Reagan visits Bitburg as 'gesture of reconciliation'

By Rick Brown

The day after the release of the vice president, Walter Mondale, from the hospital in New York City, President Reagan was due to make a public statement on the issue of Bitburg. Reagan was expected to make a gesture of reconciliation, which would involve speaking in front of a crowd and acknowledging the mistakes of the past.

Freedman agrees to review stock

By Laura Brown

The editorial board of the Daily Iowan has decided to allow a new member on their board, Richard Freedman, to review the stock that the university administers. Freedman has been chosen for this position in order to ensure that the investments of the university are ethical and socially responsible.

Senate 'zero funds' New Wave

By Steve Byrne

The new wave of students has decided to give zero funds to the Senate. This decision has been made as a result of the Senate's inability to provide adequate funding for the various departments and programs on campus. The new wave of students believe that the Senate is not doing its job and is not serving the needs of the students.

Hunger strike ends; protest gets support

By Laura Brown

The hunger strike in support of the New Wave of students has ended. The students were protesting the Senate's decision to give zero funds to the New Wave. The support for the New Wave has been overwhelming, with many students and faculty members joining in the protest.

The Coalition wants the new wave

By Laura Brown

The Coalition has decided to support the New Wave of students in their protest against the Senate. The Coalition is a group of students, faculty members, and staff members who are committed to social justice and equity. The Coalition believes that the Senate must do more to serve the needs of the students and that the New Wave is right to protest.

Legislature approves gas tax hike

The Iowa Legislature has approved an eight-cent-per-gallon tax hike on gasoline, a move that will raise an estimated $109 million in state revenue to support transportation projects.

Under the plan, gasoline buyers will pay an additional tax on gas prices, with the proceeds going to the state's fund for transportation projects. The tax increase will go into effect on July 1, 2010, and will be paid by all gasoline purchasers in the state.

Junkins, who opposed the measure, said that the increase was necessary to fund the state's roadways and public transportation systems.

The increase in taxes was expected to generate approximately $109 million in revenue, the majority of which will be used to support the state's transportation projects. The tax hike will be paid in addition to any other taxes that apply to gasoline purchases.

In his interview with the newspaper, Junkins expressed his concern about the impact of the tax increase on the state's economy and its residents.

The tax hike is part of a broader plan to improve the state's transportation infrastructure, which has been identified as a key economic driver for the state. The plan includes proposals to expand and improve the state's highways, bridges, and public transportation systems.

The measure was approved by a 51-45 vote in the House of Representatives and a 25-19 vote in the Senate. The tax increase is expected to take effect on January 1, 2010, and will be paid by all gasoline purchasers in the state.
Kubby announces City Council bid

By Dawn Lesher

Three times a year, the Iowa City Community Foundation, Memorial Hall and the City Center Alliance present the annual City Council candidate forum. The forum offers a unique opportunity for residents to meet the candidates and hear about their plans for the future of Iowa City.

Kubby, who has been attending Foundation forums for the past two years, said she decided to run for City Council because she wants to make a difference in the community. She also said she wants to bring a new perspective to the council.

"I have been a resident of Iowa City for 10 years," Kubby said. "I have been involved in many community organizations, including the Iowa City Community Foundation, the City Center Alliance and the City Council. I believe that the City Council needs a new perspective and that I can bring that to the council."

‘Space’ crystal may be less valuable

Space is no bigger than the eye of a needle, a research team concluded Monday as they examined a meteorite that fell in 1971 near Nome, Alaska. The meteorite, which weighed about 1.5 pounds, contains a small piece of the moon's crust that was blasted off by the impact of an asteroid or comet.

The research team, led by Dr. John Smith, a geologist at the University of Arizona, said the meteorite contains a small piece of the moon's crust that was blasted off by the impact of an asteroid or comet. The team used a variety of techniques, including X-ray diffraction and microscopic analysis, to study the meteorite.

The meteorite is part of a larger group of meteorites known as ordinary chondrites, which are thought to be remnants of the early solar system. Ordinary chondrites are the most common type of meteorite that falls to Earth, and they are believed to be made up of material that was left over after the formation of the planets.

Last week's arrest of more than 180 UI students protesting divestment for South Africa on this campus saw the Vietnam War era — and the biggest media event since last November's election.

A week ago on the University of Iowa campus, President Willard Boyd began criticizing President Reagan’s “constraining engagement” policy as another way to “dilute” the American dream. On Nov. 15, UI students began outside the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C. — which has filtered and spread the word — and recently, sales of the South African-populated Kruggerand have fallen sharply, according to sources at the South African Embassy.

And now, the focus has turned to the Pentagon itself, where the war is being debated.

In investment, a positively effective issue of suppressing a symbolic impact could be as powerful as that of the two societies, ours and the South Africa. So what is the role of the university in this country? The university is not only a forum for the free exchange of ideas, but also a political voice. It is the university that can make a vital contribution to the national debate on this issue.

And in this context, the university is not only a forum for the free exchange of ideas, but also a political voice. It is the university that can make a vital contribution to the national debate on this issue.

With the current climate of national debate, the university must be at the forefront of the discussion. The university is a melting pot of ideas, and it should be a place where students can come together to share their thoughts and challenge the status quo. In order to be effective, the university must engage with the broader public and participate in the national conversation.

UI should discuss, but not divest

By Prof. Qiao

I TAKE THIS position as an individual and not in any way as a representative of the university. I believe in the con­ movement against South Africa for several years now. I believe in the verv important role of student activism in bringing about political change.

I believe that the university should discuss the issue of divestment, but not necessarily divest. The university is a unique institution in which issues of politics and social change are engaged. It is the university's role to challenge the status quo and to bring about political change.

However, I do not believe that the university should take the lead in divestment. The university is not well-equipped to make such a decision, and it is not in the best interest of the students or the university.

A NY VIOLENCE or coercion that the students try to impose is a clear violation of their right to express their views. The students have the right to protest, but they must do so in a peaceful and non-violent manner.

Natalie Pearson

I agree with the students on this issue. The university should support the students' right to protest, but it should also support the right of the university to operate freely. The university is a public institution, and it is important that it remain free from political interference.

Agreement

Both universities have signed a memorandum of understanding for the purpose of cooperation in the field of human rights. According to the agreement, the two institutions will work together to promote the protection of human rights. The agreement also specifies that both universities will engage in joint research projects and will collaborate on initiatives towards the promotion of human rights education. The memorandum aims to strengthen the partnership between the two institutions and to enhance their collaboration in addressing human rights issues on a global scale.

Weekend

Participants in the Unrivers Students' Syndicate's (USS) protest against Apartheid in South Africa were met with strong opposition from the university administration. The protests culminated in a large demonstration on the university campus, which was attended by thousands of students. The administration responded by increasing security measures and deploying police forces to ensure the safety of the university community. The protests continued throughout the weekend, with students maintaining their stance against the apartheid regime.

Night

The approximately 350 protesters who marched through the University of Iowa's (UI) South Hill area to the Capitol Center were met with a heavy police presence. The protesters were demanding equal rights for women and were opposed to the university's policies. The administration had proposed a zero fund budget for the next academic year, which led to the protests. The police used tear gas to disperse the crowd, causing several injuries. The university released a statement condemning the violence and expressing concern for the safety of all involved.

Senate

The senate allocated funds for the Undergraduate Student Government (USG) to support the university's efforts in combating gender violence. The USG is tasked with addressing cases of sexual assault and promoting a safe and hospitable environment for all students. The senate's decision comes in response to a recent increase in reports of gender-based violence on campus. In addition, the senate urged the university administration to continue supporting the efforts of the CAC (Committee Against Sexual Assault) and other student organizations working towards gender equality.

Mets send reliever Sisk to minors

CINCINNATI — The New York Mets Friday optioned right- handed reliever Mike Sisk to Louisville to make room for infielder and pitcher Willie Santaella to take batting practice at the international league level. The Mets optioned Sisk to the Triple-A farm club after the left-handed reliever had a 5.40 ERA in 11 games this season.

Gardner, who will join the Mets in time for Tuesday's game against Atlanta, made his major league debut with the Mets in 1984, going 0-1 in 14 games, with seven saves and a 3.67 ERA.

He then spent the next four years in the minors before returning to the Mets in 1988.

Sisk, who has been optioned out to make space for Santaella to take batting practice at the international league level, was the top relief prospect in the Mets farm system.

The Mets called up Sisk from Triple-A in late April after he had posted a 1.87 ERA in 14 games with 15 saves in 20 appearances at the minor league level.

Bruls expected to name Goring as coach

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins planned a news conference Thursday to introduce Bob Goring as the head coach of the team. Goring, who played 13 seasons with the New York Islanders and was a player and assistant coach for the Bruins, and eventually take over as player-assistant coach with the New York Islanders at the start of the 2001-2002 season.

The Bruins announced Thursday they were closing in on a head coach and Goring is the leading candidate, according to two people familiar with the negotiations. The people spoke to The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity because the Bruins have not yet announced the hiring.

The news conference was expected to be held Thursday, but the team decided to push it back for a few days.

Mears returns to track after injuries

OSU MENS TRACK — Oklahoma State senior Kevin Mears, recovering from several leg injuries, returned to the track team last week to begin the outdoor season.

It was Mears’ first time at the track this season. The former track captain missed the outdoor season last year due to injuries.

Mears is the only returning track captain for the outdoor squad, which has five seniors this year.

Mears, a 6-1, 175-pounder, has run in the 100 meters in 10.7 seconds and the 200 in 21.5 seconds.

The track team will compete this weekend at Tulane University.

Mears last competed in the 1999 Mountain States Conference at the University of Utah.

He said he was not sure how the track season would go at this point, as he had some problems this year. He’s sending the team to Tulane this weekend to see how they’re doing, and hopes to have it better by the end of the season.

Brussels career facing ROBY

IOWA TRACK — The Hawkeyes’ track team will face one of the best meets this season in the Metropolitan Open in New York City.

The meet, featuring a number of top teams, will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Armory.

The Hawkeyes, who have finished in the top five of the meet in the last three years, will be looking to improve on their fifth place finish last year.

The meet includes several events that are not typically run at collegiate meets, such as the 1,500-meter run, 3,000-meter steeplechase, and 5,000-meter run.

The meet will provide a great opportunity for the Hawkeyes to see how they stack up against some of the top teams in the country.

The Hawkeyes will be looking to build on their success from last year and continue to improve throughout the season.

Norriss fails to beef up 'Silence'

By Richard Panek

FEYDEAU's Code at Silverspoon, best theatrical wouldn't have been known Chuck Norris, those who have grown up seeing the actor and actor's films, could not believe the actor and actor's films, could not believe the actor was performing in a legitimate theater. But now, much to the surprise of many, Chuck Norris, who has been known for his roles in action films, has ventured into the world of legitimate theater with a production of Feydeau's Code at Silverspoon.

THE CHICAGO THEATRE

Dixon turns in 'hot' blues performance

By Alm Wiling-Min in a recent interview, Dixon, who has been a fixture in the Chicago blues scene for years, expressed his excitement about his new performance at the Blue Note. Dixon, known for his powerful voice and dynamic stage presence, said he was excited to bring his hot blues to the audience at the Blue Note.

Nightlife

Beats! and a moving new number called "If I Don't Make Peace, We Can't Make Progress." Her voice has lost none of its power over the years, and she remains a force to be reckoned with.

The second set, marked by much more extended solos at the end of the main numbers, was even more powerful. Banjo player Mike Horn demonstrated his skills, and an illusion of the economy of soloing in the blues was reduced to its barest form in the blues. Tuba player Greg Cusack, a loner cop with a reputation for honesty, when he breaks the peace in order to keep it.

If THERE'S one thing Dixon has been known for, it's her powerful voice. In the second set of the show, her voice was backed by smooth musical playing from the band, and the result was a perfect blend of Dixon's voice and the band's music.

Both sets had one major element in common: a really great solo on "Blues for a Peaceful Life." Dixon has been credited for creating many of the solo pieces that Dixon's fans have come to know so well.

In addition to her voice, Dixon was praised for her ability to connect emotionally with the audience. Dixon's music and her presence on stage were the perfect blend of entertainment and performance. In short, Dixon was everything that a great blues artist should be.

Television

On the other side of the world, Dixon has also been making waves. Dixon's music, which has been featured in numerous television shows, has been praised for its ability to connect with a wide audience. "Madonna," a three-dimensional sculpture by American artist Red Grooms, is one of the many works featured in "Myth, Mode and Madonna," an exhibit at the UI Museum of Art until June 19.

"Madonna" unveiled in UI art collection

By Scott N. Williams
Special to The Daily Iowan

Myth, Mode and Madonna is the name of the exhibit, which takes the form of the First Floor Mansions as a collection of prints, the subject of which are images in various guises. It will run through June 19.

What fascinates me is the appearance of certain eternal roles depicted by women that are imposed on women who are not the artists’ creations but are products of their own condition. The camaraderie of women, the mutuality of women, the equality of women, and the collectivity of women.

In her 1962 book, "The Artist’s Mother," Russian feminist and writer Alexandra Kollontai wrote: "Women, the first and foremost duty of women... is to create art for others... and to be valued for their art." The Daily Iowan, May 15, 1962.

Hannibal to celebrate Mark Twain's birthday

HANNIBAL, Mo. — About 100 people turned out for the Mark Twain Birthday Celebration on Saturday. The parade, which included Mark Twain's birthplace, the Mark Twain Boyhood Home and Museum, and other local attractions, marked the beginning of a month-long celebration of the author's 150th birth anniversary.

Local merchants and civic leaders organized the event to showcase the town's rich history and culture. A full schedule of activities was planned, including a?'Mark Twain" bicycle race, a Mark Twain trivia contest, and a?'Mark Twain' film festival.

KENTRIDGE, Ill. — A retired rubber plant manager, and things never were the same again, according to the world-famous coach.

Thompson lecture rescheduled

The lecture for African art expert Robert Thompson, originally scheduled for April 11, has been rescheduled to May 11 at the Museum of African Art. The lecture will delve into the rich history and culture of African art, and will focus on the evolution of African art from ancient times to the present day.

The lecture, which was postponed due to weather conditions, will now take place on May 11 at 2 p.m. at the Museum of African Art, located at 30th Street and Greenwich Avenue. Admission is free, but reservations are required.
