Farm group leaders lead Washington march

In an attempt to call out a farm crisis, dozens of farmers have gathered at the U.S. Capitol in Washington, demanding attention from Congress and the federal government. The American Agriculturists Movement, the organization co-sponsoring the action, is calling for a Farmers' March in Washington D.C. this week hoping for a farm bill proposal "that does not go down the farm commute," said Cody Jones, an AAM director general. The group predicts that a "real" bill should be divided into three parts: establishing new subsidies, ensuring a federal nutrition program, and allowing the states to see the farms return to the land in staying home and farms returning to the countryside.

Several hundred farmers began this morning on the Capitol grounds, a rally was held by the farmers. The rally was organized by the AAM, and included members of Congress from all over the country. The rally was held to raise awareness of the farm crisis and to demand action from Congress.

Lobbyists cite increase in loan rate as top goal

The American Agriculture Movement (AAM) has proposed a bill that includes changes to the Farm Bill, which is up for renewal in 2014. The AAM is hoping to gain input on the Farm Bill before President Obama signs it into law.

The farmers in the group of more than 100 from Iowa and neighboring states, who are "very common people," believe their views on farm credit policies, according to prominent organizers. A major issue includes far too many tips from private companies to only a few percent of the farmers. They are emphasizing the need for the nation's farm policy to provide a stable loan rate that is at least 50 percent of the average annual loan rate.

The new starting date for schools poses problems for local officials

By James Hatton

The number of public schools closing for the new school year is increasing, and this trend is expected to continue. However, the new starting date for schools poses problems for local officials. Many schools are facing budget cuts and have to make tough decisions about how to spend their limited resources.

Wage hike sparks tax argument

By Cheryl Lee

Iowa state senators are arguing whether state taxes must be increased order to finance pay raises state workers will receive during the next two years under a new contract agreement approved by the state Board of Regents on Jan. 4.

The agreement reached last week in Des Moines will increase salaries for all state workers - including about 74,000 UI employees - to $52.7 million, without raising taxes. However, the state's revenue for the fiscal year will only be $50.2 million, leaving a shortfall of $2.5 million that will have to be made up by the state General Fund.

"I think we'll rely on natural growth," said Sen. Richard Hansen, of Hansen "I think we won't raise taxes.

"We're just trying to catch up." Hansen said the tax hike would be a "punitive package designed to bring in over $50 million in additional revenue."

"Frankly, I have an approach which would not substantially enhance our revenue or tax base," he said. Ellis also said the minorities would have to be raised, "I'm not sure there are enough votes in the Senate to pass a tax increase," added Sen. Jim Wells, D-Oledar. But Sen. Don Smith, D-Oliver, said "There are a lot of votes out there."
UI ophthalmologists examine new corrective eye surgery

By Jerry Darnell, Denver Post

UI ophthalmologists are cautiously optimistic about a new surgical procedure to correct nearsightedness that is gaining popularity in Iowa and is expected to be available in other states in the near future, new corrective eye surgery.

The surgery is performed while the patient is under general anesthesia. It involves making a series of cuts in the corneal tissue, then applying a dilating solution to the eye to make the cornea more flexible. The resulting changes in the shape of the cornea correct the patient's vision.

"We are excited about the potential of this procedure," said Dr. John Constance, an ophthalmologist at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. "The surgery is less invasive than traditional corrective eye surgery, and it offers patients a non-invasive alternative to glasses or contact lenses.

Although the procedure has been performed in Europe for several years, it has only recently become available in the United States. Iowa is one of the few states where the procedure is currently being performed.

"We are still gathering data on the long-term effects of the procedure," said Dr. Constance. "But so far, the results have been promising. Patients have reported significant improvements in their vision.

The procedure is not suitable for everyone, however. Patients who have certain eye conditions or who have undergone previous eye surgery may not be good candidates for the procedure. Patients are also required to have realistic expectations for the results of the surgery.

"We encourage patients to discuss the procedure with their ophthalmologist to determine if it is a good option for them," said Dr. Constance.

The procedure is performed under general anesthesia, and patients are typically discharged the same day. Patients are advised to avoid driving or using machinery for the first few days after the surgery.

"It is important for patients to follow the instructions of their ophthalmologist after the surgery," said Dr. Constance. "This includes avoiding contact with water or dirt, and avoiding strenuous activities.

"We are excited about the potential of this procedure," said Dr. Constance. "But so far, the results have been promising. Patients have reported significant improvements in their vision.

Although the procedure is still in its early stages, it shows great promise for the future of ophthalmology and for patients who are nearsighted.

U.S. won't pay contractor until billing is investigated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger proposed an adjustment of the Hollins defense plan Tuesday to the General Accounting Office and said the Pentagon "is putting youngsters on the fast track with major defense contracts." Payments for weapons purchases were not suspended.

The giant Texas-based firm, which builds powered submarines and missiles, was awarded a $100 million contract by the Pentagon last month to produce the giant submarines for 30 days for general and administrative expenses. A General Dynamics spokesman said the company "will not make any statement that is not consistent with General Dynamics' view of the litigation." The Pentagon said the company's contract had been terminated.

The GAO issued a report Monday to members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which handles defense spending, alleging that General Dynamics was "developing a computer program that will ensure that defense contractors do not make improper expenditures." The company rejected the charge.

Some of the report's findings will be discussed today at a hearing before the Senate Appropriations Committee. The report also says that General Dynamics has been accused of running up an $11 million overcharge on submarine contracts for the Navy.

Republican-led budget group okays Hollins defense plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican-led budget group OK'd a new defense plan Tuesday for Hollins Defense Systems, a new Pentagon budget above inflation, but not as high as lawmakers had hoped.

"The committee voted today to approve a defense plan that would provide a $100 million line of credit for Hollins Defense Systems," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. "We believe this is an appropriate line of credit for Hollins, and we will continue to monitor its activities to ensure that it is used for the benefit of the American public.""The committee voted today to approve a defense plan that would provide a $100 million line of credit for Hollins Defense Systems," said Rep. Chileans grapple with disaster

SANTIAGO (UPI) - Thousands of Chileans faced a night of fear and uncertainty yesterday as their nation was hit by its third major earthquake in less than five years. At least 26 people were killed, 1,000 were injured and 1 million people were left homeless.

In the worst-hit area, the coastal city of Talcahuano, the quake caused massive damage to buildings and infrastructure. The government has declared three days of mourning and canceled all other activities.

"When I saw the video of the earthquake, I thought it was a movie," said local resident Maria Pinto. "I was in shock."

The government has called for international aid, and the United Nations has pledged assistance.

An earthquake with a magnitude of 7.4 struck 84 miles off the coast of central Chile on Saturday, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

The tremor was the third major earthquake to hit Chile since 2010, with the previous two damaging areas in the south and north of the country.

Lebanese Christians release 54 Syrians

BEIRUT (UPI) - Lebanon's Foreign Minister, Mouawad, announced the release of 54 Syrian prisoners by Lebanese Christians who had been held in Lebanese prisons.

The prisoners were released under a deal brokered by the Lebanese government and the Syrian National Coalition, a group opposed to President Bashar al-Assad's regime.

This is the first release of prisoners since the conflict began in March 2011.

"We are happy and proud to see these prisoners freed," said Mouawad. "We hope this is the beginning of a new chapter in our relations with Syria and the Syrian people."

The release comes as the Syrian conflict enters its third year, with more than 100,000 people reported dead and millions displaced.

Lebanese Christians have been involved in the conflict, with some siding with the Syrian National Coalition and others supporting the Assad regime.

Dependability and Quality at a Fair Price

The Lebanese government said 135 people were killed in the blast, which the main Shiite group, Hezbollah, said was caused by an Israeli airstrike.

The government also reported 1,000 injured, many of whom were flown to hospitals in Israel.

Hezbollah's leader, Hassan Nasrallah, vowed revenge and called for a "great military operation" to retake the city.

"We will not accept any senseless targeting of our people," he said. "We will fight back with all the means at our disposal."

Meanwhile, Western governments have been quick to condemn the attack and offer condolences to the Lebanese people.

"This attack is a heinous and cowardly act," said U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry. "The United States stands with Lebanon in this time of tragedy."

The attack comes just days after the United States announced new sanctions against Syrian officials, including the country's central bank governor and former defense minister.
At Iowa's men's basketball tournament, as a senator in the state, I became interested in the issue of free press and the ways in which the media shape public opinion. I was particularly struck by the lack of coverage of issues such as the death penalty and the war in Vietnam during this period. The media seemed to be acting as a force that was shaping public opinion in a particular way.

As a result, I began to think about the role of the media in our society and the ways in which it could be made more accountable to the public. I decided to run for Congress in 1972 as a candidate who would bring a new perspective to the media's role in our democracy.

First, I would like to address the issue of freedom of the press. As a journalist, I recognize the importance of the press in democracy. The free press is essential to a free society, and it is a vital component of our democracy. It is a necessary tool for holding the government accountable and for ensuring that the public is informed about the actions of those in power.

Second, I would like to address the issue of the media's role in shaping public opinion. The media have a significant influence on public opinion, and it is important that they be held accountable for the way in which they shape that opinion. The media should be held accountable to the public, and they should be held to the same standards as other businesses.

Finally, I would like to address the issue of the media's role in the political process. The media have a significant role in the political process, and it is important that they be held accountable for the way in which they shape that process. The media should be held accountable to the public, and they should be held to the same standards as other businesses.

In conclusion, I believe that the media should be held accountable to the public. The free press is essential to a free society, and it is a vital component of our democracy. It is a necessary tool for holding the government accountable and for ensuring that the public is informed about the actions of those in power.

Dun - cars create parking problem

Jef Virtue

This week, the city of Burlington is considering a proposal to close certain streets in the downtown area. The proposal is designed to create a pedestrian campus, allowing people to walk more safely in the downtown area. The proposal is also designed to create more parking spaces for the downtown area, allowing people to park their cars more easily.

However, the proposal has been met with some resistance. Some people argue that the proposal will increase traffic in the downtown area, making it more difficult to navigate. Others argue that the proposal will create more parking spaces, allowing people to park their cars more easily.

In conclusion, I believe that the media should be held accountable to the public. The free press is essential to a free society, and it is a vital component of our democracy. It is a necessary tool for holding the government accountable and for ensuring that the public is informed about the actions of those in power.

Bearing the standard

This week, President Reagan went on tour. He called the critics in November and the media in February. The President's calls were met with a mixed reaction. While some praised the President for standing up to the media, others criticized him for appearing to be overly partisan.

In conclusion, I believe that the media should be held accountable to the public. The free press is essential to a free society, and it is a vital component of our democracy. It is a necessary tool for holding the government accountable and for ensuring that the public is informed about the actions of those in power.

Guest opinion

A democracy cannot be a democracy if it is not committed to free and fair elections. The United States is a democracy, and it is essential that the free press be protected in order to ensure that the people have access to the information they need to make informed decisions.

The free press is essential to a democracy, and it is important that the media be held accountable to the public. Dutch roads today

We have been in the Netherlands for many years, and we have seen many changes in the way the roads are designed and built. The changes have been driven by changes in the way people use the roads, and by changes in the way the roads are designed and built.

Cyclones name Gibbons as new wrestling coach

By Dave Barton,

Don't be surprised if Dana Banks is smiling a lot these days.

It's not just because the weather has changed. It's because the Hawkeyes, under their new head coach, are already 2-0 this season.

"We're in a program that has what it takes to win," Banks said. "I'm feeling very good about the way things are going. The biggest concern will be our pitching. I'm not sure we'll have the pitching to win the Big Ten."

Banks said the team has "a good solid core", but added that he has "a lot to do with coaching."

The Hawkeyes, who started the season with a 2-0 record, are looking forward to the rest of their schedule, including games against Ohio State and Penn State.

Women's cage broadcasts aren't quite measuring up

Has there been a homeschool for Iowa women's basketball? Certainly. Unfortunately, it hasn't been as quite for the postseason run as the coverage of Chicago Sky's Haywood

Warriors reported a path to provide coverage of the Iowa games and the team was in place with Mike Noll and Larry Conner to play, but Delainy Gardner, the Iowa Press Box Editor, had the best attitude throughout the game. Noll was a new addition to the Iowa Press Box and his presence was highly appreciated.

OUTLOOK, ON THE other hand, is a little more rundown. The story is a great one, but it seems to follow the idea that there are concerns about the issue of Iowa's state legs. What precisely comes from this talk show expression is confusing and complex.

Iowa's team returning to the Iowa Press Box, and there has always been one on the Iowa Press Box from the start of the year.

The story is that the Iowa's team returning to the Iowa Press Box does not return in Iowa Press Box.

A WORLD OF bananas, if I didn't mention the coverage provided by KRES-FM 105.3 Sports Director Mike Calf and Mike Walker. Wester recently covered Iowa's home games in Cleveland and its commitments. They have with the Iowa game schedule all season.

Hassard's concern about having to go on the second half of the season. It added nothing to the game and made it look like a complete fail.

Hassard's running techniques may help in race preparation

How are you seeing the need for particular training techniques like those of the runner you're analyzing? Would you adopt some of these techniques in your own training plan?

When you're doing some of your training techniques for the beginning runner, how would you train for the first half of the season? Do you envision running for the women's team and the men's team.

The furthest methods should be flexible in order to help the body and aid in a gradual and consistent development of an athlete, not one with a specialty in one area.

Basic training techniques include: running with hills and strength and endurance.

even though sprinting may be held at the First Assembly of God Church in Cedar Rapids. It consisted of various forms of strength and speed development, and for the young people involved, it was a good experience.

Cedar Rapids will also be getting in on the early television schedule for two basketball games. Red Shirt and the first viewing for these games will be on Sunday, March 17, at 8 p.m. on KRES-COM. Canadian officials propose laws to curb hockey fights

With the 1987-1988 NHL season under way, the National Hockey League (NHL) has tried to come up with some tougher measures to keep the fighting from getting out of hand. The NHL has been criticized recently for its inability to control violence in games.

The Canadian government has proposed new legislation aimed at curbing violent behavior in hockey games. The proposals include measures such as increased penalties for fighting and stricter enforcement of existing laws.

Many labor issues cloud baseball scene

NEW YORK (UPI) — Relations between baseball owners and players began deteriorating Thursday when the 30 owners and 12 teams in the National and American Leagues rejected a proposal for a new labor agreement which would cover the 1986 season.

The owners offered a 5% increase in salaries, a 25% increase in pension payments, a 26% increase in Bonus Agreements, a 15% increase in 401(k) plans, and a 10% increase in severance payments. The players rejected the offer, saying it was not enough.

The owners then rejected another proposal from the players, which included a 7% increase in salaries, a 30% increase in pension payments, a 30% increase in Bonus Agreements, a 20% increase in 401(k) plans, and a 15% increase in severance payments.

The owners rejected the players' offer, citing financial concerns and the need to remain competitive.

The next step in the labor negotiations is uncertain, but both sides agree that the current contract, which expires at the end of the 1985 season, will not be extended.

Importance of Big Ten title wanes due to increase of NCAA invitations

By RALPH LINDNER

The Big Ten sent six teams to the NCAA basketball tournament, the most of any league. But officials of some Big Ten schools argue that the league's performance is no longer the basketball championship it once was.

"It's not a big deal," said John Beilein, Michigan coach. "It's been a while since we've been able to send six teams to the tournament. But I don't think it's the same as the years when we were able to send up to eight teams." Beilein, who will start his 17th season at Michigan, said he feels the Big Ten is "on a little bit of a downswing," despite its recent success.

"I think the Big Ten is a bit more competitive now," Beilein said. "They're more evenly matched. In the past, we'd have a few teams that were really strong and then a few that were really weak. Now, it's more a matter of who's playing well on any given night."}

ANDREW BEY

But others in the Big Ten see the conference's success as a sign of its strength. "The Big Ten is still the gold standard," said Bob Knight, Indiana coach. "We've been able to send six teams to the tournament each year, which is something that other conferences can only dream of." Knight, who is in his 30th season at Indiana, said the Big Ten is still the most competitive conference in the country.

"The Big Ten is still the best," Knight said. "We have a lot of good teams, and they're all fighting for the conference title. It's a tough league to play in, and I think that's why we're able to send so many teams to the tournament."
Dance style mixes wit, creativity

It was a special pleasure to be at the University of Iowa’s Hancher Auditorium on a recent Friday night when David Gordon’s Pick-Up Company presented two of Gordon’s newest choreographic works. In both, work emerged from the dance company’s generous style, resulting in a performance that kept the audience smiling well after leaving the theater.

“A Plain Romance Explained,” created by John Patrick’s “Pulcinella,” presented an image of two men in love. Ostensibly, this was a husband and wife sharing a momentary and everyday delight in the play through the movement of a pair of doors on dancers often before a

Reality, absurdity reversed in Chast cartoon collection

By Richard Pavel

University of Red Chop, Harper & Row, 1984.

THEORY is a perilous exercise on the same plane as one's but exists in another dimension. A serious error is really the kind of place where the bizarre exists. The real universe is not our universe, much as it appears to be the same.

But, for our instance, what is it that is true in your universe? In this case, the statement may accurately be attributed to David Woodley, assistant staff writer of the Chicago Tribune. His book, "The Chast Cartoon Collection," is really a parody of the universe. In his book, he attempts to show the reader what it is like to live in a parallel universe.

The book is a collection of cartoons, each of which presents a different view of the universe. The cartoons are not only humorous, but they are also a commentary on the nature of reality.

In the book, Chast presents his view of the universe as being a place where everything is possible. He believes that the universe is a place where it is possible to be anything you want to be. This is in contrast to our own universe, where we are limited by the laws of physics.

Chast's universe is a place where dreams come true. He believes that people should be encouraged to pursue their dreams, and that it is possible to do so in his universe.

In conclusion, the book is a humorous and thought-provoking look at the nature of reality. It is a book that will appeal to anyone who is interested in the nature of reality and the universe.
