation to victims of a 1982 explosion at its chemical plant in Bhopal, India. The company's offer comes after a federal judge in New York last month ruled that the company was liable for damages caused by the explosion.

Compensation package

United Carbide said it will pay $10 million to a victims' fund and $110 million to a trust for medical and other expenses. The company also said it will provide ongoing medical care and support for the victims and their families.

United Carbide's offer follows a federal judge's ruling last month that the company was liable for damages caused by the explosion. The judge's ruling was based on evidence that the company knew about the dangers of its product but failed to take necessary precautions.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Authorities Monday said they convicted 11 labor leaders and a South African white-minority government official of treason and held them indefinitely without trial.

KwaZulu-Natal premier Raymond Gwala, charged the surprise release was "imprison a person indefinitely without trial," and that "the 11 leaders were jailed under detention warrants issued by the South Africa's white-minority government."

A spokesman said there were no similar detentions in South Africa before.

"The South African government itself now is just living a lie," Mr. Gwala said. "People know they have been convicted, and so they have to come up with something.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the release came the day South African President FW de Klerk met with the 17 leaders to explain the change.

The seven men and four women were all white and were released, so they had to come up with something.

"Because of the taboo thing against suicide and mental illness, people sometimes keep suicidal people in their care," Kauppi said. "If you know someone who might be suffering from depression and anti-social behavior, try to arrange for their own funeral, going away from the police or making direct suicidal gestures, people sometimes keep suicidal people in their care," Kauppi said. "If I think the person is suicidal, I wouldn't think we can put our finger on them," she said. "The night before the release we were told that someone was going to die."

"Even if they don't want to kill themselves, they think they are going to die," she said. "I don't think we can put our finger on them."

Welcome to the Vulture Palace

The Vulture Palace was once a beloved and respected landmark of the town. But over the past few weeks, a trial of equal star value has just ended. The 800 N. Van Buren building, which housed the Palace for many years, has now been condemned and is scheduled for demolition. The closing of the Palace marks the end of an era for the city and its residents.

Matched in heaven

While political columnists and media analysts have been focus on the upcoming election, the real story was happening over the past few weeks. A trial of equal star value has just ended. The 800 N. Van Buren building, which housed the Palace for many years, has now been condemned and is scheduled for demolition. The closing of the Palace marks the end of an era for the city and its residents.

I was there just last night. James - the man behind the curtain - was performing his usual role. He was absolutely fantastic. The audience was thrilled, and the show was a huge success.

Rick Stanton

Digressions

I read the New York Times today. It was filled with exciting stories, but the one that caught my eye was the story about the Palace. I was so moved by the article that I decided to write a letter to the editor.

I've been a fan of the Palace for many years. Every time I went there, I was amazed by the talent on stage and the atmosphere in the building. I'll never forget the first time I saw a show there. I was completely enchanted by the performance and fell in love with the place.

I'm concerned that the Palace will be destroyed and replaced with a nondescript building. The Palace is an important part of our history and culture, and I don't think it's right to let it be destroyed.

I urge all of you to write letters to the editor in support of keeping the Palace. Let's work together to save this treasured landmark.

Best regards,

Letter to the Editor

By Mike Condon Staff Writer

Her old teammates at Colorado Heights High School in Aurora called her "Fun." She was fearless, fearless turned out to be her most vivid memory when she walked in her senior year.

The Jokich (although she was older by two years) led the school to a first place finish in this season's game against Coach Vivian Stringer's squad in the Big Ten Conference Championship.

In addition, the conference formally sanctioned Coach Brenda Calhoun leads junior Bernette Stringer at the 20th anniversary of the conference's basketball league.

Blockbuster allows Mets to get Carter

By Bruce Dellinger Staff Writer

"Blockbuster" Johnny Estrada, a jack of all trades and master at none, has been traded by the New York Mets to the New York Yankees for outfielder Gary Carter.

This trade is not the first, and it will not be the last, change in the New York Mets organization.

"We have been talking for quite some time, and I think it's finally time to make a move," Mets general manager Frank Cashen said.

"It's a better day for the Mets," Cashen said.

"I'm very happy to welcome Johnny to our team," Mets manager Tom Seaver said.

"The Mets are a much better team today than they were yesterday," Cashen said.

"We have several options now, and I think it's time to take advantage of them," Seaver said.

Razzle Dazzle claims IM crown

By Dan White

CORAL GABLES and Miami—Four years ago, Razzle Dazzle was held off the only strong menacing surge of the top by Don Calvert.

Razzle Dazzle never tried in the game as they pounced it 1/2 beat in the first five minutes of the opening quarter.

Gary LaVerve, who is a member of the Hesston High staff, hit the team's first shot on a three-pointer from Loras during the second half, but Razzle Dazzle never hit the game as the Flyers put to bed the game and continued their quickness advantage over Ohio State.

"TREND 1 was our mastercard that was the difference," Bruggeman said. "We don't want to be surprised over 5,000, we just used our hustle, just used our hustle. We used our hustle."

Bruggeman, an All-American guard, scored 18 points and held off the only strong menacing surge of the top by Don Calvert.
