Eban: Lebanon pullout a priority

By Charlene Lee
Staff Writer

While a small group of picketers protested current Israeli occupation of southern Lebanon, former Israeli Ambassador to the United States Abba Eban addressed about 400 people Thursday night at the Union.

Eban started his speech by offering his observations of the current political setup in Israel, which gives equal control to two parties with opposing policies. He described this system as a "unique experience" for Israel.

When it was determined six months ago that the Labor and Likud parties would share equal power, Eban said the situation initially "came upon me as an ominous warning... Would they not use their power negatively instead of positively?"

Since that time, however, he said he has come to believe that might have been "too pessimistic an outlook."

Born in South Africa, Eban served as Israel's representative to the United Nations in 1948 and as ambassador to the United States from 1950 to 1959. Currently a member of the Knesset — Israel's parliament — Eban was also deputy prime minister of Israel from 1963 to 1966.

THE MAIN THRUST of Eban's address dealt with three aspects of current events in Israel — its economy, disengagement from Lebanon and the peace process with surrounding nations.

Eban attributed Israel's current runaway inflation and economic problems to its rapid economic growth in recent decades. "The trouble of Israel is not its incapacity of production, but its prodigy of production," he said.

In the last few months the nation has experienced skyrocketing inflation with percentages ranging in the hundreds. This, according to Eban, has forced the population to live in the present without preparation for the future. "It could mark the total degradation of a society."

The most important problem currently facing Israel, Eban said, is its disengagement from Lebanon. "We must put that See Eban, page 8A

Apartheid rally stirs controversy

The Daily lowan/Dan Nierling

During an anti-apartheid/pro-divestment rally Thursday on the Pentacrest, Craig Perrin, chairman of the UI Student Senate subcommittee for a Free South Africa, above, is led to the "blonds only" zone by Ben z. dream. Members of an ad hoc theater group portrayed South African soldiers who mockingly oppressed blond crowd members to symbolize the separation of the races in South Africa. Moyisi Majeke, right, shows his opposition to apartheid. Majeke told the crowd that apartheid is Afrikaan for separation. The UI rally was held in conjunction with a nationwide effort on college campuses to increase awareness of apartheid. Thursday marked the 17th anniversary of the assassination of civil rights activist Martin Luther King Jr.

Fiery accusations against the newly elected UI Student Senate's stance on divestment of UI funds from companies with holdings in South Africa spurred applause Thursday as more than 200 people gathered on the Pentacrest in a demonstration of solidarity against apartheid.

In welcoming the crowd to the midday anti-apartheid/pro-divestment rally, Craig Perrin introduced himself as chairman of the UI Student Senate Committee for a Free South Africa. Referring to the Students First-controlled senate and executive board, he added, "To hell with the new executives, we're continuing our fight against South African oppression."

The Students First party, which campaigned on the premise that a student senate should address student issues on which it "can have a direct effect," won an overwhelming victory over the Phoenix party in last month's senate elections. The subcommittee for a Free South Africa, which dealt mainly with divestment, was an ad hoc committee of last year's State Relations Committee, but it has not yet been renewed by the new senate.

"We have a new (student senate) administration that considers this an issue that should not be dealt with by the student senate," Perrin said. "To them, the Committee for a Free South Africa no longer exists. They've sent me and my friends running in exile to the (Collegiate Associations Council) for support."

PERRIN ASSERTED apartheid "is a student issue" and supported his claim by announcing that pro-divestment petitions bearing more than 2,000 UI student signatures have been circulated during the past three days.

South Africa denounced in U.S. protests

United Press International

Americans marked the 17th anniversary of the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. Thursday with protests against South African racial policies, highlighted by a mass rally outside the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C.

District of Columbia government workers left their offices in droves for a midday rally led by Mayor Marion Barry along the capital's Embassy Row near the South African diplomatic compound.

Marches and protests were staged in various other cities including Memphis, Tenn., where the civil rights leader was shot to death April 4, 1968 as he stood on a motel balcony.

Some 4,000 people turned out for the city-sanctioned demonstration in Washington, making it the largest rally outside the embassy since the nearly daily anti-apartheid protests began there Thanksgiving Eve.

POLICE SAID they arrested 58 demonstrators for protesting within 500 feet of the embassy as they walked a picket line carrying signs and chanting "Freedom yes, apartheid no."

Barry, who marched with King during civil rights protests of the 1960s, designated Thursday as "D.C. Government Employees Day against Apartheid."

"On April 4, 1968, we received the news that Dr. Martin Luther King had been assassinated. Here we are 17 years later, still carrying on the fight See Protests, page 8A

Nicaraguans want autonomy, two UI students say

By Mary Boone
Staff Writer

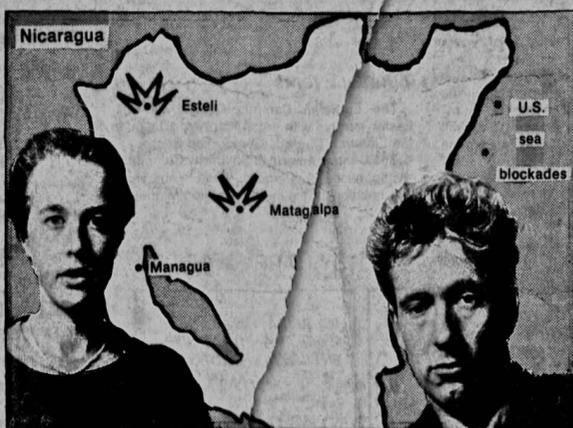

UI students Naomi Wallace and Bob Bover spent their spring break like many of their college contemporaries — traveling to warmer lands.

However, it was the battle zones of Nicaragua rather than the sun and fun of Daytona Beach that lured the two UI students south.

Wallace, a poetry student in the UI Writers' Workshop, and Bover, an undergraduate art major, spent the past two weeks traveling in Nicaragua, where they met with government leaders and Contras and toured hospitals, schools and daycare centers.

"We knew we wanted to go somewhere for spring break," said Wallace. "I had some background in political science, Bob and I are both Spanish students and since Nicaragua has been in the news so much lately, we decided that was the place to go."

WALLACE SAID "the very real possibility of U.S. military intervention in Nicaragua" and the fact that many of her "college-age peers would be among those drafted for military service" increased her interest in

The Daily lowan/Jeff Sedam

Nicaragua's political situation.

Bover and Wallace were the only students among a group of 16 Americans touring Nicaragua last month, but they said they weren't the only ones to discover facts left unrevealed by the U.S. media.

"There were doctors and nurses who went to survey the medical conditions, there were lawyers and psychologists and teachers," Wallace said. "We came from different backgrounds, but most of the Americans who went on the tour came back feeling we had been misinformed by the American press about the situation in Nicaragua as it really exists."

She continued: "Things in Nicaragua aren't wonderful. The country is very poor, there's no way to deny that. The people there consider toilet paper and light bulbs luxury items, but most of those same people understand the situation is not any fault of their government."

BOVER, WHO IS originally from Amsterdam, explained that approximately 30,000 U.S. troops are currently positioned in Nicaragua's neighboring countries of Costa Rica and Honduras and in ships off the country's coast. According to Bover, the sea blockade was set up to control trade to and from Nicaragua and to "destroy the country's economy."

The popular government — the Sandinistas — gained control of Nicaragua in 1979 and, despite claims by the American press that Nicaraguan people are oppressed by that government, Wallace and Bover said the accomplishments of the revolution have been "greatly underestimated."

"The misinformation concerning the achievements of the revolution is robbing Americans of the opportunity to learn the truth about what is happening in Nicaragua," Wallace said. "We're told over and over that Nicaragua is a threat to the United States. In all reality, I believe it's the U.S. that's a threat to Nicaragua."

While in Central America, Bover and Wallace had an opportunity to "speak openly" with the Nicaraguan people about their government.

"IT WAS STRANGE, because we stood out from the Nicaraguans so much. We were obviously a group of Americans there, touring the country, but the Nicaraguans were always very friendly toward us," Bover said.

Wallace added: "We talked to a lot of the Nicaraguan people and we always tried to ask them what message we should be taking home with us."

"They told us over and over again that we should come home and tell our friends to let the U.S. government know that their intervention is not wanted in Nicaragua," Wallace said. "The Nicaraguans apparently aren't blaming the American people for their country's political turmoil — they're blaming the American government. No one helped the United States fight their civil war, it's only courtesy to let Nicaragua fight their own revolution, too."

Wallace quoted a member of the Workers' Union in Esteli who had this message for the American government: "Leave us alone to find our own way and to make our own mistakes, to determine our own history for the first time since the beginning of colonialism."

THE UI STUDENTS said the "daily danger and threat of U.S. intervention" in Nicaragua is "extraordinarily frightful."

"We stayed near an airport while we were in Managua, and every time we heard a rumble overhead we thought to ourselves, 'Oh, God, please don't let the war break out now.' It was a really scary situation."

"The situation in Nicaragua is improving," Bover said. "They're building hospitals and schools, the education systems and health care systems are improving. The people of Nicaragua are working to change their social situation, but they'd be able to accomplish much more if they didn't have to expend so much time, energy and money fighting their war."

Hostages released in Peru

LIMA, Peru — Some 400 jailed guerrillas — members of the Maoist group Shining Path — held the warden and seven government officials hostage for 30 hours on a Peruvian island prison, demanding better jail conditions.

The hostages were released uninjured after authorities agreed to most of the inmates' demands. The guerrillas seized the visiting delegation from the government's Prisons Bureau and the prison warden Wednesday at the notorious El Fronton prison.

Khartoum isolated by strike

CAIRO, Egypt — A general strike interrupted air, power and communications links to the Sudanese capital of Khartoum for the second day in a row Thursday, but aides to President Jaafar Numeiry denied reports he was cutting short his visit abroad.

A Khartoum-bound Egypt Air flight returned to Cairo early Thursday after its pilot said he was unable to raise the Khartoum control tower by radio. Another flight expected from Khartoum failed to arrive and a British Airways flight from London was diverted from Khartoum to the Egyptian city of Luxor.

Guerrillas claim 262 killed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Guerrillas fighting to topple the U.S.-backed government of Jose Napoleon Duarte said Thursday they have killed 262 army troops and wounded 322 others since the start of the year.

In a related development, Defense Minister Gen. Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova said 71 soldiers were killed in two and a half months of operations aimed at preventing the rebels from disrupting last Sunday's legislative and mayoral elections.

Mexican drug dealer caught

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Rafael Caro Quintero, accused Mexican narcotics kingpin who allegedly masterminded the killing of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar, was arrested Thursday after trying to hold off police in a gunbattle, officials said.

"It happened early this morning in an operation carried out by Costa Rican security forces. The United States provided them with the information," a U.S. Embassy official said.

Reagan approves mergers

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration told Congress Thursday it believes corporate takeovers, whether hostile or friendly, generally are good for the economy and the stockholding public and should not be curbed by law.

The administration position on takeovers, hewing to its overall policy of reducing business regulation, was spelled out at Senate hearings by Joseph Wright Jr., deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Scientist: Eat your greens

SAN DIEGO — Chemicals in vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower appear to act as cancer prevention agents in laboratory animals, a scientist says.

"Our experimental evidence indicates that consumption of cruciferous vegetables, such as cabbage, brussels sprouts, broccoli and cauliflower is associated with a reduction in the incidence of cancer," Dr. John Bueding told medical writers Wednesday.

Grinnell gets Chinese studies

GRINNELL, Iowa — Grinnell College will begin an undergraduate program in Chinese studies under a $400,000 grant from the Gardner and Florence Call Cowles Foundation of Des Moines, school officials said Thursday.

The new offering will be funded at an additional $1 million upon successful completion of a four-year pilot phase. Gardner Cowles, founder of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, was a member of the Grinnell class of 1882 and a major benefactor of the college.

Man sentenced on cocaine charge

By Tamara Rood
Staff Writer

Andre Konrad DeLong, 28, of 1712 Fifth St. Apt. 10, Coralville, was sentenced Thursday in Johnson County District Court to a prison term not to exceed 10 years after pleading guilty to charges of delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance and possession with intent to deliver a Schedule II controlled substance. DeLong's appeal bond was set at $10,000.

On Feb. 2 at Antonio Garcia Brown's, Highway 6 West, Coralville, DeLong delivered a substance containing cocaine to an agent of the Iowa Department of Criminal Investigation, court records state.

Russel Bair, 27, of Williamsburg, Iowa, was sentenced Thursday in Johnson County District Court to two days in the Johnson County Jail, with credit given for time already served. Bair pleaded guilty March 22 to possession of a Schedule I controlled substance. His appeal bond was set at $500.

Police stopped Bair Sept. 1 on Interstate 80 in Coralville because his vehicle did not have a front license plate, and arrested him after discovering a loaded and assembled firearm in the vehicle. A search at the Johnson County Jail revealed a plastic bag containing marijuana in Bair's pants pocket, court records state.

Bair is also awaiting trial on unrelated charges of first-degree burglary and second-degree sexual abuse. He was charged in connection with an Aug. 29 incident at an Iowa City trailer court when a woman was sexually abused at knife point, court records state.

Courts

Ronald Brian Blakely, 19, of 918 23rd Ave. Apt. 5, Coralville, made an initial appearance April 3 in Johnson County District Court on a charge of delivery of a simulated controlled substance.

On Oct. 8 in his apartment, Blakely allegedly sold an investigator 25 dosages "of what he termed 'acid'" and "stated that the 'stuff' was really good and that he had some more LSD upstairs." An analysis showed there was no controlled substance in the dosages, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the charge has been set for April 22. Blakely was released to the custody of the Department of Corrections.

Sandra Lee Williams, 23, of 904 E. Fairchild St., made an initial appearance April 3 in Johnson County District Court on a charge of first-degree false use of a financial instrument.

On April 3 at the Union, Williams allegedly wrote and cashed a $40.50 check on another person's account. A purse containing the checkbook and student ID card was reported stolen the same day from the woman's restroom in the Union.

A preliminary hearing on the false use of a financial instrument charge has been set for April 22. Williams, who has also been charged with fifth-degree theft, was released to the custody of the Department of Corrections.

Keller Alan Smith, 24, of 303 N. Riverside Drive, made an initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended.

Smith was stopped Thursday on Riverside Drive for a defective tail light on the motorcycle he was riding, and a check showed his license was suspended for a failure to file a statement of financial responsibility. In addition, the license was not valid for operating a motorcycle, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the charge has been set for April 18. Smith has also been charged with violating the conditions of a restricted license.

David Lee Hunter, 19, of 2219 Hazel Court, pleaded guilty Thursday in Johnson County Magistrate Court to a charge of fifth-degree theft. He was fined $100 plus court costs.

On March 13, Hunter drove away from QuikTrip, 25 W. Burlington St., without paying for $11.75 worth of gasoline, court records state.

Marilyn J. Wesloski, 35, of 913 Dewey St., pleaded guilty to a charge of fifth-degree theft Thursday in Johnson County Magistrate Court. She was fined $100 plus court costs.

On March 14, Wesloski left K-Mart Discount Store, 901 Hollywood Blvd., without paying for a four-piece Garfield sheet set and a stuffed doll valued at a total of $34.34, court records state.

UI grad Dickson named regional party director

Tim Dickson, a 1982 UI graduate, has been named the western region political director of the Democratic National Party effective May 6.

Since 1983, Dickson has served as the executive director of the Iowa Democratic Party. In his new post he will oversee party development, fundraising and campaign programs in the western third of the United States.

Iowa Democratic Party Chairman Dave Nagle, who announced Dickson's appointment, said, "The western states are the hottest property in the country as far as Democratic Party development is concerned. Frankly, the national party could not have made a better choice in selecting Tim Dickson to direct this important effort."

Although Dickson said he "was really looking forward to the 1986 campaigns in Iowa with a great deal of interest," he added the opportunity at the national level "is just too good to pass up."

Dickson served as UI Student Senate president in 1981 and 1982. His mother, Kate, is a member of the Iowa City Council and is employed at the UI School of Religion.

Economic development highlights May workshop

Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company announced his week that the Iowa Utility Association will hold a series of six economic development workshops this May in order to further Iowa development.

Iowa City will be one of six Iowa locations hosting the workshops, which will educate participants about economic development and the importance of a local commitment to a common development goal.

The workshop sessions will also address promotion of community assets to retain and attract companies.

The Iowa Development Commission and the Iowa Professional Developers Association will co-sponsor the Iowa City workshop May 30.

For additional information, contact Tom Hoogerwerf, district manager for Iowa-Illinois, at 338-9781.

FAA starts recruiting air traffic controllers

If you're interested in a career in aviation and would like to work for the federal government, applications are now being taken for air traffic controllers.

The Federal Aviation Administration has launched a one-month recruiting drive for air traffic control applicants to provide the agency with a talent pool to fill future vacancies.

Applicants who pass a written examination and meet other qualifications will be added to the list of people eligible for controller jobs based on their individual test scores. Those chosen will be sent to the FAA Academy at Oklahoma City for an initial training course of up to 15 weeks before moving on to a facility for additional on-the-job training.

The starting salary is $17,824.

Any questions can be answered by calling: 816-374-5329.

Applications for career positions in air traffic control will be accepted by the Office of Personnel Management until April 30. The application forms may be obtained at OPM offices, FAA personnel offices, or the FAA Special Examining Division, P.O. Box 26650, Oklahoma City, 78123.

Program will address protection from diseases

Hospital workers concerned about contracting an infectious disease at work can take steps to prevent it.

The UI College of Nursing is sponsoring a program exploring on-the-job protection from infectious diseases such as herpes, AIDS, hepatitis and tuberculosis.

The program, offered April 18 at the UI, will focus on infection transmission in hospitals and methods of decreasing the risk of transmission.

Tuition for the program is $31, and continuing nursing education credit is available. For more information, contact Lee Chiavetta at 353-7388.

Faculty supports aid rally

The UI Faculty Council voted to support the UI student financial aid teach-in and rally at its meeting Tuesday. The events will be held Thursday, April 11 across campus in protest to proposed federal cuts in student financial aid.

The resolution submitted by the United Students of Iowa, as amended by the council, reads in part, "... The Faculty Council encourages faculty and students to share information on proposed financial aid cuts, discuss their effects on higher education and discuss possible actions for addressing the proposed cuts."

The resolution was amended to eliminate the idea that instructors would devote class time on April 11 to the subject.

Professionals object to tax package

By Sue Stoga
Staff Writer

Local businesspeople are expressing opposition to a tax package approved by the Iowa House which would widen the scope of items subject to the state's 4 percent sales tax.

The package which includes provisions for private wine sales and local option taxes, would tax services provided by accountants, lawyers, architects and cable television, but excludes items such as medical services, prescriptions and interstate phone calls.

"There are a lot of other alternatives (to raise revenue) other than taxing our services," said Bob Rehffuss, a partner in the Iowa City accounting firm of Dee Gosling and Co. "I would hate to see our clients pay something like that."

"If they're going to tax one service, they should tax all of them," said Iowa City attorney Robert Jansen.

Jansen said many individuals deem legal services as important as medical and dental services, adding that penalizing individuals for the use of attorneys is "discriminatory."

"IT'S DISCRIMINATORY to our profession," Jansen said. The legislature "should not just pick and choose who they're going to tax."

He added the state should not force attorneys and other professional services to be collectors of money for the state.

"This law is going to make us a collector of revenue for the state," Jansen said. "We're going to have to collect the tax and send the money to the state on a monthly basis. It's going to cost the state more all around" to process the resulting paperwork.

Rehffuss, however, said the passage of the tax plan would benefit the state in many ways.

"The state is going to stand to gain in several ways," he said. "Not only are they going to receive the tax revenue, but they will also be gaining money on income taxes when people don't come to us to do their taxes."

Rehffuss said the Iowa Society of Certified Public Accountants is currently conducting a letter-writing campaign to oppose the tax.

"This is going to have a negative impact on our services and we are not happy with it," he said.

ANOTHER AREA that will be affected by the proposed tax increase will be non-professional services such as cable television, lawn care and tanning booths.

"We've opposed (the increase) over the last few legislative sessions and we'll continue to oppose it," said William Blough, general manager of Heritage Cablevision of Iowa City.

Although Blough said it would be difficult to estimate the effect the tax increase will have on business, he is sure the increase will be detrimental to the cable business.

"This is placing a burden on the entertainment service when there aren't taxes on other similar services," Blough said. "Since (cable television) isn't a necessity, I could see this decreasing subscriptions."

Also opposed to the expanded sales tax is Tim Staag, eastern Iowa general manager for Chemlawn.

"Looking at our figures, (the increase) would definitely make a difference in our sales," Staag said. "Especially in areas like Cedar Rapids and Waterloo that have depressed economies."

Iowa City rated 232nd place to live

By Dawn Ummel
Chief Reporter

Stacked up against 328 other U.S. metropolitan areas; Iowa City fared better than Yuba City, Calif., but wasn't quite up to par with Omaha, Neb., in Rand McNally's 1985 Places Rated Almanac.

"It's interesting, but it's not terribly indicative of the quality of life we enjoy," Ray Muston said of the publication that placed Iowa City 232, Pittsburgh first and Yuba City last among 329 areas with populations greater than 50,000.

Muston, president of First Capitol Development, Inc., questioned the validity of "judging (the) quality of life by Census Bureau statistics." Communities were rated on the basis of climate, housing, health care, crime, transportation, education, the arts, recreation and economics.

MAYOR JOHN McDonald noted that this is the first time Iowa City appeared in the 1985 Rand McNally rankings, which were previously published in 1981 and are promoted as a "guide to finding the best places to live in America."

"It's good to be recognized," McDonald said. "Of course I have obvious prejudices — I think we should be ranked first."

The rankings for the Iowa City metropolitan area include: climate and terrain, 282; housing, 260; health care and environment, 38; crime, 125; transportation, 274; education, 152; the arts, 136; recreation, 206; economics, 203.

If temperature was a factor in the climate rankings, Muston said, "It's clearly not one of our strengths."

"It depends on one's tastes," he said. "We have neither the snow of Aspen or the sunshine of Houston, but a mixture."

IOWA CITY'S housing market ranked eighth among metro areas with the highest percentage of apartments as a total of all housing units. Apartments make up 28 percent of Iowa City's housing. The average monthly rent for local apartments is $320, according to the almanac.

In health care, Iowa City and Rochester, Minn., home of the Mayo Clinic, were recognized as possessing the greatest concentration of doctors. The measurement was determined by the number of physicians per 100,000 residents — a good indicator of health care supply, the almanac said.

Iowa City's ranking in the arts category climbs when the city is competing against metro areas of similar size instead of communities such as New York and Chicago.

AMONG AREAS with a population of less than 100,000 people, Iowa City rates third behind Lawrence, Kan., and Las Cruces, N.M., as the best place for the arts. The "culture per capita" rank, which measures the cultural facilities per number of residents, places Iowa City 10th in the nation.

"I'm delighted, but not shocked, that we rank high," said Robert Hedley, chairman of the UI Theater Arts department, which was cited in the Rand McNally study as among the 10 best in the nation for drama and theater arts.

"The university administration has seen fit to find the arts important on campus,"

Hedley said. "Our program gets a tremendous amount of support from the community" with the department selling approximately 90 percent of the tickets for its performances, he said.

Although lacking a zoo, a family theme park, oceans or professional sports teams that helped determine quality of recreation, Iowa City was recognized as the second top city for providing access to NCAA Division I sporting events. Lawrence, Kan., the home field for the Kansas Jayhawks, placed one slot ahead of Iowa City.

IOWA CITY was noted for another recreational activity, moviegoing, by placing ninth among the best metro areas for access to movie theaters. Des Moines, which ranked 173 overall, placed third in availability of movie theaters.

Measuring economic conditions, Iowa City was rated ninth among the 329 communities with the lowest unemployment threat. A low unemployment threat testifies to the low percentage of blue-collar workers (23 percent in Iowa City) in a city's workforce.

"It's misleading to try to reduce these factors to any single rating of one community to the rest of the world," Muston said. He said Iowa City's low ranking in transportation can be attributed to the city's lack of an international airport.

"Those of us that have spent several years here have thought through the years that we have a pretty good thing going," McDonald said. "But it's good to get national recognition."

BAPTISM...ESSENTIAL OR NOT?

It is strange that we should even ask the above question. Any student of the Bible, or even the unprejudiced casual reader, will see the importance of baptism. Yet there are many preachers and church members who seek to argue that baptism is non-essential. They would even "wrest the Scriptures" to their own destruction, to uphold some human teaching or tradition. When preceded by Faith (Mk. 16:7), repentance (Acts 2:38); Confessing Christ (Acts 8:36-39); baptism saves us from all of our past sins (1 Pet. 3:21). You may ask: "How can we be sure that it saves?" The answer is simple: "The BIBLE says it does, and that's good enough for me" (Mk. 16:16) See the other passages listed below.

The whole matter really rests on our ATTITUDE toward teachings of the WORD of GOD! In view of the many plain passages of Scripture that teaches the essentiality of Baptism, it comes down to this: If we believe the Bible we will believe in the importance of baptism. If we don't believe in baptism then we really don't believe the Bible! By itself it will not save, this is also true with faith. The Bible says faith only will not save (Jn. 2:24-26). Baptism will save if preceded by faith, repentance and confessing in the name of Christ. What we need is not the "interpreting" of the following Scriptures, but the "application" of them (Mk. 16:16; Act 2:38; Acts 10:48; 22:16; 1 Pet. 3:21; Rom. 6:1-6; Col. 2:12).

Israeli raids kill eight in Lebanon, bomb injures U.N. peacekeepers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli troops killed eight people Thursday in raids on three southern Lebanese villages and Shiite Moslem guerrillas struck back with roadside bomb blasts that wounded three Israelis.

Three French soldiers of the U.N. peacekeeping force in southern Lebanon were wounded in another explosion, the first involving peacekeepers since their deployment in the region in 1978, a U.N. spokesman said.

The peacekeepers' injuries came as Brian Urquhart, an envoy of U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, met with President Amin Gemayel and Prime Minister Rashid Karami for talks on Lebanon's request for a six-month renewal of the mandate of the U.N. force in southern Lebanon, which expires on April 19.

State-owned Beirut radio said an Israeli gunboat shelled a Palestinian refugee camp near the southern port of Tyre after rocket grenades were fired at an Israeli army position.

The radio said three people were killed and 12 wounded in the camp. Israel had no immediate comment on the report.

Violence also rocked Beirut, the mountains east of the Lebanese capital and the port of Sidon 24 miles south of Beirut.

ISRAELI OFFICIALS confirmed the raid on the southern village of Kawthariyat al Siyad, where their occupation troops said they killed five alleged guerrillas who tried to escape in a car and three others fleeing a cave.

Lebanese police quoted villagers who escaped as saying the Israelis also entered the villages of Ghassaniyeh and Babliyah.

The three hamlets are two miles north of Ansar, the prison camp Israel closed Wednesday after taking more than 1,200 of its inmates to Israel and releasing 752 others. More than 200 freed prisoners chose to stay in the areas occupied by Israel.

At the United Nations, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, commenting on the transfer of Lebanese prisoners to Israel, urged the Israeli government Thursday to respect the Geneva convention on the treatment of prisoners.

"The secretary-general believes it is most important that the provisions of the Geneva Convention be fully respected," U.N. spokesman Francois Giulliani said.

THE U.N. CHIEF executive "considers that the transfer of detainees to Israel is at variance with the intent and spirit of articles 49 and 76 of the Fourth Geneva Convention," he said.

The Israeli army said its troops entered Kawthariyat al Siyad searching for "terrorists."

"A large quantity of combat materiel was found in the village, including Kalashnikov rifles, machine guns, seven rocket-propelled grenade launchers and bombs," the army said.

Lebanese police counted four people killed and five captured in the raids. Israeli authorities did not report any arrests in Kawthariyat al Siyad, one of several Shiite Moslem villages east of Sidon.

Beirut radio also said Lebanese guerrillas detonated three roadside bombs against Israeli patrols and mechanized units, wounding three Israeli soldiers. All were treated at the scene.

The three French soldiers, members of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon, were riding in a jeep near the village of Jouaya when a bomb went off.

They were taken by helicopter to a U.N. medical facility at Naqoura for treatment and were listed in satisfactory condition, U.N. spokesman Timur Goksel said.

In Beirut, machine-gun battles between Christian and Moslem militiamen, sniper fire and kidnappings of Lebanese citizens forced police to close two of six Green Line crossing points temporarily.

Soviet navy exercises show expanded skills

ABOARD A U.S. NAVY FLAGSHIP OVER THE WESTERN PACIFIC (UPI) — The largest Soviet navy task force to appear near Japan in five years is on maneuvers in the western Pacific Ocean, shadowed by the flagship of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

Those aboard the American flagship, the USS Blue Ridge, said they are monitoring the task force closely from the sea and air in hopes that the maneuvers will shed new light on the Soviets' latest naval capabilities.

"Yesterday, we watched them conduct an 'under way replenishment exercise,' which is very unusual for them," Lt. Robert J. Skinner, a U.S. Navy public affairs officer, told reporters aboard a Navy P-3C anti-submarine plane that trailed the Soviet fleet Thursday.

"Until recently, the Russians weren't able to replenish their fuel while under way," he said. "They learned it from us."

Following what appears to be a directive from Washington, the Navy is also seeking to publicize the unusually large Soviet maneuvers as part of a Pentagon campaign to emphasize the buildup of Soviet forces around the world — especially in the Far East.

The greatest additions to the Soviet air and naval fleets are in their Far Eastern areas," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said in an interview with a Japanese television network Tuesday. "They are adding enormously to their naval and air strength in the whole region including the China Sea."

The Soviet task force, which left Vladivostok late last week, is led by the 43,000-ton Kiev class aircraft carrier Novorossiysk, one of two Soviet carriers deployed in the Pacific Ocean. It is accompanied by seven other ships, including three Kara class cruisers and two Krivak class guided-missile frigates.

In Tokyo, Japanese defense officials said it was the largest Soviet naval force to stage maneuvers around Japan in five years.

According to U.S. intelligence officials, the task group left Vladivostok on March 29 or 30, steamed south through the Sea of Japan and the Straits of Tsushima and into the Pacific Ocean.

Armed with an array of missiles, the Novorossiysk carries a complement of Yak-36 Forger vertical takeoff and landing aircraft and Bravo helicopters.

Apparently because of poor weather, only three Forgers and four helicopters were on its deck.

Army, rail police aid S. African government

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa's army and railway police will join regular police to combat racial violence that has claimed more than 270 lives in 13 months, a government minister said Thursday.

Previously, soldiers were deployed in a support role inside black townships in the riot-stricken Eastern Cape province and near Johannesburg.

"It is emphasized that the authority of the state will be maintained," said Adrian Vlok, deputy minister of defense and of law and order. "Radicals using revolutionary practices of intimidation and even murder... will, under all circumstances, be combatted."

Vlok's announcement followed President Pieter W. Botha's statement to Parliament last month that he had given "instructions for appropriate measures to restore and maintain law and order."

According to the government, 28 blacks associated with moderate black town councils have been killed this year and at least 41 blacks have died in unrest over the past two weeks.

Vlok said the South African Defense Force, railway police and regular police would "combine in order that law and order can be restored and to maintain internal safety."

"THE SOUTH AFRICAN Defense Force and the South African Railways Police will be used to support the South African Police in incidents such as roadblocks, cordons, protection and escort duties and in such other situations as circumstances may demand," he said.

The unrest continued Wednesday night and early Thursday, with black policemen, schools and local council officials the main targets of blacks, police said.

At Kirkwood, near Port Elizabeth, the homes of five black policemen were set afire and a warehouse was heavily damaged by fire, police said.

A school was burned in the Port Elizabeth black township of New Brighton and the homes of two local council members were attacked in townships outside Grahamstown, about 80 miles to the north, police said.

"On numerous occasions, police were stoned and, in self-defense, they were at times forced to use tear gas, rubber bullets and to fire shotguns to disperse stone-throwing groups. No injuries were reported," a police statement said.

Taiwanese official denies ordering journalist killed

TAIPEI, Taiwan — The former chief of Taiwanese military intelligence denied charges Thursday that he ordered a Chinese-American journalist killed, but admitted giving the writer's suburban San Francisco address to the man who masterminded the killing.

Vice Admiral Wong Hsi-ling told a military court in a preliminary hearing that he recruited Chen Chi-li, who is charged with the killing last Oct. 15 of Henry Liu in Daly City, Calif. He said he recruited Chen as an agent to collect information about China.

Chen, leader of the Bamboo Union, Taiwan's largest gangster organization, has testified that Wong told him, "You must kill Liu."

Chen said that, after hearing Wong's order, he took fellow gangster Wu Tun, and a suspect now believed in the Philippines to the United States to kill Liu, a Chinese-American journalist who wrote a book critical of Taiwanese President Chiang Ching-kuo.

Chen described the act as "the performance of duty" at Wong's order.

He added that Wong's deputy, Lt. Gen. Hu Yin-min, and Col. Chen Hui-min, a deputy director of the Defense Ministry's military intelligence bureau, were present at the time.

National news

General Dynamics gets the rap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department, following a month-long audit of General Dynamics Corp.'s expense claims, said Thursday it plans to recover $244 million the company improperly billed to taxpayers.

At the same time, Deputy Defense Secretary William Howard Taft disclosed that another 30 of the nation's major defense contractors are being audited for possible fraudulent billings to the government.

Announcing the latest Pentagon action to recover funds from General Dynamics, chief spokesman Michael Burch told a news conference the audit team "finds that we need to go back to recoup $154 million to adequately protect the government's interests." He said $90 million was withheld earlier.

"So if you were to add the $90 million with the $154 million, then the government will receive a total of $244 million in payment for overcharges," Burch said.

Burch told a news conference the government would extend a freeze on monthly $30 million overhead payments to the firm — imposed last month by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger — until the money is recovered. The freeze was due to expire at midnight Thursday.

THE OVERHEAD charges cover such indirect costs as marketing, travel and business conferences.

General Dynamics, the nation's largest defense contractor, had been accused of improperly submitting charges for country club membership fees, dog boarding by a corporate executive and entertainment.

"If the corporation wants to contest the audit ... they may do so, but we'll be holding the money," Burch, assistant secretary for public affairs, said.

General Dynamics' chairman, David Lewis, whose firm faces nine federal investigations, told Congress last week the firm was withdrawing $23 million in claims based on its own audit reviews, which he said were continuing.

The company said in a statement, "General Dynamics has received no notification from the Department of Defense concerning the results of its audit of the company's overhead accounts for past years," a company spokesman said. "The company has no idea of the origin of the figure quoted in the Department of Defense press briefing, nor the period covered by the audit."

Burch said that, after freezing the $30 million, the company would have "an owed balance of about $124 million. We will collect that amount."

IN ANSWER to questions, Burch said he did not have a breakdown of what divisions of General Dynamics were involved. Overcharges included workers' compensation and data processing and these were "separate from the charges for such things as dog kennels," he said.

General Dynamics had promised to withdraw billings dating to 1978. Burch said the corporation "has not yet given us a check," but it was unclear whether the company already has been paid for any of those items.

Asked what would happen if General Dynamics stopped production of needed defense weapons and material, Burch said, "They don't get paid."

A reporter asked how the Pentagon could assure taxpayers that overcharges by other defense contractors were not widespread.

"We don't think it is widespread throughout all defense contractors," he said. "We think there are a lot of contractors who handle their billings in a responsible manner. We've had an aggressive audit program underway for some time. That's the way a lot of spare parts' horror stories and the audit reports come out. It's from our aggressive management action."

BURCH SAID that Weinberger announced several weeks ago that executives of defense industries would in the future have to declare, under penalty of perjury, that the claims they submitted for payments are true and valid.

"We're not going to play a cat and mouse game any more wherein a company submits a wide range of bills and more or less challenges us to find them," he said.

On Capitol Hill, Taft said the companies targeted for new audits of overhead charges included "the top 30" defense firms.

He did not identify the firms during a brief news conference after he testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee, but said payments would be held back pending completion of the audit.

But contractors are not the only group in hot water on Capitol Hill. The General Accounting reported that the Air Force defied Congress by continuing to develop its own combat radar jammer even though it is developing other, comparable equipment with the Navy.

The Air Force will spend an estimated $3 billion on its own jammer, which has been inadequately tested, the GAO — an investigative agency for Congress — told the House legislation and national security subcommittee.

U.S. appeals judges take up equal worth

SEATTLE (UPI) — Three federal judges Thursday took up a case in which secretaries and nurses claim they should be paid as much as janitors and truck drivers working for the state of Washington.

If the state raises the salaries of the groups primarily staffed by women, and does not change the wages of those groups staffed primarily with men, the outcome could cost Washington state more than $400 million.

Before the appeals court was a U.S. District judge's 1983 precedent-setting comparable worth ruling against Washington that sparked similar lawsuits by women in several other states who assert their jobs should pay wages equal to those of male-dominated jobs.

A three-judge panel from the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals came from San Francisco to Seattle to consider the issue at a hearing Thursday.

Lawyers for both sides have indicated that whatever the appeals judges decide, the issue eventually is likely to reach the Supreme Court.

State lawyers argue that federal Judge Jack Tanner incorrectly interpreted the Civil Rights Act of 1964 when he ruled the state had engaged in sex discrimination and ordered increased wages and back pay for 15,000 female employees.

employees brought the suit in July 1982 after a state study showed jobs traditionally held by women paid an average 20 percent less than male-dominated occupations requiring similar skills and responsibilities.

The union filed a similar suit in California on behalf of about 100,000 former and current workers. Other similar actions are pending in New York, Illinois, Iowa and Hawaii.

Washington Gov. Booth Gardner has included $40 million in his proposed 1985-87 budget to improve salaries and also has said he would like to negotiate a settlement to the lawsuit.

But George Masten, executive director of the Washington Federation of State Employees, called the amount of money too low.

Masten said the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights' rejection of comparable worth as a "profoundly and irretrievably flawed" method of reversing discrimination reflected the political leanings of President Reagan and his appointees on the commission.

Helen Castrilli, a secretary at Western State Hospital and a plaintiff in the suit, said the state study showed her $1,400 monthly salary is $300 to $500 lower than wages paid to gardeners, tradesmen and other comparable occupations.

"It just makes me very angry," Castrilli said.

Nicaraguan aid request questioned by Democrats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan urged Congress Thursday to renew aid to Nicaraguan rebels, but offered to use the money for only humanitarian purposes if the warring factions in Nicaragua lay down their arms and negotiate peace.

In a diplomatic gambit aimed as much at his critics on Capitol Hill as those in Central America, Reagan appealed for $14 million in aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels as an incentive for reconciliation within strife-torn Nicaragua.

"Democracy can succeed in Nicaragua," Reagan said in announcing his initiative to reporters at the White House, "but Congress must release the funds that can create incentives for dialogue and peace."

"If we provide too little help," he warned, "our choice will be a communist Central America with communist subversion spreading southward and northward."

HOUSE SPEAKER Thomas O'Neill, long a critic of Reagan's Central America policy, said the resolution requesting $14 million makes no reference to the "program of peace meetings" Reagan outlined and accused the president of trying to play a "dirty trick" that would eventually result in having U.S. combat troops in Nicaragua.

"I think it's a dirty trick played by the Reagan administration. They knew they didn't have the votes" to provide the $14 million in aid.

"In my opinion, the president of the United States will not be satisfied or happy until the United States troops are in there. And as long as I'm in the Congress of the United States I'll be fighting it," he said.

offered a cease-fire in return for church-mediated negotiations leading to free elections.

"THE COMMUNISTS have turned, at least up until now, a cold shoulder to appeals for national reconciliation from the pope and the Nicaraguan bishops," Reagan said. "And we know that without incentives, none of this will change."

As a result, he asked the Contras to extend the deadline for their cease-fire offer from April 20 to June 1 and urged Congress in the meantime to approve aid for the rebels to maintain pressure on the Sandinistas.

Declaring that peace talks "must not become a cover for deception and delay," Reagan coupled his offer with a warning the aid could revert back to military assistance after 60 days if the negotiations fail to produce an agreement.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the arrangement would allow the Contras to ultimately receive the aid by refusing to agree to any peace arrangement with Nicaragua.

"IT'S ESSENTIALLY old wine in new bottles," Solarz said. "It is a formula to perpetuate the conflict."

He said if Congress approves the plan, within 60 days the food, clothing and medicine will "magically transform to bullets, machine guns, mortars and the like."

The presidential statement came less than 24 hours after Reagan sent Congress a secret report that reactivated his request to lift a prohibition placed last year on further aid to the rebels, who have received tens of millions of dollars in U.S. assistance over the last few years.

Submission of the report triggered a timetable for action that is expected to lead to a vote on the Senate floor April 23 and a similar vote in the House by April 30.

 The University Staff Council (USC) seeks to fill 8 vacancies beginning July 1, 1985. These vacancies include one two-year term for professional-research and one one-year term for professional-nursing; the remainder are three-year terms. The number of votes will determine the length of term where appropriate.
 USC is composed of full- or part-time permanent staff members nominated and elected by the staff members in each of seven categories. It represents all staff who are not represented by an exclusive bargaining agent and serves in an advisory capacity to the central administration.
 Meetings are held at least once a month. A representative from the central administration attends each meeting to keep USC informed of current and upcoming events and projects that concern employees of the University. USC then submits recommendations for further action.
 Nominations can be made by completing the form below and sending it to George Karr, Chair, Elections Committee, 334 Lindquist Center by April 15.
 Nominations must be from the appropriate staff categories. Categories and number of positions to be filled are: administrative, 1; professional-nursing, 4; professional-research, 3.
 Questions concerning category placement should be directed to Personnel Services, (353)3-7307.
 The following person is being nominated to fill a Staff Council vacancy.

Directors' amendment designed to foil unwanted CBS takeover

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS Inc. Thursday amended its by-laws to thwart a hostile takeover attempt and flatly denied that General Electric Co. is prepared to rescue the company if an unwanted suitor launches a bid.

The CBS board of directors amended the company's by-laws to make it impossible to call a special shareholders' meeting without the approval of top management and the board itself.

The amendment specifies that a special stockholders' meeting can be called only by the chairman of the board jointly with the chairman of the board's executive committee by a vote of a majority of the directors.

Any two directors also may request a special meeting, when it will then be put to a vote by the rest of the board.

CBS, rumored to be the target of a hostile takeover effort by Ted Turner, the Atlanta-based cable and broadcasting entrepreneur, has said it would resist any unsolicited acquisition attempts.

The New York Times reported that GE has offered to act as a white knight for CBS.

THE NEWSPAPER, quoting two separate Wall Street investment banking sources, said GE and CBS had discussed a plan under which GE would make a friendly merger offer of about $150 a share for the broadcasting giant if any party made a serious move for CBS.

CBS spokeswoman Ann Luzzatto said the Times' report was "absolutely untrue."

A spokesman for GE said "during the past year or so GE has been rumored to be buying very nearly every corporation in America. Thus, we have long made it a practice to neither confirm nor deny rumors of business dealings such as acquisitions or sales of businesses."

GE's interest in CBS began several months ago and was renewed this week with "a firm dollar figure," the newspaper said.

If GE were to purchase all of CBS's 29.7 million outstanding shares for $150 apiece, the price tag on the deal would be about $4.45 billion.

CBS stock closed at 111 a share Thursday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

GOP agreement aimed to slash requested military budget nikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republicans and White House aides agreed Thursday on a budget that cuts President Ronald Reagan's requested military spending boost in half, curbs Social Security increases and cuts $52 billion off the projected deficit.

The pact, which will face a tough fight on the Senate floor, forced Reagan's hand on his two most contentious issues. He wanted a 6-percent raise for the Pentagon next year; the accord allows a 3-percent increase.

Reagan, citing a campaign pledge, had refused to touch Social Security payments; the agreement limits next year's scheduled cost-of-living increase to a 2-percent hike.

The budget agreement, as outlined by Senate GOP leaders, would freeze the salaries of federal employees, terminate many popular government programs such as Amtrak, the Small Business Administration and federal revenue sharing, but preserve student loans and child nutrition programs.

The agreement is not expected to satisfy many Senate Republicans, to say nothing of the Democrats in both the House and Senate who have not been involved in negotiations with the White House. But it does hit the widely stated goal of bringing the current estimated deficit of $230 billion down to $100 billion in three years.

"THIS IS GOING to be the most difficult imaginable proposition to win in the Senate," said budget director David Stockman, "so we're going to worry about that right now and move on to the House later."

Stockman said the Defense Department "satisfied themselves" that they could live with the 3-percent increase in funding next fiscal year, prompting Reagan to accept the lesser amount.

White House chief of staff Donald Regan said the Social Security compromise guarantees recipients some raise, but Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., Congress's staunchest defender of the elderly, accused the president of renegeing on his campaign promise not to tamper with the program.

In education, Regan wanted to limit guaranteed student loans to $4,000 per student per year and to cut off the loan eligibility for families with incomes above $32,500. The agreement lifts the loan ceiling to $8,000 (including room and board) and the income cap to families with adjusted gross incomes of $60,000.

"No one is totally happy and no one is totally unhappy," said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

Water overdose kills Londoner

LONDON (UPI) — A 31-year-old Briton who thought that drinking lots of water was good for his health, died by water-logging his brain, lungs and stomach, a coroner's inquest concluded Thursday.

Pathologist John Paul said Robert Cox's brain tissues, lungs and stomach contained "a severe amount of water,"

Paul said Cox simply drank himself to death.

Friends said Cox had once been seen drinking 13 half-pint glasses of water in a row.

The pathologist said an excessive amount of water eventually passes through the brain, producing an effect similar to drunkenness.

"The person becomes disoriented, and is unable to speak properly," said Paul.

Cox has a history of having spent several years in a psychiatric hospital in eastern England.

The pathologist said only about 100 other cases of water death have been reported in the world.

The face of decline

The U.S. economy is schizophrenic. As little as 10 years ago an unemployment rate of 7.3 was a recession; now we consider it a recovery. Fifteen years ago, the United States had not run a merchandise trade deficit in 50 years, but we were worried about our balance of trade; in 1982 our merchandise trade deficit with Japan alone was more than $20 billion and last year our trade deficit hovered around $100 billion — yet the economy is considered healthy.

In fact, the two faces of the United States are both sick. One face is that of an underdeveloped country. Like any underdeveloped country, the United States is exporting raw materials (corn, wheat, timber) and importing finished goods (video tape recorders, cars, cameras).

The other face is that of an empire in decline. Too much of what America produces and exports is in the form of armaments, often bought with U.S. government loans and credits. But tanks are poor products on which to base an economy. They are too expensive to sell many, one must hope they won't get used as that means war, and the countries with healthy economies, such as Japan, don't buy them. Cars, however, have a life expectancy of 11 years and are still cheap enough to sell.

Being a supply region is a dangerous way to live. A few examples make that clear. In the first part of this century, Uruguay could claim it was in many ways a paradise. A rich supply region, it exported meat, wool and leather and produced little else. But it made money from those exports and bought Eden: democracy, plenty of jobs and good wages, universal education and lots of imported consumer goods.

Then in the 1950s things began to go wrong. Countries such as France recovered from the war and began protecting their meat and wool producers, and countries like Australia and New Zealand, which produced the same raw materials, began expanding their exports. Prices for Uruguay's supplies fell and it could no longer pay for its imports or for its welfare benefits. There was inflation, civil unrest and finally a brutal military dictatorship.

Trade protectionism and competition are not the only dangers supply regions face. Recession and lowered demand have forced prices for petroleum down and now the oil exporting countries (and parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana) are seeing prices drop; eventually they will run out of oil and have nothing to export. Technology can also destroy supply regions. Americans began putting cement in bags reinforced with artificial fibers and the market for Tanzanian sisal and Filipino hemp contracted.

The United States also relies more and more on its military spending. It is military spending that has been largely responsible for the boom in the sunbelt. But that boom came in part at the expense of the steel and auto and manufacturing centers of the Northeast and Midwest. Capital was drained from the civilian economy into military spending.

So there has been a transfer of wealth but no increase in wealth. Steel workers now work in McDonald's for the minimum wage and lose their houses and cars. Money and manpower are now devoted to building tanks and missiles instead of better cars and televisions.

And military spending is ultimately dead end spending. As the machines get bigger and more technologically sophisticated, it gets more and more expensive to build fewer and fewer pieces. They are either stockpiled, unused until economic slowdown requires that the old be dumped and newer, fewer and more expensive replacements are built, or until war uses them up. Neither alternative promotes the growth of a healthy productive economy.

The United States, if it is to survive, must begin transferring its money from the military sector to the civilian sector. It must begin producing goods and services that can be sold at home and abroad and that pay good wages so that its citizens can afford to buy the goods it produces.

Pact to end PACs?

Picture the freshman state senator from your district earning his seat in the legislature by wooing $80,000 from political action committees.

When he walks into the statehouse and considers how to cast his votes, is he more beholden to his constituents or to those special interests who donated money with certain strings attached?

From the way the Iowa Senate voted earlier this week it seems most of those incumbent lawmakers don't want to cut their ties to the PAC contributors who paved their way into office. The Senate rejected a proposal that would limit PAC contributions to individual House candidates at $4,000 and Senate candidates at $8,000.

These are not even modest limits, but they are considerably less than many state level politicians now count on from special interest givers. PACs dropped $854,682 on Iowa legislative races in 1984, according to the Iowa Campaign Finance Disclosure Commission.

This growing grip of PACs on state as well as national politics is alarming. Yet ironically, those who can legislate solutions to the situation are those directly benefiting from it. Senate Minority Leader Calvin Hultman said during the debate: "The voters are the ones who make the final decision, and if I take too much money from any one group, they fire me."

In other words: "Whatever I do to curry special favor with Daddy Warbucks lobbyists is legitimate as long as my constituents don't catch on to it."

Opponents of limiting PAC spending insist that only independently wealthy candidates would fare well in the electoral arena. They say that without funds from labor, business and education PACs, average income candidates would not stand a chance of winning.

The solution may be in public financing of campaigns. In any case, the infusion of tainted dollars into public policy-making must be stopped.

'We are the (new) honky bosses'

GOOD EVENING. I'm Paul Lee O'Lithic and this is the Helms Broadcasting System evening news for Jan. 19, 1986.

Our top story tonight, of course, is the huge success of the new pop single from USA-South Africa, "We Are The Boss." Profits from the record, which went chromium in its first 27 seconds of release, will go to help support the embattled apartheid system in South Africa, with a small percentage going to such newly established black "homelands" as Transkei, Transparentlei, Bophatswana and Youcantalwaysgetwhatswana. Soon, we'll all be familiar with the song's poignant lyrics:

We are the boss,
We are the honkies.
Give you your rights?
We'd just as soon give them
To cows and donkeys!
It's a choice we're making
We're saving our own butts,
If you think we're going to just give up,
Then you're all nuts!

Michael Humes

CLOSER TO HOME, the Freedom Fighters in Nicaragua suffered a setback in Congress today when a House committee turned down an administration request to sell them 25 cruise missiles and to extend their lease on the nuclear powered aircraft carrier USS Mendacious. A Freedom Fighter spokesman said his people would continue their struggle, saying: "We fought freedom pretty effectively when we were in Samoza's National Guard and we see no reason to stop now."

And a White House source condemned the committee's action, saying, "It's easy to abuse freedom when you have it, but some people find it hard to guarantee to other people so they can abuse it, too; indeed, it is the highest calling of freedom not to abuse it, but to ignore it and do what you're told."

Freedom is strongest when it is never used."

The administration scored a victory, however, when Congress agreed to fund the construction of 100 MXXX missiles, a newer version of the MX missile, which President Reagan dubbed the Peacekeeper.

The MXXX, which the president has christened the Christ on the Cross, features the new "Happy New Year" warhead, which blankets target areas with multiple nuclear devices, called "CONFETTI," or Countless Nuclear Fear Engenders Tending Toward Total Incineration.

THE PRESIDENT himself praised Congress for its "courageous and forthright grovelling," further stating that "since our goal is a reduction in and not just a freeze of the number of nuclear devices in world arsenals, a necessary first step is to build even more of them. That way, the larger the number that exist, the larger the number than can be dismantled, and the greater will be the eventual blow for peace."

And with the 1988 elections coming up, the political season is heating up. Democratic frontrunner Ted Kennedy suffered an embarrassment today when the Democratic National Committee rebuffed his attempt to expel Alabama Gov. George Wallace from the party as "a closet secular humanist moving dangerously toward the middle."

The committee took his recommendation to change the party's name to the "Sort Of Like, But More Fun Than, The Republican Party" under advisement.

And in the first straw poll of the season, the Men's Skittle Pool League of Liphalm, Texas, gave Vice President George Bush 55 percent, New York Rep. Jack Kemp 28 percent and the Most Valuable Player award to former United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, declaring her the winner of their John Houseman Look Alike and Superior Attitude contest.

Angry, but not guilty

To the editor:
"Our time has come!" Those were the words often chanted at campaign rallies for the Rev. Jesse Jackson during the 1984 presidential campaign. Assuming by "our," Jackson meant all people, blacks and whites, this was indeed a fine slogan.

However, Julius Lester, famous civil rights writer and activist, did not see the slogan in that light. In the last Dissent magazine, Lester argued such a slogan indicated there is a "their time" which must end, and thus determined that such a slogan was immoral. He added such rhetoric would have to have the sad effect of pushing well-meaning whites into Reagan's clutches. After all, if "their" time must end, won't "they" try to stop it? Lester raised a frightening thought: Did Jesse Jackson make whites a "they"?

I don't think Jackson meant any such thing. However, I remembered Lester's article almost immediately upon reading the article on South Africa by Andrew Parker. Whereas I think Jackson does not want all whites to be part of "they," it seems almost certain that Parker put all whites in the "they" column a long time ago. And that's where he likes us.

Every time someone like Parker utters some nonsense about "a total massacre of the white race," as he did in his article, he strengthens the hand of some neo-Nazi ready to declare race war. It truly takes monstrous words to make Chris Whitehead's power-grubbing ethic seem more palatable, and unfortunately, Parker managed it.

I support divestment. I oppose Pieter Botha's heartless policies — as well as those of Ronald Reagan — with every fiber of my being. But that's not good enough for Parker. He wants to grow a bumper crop of white guilt. But I have done my reading. Ironically, it was Stokely Carmichael who provides me with my best response to Parker's apparent attitude. He once observed that whites were too busy asking "What about me?" to ask "What can I do to help?" But Parker is guilty of not allowing whites to ask that very question. We want Botha's policies to be changed as much as he does. But Parker won't let us ask what we can do to help. That would be patronizing. Instead, he wants us to sit in a corner and feel guilty. Really productive.

I don't feel the slightest bit guilty for anything. While it is true that men with skin the same color as mine are oppressing the people of South Africa, let it also be known that many of the leading opponents of apartheid in South Africa are white. While it is true that men with skin that was made in my shade held slaves, it must also be told that John Brown was also white. I feel even more secure as a white liberal, because I know that it was liberals like Abraham Lincoln, Franklin Roosevelt, Robert Kennedy and Norman Thomas as well as liberals such as Martin Luther King, A. Philip Randolph and Jackson that fought racism.

I don't feel guilty, but I am angry. I am angry that anyone could question my integrity or my support for the legitimate aims of people everywhere to be free on the basis of the color of my skin.

I remember why James Earl Ray killed Martin Luther King Jr. White racists wanted nothing more than to incite more riots, so that the Bull Connors of the world could reassert control. Feed the flames if you will, Mr. Parker. Have your revolution. Because when it's all over, I'll be in the same place I always was: Criticizing those who mistreat their fellow creatures and demanding reform. Justice is color-blind.
Zachary Klaas

After the coup d'etat

To the editor:
As a politically involved alumnus of the University of Iowa, I read with great interest your coverage of the 1985 student senate election.

To a large extent, the overwhelming support for the Students First Party was less than surprising. In a time when, as documented by the American Council on Education, 71.2 percent of college freshmen in this country view "being very well off financially" as a primary goal, the mass appeal of a political fellowship that limits its focus to student issues could only seem to follow. Yet, however predictable the Students First coup d'etat may have been, its ascension to the control of the senate — and the ethos of self-interestedness through which it achieved this feat — remain unfortunate.

The assertion that a student senate should be concerned with student needs and issues is axiomatic. On the other hand, to assert that a student senate should limit its agenda to student issues is to take a position that reflects an ironic detachment from the purpose and vision of higher education. There is something fundamentally disturbing about a political movement that pursues its interests consistently without regard for the interests of others who are undeniably bound to it by virtue of their common humanity. Whatever the motivation — common humanity, shared predicament or merely enlightened self-awareness — a more high-minded concern for the causes of others outside of the university community is necessitated. The two interests are by no means mutually exclusive.

In a period in which we are unceasingly reminded that our society faces very crucial decisions, and that the very survival of the world is at stake, it is curious that a student electorate would embrace a platform in which only "student issues" mattered. As Eugene Emerson Jennings noted in Routes to the Executive Suite, it appears that we are increasingly becoming a culture that sees the world as a mirror of itself and has no interest in external events except as they cast a reflection of our own respective images. Like it or not though, the world does not revolve around such narcissistic notions as the potential ramifications from the removal of the bowling alley from the Union.

Notwithstanding such views, the die has been cast. Students First has gained control of the senate and, if all goes as planned, the forum will abstain from the consideration of "non-student issues." It can only be hoped that such abstention is not derived from a loss of nerve, or even worse, some unarticulated belief on the part of the majority party that the student senate is in fact impotent in effectuating change within the university and influencing, if not improving, the community at large.

And the answer is ...

To the editor:
Hooray for Ken Starck! Writing a letter criticizing the university's secret selection process for choosing a new journalism school director was brave and honorable.

But neither Starck nor the DI has asked the crucial question about the search process: Why would a journalism school want a director who insists on a secret selection? Can someone with that attitude about openness teach students to develop the opposite attitude about secrecy in government?

I'll answer Starck's question about throwing the whole process open. If no school allowed secret selections for any tax-supported university post, no candidate would expect it. Then the free flow of information could work to expose bad candidates and elevate great candidates for university positions — and only the truly timid (or unqualified) would be too frightened to apply.

Saga of Tulane cage scandal continues

Three players are indicted by grand jury

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A grand jury Thursday indicted three Tulane University basketball players with sports bribery in a point-shaving scandal and charged another student with distributing cocaine to the players.

Two other students already implicated in the scheme to fix Metro Conference games then place heavy bets on those games were also indicted, along with two suspected New Orleans bookmakers.

All of those named in the two indictments, totaling 29 counts, were arrested and charged earlier in the investigation.

As the grand jury heard testimony, Tulane University officials announced they plan to abolish men's basketball. President Eamon Kelly also said he had evidence Coach Ned Fowler and two assistants made cash payments to players.

FOWLER AND assistants Mike Richardson and Max Pfeifer resigned just hours before they were called to testify to the grand jury under a grant of immunity. Although they were not suspected in the point-shaving scam, they refused to answer some questions.

Senior John "Hot Rod" Williams, Tulane's No. 2 all-time scorer, and sophomore David Dominique were each charged with two counts of sports bribery and three counts of conspiracy to commit sports bribery.

Senior guard Bobby Thompson, who testified to the grand jury, was charged with two counts of conspiracy. Gary Kranz, a junior business major from New Rochelle, N.Y., was named most in the indictment. He and Mark Olensky of Fair Lawn, N.J., face 11 counts each of sports bribery and two counts of conspiracy.

KRANZ IS ALSO charged with nine counts of distributing cocaine. Also charged was student David Rothenberg of Wilton, Conn., with one count of sports bribery and two counts of conspiracy.

Suspected bookmakers Roland Ruiz, 48, and Craig Bourgeois, 23, both of New Orleans, were each indicted on five counts of sports bribery and one count of conspiracy.

This past season, Fowler slipped an envelope with $100 enclosed to Williams each week, the report said. Sports Illustrated said Kranz gave away cocaine as a favor to the players and as a way to make friends.

"All five players involved were doing coke," Assistant District Attorney Eric Dubelier said in the Sports Illustrated article.

President wants board to abolish tainted program

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The president of Tulane University said Thursday he would recommend the school abolish its scandal-tainted basketball program and announced the resignations of three coaches who allegedly made cash payments to players.

President Eamon Kelly's announcement came only hours before a grand jury returned indictments in a point-shaving scandal which struck the private school last week.

Tulane's own investigation turned up evidence that head Coach Ned Fowler and two assistants paid players in violation of NCAA rules, Kelly said at a news conference. He would not say how much money changed hands.

KELLY AND District Attorney Harry Connick emphasized the payments made by the coaches had nothing to do with the alleged point shaving in two Metro Conference games in February.

Kelly said he would ask the school's board of administrators to do away with the men's basketball program permanently and that he expected little opposition when the board meets April 18.

"The only way I know to demonstrate unambiguously this academic community's intolerance of the violations and actions we have uncovered is to discontinue the program in which they originated," Kelly said.

Fowler, whose team was 15-13 this season, and assistants Mike Richardson and Max Pfeifer, resigned Thursday just hours before they were called to testify before the grand jury.

SENIOR GUARD Bobby Thompson, charged with bribery along with NBA prospect John "Hot Rod" Williams and sophomore David Dominique, appeared before the panel prior to Fowler.

A trio of Tulane fraternity brothers and two suspected New Orleans bookmakers have also been charged.

Thompson was not granted immunity for his testimony. Connick said two other players, who testified last week, had been granted immunity — senior forwards Clyde Eads and John Johnson.

Thompson reportedly told prosecutors he lined up the four other players to shave points in games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State in return for cash and drugs. Connick would not comment on Thompson's testimony to the grand jury.

Hawkeyes to host powerful Indiana

By Melissa Rapoport

After working to tie a secure knot with the loose ends of the hopeful road to success, the Iowa softball team will open its Big Ten schedule today against nationally-ranked Indiana at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

The Hawkeyes, who sport a 4-8 record, will entertain Indiana a second time Saturday at 1 p.m.

"Our philosophy over break and what we consider preseason games is to work out the bugs," Iowa softball Coach Ginny Parrish said. "When it comes right down to it, the Big Ten is what it's all about."

Although today's doubleheader begins at 3 p.m., preparation for Big Ten competition began weeks ago and culminated with a twinbill against Iowa State Wednesday.

Even though the Hawkeyes split with the Cyclones — Iowa winning the first game, 2-1, and losing the second, 4-1 — Parrish believes it was the Hawkeyes' best showing of the season.

"THE IOWA STATE games were two of our weakest hitting games, but they were two of our strongest games of the season," Parrish said.

Iowa's defense, pitching and ability to take advantage of favorable breaks beat the Cyclones and if the Hawkeyes can repeat these strengths, they will defeat Indiana.

"If we play defense the way we have and the pitchers throw the way they are capable, all we'll have to do is get the bats," the fifth-year coach said. "The team that will win is the team that will force the breaks and capitalize on them."

Although Iowa State split with the Hawkeyes, the Cyclones defeated Indiana at the Illinois State tournament last weekend, giving Parrish an idea of what to expect from Indiana. "They're a very good team," she said. "They're ranked in the top 20 in the country. They play a solid defense, but they're also beatable."

Smaller schools may give Iowa short breather

By John Gilardi

After a grueling week in New Mexico during spring break and four-straight wins earlier this week, the Iowa baseball team will have a breather when they face Luther and Wartburg this weekend in doubleheaders.

"It's always a letdown when we come off our southern trip, but we have to go on with the rest of the season," Iowa Coach Duane Banks said. "The size of the school doesn't matter — a great pitcher on the other team, no matter the size of the school, will equalize you."

"We're going to show and play," Banks added. "What happened a year ago against these teams happened then. The teams change and last year doesn't matter. I just expect to win."

THE HAWKEYES (14-9) face the Norsemen today at 1 p.m. on the Iowa Diamond.

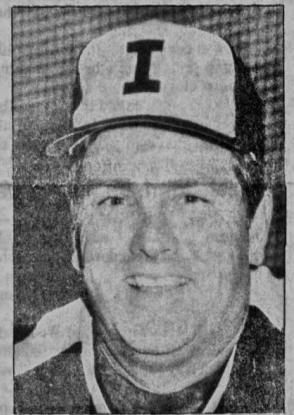

"Iowa is going to be a challenge for us," Luther Coach Paul Solberg said after his team racked up a 2-2 record last week up at the Metrodome. "They usually have the best pitching we'll face all season, not taking away anything from the ones in our league."

Solberg told his team that the games this weekend will be tough because Iowa has "solid hitting as usual." The Hawkeyes topped Luther 14-4 and 14-7 last season.

"We are a line-drive hitting team and you won't see that many home runs from our team," Solberg said. "Our team is characterized by a balanced attack, no one on the team stands out, but we count on everyone for the victory."

IOWA SHOULDN'T HAVE that much trouble with the Knights. Wartburg Coach John Kurt said he has had too many problems this season — not on the field, however. The first problem started when their spring break was scheduled for February, way too early to head south for a baseball trip.

"That missed trip cost us a lot of practice and now we are facing teams this week with 20 games under their belts while we play our first this week," Kurt said. "We haven't played any real games yet this season and Iowa will probably be one of the first teams we face," Kurt said. "We have a game Thursday and I hope to get some of our pitchers some action."

Duane Banks

Kurt said he sees the lack of actual game experience for his pitchers as his biggest problem. Another problem for him is that Iowa downed the Knights 14-5 and 27-1. "They beat us pretty good last season," Kurt said.

The Hawkeyes should expect to see a lot of different pitchers, Kurt said. "We will definitely have to rotate a lot of pitchers in. They will probably get tired quickly."

Kurt Stange and Mark Denkinger will be pitching for the Hawkeyes Saturday and Jeff Schaefer will be pitching one of the games today.

Iowa swept a doubleheader from Mankato State Wednesday night in the Metrodome in Minneapolis, 7-2 in the first game and 4-2 in the second.

Chuck Georgantas was the winning pitcher in the second game and saved the game for Iowa in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Iowa tailback Ronnie Harmon watches from the stands in Kinnick Stadium Tuesday afternoon as his teammates begin spring practice. Harmon is recovering from a broken leg suffered in a game last fall against Wisconsin.

Harmon confident he will return

By Melissa Rapoport
Assistant Sports Editor

After being confined to a cast for four-and-one-half months with two broken bones in his left leg and despite the doctor's speculations, Iowa running back Ronnie Harmon knows he will be back by fall.

"I'm going to be back," 5-foot-11, 185-pounder said. "I don't want anyone to think I won't, because I will."

Harmon broke his leg during the Wisconsin game last Nov. 3 and will be unable to participate in the spring practice sessions, which started Tuesday. Practices will culminate with the spring game April 27.

DURING THE 1984 season, Harmon, a second team all-American pick, ran for 907 yards and caught 32 passes in just nine games. He is also Iowa's second all-time leading scorer with 132 career points and was voted by his teammates as last year's most valuable player.

After having his cast removed in mid-March, Harmon began a slow rehabilitation process to ensure a safe, but effective, recovery. "I'm rehabbing my leg," the Laureton, N.Y., native said. "It's going well. It's a slow process, but if I rush it, it might set me back."

Despite being a slow process, Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said Harmon appears to be ahead of schedule. "Ronnie at this point is on schedule if not ahead of schedule of what the doctors had anticipated in regards to his rehabilitation," the Hawkeye coach said. "In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if they allowed Ronnie to start jogging this week."

HAVING HIS LEG immobilized for almost half a year, Harmon's troubles stem from the atrophy that has taken place, not the broken bones. "The only thing that's keeping me from running is my ankle," Harmon said. "It's not the bone. It's my ankle and my calf."

"I'm starting to jump rope, so that's a good sign," Harmon added.

Even with Fry's optimism and Harmon's charisma, the Hawkeye running back will remain questionable for the upcoming season until this summer. "We won't know if Harmon will be able to play until the better part of July," Fry said.

Harmon is adamant not to let his injury stand in his way of a successful season. Through patience, a strong composure and hard work Harmon hopes to regain his previous speed and lateral movements. In fact, through this extra work, Harmon believes he may become an even better performer than he was prior to his injury.

"THE TOUGHEST THING is regaining the quickness I had," he said. "It's like learning to walk again. It's going back to the basics. I have to work extra hard to get it (leg) back to what it was. With the extra work maybe I'll get over the hump I was at."

Unlike many athletes that are put on the sidelines for the first time with an injury, Harmon accepted it. "It wasn't frustrating," he said. "It was a new experience. I dealt with it. I never got hurt before... I don't want to go through it again."

"The hardest thing was carrying that thing to classes," Harmon said jokingly. "I can sit back and laugh about it now that it's over."

Although Harmon believes it's too early to predict Iowa's chances of winning the Big Ten title, he has set a few goals. "Not to break another leg," he said. "Really, I can't look that far in the future. I hope we have a good season. We have a good chance of having a good season."

Williams: Tulane coach gave him $10,000

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — John "Hot Rod" Williams was handed a shoebox containing $10,000 when he agreed to play basketball for Tulane University and received $100 a week this past season from his head coach, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Williams, Tulane's No. 2 all-time scorer charged with sports bribery in a point-shaving scandal, told about the payments in a taped statement to prosecutors shortly after his arrest March 26, according to The Times-Picayune, The States Item.

Tulane university President Eamon Kelly announced Thursday that an investigation by the school disclosed that cash payments were made to players by Ned Fowler, the team's head coach. Kelly said the school would drop basketball permanently and announced that Fowler and three of his assistants resigned.

The shoebox was brought to Williams' home in 1981 when he was a senior at St. Amant High School in Ascension Parish and was being heavily recruited, the report said.

Williams told prosecutors the money was handed over by Assistant Coach Tom Green, now head coach at Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey, and a well-dressed man Williams did not know.

Green has denied paying Williams any money, the Picayune said.

Governor considers Saints concessions

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Gov. Edwin Edwards has been given a proposed list of ways to save Tom Benson's investment group $4.4 million a year if it buys the New Orleans Saints, an NFL football team.

A memo to Edwards from Louisiana Stadium and Exposition District Chairman Mark Delesdernier outlined the details of concessions to be made by the state and city. Those details have not been reviewed by the whole commission, The Times-Picayune, The States-Item said in Thursday's editions.

Edwards emphasized Thursday the list of proposals was a preliminary one to sweeten the deal for Benson, an auto dealer who wants to buy the Saints.

"A 40-year contract with the state presents serious problems," Edwards said. "We have to keep negotiating a deal that would keep the Saints in the New Orleans area."

Under the proposals, the state and city would give Benson's group $2.19 million a year in dedicated Superdome revenue, $1.36 million by waiving the 14 percent state and city tax on Saints' tickets and $902,000 by waiving miscellaneous expenses, such as rent for stadium, executive and ticket offices and utilities.

Reagan welcomes Villanova in Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan paid tribute Thursday to Villanova University, "Cinderella" winners of the NCAA basketball tournament, and seemed chagrined to hear himself described as "a Hoya fan" by coach Rollie Massimino.

The president, in a Rose Garden ceremony honoring the collegiate champions, protested after Massimino said, "Even though you're a Hoya fan, we'd like to make you an honorary Wildcat."

When he returned to the microphone, Reagan — who earlier this year posed on the cover of Sports Illustrated with Georgetown Coach John Thompson and star center Patrick Ewing — said, "I can't be a fan of anyone. I just think of all of you as constituents."

Villanova of Philadelphia defeated the No. 1 ranked Georgetown Hoyas of Washington 66-64 Monday night, thanks in large part to record-breaking 78.6 percent shooting.

"I was beginning to think it was 100 percent the way it looked on TV," Reagan said. "That's better shooting than I used to do in one of those western movies."

"You're being called the Cinderella team," Reagan told the 14 players, four coaches and three trainers. "But I don't see anyone around here who looks like he could fit into a glass slipper."

Mets' Johnson makes peace with boss

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — New York Mets' manager Davey Johnson, who lashed out at the front office Wednesday for what he claimed was a breakdown in communications, Thursday made peace with his bosses.

"We had a discussion and we'll take care of the matter internally," said Johnson.

Johnson became annoyed Wednesday over a number of matters. The first occurred when he discovered that surgery on the right elbow of third baseman Ray Knight had been approved without the manager knowing the recuperation time required.

The manager also was upset when he learned utility infielder Ron Gardenhire will be sidelined a few days with back spasms. He said he would not have gone through with the trading of shortstop Jose Oquendo to St. Louis if he had known Gardenhire was hurting.

The Oquendo trade was completed because the Mets had no options left on the 21-year-old slick fielder and had no room on the major league roster because Rafael Santana and Gardenhire are the top two shortstops.

The manager also was miffed when he learned that Dave Cochrane, who had been sent down to the minor league camp a few days ago to learn to play shortstop, was being used as a designated hitter.

Hawks to entertain Michigan, Spartans

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's tennis team will try to get back on a winning track this weekend with meets against Michigan and Michigan State.

Iowa Coach Steve Houghton expects the two meets will be a pivotal factor in the Hawkeyes' success this season.

Iowa tangles with Michigan State this morning at 10:30 a.m. and will play Michigan Sunday at 11 a.m. Both meets will be played at the Kinnick Stadium Courts, weather permitting or will be moved into the Recreation Building.

The Hawkeyes are coming off of their spring trip to California where they played several top 20 teams but only tallied a 1-5 record. Wins over Michigan and Michigan State are important for rebuilding the players' confidence, Houghton said.

"THE TEAM NEEDS to be reassured that they are still up there as far as Big Ten competition goes," the Iowa coach said, and confidence will carry over into how the Hawkeyes play in following matches.

Last season Iowa clinched a new school dual meet win record with 6-3 victories against both Michigan and Michigan State. The victory over the Wolverines was also the first time an Iowa team defeated a Michigan team since the two schools started playing each other in 1924.

Despite defeating both teams last season, repeating that performance won't be an easy task. Both teams have improved since last season and the matches should be very close, Houghton said.

"MICHIGAN STATE IS the most improved team in the league," the fourth-year coach said. "And Michigan is back to being the old Michigan again."

The Wolverines, with a 3-3 record, are led by Jim Sharton at No. 1, who is ranked among the top 40 tennis players in the country and was named to the all-Big Ten team last year.

Sharton has been playing very well for Michigan all season in the top position, Michigan Coach Brian Eisner said. "He has performed very consistently all year in almost every competition he has been involved in."

The rest of the Wolverine line-up is young and Michigan often has four freshmen on the courts at the same time. Eisner said the inexperience at the Big Ten level has made some of the players nervous and affected their games. He added his team's inexperience was a factor in Michigan's loss to Illinois a week ago.

"BUT I FEEL we'll be ready by the time we meet Iowa," he said.

Michigan State Coach Stan Drobcac brought in two freshmen to strengthen his line-up. Last season the Spartans finished last in the Big Ten and have gotten off to a poor start this season, winning only one of their first nine meets.

Injuries have been a problem for the Spartans. Michigan State's top two players have been hurt this season, but Drobcac expects them to be back for the meet against Iowa.

Joe O'Brian was playing in the No. 1 spot for the Spartans before getting hurt. He has moved down to the No. 4 position. Paul Mesaros handled the No. 2 position before he got hurt. Drobcac said if Mesaros does play this weekend it will be in the No. 1 spot.

Despite his team's record, Drobcac expects the meet against Iowa to be very competitive. "I'm looking for us to put it all together and hopefully we'll do it against Iowa."

Wheeler sends three to tough Texas Relays

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

Despite the announcement by sprinter Robert Smith earlier this week that he has decided to redshirt the outdoor track season and play spring football, the Iowa track team will send three athletes to the Texas Relays in Austin this weekend.

Smith, a native of Dallas, Texas, is the reason Iowa has traveled to the Texas meet the last two years according to Coach Ted Wheeler, but ironically, Smith has never gone to the meet.

Last season the 5-foot-11, 175 pound sophomore missed the trip due to an injury, and this year he has chosen to spend time working out of his wingback position for Hayden Fry's gridgers, rather than attend the track team's spring meets.

HURDLER DOUG JONES, a classmate of Smith's at Spruce High School in Dallas, also missed last year's meet but will make the trip this weekend. Weight men Gary Kostrubala and Norm Balke will join Jones and assistant Coach Larry Wiczorek in Texas.

Track

"Last year was our first time down there and I thought we ran well," Wheeler said. "It's a great meet, one of the major meets in the nation."

"I talked to the Minnesota coach and they're going. Michigan will be there, Wisconsin and Iowa State...you name it, it's just hellacious. It's somewhat comparable to the Drake Relays."

Kostrubala broke a pair of Iowa outdoor school records on the team's trip to California during spring break, including his own discus mark.

THE 6-2, 210-POUNDER eclipsed his previous school record of 178-4, with a toss of 183-2. Kostrubala also smashed Balke's old Iowa record of 56-10 1/4 in the shot put with a throw of 58-1 1/4.

The Iowa coach also said his team was basically free of injury at this point in the season.

Lampert's dance, drama troupe charms in Hancher performance

By Karin Hanson
Staff Writer

IF RACHEL LAMPERT, whose six-member company performed Wednesday night at the Loft of Hancher Auditorium, were to appear on the Merv Griffin Show, the host would have an absolute field day announcing his guest.

"Our next guest is someone very special," old Merv might say. "She is a dancer, choreographer, playwright, actress, teacher and humorist all neatly wrapped into one small package. She is charming, witty and destined to become a dance-world classic. Please extend a warm welcome to Rachel Lampert." And he wouldn't be exaggerating one bit.

A warm welcome was exactly what the company received, especially with the UI graduates Pamela Wessels and T.J. Myers on the roster. But even without their talents, which are considerable, Lampert's special blend of dance and drama would have captured hearts on its own merit.

Lampert's dancers, who come from a variety of backgrounds, handled her quirky yet logical movements beautifully. They also got chances to use their admirable talents as actors and singers.

"Just Missed Trains," consisting of six Lampert creations, opened the program. A wry collage of gestures and scenes, it is set to five versions of Roger and Hart's "Where or When" (including a computer arrangement by Myers). The piece uses four dancers, who explored the essence of short-lived relationships. Their faces told all as they reacted to subway-station interludes and other unexpected situations in cars, bars and bed.

A SOLO PIECE called "Me and Beethoven" provided the first glimpse of Lampert performing Lampert in an autobiographical struggle with being — and not being — a genius. She entered with a cassette player and went about choreographing funny little show steps and kicks. Beethoven then blared from the wings and the irresistible Lampert went all a-flutter around the stage. "I learned to play this piece when I was 7," she told the audience. "They said I was a geeenius!"

She then sat at the piano, looked for the pedal like good little 7-year-old, then began to play. She proved herself to be quite the comedian as her upper body reacted to the pings and bongs of the notes.

The next round was Mozart, which she learned to play at 18. With the riveting notes of Chopin, however, Lampert felt the strain of genius, trying to keep up choreographically to the music. "I never studied that one," she whispered to herself.

Even with all its humor, the most awe-inspiring aspect of Lampert's work is her daringness to literally put a part of her life on stage for all to see. Because of this, the choreographer is in a class by herself.

LAMPERT AGAIN exhibited her personal life in the 1984 dance/play "Kreutzer-sonatenarbeitskrankhler." Love, work and making it alone were the themes of this full company piece, which even included the troupe's actor/tightrope walker/stage manager Mark Kindschi. The audience delighted in Lampert's ironic movements and a text that expressed her love of Beethoven's "Kreuter Sonata," her battles with inertia and her conquering of dependency on another person.

Rounding out the program were "Strategy," danced in three-piece suits, and a 1978 work called "Traffic." The former featured Stephen Nunley in a sophisticated work about business, its power and the results of that power. Nunley has a most interesting face and he knows how to use it, as he so clearly exhibited in the ending moment.

It was a pleasure to see Myers and Wessels again on the Hancher stage. They have both grown tremendously as artists, and have given the Dance Program a true sense of pride. It is hoped that through their connection, Rachel Lampert and Dancers will return to the UI again and again.

Folksinger Odetta sings in Stone City

Odetta, a leading force on the American folk scene for more than three decades, will present two shows at the General Store in Stone City, Iowa, at 8 and 10 tonight.

Born in Birmingham, Ala., Odetta made her first professional appearance in San Francisco in 1950. She has since performed in clubs, at colleges, on television, at festivals and in major halls all over the world.

After tonight's performances, she will travel to St. Paul, Minn., for a Saturday night appearance on the "Prairie Home Companion" radio show. She will then go to New York City, where she will make her Broadway debut as Cobalt Blue in Toni Morrison's musical New Orleans.

Odetta has participated in civil rights marches and worked for other causes. A special concern of hers now is raising money to support the Folk Music Archives at the Library of Congress.

Tickets for Odetta's performances are $10. For more information, call 482-4733.

Exiled Guatemalans present drama

Teatro Timoteo Curruchiche, a Guatemalan theater group in exile, will perform How We Live, How We Die, Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Old Armory Theater.

The production focuses on the current economic, religious and political questions facing the people of Guatemala by examining the history of the country from its pre-

Columbian Indian civilizations to the Chiapas refugee camps of today. The play also looks at the role of the United States in the region.

The theater group takes its name from the pseudonym of Luis Alberto Romero, a Guatemalan who spent his life defending the rights of the indigenous people of Guatemala. He was assassinated by the Guatemalan military in 1980. The group's goal is to "awaken the consciousness of the American public about the true situation in Central America."

The performance is sponsored by the Central American Solidarity Committee and the Caucus on Central America.

Poet Hass explores known and mystical

By John Volland Staff Writer

ON CAMPUS THIS weekend for readings and seminars, poet Robert Hass has, to this point, spent his highly successful and creative career examining the boundary between the known and quantifiable, and the unknown and mystical. He is concerned with the nature of the name, and how the slippery rubric has a way of rendering a thing more unknown than before it was "recognized."

"Hass constantly tests the limits of reality, the limits of imagination," Jorie Graham, assistant professor in the UI Writers' Workshop, said. "He's fascinated by the way that cooking, sex and metaphysics all resemble the face of one truth."

Hass is a professor of English at St. Mary's College and lives in Berkeley, Ca. He has a new collection of poems, The Apple Trees at Olema, coming in 1986 from Ecco Press, which also published his 1979 collection Praise. He's also been active translating verse and prose written by Czech author Czeslaw Milosz.

HASS SEEMS embarked on a poetic quest to determine the nature of things, attaching and sundering them from their linguistic baggage to see how thing pan out. In "Meditation at Lagunitas," for example, Hass alternately peers at the Platonic and Aristotelian theories of thingness. Recalling a past lover, he concludes:

I remember so much, the way her hands dismantled bread,
the thing her father said that hurt her, what she dreamed. There are moments when the body is as numinous as words, days that are the good flesh continuing.

As Graham and other poets have noted, Hass is respected as a writer of great intellectual honesty, one who seldom pulls punches. Then, too, he's capable of great passion, both for people and for his world, as in "Against Botticelli":

In the life we lead together every paradise is lost.
Nothing could be easier: summer gathers new leaves to casual darkness. So few things we need to know.
And the old wisdoms shudder in us and go slack.

Like renunciation. Like the melancholy beauty of giving it all up. Like walking steadfast in the rhythms, winter light and summer dark.

Hass will be reading from his work tonight at 8 in Shambaugh Auditorium. His UI visit is sponsored by the Writers' Workshop, and the reading is free and open to the public.

Shy single displays style well

By Allen Hogg
Arts/entertainment Editor

DURING ITS three-year existence, the Shy's live shows have proven the Iowa City-based band to be one of the most promising young groups around. Now there is vinyl evidence to back this up.

The three-man rock outfit has just completed its first single, "Skeletal Emotions/Fall Rain," a two-sided work on Hot Fudge Records which the group will put on sale tonight and Saturday, when they perform at the Crow's Nest with the Cause.

The record, which was produced by the Shy and Tom Tatman at Tatman's Catamount Recording Studio in Cedar Falls, displays the band's jangly pop style well. "Skeletal Emotions," an up-tempo number co-written by guitarist-vocalist Doug Roberson and Letters From the Circus' Mike McLaughlin, features a rather dramatic tempo change and uses the title phrase to evoke some haunting lyrical images. "Fall Rain," written by Roberson alone, is a moodier piece retelling a guy's thoughts about a girl on a wet day.

The sound of the record, with its crisp, guitar-based sound and somewhat murky, enigmatic lyrics, is most obviously reminiscent of R.E.M. — not surprising considering the group often performs R.E.M. covers during its live shows.

ROBERSON SAID that this similarity in style was purely intentional. "I told the producer I thought we sounded like R.E.M., so he went out and bought their album," he noted. Tatman and the band then listened to the LP and the group's playbacks side by side during the mixing process, trying to achieve similar results. "Although the production processes weren't the same, I think the ideas of the songs are," Roberson said.

Like the Athens, Ga., band, the Shy is more concerned with creating an identifiable sound than presenting songs with specific messages. "I don't think the lyrics are the main push of our music," Roberson said. "We're more concerned with atmosphere."

The band, now down to a three-man line-up, with Roberson singing and guitaring in front of Scott Stecklein's bass work and Jim Merrick's drumming, will begin pushing the single, sending it to bigger labels and radio stations. For this, they will be depending on the contacts and experience of Tatman and Hot Fudge Records entrepreneur and Blue Band leader Bob Dorr.

'Streamers' peers into army life

By Mert Walker
Special to The Daily Iowan

MORE THAN A decade after the release of *M*A*S*H*, Robert Altman directed Streamers, another film about soldiers and the violence of war. But because all the action in this adaptation of David Rabe's 1976 stage hit is viewed from one setting, a Virginia army barracks where five soldiers await their orders to Vietnam, Streamers really has more in common with Altman's Come Back to the Five & Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean than with his 1970 military hit.

Streamers is not a blood 'n' guts battlefield film, but rather an emotional study which, like Five & Dime, hinges on the revelation that the central male protagonist is gay.

SINCE THE MEN in Streamers are forced to live together under a traditionally strict masculine code of ethics, their relationships are strained and complex. The other soldiers are uncomfortable with their homophobic perceptions of Richie, but their youth and fear of death binds them all equally. Because two of the soldiers are black, racial tensions and jealousies also surface. Friendships constantly shift from pairs to triangles, and eventually each soldier stands alone as an archetype.

Films

Streamers

Directed by Robert Altman, based on the play by David Rabe.

Richie..... Mitchell Lichtenstein
Billy..... Matthew Modine
Carlyle..... Michael Wright
Roger..... David Alan Grier
Martin..... Albert Macklin

Showing at the Bijou at 9:30 tonight and 7 p.m. Saturday.

In contrast to these fluctuations of compassion is the "marriage" between the soldiers' two drunken but lovable sergeants, who weathered the war front together as part of the Airborne's "101 Screamin' Eagles." They laugh, play silly games, brag about each other and worship their camaraderie.

When the sergeants reminisce about the death they have witnessed together, the friendships of the soldiers silently realign. The newest, outcast member of the barracks, the trouble-making, street-smart Carlyle, believes they're finally "gonna be one big happy family." That, of course, is just when the real private war begins.

SINCE THE SCENES occur mostly inside the barracks, the images are almost exclusively close-ups and medium shots. This forces the viewer into a personal and objective relationship with each character, while the outside scenes act as narrative escapes. The lingering camera often captures details of hand and foot gestures, which explore the characters' private thoughts. Another aspect of the visual intrigue is Altman's use of costume and color, especially the motif of red, which is juxtaposed with the bleak, dark room and the severity of the surrounding moment.

Because the film is derived closely from the theater script, much of the action is dependent on dialogue and the affectation of speech. (Altman does deviate from the stage script by including his typical cameo character, a sixth soldier who only speaks one word, "nothing," at the beginning of the film, then spends his waking moments observing the others from beneath his blanket.) "Cute" Richie shines as the sparkling "wit" of the group, counterpointing Carlyle's slangy but accurate vulgarisms.

THE FIVE ACTORS shared an award at the Venice Film Festival in 1983 for best male performer, yet a few things seem somewhat bothersome about the direction. Unlike the play, the film doesn't leave much suspense about the question of Richie's sexuality, which is supposed to be the trigger of the plot. It seems fairly apparent from the beginning that Richie hasn't merely contrived his voice, mannerisms and awareness to taunt Billy and Roger. It is hard to believe the soldiers are so blunt-minded or naive that they can't decide for sure about Richie when the audience can. Could a soldier realistically be so blatant as Richie without having already been long ago reported and dishonorably discharged? And how often would a sergeant tell an openly gay private that he's "gonna be okay — there's a lot o' worse things?"

MORE IMPORTANTLY, why must films which use homosexuality as a narrative lever almost inevitably implicate the gay person as the mythical perpetrator of others' depression or discord, or as the motivator for murder or mayhem? Why must the gay person so often be portrayed as ultimately ridiculous, despondent or regretful of the circumstances?

Still, Streamers does present an engaging mismatch of characters whose tensions reach beyond despair. Often funny and sometimes endearing, it offers a sensitive glimpse at the threat of intimacy within a small group situation and conveys our ritual fears of loss, detachment and fear itself — something no number of pushups can cure.

Percussionist Schick to perform at Clapp

Percussionist Steven Schick, a former resident artist with the UI Center for New Music, will perform works by UI School of Music faculty composers William Hibbard and Kenneth Gaburo at 8 p.m. Saturday in Clapp Recital Hall.

In addition to Hibbard's "Parsons Piece" and "Schickstuck" and Gaburo's "Antiphony VIII: (Revolution)," Schick will perform Music for Marimba and Vibraphone by Daniel Godfrey, a former student of composition at the UI, and "Psappha" by Greek composer Iannis Xenakis.

"Schickstuck," for solo vibraphone, was written for Schick by Hibbard, director of the Center for New Music, while Hibbard composed "Parsons Piece" for William Parsons, Schick's predecessor with the Center for New Music.

GABURO, DIRECTOR of the UI Electronic Music Studios, wrote "Antiphony VIII: (Revolution)" after hearing Schick perform in a UI recital two years ago.

Schick has commissioned and performed new works for percussion throughout the United States and Europe, and frequently performs with former UI faculty pianist James Avery. He has appeared as percussion soloist on public and on West German television, and has recorded a number of new works on the CRI label.

In 1980 he won first prize in the inaugural International Competition for Brass, Winds and Percussion sponsored by the American Wind Symphony Orchestra in Pittsburgh, and has also won new music performance contests in Europe.

After receiving a graduate performing degree from the UI, Schick attended the State Academy of Music in Freiburg, West Germany. He is now a faculty member of California State University at Fresno.

The concert, sponsored by the Center for New Music and the UI Iowa Foundation, is free and no tickets are required.
