Apartheid protesters occupy Jessup Hall

Officials say they're firm on divestment

By Kirk Brown

Nearby 200 UI students stormed (even as you are reading this) President James O. Dole's office, calling for divestment and urging him to show solidarity with South Africa. The protesters, about 200 people, are opposed to many of President Reagan's policies, it was reported.

As the rally ended, the crowd — including about a dozen journalists — marched to Jessup Hall. It was 4:45 this afternoon.

Student Robert Heurst said: "I had no idea this many people would be here."

"It was a spontaneous thing," said Jim O'Meara, UI assistant vice president for student affairs.

"I expect there will be a lot more of this," added he.

UI students: "We ARE NOT going to take that money."

"I think we are very solid in our demands from a group of local student protests that were carried out last fall and we expect all demands to be met in this protest action in South Africa."

UI president James O. Dole refused to say if there would be any support on this matter because the apartheid government is calling for divestment and urging discomfort."

"Many of these people wore black arm bands. We are opposed to many of the violent principles in South Africa."

"I think it was well planned and well organized and the number of people is not as important as their support," said UI president James O. Dole.

Woman's life saved by free library

DOUGLAS, Neb. — A 10-year-old girl who was lost in the snow for several hours was rescued by a Douglas County sheriff's deputy.

The deputy, who was on patrol with a K-9 unit, located the girl near a snow-covered road.

She was taken to the hospital for treatment of hypothermia.

The girl, who had gone off the road while playing in the snow, was found to be in good condition.

The Douglas County sheriff's K-9 unit was able to locate the girl thanks to a new technology that uses GPS tracking systems to locate missing persons.

Airport renovation savings seen in creek re-routing

By Jerry Duncan

Willow Creek, lying in a proposed runway extension, is an impediment to making the airport eligible for federal grants.

The city plans to construct a 310-foot extension to Willow Creek, which runs through the proposed 6,240-foot extension to the Municipal Airport by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The airport renovation proposal is currently in the design stage and is expected to cost about $1.8 million.

State funds will be used to finance the project, and any federal funds that become available will be used to supplement the state funds.

The city hopes to begin construction on the project in 1985.

UI transplant program denied state funding for this year

By Jerry Duncan

UI Hospitals and Clinics has been denied state funding for its transplant program.

The state of Iowa has been unable to afford the $1.2 million cost of the program for the current fiscal year.

The university has been working with the state to secure funding for the program, and it is expected that funding will be secured in the future.

President bans Nicaraguan trade, suggests more sanctions expected

BONN, West Germany (UPI) - President Ronald Reagan declared a "national emergency" Wednesday and banned trade with Nicaragua. The move is designed to cut off $400 million in economic support for the Sandinista regime.

Mr. Reagan, speaking before a joint session of Congress, declared that the banning of trade would not harm the United States. In the United States, worth of bananas, beef, shellfish and coffee "would not be removed by secretary after verification nor would it lead to a significant economic impact.

The embargo, effective May 7, was approved by executive order and does not require congressional approval. The move is in response to the Sandinista regime's "support for Communist revolutionaries in Nicaragua and to the threat of a Communist invasion of South America." The move is also designed to cut off $300 million in trade with Indonesia and Mozambique.

"We're running out of things to do," said one Democratic House member for U.S. Rep. Tom Harkin, D.Iowa. "Nicaragua is concerned about the trade embargo because it means no restrictions, and it's hurting our trade with the U.S."

The ban is an "economic weapon," Mr. Reagan said. "It will not be used as an economic weapon.

"Economic warfare" will not be used against the Sandinistas. The move is designed to cut off imports and exports with Nicaragua and to limit trade with the Sandinista regime.

"There is no economic weapon," Mr. Reagan said. "We have no economic weapon.

Two bills would revise financing of public schools

James Hobert / The Daily Iowan

It’s been the trend over the last few years for the Iowa Legislature to pass a number of major education bills in the final week of the session. The Senate’s education committee was holding final votes on bills this week. The House is expected to vote on major education bills in the final week of the session.

The first is a school finance bill that would create a domestic abuse registry. The second would require the board of education to adopt a new policy for handling complaints.

The Iowa House of Representatives early Monday approved legislation to create a domestic abuse registry. The bill would require the board of education to adopt a new policy for handling complaints.

Final legislative approval was given to a bill that would provide funding for a program that would help local school boards and would pay for the state’s share of the cost of education. The bill passed by a 73-2 vote, with one voter absent.

The bill would provide local school boards with $5 million in funding for the state’s share of the cost of education. The board of education would then be required to adopt a new policy for handling complaints.

The Senate also passed a bill that would require the state’s share of the cost of education to be increased by 2% for the next two years.

As the session draws to a close, it’s clear that the state’s share of the cost of education will continue to be a major issue. The bill is expected to pass the House and Senate before the session ends.

Protesters made their way to the first floor, which houses the UI Central Administration office.

Approximately 80 minutes after the students entered President's office, a "negotiating team" representing the protesters met with UI Union of Student Employees (UIUSE) President John B. Hulbert and Iowa City Associate Vice President for Finance Comptroller Peg Mahon.

"We want to negotiate with an open heart, to negotiate without anger," said B. Hulbert. "That is our position in regard to the issue we have made.

"We agree that the UI administration and the UI Student Senate are aligned in their opposition to divestment," reported the student president. "We are committed to divestment as a political statement."

UI President Mahon said that "protesters have made the way to the administration." She added, "It appears that the protesters have made the way to the administration." Big Ten golf tourney a wide-open race

By Brad Zemank

One of five Iowa teams heading into the Big Ten's women's Golf Champs ionship to be held in Bloomington, Ind., beginning today, can come away with the league title.

Northwestern, Minnesota, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio State and Indiana of course will be tough on their own courses. In the game of golf anything can happen and anything can happen on any given day. It'll be a dog fight. I think it'll be anybody's show for the top five finishes.

Defending league champion Ohio State will be looking to win its third straight title. Minnesota and Iowa and Michigan figure.

"I MEAN it looks like a championship birth race. It looks like Michigan State. Ohio State and privately Indiana will be the top three," Indiana Coach Diane Complain said.

"I think there are so many factors that it's not what the top five finish is going to be, it's not the bottom five finishes. I think it'll be the other four who are going to make up the final tally, and that's anybody's guess." Complain said.

Ohio State team has played well lately and Coach Complain figures it's one of the favorites heading into this championship.

"WE'VE been playing better and better each week and we've won our last five matches. One of the things that we're getting better at is that we're learning to take control of our matches. We're certainly not as loose as we were in the beginning of the season. We're more relaxed," Complain said.

"I'm really not bothered that the outside, says Skyhawk's trainer, Michael Whitingham. "On any given day we've still got to go further. No matter what goes wrong, we'd like to be in the middle or just a little closer to the rail.""However, even though a win would look good, a loss wouldn't ruin the season for the Skyhawk and trainer Whitingham.

"UP TO THE SIXTH hole, our horse was sitting up pretty good, even though Derby history shows the smaller field since a 13-horse Derby years of Derby experience," Whitingham said.

"There's no way you can top a win in the Derby. Superman won the Derby in 50-50, 9-9 and 10-10. The only horse that's never failed to win was our horse, and she went off at 5-5-5. I think it was a little bit unfair to the horse."

"IT'S a race that's been on the books forever. It's been the largest of its kind. It's been around for 150 years."

"CHASEMAN's going to run at the top of the table, and he's probably the most likely third- or fourth-betting pick, is Cam Stephens, trainer of the two-time defending champs should be in the top ten and they're at number two and number three."

Clapp Recital Hall hosts world-famous organism

John Drury, one of the most widely loved organisms in the United States, is offering a musical and culinary presentation on 5 Thursday, May 2, 1985.

The event will begin at 12 noon. The musical feature will be the world-renowned Die Gruppe responsible for the 1982 release "Die Gruppe's Second Masterwork." The musical portion will be followed by a free lunch, courtesy of Magoo's and Savor Mexican. Clipper Matthews, executive chef of Magoo's, will introduce the meal. Afternoons are for the enjoyment of clip-on organelles and an optional concert honoring the memory of the war-torn cell. The concert will be performed by the Die Gruppe of Die Gruppe as well as Die Gruppe of Die Gruppe.

Joey Bivens will be the mc for the event.

The event is free, and all are encouraged to attend. I believe it may even include a brief lesson in the art of cellular division.
