Special court indicts 26 for Aquino killing

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Armed Forces Chief Gen. Fabian Ver, a trusted aide and relative of President Ferdinand Marcos, was indicted Wednesday with 25 others for the 1983 slaying of popular opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

Metropolitan Police Commander Maj. Gen. Prospero Olivares, Ver, and six soldiers were named as accessories for allegedly covering up the assassination.

"I expected it," Ver, a distant cousin of Marcos, said in a telephone interview. "I'm prepared for it, like a good soldier."

Aquino was shot to death at Manila airport Aug. 21, 1983, as he stepped off a jetliner on his return from three years of self-imposed exile in the United States. His slaying sparked widespread demonstrations and the Philippines' worst political crisis since Marcos took power in 1965.

The man the military claimed assassinated Aquino, Rolando Galman, was killed at the airport by soldiers seconds after Aquino was shot. All 26 people indicted were also charged in Galman's death.

Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, chief of the elite Aviation Security Command responsible for Aquino's safety, two colonels and 14 other soldiers, including the former senator's escorts, were named as principals and face the maximum death penalty.

THE ONLY CIVILIAN named, businessman Hermilo Gosuico, was charged as an accomplice for his links to Galman. He faces from 30 years to life in prison.

Ver, who has been on leave since October, said he intended to post bail and expected to be exonerated. If convicted, Ver and the other eight people named as accessories in the double murder could be sentenced to from 12 to 20 years in prison.

The prosecution was unable to identify the Aquino triggerman but said he was among the escorts. "Most probably" either Sgt. Filomeno Miranda or Constable Rogelio Moreno. A special panel of investigators says Galman was set up to take the blame for the assassination.

The 18-page complaint listing the indictments and written by Ombudsman Bernardo Fernandez was filed at the

Lawyer files Kulow insanity defense

By Tamara Rood
 Staff Writer

An attorney representing Ronald Lee Kulow, 1024 E. Washington St., filed a notice Wednesday in Johnson County District Court stating that Kulow intends to rely on the defenses of insanity and diminished responsibility at his first-degree murder trial.

Kulow, 32, is accused of murdering his 27-year-old wife, Deborah A. Kulow, by slashing her throat in the couple's apartment Aug. 18.

Dr. Vernon Varner and Frank S. Gersh, Ph.D., both of Iowa City, will be called as "expert witnesses" in his defense, the notice states.

Kulow was charged with murder after he entered the Iowa City Police Department on Aug. 18 and told police to send someone to his residence because he had just cut his wife's throat, court records state.

After police read him his rights, Kulow told them he had warned his wife the night before her death and other occasions that he would kill her. Kulow told police he grabbed his wife by the hair, beat her head against a table and the floor, then took a kitchen knife and cut her throat, court records state.

The trial is scheduled to begin Feb. 25.

Douglas S. Russell, Kulow's attorney, also filed applications Wednesday for the appointment of a second attorney to the defense, and for authorization of a medical test at the state's expense.

Ronald Lee Kulow

"THERE HAS BEEN no first-degree murder case in Johnson County for more than a decade in which two lawyers were not appointed to handle the defense," the application for a second attorney states. Kulow is asking that the court appoint Iowa City attorney Kristin L. Hibbs.

Iowans praised for Ethiopia relief

DES MOINES (UPI) — The head of U.S. relief efforts in Ethiopia Wednesday commended Iowans for responding quickly and donating some $700,000 to help feed the starving people in Africa, but said the work is not done.

M. Peter McPherson, administrator of the Agency for International Development, gave a plaque of appreciation to Gov. Terry Branstad for Iowa's help. Money was given to two private organizations conducting relief efforts in Africa.

But McPherson, who also addressed the Iowa Pork Producers Association, said there will be continued need to help the famine-stricken Ethiopians at least through the rest of the year.

He said 1985 will be a rocky year, but, "I'm here to assure you it is having an impact. Food is getting into the mouths of children."

In addition to short-term food relief, McPherson said the U.S. government has developed a long-term program to make a "different and better Africa in the decades ahead."

He said one of the goals of President Ronald Reagan's "African Hunger Initiative" is to help Africa build an economic structure that can deal with the "recurring monsters" of drought.

THE LONG-TERM program also will intensify long-range African agricultural development. Officials hope to contribute to a "Green Revolution" — increasing food production on the continent's rain-short lands — through better seeds and agricultural practices.

McPherson said U.S. farmers and the nation's economy stand to benefit from the efforts to help Africa. He said experience in Taiwan and South Korea shows development strategies will lead to a faster rate of demand for agricultural products — including imports from the United States.

"The record shows that those developing countries that are the fastest growing producers of staple foods have also expanded their net imports of staple foods at a rapid rate," he said.

Meanwhile, in Ethiopia cholera is killing up to 80 famine victims daily at a relief camp in northern Ethiopia and could threaten hundreds of thousands of lives if the epidemic is not quickly contained, Western relief workers said Wednesday.

THE OUTBREAK of the intestinal disease was first detected about a month ago in the Harbo refugee camp near Kambolcha in Wallo region, about 150 miles northeast of the capital of Addis Ababa.

"The situation there now is desperate but the death toll is stabilizing now. The figure is about 60 per day at Harbo," a Western relief worker said. The London Times, in a Wednesday report, placed the Harbo death toll at 52, saying 529 of the camp's 5,200 refugees had cholera.

Cholera has also been detected in 10 other relief camps in the Wallo area as well as Sidamo province, south of Addis Ababa.

Cholera is characterized by severe diarrhea and vomiting and is spread rapidly by contaminated water. Doctors say it can prove fatal within seven days without treatment.

Diplomats said the Marxist Ethiopian government had been reluctant to acknowledge the cholera outbreak publicly but had taken steps to combat the epidemic with the help of Western relief agencies.

A WELL AND PUMP being used at Harbo was designed for fewer than half the people currently sheltered there and people have been drinking from a brackish river nearby, the Times said.

The government has placed an armed guard at the river and has chlorinated its waters. The London-based Oxfam relief organization has installed a 11,887-gallon water tank.

The United Nations is airlifting tons of emergency food and medical supplies to nearby Sudan for more than 400,000 refugees who have fled Ethiopia in the past three months, officials said Wednesday.

The 10-day airlift began Jan. 20 from Amsterdam and is expected to cost an estimated $775,000, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said from the regional headquarters in Nairobi.

"The UNHCR has chartered two Boeing 707 aircraft to ferry emergency medical supplies, food and other materials to eastern Sudan from Europe," the spokesman said.

In Washington, the State Department announced an Air Force transport plane loaded with $124,000 worth of emergency food supplies for Ethiopian famine victims would leave for the Sudan Wednesday night.

Students urged to fly to the sun on 'war' fares

By Sue Stoga
 Staff Writer

With the recent wave of sub-zero temperatures, it's easy to imagine lying on a Florida beach soaking up the sun during spring break.

According to local travel agents, now is the time for students to be planning what to do during the March 22-31 spring break at the UI.

"This is exactly the time that students should be thinking about booking airfare, hotels or packages for their break," said Wanda Langreck, a travel counselor for AAA Travel, 2620 Muscatine Ave. "It's especially hectic here now because of the price wars going on between the airlines."

Linda Lee, manager of Red Carpet Travel, 336 S. Clinton St., said the "price wars between the airlines have given us a phenomenal amount of business and it would be to a student's advantage to make travel plans as soon as possible."

According to Langreck, Lee, and other Iowa City travel agents, major airlines such as United, American, Delta and others have launched a "price war" on airfare, enabling individuals to travel to major cities within the country for as low as $100 round trip.

"WITH THESE PRICES it's cheap to go anywhere in the country," Langreck said.

Airfare to traditional spring break hot spots in Florida such as Tampa, Daytona Beach, Orlando or Fort Myers is currently $178 round trip, according to Lori Jensen of Travel and Transport Agency in Cedar Rapids.

"The $178 is a good deal," Jensen said, because airfare to Florida can normally run more than $300.

Although all of the agencies agree the current discount airfares are a good buy, they warned price wars fares are not always the best buys for students.

"The price wars fares are very restrictive," Lee said. "It may not be the best deal for a student."

"You have to book your trip at least 30 days ahead of time and there is a 25 percent cancellation fee," said Larry Chegwidden, president of Travel Services, Inc., 216 First Ave. in Coralville.

A REPRESENTATIVE for American Airlines said the stipulations on the price wars packages were instituted "to insure that people did not book their flights and cancel, leaving us with an influx of seats at low prices."

However, if a student can be sure of a departure and return date for a trip, price wars fares can take you almost anywhere.

"We've had a lot of students interested in Florida," Lee said. "The Arizona cities such as Phoenix and Tucson have also been popular."

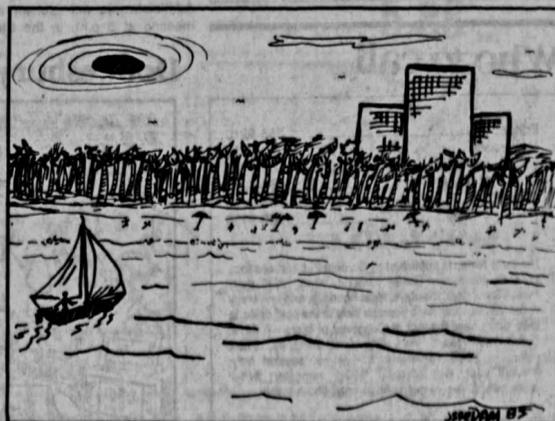

"Texas and Phoenix have been popular as well as Florida," Jensen said. In addition to booking separate airfare and hotels, students can make arrangements for a trip through various travel packages.

"You can get packages for very good prices depending on what area you want to go to," Langreck said.

"I don't think that a lot of people realize that they can get airfare and accommodations lower through a package than booking it themselves," Lee said.

Black South African killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police shot to death William Kratshi, 25, Tuesday when he resisted arrest for an incident Saturday in which police were insulted and stoned, and a police vehicle was dented, police Maj. Eddie Snyman said Wednesday.

When officers went to Kratshi's home to ask him to accompany them to a police station, Kratshi resisted by biting a policeman twice and then stabbing him in the back with a dining fork, according to Snyman. However, Anver Essop, the mixed-race "colored" member of Parliament for the district, told the Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail Kratshi was shot after police fired tear gas into the house. Snyman denied tear gas was fired.

Fire burned near warheads

BONN, West Germany — A West Germany television report Wednesday said a battery of U.S. Pershing 2 missiles studded with nuclear warheads was only 250 yards from the site of an unarmed rocket that accidentally ignited this month, killing three American soldiers. U.S. and West German military officials refused to confirm or deny the report.

The broadcast said if the nearby warheads had been damaged, the accident could have contaminated the surrounding region and its 500,000 inhabitants with deadly plutonium.

VISTA money to Birthright

WASHINGTON — Heads of a federal program for the poor awarded about $100,000 in volunteer aid to an anti-abortion group and an administration appointee urged the organization to apply for $15 million more, officials say.

VISTA is providing Birthright's Massachusetts office with a $21,000-a-year staff coordinator and $78,000 in subsidies for a dozen volunteers, according to Bill Cosby, head of the government agency's Massachusetts state office.

Grandmother nabbed for pot

BOSTON — A 59-year-old grandmother accused of using her grandchildren to help her peddle marijuana pleaded guilty to drug charges Wednesday and received a six-month suspended sentence.

Police said when Carmen Diaz was arrested earlier this month she was running a $1,000-a-week marijuana business out of her apartment. The arrest was made after undercover police, following up complaints from neighbors, bought marijuana from the woman's 10- and 11-year-old granddaughters.

Spermicide ruled harmful

ATLANTA — A federal judge ruled a widely used spermicide caused birth defects in a 3-year-old girl and ordered the manufacturer to pay $5.1 million damages to the child and her mother.

U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob ruled Tuesday that Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. of Raritan, N.J., which makes Ortho-Gynol Contraceptive Jelly, should have warned its users that birth defects can result from conceptions the gel fails to prevent.

Myth about Indians dispelled

CEDAR FALLS — The myth of free-drinking alcoholic American Indians is a misperception created by a white, middle-class value system, said University of Northern Iowa professor Thomas Hill, after 14 years of research on the use of alcohol by native American cultures in western Iowa and Nebraska.

Hill said sociological and economical pressures contribute to drinking by Indians — not the popular perception of a physiological difference. A key to understanding the situation is to realize the century-old acceptance of mind-altering states by some native Americans.

UI student P.R. group wins Levi's award

Pro-Addition — the student-run public relations agency of the UI School of Journalism — has been awarded honorable mention and $100 cash prize in a competition sponsored by Levi-Strauss & Co. in cooperation with the Public Relations Student Society of America.

The "Levi's Campus Public Relations Challenge" invited student-run public relations agencies from colleges all over the country to design and execute publicity programs promoting Levi's 501 jeans.

The competition provided students with practical public relations experience as well as the opportunity to work with an international corporation and a professional public relations agency. Golin/Harris Communications Inc., the public relations agency for Levi Strauss & Co., coordinated the competition.

Pro-Addition was one of 14 agencies selected to compete this year. Other competing agencies came from schools in states ranging from Oklahoma to New Jersey, with student populations ranging from 9,000 to 48,000.

Each agency was asked in September to develop a proposal for their publicity campaign. The students' objective was to increase awareness of the 501 jeans line. They were given a budget, gift certificates for 501 jeans and promotional posters with which to work.

Pro-Addition's campaign was conceived and executed by an account team consisting of students Jodi Stone, Scott Williams, Debbie Duncan, Lisa Ehrle, Francis Brandt, Chris Wuertz and Laurie Joachim. Pro-Addition sponsored a "Levi's 501 Month," a "Create-Your-Own-Look" 501 jeans contest and a 501 jeans fashion show at an area mall.

Local construction drops

Nonresidential construction in Iowa City

fell 63 percent in November 1984 as compared to November 1983, according to figures released this month by the F.W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company.

George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of Dodge, said $321,000 of nonresidential construction took place last November, compared to $871,000 the year before. Residential construction fell 32 percent during that time as well, dropping from $2.13 million in November 1983 to $1.46 million last November.

Residential buildings include houses, apartments, motels, dormitories and other buildings designed for shelter. Nonresidential buildings include commercial, manufacturing, educational, religious, administrative and recreational buildings.

Senior Center purchases phonic ear system

The Iowa City Senior Center recently announced the purchase of a hearing augmentation system by the City of Iowa City.

The system is for use by people who have difficulty understanding the speaker in large group meetings and may be used by people with or without hearing aids.

The hearing augmentation system permits freedom of movement without loss of hearing clarity. It also allows the user to cut out background noises and focus directly on the speaker.

The phonic ear system will be housed at the Senior Center but may be reserved for use at meetings or activities which occur in City facilities. To insure the availability of the speaker system interested parties should call one of the following numbers, depending on the location of their meeting: Senior Center 356-5220, Civic Center 356-5000, or Recreation Center 356-5100.

Emergency routes in city receive plowing priority

The City of Iowa City has adopted a policy of snow removal for 184 miles of streets and 17 miles of alleys.

First priority for snow removal is bus and hospital emergency routes. Next are highly trafficked streets, collector routes, and residential streets with steep slopes.

The third priority include all the other streets in the city. The last to be plowed will be alleys.

Plowing begins when there is an accumulation of three inches or more of snow on the streets and more is expected.

When there is less than three inches of snow expected, sand and salt will be used.

Property owners are responsible for shoveling their sidewalks "within a reasonable amount of time" in accordance with the provisions of HF359, as passed by the Seventieth General Assembly of the Iowa Legislature.

An automatic answering service has been installed to relate the status of the snow and ice removal. The number is 356-5186.

Supervisors approve construction final plans

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors Tuesday approved final construction plans for the new county office facility to be located at the present site of Elm Grove Park.

Original plans to construct a three-story building were amended by the supervisors who decided a two-story facility would be less expensive to construct.

"We looked at office plans for the new building and met with (architect) Roy Neumann and decided to go with two stories and a pitched roof," said Supervisor Betty Ockenfels. "As it is now, it will cost us $2.3 million to build."

Ockenfels said the proposed building will house everything from the present courthouse, with the exception of the Clerk of Court and the county attorney which will remain at the present courthouse.

Groups to honor King's birthday

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

Although Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday will not become an officially celebrated holiday until 1986, UI and Iowa City groups are banding together tonight for a special tribute to the civil rights activist.

The salute, "Saluting the Past, Securing the Future, The Struggle Continues," is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom and is open to the public.

Steven Gregory, coordinator of the second annual tribute, said the event provides an opportunity for black students to "show our appreciation for a man who did so much for us."

"Martin Luther King had a big effect on black students' ability to get into law school, medical school and graduate school," Gregory said.

The tribute is being sponsored by the UI College of Law Black Law Student Association in cooperation with the Collegiate Associations Council, College of Law Lecture Committee, University Lecture Committee, International Law Society, Special Support Services and Black Student Union.

"We are well aware of the contributions of Martin Luther King but in the 20 years since his death there have not been constitutional changes dealing with issues like the voting rights act," Gregory said.

"HIS 'I HAVE A DREAM' saying is almost cliché, but it's still so true," he said. "Until there is complete, uncon-promised freedom for everyone — blacks and whites — the struggle will continue."

He added a special portion of the program will be targeted at children and will provide a historical overview of King's contributions to society.

"Martin Luther King is to young kids what Abraham Lincoln is to us. He was a great man, but he lived a long time ago and they don't know a lot about him," Gregory said.

Dick Gregory, internationally known human rights activist, satirist, author and speaker will be the featured speaker at tonight's UI tribute to King.

Dick Gregory gained fame as a comedian, actor and recording artist and is credited with "opening many doors for black entertainers."

His participation in the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's and efforts toward world peace, rights of American Indians and abolishing hunger are well documented.

In 1974 Dick Gregory ran from Chicago to Washington, D.C., to call attention to world hunger. His fasts have become legendary and have been employed to symbolize the suffering of oppressed people around the world.

DURING HIS 1980 journey to Iran he consumed a liquids-only diet for 145 days as he prayed for the release of American hostages and the cessation of world hostility.

More recently he visited Irish Republican Army hunger strikers in England, supervised a 1981 fast in New Orleans and assisted the Equal Rights Amendment movement by instructing hunger strikers in Illinois in 1982.

"I think the tribute is especially important when you sit down and recount the tremendous contributions Dr. King made," said Gregory Williams, associate dean of the UI College of Law.

"It's important to remind people of Dr. King's accomplishments, and I think this tribute will do just that," Williams said.

Steven Gregory called the tribute a "multiple effort" and said in addition to the King salute, the event will concentrate on "international problems."

"We'll be focusing on apartheid in Africa, hunger in Ethiopia ... The Iowa City community is an enlightened community and they've made an effort to understand these problems," Steven Gregory said. "We hope this program will add to what people already know and make them want to know more."

Goodwill helps disabled find jobs

By Jim Hintzen
Special to The Daily Iowan

Goodwill Industries of Iowa City has topped other Goodwill offices nationwide in a federal government program designed to increase the job placement of the disabled in area communities.

During the first six months operating under the Projects with Industry program, the Iowa City Goodwill office placed 26 handicapped workers in jobs in private businesses.

Goodwill offices in Cleveland and Santa Rosa, Calif., finished in second and third places, placing 25 and 23 disabled workers in jobs respectively.

Under the federal program, the Iowa City Goodwill office received a $32,500 grant. The Iowa City office used the funds to form a Projects with Industry Advisory Council and hire Arlys Schlichting and Deborah Moore as job placement specialists.

Shiliching said it was the "fine response" from the Iowa City and Coralville business community that enabled Goodwill Industries of Iowa City to capture the No. 1 ranking.

LOCAL BUSINESS owners and managers say they are pleased with the program and the quality of the workers.

John Watson, executive director of the local Projects with Industry program, said, "We were very pleased with the (advisory) committee's progress and enthusiasm. The benefits that are there for businesses as well as the workers are certainly going to pay back the government many-fold by making tax revenues from their wages."

Burger King, 124 S. Dubuque St., currently employs two handicapped workers through the program. The owner of the restaurant, Dean Thornberry, said, "They're so happy to have a job and they're such good workers. If I had to cut back on help, they would not be the ones let go."

Thornberry said he thinks more businesses in the area should consider working with the program. "I think if more people were active it would be an immense help not just to them, but to the entire Iowa City area. I feel it's just part of my responsibility to the community."

KEITH CLARK, manager of Randall's Mini-Priced Foods, Highway 6, Coralville, said he is interested in the Project with Industry program. "It's something I've wanted to do a long time," he said. "We're hoping to hire somebody from the program in the near future."

The Projects With Industry Advisory

Council, which was formed last October, is made up of 10 local people. The council assists Goodwill with advice on training and placement of the disabled in the Iowa City community.

Businesses represented on the council include Burger King, Fanfare Shoes, Hawkeye Food Systems, Inc., Ironmen Inn, Mercy Hospital, Servicemaster Building Maintenance, Veterans Administration hospital and the UI.

Sue Brusewitz, a member of the council, said, "Our council is very new, only a couple of months old. We're studying the potential of the Iowa City community, so we'll know the kinds of jobs, employers and areas that currently exist."

She said the council is continuing to seek out employers and has the potential to place about five to 10 disabled individuals in jobs a month.

Highlanders weather adversity with aplomb

By Karen Burns
Staff Writer

Money almost kept the UI Scottish Highlanders from representing Iowa in the Presidential Inaugural Parade Monday, but after successfully raising the $4,000 needed to reach Washington, D.C., an even stronger force — the weather — deflated the bagpipers' plans.

The Highlanders may have felt the band's inaugural march just wasn't in the cards as they struggled last semester to raise the funds needed to appear. On receiving nearly $5,000 in donations from the band's alumni, the Highlanders expressed disappointment that the parade was cancelled due to arctic temperatures.

But they managed to have a good time, anyway.

"We were really disappointed, of course, but kind of relieved because it was incredibly cold," Highlanders'

Band Manager Brenda Sutherland said of the thwarted march.

"Even for Iowans it was unbearable," she added.

UI sophomore Elizabeth Mayer, the band's bagpipe major, said, "The only ones who were prepared for this were the dog sled team from Alaska."

THE GROUP had been considering pulling out of the parade because of the frigid temperatures even before the presidential announcement that it would be cancelled. Becky Mayer, a bagpiper for the Highlanders, said the group would not have "realistically" been able to march. "I'm glad we didn't have to pull ourselves out of the parade," she said.

Instead of marching in the cold weather, the 40-member band paraded through the Canon Building, which houses the congressional offices.

Rep. Cooper Evans, R-3rd District, invited the group to a reception in his office Monday, Sutherland said. The group had not planned to attend because of the parade, but decided to visit the congressman after it was cancelled.

The group marched in full uniform, following Evans on a tour of the building, before the bagpipe instructor gave a mini-recital in the rotunda.

Highlanders' drum instructor Mike Hooley — a UI first-year doctoral student in music — said the band was invited to perform in the special indoor inaugural parade along with everyone else who was scheduled to march outdoors.

But he said the group chose to go to Evans' office because it was "more personal, a better choice."

THE RECEPTION "really made it (the trip) worthwhile," Hooley added. But UI senior and drum major Tom

McGuire said the opportunity to sightsee in the nation's capitol also made the trip "worthwhile."

Even sightseeing was difficult, though, he said, because "it was so cold, it made it almost impossible to get from building to building."

Although the group did not march, the bagpipers were well-prepared to represent the state in the parade. "We sound better now than we have for the last two years, by practicing for the parade. It was not a total loss — we're in much better shape for the next parade," McGuire said.

Not only do they sound better, but they are a more cohesive unit, Sutherland said. "The members banded together."

Spending a lot of time with the other band members was the highlight of Becky Mayer's trip, she said. "It's really neat to get to know everybody much better."

Chinese troops launch counterattack on Vietnam

PEKING, and ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (UPI) — Chinese troops along the Vietnamese frontier launched a counterattack in retaliation for a series of Vietnamese border provocations Wednesday while Cambodian guerrillas battled Hanoi's troops on four fronts near the tense Thai-Cambodian border.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Ma Yuzhen said the Chinese action followed stepped-up provocations by Vietnamese forces, including nine ground attacks and artillery barrages of thousands of rounds in one day.

"In face of the reckless provocations by the Vietnamese authorities, the Chinese frontier forces were forced to counterattack in self-defense and gave the troublemakers and invaders their due punishment," Ma said in a prepared statement issued at a regular Wednesday news briefing.

HE GAVE NO indication whether the fighting was still going on and gave no casualty figures in the Chinese counterattacks.

China and Soviet-supported Vietnam fought a brief but bloody border war in 1979 and have reported periodic clashes since then, often coinciding with Hanoi's offensives against the Peking-backed Cambodian guerrillas.

He said Hanoi began intensifying its provocations against China in November, coinciding with the start of Vietnam's dry-season offensive against Peking-backed Cambodian guerrillas along the Thai-Cambodian border.

In Cambodia the communist Khmer Rouge, who are supported by the Chinese, staged preemptive attacks on Vietnamese bases at Nihom Sihanouk and Khao Din, 28 miles south of the Thai border town of Aranyaprathet, Thai military sources said.

North of Aranyaprathet, which is 120 miles east of Bangkok, the anti-communist Khmer Peoples National Liberation Front — supported by the United States — mounted hit-and-run attacks on Vietnamese troops occupying two former KPRLF bases.

The Khmer Rouge, the KPRLF and followers of Prince Norodom Sihanouk form a coalition Cambodian government-in-exile fighting to overthrow the Hanoi-installed government of Heng Samrin, which is backed by 160,000 Vietnamese troops.

In Bangkok, Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian promised Thailand that China would not stand idly by in the face of the Chinese offensive.

U.S. Navy ship finds wreckage of military plane

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — Rescue workers searching the Honduran coastline Wednesday uncovered the remains of a U.S. military transport plane that crashed into the Caribbean Sea but found no trace of the 21 Americans aboard, the U.S. Embassy said.

The Navy frigate USS McCloy, which earlier made a sonar contact, found the C-130A Hercules between 300 and 500 yards from Puerto Castilla in the Caribbean sea off Honduras' northern coast, embassy spokesman Robert Callahan said.

The four-engine propeller-driven cargo plane flying from Panama disappeared Tuesday morning as it headed toward a landing at Puerto Trujillo, some 150 miles northeast of Tegucigalpa.

The U.S. Embassy said a team of divers from Howard Air Force Base in Panama began searching the waters near the wreckage but as of 5 p.m. Iowa time no trace of the 21 Americans was found.

The U.S. Southern Command in Panama said some equipment apparently from the C-130 was found by ground search parties on a beach north of Puerto Castillo, near Trujillo air base. The items included a sleeping bag, an unused life raft with the serial number of the aircraft, aircrew helmet bags and helmets.

A HONDURAN CIVIL aviation official said that someone called Goloson Airport, 40 miles west of Port Trujillo, Tuesday saying he had seen a plane crash into Trujillo.

The Pentagon said the plane carried 16 passengers and five crew members and identified all the men but one whose relatives had not yet been notified.

Both U.S. Air Force and Honduran air force rescue teams, using airplanes and helicopters, began searching the coast at dawn Wednesday morning, but their efforts were hampered by bad weather and rough seas. There found no sign of the craft or survivors, U.S. and Honduran officials said.

The Pentagon gave no details about the mission or what the plane may have been carrying besides the military personnel.

U.S. troops began carrying out joint military maneuvers with Honduran troops in February 1983 to display U.S. strength in the region and prevent what the Reagan administration views as the spread of Marxist subversion from leftist-ruled Nicaragua.

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Navy ships, planes and helicopters expanded their search today for a Navy VA-3B transport plane with nine people aboard that vanished from radar screens and was believed to have crashed in the Pacific Ocean.

The aircraft was reported overdue and missing at 1 p.m. Iowa time Wednesday after it disappeared from the Guam Air Traffic Control radar about 125 miles north of Guam, a Pentagon spokesman said.

Sources at the squadron to which it was assigned said the plane carried nine people, including the squadron commander. The sources said they believe the passengers and crew may have survived using life saving equipment aboard the plane.

Daylong search efforts Wednesday were hampered by strong winds and rough seas, but a tropical depression that had covered the Marianas chain of islands was reported breaking up today.

Eleven Navy ships joined aircraft and helicopters in one of the most extensive air and sea searches in the area this morning, said Lt. Roberta Hackney, spokeswoman for U.S. Naval forces in the Marianas.

Hackney said the search was expanded today from south of Guam to the north of Saipan and to the east and west to cover an area of about 300 square miles.

The aircraft was assigned to the Navy's Guam Base, Fleet Air Reconnaissance squadron No. 1, and was returning to Guam from Atsugi, Japan, "on a routine mission," the Pentagon spokesman said. Flying time between the two bases is about three hours.

Weather hinders search for plane

ROOSEVELT ROADS NAVAL BASE, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A U.S. Navy training helicopter carrying four crewmen crashed into the Caribbean Sea, killing one of the men, a Navy spokesman said Wednesday.

The three others aboard the unarmed SH-3G helicopter were fished out of the water by a harbor patrol boat from the Roosevelt Roads Navy base on Puerto Rico's east coast shortly after the accident Tuesday night, spokesman Lt. John Tull said.

The body of the dead crewman was not recovered until Wednesday morning after a nightlong search. He was identified as Ramnarine Bahan, 22, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., an aviation machinist's mate.

The cause of the crash, which took place during a night training flight about six miles southeast of the harbor at Roosevelt Roads, was under investigation, Tull said.

The injured were hospitalized for shock and lacerations and were reported in stable condition, Tull said.

A Canadian helicopter, in the area for routine training, assisted in the rescue, Tull said.

Attacking symptoms

Several new protest groups have been getting a lot of attention in Iowa City and Cedar Rapids lately. These groups, whose members range from civil activists to feminists to fundamentalist Christians, are out to clean up central Iowa. They oppose pornography, and their protests include picketing the places that sell it and ripping up or defacing magazines in those stores.

Certainly the anger and outrage of these groups is justified. There has been a frightening trend in sexual taste in the last few years. Of course the victims in pornography are always female, just as the victims of sexual violence in real life usually are.

The blatant promotion of rape and torture fantasies is a new dimension in pornography that is understandably disturbing to all sensitive adults. Obviously, there is a great deal of pent up anger being aimed at women. From magazines to movies to crime statistics across the country, women are literally taking a beating.

The causal relationship between violent pornography and sexual violence is an unclear one. Yet the issue that is not in doubt is that the existence and popularity of explicitly violent pornography is a symptom of warped ideas of sexuality.

But does venting one's anger and frustration by ripping up an offensive magazine do anything to increase understanding of this sexual sickness or to work constructively toward its cure?

Boycotts, public education and increased dialogue on the issue are all essential to stemming the harm done everyone by violent pornography and in society. Defining pornography presents a serious problem, however. Some activists consider violence against women obscene, while others include blasphemy and ridicule of the Bible in their definition of the term. Thus legal attempts at censorship would be difficult and dangerous. Violence against the magazines or those who sell them also does more harm than good.

Violent pornography is a symptom of a cultural sickness that must be dealt with at its cause. Something has so frustrated our society as to make sexual violence acceptable. Getting to that problem requires more than violence against magazines.

Informing decoys

Media reports on the use of underage decoys to apprehend sellers of beer to minors have said little, if anything, about the children involved.

Police are attempting to use this method to stop beer sales to minors in response to complaints from the public — the complainers being parents who either suspect their children are buying beer or whose children have reported to them that beer is being bought and consumed illegally by their friends.

The use of decoys is troubling. Because the decoys do not have anxieties about being apprehended, it is easy to understand why their manner in the stores gives no hint to the sellers that anything wrong is being done. Youthful offenders are far more likely to be nervous, and show it, if they fear being caught. No wonder the sellers did not feel compelled to ask for proof of age, when the children's mature appearance was matched by their cool demeanor.

A local magistrate who heard the case against an accused illegal beer seller found the defendant not guilty because the defense established that the clerk had no reason — behavior or appearance — to believe the decoy was underage. Police say future prosecution of cases may be jeopardized by their inability to produce decoys in court because of the need to protect them from reprisals; denial of the right of accused to face accuser (the decoy) is also seen as a hindrance to the prosecution, and with good reason: It's an honorable tradition.

The decoy children are paid by the city. How are they recruited? And what are we promoting if we condone — let alone encourage — this kind of thing? Self righteous informers? The decoys' parents, by allowing the action, are also teaching the children by example to be hypocrites and cowards. Disgusting.

Calling the shots

After a delay due to inclement weather, Discovery is today scheduled to take off from the Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla. on the space shuttle's first secret military mission. It is widely believed the shuttle will put into orbit an advanced intelligence-gathering satellite capable of monitoring Soviet radio and satellite communications and missile tests.

Exactly when and where whatever is to go on up there will go on is a secret. Save a few leaks, the mission is under tight wraps. The Air Force won't even disclose the length of the mission.

Some details disseminated by the news media were criticized by the administration as an endangerment to national security. But Senate Intelligence Committee members Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., acknowledge that those reports did not contain any information "that was not already in the public knowledge."

Why did the Air Force call a press conference to ask the media to disseminate information already on the public record? It seems the administration dared the media to defy the information ban only to establish precedent for the military space years ahead.

The Defense Department has a space budget even greater than that of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and Defense plans to embark on two more secret shuttle missions this year. About one-third of all future shuttle missions are to be paid for by Defense, which is building its own launch site at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. With the Air Force's new fleet of unmanned satellite launchers, the relationship between space and defense becomes more intimate. With Defense holding the purse and calling the shots, we enter a new and dangerous era.

Clinic bombings aren't anarchy

By Russell McCreedy

PRESIDENT REAGAN, commenting on the current rash of abortion clinic bombings: "I condemn, in the strongest terms, those individuals who perpetrate these and all such violent, anarchist activities."

A shifting of the terms of discourse eminently worthy of the Great Prevaricator, a truly "red" herring: Self-proclaimed Christians bomb abortion clinics in the very name of Christianity, and, facing mounting public pressure ("for god's sake, say something"), the president forcefully condemns... anarchists! One can almost see them roaming the street, hordes of foreign-looking, bearded, bomb-throwing assassins, fomenting revolution and chaos left and... well, never mind.

It is undeniable that there have been anarchists who have thrown bombs. But bomb-throwing is no more central to the philosophy of anarchism than it is to Christianity. And all bomb-throwers are not anarchists any more than all anarchists are bomb-throwers.

In just what sense, then, were the abortion clinic bombings "anarchist" activities? Certainly not with regard to ends. The bombers, it is safe to assume, aim to see all abortions stopped. Presumably they are not only willing but positively eager to crank up the machinery of the state and extend the rule of law to prohibit abortion. "There oughta be a law" might well be their credo.

THIS SORT OF attitude is in fact the antithesis of anarchism. The anarchist rejects, in principle, the primacy of the law and the extension of the rule of the state. He maintains that the state exists without benefit of moral underpinnings, and hence has no claim to moral legitimacy or obedience. The vision that guides him is of a cooperative, non-coercive, non-hierarchical society wherein the individual is left free to make his own moral choices.

With respect to means, the distinction between the abortion clinic bombers and the anarchist may perhaps blur somewhat, in that rather than contenting themselves with impotent appeals to the Powers That Impede the clinic bombers instead opted to take direct action. This is historically an anarchist tactic.

Yet there is nothing implicitly violent in the principle of direct action. For the anarchist, direct action is more likely to result in a peaceful withdrawal from the mainstream of society, via co-ops or communes, than in a violent confrontation. Indeed, it can be plausibly argued that violence, as the quintessential manifestation of power, is itself inconsistent with anarchism.

Thus, when the word "anarchist" is used spuriously as a kind of generic epithet, I cringe; particularly when the offending speaker is the chief law enforcement officer of the land, a man whose lexicon is otherwise so finely tuned as to discern minute distinctions between totalitarian and authoritarian regimes, and between freedom fighters and terrorists.

WE ARE FAST approaching yet another centennial — one that probably will pass unremarked. Just under a hundred years ago, the state of Illinois sentenced seven anarchists to death for the Haymarket bombing in Chicago. The prosecution never alleged that any of the seven was the actual bomb-thrower; the fact that they were anarchists was sufficient. Three years later all seven received full pardons, five of them posthumously.

The Constitution under whose protection they died was the same Constitution that safeguards our liberties today; it has been handed down to us substantially unaltered.

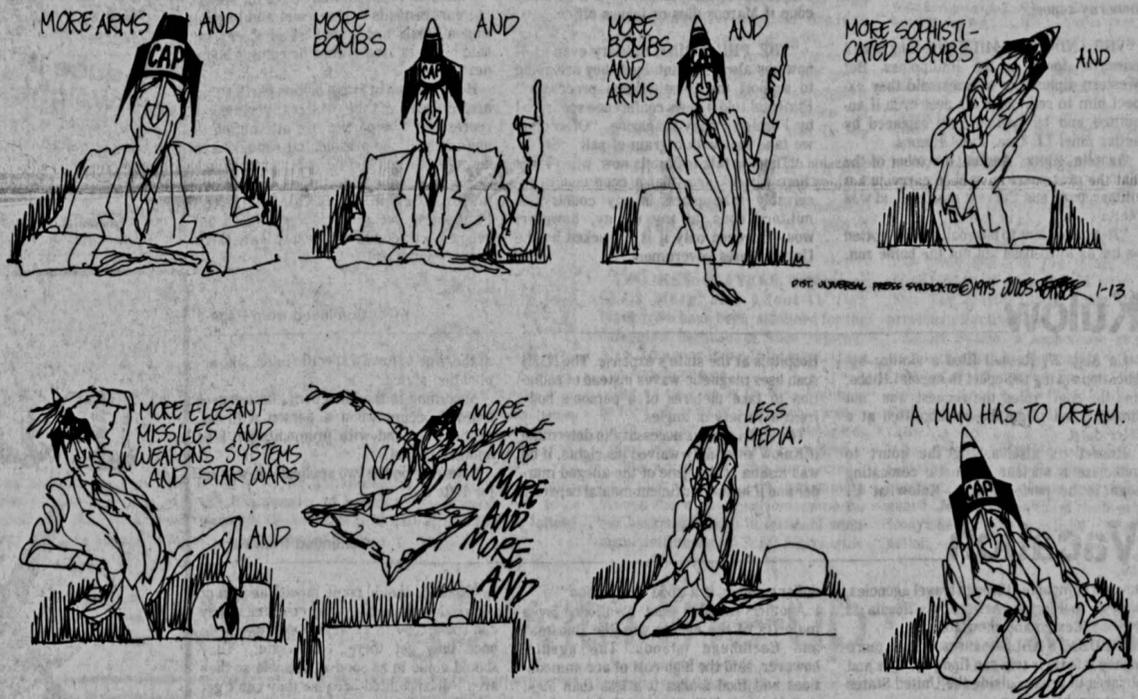

Since the deaths of the Haymarket anarchists, we have, as a nation, endured two full-blown red scares with their attendant consequences and have seen revelation heaped upon revelation of nastiness perpetrated by government agents against dissidents in the 1960s and 70s.

I look forward to a day when the anarchist will have less to fear from the state than the state has to fear from him.

But in the meantime — puh-leeze, Mr. President:

An anarchist is not an epithet.

Democrats seek to avoid disaster

SOON THE Democratic Party will choose a new chairperson. And the biggest news about the race at this point is the pervasive lack of interest in its outcome.

Two months ago, Democratic governors, concerned about the party's back-to-back drubbings in presidential elections and convinced that things were headed from bad to worse, set out to find a candidate for party chair who would project a moderate image and do a passable job at organization and fundraising. What they found was that no one who fit those requirements was interested in the job.

The race has now boiled down to a contest between Paul Kirk, current party treasurer and former chief aide to Teddy Kennedy; Nancy Pelosi, former chairwoman of the California Democratic Party; and Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and Duke University president.

Kirk, a skillful and intelligent political operative, is the current front-runner, though still well short of a majority of the 378-member Democratic National Committee. He is the only candidate with a personal base of support among DNC members. Even those who oppose him admit that he would be a competent chairman, but his association with Kennedy terrorizes moderate to conservative Democratic officeholders, particularly in the South.

"MY BIGGEST problem," said one Sunbelt senator, "is that half my constituents think Ted Kennedy runs the party and that (a Kirk victory) would just confirm their suspicions." Others shrug followed by an accelerating withdrawal from party affairs of moderate and conservative Democrats from both the Sunbelt and the Midwest.

Jody Powell

Sort of a Kirk victory would be the "final straw" for a host of top contributors.

Pelosi, too, is recognized as a competent and attractive candidate, but also suffers from a similar image problem. The difficulty is her leadership of the California party, which is seen by moderate Democratic officials as even more out of step with its constituents than the national party. "How does a former chairman from California change the perception that this party is just a conglomeration of special interest caucuses?" asked one Democratic consultant.

Sanford appears to have the best chance of stopping Kirk; but that, as even some of his supporters admit, is perhaps the most convincing argument to be made on his behalf. He is generally recognized as the consolation choice of Democratic governors and party chairs, who were desperately seeking any alternative to a Kirk-

Kennedy victory. And he has a reputation, as one supporter put it, for "wanting to run without breaking a sweat."

IF THERE IS a consensus among Democrats not directly involved with any candidate, it is that all three bring about as much baggage as benefits and that nothing of significance is likely to come of any of it.

But that may not be an accurate reading of the situation. The fact that there is still a fight underway is significant in itself. It is indicative of a newly aroused concern on the part of Democratic elected officials and a determination to play an expanded role in party affairs.

It is remarkable that this involvement did not evaporate after the governors' effort to find a chairperson collapsed. That it persisted is a measure of a degree of concern that borders on desperation, as is the fact that it continues on behalf of an admitted long-shot like Sanford.

The downside of this involvement is what happens if it all comes to naught, if Kirk or Pelosi becomes the next party chair. The worst, and perhaps most likely, possibility is a massive

SUCH A RESULT would mean that the new chairperson would preside over a party that is unlikely to elect a president for the rest of this century, a political organization with much the same necrotic symptoms as the Whigs had in the middle of the last century.

One who reportedly recognizes that possibility is Jesse Jackson, who is leaning toward an endorsement of Sanford. The sometimes flamboyant but always pragmatic Jackson well understands the implications of a Republican lock on the South that may one day extend to the state and local as well as presidential races.

Others, looking for a way to keep moderates involved, speak of some type of council, independent of the party and composed of elected officials chosen by Democratic mayors, governors and members of Congress.

Sorting through it all, one has the sense that the current indifference to the Democratic chairman's race, by journalists and politicians alike, could be a major miscalculation. The election of a chairman who is unappealing to moderate and conservative Democrats may turn out to be, as one political consultant put it, "not a disaster, just another missed opportunity." Or it may be, in the words of a Democratic fund-raiser from the deep South, "the last opportunity to avoid disaster."

Child testifies in McMartin case; Mr. T offers comfort to witnesses

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With television's Mr. T lending his imposing support outside the courtroom doors, the first child to testify against seven former teachers accused of molesting 41 of their students was gently but thoroughly cross-examined Wednesday.

The 7-year-old boy, identified only by his first name and a reference number, had told prosecutors that teachers at the suburban Manhattan Beach McMartin Pre-School molested and photographed him while he and other pupils played "naked games" at the now-closed school.

During his cross-examination of the child, defense attorney Dean Gits testified to establish that the youngster's claims had been suggested to him by overzealous prosecutors.

Mr. T, a star in TV's "A-Team" who has become a cult figure among children, volunteered his presence to calm the fears of the child witnesses about facing the people who allegedly molested them.

THE BLOND-HAIRED BOY told Gits he had met with Mr. T before Wednesday's cross-examination and the actor had told him to "tell the truth, to know he's around and he'll protect me."

The boy also told Gits that he was glad Mr. T was there, but that he wouldn't have been afraid anyway.

Pacing back and forth outside the courtroom — garbed in army camouflage fatigues and draped in 20 pounds of gold necklaces — Mr. T called himself "the only real man in Hollywood" for interrupting his schedule to show support for the children.

"Everyone else is gutless and cowardly," he said. "I'm not here for a picnic; this is serious business."

Under Gits' examination, the boy conceded it had been his parents who told him that the main defendant in the case, Ray Buckley, 26, was "bad" and had molested him.

THE YOUNG BOY took the witness stand Tuesday after months of haggling over whether the 41 children would testify in open court in front of their alleged tormentors or via closed circuit television.

The preliminary hearing, presided over by Municipal Court Judge Aviva Bobb, will determine if the seven defendants stand trial on more than 200 molestation counts.

The boy testified earlier that in one of the games, called "Cowboys and Indians," the teachers would "capture" the students and touch them sexually.

"They'd capture us and they'd put us in jail," he testified. "They'd touch us in jail."

He said that "Ray and Miss Peggy" were the ones who touched him and Buckley had sodomized him.

Co-prosecutor Lael Rubin said the boy was referring to Buckley and his mother, Peggy McMartin Buckley, 58, two of the seven teachers charged in the case.

THE OTHER DEFENDANTS are Virginia McMartin, 77, the founder and owner of the now-closed school; and teachers Peggy Ann Buckley, 28 — Ray Buckley's sister — Betty Raidor, 65; Mary Ann Jackson, 57, and Babette Spitzer, 36.

The boy testified he had also been touched on the genitals by "Babs" (Spitzer) and "Betty" (Raidor) while McMartin watched.

Besides "Cowboys and Indians," the students played three other "naked games" with their teachers — "Alligator," "Movie Star" and "Tickle," the boy said.

"We would take off our clothes and get on the floor and crawl around and when we were on the floor they would touch us," the boy said.

He said Ray Buckley told the children their parents would also be hurt if the students told them what happened at the school.

He also testified that he and some of the other children had been taken by some of the defendants away from the school to a farm, a house where there was a "circus," and a store.

The public and news media are barred from the courtroom but can watch the testimony from a nearby room via closed-circuit TV.

Philippines

The 18-page complaint listing the indictments and written by Ombudsman Bernardo Fernandez was filed at the Sandiganbayan, a special court trying official wrongdoings. The Sandiganbayan was expected to issue arrest warrants soon. A trial date was not set.

Fernandez' office recommended no bail for the principals, a $1,052 bail for Gosoico and a $790 bail for Ver and the other accessories.

The indictments affirmed findings reached last October by a civilian fact-finding commission. The panel's majority report named Ver and 25 others as "indictable for the premeditated killing" of Aquino and Galman. The panel chairwoman, however, absolved Ver in a minority report.

VER AND HIS FAMILY have long been a powerful force in the Philippines. But Western diplomatic sources said they expect him to relinquish his post even if acquitted and be permanently replaced by acting chief Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos.

Agapito "Butz" Aquino, a brother of the slain former senator, said Ver was just a "scapegoat" and the real mastermind was Marcos.

"It's equivalent to baseball. We've gotten as far as third base but not the home run.

The home run here is naming the mastermind," Aquino said.

"We were in a 'damned if you do and damned if you don't' situation," Fernandez said. "We have opted to be right rather than popular and we tried to call the case as we saw it."

Aquilino Pimentel, chairman of the Philippine Democratic Party-Laban and a prospective presidential candidate, said earlier the indictment "may be considered as a positive step" in the Philippines. But he said "this is being interpreted as an attempt by General Ver to get acquitted" before all the evidence in the case is gathered.

Pimentel, 51, said the opposition is concerned about the possibility of a military coup if Marcos dies or leaves office.

"THE PHILIPPINE military even as of now has always maintained they are going to support the constitutional processes," Pimentel told a news conference sponsored by Foreign Policy magazine. "Of course, we take that with a grain of salt."

"There is talk in Manila now, when I was there a week ago, that a coup could conceivably take place in my country. A military coup in my country, however, would succeed only if it is backed by the United States government."

Pimentel said Gen. Fidel Ramos, acting chief of the armed forces, is a "greater danger" than Ver "because General Ramos is perceived to be an American boy. He is acceptable to the American government and he is a West Point graduate."

He said a coup would be pushed by some businessmen to achieve "stability" after Marcos, reported ailing in recent months, is gone. A coup "might be acceptable to American policymakers," he said, to avoid "an imminent communist takeover."

PIMENTEL SAID Imelda Marcos, the president's wife, "wants to be" a major player in the succession. But he added, "After Marcos is gone, she's also finished."

Pimentel, in the United States for speaking engagements and to meet administration officials and members of Congress, said he fears arrest when he returns home next month.

He heads one of 11 opposition parties that are critical of the Marcos regime as repressive. The parties are attempting to unite behind one presidential candidate to succeed Marcos and he is in contention.

Pimentel called for the closing of two major U.S. military bases in the Philippines, but said his country should keep a contractual obligation to leave them in place until 1991.

Kulow

On Aug. 27, Russell filed a similar application asking the court to appoint Hibbs, and the court ruled the request was "not timely," but might be re-submitted at a later date.

Russell is also asking the court to authorize a nuclear magnetic resonating scan to be performed on Kulow at UI Hospitals at the state's expense. The NMR scan uses magnetic waves instead of radiation to take pictures of a person's body from a variety of angles.

The NMR scan is necessary to determine if Kulow knowingly waived his rights, if he was insane at the time of the alleged murder and if he had sufficient mental capacity at the time to form a specific intent, the application states.

According to the Iowa Code, first-degree murder occurs when a person willfully, deliberately and with premeditation kills another person.

A hearing on the two applications was set for Feb. 5.

"There are some good airfares to Mexico, say Cancun or Cozumel right now," Chegwidan said. "The exchange rate (between the Mexican peso and the American dollar) makes it a good destination."

Another vacation spot mentioned by a majority of the agents was the Bahamas and Caribbean islands. The agents, however, said the high cost of accommodations and food makes it a less than ideal spot for a student on a budget.

Many of the agencies contacted recommended students with spring break travel plans make their reservations as soon as possible to avoid delays.

"Students should come in with an idea of where they want to go and how much they can spend as well as want they'd like to do once they get there," Lee said. "They should come in as soon as possible so they aren't disappointed because they can't get a flight."

"For price wars fares, I'd recommend people come in right away ... they're filling up fast," Chegwidan said. "With the weather, everyone wants to get away."

Bill would control franchise movement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adventurous owners of sports teams could face strict new limitations on packing their bags for other cities under a spate of proposed bills in Congress seeking to put an end to the "chaos" in professional sports caused by the movement of franchises.

"What we have seen is that teams are leaving for financial greed rather than financial need," Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., said at a Wednesday news conference.

Mikulski, a former Baltimore Colts season ticket-holder who watched owner Robert Irsay take the Colts to Indianapolis before the 1984-85 season, is sponsoring a bill in the House of Representatives to restrict movement of franchises. Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., who authored the bill, is sponsoring it in the Senate along with both Maryland senators.

"THERE HAS BEEN a plethora of transfers and attempted transfers of professional sports franchises in recent months," Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said at another Wednesday news conference.

"The matter is in chaos as I view it," added Eagleton, who Thursday is introducing a separate bill in the Senate that would give professional sports leagues power in limiting the movement of teams.

Eagleton faces the possibility that two teams in his state — the NFL's St. Louis Cardinals and the NBA's Kansas City Kings — might be heading for other cities.

GORTON'S MEASURE, the most restrictive of the proposed legislation, would prohibit the movement of a franchise unless both the league and a planned Professional Sports Team Arbitration Board endorse the move, and options for keeping the team in the same city have been exhausted.

Gorton said his bill, which will be introduced Thursday, is aimed at ending the "grievous injustice suffered" by the cities in which teams are located.

Mikulski added, "This bill creates an orderly framework of events that must occur and criteria that must be met if a professional sports team wants to move from one city to another."

The criteria includes the consideration of, among other things, the public financial support a team has received, whether a team has negotiated in good faith with its host city and whether the owner's actions have contributed to a team's lack of success.

THE GORTON BILL also would force the NFL and Major League Baseball to expand, with both Baltimore and Oakland, Calif. — which lost the NFL's Raiders — getting NFL expansion teams along with two other undesignated cities, and baseball expanding by two teams by 1988.

The bill sponsored by Eagleton and Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., along with two other senators, is less restrictive than the Gorton bill. It would not deal with major league baseball and would not mandate league expansions. But it would give the league the authority in limiting moves of franchises.

The NFL failed to stop the Raiders and owner Al Davis from shipping the Oakland Raiders down the California coast to the lucrative Los Angeles market — which already had the Rams.

"THERE IS ABSOLUTELY no control in football. Right now, if a team moves, it moves," said Danforth, whose bill would only affect leagues that have existed for at least seven years — effectively exempting the USFL.

Mike McLaughlin concentrates on his swing during a batting drill as part of the Iowa baseball team's workout Wednesday afternoon in the Recreation Building. McLaughlin, a freshman from Clementon, N.J., is expected to be a strong contender for the starting shortstop position this season on Coach Duane Banks' team. # Stringer finds challenge with line-up changes

By Melissa Rapoport
Staff Writer

With the possibility of two-fifths of its starting line-up being out of action, the Iowa women's basketball team travels to Northwestern and Wisconsin this weekend in hopes of raising its unblemished Big Ten record to 7-0.

Because of a family death, starting point guard Maureen McAlpine will join Tricia Blair, who is suffering from a severe ankle injury, as two of this weekend's losses. Forward Lynn Kennedy, who has fluid in her knee, is questionable for the upcoming contests.

Although Michelle Edwards usually plays at forward, she will be moving to the point guard position. If Kennedy can not play, Jolynn Schneider will likely move into the forward's shoes. That leaves the off-guard position open.

"It's not the ideal situation," the second-year coach said about revamping the line-up. "but then again it is a major challenge. I've been saying all along they will rise to the occasion."

Despite the changes, the Hawkeyes will meet Northwestern Friday night as the number one defensive team in the nation, giving up only 53.5 points per contest.

UNDER FIRST-YEAR Coach Don Perrelli, Northwestern boasts the nation's leading scorer in Anucha Browne, who has paced the Wildcats to a 2-3 Big Ten record, 7-7 overall. Despite Browne's 427 points,

Stringer said Iowa will not alter its game plan to key on Browne. "We're not going to do anything special because our defense as a rule drags the middle anyway," she said. "We're not going to worry about her so much, we'll keep her in control, as the other people."

In order to defeat the Wildcats, Stringer believes the top-rated Iowa defense will have to be at its best. "We have to be really intense on defense and I can't see a reason why we can't do that. We're going to have to play one of our better defensive games."

"TO BE HONEST, we're going to have to be a lot more patient offensively and percentages have to be up."

The Badgers, however, are concerned with problems of their own. After compiling a 13-5 Big Ten record last year, Wisconsin is at the bottom of the league (0-5) this year. Regardless, they can not be taken lightly. "Any team can win on any given night," Edwards said. "I try to take every team as if they have no losses. A lot of times if you take a team too lightly you play down to their level and not your own."

If the Badgers were able to utilize all five of their starters in one game, Stringer believes they would have more wins. But as it stands, only one or two players are productive per game.

"MY ISSUE IS, 'Who are we?' We lost to them out there (last year) and they're going to be up for us," Stringer said. "It's not that they're not capable. For one reason or another they are so wishy-washy. One minute they're up and one minute they're down."

Wisconsin Coach Edwina Qualls finds few similarities between this year's team and last year's team, resulting in a change of game plan. "Right now if you look at our statistics, one problem is our field goal percentage," Qualls said. "Our defensive effort is not as good as last year."

Hawkeyes running off to many venues

By Brian Zimaneck

The phrase "on the road again" would definitely fit the Iowa women's track team this weekend as the Hawkeyes will be traveling to four different competitions.

Kathy Gillespie will be competing for Iowa in the Nebraska Pentathlon on Saturday. Iowa will also have two entrants at the Millrose Games in New York City as Mary Mol will be competing in the high jump and Vivien McKenzie will take her chances in the 60-yard dash.

On Sunday, McKenzie and Davera Taylor will be competing in the 55-meter dash at the Bally Invitational at the Rosemont Horizon in Rosemont, Ill. Also competing at the Bally Invitational will be Iowa's mile relay team and Nan Doak in 1,500 meters.

"NAN DOAK HAS been invited in the 1,500 meters and if she is ready she will run," Hawkeye Coach Jerry Hassard said. "We have some pretty good entries."

Lisa Moats will be competing in the long jump unattached at the Bally Invitational.

The majority of the Iowa team though will be at the Purdue Invitational in West Lafayette, Ind., on Saturday.

Purdue, Northwestern, Ohio State, Illinois State, Western Michigan, Louisville and Indiana State will be among the 13 teams competing.

"It will be a very good meet," Hassard said. "I think we'll be ready for it."

PURDUE, WHICH FINISHED third in the Big Ten Indoor Championships behind Wisconsin and Indiana last season, started their indoor season last weekend with two low-key non-scoring meets, one with Illinois on Jan. 18 and one with Indiana on Jan. 19.

"We have had a very easy nature in our two meets this season," Purdue Coach Fred Wilkes said. "Things seem to be right on schedule for us and our strength lies in our sprinters and hurdlers."

Purdue's strength in the hurdles comes from Big Ten hurdles champion Ellesha Bass, Sybil Perry and former Big Ten champion Yvonne Netteville. Netteville placed sixth in the NCAA Championships in the triple jump last season.

Rhonda Phillips is also a strong sprinter for the Boilermakers. Last Saturday at Indiana, she came up with an excellent early season time of 57.72 seconds to win the 440-yard dash. Iowa's Senta Hawkins won the 440 at the Iowa Open last Saturday in 59.12.

"I FEEL REAL GOOD about the indoor season right now," Hawkins, a freshman from Des Moines, said. "We look very strong in every event. I'm not in tip-top shape yet but I feel pretty good."

This weekend Hawkins will be competing in the 500 meters at the Purdue Invitational and then she will anchor Iowa's mile relay team at the Bally Invitational on Sunday.

"It's exciting (anchoring the mile relay)," Hawkins said. "I'm used to it and I'm comfortable with it." Hawkins anchored the mile relay in high school and last weekend she anchored Iowa's mile relay team to a close victory over Illinois State.

"This is my first season indoors so my only goals are just to get fairly good times and qualify for Big Tens and that type of thing," Hawkins said.

Hawks can't take 'Cats for granted

By J.B. Glass

The Big Ten basketball race is on. And Northwestern, Iowa's foe tonight at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, is bringing up the rear.

"It's not always rosy," Wildcat Coach Rich Falk said about his situation, 0-5 in the Big Ten, 4-11 overall.

In fact this season, the Wildcats have been clawing through the thorns of the roses most of the time.

For example, in the Wildcats last performance, last Saturday against Illinois they were held without a field goal for over 11 1/2 minutes.

Also, the famed 60-point plateau continues to be a factor in Northwestern success.

OVER THE PAST two-plus seasons, the Wildcats have posted a 26-9 mark in games in which they have scored 60 points or more. In contests they have not reached 60, Northwestern in 7-31. The records this season read 4-2 and 0-9 respectively.

Add to that, Iowa (3-2, 14-4 overall) has allowed 57.1 points per game overall this season and 64.8 points in Big Ten contests. However, as Iowa Coach George Raveling said, this is no time to become over-confident.

"We have to be more efficient in scoring," Falk said. "And you never know until you're into the game how it is going to go. Our inexperience and our scoring are directly tied to one another."

Northwestern is shooting 41.8 percent from the field this year.

And the problem of inexperience which Falk is facing is directly tied to injuries.

TWO KEY PLAYERS, sophomore Chris Berg and 6-foot-11 Dan Ivankovich have been sidelined for the campaign because of knee injuries. Also, 7-0 junior Brian Pitts was lost for "personal reasons."

But as adverse as the situation may be for Falk and Co., their sights are set for the remaining action and the words "must win" must never be applied.

"We never apply the word must," Falk said. "Obviously the next game is always the most important game for our basketball team in terms of winning or setting the stage for future wins."

"We're a young team now and a team that has kind of had to re-group," Falk added. "Our game plan is always the same, play good defense and try to take away some of the things they (Iowa) want to do and hold some of their key players down below their previous effectiveness."

Elliott Fullen, a sophomore guard who is questionable for tonight's game because of an injured toe, has been adding balance to the Wildcat attack. Fullen has averaged 11.4 points per game.

As for Raveling's challenges, forward Michael Payne remains questionable with a knee injury while guard Jeff Moe, who is recovering from a heel bruise, should be ready for action.

Welch lifts Illini past OSU, 84-66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Anthony Welch scored 16 points to pace a balanced Illinois attack Wednesday night as the Illini defeated Ohio State 84-66 to move into first place in the Big Ten.

Illinois, 16-4 overall, improved to 5-2 in the Big Ten to move ahead of 4-2 Michigan and into first place. The Buckeyes fell to 11-4 and 3-3 in the conference.

Welch snapped a 10-10 tie with 13 minutes, 42 seconds to play in the first half and Illinois never trailed again.

Efrem Winters added 14 points for the Illini while George Montgomery added 13, Scott Meents 12 and Doug Altenberger 10.

Troy Taylor paced Ohio State with 17 points, the 31st straight game he has hit double figures.

Winters missed his first free throw attempt of the game to fall two short of a school-record 32 straight. The victory before 15,906 fans was Illinois' 18th in a row at home — tying a record.

Sooners rally to upend Cyclones, 81-74

AMES (UPI) — Darryl Kennedy scored 22 points and Wayman Tisdale added 20 to lead No. 7 Oklahoma to a 81-74 victory over Iowa State.

The Sooners boosted their record to 3-0 in the Big Eight, 14-4 overall. The Cyclones fell to 1-2 in the conference, 13-6 overall.

Tisdale did not start the game because he had been ill Sunday and Monday with the flu. He entered the game with 15 minutes, 54 seconds remaining in the first half and played the rest of the game.

Oklahoma used Kennedy's 16 second half points to overcome a one-point half time deficit. The Sooners took a 63-62 lead with 7:02 remaining on a basket by Kennedy.

The Cyclones were led by Barry Stevens with a game-high 28 points. Jeff Hornacek added 11 and Sam Hill had 10.

Anthony Bowie tossed in 15 for the Sooners, with David Johnson adding 14.

Iowa women cagers lead nation in defense

The Hawkeye women's basketball team is ranked No. 1 in the nation in defense in this week's NCAA statistics.

Iowa is giving up a stingy 53.5 points a game going into weekend games at Northwestern Friday and Wisconsin Sunday.

The Hawkeyes, 11-4 overall and unbeaten in five Big Ten conference games, are tied with Ohio State for the conference lead. In conference games, they are allowing their opponents only 46.8 points a game.

Hawkeyes shine in NCAA, Big Ten statistics

The Iowa basketball team is rated in the top five in two statistical categories, according to statistics released Wednesday by the NCAA.

Iowa is fourth in the nation in both rebound margin and scoring margin. Coach George Raveling's team dropped out of the top five in team defense after a split on the road last week.

The Hawkeyes are also faring well in Big Ten statistics. Iowa leads the league in rebounding with 40.4 boards per game and senior center Greg Stokes is averaging 21 points per game, the best in the league.

Stokes is fourth in the Big Ten in rebounding with 9.4 rebounds a game while Gerry Wright is seventh with an average of 7.2. Iowa is fourth in the league in field goal percentage and sixth in free throw percentage.

TCU's Wacker presented with Dodd Award

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jim Wacker of Texas Christian, the UPI Coach of the Year, was honored Wednesday for his ideals as well as his success.

Wacker, who turned TCU around from a 1-8-2 record in his first season with the Horned Frogs in 1983 to 8-3 last fall for their best record in 25 years, was named the "Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year" — awarded annually by the American Sportsmanship Council "in recognition of a higher and more noble aspect of college coaching."

Wacker said he was "nervous" when he first went to TCU, "because the players were weird. They dressed like bums and weren't going to class."

"I read them the riot act," he said. "I told them they would have to straighten up to play for me. That first year, I dropped three first-string players, replacing them with freshmen. I hope I never have to go through something like that again."

Bertolaccini looks to defend LPGA title

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Silvia Bertolaccini begins her defense today of the Deer Creek Championship she won a year ago as a symbol of the parity that is now a trademark of the LPGA tour.

The Deer Creek title was the third of Bertolaccini's career, but her first in five years. As the women's tour wound its way across the country and back in 1984, there were 11 new champions.

Patton expects easy victory in road meet at Minnesota

By Jeff Stratton
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's swimming team will hit the road Saturday for a dual meet with Minnesota in Minneapolis but their thoughts may be on next week's dual meets against Indiana, the defending Big Ten champion, and Southern Illinois.

The Golden Gophers should not pose too much of a problem for Coach Glenn Patton's Hawkeyes. "They are one of the weaker teams in the conference," Patton said. "They usually finish in the sixth, seventh or eighth place in the conference. They fight for the top team spot in the second level of the conference."

PATTON SAID, HOWEVER, that Iowa will be taking a strong line-up to Minnesota in preparation for next weekend's dual meets. "We will be swimming with a pretty good line-up against Minnesota to prepare for our big meets coming up," he said, "so we will be going with a strong line-up."

The Hawkeyes may be in for a sterner test than they expect Saturday because Minnesota can be a tough opponent in its own pool. "They (Minnesota) are always tough in their own pool," Patton said. "They've got a very old pool, 25 yards long and only six lanes, and it gives them a real advantage. It ends up making it a tough meet up there. Down here, it would not be a close contest."

The Minnesota meet will be Iowa's first action in six weeks, with the exception of several squad members who competed in the U.S. International Meet in Fayetteville, Ark. The Hawkeyes spent the break training in Iowa City.

Swimming

MARK STORI, a freshman from Bettendorf, said the training camp should pay dividends for Iowa later in the season. "We needed to get a good base (a lot of training yardage) so that we will have something to rest on at the end of the season," he said. "This will help us swim well at the end of the season."

A major concern for Patton this season has been Iowa's lack of team depth, and the Hawkeyes were dealt a blow by the Big Ten faculty representatives last week when they ruled that Matthew Brown, a recruit from Australia, would not be eligible to swim for Iowa. Earlier this season the faculty representatives ruled that another Iowa recruit, Peter Dale, also from Australia, was ineligible.

"THE BIG TEN faculty representatives turned him down because he would have only two years of eligibility due to his age," Patton said of Brown. "There was no rule violation, they just felt it would be unfair to the athlete."

Patton called the loss of Dale and Brown "crippling" to the team because of the loss of potential points at the conference championships. "We've been really stung by the faculty representatives rulings this year. Both (Dale and Brown) would have swam in three events at the conference plus relays and would have been competing for titles in their events," he said.

Hawks will send four players to Big Ten singles tournament

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

Iowa will send its top four men's tennis players to Ohio State this weekend to challenge the rest of the Big Ten's top players in the Cross Country Inn Tournament.

The tournament, which is also the first meet of the season for the Iowa men's team, is an individual tournament with no team scoring being kept.

"It's a low-key event. There is no team nature at stake," Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said. He added each player can play his best in the meet without the pressure of winning a dual meet.

The tournament is also known as being a very competitive meet, involving the top players from each of the Big Ten schools.

THE HAWKEYES BEGAN organized practice this week and will use the tournament to get used to competing again. "The main thing is to get back into the swing of things," Houghton said.

Because the Iowa team has been practicing as a team for only a short time, the Hawkeyes will be at a disadvantage in the tournament, the Iowa coach said. Several schools have been practicing as a team longer and will be in better condition than the Hawkeyes who were affected by the month-long semester break.

Each Big Ten school sends its top three players to the tournament. Indiana elected not to compete in the meet this season and three schools were picked to send a fourth player.

At the tournament, the Hawkeyes will face players outside of their position. The tournament gives the Hawkeyes the opportunity to play persons that they otherwise wouldn't meet during the season, Houghton said.

ROB MOELLERLING, who played in the No. 5 position last season, and Rudy Foo, a sophomore from Malaysia who played in the No. 4 slot last season, will represent Iowa in the tournament.

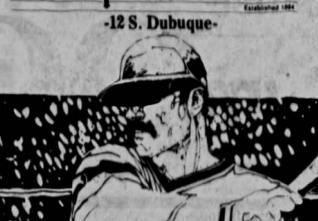

Jim Nelson, who had knee surgery in the fall is also expected to play in the tournament, Houghton said. Nelson played in the No. 3 position last season.

"Nelson has the best chance to go a long way in the tournament," although he isn't playing at his best now because of his injury, the Iowa coach added.

Iowa was one of three schools picked to send a fourth player. Dale Garlick, the No. 6 player last season, and freshman Scott Shafer will play a match to determine the fourth player.

The Hawkeyes will open their indoor season Feb. 9 and 10 with matches against Iowa State and Northeast Missouri State at the Recreation Building.

Gymnasts hope to avoid upsets

By Steve Batterson
Sports Editor

Mark Pflughoeft hopes the time and the place are just right. So does Tom Dunn.

But the coaches of the Wisconsin and Iowa men's gymnastics teams are seeking different things.

For Pflughoeft, he wants to see his Badgers upset the seventh-rated Hawkeyes in Madison, Wis., Saturday night. A win against Iowa would be a big boost to a re-born Badger program.

However, Dunn and the Hawkeyes want a pair of wins — one at Illinois-Chicago on Friday and another over Wisconsin on Saturday to raise their record to 8-1 on the year.

"BOTH OF THE TEAMS we meet have improved considerably since last year," Dunn said about the pair of duals. "They've been in the 264 range in the last two weeks so we could be in for a pair of tough meets."

The Hawkeyes will be again without the services of all-arounder Stu Breitenstine and sophomore Lenny Lucarello will compete only against the Badgers. "With his hand (which was broken in a December meet), we're not sure he's ready to go two straight days so he'll sit out Friday night," Dunn said.

Dunn said Iowa's line-up has the capability of scoring in the upper 260s against the 2-2 Flames on Friday. Because of the nine-man line-up rule, Iowa will be able to use only five gymnasts rather than six in five of six events.

"I'm sure they'll be ready for us," Dunn said. "This meet will probably be a lot closer than what I'd enjoy."

MATT MAY AND still rings specialist Mike Tangney will replace Lucarello and Joe Petricek in the Hawkeye line-up at Illinois-Chicago.

"It's going to be critical that we stay on on high bar," Dunn said. "We did a good job against Ohio State and Illinois but probably the most critical event for us will be parallel bars. Without Stu, Lenny and Joe, everyone else will have to come through. I'm also looking for our all-arounders to hit their pommel horse routines."

Against the Badgers, Iowa will use the same line-up that scored a 272.2 against Ohio State and Illinois last weekend. With that line-up, which includes Lucarello and Petricek, Iowa is able to put up six competitors on four of the six events. The still rings and horizontal bar are the exceptions.

DUNN SAID THE Hawkeyes will have to be ready for an improved Badger team.

"They used to be a traditionally weak team on the pommel horse but now they're good there," Dunn said. "Wisconsin had a good recruiting year last year and I look for them to be even better in the future."

Wisconsin is being led by senior Gary Griffin, a transfer from Iowa State. Three freshmen, Eric Gieseke, Mike Dutelle and Greg Brown, are also aiding the Badger effort this season.

Dunn knows many of Wisconsin's personnel well. Pflughoeft said the two coaches meet quite a bit on the recruiting circuit.

Pflughoeft said his team's progress has been steady since the beginning of the season. "We just keep getting stronger by the day," he said. "We go against Iowa State on Friday and I'm sure they'll still a step ahead of us. I wish we'd meet them later in the season. Against Iowa, I'm looking for a close meet with Stu out. We need to take advantage of that."

Durham seeking $1 million annually

CHICAGO (UPI) — A contract showdown is brewing between the Chicago Cubs and first baseman Leon Durham, who has indicated he wants his $500,000-a-year salary doubled to $1 million, it was reported Wednesday.

"I think that ($1 million) would be a good price," Durham told the Chicago Tribune from his home in Cincinnati. "If that's my category, that's what my price is."

"I can hit home runs, doubles and triples. I can steal a base and play good defense. And I was No. 1 in the league in run production last year."

Cubs' president and general manager Dallas Green, however, said he an-tipiculates Durham will be forced to file for salary arbitration since Durham's agent, Dick Moss, and the Cubs are "far apart" in contract talks.

"I'M A LITTLE worried about Durham," Green said. "We seem to be too far apart. To file is no big deal. It means the player protected the right he has."

Relief ace Bruce Sutter was the last player to take the Cubs to arbitration six years ago.

"Right now, I think we'll be filing," said Durham, who filed last year before reaching a last-minute agreement for an estimated $500,000 before a hearing was scheduled.

Moss, who last year represented Los Angeles pitcher Fernando Valenzuela and won a record $1 million arbitration salary two years ago, said, "Durham's case could break that record."

DURHAM, WHO WAS obtained Dec. 9, 1980, in a trade with St. Louis for Sutter, hit .279 with 23 homers and 96 RBIs last year in 137 games. He had a slugging percentage of .505 and his RBI ratio was best in the league.

Despite his glaring fielding error in the fifth game of the National League playoffs that allowed the San Diego Padres to notch a 6-3 pennant-clinching victory, Durham committed only seven errors in 1,265 chances for a .994 fielding percentage.

Center-fielder Bobby Dernier is also eligible to file for salary arbitration by next Monday. Dernier's agent, Arthur Rosenberg of Philadelphia, is scheduled to meet with Green Thursday in Chicago.

The Cubs' salary structure has been altered by a $1.95 million contract signed by Cy Young award winner Rick Sutcliffe, a $900,000 agreement with left-handed pitcher Steve Trout and a $750,000 contract with right-hander Dennis Eckersley.

Cedeno booked on DWI charge

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Cesar Cedeno, who was charged with drunken driving Wednesday, told police he was arguing with his girlfriend, lost control of his car and crashed into a tree.

Cedeno, 33, and Pamela Ann Lamson escaped injury in the accident. But Cedeno, who refused to take a Breathalyzer test, had to be handcuffed and bound by officers because he allegedly tried to kick his way out of a patrol car.

"They arrested him for DWI and placed him in a patrol car," Sgt. J.C. Mosier said. "He attempted to kick the windows out of the patrol car. They had to take him out and handcuff him and tie his feet together."

PEOPLE SUSPECTED of DWI usually are videotaped at the police station, but Mosier said Cedeno was "too unruly to be videotaped."

Cedeno was unavailable for comment and Reds team president Bob Howsam said he is "going to wait and see what the situation is."

The ballplayer, who lives in Houston during the offseason, crashed his Mercedes Benz into a tree in southwest Houston just after midnight, police said.

Cedeno, a native of the Dominican Republic, told police at the scene he had been arguing with Lamson when he lost control of the car, police said. Lamson was not arrested.

Cedeno spent the early morning hours in jail and was released after posting $800 bond, police said.

A driver's license can be suspended for refusing to take a Breathalyzer test in Texas, but Mosier said whether Cedeno will lose his license will be determined in court.

CEDENO PLAYED FOR the Houston Astros from 1970-1981 and had his best seasons in 1972 and 1973 when he hit .320. He was traded to Cincinnati in 1982 for Ray Knight. Last season, he hit .276 with 10 home runs and 47 RBI and he stole 19 bases in 22 attempts.

In 1978, the Astros fined Cedeno $5,000 for injuring his right hand in a temper tantrum during a game.

Ex-Atlanta coach Bennett to return as new field boss of Buccaneers

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Former Atlanta Falcons head Coach Leeman Bennett was hired Wednesday as the new head coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The selection was announced by Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse, who said Bennett will be signed to a five-year contract but would not disclose specifics.

"We haven't executed a contract yet and when we do I probably won't disclose the terms, but he will be in the top 50 percent of the coaches by the time we get through," Culverhouse said.

Bennett, 46, was flying to Tampa and was to meet Wednesday night with Culverhouse and former head Coach John McKay.

The selection of Bennett ended an interview process that Culverhouse began at the end of the 1984 season.

CULVERHOUSE SAID the Buccaneers, from himself down to the lowliest employee, have only one goal in mind: "We have a common goal throughout this establishment and that is to win the Super Bowl. Anything less than that will not be tolerated."

One of the leading contenders had been Bucs defensive coach Wayne Fontes, a longtime assistant to McKay at the University of Southern California and at Tampa.

Culverhouse said he contacted Fontes Wednesday afternoon at Tempe, Ariz., where he was attending a scouting combine session.

"It was probably the most difficult thing I ever had to do. I think it was earth shattering to Wayne and he said, 'If you don't mind I'm coming on home,'" Culverhouse said.

CULVERHOUSE SAID HE decided on Bennett because of his proven ability to win in the NFL.

"I'm impressed with him. He's dedicated to winning. He is competent and he will not accept failure," Culverhouse said.

Culverhouse said the fact that Bennett had been a winning head coach and Fontes has never been a head coach gave Bennett the edge.

While he was head coach at Atlanta for six years, Bennett had a record of 46-41 in regular season play. The Falcons had never made it to the playoffs until Bennett became head coach.

Under his guidance they had a wild-card berth in the 1978 playoffs, won the division in 1980, and were first in their division in the strike-shortened 1982 season.

THE FALCONS SAID they fired Bennett because they needed to "get off a plateau" although the coach had helped lead the team to the playoffs in three of his last five years.

Culverhouse said that he had a commitment from Bennett that he would give thorough interviews to all of the current Buccaneer coaches.

Johnson receives a record vote total for 35th annual NBA All-Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Indiana favorites Larry Bird and Isiah Thomas will return to Indianapolis as starters for the 35th annual NBA All-Star Game and Magic Johnson received a record number of votes in final balloting announced Wednesday.

Johnson, the flashy point guard of the Los Angeles Lakers, collected 957,447 votes from the record 2,852,996 cast by fans selecting the starters for the Feb. 10 game at the Hoosier Dome.

Joining the NBA's assist leader as Western Conference starter will be teammate Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. It will be a record 14th appearance for the NBA's all-time leading scorer, breaking the mark he shares with Wilt Chamberlain, Bob Cousy and John Havlicek.

COMPLETING THE STARTING West squad will be forwards Ralph Sampson of Houston and Adrian Dantley of Utah and guard George Gervin of San Antonio. The West will be coached by Pat Riley of the Lakers.

Bird, Boston's brilliant forward who was selected the NBA's Most Valuable Player last season, and Detroit's Thomas, last year's All-Star MVP, each have a strong following in Indiana. A native of French Lick, Ind., Bird played at Indiana State while Thomas led Indiana University to the 1981 NCAA Championship.

Other East starters are forward Julius Erving and Moses Malone of Philadelphia and rookie guard Michael Jordan of Chicago. Jordan is the first freshman named a starter in the All-Star Game since Thomas in 1982.

EITHER K.C. JONES of the Celtics or Billy Cunningham of the 76ers will guide the East. The team that is leading the Eastern Conference on Jan. 27 will send its coach to Indianapolis. Boston and Philadelphia each had 34-7 records heading into Wednesday night.

Reserves will be selected by a vote of NBA coaches in each conference and will be announced next week.

Seven of this year's starters were also starters in last year's game, won by the East 154-145 in overtime. Sampson was a reserve and Malone did not play because of injury.

Nicklaus late addition to L.A. field

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A 144-man field, which includes late-entrant Jack Nicklaus and Phoenix Open champion Calvin Peete, tees off today in the first round of the $400,000 Los Angeles Open at the Riviera Country Club.

Nicklaus did not have the event on his schedule and did not enter until minutes before the deadline. The veteran made the change because he felt he was not playing well and needed the work.

Peete won last weekend's Phoenix Open, putting aside a history of failures early in the PGA season. He won $81,000 despite a painful eye irritation that nearly caused him to withdraw following the third round.

Riviera has humbled Peete in the past. "I have never done well there, and I expect I'll have to stay at my peak just to finish in the top 10," he said. "It definitely favors the long hitter, especially a high-ball hitter."

Defending champion David Edwards will try to join Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer, Mac Smith and Paul Harney as the only back-to-back winners. With a victory, Tom Watson and Gil Morgan can become three-time winners.

WITH A HISTORY dating back to 1926 and a winner's list including golf legends Hogan, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret and Palmer, the Los Angeles Open remains a top tournament.

The PGA reports that Riviera — 6,946 yards, par 71 — was the most difficult course played by the pros in 1984. The course record, set during the 1982 Open, is an eight-under par 63. Terry Mauney is the holder of the mark, but he retired less than a year after setting the record.

"Any golfer will tell you that some days you're hot," Mauney said. "That's golf. I was real hot. I played the back nine first and was 5-under at the turn after an eagle on No. 17 and a birdie on the 18th."

"When I got to the 10th tee (No. 1 at Riviera), it was playing downwind and I felt I could eagle it. That's when I started getting nervous. I hit a two-iron six feet from the pin, but choked the eagle putt."

Mauney, now a television newsman in Charlotte, N.C., said the remainder of the round was a "struggle."

Chris Frantz, Jerry Harrison, Alex Weir, David Byrne and Tina Weymouth of Talking Heads perform in Stop Making Sense.

Talking Heads movie celebrates band's insightful, literate delivery

By Richard Panek
Staff Writer

AT THE START of Stop Making Sense, the stage is as vacant as a loft. It's the type of space, ultra-spare and strictly functional, where the downtown crowd in Manhattan created its art in the mid-1970s. The Talking Heads were there then, and here they are now, in a movie that makes the concert film as new as the band itself made rock.

What happens first could be a piece of performance art from the era when this band was young. Talking Heads leader David Byrne walks onto the empty stage carrying a portable cassette player and a guitar. With the cassette providing a synthesized rhythm track, Byrne plays solo acoustic guitar and sings. Already he's set the terms for this concert movie, the same qualities that the band established for itself at the outset — witty, strongly rhythmic and literate enough to merit a close listen.

The song is "Psycho Killer," and it's all exposed nerves. Its beat is full of frustrations, its words don't always bother to rhyme and Byrne gives it a deadpan, straightforward delivery as simple yet cerebral as his stage presence during the band's early tours — until the end. When he moves, when he leaves the protective shield of the microphone and does a jittery dance by himself around the stage and his legs go limber and limp — the edgy 1970s are over. Byrne will be in motion for the rest of this movie.

TINA WEYMOUTH, the band's bassist, joins Byrne on stage for "Heaven," a ballad to the one thing these musicians want out of life — one song, one perfect song, over and over. While a stage crew slowly assembles the set in the background, Jerry Harrison and Chris Frantz join Byrne and Weymouth for "Found a Job." The nucleus of Talking Heads is complete.

The members of the band has added over the past two or three years next take their places — two singers and three instrumentalists, on guitar, keyboards and percussion — and the show for tonight is whole. The pieces of the band and their props, in full view, have joined together. What they do and how they do it, in the best tradition of post-modern art, are now the same.

What the band does is work, as in job, and when this band works, the job is a joy. Thanks to director Jonathan Demme's unobtrusive and insightful staging (with the help of Talking Heads), the enthusiasm is contagious.

And Byrne is the head cheerleader. He's catalyst, clown and chorus. Human bodies don't do what Byrne's body does, but that's okay: he doesn't have to make sense, just music. Which he does — in neurotic vibrato, and often at full speed, jogging around the stage, bending backward, wiggling inside an outside suit, and, always, with breakneck humor.

Stop Making Sense is a celebration of and by Talking Heads. At the end, when the formerly bare stage is full of musicians and technicians, and the roles are overlapping and the music is overflowing, it's also an invitation. Everyone's singing it, the same phrase on and on, even the stagehand caught for a second on camera and in a spotlight, Byrne's microphone suddenly in his face, then suddenly turned on us and in our face, over and over: "Stop making sense, stop making sense, stop making sense."

War horse and new music featured by CR Symphony

By Laura Behrens
Special to The Daily Iowan

MUSIC DIRECTOR Christian Tiemeyer delivers again on his promise to combine fresh new works and familiar favorites in this Saturday and Monday programs of the Cedar Rapids Symphony Orchestra. This weekend's subscription concerts feature the CRSO's principal players in Frank Martin's Concerto for Seven Wind Instruments, Timpani, Percussion and String Orchestra and the orchestra's strings in Serenade for Strings by Josef Suk. The concert will be balanced by Ludwig von Beethoven's captivating Seventh Symphony.

Josef Suk is known around the world as a violinist and composer. He began writing music when he was still a child, and the Serenade for Strings in E-flat major, composed in 1892, is one of his best known early works. Suk was Dvorak's musical heir among Czech composers; he studied with Dvorak and even married the composer's daughter.

The first movement of the Serenade propels the work on a combination of motion and beautiful melody, through a dance-like allegro, a simple and touching adagio, and a finale that fulfills the Serenade's earlier promises of vivacity and power. The demands for big sound and aggressive attack could lead a conductor to ask too much of the piece. Tiemeyer's challenge will be to provide a performance that is gratifying, but not overly sentimental.

FOLLOWING THE SUK, the Martin Concerto for Seven Wind Instruments, Timpani, Percussion and String Orchestra will sound decidedly modern. Its accessibility lies in Martin's use of rhythm and sonority as the keystones of the piece.

Christian Tiemeyer

Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 in A major, with its haunting second movement, was a success at its premier in 1813 and has never lost favor with audiences. The rhythmic innovations of the piece give it a power and expansiveness that belie its relatively short length of 40 minutes.

Concerts of the Cedar Rapids Symphony Orchestra are this Saturday and Monday, at 8 p.m. at the Paramount Theatre in downtown Cedar Rapids. Call the Symphony office at 366-8203 to reserve tickets. Student rush for available seats and no-shows begins a half-hour before the curtain. An I.D. is required to receive the student discount.

Sound sacrificed in clarinet recital

By Kate Van Orden
Staff Writer

CLARINETIST Joseph Messenger's guest recital in Clapp Recital Hall Tuesday evening was a program of slick technique and little substance. Between the intonation problems and lack of focus in sound, one had to wonder if he was listening to his playing or simply enjoying the sheer pleasure of whipping his fingers up and down arpeggios. The sacrifice of sound in lieu of dizzying speeds wasn't worth it.

Music

In the Andante con moto movement of the "Grand Duo Concertate," op. 48, by Carl Maria von Weber, playing softly substituted for control. Under this restraint, the music never flew. Weber has written some gorgeous slow movements for solo instruments, but they are often characterized by held notes that really require direction and dynamics. The large intervals in this movement showed the limits of Messenger's range; a spread sound and poor intonation hampered the highs and lows.

COMPLIMENTS, HOWEVER, to William David on piano. He helped the Weber along and had an especially nice interpretation of the first theme in the Carl Nielsen Concerto, op. 57, for clarinet which closed the program. Messenger didn't take the lead, however, and lost the lilt in David's playing. There were these discrepancies in style throughout the program. In the Andante of the Weber (again), David's playing didn't balance Messenger's in volume or nature.

While clarity characterized the performance overall, the opening of "Le Trombeau de Ravel" by Arthur Benjamin was confusing and the rest of the piece seemed to fall into one groove after another rather than rolling along with Romantic flair.

The other light piece on the program, Benjamin McPhee's 1972 composition "Crazy Jane," for two percussionists, piano, clarinet and a spoken tenor part, came off well. In this quippy bit of comic relief, the focus was on the story being told. The music was merely incidental.

It was two brief clarinet cadenzas in the Nielsen which said the most about Messenger's playing. The piece had seemed of one tempo, without Nielsen's often haunting tone. While the ensemble didn't hold back the musicality in the cadenzas, it was clear Messenger is inclined to go for speed and leave finding the music to the listener.

Farewell concert marks break-up of esoteric band

By Allen Hogg Arts/entertainment Editor

AFTER SEVERAL years on the local music scene, first as the Subsonics, currently under the name Whambo Jamboree, the Iowa City group made up of guitarists Rob Gal and Dan Bernstein...

The decision to break up was made so the band members could pursue individual projects. Gal is moving to Minneapolis, Rondinelli will be moving to Boston in May and other band members will be working on ideas in town.

This lack of a calculated sound may also have hurt the band's commercial appeal. "A lot of places, the first time we'd play we'd draw a lot of blank stares," Rondinelli said.

In addition to the new songs, the farewell show will feature, in the words of Rondinelli, "all types of special guests and special things." Extra lights will be added to an already top-notch light show.
