International authors have more at stake than art

By Andrew Lersten
Staff Writer

Some writers in the UI International Writing Program are walking a tightrope between artistic freedom and political reprisals in their native countries, according to program officials. Every year the International Writing Program invites about 40 writers from Asia, Africa, Latin America and Europe to participate in a three-and-a-half month writing workshop in Iowa City. The program ended last week and most participants have returned to their countries.

"Some were in trouble before they came, and some are in trouble when they get back," said Hualing Nieh

Engle, the program's director. "Their countries are very sensitive to political writing. Writers are always in trouble in some parts of the world."

ENGLE, A WRITER from Taiwan, revealed this month that she has received a threatening letter regarding her latest novel which she says is non-political in nature.

The International Writing Program strives to be non-political, said Program Assistant Walter Knupfer. However, "It is impossible to be entirely non-political. Writers are seen as a threat to politicians, because words are powerful."

Although the percentage of the participants in serious danger is "very small," according to Knupfer. "Many of them face almost certain retaliation or other forms of reproach when they go back."

"Some of them are afraid to go home," Knupfer said. "Some of them are never heard of again when they leave here."

Every year the program has a "couple" of writers who have been in prison because of their writing, said Knupfer. This year is no exception.

BO YANG, AN ESSAYIST, fiction writer and poet from Taiwan, spent 10 years in prison in his country for his works. He was released in 1977.

James Matthews, the first black South African to participate in the program since its inception in 1967, has sparked the most concern among the staff this year.

Matthews, a fiction writer, journalist and "avowed revolutionary poet," could be "in a very difficult situation" now that he has returned to South Africa, said Engle.

Matthews could be in danger because of his outspoken views on the social struggles in his country, said Engle. "He's a black writer involved with the struggles for the blacks," she said. "There's a strong social awareness in his writings."

"Matthews is not afraid to speak out and he's not afraid of the consequences," said Knupfer. "He doesn't hold any punches. I'm concerned about his safety, but James doesn't seem to be — he's a brave man."

SOME GOVERNMENTS will not let the writers leave the country to participate in the International Writing Program. Listed on the 1984 roster of writers is Pavel Srut, a poet, fiction writer and translator from Czechoslovakia. He never made it to Iowa City.

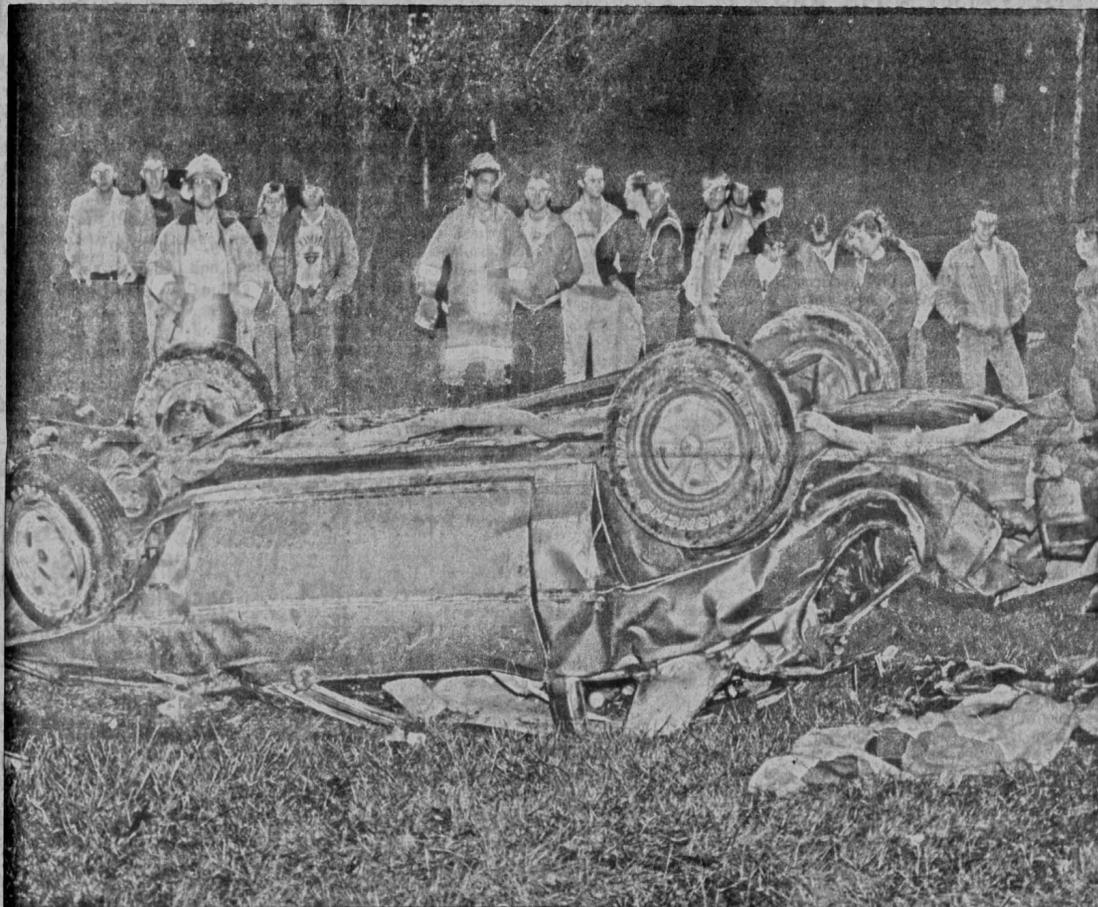

"For the last two years, he (Srut) has been denied an exit permit," said Knupfer. The program has been trying to get a Soviet writer to participate for years, but hasn't been successful, he added.

Occasionally, participants will discover they have lost their jobs when they return to their countries, Knupfer said. This happened this year, he said, but could not release the participant's name.

Correspondence is often difficult with the participants once they have returned to their countries, according to Knupfer. There is a "constant problem" of unanswered letters, he said. "We assume something happened to them. The stuff can be edited, censored or not delivered," he added.

The writers find Iowa City a haven from political pressures and a good place to write, said Engle. "When they are here, they feel so free," she said. "They can write without any worries, economical or political. They find Iowa City a paradise."

Over and out

Firefighters and bystanders survey the result of an accident early Sunday morning on the 1600 block of North Dubuque Street, near Mayflower Residence Hall. The driver and passenger of the car were transported to Mercy Hospital but were not seriously hurt. The driver was treated and released and the passenger was released after examination. The driver was charged with reckless driving, possession of alcohol under the legal age and failure to maintain control of the vehicle.

Attorney claims immunity in Hall lawsuit

By Tamara Rood
Staff Writer

Carl Goetz, former Johnson County attorney who is named in James Wendell Hall's $3 million lawsuit, filed a motion Dec. 12 in Johnson County District Court to dismiss the suit as it applies to himself.

Hall was convicted of second-degree murder in 1974, after UI nursing student Sarah Ottens was found strangled and sexually mutilated in a fourth floor room in Rienow Residence Hall March 13, 1973. He spent more than six years in prison before his conviction was overturned in 1983.

The district court ruled in November 1983 that Hall did not receive a fair trial because prosecutors failed to correct false testimony and withheld material and evidence that would have benefited Hall's defense.

HALL IS SUING the prosecutors and chief investigators in his case, claiming his right to a fair trial was violated.

Goetz is the second defendant named in the suit to file a motion to dismiss. An attorney representing Johnson County filed a similar motion on Dec. 6, claiming the county is "absolutely immune" from liability because of the statute of limitations in Chapter 613 of the Iowa Code.

Goetz also cites Chapter 613 in his motion, which states the statute of limitations for claiming damages against a municipality or its employees is six months. Hall filed suit 10 years after he was convicted and nearly a year after the conviction was overturned.

During the 1974 grand jury investigation into Otten's murder, Goetz was the Johnson County attorney. Two other defendants, Garry Woodward and John Jutte, are considered to have been state rather than county employees. Woodward was assistant attorney general and Jutte a special agent of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation during the investigation.

GOETZ ALSO CLAIMS in his motion to dismiss that he is not liable since he was "at all times acting as the county attorney in the prosecution" of Hall's case, and Hall has not charged that any of Goetz's actions were done in bad faith.

In addition, the motion states Hall has failed to state specifically how his constitutional rights were violated.

Hall "failed to plead that any of (Goetz's) actions were done with actual malice," the motion states.

In other developments in Hall's case:

• Hall filed a resistance Dec. 13 to Johnson County's motion to dismiss the suit as it applies to the county.

• The district court set a hearing for Jan. 16 for pending motions regarding the suit.

• On Dec. 14, the court granted Jutte and Woodward additional time in which to move or plead. They now have until Jan. 9 in which to do so.

Women taking charge of fiduciary responsibilities

This is the first in a five-part series featuring investors and investments.

By Greg Philby
Staff Writer

Women are taking charge of their finances more than in the past, local investment specialists report.

"Single women are starting to realize that they need to get on top of their financial situation," said Lois James, financial planner at Investment Management & Research Inc., 150 E. Court St. "Some knight on a white horse isn't going to come along at age 25 and whisk them off."

James said women are "taking control" of their financial investments today more than in the past, with an attitude of "I'm not going to sit back and have it done to me."

Single women are also the major source of individual investment capital. Richard Stevenson, UI finance professor and head of the finance department, said women "do end up purchasing most of the money invested because men die first. The New York Stock Exchange comes in with figures showing that over half" of individual investments are owned by elderly women.

"WIDOWED WOMEN have most of the wealth of the nation, as far as individual holdings," added Ken Kinsey, associate vice president and investment officer at Dain Bosworth Inc., 116 S. Dubuque St.

"Women are more knowledgeable and venturesome investors today, purchasing a greater variety of financial products than they did five years ago," said Lisa Swaiman, who released the results of a nationwide study by the Investment Company Institute in Washington, D.C. last month.

"And by a large majority, they prefer to make their own financial decisions," Swaiman said.

"It's a little more so with women than with men. I don't know what the reason is" why women make more independent investments, James said.

Ninety percent of single women reported being primarily responsible for managing their own finances and only seven percent reported relying on another person, according to the national survey.

ONE REASON for the increase in women taking the initiative in investing is "there are more women now that are making their own way in income and feel that this is their own capital," Kinsey said.

Some professionals said women generally invest differently than men.

"Most ladies I have as clients are very astute," Kinsey said. "They probably want to dig much deeper than the average male does. A lot of ladies look at (the investment) from a product standpoint. Males probably take a more general approach as far as how is this industry group as a whole doing."

However, Stevenson said there is not a sex difference in the investing habits of people.

"Investments don't know who owns

Police halt Solidarity march

GDANSK, Poland — Riot police used a water cannon and tear gas Sunday to disperse 5,000 marchers being led by Solidarity founder Lech Walesa to lay a wreath at a monument to more than 50 Poles killed in clashes with police over food price hikes in 1970.

The marchers chanted "Gestapo, gestapo, killers, killers" and "There is no freedom without Solidarity." Walesa was shoved by a policeman, but was not hurt. With a look of disgust, he threw the wreath at the feet of a number of officers, who trampled and kicked it.

Scientists convert poison gas

BHOPAL, India — Scientists temporarily reopened the Union Carbide plant Sunday and routinely converted into pesticide more than one-fifth of the remaining poison gas that leaked two weeks ago and killed more than 2,500 people in history's worst chemical disaster.

Hundreds of thousands of people began fleeing the city of 800,000 Thursday because of fears of another leak from the plant during the operation to use up the remaining stocks of the chemical.

Opposition wins Belize vote

BELIZE CITY, Belize — Opposition leader Manuel Esquivel scored a surprise landslide victory in national elections, ending 30 years of rule by Prime Minister George Price, the government announced Saturday.

Esquivel's center-right United Democratic Party took 21 of the 28 seats in Parliament to win the first elections since the country, wedged between Mexico and Guatemala on the Caribbean, gained independence from Britain in 1981, official results showed.

POW chances 'very remote'

HONOLULU — A U.S. congressional delegation arrived Sunday from a six-day visit to Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos warning of an increased Soviet presence and dismissing the possibility of American prisoners still held from the Vietnam war as "very remote."

"The possibility of Americans being held against their will in any of these countries is very remote," said Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., "particularly in Kampuchea (Cambodia), where the sick mentality of (leader) Pol Pot destroyed some 3 million people from 1975 to 1978."

Secret army group exposed

DETROIT — A secret U.S. Army helicopter unit ventured repeatedly into hostile territory in Central America in 1982 and 1983 to aid rebels, relatives of the soldiers said in interviews published Sunday. One father said his son flew missions in Nicaragua.

Members of the 160th Task Force of the 101st Airborne Division stationed in Ft. Campbell, Ky., wore civilian clothes during the secret missions and were told to expect no official acknowledgement or intervention if captured, the relatives told the Detroit Free Press.

Astronomers find new planet

LOS ANGELES — Astronomy researchers who last week announced the discovery of a planet outside our solar system have identified what may be another planet orbiting a star even closer to Earth, the Daily News of Los Angeles reported Sunday.

Donald McCarthy Jr., a University of Arizona astronomer, told the paper that the second unconfirmed object is orbiting a "red dwarf" star less than 20 light years from our own solar system. A light year is about 5.8 trillion miles.

Woman sexually assaulted in auto

By Greg Miller
Staff Writer

An Iowa City woman was forced into a vehicle at gunpoint by a man, driven to an undetermined location and sexually abused Dec. 9, according to an Iowa City police report.

The man then brought her back near the point where he had forced her into his vehicle and left her.

The incident happened at approximately 11 p.m. while she was walking on First Avenue near Southeast Junior High.

The man is described as 25 to 35 years old, with a medium build and wearing a nylon stocking over his face. The vehicle is described as a white four-door with bucket seats.

The incident was reported to the Iowa City Police Detective Bureau Friday and remains under investigation.

During a search Friday at the Johnson County Jail, police discovered a plastic bag allegedly containing marijuana in Klinefelter's jacket pocket, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the possession charge has been set for Dec. 27. Klinefelter was released on his own recognizance.

Ronald Norman Robinson, 22, of Knoxville, Iowa, pleaded guilty Friday in Johnson County Magistrate Court to a charge of criminal trespass. He was fined $5 plus court costs.

On Sept. 8, Robinson was "kicked out the back door" of The Fieldhouse bar, 111 E. College St., and repeatedly attempted to re-enter the bar, court records state.

He was also charged with public intoxication following the incident, and pleaded guilty to the charge Nov. 26, court records state.

Metro briefs

Information requested on accident vehicle

Iowa City police are asking for citizen help in locating the driver of a gray 1980 Chevrolet Z28 that was involved in an accident at 6:25 p.m. on Dec. 12.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Highway 6 and Rocky Shore Drive.

The male driver of the vehicle fled the scene and has not yet come forward with any information. Due to the heavy traffic at that intersection, Iowa City Police suspect someone going to the Iowa basketball game at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena may have seen this man run away.

Anyone with information is asked to call Officer Frank Cummings at the Iowa City Police Department between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. at 356-5275.

UI recreation facilities reduce hours for break

UI athletic facilities will close their doors or reduce their hours at times during the semester break.

All UI recreation facilities will be closed Christmas and New Year's days. The Field House will be open daily from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., except on Dec. 24 when it will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Dec. 31 when it will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Field House swimming pool will be open Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday the pool will be open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. On Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 the pool will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. only.

The Recreational Building will be open

Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. On Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 the facility will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Talent contest searches for top female musicians

Officials of American Beauty Search in Nashville, Tenn., have announced the creation of a nationwide talent and beauty competition entitled "The All-American Music Pageant."

The pageant will feature representatives from all 50 states in a national television show to be broadcast April 15, 1985.

The pageant will operate for the purpose of discovering America's most musically talented young women. It will give the winner the opportunity for a year of intense career development by supplying her with an agent, a publicist and recording and television contracts.

In making the announcement, National Contestant Coordinator Elise Neal Davis and Deann Frank, State Director for Iowa, said the competition will begin locally through the nation's radio stations.

Eligible contestants include single women between the ages of 18 and 28 as of April 15, 1985. The women must have never had a child, and have never been married.

Each contestant must submit a completed application, a photograph and an audio or video tape of her talent to her local radio station no later than Dec. 31. In addition to the application, she must send a check for the $25 entry fee, made payable to American Beauty Search.

Once each radio station has selected its entry, that contestant will become a finalist in the state pageant. She will be judged in four categories: talent, photogenic beauty, swimsuit and poise and personality.

The state winners will then travel to Nashville to be presented in a television special. The judges will include superstars of the music and entertainment industry.

Interested young women needing applications or more information should contact their local radio stations. They may also write to American Beauty Search, P.O. Box 41060, Nashville, Tenn., 37204.

Public Library to seek funds for more staff

The Iowa City Public Library needs help. Due to increased use of library facilities, the "staff has been stretched to the limit," Carolyn Cavitt told the Iowa City Council at a meeting last week between the council and chairpersons of the city's boards and commissions.

Cavitt, president of the city's Board of Library Trustees, said the library will "request additional staff" in its budget proposal to the city. She said the library has been "filling the gaps with temporary help and volunteers."

During 1984, volunteers at the library have chalked up 700 hours of work in an effort to handle increased usage of the library.

Cavitt noted the public library has experienced increased cooperation with the UI Main Library. She said meetings between personnel of the two libraries and brochures distributed to UI students have helped to "communicate the role of the (public) library to the UI students."

Postscripts policy

Postscripts must be submitted to the Daily Iowan by 3 p.m. the day prior to publication. Notices for Monday's paper must be submitted by 3 p.m. Friday. Notices may be sent through the mail, but be sure to mail early. The announcements will be published the day of the events. All submissions must be clearly printed on a postscript blank (which appear on the classified ads page) or typewritten and triple-spaced on a full sheet of paper. Each announcement must be on a separate piece of paper.

Announcements will not be accepted over the telephone. All submissions must include the name and phone number, which will not be published, of a contact person, in case there are any questions.

Events that are not eligible

Hawkeye 1983 Yearbook delivery postponed until January 1985

By Karen Burns
Staff Writer

The 1983-84 Hawkeye Yearbooks, which were scheduled to arrive in August, won't be ready until the week after semester break, Editor Charlie Souhrada said.

This delay has created some problems for the current staff, which has been fielding telephone calls about the late yearbooks and has had made promotion of the 1984-85 book more difficult.

Students who ordered the 1983-84 books can pick them up at the Union Box Office after Jan. 25. The books will be available there for a week and can then be picked up at the yearbook office.

Souhrada said seniors who are graduating in December can get the books mailed to them if they contact the yearbook office.

He said delay occurred because last year's editor Matt Malek took some unfinished pages to Lexington, Ky., after he graduated.

"He spent a lot of time getting pictures for the book from The Daily Iowan and the UI Office of Public Information," Souhrada said.

"It was a problem of distance, a lack of material and at the same time, he (Malek) was looking for a job," Souhrada said. Malek could not be reached for comment.

IN ADDITION, more problems occurred when some of the book's pages were marked incorrectly. When it got to the printer, 40 pages were not acceptable and had to be redone, according to Souhrada.

To avoid the delays that hindered last year's book, Souhrada said some changes have been made in the production of this year's yearbook.

"We're stepping up production, so that deadlines are earlier. We want to get 50 pages a month to the printer.

"Last year there was not a deadline until January," Souhrada said, but this year's staff had a 102-page deadline Tuesday.

The sports editor is a new position this year, in an effort to take some pressure off the copy editor, who previously put together the sports section. This should also help get the book out on time, Souhrada said.

Yearbook Adviser Tom Fesenmeyer said delays seems to be "standard — but not this long."

Fesenmeyer, who has been the Hawkeye Yearbook adviser for two years, said the 1982-83 book arrived about a month late.

ASSISTANT EDITOR Jeff Kindig said it is "almost impossible to market this year's book," because the other books have not arrived.

"It's kind of a dilemma — we can't really promote the '85 books until the '84 books get here," he said.

But sales seem to be about normal anyway, Kindig said, as 2,000 yearbooks have been ordered this semester and 3,500 are usually sold in a year.

Of the 3,200 people who ordered the 1983-84 yearbooks, some 200 people have called the office this semester to check on the delay, he said.

Kindig said these people were informed that the books were supposed to arrive in October, then the deadline was moved to November and now it will be January.

"If they called in October, they probably called back in November," Kindig said.

AFSCME rejects state wage freeze

By Charlene Lee
Staff Writer

The state is offering a two-year wage freeze to Iowa workers represented by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees in response to union requests for a $1 per hour pay increase for the first year of its new contract and a $1.50 per hour wage increase in the second year.

The state, which employs about 20,000 AFSCME members under the classifications of clerical, blue collar, technical, security and professional and fiscal workers, is also planning to refuse to increase the workers' fringe benefits. These benefits include increased dental insurance, optical insurance, coverage for the purchase of prescription drugs and family health benefits.

State Director of Employment Relations Bill Nielsen said the state cannot afford to give AFSCME the demands it requested two weeks ago, especially since the state must cut approximately $20 million in spending in order to balance the budget.

"I DON'T THINK we're in the position to go to the taxpayers and ask for more taxes to increase employee wages," he said.

Although the employees' current dental program is "admittedly" minimal, Nielsen added the increases in fringe benefits AFSCME is requesting would cost the state $32 million over the next two years.

Don McKee, president of AFSCME Council 61, said he is not satisfied with the state's counterproposal. "Our position is that it is totally unacceptable," he said.

McKee said AFSCME does not plan to give up on its request for increased fringe benefits or higher wages. "At this point and time, we're not considering giving up anything to get a wage increase," he said, stressing that fringe benefits are important to employee morale.

He charged Nielsen's referral to the state's lack of resources as a "bargaining technique," noting the state has claimed it was "broke" since 1977 and still managed to give AFSCME wage increases every year except 1983.

The state and AFSCME will resume negotiations Dec. 27, which will last two days. If the two sides do not reach an agreement following those two days, McKee said a mediator will be brought in after the first of the year.

UI winter graduation to be held Saturday at Carver-Hawkeye

The UI will hold winter commencement ceremonies at 10 a.m., Dec. 22, at the Carver-Hawkeye Arena, where 1,800 people are expected to receive degrees.

UI President James O. Freedman will deliver the traditional charge to graduates and confer degrees. Mary Lindeen of Swedesburg, Iowa, who will receive a bachelor of arts degree in education from the UI College of Liberal Arts, will speak on behalf of the graduates.

This commencement will bring the total number of degrees granted by the UI to 183,000.

Parking space for those attending commencement will be available in the lots south and west of the Arena and in the two Dental Science Building lots. Additional parking will be available near Kinnick Stadium.

Sweaters are 'the gift' for men ...

By Sue Stoga
Staff Writer

It's often said that shopping for a woman is an impossible task, but shopping for that man on your Christmas list can be just as difficult.

After all, how many men do you know that drop hints or "ooh and ah" over sweaters in Michael J's? And what do you get for a friend who has more knickknacks, books and clothes than you do? A microwave cookbook?

Never fear, Iowa City menswear merchants carry several items guaranteed to make the man on your shopping list go "ho ho ho."

According to Michael J's manager Kellee Greenlee, sweaters are "the gift" for men this holiday season.

"I'd like to see a man in one of the sweaters we have in stock," Greenlee said. "Or a nice shirt and tie combination. You can't go wrong."

Steve Jermier, a salesman with AJ August in Sycamore Mall, agreed with Greenlee.

"DEPENDING ON the age group, I'd say I'd chose a sweater and shirt outfit for a college-age man and something on a bigger ticket such as a suit or jacket" for someone older, he said.

Although Jermier said choosing a specific item would be "tough to narrow down," he said sweaters are a good selection for students purchasing a gift on a limited budget.

"Sweaters run anywhere from $24 to $60 and we have a variety of colors, fabrics and styles," he said.

Salesman Dave Lehnertz of Ewers Men's Store, 28 S. Clinton St., also said sweaters have been a popular gift item this season.

"We have a lot of wool and cotton sweaters in a variety of colors that have sold for the holidays," Lehnertz said.

Lehnertz said a popular item at the store — and his personal favorite — are Phane sweaters.

"The sweaters are different than what I've been seeing," he said. "I just like the designs and patterns on them plus they're cotton which is a little different."

John McKenna, manager for Bremers Men's Store, 120 E. Washington St., said although sweaters have been selling well, the store has also been doing "pretty well" with outerwear.

"PEOPLE ARE purchasing items with more flair than you've seen in the past," he said. "They are buying basics and things a little more colorful."

McKenna estimates women have accounted for "close to 80 percent" of the store's sales in the past few weeks.

"There is such a selection that women can't decide what to buy," he said. He named camel hair sportcoats, argyle sweaters, rugby shirts and "anything cashmere" as gift possibilities.

If clothing such as sweaters or sportcoats don't appeal to the man on your list, Stephens men's store owner and manager Tom Summy said his store has a selection of gifts still within the fashion arena.

"We have some Burberry cashmere plaid scarves that are very unusual," he said. "The run about $85 and they are extremely chic."

Summy also suggested bow ties, suspenders, tartan plaid scarves and a complete outfit including a shirt, sweater, pants and tie as gift possibilities.

"Paco Rabanne cologne has also been selling well this year," he added.

Although the merchants differed on average prices for holiday gifts, they agreed consumers are generally spending more this year.

"People want something different so they are willing to spend a little more," McKenna said.

"I've seen customers spending anywhere from $20 to $85 on a certain item," Jermier said.

"They (customers) are spending more because clothes are something that last longer than a night out or something," Lehnertz said.

... and size up as woman's present

By Sue Stoga

In the quest for the perfect holiday gift for a female friend, relative or girlfriend, many questions go unanswered.

Is she a 10 or 12, what color would look good on her, what style does she like? A shopper can go insane making such a decision, but the most important decision is what to buy.

Several Iowa City merchants recommend purchasing fashion items for holiday gift giving.

"People like to buy clothes for someone because ... they know you feel special when you wear something you look good in," said Marc Henry saleswoman Anne Humes.

HUMES SAID sweaters have been popular gifts for women this holiday season.

"We have sold a lot of sweaters, they're something everyone likes to get," she said. Other Iowa City merchants agree that sweaters are a big seller this year.

"We have sold a lot of novelty sweaters such as Boston Traders or the big bulky sweaters," said Michael J's manager Kelly Greenlee. Greenlee said novelty sweaters have a scene or pattern on the garment and have been extremely popular throughout the year.

Lynne Frantz, a saleswoman at Dean's women's store, 26 S. Clinton St., said sweaters are one of the most popular gift items this year.

"We've carried a lot of cotton sweaters in a new Cambridge line," Frantz said. "The Cambridge line sweat material has been popular as opposed to the darker colors and wools we saw last year."

"The shaker sweaters — the looser, bigger sweaters — have been selling like hot cakes," said Carol Pearce, an assistant manager at Paul Harris women's store in the Old Capitol Center. "People are also looking for something a little fancier for the holidays."

All the merchants commented that customers are spending more money for better quality women's clothes as opposed to last year.

"We've had some quality items that we've seen people spend more for," Pearce said. "I've seen on an average about $80 to $100 (be spent) for gifts."

"I've seen men coming in and buy an outfit for their girlfriend or wife and they are spending more than I've ever seen before," Humes said.

"Even students are spending more," Frantz said. "They're looking for more quality."

If sweaters, blouses, pants or a suit doesn't seem right for the woman you're shopping for, Linda Elliot of Prange's Intimates in the Old Capitol Center, offers an alternative.

"PRETTY THINGS like teddies, tap pants and camisoles have all sold well this season," Elliot said. "We offer something a little different than sweaters and pants."

Although Elliot could not name a specific style or item that has sold particularly well, she said black is "definitely" a popular color this holiday season.

Human sexuality courses address many sides of social relationships

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

A far cry from reading, writing, and arithmetic, courses dealing with the real basics of life — love, sex and relationships — have recently become very popular with college students.

"Everyone, by their admission, is in need of learning more about human sexuality," said Howard Ruppel, UI adjunct associate professor in the Department of Social Work. "Everyone can benefit from sitting back and learning about these things."

Ruppel, who has taught the UI's "Human Sexuality" course on campus since 1977 and off campus in 1976, said he's "never really surprised at what students who take my course do or don't know about sex... If they don't know something, fine, I'll tell them. If they do know, then that's a pleasant surprise for me."

"Human Sexuality," "Group Leadership in Human Sexuality," "Marriage and Family Interaction," "Family and Sex Roles," "The American Family" and "Advanced Seminar in Human Sexuality" are among courses dealing with human relationships available to UI students.

APPROXIMATELY 460 UI students are currently enrolled in the "Human Sexuality" course — 230 through an on-campus section taught by Carl Davis, and 230 through two Saturday and evening sections taught by Ruppel.

Karlene Kerfoot, who started the "Human Sexuality" class at the UI in 1972, said getting approval for the course

This is the first of three articles focusing on relationships and sexuality at the UI.

"wasn't as difficult as you might think."

"We had some fears because there was an element in the state at that time that opposed the teaching of sex education in school," Kerfoot said. "We thought someone from that movement might hear about the class and give us some problems, but it never happened."

Ruppel said he believes a lot of UI students take his course when they are involved in intimate relationships.

"I SEE A LOT of boyfriends or girlfriends coming to class with their partners," Ruppel added. "People do come into the class to pick up tips or get advice about their sexuality. Certainly we'd rather have students take the course than end up with relationship problems or having to go to a sex therapist down the road."

Ruppel said the UI is "unique" in that it offers human sexuality courses through the social work, counselor education, nursing, and home economics departments. Many colleges offer courses dealing with sexuality through their biology or physical education departments. Courses studying the family and relationships are offered through home economics, sociology, social work and American studies.

"One of the interesting things about Iowa's human sexuality program is that it's continued, and at the same time other colleges are cutting the same program because of funding," he said.

Leslie Oehlerts, a UI senior who has taken several courses dealing with love, sex, and marriage, said she believes it's a credit to the UI administration and students that these classes have been maintained.

"STUDENTS HERE have shown a real desire for the classes," Oehlerts said. "When there's a 200-person waiting list for a class, that's a pretty good indication it's a good class. It would be hard for the university to cut a class that so many students want to take."

Ruppel said he teaches his "Human Sexuality" course using both lecture and small group discussions facilitated by his former students.

"I describe the facilitators as 'brave and gutsy,'" he said. "The discussions are straightforward. They're a time for students to share ideas and crystallize values. They're certainly not held for the purpose of counseling."

Lorraine Dorfman, UI associate professor of home economics, said her department offers courses dealing with sexuality and relationships because "home economics deals with issues affecting the quality of family living."

"Certainly relationships with other family members and partners affect the quality of family life to a great extent," Dorfman said.

She added, "These are certainly not 'how-to' courses. We can't teach that because it would be an obvious value judgement."

Expected growth of South America makes value of Portuguese greater

By Laura Gehlin
Special to The Daily Iowan

Professor Irene Wherritt and Assistant Professor Maria Duarte.

James O. Freedman was chairman, wrote in its final report. "The study of foreign languages should be regarded as an important part of... education."

One course of study at the UI gets so little recognition that it might be the best-kept secret on campus. Very few students even know about it, and even fewer seem interested.

The course is Portuguese, a language recognized as vital by the federal government and the seventh most widely spoken language in the world.

But tell people at the UI you're studying Portuguese and you'll probably get a chuckle, a puzzled look or downright criticism.

"All of my friends make the biggest joke out of (studying Portuguese)," Neil Frank, a senior computer science major from Cedar Rapids, said. "It's just not taken seriously simply because it's not as widely spoken as Spanish or French."

Actually, more people speak Portuguese than French, German, Italian or Japanese. Today, 85 percent of native Portuguese speakers live in Brazil, South America's largest country both geographically and economically.

CONGRESS, in the National Defense Education Act of 1958, declared Portuguese to be one of six languages crucial for Americans to learn. One estimate is that by the year 2000 Portuguese will be the third most widely-spoken language in the world.

But it remains little-known on campus. "Not many people know about Portuguese or Portuguese-speaking countries," Kash Griffith, a UI senior from Glen Ellyn, Ill., said. "Many people are shocked that I'm taking Portuguese, and many don't even know that Portuguese is offered here," he said.

Portuguese is offered at the UI through the Department of Spanish and Portuguese in Schaeffer Hall. The program offers literature and culture classes in addition to the basic language and grammar instruction. Most of the instruction is done by the program's two faculty members, Associate

AMONG THE ADVANTAGES of studying Portuguese cited by the department are small classes and close contact with the instructors. The ratio of students to instructors in the Portuguese program is 33-to-1, compared with 152-to-1 in the Spanish Department.

The study of foreign languages nationwide is not very popular. Senator-elect Paul Simon of Illinois wrote in his book The Tongue-Tied American, "of the 11 million United States students seeking graduate or undergraduate degrees, fewer than one percent are studying languages used by three-fourths of the world's population."

The need for more international education is seen by many government and business leaders as vital. Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad wrote in 1983 that "in today's interdependent world, it is more important than ever for Americans to be able to communicate with other peoples and understand other cultures."

Portuguese is especially hard-hit with lack of interest. Compared with the 82 Spanish majors at the UI, departmental records show just two declared Portuguese majors. At least three other students, however, indicated in a recent survey that they are fulfilling the requirements for the major, although they have not yet declared their intent to do so. Several others have indicated interest in either a major or minor in Portuguese.

STEVEN WILLIAMS, a freshman from Wheaton, Ill., said people "put me down for taking what they consider a useless language." He says, however, that he is "really, really happy" he is taking Portuguese and that he is giving serious consideration to a Portuguese minor.

The 1983 Iowa Governor's Task Force on Foreign Language Studies and International Education, of which UI President

Yet the feeling that languages, Portuguese in particular, have limited usefulness is common among UI students. "People assume I'll teach," Terri Grassi, a Spanish and Portuguese double major, said. "I don't want to teach."

While Grassi may not want to use her language skills to teach, other students say they have an interest in teaching either Portuguese or "ESL" — English as a second language. Other applications include international business, translations, government or diplomatic work, foreign relations, international law or world travel.

"I THINK IF you wanted to use your Portuguese, if you're very ambitious, you could just go right out and find a job using your Portuguese," Wherritt said. "But you have to be creative in any field now," she said. "There's no major that's worthless and no major that... would be completely useful."

Wherritt said getting use out of Portuguese depends on "your own ambition and your ability to go out and seek what you want to do."

At least one UI student is aware of the marketability of Portuguese. Brad Woody, a senior computer science major taking his first semester of Portuguese, said, "A little more emphasis on Portuguese as a second language rather than Spanish or French makes good business sense. Much of our trade is becoming directed away from Europe and toward South America," where "Brazil is the most progressive, technologically."

Wherritt would probably agree with that statement. "There will be a constant need for Portuguese, I think," she said. Duarte said, "Something that's quite interesting is that the law school is encouraging pre-law students to take Portuguese for their language requirement. Portuguese truly is an international language."

Artificial trees grow in popularity

By Greg Philby
Staff Writer

Artificial tree sales turned over a new leaf this year as area salespeople reported significantly higher sales over last year, while live tree sales have remained steady.

Kevin Gade, landscape designer for Earl May Nursery and Garden Center, 1901 Lower Muscatine Road, said the center carries several hundred live trees and 50 to 60 artificial ones.

"We pretty much sell off all of the Christmas trees," he said. Although they sell "a lot more of the real trees" because more are available at the store, Gade said "artificial tree sales are up quite substantially."

Tom Parsons, manager of Flower City in Davenport, Iowa, said, "We've sold an average of 30 percent more artificial trees this year than we ever have in the past" by this time of year. Flower City does not sell live trees, but has sold artificial trees for the past seven years.

MARK PEDLER, patio department clerk in K-Mart Discount Store 4315, 901 Hollywood Blvd., said the store carries artificial trees and small, potted live trees. "Most people that come in here are looking for the artificial tree," he said.

"We have a pretty good feel of how many trees we are going to go through," Gade said. "This year seems like it will be a pretty good year for tree sales and artificial trees in particular. It's better than the last couple of years."

Gade said "a few years ago, (live tree outlets) kind of had an excess of live trees left after the season, and they actually sank them in the Coralville Reservoir and used them for fish breeding."

"Of course, it all depends on supply and demand," said Glen Drew, manager of Eicher Greenhouse Flower Shop & Garden Center Inc., 410 Kirkwood Ave. "In the last couple of years, there has been a shortage (of live trees), and that may continue from what the growers say, for another year or so."

Drew said Eicher Florists, which does not sell artificial trees, is "staying about the same in live tree sales."

ONE REASON artificial tree sales are increasing may be that live trees are not allowed to be set up in public areas because they are a fire hazard.

Lt. Lavern Stahmer of the Iowa City Fire Department said artificial trees are not regulated, but for the live trees "the basic restriction is in commercial places, business places, fraternities and sororities."

Stahmer added, "The only thing we recognize is the flock tree," which is a live tree specially treated with fire retardant.

Untreated live trees "could go up just like a gasoline-soaked rag," Stahmer said. "One big blaze."

Live trees become more dangerous the longer they are set up because they dry out, Stahmer said. Large lightbulbs, poor wires, candles or even cigarettes could start them on fire.

Parsons said artificial trees are popular because manufacturers "are making them look very natural."

PARSONS ADDED, "A lot of people say they'd never have a fake tree, and I say, 'Why would you want to kill a tree just to hang ornaments on it and then throw it out?'"

Drew said, "Some people may say that, but these trees are being grown specifically for this type of harvest. It is just like any other crop."

Gade said, "The majority of people realize these are grown on regular farms, just like corn fields or whatever."

Parsons remarked that artificial trees "leave needles on the floor." He said with live trees "sometimes you walk on the floor in January, or even in March, and you get needles stuck in your toe."

Local live tree sales have not been increasing as much as artificial tree sales, but live sales have remained steady.

Gade said some people prefer live trees "because of the fragrance and (the trees) are old-fashioned."

"I think it's just a psychological thing," Drew said. "It's symbolic of life. The evergreen. And that fits in with the religious spirit and the feeling of the time."

Soviet sub breakthrough evidenced

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — University of Alaska-Fairbanks researchers mapping ice movement in the Arctic have obtained photographic evidence that a technical magazine says indicates the Soviet Union has gained the ability to bore through the ice with missile-firing submarines.

Dr. Juan Roederer, director of the university's Geophysical Institute, headed the research group that obtained the photographs, taken last March 28 in an area slightly northwest of Wrangel Island in the Soviet Arctic.

Dr. Roederer said the photographs, taken by a civilian satellite, show what appears to be broken ice and indications of up to three large jet aircraft circling the area.

Aviation Week and Space Technology Magazine officials believe the experiment is evidence the Soviet Union has pioneered the ability to bore through the ice with submarines that could then fire missiles.

IF THE SOVIET UNION has gained the ability to break the Arctic ice with submarines, officials said, it means missiles could be launched from submarines operating under the ice pack, a technology the United States is not believed to have.

While detection of submarines is a technology that is always advancing, the most difficult area of detection is under the ice pack where they are virtually invisible, the article said, adding that to fire a missile the ice would be broken by some machinery mounted on the sub and a temporary launching pad would be used.

Dr. Roederer said a variety of factors could account for the hole in the ice, but he was convinced the pictures showed a man-caused hole in the ice pack.

He said, "There were two or three (aircraft) at the same time (in the area observing the hole), an indication it was not just a (scientific) experiment."

City

City because 50 percent of our property is off the tax rolls," he said at an earlier council meeting.

Besides the greater reliance on property taxes to fund city expenses, the report cites the need for further local funding of transit operations.

The fare for using the Iowa City Transit System will increase to 50 cents Jan. 1, 1986. Councilors were warned in November about increasing the amount of the local subsidy to fund transit needs.

"UNLESS ANOTHER funding source can be found for an increasing local subsidy amount, other city services must be reduced or property taxes must be further increased to cover the funding needs of transit," Finance Director Rosemary Vitosh stated in a memo to the council.

The report released Friday advised the council it may have to move faster to phase-in the local transit levy, which is designed to replace federal revenue sharing funds targeted for transit operations.

The original plan was to set the transit levy at 18 cents in fiscal year 1984, and then increase the levy 18 cents for each of the two following years until the maximum levy of 54 cents is attained.

In order to determine the financial future of the transit system, the city will investigate the relationship between ridership and fares, parking rates downtown and the possibility of increasing transit routes.

"It becomes readily evident that any substantial increase from the other major revenue sources identified is unlikely to occur," the report states in reference to the city's general financial outlook. "Therefore, unless new funding sources are found, the general fund will need to continue to rely more heavily on property taxes in the future."

them, so gender is really irrelevant from that standpoint," he said. "The important thing is that the individual investor has to analyze his or her personal situation before investing."

However, Stevenson said there has been an increase in the number of women enrolled in the UI College of Business Administration, and women may be more active in financial planning.

BOB BROWN, CFP, manager of North Star Research Group, Plaza Centre One, agreed with Stevenson.

"There is no sex difference," Brown said. "I have an associate with a firm in Denver and she has advised numerous groups and she did a series of financial planning for women."

One major issue, Brown said "is financial planning for women is no different than financial planning for men."

BUT MORE women continue to become involved in investing.

"The trend that I'm seeing is doctors wives or spouses are getting more responsibility for the family's investments, said J. Michael Cavitt, CFP, personal finance advisor at Cavitt Financial Management, 323 Third Ave. "If you really want to hear horror stories about investments, get together with doctors' wives, especially those 40 or over."

Cavitt said doctors are commonly giving their spouses the financial planning responsibility partly because of poor investments made in the past by doctors, and the lack of time available for the doctors to find the best investments.

"I think that's probably a trend," said Kinsey. "Doctors may have been burned enough times" that they are now letting their spouses take over.

The politics of protein

The problem of world hunger is one that has been shuffled around and, despite economic progress, ignored by most affluent nations. American farmers produce record yields almost yearly — or are paid not to produce them. At the same time, a new famine, drought or civil war cuts off food to millions of people in poorer parts of the world. That this planet can feed its inhabitants yet refuses to do so because of politics and power is both illogical and immoral.

A step toward dealing with the problem came last week in a report from a presidential task force on the issue of food aid and private enterprise. The task force was primarily composed of corporate executives, and most of their recommendations were sound.

One major proposal involved doubling the Food for Peace program; others outlined the creation of a famine emergency fund and the elimination of programs that pay farmers not to produce.

As the report revealed, a unified plan to combat world hunger is more than simply a moral imperative. Such a plan would benefit American farmers and business. It would create a market for our surplus food and encourage world trade.

The task force went further, however. It proposed that food aid be tied to political compatibility with the United States. That recommendation is a bad one. Starving the people of a country whose government ours dislikes gains us nothing but a bad reputation. We lose any influence with that government and its people, as well as harm our own policy against embargoes.

Food aid is of essential importance, especially for a nation as wealthy as the United States. To use food as a weapon against countries that don't follow the doctrine of American capitalism is ineffective, inappropriate and wrong.

The report of the presidential commission was generally perceptive. It is time for food producers, along with leaders of government and business, to join together to get food and the technology necessary to produce it to places where it is desperately needed. Ideology or economics quizzes should be left out of the program. More politicizing of hunger is something without which the world can live.

War becomes a nasty business

By Paul Dougan

IS THE UNITED STATES about to invade Central America?

In a sense we already have. There are thousands of U.S. troops on more or less permanent maneuvers in Honduras, about fifty U.S. "advisers" in El Salvador, U.S. Army "engineers" in Costa Rica, U.S.-sponsored mercenaries terrorizing Nicaragua and a Navy flotilla hovering menacingly off its coast. U.S. spy planes routinely flying over Nicaragua and Salvadoran guerrilla positions, recently constructed military airstrips in Honduras, and millions in U.S. military aid pouring into the region.

And now we have reports of illegal involvement of at least one U.S. military unit in Central American fighting.

U.S. presence has escalated, will continue to escalate and will culminate with the full-scale introduction of U.S. combat troops into at least Nicaragua and El Salvador — this despite the fact that a vast majority of Americans oppose such a course. Why, then, is this new Vietnam about to happen?

WASHINGTON, OF COURSE, has its own justification: helping little guys defend themselves against the neighborhood bully. The pretext for the latest round of saber rattling, for instance, is the rumored shipment of Soviet MiGs to the Sandinistas.

The White House declares that these weapons are "unnecessary" to the Nicaraguans and therefore have an offensive purpose. Yet Managua's rationale for a possible purchase of those planes appears perfectly legitimate: to down contra supply flights from Honduras.

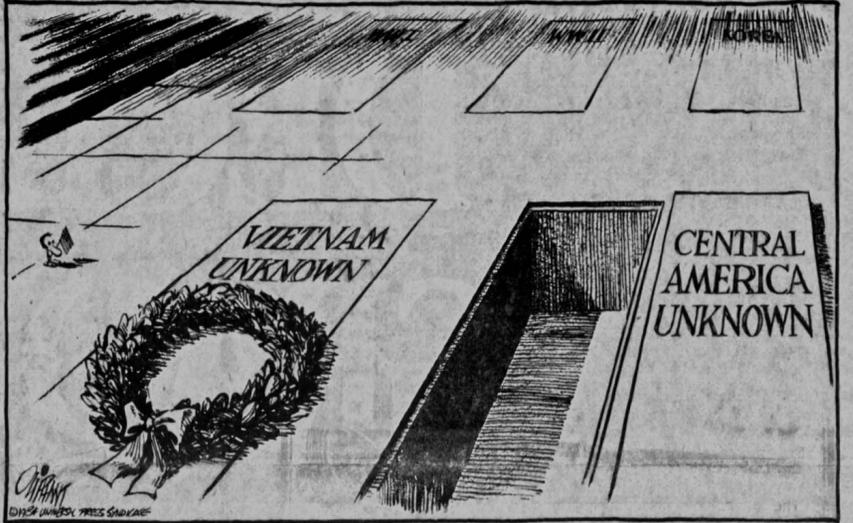

That the Reagan administration should find defense of the Nicaraguan revolution "unnecessary" isn't surprising. They find the Nicaraguan revolution itself unnecessary.

The real reason for interventionist policies goes far deeper than Ronald Reagan or Republicans — Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale mentioned a "quarantine" of Nicaragua.

While some scoff at the term as leftist rhetoric, the United States is an "imperialist" power. American corporations have huge investments (often referred to as "American interests") overseas, producing one-third of all U.S. corporate profits, according to a 1978 State Department report. In the colonial era the sun never set on the British Empire; today it never sets on "American interests."

These economic forces not only affect U.S. foreign policy, they're its mainspring. This explains why from the Sudan to Central America our "national security" is supposedly at stake.

WHILE WORDS LIKE "investment," "growth," and "profit" sound wholesome to the average American, their manifestation in underdeveloped nations is often grotesque. Recall three episodes: In 1953 the CIA overthrew the reformist regime of Mohammed Mossadegh in Iran at the behest of American oil interests. Mossadegh had nationalized the previously British-owned oil industry, but after the coup U.S. companies obtained the lion's share of its profits.

Guest opinion

The following year the CIA orchestrated the downfall of Guatemala's Arbenz regime. Trying to feed his starving people, Arbenz had instituted a major land reform including the confiscation with repayment of idle lands. This included 85 percent of the U.S.-based United Fruit Company's acreage. But to pay less in Guatemalan taxes, United Fruit had understated the value of its holdings and was therefore unhappy when compensated according to its own figures. They played a prominent role in the coup.

And in 1973 the CIA, aided and abetted by U.S. copper companies and IT&T, overthrew Chile's Allende regime. In each case democratically elected governments were replaced by vicious dictatorships, and respect for human rights plummeted.

OR CONSIDER THE economic motives behind the previous U.S. invasions of Nicaragua: After Washington decided on a Panamanian canal, a dis-appointed Nicaraguan President Zelaya was still determined to have a canal through his nation. He began negotiating with the British and others.

Then, according to historian Bernard Diederich: "He cancelled some of the American business concessions, which led to sharp diplomatic exchanges. Because the United States considered that it had the right to determine and guide policy in Central America, Zelaya came to be regarded as a serious threat."

When in 1909 Nicaraguans of both the Conservative and Liberal Parties rebelled against Zelaya, U.S. Marines, at the request of the Conservatives, entered Nicaragua. Zelaya resigned, and the Liberal-controlled Congress picked a new President whom the United States refused to recognize. The U.S.-backed Conservatives, in turn, successfully rebelled, and a U.S.-approved president was finally installed. The Marines left — temporarily.

Then, according to the New World Book Encyclopedia: "In 1911, U.S. banks began to lend money to Nicaragua under agreements that gave them control over its finances until the debts were paid in 1925. At the request of the banks and President Diaz, U.S. Marines landed in Nicaragua in 1912 to put down forces that opposed American control."

The Marine in charge, Gen. Smedley Butler, later wrote bitterly that he had been "... a high-class muscle man for Big Business, for Wall St. and for the bankers... a racketeer for Capitalism... I helped purify Nicaragua for the international banking house of Brown Brothers in 1909-12."

Although always a poor nation, as author John A. Booth notes: "The drain on the Nicaraguan treasury by U.S. business interests... eroded the economic and political development so slowly won during the previous era." While occupied, Nicaragua signed the Bryan-Chamorro Treaty cancelling the threat of a rival canal. And then the Marines again left — temporarily.

WHILE AN AUGUST 1981 survey by Business Latin America admitted that "most multinational corporations receive fair treatment from the Sandinistas," and while American investment in Nicaragua is relatively small and virtually untouched by nationalism, big business still wants the Nicaraguan revolution reversed. (It's no accident that one of the leading contras is the former manager of Nicaragua's Coca Cola outlet.)

Business resents what it feels is interference by the revolutionary government — like being forced to pay a decent minimum wage and allow unions. It fears future nationalization, and it has determined that the Nicaraguan "cancer" won't spread to the rest of the isthmus and the Third World as a whole.

U.S. corporations with a major presence in Central America are: BankAmerica, Borden, Castle & Cooke, Chase Manhattan, Citicorp, Coca Cola, Colgate-Palmolive, Exxon, Nabisco, PepsiCo, R.J. Reynolds, Standard Oil of California, Texaco, and United Brands.

In dirty little wars waged for greed, profit and "democracy," it isn't rich corporate shareholders who do the dying.

Dougan is a UI graduate student and a member of the Central America Solidarity Committee.

Terror and tears

FBI Director William Webster announced recently that attacks on and bombings of abortion clinics do not constitute terrorism because their objective is social protest. The lead role in the investigation and prevention of these attacks has been given to the weak Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Agency, which has lost funds under the Reagan administration to the Drug Enforcement Agency.

Meanwhile, in other recent news, we have heard a great deal about the consignment of unwanted and uncared-for children to institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped, to overcrowded daycare facilities where the brand of sex education offered makes the erstwhile debates about sex education in the public schools pale in comparison, and to severe psychological and physical abuse by their own parents.

Current conditions for children make "Hansel and Gretel" look benign. The parents in that story only abandoned the children, and it was the witch who had the idea of the oven — not the parents, as in one well-publicized recent case. At least in ancient Greece, where unwanted or defective babies were left out in the weather to die, or Rome, where fathers had the right to kill any child they did not wish to acknowledge and support, the agony was not prolonged.

Through abuse and neglect, too many modern parents destine their progeny to prisons, jails and mental institutions, to crime, substance abuse and insanity. All of these seem worse fates than abortion. As population burgeons and resources shrink, life becomes cheaper as stress increases. Children today are too often being treated merely as objects.

Nowhere is there a better illustration of this than in the Cabbage Patch doll fad. A society that makes of such a doll a child substitute, an investment, is displaying a symptom. There is a grisly undertone in the sending of Cabbage Patch kids to camp to get them out of the way — there aren't enough camps to accommodate the children of real parents for whom the thrill and attraction of parenthood has worn off. Having a baby means making an 18-year commitment if the parent is well-intentioned. At least the dolls are only cloth and stuffing and can tolerate neglect.

Modern morality as defined by many groups deplores abortion, linking it with sexual promiscuity. The idea persists that unwanted pregnancy is a "punishment" for the sexually promiscuous. But this morality must be balanced against an all-too-prevalent and real modern immorality: the forcing of the will of the stronger on the non-consenting weaker, whether it be the woman who is raped or the child that is abused.

Some women may provoke rape; some children may be Lolitas. But society has to give the benefit of the doubt to all, because the vast majority do not fall into those categories. Abortion is at best a heart-rending and regrettable choice, the most difficult many women ever make. But child abuse is worse — it's crueler because it is a prolonged and tortured death, a living death.

At present the law of the land says women have the right to decide what to do with their own bodies; what they are doing at the clinics is legal. Bombs, shootings and threats are terrorism and are not legal. Many women who come to clinics for abortions do so because they are desperately aware that they have all the children they can care for already.

If prevention of this terrorism is not a governmental priority, the next step may well be private armed guards for the clinics. Then militant anti-abortion protesters can start a crusade: "Kill mothers to save lives." Whose lives?

Where the heart is

To the editor:

What's the difference between the impersonal atmosphere of Chicago and the friendliness experienced in a small town? That's the difference I felt this year in moving from the largest dorm on campus to the smallest — South Quad.

The promise of "an informal atmosphere where most of the approximately 100 residents get to know each other," as the Iowa Residence Hall Guidebook states, seemed unrealistic before I moved here. After spending hours watching soaps and "MASH," studying, partying, doing laundry and eating with these people, I can't say that we all know or love each other, but we're close.

Your article on South Quad (DI, Dec. 11) only mentioned a small part of the story. In making the decision to close Westlawn and relocate South Quad residents, declining enrollment estimates at the UI for 1985-86 were used. But were permanent temporary housing residents, juniors and seniors now deciding to stay in the dorms, and South Quad and Westlawn residents interviewed extensively before this decision was made?

It may be too late, but the UI will be hearing from us now.

Even if we have to leave South Quad next year, I'll always appreciate sharing hellos and smiles when we walked down the hall, being able to leave our doors open, two great resident advisers and everything else I felt was absent in a large dorm.

UI Residence Services Director George Droll said that "there hasn't been a large number of complaints." Really? Just visit South Quad this year, Mr. Droll.

Terminal cases

To the editor:

With more and more students using computers, the UI should look into installing more terminals at various locations on campus.

The west side of campus is in particular need of terminals, especially as students on the east side can currently enjoy the convenience of the terminals in the Main Library. An excellent location would be the Health Sciences Library.

There are only 19 terminals available to students on the west side of campus. In addition, computer labs at the Nursing Building and Steindler Building are not open during weekends.

This situation would be remedied with the addition of terminals in the Health Sciences Library.

Tailback Harmon chosen Iowa's MVP

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

Injured junior tailback Ronnie Harmon received the Roy J. Carver Most Valuable Player Award at Friday's annual Iowa football banquet, on an evening that was highlighted by main speaker Hayden Fry.

The $15-a-plate banquet was held for the first time in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, before a crowd of 900 made up of players and players' parents, coaches and wives, media members, football recruits and Iowa fans.

Harmon, who suffered a broken leg which ended his season against Wisconsin, was voted MVP by his teammates.

The Laurelton, N.Y., native was Iowa's leading rusher with 907 yards, despite missing three games due to his injury.

HARMON SAID HE was "very surprised" by the honor, which he can now add to his long list of all-American and all-Big Ten honors.

The 6-foot, 200-pounder said although he disliked being unable to play in the late season, he had no "bad feelings" about it.

"It's tough not playing," Harmon said, "but I haven't had any bad feelings."

Fry spoke to the crowd on various Hawkeye football subjects including injuries and officiating but Fry praised his team for bouncing back despite injuries and called this year's squad the most courageous he has had at Iowa.

"Our players have worked harder and showed more courage this year than any other year at Iowa," Fry said.

"WEEK AFTER WEEK we watched these guys come back, and despite not practicing all week, give a good account of themselves on Saturday."

Fry mentioned the officials ruling made in the Michigan State loss — the officials ruled that Chuck Long failed to reach the goal line on a crucial extra point try — as "a $2 million call."

Had the officials given Long the touchdown, Iowa would have won the game and had the inside track on a Rose Bowl berth. Fry said the call, "cost us a trip to Pasadena (Calif.)."

Iowa co-captains Paul Hufford, Owen Gill, Jonathan Hayes, Keith Hunter and Kevin Spitzig were acknowledged at the dinner, as were the eight Hawkeye all-Americans and the 17 all-Big Ten performers.

Larry Station received the longest line of awards including Associated Press, United Press International, Walter Camp and Kodak first team all-American honors.

In addition to the award presented to Harmon, three other special presentations were given.

Freshman tight end Craig Clark received the Specialty Team Award, the Forrest Evashevski-Scholastic Award went to senior linebacker Spitzig and senior kicker Tom Nichol was given the Coaches Appreciation Award.

Sweden takes 2-0 advantage over U.S.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom, playing the match of his life, crushed John McEnroe in straight sets Sunday and virtually buried American Davis Cup hopes beneath the red brick clay court of the Scandinavium Sports Centre.

The 20-year-old London-based player, inspired by Mats Wilander's earlier 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Jimmy Connors, outgunned McEnroe, 13-11, 6-4, 6-4, to give Sweden a 2-0 first-day advantage and left the United States struggling for survival.

McEnroe and Connors are ranked 1-2 in the world, and before Sunday McEnroe had lost only two singles matches all year.

The Americans need to win all three remaining matches — Monday's doubles featuring McEnroe and Peter Fleming against Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg and Tuesday's reverse singles — if they are to record their 29th Davis Cup triumph.

ALTHOUGH NO ONE can rule out a U.S. revival, the Swedes look like strong candidates to capture the trophy for only the second time, having defeated Czechoslovakia in the 1975 final.

In fact, the battle may have already been won by the Swedes with the possible disqualification of Connors, who was handed a one-game penalty for swearing in the eighth game of the final set against Wilander.

British match referee Alan Mills said a decision would be made Monday morning concerning Connors' status.

Commenting on Connors' claim that his words were ones of self-criticism and not aimed at anyone else, Mills said: "The words he used were obvious obscenities and there was absolutely a definite violation of the code."

MILLS SAID THERE was also another matter relating to what Connors said to British umpire George Grime after the match. The referee indicated Connors was more likely to be fined about $1,000 rather than face disqualification, which would result in his team losing the series.

"Default is not very real, it is more likely he will be heavily fined," Mills added. "I think it's a tragedy. The Davis Cup final should be remembered more for its tennis than for its behavior."

But even Connors' explosive outbursts could not distract from Sundstrom's performance.

"This is the match of my life," the delighted Swede said.

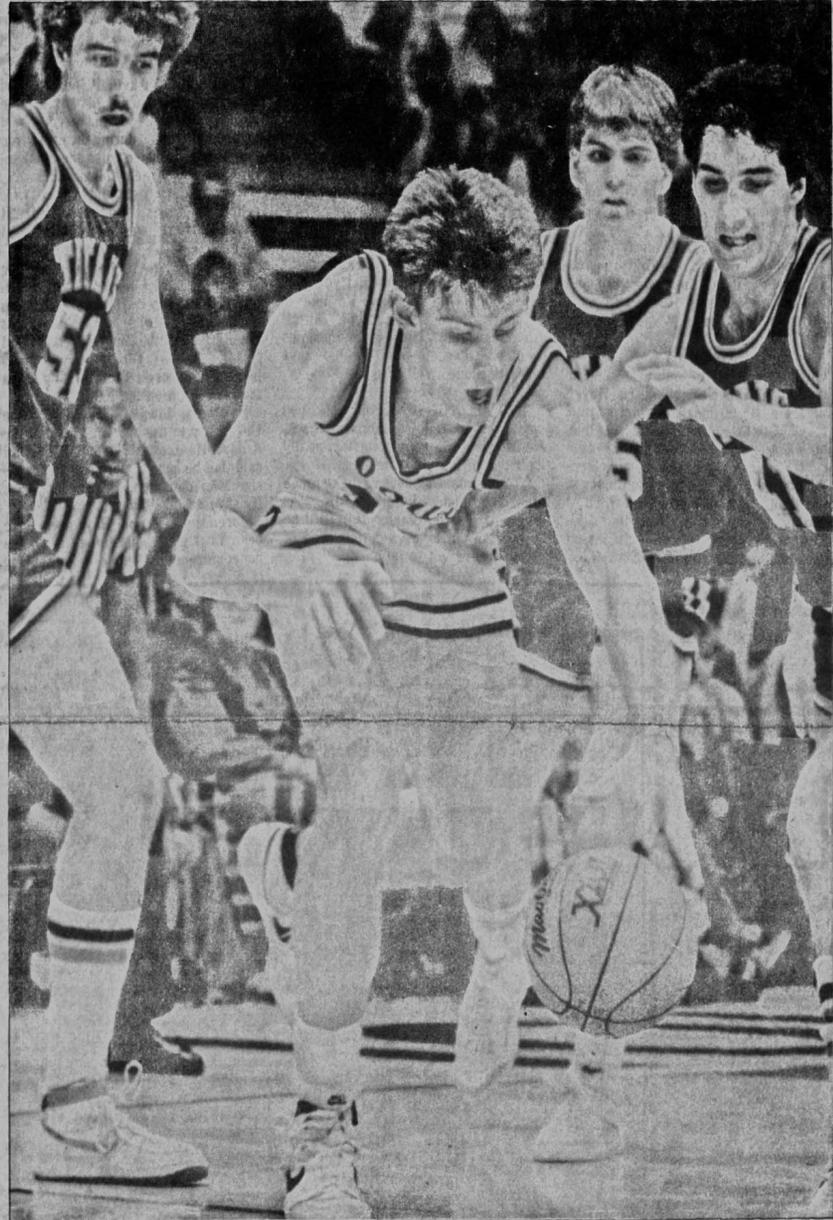

"I KNEW HE WOULD try to serve and volley from the beginning and I knew my passing shots would be important. I had to keep him in the back of the court. Mats gave me a few tips on how to play him."

McEnroe was fighting a losing battle on two fronts. He was not match-tough following a six-week break and his confidence was undermined by his dislike of the playing surface.

"The court was in poor shape for a Davis Cup final," he said. "But I played a poor match and I don't remember ever serving so poorly in a major match."

Referring to his time out of the game, caused by a three-week suspension and a wrist injury, the 25-year-old New York southpaw commented: "I suppose my concentration was not so good. I could have been because I had not been playing for a while. But I can't blame my loss on my wrist. You have got to give Sundstrom credit. He played good on the big points."

Although only one country in Davis Cup history has ever recovered from a 2-0 deficit — Australia against the U.S. in 1939 — American team captain Arthur Ashe has not abandoned all hope.

Iowa State women's basketball Coach Pam Wettig was under the weather prior to Saturday's battle with Iowa at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The final results did little to improve her health.

The Hawkeyes used a tough three-quarter court zone defense and the hot shooting of Lisa Long and Lisa Becker to bury the Cyclones, 81-41, for their third win of the season against two losses.

"I think to sum it up... this was Iowa's best game of the year and our worst," a disappointed and hoarse Wettig said following the contest. "They came out and pressured us very well and came out and trapped on our guards."

"WE DIDN'T DO a good job getting the ball inside," she added. "We just lost our poise. The whole game could come back to when they put that full-court zone press on us... we just panicked."

When Coach Vivian Stringer ordered her troops into the press, Iowa was only ahead 16-12, midway through the first half. But once the Hawkeyes put the clamps on, they outscored Iowa State 29-6 the remainder of the half to put the game out of reach.

The Cyclones simply had nobody to stop Long and Becker on the inside. The sophomore tandem combined for 38 points and 18 rebounds while holding Iowa State's all-time leading scorer Tonya Burns, who entered the game with a 17.8 scoring average, to four points.

"WE WERE LOOKING for an offensive explosion and we got it," Stringer said. "Let me tell you one thing, though, Iowa State is a good basketball team... This had to be one of the finest team efforts we've ever had."

Part of the problem for the Cyclones, besides the effort of the Hawkeyes, was the boisterous crowd of 2,497 that attended the game. "I thought we were prepared for this game," Wettig said. "I was concerned about us coming into this arena with the fans, the cheerleaders and the band. I was concerned about us playing in awe of the Hawks and I don't know if that happened."

Titans topple as Hawkeyes win by 60

By Brad Zimaneck
Staff Writer

It was a "long game" for the Illinois Wesleyan Titans and the 10,000 or so fans that showed up to Carver-Hawkeye Arena Saturday as the Hawkeye basketball team hammered the Titans, 99-39.

"Did that seem like a long game to you guys?" Illinois Wesleyan Coach Dennis Bridges said.

"I was reading our press book last night because I couldn't sleep after our game with Augustana (Friday night) and I noticed that the worst an Illinois Wesleyan team had ever been beaten was by DePaul by 45 points (in 1959). That struck me today that an Illinois Wesleyan team was getting beat worse than that and I played on that team so at least I wiped that off."

ILLINOIS WESLEYAN started out the game on the right foot, tying the game at 6-6 on a Tom Baffes jumper with 16 minutes, 37 seconds remaining in the first half but after that things didn't go well for last year's College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin champions.

Iowa then outscored the Titans, 17-2, including three slam dunks, in the next six minutes to take a 23-8 lead. The scoring rampage continued as the first half ended with Iowa leading 46-17.

"They seem to play so much more relaxed this year than they played last year. They seem to play as if they know their roles," Bridges said about the Iowa team. "They're not worried about doing the right thing or the wrong thing."

ONE OF THE MANY bright spots for Iowa in Saturday's game was the play of Al Lorenzen, who tied Greg Stokes for scoring honors with 20 points. Lorenzen also added nine rebounds and four assists in his 26 minutes of playing time.

"He's (Lorenzen) tough," Bridges said. ## Two Hawks named to all-academic team

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (UPI) — Iowa linebacker Larry Station added another gem to his stellar football career with his second-consecutive appointment to the all-academic Big Ten team along with teammate Bill Happel.

Station and Happel, a junior wide receiver for the Hawkeyes, earned a spot on the team by maintaining a B average or better. The 11-member all-academic offensive and defensive teams are selected by league sports information directors.

Station, a junior majoring in computer science, has earned a grade point average of 3.15 in his three years at Iowa while Happel has a 3.16 mark in business.

Station and Indiana linebacker Joe Fitzgerald were the only Big Ten players to make both the first-team all loop team and the academic squad. The honor for Station is just the latest heaped on the Omaha native this year. Station was named to three first-team all-America teams and this is his second year on the all-Big Ten squad. He led a tough Iowa defense this fall with 140 tackles.

Ski Club meeting set for tonight

There will be a general meeting of the UI Cross Country Ski Club tonight.

The 7 p.m. meeting will be in Room E220 of the Field House and items to be discussed include January trips and events. Members are encouraged to bring a friend to the meeting.

Gymnastics instructors are being sought

The UI Division of Recreational Services is hiring gymnastics instructors.

The applicants should have teaching experience and a natural aptitude for working with children and young adults. Instructors are needed for both morning and evening classes.

Applications are being taken in Room E216 of the Field House. Further details are available by calling 353-3494.

Texas A&M halts Drake tourney title bid, 66-49

DES MOINES (UPI) — Todd Holloway earned tourney MVP honors with a game-high 20 points and Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said the Aggies came through with their best performance of the season in the championship victory at the second annual AAA-Drake Classic.

"I thought we played 40 minutes with intensity," Metcalf said after the 66-49 win over Drake Saturday. "The only other game we've done close to that was against Oral Roberts."

Holloway hit eight of 19 field goal attempts and backcourt mate Kenny Brown added 17 points to help Texas A&M win a game marked by physical play under the boards.

In the consolation game, Valparaiso freshman Curtis Rias scored 23 points and the Crusaders hit 62 percent of their field goal attempts enroute to a 79-63 victory over North Texas State.

Cyclones settle for third at Volunteer Classic

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Tennessee basketball Coach Don DeVoe said his Vols beat a better team when they topped 11th-ranked Virginia Tech 86-75 in the championship game of the Volunteer Classic Saturday night.

"There comes a time in the season when you've got to beat a team that's better than you, and that happened tonight," DeVoe said.

Iowa State defeated Southern Mississippi 73-72 for third place in the tournament, but Cyclone Coach Johnny Orr said after the contest he was mystified that a last-second Southern Mississippi shot did not connect.

Barry Stevens scored 18 of his game-high 24 points and Gary Thompkins scored the winning basket on a spinning lay-up to lift Iowa State to victory in the consolation game.

The Cyclones lost their opening round tourney game 80-53 to Virginia Tech Friday night.

Thompkins' lay-up, with 45 seconds left on the clock, was the last score of the game. Southern Mississippi's Kenny Siler missed a 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer.

Southern Mississippi, which fell to 3-7, held a 40-35 lead at halftime, but Iowa State scored eight unanswered points at the beginning of the second half to take a 43-40 advantage.

UNLV stops Toledo in California Bowl, 30-13

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — The difference between winning and losing a football game can be a single play.

That proved to be the case in the fourth annual California Bowl football game Saturday.

Toledo, winner of the Mid-American Conference, got a break when Clayton Moore recovered a fumble on the University of Nevada-Las Vegas 41 midway through the third quarter. The Rockets, behind quarterback A.J. Sager and running back Steve Morgan, marched down the field and scored on a 38-yard Sager to Bill Poure pass that cut the UNLV lead to just 16-13.

It looked like the fumble had given Toledo the momentum, but Rebel freshman running back Elbert Woods busted over from the 10 a little over a minute later to put UNLV back on top and seal the eventual 30-13 Rebel victory. The Rebels later got a 10-yard scoring run on a bootleg by quarterback Randall Cunningham to close out the scoring.

Hawkeyes hammer UNI, 43-3

By J.B. Glass
Staff Writer

He may not have the fan following of former Olympian Barry Davis; he may not have the flash of Rico Chiapparelli and he may not have the muscle of Duane Goldman.

But Iowa 142-pounder Kevin Dresser is doing his stuff — winning.

"I'm pretty confident. I think I can do well and I'm ready to do my stuff," the junior from Humboldt, Iowa, said.

And Dresser, who has just one loss this season while starting at 142, did his stuff Friday in Cedar Falls where Iowa obliterated Northern Iowa, 43-3.

Dresser, who was the back-up last year at 142, broke his arm the year before and was redshirted in 1982, has put his time in and now he is making good in his chance. "I've been around long enough where I know what is going on," Dresser said.

DRESSER WON QUIETLY again Friday, as he took a 13-7 decision over Lew Songderoth.

Wrestling

The 43-3 win was the most lopsided ever in the series between the two schools. The 40-point margin of victory broke the 1979 mark where the Hawkeyes won 41-3 over the Panthers.

Iowa, 7-0, fell behind after the first match as Paul Kreimeyer beat Iowa's Matt Egeland, 8-6. Gable, who was happy with Iowa's performance, was not happy with Egeland.

"Egeland is wrestling like (Greg) Randall was; too much under control," Gable said. "Randall was doing the same thing, but we got him straightened out."

From then on it was all Iowa as Davis scored the first of four Hawkeye technical falls (when the match ends with a 15-point advantage) over Pat Pickford, 21-5.

Randall at 134 followed with a 19-4 technical fall over Joe Gribben to put Iowa up 12-3.

DRESSER THEN FOLLOWED with the win and Jim Heffernan at 150 scored a technical fall over Scott Morningstar, 22-5.

At 158, Marty Kistler followed with a decision over Jeff Clutter, 13-8, and Royce Alger at 167 had a major decision (a win by eight points but less than 12) over Bruce Hammel, 18-10.

David Martin, wrestling at 177 for Chiapparelli who was nursing sore ribs, also scored a technical fall over Jeff Weatherman, 17-2.

Goldman at 190 had Iowa's only pin of the evening at he dropped Mike Llewellyn at three minutes, 16 seconds.

"I'm a little bit disappointed Goldman got that fall," Gable said. "I wanted to see him go through the match and test his shoulder."

At heavyweight, Steve Wilbur beat Dave Bossard, 6-2.

Top-ranked Iowa's next competition will come at the Midlands Open, one of the most prestigious meets in the Midwest, Dec. 29-30.

Lorenzen content as the sixth man

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

If you look at the Iowa basketball roster, Al Lorenzen is listed as a freshman.

If you look on the floor of the Carver-Hawkeye Arena, you'd swear it was a typographical error.

The Cedar Rapids Kennedy product scored 20 points, hauled in nine rebounds and led the team with four assists during the Hawkeyes' 99-39 thrashing of Illinois Wesleyan Saturday.

Lorenzen's continued good play has caught the eyes of many people, including Hawkeye Coach George Raveling, but don't look for the 6-foot-8 forward to break into the starting lineup soon.

"If I start Al Lorenzen and put Gerry Wright on the bench, it doesn't bring in the same function that we get when Al comes off the bench," Raveling said. "I'm more interested in what a person does while he's in there than if he starts. I'm more interested in who finishes.

"LOOK AT HOW Red Auerbach used to have John Havlicek coming off the bench to help the Boston Celtics. And how Kevin McHale does that now," he added.

"Hey, I'm the coach. Give me the privilege of picking the starters. I work with these kids every day, and I know things about them that you guys (the media) don't know. I'd like to compare it to the Catholic faith," Raveling said. "They say sometimes you have to accept what the Pope says on faith alone. Well, I'm the Pope."

AND AS ONE of the followers, you won't get an argument from Lorenzen. He said the opportunity to start really isn't one of his top priorities.

"To me, starting doesn't make much of a difference," Lorenzen said. "As long as I get the playing time, I'll be happy. Anytime you get that type of clock, you've got to be happy."

Iowa's Mr. Basketball for 1984 said he was nervous during his first couple games as a Hawkeye, and being slowed by an ankle injury during the preseason that caused him to miss the final intrasquad didn't help things either.

"I was very tight during the first couple of games," Lorenzen said. "It showed, there was no doubt about that."

RAVELING SAID he has seen few big men, who as freshmen, have the ability that Lorenzen does. "Lorenzen amazes me with the way he gets shots off in traffic," the Hawkeye coach said following last Wednesday's 89-40 pasting of Georgia State. "He gets an amazing arch on the ball."

Following Iowa's win over Boston University in the opening round of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic, Raveling said that he hasn't "seen anyone for his size who can pass the way he does. He's an excellent passer."

Lorenzen said the Hawkeyes have been working on one thing during the nonconference schedule — preparing for the Big Ten season.

"A LOT OF PEOPLE realize Illinois Wesleyan isn't Illinois or Georgetown, but we've got to do a lot of things in order to be ready for the Big Ten," Lorenzen said. "Today (against the Titans) the coaches stressed playing tough defense for 40 minutes and executing on offense the way we're supposed to. We have to form habits now in order to execute well in the Big Ten."

Even Iowa's one blemish on an 81 record, a 54-50 defeat at the hands of Iowa State, served its purpose, Lorenzen said.

"That was disappointing, but it motivated me," he said. "What we can do is take the loss and learn from it."

And Lorenzen is also learning that when teams double team Iowa center Greg Stokes, he's got an open shot. "When he draws two or three people, it's got to be easier for me," Lorenzen said. "I just love to see people sag in on him."

Iowa sets records at invitational

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

A new team record in the floor exercise lifted the Iowa women's gymnastics team into second place at the Iowa Invitational Saturday at the Field House.

The Hawkeyes were in third place after three rotations but scored a 44.20 on the floor exercise to move ahead of Wisconsin-Oshkosh into second place. Freshmen Jennifer DuBois and Gayle Quashnie each broke the individual record on the floor exercise, which was set last year by Kris Meighan with a 9.15. Quashnie scored a 9.25 and DuBois followed with a 9.45. The two gymnasts finished first and second in the event.

WINONA STATE captured the team title for the second-straight year by scoring a 171.60. Iowa finished second with a 169.6, Wisconsin-Oshkosh took third with a 168.85 and Auburn was fourth with a 165.2.

Warrior Coach Steve Juare knew the Hawkeyes would be tough on their last event, the floor exercise, and could move up in the team standings. "Our beam performance probably won the meet for us," Juare said. "We did well enough on the beam to stay ahead of Iowa."

"Kathy Fitz, Jean Schuller, Tracey Harvey and Sue Litschke all hit strong beam routines today," Juare said. "I was ecstatic with their beam performances."

Iowa Coach Diane Chapela was pleased with the performances turned in by her gymnasts in the invitational. "I was especially pleased with the floor exercise," she said. "It was the best floor performance we have done so far."

"MOVING UP FROM third to second after the final rotation says a lot about the Iowa team," Chapela said. "We're definitely not going to be giving up (this season)."

The Daily Iowan/Doug Smith

Gail Quashnie, a freshman on the Iowa women's gymnastics team, pauses during her balance beam routine in the Iowa Invitational Saturday afternoon in the Field House. Iowa finished second to Winona State in the four-team invitational. Quashnie won the vault competition.

Gymnastics

Iowa Invitational gymnastics results

Team totals — 1. Winona State 171.60, 2. Iowa 169.60, 3. Wisconsin-Oshkosh 168.85, 4. Auburn 165.2
Vault — 1. Quashnie (I), 3. tie between Dempsey (WS) and Horyza (WS); 8.8
Uneven parallel bars — 1. Westherly (AU), 2. Lindemer (WO), 3. Schriber (WO); 9.2
Balance beam — 1. Harvey (WS), 3. tie between Neuman (I) and Litschke (WS); 8.85
Floor exercise — 1. DuBois (I), 2. Quashnie (I), 3. Schuller (WS); 9.45
All-around — 1. Harvey (WS), 3. tie between Lindemer (WO) and DuBois (I); 35.10

The Iowa coach noticed progress in the Hawkeyes' performances from their last meet. "Things are really starting to gel for us," Chapela said. "They're getting confident and attacking (routines) more."

Chapela added the Hawkeyes have been executing their routines very well in practice, and it showed in the invitational.

The Hawkeyes cut down the number of falls they had on the beam in the meet. "Falls are a killer for any team on the beam. To cut the number of falls in half from the last performance to this one, that's progress," Chapela said.

THE IOWA COACH said the Hawkeyes were also swinging better on the bars but didn't look as strong as before on the vault.

Winona State's Harvey won the all-around competition with a 35.10. DuBois and Debbie Lindemer from Wisconsin-Oshkosh tied for third by scoring a 34.70.

"Tracey (a sophomore) is more experienced now," Juare said. "She starts off fast and I'm sure she'll keep that consistency."

The Hawkeyes will take a couple of weeks off for the holidays. Iowa's next meet is at California-Long Beach on Jan. 16.

Steelers win AFC Central crown

United Press International

The Pittsburgh Steelers succeeded Sunday where the St. Louis Cardinals failed.

Aware Cincinnati won earlier and a loss would give the Bengals the AFC Central title, the Steelers had to beat the Raiders in Los Angeles to win a playoff berth. So they did it.

Walter Abercrombie's 59-yard scamper on a screen pass set up Frank Pollard's one-yard fourth-quarter touchdown run and Gary Anderson kicked two field goals to help Pittsburgh to a 13-7 upset of the defending Super Bowl champions.

The Cardinals, on the other hand, fell short. A triumph in Washington would have given St. Louis the NFC East crown, but Mark Moseley's 34-yard field goal with one minute, 37 seconds left gave the Redskins a 29-27 victory.

ST. LOUIS, after storming back from a 23-7 halftime deficit, saw a last-second chance to win fail when Neil O'Donoghue missed a 50-yard field goal as time — and its playoff hopes — expired.

With the victory, Washington won the NFC East and a host spot in the divisional playoffs while the Los Angeles Rams clinched a wild-card berth.

The other NFC wild card will be determined Monday night when Dallas visits Miami. If the Cowboys win they will host the Rams next Sunday. If Dallas loses, the Rams host the New York Giants that afternoon.

The Raiders, 11-5, missed a chance to host next weekend's wild-card game against the Seahawks. The defending NFL champions now have to play at Seattle's Kingdome next weekend.

AT LOS ANGELES, the Steelers, 9-7, preserved a 3-0 lead late in the third quarter when they stopped the Raiders' Marcus Allen on fourth-and-one at the Pittsburgh 21. The Steelers then marched 79 yards for its touchdown.

NFL roundup

On the fourth play of the drive, Mark Malone hit Abercrombie with a short pass from the Pittsburgh 40. The running back used a block from tackle Pete Rostovsky and rambled to the Los Angeles one before cornerback Lester Hayes hauled him down. Pollard followed left end for the score four seconds into the final period.

At Washington, Joe Theismann threw two touchdown passes to record-setting receiver Art Monk, and hit Monk twice on a frantic 53-yard drive to set up Moseley's game-winner.

THE CARDINALS, down 23-7 at the half, rallied to take a 27-26 lead on Neil Lomax' 18-yard touchdown pass to Roy Green. Lomax completed 37 of 46 passes for 468 yards and two touchdowns.

Monk's seventh catch, coming midway through the third quarter, was his 102nd of the season and set an NFL season record. He finished the game with 11 receptions and the season with 106.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati pounded Buffalo, 52-21, Green Bay thrashed Minnesota, 38-14, New England downed Indianapolis, 16-10, Chicago clobbered Detroit, 30-13, Cleveland beat Houston, 27-20, Tampa Bay ripped the New York Jets, 41-21, Atlanta topped Philadelphia, 26-10 and Kansas City routed San Diego, 42-21. On Saturday, New Orleans edged the New York Giants, 10-3, and Denver belted Seattle, 31-14.

AT CINCINNATI, Ken Anderson fired three touchdown passes in the first half to power the Bengals, who overcame an 0-5 start to finish 8-8. Buffalo finished with the league's worst record at 2-14 and will select first in the NFL draft.

At Minneapolis, Lynn Dickey fired two touchdown passes and ran for another score to lead the Packers, who finished 8-8 after a 1-7 start. Dickey played only the first half and completed 16 of 20 passes. The Vikings finished 3-13.

At Foxboro, Mass., Tony Eason hit Lin Dawson with a three-yard scoring pass, Tony Franklin kicked three field goals and Craig James rushed for 138 yards to lead the Patriots, 9-7. The Colts, 4-12, played under interim Coach Hal Hunter.

AT PONTIAC, MICH., Greg Landry, making his first NFL appearance since 1982, threw for one touchdown and ran for another while the NFC Central champion Bears, 10-6, recorded two NFL sack records.

At Houston, rookie Earnest Byner rushed for 118 yards and scored twice to lead the Browns, 5-11. Byner, a 10th-round draft pick from East Carolina, had the best rushing day for a Cleveland running back since 1976. Houston finished 3-13.

At Tampa, Fla., Steve DeBerg threw for three touchdowns and James Wilder ran for two scores and set an NFL record with 407 carries in a season to help retiring Bucs coach John McKay go out a winner. New York, 7-9, lost seven of its last eight.

At Atlanta, former Iowa State quarterback Dave Archer, a third-string rookie, passed for one touchdown and set up another to help the Falcons, 4-12, end a nine-game losing streak. The Eagles, who learned they are not moving to Phoenix, Ariz., finished 6-9-1.

At San Diego, Bill Kenney threw for three touchdowns to help the Chiefs score the first 42 points. The Chiefs finished 8-8 and the Chargers, 7-9 and last in the AFC West. San Diego's Earnest Jackson won the AFC rushing title by running for 79 yards to finish with 1,179.

No. 1 Georgetown drops DePaul

United Press International

With all the strength and swagger of a kingpin protecting its turf, Georgetown has let the word out: Do not mess with this team.

In what amounted to the showdown that never was, the Hoyas removed whatever doubts there may have been as to who is No. 1.

The remains of No. 2 DePaul may be found in the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., courtesy of a 77-57 Georgetown victory Saturday.

Last week on national television, the Hoyas were to receive their first challenge from Nevada-Las Vegas and they sent the Rebels running with an 82-46 wipeout. This time DePaul took its licks.

"Who knows whether we're number one or DePaul's number two," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said. "I think it's totally insignificant at this point in the year."

ALL-AMERICAN center Patrick Ewing dominated the inside for Georgetown. He had 15 points, 15 rebounds and six blocks as the defending NCAA champions ran their record to 7-0.

The Hoyas manacled DePaul early, going up by 18 in the first half. For the half Georgetown shot 74 percent. But the Blue Demons showed some grit and cut it to 50-49 with 12:35 left.

Then the Hoyas put up the no trespassing sign, holding DePaul without a field goal the rest of the game. The Hoyas went on a 21-2 roll that featured 18 straight points and the Blue Demons were put to rest. DePaul shot 17 percent in the second half.

"I THOUGHT WE were very much in the ball game until that run," DePaul Coach Joey Meyer said.

Michael Jackson had 14 points and 12 assists for the Hoyas and Reggie Williams 14 points. DePaul, 6-1, was led by Tyrone Corbin with 13 points, all in the first half, and Kenny Patterson with 10.

Georgetown has won 18 straight games, its last loss coming Feb. 21 against St. John's.

In three other big games, No. 14 Georgia Tech nipped No. 8 North Carolina State, 66-64, No. 17 Louisville downed Kentucky, 71-64, and co-No. 20 Arkansas edged Tulsa, 70-66.

At Raleigh, N.C., Mark Price sank a 22-footer with two seconds left to lift Georgia Tech, 4-1, past North Carolina State, 5-1, in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener for both teams.

"MARK PRICE HAD the worst game of his career against Georgia (a 60-59 loss earlier in the week), and he came back," said Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins. "The kid played unselfish. He played smart basketball and it all worked out for him in the end."

At Louisville, Ky., Billy Thompson scored 17 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to power Louisville past Kentucky, which got a career-high 32 point effort from Kenny Walker.

At Little Rock, Ark., William Mills stole the ball from Tulsa guard Steve Harris and scored on a dunk with two seconds left to preserve the Razorbacks' victory. Joe Kleine had 19 points and 15 rebounds for Arkansas, 5-1. Harris had 20 points for the Hurricane. "I took a chance and it paid off," Mills said. "There was no doubt in my mind."

ELSEWHERE SATURDAY, No. 4 St. John's was stunned by Niagara, 62-59, No. 5 Memphis State beat Mississippi State, 68-59, No. 6 Illinois ripped South Carolina State, 83-47, No. 7 Southern Methodist clobbered Oklahoma State, 82-65, No. 11 Virginia

Tech was upset by Tennessee, 86-75, co-No. 12 Oklahoma squashed Puget Sound, 101-71, co-No. 12 North Carolina defeated Wake Forest, 79-73, and No. 15 Kansas tripped Houston, 87-75.

No. 16 Indiana mauled St. Joseph's, 81-44, No. 18 Alabama-Birmingham ripped East Tennessee State, 72-57 and co-No. 20 Louisiana Tech stopped Marshall 69-63.

At Niagara Falls, N.Y., Joe Arluckas scored 20 points and Joe Alexander added 15 to spark Niagara's stunning upset of St. John's. Arluckas canned two jumpers to put Niagara on top to stay 58-57 with 2:26 left. Two free throws by Arluckas ended an eight-point run, bringing the score to 62-57 with 40 seconds left.

At Starkville, Miss., Keith Lee scored 21 of his game-high 27 points in the second half to lead Memphis State. Lee set records as Memphis State's all-time leading scorer and rebounder. He has scored 1,883 points and grabbed 1,074 rebounds.

At Dallas, Carl Wright scored 25 points to lead SMU, 7-0, to the championship of the Dallas Morning News Classic. Wright was voted the tournament's outstanding player. It was the third Dallas News tournament victory in as many seasons for the Mustangs.

Blab leads Indiana to tourney win

United Press International

The Indiana Hoosiers won the 11th annual Indiana Classic tournament for the 11th time as part of a clean sweep of weekend victories for Big Ten teams.

The Hoosiers whipped St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania, 81-44, in the championship game Saturday night to win its own tournament again, and, for the 11th-straight time, an Indiana player took home Most Valuable Player honors.

Center Uwe Blab, an inconsistent performer in his three previous years at Indiana, scored 18 points Saturday to finish an excellent four-game, eight-day performance and win the top tournament individual honor.

He scored a career-high 29 points in the opening round game against Western Kentucky Friday and played well in previous wins over Iowa State and Kentucky.

Big Ten roundup

"THE MOST PLEASING thing to me was Blab's play," Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said. "Not just his scoring, but the way he was into every play. He is such an intelligent player, and he has worked hard to see what we're trying to do."

The Hoosiers, 5-2, played extremely well in the championship game, making 35 of 54 field goal attempts and out-rebounding the Hawks, 32-23.

Steve Alford connected on 10 of 12 from the field and led Indiana with 22 points in the championship game.

Sixth-ranked Illinois raised its record to 10-1 with an easy 83-47 victory over winless South Carolina State. The Illini got 14 points each from Anthony Welch and Ken Norman, ran off to a 32-12 lead midway through the first half and waltzed through the second half.

ANOTHER CAKEWALK was conducted at Purdue, where the 4-1 Boiler-makers hosted Fredonia State, a Division III school from New York. Purdue had no trouble coming away with a 77-56 win.

The game was scheduled to make up for Louisville and DePaul cutting Purdue from their 1984-85 schedules.

Iowa's puff opponent was Illinois Wesleyan, which lost to the 8-1 Hawkeyes, 99-39.

Michigan State played a much tougher opponent in Missouri but came away with a 79-61 victory. Starting guards Scott Skiles and Sam Vincent came up with 21 and 25 points respectively for the 6-0 Spartans, who are off to their best start record-wise since 1958.

NORTHWESTERN'S WIN wasn't an easy one either, but it certainly was necessary. The Wildcats raised their record to 3-3 with a 64-59 victory over Northern Illinois, but they now must look ahead to playing two rated teams, Duke and DePaul.

Andre Goode led the Wildcats with 18 points.

On the West Coast, Minnesota finished the successful conference weekend by beating Oregon, 57-53. Tommy Davis led the 5-1 Gophers with 28 points, including six free throws in the final minute as Minnesota came back from a 13-point deficit.

Hawkeyes

Al Lorenzen is doing a heck of a job," Iowa Head Coach George Raveling said. "He's getting an appreciable amount of playing time based on his contribution."

RAVELING THEN BECAME a little upset when it was suggested that Lorenzen should begin to take over a starter's position.

"I think it's also important that I deal with the mental health of the other players too," Raveling said. "It's easy to say, 'Stick Lorenzen in there and do this.' Maybe I know some things that you don't know. I'm with those kids every day."

"I think whether I start or not is irrelevant," Lorenzen said. "Anytime you get that type of clock you can't complain."

"We look at this game as a stepping stone to the Big Ten season and we approach every game that way," he added. "We approach every game with the attitude that we have to do things in this game in order to beat the teams in the Big Ten."

The eighth-largest win ever for Iowa will definitely be the largest margin of victory this season as the Hawkeyes prepare for some tougher nonconference opponents and the Big Ten schedule.

Cyclones

"I'll be honest with you, me being sick may have affected the players," she added. "It's pretty hard to ask your players to go 100 percent when you yourself can't. I don't want that to sound like an excuse, though. Iowa played very tough."

DESPITE THE ROUT, Stringer said her squad is still looking for its identity. "It may have looked like we were running the score up, but we weren't," the Iowa coach said. "But we've been struggling. We've been practicing at 5:30 in the morning, doing anything to get it together. We knew we were capable, we just had to go out and do the job." Besides Long's 21 and Becker's 17 points, freshman Michelle Edwards chipped in 11 while Robin Anderson and Lynn Kennedy came off the bench to add 10 apiece.

Only Etta Burns was able to crack double figures for the Cyclones. She finished with 10 points, many coming late after the game was out of reach.

Iowa is now off until Dec. 28 when it travels to Philadelphia to take part in the LaSalle College Tournament. Iowa State, now 4-3, returns home to host Creighton tonight at Hilton Coliseum in Ames.

Coppola's 'Cotton Club' combines jazz, violence

By Richard Panek Staff Writer

IN THE COTTON CLUB, director Francis Coppola is going through the motions — his own and anyone else's.

When he hired Coppola, producer Robert Evans had only a pile of unsatisfactory scripts and a vague notion for a movie set in the Cotton Club, the Harlem hangout for gangsters, movie stars and aspiring black entertainers during Prohibition. Thus, Coppola joined the project early enough to make the movie according to his vision. Coppola has said he found in Evans' rough outline the chance to recreate the spirit of the old Warner Bros. studios.

"Warner's hit its stride with two kinds of movies, backstage musicals and gangster stories," he said. "The point is that while jazz and crime were keeping company in the movies, at the Cotton Club the relationship was real."

In The Cotton Club, however, Coppola redefines the relationship in movie terms. In its scope and violence, this movie is reminiscent of Coppola's The Godfather, itself at times a tribute to gangster movies. In its style and musical ambitions, this movie is reminiscent of his One from the Heart, itself a tribute to studio musicals. The Cotton Club is not quite Don Corleone Meets Busby Berkeley, but it's close.

IT WAS THE FILM version of novelist Mario Puzo's The Godfather that marked the previous collaboration among director Coppola, producer Evans and Puzo, who helped Coppola and Pulitzer Prize-winning author William Kennedy write the story for The Cotton Club. And even if the newspaper ads for The Cotton Club didn't make the connection explicit, this movie is clearly derivative of that 1972 masterpiece.

In that movie and its sequel, The Godfather, Part II, Coppola used the rise of the Mafia over several generations as a metaphor for the corruption of the immigrant class. In The Cotton Club, he sets the white, ethnic gangsters against a Hollywood backdrop. When the gifted musician Dixie Dwyer (played by Richard Gere) leaves the Cotton Club bandstand for an acting career in Hollywood, he becomes a star by portraying the mobsters he's known, especially his ex-boss Dutch Schultz.

WHICH CAME FIRST, the stereotype of the mobster or his silver screen counterpart? Coppola confuses the issue, such as it is, by loading his images with cliché after cliché of gangland lore. He throws in an over-the-shoulder shot of a jazzman's keyboard, shootouts galore, a montage of swirling newspapers and blasting tommyguns, even a cat that crosses the killers' path on their way to a massacre.

"It's all a part of the act," says the Cotton Club emcee after a brawl.

That statement summarizes the philosophy of Coppola's One from the Heart. (And it's spoken by Tom Waits, the singer whose music comprised the soundtrack to that earlier movie.) Show business invaded everyday life in One from the Heart, as Coppola sacrificed logic for the look of the set, a story for sentimentality, technical innovation for characterization.

In The Cotton Club, he again tries to intermingle music and plot. His story lines don't depend upon one another, but they do mix and jostle, weave and bob. He choreographs his set pieces — several long sequences inside the Cotton Club, on various evenings over several years in the late '20s and early '30s — as if they were visual jazz.

BACKSTAGE AND ONSTAGE are the blacks, the aspiring performers whose only entry into the Cotton Club is by the back door. Louis Armstrong and Cab Calloway are here, and so is Sandman Williams (Gregory Hines), whose battles with both his occasional lover and brother roughly parallel the strife on the other side of the footlights, between Dixie and both a moll and his own hood brother.

Ringside are the whites, the mobsters like Lucky Luciano and Owen Madden, who ran the Cotton Club, the movie stars like Gloria Swanson and Charlie Chaplin. Here the bosses divide the New York turf, deciding who gets how much of the take from the numbers scam in the black neighborhoods.

It's a rich canvas, and Coppola maintains his usual high standards. The individual moments of The Cotton Club are full of humor, stunning cinematography, lavish sets and immaculate musical numbers. Cumulatively, however, they're stale.

EVEN THE MOVIE'S climax, an extensive solo tapdance by Hines intercut with a massacre, is a lift from the climax of The Godfather. It was a virtuoso sequence a dozen years ago, but now it merely recalls Coppola's former inspiration. He follows the scene with a finale that actually mixes the stage show at the Cotton Club with a farewell at a train station. Again, he's recycling old ideas, this time the airport scene near the end of One from the Heart.

Coppola can't make these scenes new, and probably he doesn't want to. When everything is show business, nothing much matters except the effect. But even the effect here is tired. How could it be anything else? Coppola has done all this before, and so have the movies.

Reed trio does not miss an opportunity

By Kate Van Orden Staff Writer

WHAT COULD be nicer than a reed trio? Anyone answering that question in a way other than a heartfelt "Nothing!" had to have missed the Iowa Reed Trio last Thursday night in Clapp Recital Hall.

Although the music presented seemed to naturally highlight the oboe, the program eventually offered an opportunity to hear in turn each of the group's excellent musicians: oboist James Lakin, clarinetist Maurita Murphy Mead and bassoonist Ronald Tyree.

The evening opened with the Mozart Divertissement No. 2. The group warmed up to it a little slowly, but they finished with sharp dynamics and style although the rubato moments in the Rondo still came off rather strangely.

SUITE BY Darius Milhaud, a dance piece in C major based on a work by Michel Corrette, followed. The Corrette is exceptional in its simplicity and truly dance-like quality. This must have been the attraction for Milhaud as he retained it quite well. For anyone familiar with the original work, the performance of the more modern sounds of this impressionistic rendering was no disappointment. The Rondeaus especially danced and the high clarinet parts in the final movement, Le Coucou, finished the piece off with a rustic dash.

The second half of the program was the heavier in terms of technical challenges, particularly the Francaix Divertissement and a Trio by A. Szalowski. The Francaix was marked by moments of complex rhythms which came off well, particularly in the Prelude and Scherzo movements. The articulated runs in the Allegretto assai sounded easy and the arpeggiated clarinet part at the end was short but sweet. Again, the oboist stole the show in the Elegie, with its melody singing over a sleepy, vamping accompaniment.

THE SCHERZO of the Francaix, with its strong tutti runs set the stage perfectly for the Szalowski Trio. This piece used the instruments in a different way, placing them all on a more equal footing. Despite the occasionally unflattering sounds, it was good to hear more of each instrument's range, especially the higher bassoon line. Most of all, the tutti passages in the two Allegros added a big new sound, changing an evening in which basically sparser instrumentation often forced the bassoon and clarinet into the background. The gavotte movement had an almost Mozartian quality and the final allegro just tore through runs. Its contrast made it excellent programming and a pleasant surprise as well, considering the fact that Szalowski's not a known composer.

The program went back to the French for the "bow" on the end. Ibert's brief and sweet Cinq Pieces on Trio was typically pleasant, tuneful music. Though it sounded a little tired in the slower movements, it was otherwise just right.

Liz Update

Well, Dick has risen to the Big Pub in the Sky, but Liz is alive, well and about to get married again. And Liz lovers will be happy to know that this time Old Violet Eyes will cry no tears of shame.

Her intended is one Dennis Stein, a close pal of Old Blue Eyes and a former date mate of Joan Collins, three Miss Americas and several other Hollywood goddesses. Once he met La Liz in October, though, he knew the others were just yesterday's News of the World.

What's more, this guy has class: He bought Liz a 20-carat sapphire ring lined with diamonds. Compare that with her former "fiance," Latin loser Victor Luna, who stuck some dried lava on a beer can and had the audacity to call it an "engagement ring." If there's one thing Liz loves, it's big rocks — and Stein's got them.

And even better, Liz and Denny share the same triumph: He just went to the Pritikin Diet Clinic to shed 20 pounds and six inches around the waist (something Victor Luna might have considered). He looks marvelous now — almost as marvelous as Liz does in those size-8 gowns.

Liz, we love you — but we know now that there's someone who loves you more, someone who deserves you. It's time you put Dick behind you and sent Luna to the moon, and we knew you had the courage to do it. Your marriage to Denny truly makes it a happy new year.

• Walkabout. This 1971 Nicholas Roeg film tells the story of two white Australian children stranded in the Outback who are discovered by an Aborigine. At 10:30 p.m.

Television

On the networks: What would the Christmas season be without at least one "Bah! Humbug!" This year the yuletide grinchiness is supplied by George C. Scott as ever-lovable Ebenezer Scrooge in a "A Christmas Carol" (CBS at 7 p.m.), a new version that also stars David Warner and Susannah York. Just when you thought it was safe to enjoy the season, along comes "Little House: Bless All the Dear Children" (NBC at 8 p.m.), another visit by those pioneers on the prairie. The movie couldn't be any more saccharine than the title. And Robert Duvall and Olga Bellini star in "Tomorrow" (IPT-12 at 9 p.m.), a love story adapted from a short story by William Faulkner.

• On cable: Cary Grant abdicated his leading man status for the first time (and in his last film), instead playing the sly matchmaker for Jim Hutton and Samantha Eggar in Walk, Don't Run (TBS-15 at 9:05 p.m.), romantic comedy set against the backdrop of the 1964 Tokyo Olympics.

'Runaway' unsuccessful in attempt to escape a cinematic breakdown

By Merwyn Grote
Staff Writer

HUMAN BEINGS hate machines. We pretend to like them often enough, when they are working as they should, when they make our lives easier, when we find ourselves dependent on them. But deep down inside, we realize they cannot be trusted. They sit calmly, patiently waiting for the most opportune moment to break down and make our lives miserable. Machines are evil; anyone who has ever owned a 1974 Vega knows this.

So the film Runaway at least has a promising story idea. It is set in the future, sometime after society has become exceedingly reliant on machines. Most manual labor has been turned over to robots, some of which (called "runaways") have begun to exercise minds of their own. To battle these mechanical devils, the police department has set up a special division whose only service is to track down and apprehend the wayward gadgets.

ONE OF THESE MEN in blue is Jack Ramsey (Tom Selleck of TV's "Magnum, P.I."), a tough but lovable cop dedicated to always getting his machine. With his partner, Karen Thompson (played by Cynthia Rhodes, the only good thing to come out of Staying Alive), he rushes out into the field to pull any plug, flip any switch or short any circuit needed to send the culpable contrivances to robot heaven.

Two hours of Selleck battling vicious vacuum cleaners and mixing it up with murderous Mix Masters would seem to be more than enough plot for any movie, but writer-director Michael Crichton takes things further. It seems the mechanical marvels aren't really evil, but actually are pawns of a mad genius who has been re-programming them to go berserk and do his nefarious deeds.

The evil genius is Charles Luther, played by Gene Simmons, lead singer of the rock band Kiss. Armed with gadgets like a gun which fires miniature guided missiles that zip around corners and mechanical spiders programmed to go for the jugular and then explode in a burst of sparks and acid, it is quite clear he means business.

LUTHER IS AFTER a set of microchips that will make other machines go equally haywire. He will then use these machines to assassinate heads of state, endanger the lives of thousands of innocent people and push civilization to the brink of destruction — you know, all of the usual things that evil mad geniuses want out of life.

Jack Ramsey (Tom Selleck) tries to get himself out of a tight spot as destructively programmed spider robots move in for the kill in Runaway, now showing at the Campus 1.

Runaway

Directed and written by Michael Crichton. Produced by Michael Rachmil. Rated PG.

Jack Ramsey.....Tom Selleck
Karen Thompson.....Cynthia Rhodes
Charles Luther.....Gene Simmons
Jackie.....Kristie Alley
Marvin.....Stan Shaw

Showing at the Campus 1.

Can Luther succeed? Will he get the microchips? Will this be the end of civilization as we know it today? Is Tom Selleck the star of this movie? Well, since the answer to the last question is obviously "Yes," the answers to the others should be fairly evident.

Runaway is a glorified TV movie of the week: It was even financed in part by CBS and HBO, two of the investors in Tri-Star pictures. It is destined to go right to the small screen, where, it is safe to say, it will get pretty good ratings because it will be right at home. Even during the moments when the film succeeds, which admittedly is fairly frequently, the film thinks small, and, therefore, it is small.

CRICHTON HAS SHOWN he can make something good on limited means. His first film, the sci-fi classic Westworld (also dealing with renegade robots), turned the low-budget quality of the production to its favor, using its tackiness as a comment on the filmsy fantasy tale being told. Runaway also appears to be a tight-moneyed effort; though set in the future, all the cars and locations appear to be quite contemporary. Crichton, however, often makes it appear as though the film is technologically more advanced than it really is.

The gimmicks here are inventively presented, even if not particularly original. There are some fast and funny point of view shots: One takes the perspective of a speeding bullet; another follows murderous little robots speeding along the freeway, going around and under moving automobiles. And a climactic moment which finds Selleck dangling from a disabled elevator car as a hoard of metal spiders move in for the kill is very nicely handled.

UNFORTUNATELY, THOUGH, the film is flawed by routine material. Even with his persistent snarl and lethal doohickeys, Simmons' villain is not much different from the psychotic of the week who pops up regularly on shows like "T. J. Hooker." Likewise, Selleck's stalwart hero is the standard good guy hack writers conjure up when trying to sell a series to the networks. Selleck has the talent and the charisma to make the jump to the big-time world of feature motion pictures, but he lacks a film project to make the effort worth his while.

Runaway is not a bad movie. But, ironically, the script could have been supplied by a computer, the direction programmed on a microchip and the acting handled quite nicely by robots. In the end, it not only doesn't go anywhere, it seems to run down altogether. It is one of those machines that break down just when you want them to work the most.

Grant Wood art given to museum

The UI Museum of Art has recently acquired "Plaid Sweater," an oil painting on masonite by noted Iowa artist Grant Wood. The work is partially a gift of Mel and Carole Blumberg of Clinton and partially a purchase through the UI Foundation with present and future contributions. The painting is a portrait of Mel Blumberg as a young boy.

Painted in 1931, just one year after the famous "American Gothic," "Plaid Sweater" is considered one of Wood's finest portraits. "Plaid Sweater" was created in the same style as "American Gothic" and also is the same size, 30 inches by 25 inches.

According to Nan Wood, the painter's sister, when Wood was commissioned to create the portrait he asked to visit Blumberg's home and see his surroundings. The boy "came in from playing ball and had the plaid sweater on. Grant said that was the way he wanted to paint him — as an 'All-American Boy.'"

ROBERT HOBBS, director of the UI Museum of Art, said of the acquisition, "It is especially appropriate that a major Grant Wood painting come to the Museum of Art, since Wood was a professor at the School of Art and chose to spend his last years in Iowa City. It is the first major Grant Wood painting to enter the museum's permanent collection."

The painting has just returned from the national tour that Wanda M. Corn of Stanford University organized for the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

The Blumbergs also have donated an early Wood painting, "Calendulas in a Stone Vase," completed around 1928. This early work is typical of the general impressionistic style Wood practiced before he developed the immaculate realism for which he became famous.

"The Plaid Sweater," by Iowa artist Grant Wood is a new acquisition by the UI Museum of Art. It is a partial gift of Mel and Carole Blumberg, of Clinton, and was purchased through The University of Iowa Foundation from present and future gifts. Wood painted this portrait of Mel Blumberg in 1931.

Hollywood celebrities wed over weekend

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Three Hollywood celebrities, Olivia Newton-John, Sally Field and Bette Midler, were married over the weekend.

Australian singer-actress Newton-John, 36, married Matt Lattanzi, 25, in a private, black-tie ceremony at their Malibu home Saturday.

Newton-John, whose family flew in from Australia, wore a dress of white silk taffeta heavy with pearls, lace and crystal beads and the groom wore a black tuxedo. They were married at their home, decorated in country English style, by Santa Monica Superior Court Judge Jerry Pacht.

After the wedding, guests sat down to a traditional English dinner of turkey and ham. Their three-tiered wedding cake was filled with chocolate chips. Lattanzi appeared with Newton-John in Xanadu. His other films include Rich and Famous, Grease 2 and My Tutor.

After a honeymoon on an undisclosed location, the couple will live in Malibu.

A SHORT DRIVE away in the San Fernando Valley, actress Sally Field tied the knot with producer Alan Greisman.

Field, 38, and Greisman, 37, were married by a rabbi in a small family ceremony at her Tarzana home, and then gave a reception for about 100 friends and relatives, said spokeswoman Pat Kingsley. Field, who won an Oscar for her performance in Norma Rae, wore a white satin gown and Greisman turned out in a black tuxedo. It was Greisman's first marriage and Field's second. She has two sons, Peter, 15, and Eli, 12, by her first marriage to Steven Craig.

Among Greisman's producing credits are the recently released Windy City and Fletch starring Chevy Chase, to be released next spring.

After a skiing honeymoon, the couple will live in Field's home.

Details of singer-actress Bette Midler's wedding were kept under wraps, but a short prepared statement from her publicist revealed that she married Martin von Haselberg, described as a performance artist and commodities trader, Saturday in a private civil ceremony in Las Vegas.
