GE guilty of bogus costs on Minuteman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Electric pleaded guilty in Philadelphia Monday to 108 counts of defrauding the government of $800,000 in spurious costs for the Minuteman warhead.

U.S. Attorney Edward Dennis said in a statement released in Washington the bogus costs were accomplished by altering time cards for the employees without their knowledge on contracts to retrofit re-entry vehicles for the Minuteman.

GE's Re-Entry Systems division had contracts with the Air Force to replace re-entry vehicles on Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles with a new, updated vehicle, according to the indictment. The re-entry vehicle carries the nuclear warheads and the arming and fusing system that activates the warheads.

GE, the nation's fourth largest defense contractor, faces a maximum penalty of $1.04 million and Dennis said the investigation is continuing to find which GE managers are criminally responsible.

He said Joseph Calabria, 50, of King of Prussia, Pa., one of the managers, has been indicted for perjury in connection with the case and his trial is set for July.

ROY BAESSLER, 40, of Topsfield, Mass., a former GE employee, was charged with two counts of lying before the grand jury. His charges were dropped 10 days ago.

Dennis said there was no plea bargaining to halt indictment of officials within GE and he said GE officials understand that.

In a statement issued Monday, GE said, "We changed our plea because of new information given to us and to the U.S. attorney's office and the attorney for a former employee. Four years of investigation by GE and various government agencies revealed errors in time card charging in 1980.

"From the beginning," the GE statement said, "we offered to reimburse the government for any incorrect charges. However, until now, GE was unable to conclude that any individual had engaged in criminal activity."

In early April, the Air Force suspended GE's Space Systems Division, builder of Minuteman warheads, from doing further business with the Pentagon because of the indictment handed down against the company March 26.

The Space Systems Division accounted for $830 million of GE's $27.9 billion in total sales in 1984, less than 3 percent, a GE spokesman said.

The case grows out of a two-year joint investigation conducted by the FBI, the Defense Contract Audit Agency and the Air Force Program Representative Office.

Grubbs, Moeller reject divestment as only option

By Karen Burns
 Staff Writer

About an hour before state Sen. Thomas Mann, D-Des Moines, delivered a pro-divestment speech on the UI campus Monday, the UI Student Senate president and vice president hastily staged a press conference to criticize the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid for promoting divestment as the only solution to end apartheid in South Africa.

Senate Vice President Sara Moeller told members of the local media, the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid and the student body that students who participated in recent protests calling for the UI to divest its stockholdings in corporations that do business in South Africa "have closed their minds to other options available that could help end the oppressive policies of the South African government."

But Mann, who twice sponsored state legislation to divest all state funds, said, "In my estimation (South Africa) is on the brink of a civil war — that is why divestment is needed. It is needed to put pressure on South Africa for positive and needed change."

Mann said it is more necessary to divest funds from South Africa than from other countries where human rights are being violated because it is "the only country that mandates oppression by law."

"EVEN THE Soviet Union gives lip service to concepts of freedom and equality ... In South Africa, there is no pretense that blacks have such rights," Mann said during a speech to about 50 people at the Union.

He said race determines a person's occupation, education and living condi-

UI Foundation will not invest in companies linked to apartheid

By Karen Burns
 Staff Writer

The UI Foundation announced Monday it is taking "a positive step" by instructing its financial managers to avoid investing in stocks and securities in any company linked with South Africa that does not comply with the Sullivan Principles.

Foundation President Darrell Wyrick called the move a positive step, because "in my view, it would be bad investment management for the foundation to invest in companies that do not treat employees of all races equally or that provide strategic or technological support for apartheid."

Wyrick was referring to firms that do not comply with the Sullivan Principles, a set of voluntary guidelines that call for affirmative employment action in South Africa, where the government discriminates against blacks.

The decision, which applies to present and future investments, was reached Saturday during the foundation board of directors semi-annual meeting.

The board also instructed its investment managers to report periodically to its investment advisory committee, which is charged with monitoring implementation of the policy.

DESPITE THE RECENT protests on the UI campus calling for divestment of all UI financial holdings in corporations doing business in South Africa, Wyrick stressed that the foundation board was "acting on its own" because it wanted to indicate that it "abhors apartheid."

tion in South Africa.

Mann encouraged the divestment movement and urged the anti-apartheid protesters to work with UI administrators to make divestment of UI stocks linked with South Africa a reality.

He said the UI administration has "a moral duty" to set an example and is currently setting the "wrong example."

But Moeller claimed the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid's use of "catch phrases" and lists of the "many horrors of South Africa" are not helping people make educated decisions on the subject. She said the result of the demonstrations has been to "paint minds with a waterproof varnish to new ideas."

CIA denies training terrorists; diplomatic outposts put on alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA denied Monday training any Lebanese "security forces" who later reportedly arranged for others to set off a car bomb that killed more than 80 people in suburban Beirut in March.

At the same time, calls came from Congress for a review of the matter and sources said the State Department alerted U.S. diplomatic outposts worldwide to guard against possible retaliatory terrorist incidents.

In a carefully worded statement responding to reports in Sunday's Washington Post, the CIA said it "never conducted any training of Lebanese security forces related to the events described" by the Post. And, said the agency, the CIA "had no foreknowledge of the Lebanese counter-terrorist action mentioned in the article."

The Post Sunday and The New York Times Monday reported that a car bombing March 8 that killed more than 80 and wounded hundreds others was carried out by people hired by a Lebanese counter-terrorism unit that had been trained and financed by the CIA.

THE APPARENT TARGET of the Beirut bombing, Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, leader of the Shiite Muslim Party of God, escaped unharmed. U.S. intelligence reports have linked Fadlallah's group to attacks on U.S. Marines in Beirut.

There was no immediate comment from Fadlallah. The CIA statement rejected allegations in the stories that the agency had not briefed congressional oversight committees on its alleged connection with the Lebanese group.

Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., said in a statement his panel

"already has plans to take a detailed look at the intelligence community's policy and action on counter-terrorism" when it finishes with the fiscal 1986 intelligence authorization.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., who was vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee last year, said he was told late last year President Ronald Reagan had told the CIA to develop "a small anti-terrorist effort" in the Middle East. He said it had not been specified how it would be accomplished.

THE CURRENT VICE chairman, Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the committee will look into "six or seven operations on our own," and said he did not know of the Lebanon plan until he asked about it a month ago on the basis of press inquiries.

Playing around with fire proves to be valuable hands-on training

By Greg Philby
 Staff Writer

Local firefighters bent the "don't play with fire" rule Monday when about 34 of them toyed with a blaze in an abandoned home for several hours before burning the building down.

The fire was part of a hands-on exercise for members of the Iowa City Fire Department, as firefighters gained experience in drafting, tanker and pump operations, rescue practices, fire behavior and other issues.

"Our fire calls have dropped off dramatically with the city codes (enacted in Iowa City)," said Ron Whittaker, the captain who's in charge of training the third shift. Because of the declining number of fires, some firefighters have not had much exposure to large fires, he said, so the practice blaze allowed them to gain experience.

The fire, located at 600 Foster Road near the Elks Country Club, demolished a building belonging to Bruce Glasgow. The Iowa City developer had asked the fire department to burn the building after he decided to clear the 75-acre area to begin work on a subdivision. The building has remained empty for the past decade.

"WE GOT SOME real valuable training out of it," said Robert Keating, Iowa City fire chief. "One of the lieutenants (Lt. Steve Dolan), said that he was real tired after going through this all day long, but that it was very worthwhile."

"We very seldom have this type of opportunity," Whittaker said. "It's

Beirut battle ruins legal files

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christian and Moslem militiamen fought across Beirut with tanks and rockets Monday, killing at least three people and destroying part of the Palace of Justice along with all the records it contained. Lebanon's top jurist called the incident the nation's worst catastrophe.

Ugandans foil assassination

KAMPALA, Uganda — Gunmen hurling hand grenades and firing automatic weapons Monday invaded offices of the Interior Ministry, but police ran them off in a gun battle that left at least eight people seriously wounded.

Police said Interior Minister John Luwuliza Kirunda, general secretary of the ruling Uganda People's Congress Party, probably was the target of the attack. He was said to have escaped injury.

Stevie Wonder wows U.N.

UNITED NATIONS — Stevie Wonder received an ovation at the U.N. General Assembly Monday on his 35th birthday for helping blacks fight South Africa's apartheid system.

Guests of the U.N. Special Committee Against Apartheid filled the 2,000-seat assembly hall to hear Wonder sing his Oscar-winning, "I Just Called To Say I Love You." Wonder had dedicated his Oscar to Nelson Mandela, the jailed leader of the banned African National Congress.

Court opens motor homes

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court threw open the doors of the 2 million or more motor homes on the nation's highways Monday, ruling police may search the vehicles without getting a warrant.

The justices, in a 6-3 decision, refused to apply full Fourth Amendment privacy rights to people living in homes on wheels, including the elaborately outfitted recreational vehicles or relatively primitive truck toppers used by vacationers.

Bee swarms flee accident

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Millions of swarming bees, released by an overturned truck trailer, tied up downtown freeway traffic for six hours, the California Highway Patrol said.

Joe Tweedy, driver of a double-flatbed truck, said he swerved to avoid a crash and his rear trailer overturned. About 100 of his cargo of 500 hives — each with about 60,000 bees — smashed to the pavement along both sides of the freeway, the Highway Patrol said.

Library finds rare document

WASHINGTON — The only surviving fragment of what could be the oldest manuscript written in England was discovered by accident at Washington's Folger Shakespeare Library, officials said Monday.

The fragment, which was discovered last year, served as the binding on a pair of late 16th century English medical books and is dated no later than 650 A.D., Folger officials said. The manuscript, written in Latin, is in a very rare script called Irish half-uncial.

Sears to be tried for fraud

AUGUSTA, Maine — Sears, Roebuck and Co. went on trial Monday in a consumer-action lawsuit accusing the world's largest retailer of using "bait-and-switch" tactics and peddling worthless product warranties.

The charges in Superior Court came on the opening day of a consumer-action civil suit brought by Attorney General James E. Tierney against the retailing giant. "Sears regularly advertises products for sale which all too often are not available," said Assistant Attorney General Rufus Brown, calling the practice "a matter of corporate policy."

Courts

William Kofford Wahl, 24, of 121 N. Van Buren St. Apt. 121, made an initial appearance May 11 in Johnson County District Court on four counts of delivery of a Schedule I controlled substance.

Wahl is charged with selling or providing controlled substances to a special agent on four occasions, including 240 dosages of LSD for $340 in his apartment on March 19, another 20 dosages of LSD on March 12 for no charge, 200 dosages of LSD for $290 and one-half gram of hashish on March 12 for no charge, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the four charges has been set for May 30. Wahl was released on his own recognizance.

Cathie Rae Pochter, 19, of West Des Moines, and Randy Scott Twit, 18, of 713 Slater Residence Hall, made initial appearances May 11 in Johnson County District Court on charges of delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance.

After a special agent was informed that he could purchase cocaine from Pochter, she told him they should meet with Twit to complete the transaction, court records state.

On Feb. 4, the agent purchased $200 worth of cocaine from Twit in Pochter's room in Slater Residence Hall, court records state.

On Feb. 8, the agent purchased one-half ounce of cocaine from Pochter for $1,050, court records state.

Preliminary hearings on the charges have been set for May 30. Pochter was charged with two counts of delivering drugs and was released on her own recognizance. Twit, charged with one count of delivering drugs, was also released on his own recognizance.

Scott Theodore Spinner, 23, of 615 S. Johnson St. and John Barry Dobroski, 20, of 36 W. Court St. Apt. 412, made initial appearances May 11 in Johnson County District Court on charges of delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance.

On Feb. 16 in an alley near South Johnson Street, Spinner allegedly sold approximately one-half ounce of cocaine to a special agent for $1,100 and a $20 transaction fee, court records state.

On Jan. 31 on West Court Street, Spinner introduced an agent to Dobroski, who sold him one-fourth ounce of cocaine for $575, with Spinner receiving $25, court records state.

Spinner, who was charged with two counts of delivering a controlled substance, and Dobroski, who was charged with one count, were both released on their own recognizance. Preliminary hearings on the charges have been set for May 30.

Christopher Paul Weaver, 19, of 637 S. Dodge St. Apt. 3, made an initial appearance May 11 in Johnson County District Court on a charge of delivery of a Schedule II controlled substance.

On Dec. 18 at his apartment, Weaver allegedly sold an agent one-eighth ounce of cocaine for $300, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the charges has been set for May 30. Weaver was released to the custody of the Department of Adult Corrections.

James William Brantley, 20, of 601 South Gilbert St. Apt. 616, made an initial appearance May 11 in Johnson County District Court on a charge of delivery of a Schedule I controlled substance.

On Feb. 8 in his apartment, Brantley allegedly sold approximately half a pound of marijuana to a special agent for $550, court records state.

A preliminary hearing on the charge has been set for May 30. Brantley was released on his own recognizance.

Three Texas men made initial appearances May 11 in Johnson County District Court on charges of third-degree theft.

William Junior Taylor, 29, of Houston, Billy Boyd, 33, of Austin, and Amos Barlow Long, 31, also of Austin, are charged with taking clothing and equipment valued at approximately $400 on May 10 from a couple at Lake McBride State Park, court records state.

The three remain in the Johnson County Jail under $1,150 bond. Preliminary hearings on the charges have been set for May 21.

Equal rates in insurance may hurt women

By Greg Philby
Staff Writer

A move by women's organization to end sex discrimination in insurance policies may actually result in higher insurance rates for women, area specialists say.

Judy Goldsmith, National Organization for Women president, said, "NOW is absolutely committed to eradicating sex discrimination in insurance because it costs women money — many thousands of dollars over a lifetime. State insurance laws and regulations which eliminate the sex-based double standard represent progress long overdue."

But Bill Ambrisco of Welt-Ambrisco Insurance Inc., Savings and Loan Building, said the move could "be doing something detrimental to women everywhere."

INDIVIDUAL STATES have the primary responsibility for regulating insurance policies and NOW is "pressing states to make insurance rates for auto, life, medical expense, disability income and old age income insurance equitable," wrote NOW member Lisa Lederer in a press release.

Although Hawaii, Massachusetts, Michigan and North Carolina currently prohibit sex-based auto insurance rates, Iowa may not be following that lead.

"If the facts are presented fairly and you remove the emotion from the issue and look at it pragmatically and logically, you would have a tough time convincing any judge to come down and see that this is changed," Ambrisco said. "An insurance rating is, in many regards, pure science."

AUTO INSURANCE policies are not equal because they are based on verified statistics that show a difference between male and female drivers, area insurance experts said.

"I really don't think it would work," said Beth Salladay, licensed office manager for State Farm Insurance, 1056 William St. "If we had to do that, overall the rates would have to increase quite a bit for everyone. Then people could complain that they are being discriminated against because they are paying for (insurance needed by) other people with higher risks... We have to go by the statistics."

"The rating for women drivers for auto insurance has always been different to the disadvantage of males," Ambrisco said, who has sold insurance for about 30 years. "It is based on statistical evidence that is justified."

"With auto insurance, women have enjoyed forever a significant discount," said Jack Muller, assistant manager of Prudential for Iowa, 1050 5th St. in Coralville.

"Now that's not to say that the woman driver is more proficient than the male," Ambrisco added, "But it's just that (statistically) there is more exposure for the male operator than for the female operator."

WITH LIFE INSURANCE, State Farm has higher rates for women in childbearing years because the risk of death or illness is greater at that time, Salladay said. But later in life, the premium for women drops far below the price men must pay.

"Women have always enjoyed the advantage there — always," Ambrisco said. "Women have a better rate of longevity and their mortality rate isn't as high."

The movement by NOW to equalize all insurance policies according to sex has eradicated some policies unnecessarily biased, but it may be detrimental if others are ended.

"Quite honestly, I would think strongly about the benefits to be derived," Muller said. "It may end up costing women more money. It won't lower men's rates, but it will just bring (women) up to that level."

Mullen added the four states with equal auto insurance policies "are probably no-fault states" that have higher premiums across-the-board to begin with.

Insurance companies also judge when it is advisable to sell insurance.

"If they can't sell it for a premium actuarially sound to cover the risk, they just won't sell it," Mullen said.

Although the insurance experts said the NOW movement may not be beneficial for women in auto, health or life policies, it has helped in other insurance premiums.

It led to the Norris Act in the fall of 1982 which made retirement insurance unisex.

Peace group gives to Martin fund

DES MOINES — The Iowa Peace Network announced Wednesday that it has contributed almost $800 to ease the sting of the $10,000 fine levied against Rusty Martin of Iowa City for resisting draft registration. The money came from IPN's conscience support fund.

Mary Clark, convenor (president) of the statewide organization, said, "We established the conscience support fund to share the financial burden imposed upon principled, non-violent resisters to war and preparations for war. The fund is used to help pay legal expenses and fines of draft resisters."

Martin was given the fine and sentenced to three years probation two weeks ago by U.S. District Judge Edward McManus, who also lectured Martin on the duties of citizenship.

Clark, of North Liberty, said IPN wanted to affirm Martin's assertion that civil disobedience, specifically resisting registration, can be an act of good citizenship.

Evans plans area hearing on policies of farm creditor

WASHINGTON — A House Agriculture subcommittee with jurisdiction over the Farm Credit System is planning a field hearing in Iowa to review the credit policies of the nation's largest agricultural lender, Rep. Cooper Evans, R-3rd, said Monday.

The hearing before the subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development will be conducted later this summer in Iowa's third congressional district.

Evans, a subcommittee member, requested the hearing late last week in response to numerous complaints from Farm Credit borrowers who have had trouble obtaining operating loans this spring. The subcommittee is chaired by Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn.

In recent months, Evans has criticized Farm Credit banks and cooperatives for unusual lending practices which, he says, have resulted in higher interest rates for borrowers, liquidations of several member institutions and an overall decline in the system's financial stability.

TIC offers services, facilities to aid new business

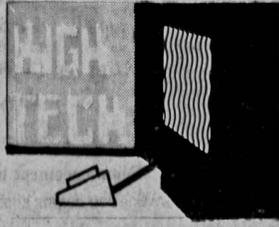

By Mary Boone Staff Writer

Six new businesses are getting a helping hand at the UI's Technology Innovation Center and thus "minimizing their chances of failure," according to the director of the state's only business incubation center.

"I'd be hard-pressed to say the companies that are out here couldn't make it without us, but overall TIC certainly offers some advantages that these businesses otherwise couldn't find or afford," said Bruce Wheaton, TIC director.

TIC offers a wide range of services and facilities designed to foster the growth of new businesses, particularly those using some mode of advanced technology.

According to Wheaton, much of the strength of the center lies in its ability to match the scientific and technological capabilities of the UI with expressed needs of businesses.

This is the first article in a three-part series concerning the UI Technology Innovation Center.

"Obviously, the Innovation Center is of precious little value without sustained top-notch research at the university," Wheaton said. "Nobody's going to care or call if the research here dies."

FUNDED IN PART by a grant from the state of Iowa and the Iowa High Technology Council, TIC is able to offer new businesses office space at a rate of $6 per square foot per year. Six tenant businesses currently occupy much of the Oakdale Service Center on the UI Oakdale Campus.

Additionally, tenant businesses have free use of two IBM XT personal computers, a spinwriter letter quality printer, various software packages, shared secretarial services and access to standard office equipment such as copiers, typewriters and calculators.

Tenancy at TIC — a program approved and established by the state Board of Regents last July — is typically expected to be no more than two years.

"After two years most businesses will probably have outgrown the ser-VICES we can provide. This is basically an 'incubation facility' — a place for new businesses to get their feet on the ground," Wheaton said. He added, however, residency extensions are allowed "with the right justifications."

Associate Dean of the UI College of Medicine Rex Montgomery, who serves on the 13-member Iowa High Technology Council, said both he and the council are "very supportive" of TIC.

"Because the (Iowa High Technology) Council actively funds TIC, we clearly have confidence in the program and see a need for such a center," he said.

Montgomery referred to TIC as a "bridge between university academia and industry."

"WE SEE THE TIC as a means of generating new industry which in turn will generate new jobs," he said. "Many times people who have ideas for new business projects need economic assistance as well as general information and services. TIC provides those things."

In addition to rental space and office equipment, TIC offers a number of services to businesses both in the community and at the Oakdale facility.

The center maintains a referral network of research capabilities of UI faculty members, seed grants and grant information, and business advice from the Capital Advisory Committee and the UI Small Business Development Center.

The six businesses currently located at the Oakdale TIC facility are:

• T.V.L. Corporation, a computerized public information source planning to place information kiosks in public places.

• Computer Aided Design Software, Inc., developer and marketer of a computer software package for the analysis and design of mechanical systems through the use of video animation. CADSI was the first attempt by UI officials to form a for-profit enterprise.

• 3 RW Corporation, a development-oriented company whose aim is to design, build and market a three-wheel, two-passenger car.

• Profiles Corporation, a curriculum research and development company specializing in the development of bilingual, computer-assisted, instructional software.

• The Typesetting Connection, Ltd., which produces and markets software products to enable personal computers to be used for typesetting.

• Synergistic Marketing Consultants, which specializes in telemarketing by making use of available techniques from the marketing, telecommunications and computer industries.

School merger to be discussed by board

By James Hintzen Staff Writer

The proposed merger of Roosevelt and Horn elementary schools will be discussed at the Iowa City School Board meeting tonight.

The merger would result in the creation of an intermediary school at Roosevelt and a primary school at Horn. The schools are located only eight blocks away from each other.

Paul E. Davis, principal of Horn School, 600 Koser Ave., said the proposed merger is the result of an "administration request. The population (of Iowa City) is moving west, and it's time to look at it."

Davis said that the merger would "even things up" between the two schools. After the proposed move, Horn School, which currently has an enrollment of 392, would have an enrollment of 350 to 360 children.

Roosevelt School, 611 Greenwood Drive, which currently has 230 students enrolled, would have an enrollment of 315 to 320 children.

Davis said he expects some initial opposition from parents concerning the merger. "Any time you try to change you're going to run up against some problems," he said.

EARLIER THIS MONTH, the board received a request from the parents of children attending Horn School to appoint a committee to study and make recommendations regarding the merger. At tonight's meeting, the committee will expand on their proposal and suggest a time plan for the study.

Iowa City School Board member Lynne Cannon said housing developments between the Benton Street and Highway 1 areas went in sporadically and there was no organized assigning of children to schools.

About three years ago, changing the boundaries of the two schools was discussed, but no conclusion was reached because the issue was discussed in conjunction with relieving the minority population at Coralville Central.

"It's been a problem ever since the southwest part of the town began mushrooming," Cannon said. "We want to do this now so we can be more systematic in planning as the city continues to grow."

"I think it will be a quite positive move," said Nora Steinbrech, principal of Roosevelt School.

"We're concerned that there has not been enough data put forth about the merger proposal," said Kathy Hiratzka, a member of the Horn School Parent Teacher Organization.

SHE SAID that parents will ask the school board to draft a report which details "why there is even a proposal put forth, what is the problem, why is there a problem, what data do you have, and why would the merger solution be the best?"

Hiratzka said she wants the board to address "all the different solutions that would be feasible."

"The district has enough buildings and students," Steinbrech said. "It's just that the students aren't in the same places as the buildings."

Branstad blames administration for bank failures

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa leads the nation in the number of bank failures this year because the Reagan administration has failed to make its farm debt restructuring program workable, Gov. Terry Branstad charged Monday.

Seven Iowa banks have been declared insolvent so far this year, mostly for bad agricultural loans, and more are expected to fail during the next several months.

The Republican governor said the administration reneged on a promise to provide farmers and lenders with a workable program to restructure agricultural debts. He said the lack of an adequate farm bailout program has put many rural bank in financial trouble.

"It's amazing that this administration would sit back and permit what's happening today," Branstad said at his regular news conference. "We're fortunate we don't have a worse situation."

BRANSTAD, WHO vetoed a South African divestment bill last year, also said today he thinks the Legislature passed a better divestment bill this year. But he said he has not yet decided whether to sign it.

The bill would force the divestment of nearly $113 million in state funds in companies doing business in South Africa if those companies have failed to adhere to a set of principles guaranteeing equal opportunity for blacks.

Branstad said basing the divestment on adherence to the so-called "Sullivan Principles" will enable the state to send a message to the South African government without damaging companies that are working to change the nation's apartheid policies.

"I want to make sure that whatever action we take to show our abhorrence to the racial policies in South Africa that we do it in ways that are not damaging to those who are working in positive ways," he said.

Police bomb MOVE headquarters

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A state police helicopter dropped a percussion bomb on the headquarters of a black separatist group Monday in an effort to end a standoff and to evict the occupants from the filthy, rat-infested row house, a police spokesman at the scene said.

The bomb caused a loud explosion and the headquarters of the group — named MOVE — burst into flames, its roof collapsed and thick brown smoke billowed out of the building and five adjoining houses.

The bomb, described by the spokesman as a percussion bomb, was dropped at 4:29 p.m. Iowa time, and it was not until about an hour later that firefighters began using their hoses on the burning buildings. By then, the MOVE house was engulfed in flames.

There was no immediate word whether anyone inside was injured. Police have said five adults and 10 children were believed to be in the MOVE compound.

Hundreds of heavily armed police officers backed by powerful water cannons surrounded the fortified house of the group and exchanged thousands of gunshots in two gunbattles with members barricaded inside to avoid eviction.

THE FIRST GUNFIGHT, at dawn, lasted about five minutes. It was followed by sporadic outbursts for about 90 minutes before a seven-hour standoff. Members of the predominantly black group called MOVE, who reject all forms of modern technology, remained inside.

"We intend to evict them from the house; we intend to evacuate them from the house; we intend to seize control of the house," Mayor Wilson Goode said. "We will do it by any means necessary."

The only injuries reported involved a police officer treated for hyperventilation and a second officer for a possible dislocated shoulder, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Police at one point fired tear gas at the West Philadelphia home, which had wooden slats covering its windows and a bunker on its roof. For much of the day, firefighters deluged the house with water cannons. The force of the water knocked down most of the wood and steel bunker.

Police made no effort to storm the filthy, rat-infested house to remove the MOVE members, whose ouster had allegedly been demanded by neighbors.

Goode said negotiations were under way to persuade MOVE members to surrender but vowed to use whatever means are necessary to remove them from the house.

He said he was convinced MOVE wanted a violent confrontation and was not interested in negotiations. But he refused to discuss whether police had set a deadline for a resolution of the standoff.

FBI arrests Sikhs for murder plot

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Sikh terrorists plotted to assassinate Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and one of his state governors in the United States, and also planned to bomb strategic sites in their homeland, including a nuclear power plant, federal officials said Monday.

The FBI — tipped to the scheme when an Indian national tried to hire a hit man — granted protection to the governor, who was in New Orleans for medical treatment, and arrested four men outside his hotel May 4.

The suspected plot against Gandhi was to have been carried out during his visit to the United States scheduled for June 12-18, with Washington and Houston the only announced cities on Gandhi's itinerary.

As of Monday, five men were in custody in New Orleans, and two others were being sought by authorities in New York.

Gandhi is the son of Indira Gandhi, the Indian prime minister who was assassinated Oct. 31 by her Sikh bodyguards in reprisal for an attack by government troops on the Sikhs' holiest shrine, the Golden Temple, in Amritsar. Sikhs are demanding more autonomy in the Punjab, their home state.

ARREST WARRANTS issued by the U.S. attorney's office in Brooklyn said the FBI first learned of the assassination plot through a man identified as "A," who met with the Sikhs three times in the New York area between Jan. 26 and April 27.

The FBI described "A" as a former U.S. Navy SEAL who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for service in Vietnam. SEALs are specially trained Navy personnel. "A" received training in urban guerrilla warfare, the warrant said.

At the meetings, two of which were videotaped by the FBI, the Sikhs asked "A" to provide them with plastic explosives and a quantity of 9 mm machine guns, the warrant said. They also asked him for military-type training, particularly in the use of explosives and automatic weapons, it said.

"A" was told that the three men represented a group seeking to overthrow the Indian government by bombing strategic locations there, such as a nuclear power plant, bridges, hotels and a public building, and assassinating certain political figures, including Rajiv Gandhi, the warrant said.

IF CONVICTED on all charges, the suspects could be sentenced to life in prison, U.S. Attorney John Volz said.

The Sikhs first planned to kill Bhajan Lal, governor of the Indian state of Haryana, which borders Punjab state and was once Sikh territory. He was in New Orleans for medical treatment at the Louisiana State University eye center.

Four men were arrested near Lal's hotel May 4. A fifth, a New Orleans cab driver, was arrested Sunday.

One of the suspects already in custody, Gurbartap Singh Birk, is also a suspect in the plot to kill Gandhi. In addition, U.S. Attorney Raymond Dearie in Brooklyn filed a complaint charging Lal Singh and Armand Singh, both still at large, with conspiring to assassinate Gandhi.

Religious leaders show no faith in Star Wars plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of 37 religious, civil rights and scientific leaders, saying they are "people of faith... (with) no faith at all" in Star Wars, Monday called on Congress to refuse funding for the weapons system.

"We reject any system of security based on fear and intimidation," they said in a statement. "This plan would generate an enormous new arms race in both offensive and defensive weapons."

Signers of the "We Have No Faith in Star Wars" statement included three Roman Catholic bishops, presidents of two Protestant denominations, three members of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology faculty, the head of the Reform Judaism movement, a member of Congress and two prominent civil rights leaders.

The statement was prepared and circulated by a Quaker organization, the American Friends Service Committee.

IT SAID THAT supporters of the Star Wars initiative — which argues that a variety of high tech systems, including space-based lasers that could shoot down enemy missiles — claim the system "presents a moral alternative" to the arms race.

"In reality, this plan would lead to the material and spiritual impoverishment of our people... further destabilize an already risky strategic situation, and thus increase the likelihood of nuclear war," the opponents said.

The six-page statement challenged each of the three "moral arguments" it said supporters use to defend the system: that it would protect the civilian population, would not lead to a massive arms buildup and as a defensive system would not threaten the Soviet Union.

The statement also challenged President Ronald Reagan's assertion that the system would make nuclear weapons "impotent and obsolete."

Stockman praises 'little girls' efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget Director David Stockman Monday praised his staff — even those who still believe he wants to eliminate — including one "little girl who works day and night" on the Small Business Administration.

At a Senate subcommittee hearing on the Office of Management and Budget's own budget for fiscal 1986, Stockman was questioned by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., about hiring staffers to study agencies President Ronald Reagan has targeted for elimination — including the Small Business Administration.

"Let me give you just one example," Stockman told Proxmire. "We've got one examiner — a little girl who works day and night — on the whole SBA."

Stockman said there are 5,000 people at the SBA, in addition to "dozens of paid lobbyists in town who spend their whole life trying to keep these miserable SBA programs alive."

"And then there's this one little girl who works on SBA," Stockman repeated. "This poor girl had to stay up all night, and draft her husband — who doesn't even work for the federal government — to work all weekend trying to get my testimony done on time so I could go out there and face all those people... who were for keeping it alive."

OMB spokesman Ed Dale later identified the analyst as Penny Jacobs.

EVEN BEFORE YOU PACK UP, YOU COULD PICK UP THE AMERICAN EXPRESS CARD.

Who says you can't take it with you? After four years of college, you've got a lot of things. And one more could be the American Express® Card.

Because if you're a senior and you've accepted a $10,000 career-oriented job, you could get the American Express Card.

That's it. No strings. No gimmicks. (And even if you don't have a job right now, don't worry. This offer is still good for 12 months after you graduate.)

If it sounds like the Card is a little easier for seniors to get right now, you're right.

But this is a way that American Express can show that we believe in your future. And as you graduate and go up the ladder, we'd like to come along.

The Card is great for business. It can help you begin to establish your credit history. And, in a little less serious vein, the Card can be a lot of fun. Use it for vacations, for a night on the town, or just a little shopping.

So call 1-800-528-4800 and ask to have a Special Student Application sent to you. Or look for one on campus.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.™

to solve the problem" of apartheid, she stated.

SENATE PRESIDENT Steve Grubbs, referring to the "considerable amount of media attention" generated for the divestment issue by the protests, said, "As president of the UI Student Senate, I feel a responsibility to clarify what I perceive to be misstatements in regard to the campus protests and the recent actions of the UI Student Senate."

Grubbs mentioned two resolutions passed by the senate Thursday, one supporting the right for freedom of expression and the other stating the senate does not condone defacement of public property or the disruption of UI business.

Craig Perrin, chairman of the senate Subcommittee for a Free South Africa and a member of the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid, proposed further legislation that would have urged "all students to responsibly consider acts of civil disobedience as an appropriate response to further delays in the divestment process by the UI administrators." This was not passed by the senate. Perrin claimed Monday that Grubbs had "gone outside of his bounds" by speaking for the senate at the press conference because "only 12 people out of 32 (senators) voted for the resolution condemning campus protest."

PERRIN ADDED, "I don't believe the views of students as a whole are clear here. This student senate serves a limited constituency — they serve those who they have the most contact with. They have little concept of what the average person thinks."

But Grubbs stated the "people of the state of Iowa" have not received "a fair and accurate portrayal of the involvement of UI students or the magnitude of the events on campus." He pointed out that while up to 500 people have attended pro-divestment rallies, about 30,000 students are enrolled.

He said the general public has been led to believe that the majority of UI students are "on the Pentacrest demanding that the UI divest."

After applauding the student demonstrations for raising awareness, Grubbs concluded by saying, "I must question whether the media coverage of the events and the continued radical means of protest are an effective way to bring about public and student education."

BUT MANN SAID the divestment movement has achieved more in the last three years than in the last 15, because the issue is being bypassed at the federal level and being addressed at the state and local level.

"I believe a snowball effect is taking place," because more states and cities are divesting funds from corporations with links in South Africa, Mann said.

He claimed overall U.S. investment in corporations doing business in South Africa totals $14 billion, which props up that country's economy and helps the South African government support military efficiency.

Mann said the UI's investments in South Africa do not represent "a substantial amount in terms of economic importance," but divestment would be "substantial in terms of moral impact."

Fire

having a fire under the best conditions that you can have."

About 32 Iowa City firefighters, two Muscatine firefighters and six paramedics practiced emergency operations in the facility, beginning at 8 a.m. Monday. The operation was primarily organized by Whit-taker.

The training began when paramedics wearing air packs entered the building and role-played the rescue of a live person caught under a fallen roof beam while the building was full of dangerous gas.

"We were getting a feel of what the firemen go through," said John Bennett-Gray, an Iowa City paramedic. But he added that in real situations emergency medical technicians will often leave the inside work to the firefighters and help the victims when they're brought outside.

"AS PARAMEDICS, we're trained that we don't take chances," he said. "A dead paramedic can't do you any good."

The firefighters then performed blind rescue missions after the building was filled with smoke from burning fuel oil and wet straw. The officers hid dummies about the building for the firefighters to locate and rescue.

Furniture for the house burning was donated by Goodwill Industries of Southeast Iowa, including three overstuffed chairs, two beds, one crib and two coffee tables, which added realism to the situation.

Later, firefighters had to combat actual blazes started by burning pallets soaked with fuel oil.

"It has been real good (training)," said Scott Goolsby, who has been an Iowa City firefighter for one year. "Some of us haven't seen this type of thing before and it gives us an idea of what we might be up against."

Dean Langstaff, an eight-year veteran of the Iowa City Fire Department, said the practice situation was like the real thing, but special precautions taken earlier took away some of the surprises.

"You don't have to be quite as careful as if it were the real thing because if it was the real thing, we wouldn't always know what the situation was," Langstaff said.

THE TRAINING OFFICERS had prepared the site two days earlier to avoid possible problems, Dolan said.

The officers trimmed nearby trees, boarded up windows and broken doors, removed plaster from the ceiling, removed the chimney and made the building "structurally sound."

At 3:15 p.m., the building was ignited for the last time and it burned to the ground within an hour. Light rain and little wind helped prevent the fire from spreading to neighboring buildings.

Bud Louis, a former auxiliary member of the fire department who lives near the site of the blaze, was "not a bit" worried about the blaze spreading, he said, "not with this many men standing by."

Neighbors had been notified in advance by the fire department that the house would be burned.

The firefighters attended the event voluntarily, but were paid for their work. The outdoor class attendance also added credit to completing Unit V of the Basic Firefighter Program and counted toward satisfying Water Application Laboratory requirements at Iowa State University.

The Hills Fire Department donated a tank truck to the Iowa City department for use during the exercise.

Terrorism

Schroeder, D-Colo., and Don Edwards, D-Calif., both members of the House Judiciary subcommittee with jurisdiction over terrorism issues, asked the House to back them in a request that the CIA be ordered to inform the House about the training and support of covert terrorist units so their legality can be determined.

The State Department has alerted U.S. diplomatic outposts worldwide to guard against possible terrorist incidents in response to the counter-terrorist reports, sources said Monday.

Such notification is "normal procedure" in such cases, said the administration sources, requesting anonymity.

STATE DEPARTMENT spokesman Edward Djerejian declined direct comment on the Post story, but noted that Secretary of State George Shultz "has enunciated U.S. policy to combat terrorism."

"His remarks speak for themselves," he said.

In the Senate, an ex-CIA official said the United States should stage pre-emptive strikes against terrorist groups and a military expert said Americans might accept war if it is "sold on television" like toothpaste.

Ray Cline, deputy director of the CIA from 1962 to 1966, told joint hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations and Judiciary committees the Soviet Union is the principal supporter of international terrorism and called for counterstrikes against terrorists who threaten Americans.

In response to Cline's call for counterstrikes against terrorists, Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said a military response may "risk far more than we have to gain."

HE SUGGESTED the "logical" response to terrorism appeared to be retaliation against the Soviet Union and asked Cline what action could be taken that would not lead to war.

Such pre-emptive attacks, Cline said, should be "carefully selected responses" carried out by special military forces.

Another expert witness, Brian Jenkins of the Rand Corporation, a private "think tank," said he would "hesitate to underestimate" the will of the American people to go to war if convinced it was the only way to deal with an adversary.

"War is like toothpaste," he said, "It has to be sold on television."

Cline, now with the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies, called the Soviet Union a "principal actor" in "state-sponsored terrorism" and said it benefits from the terrorist acts of "surrogates."

CLINE SAID it was necessary to develop public understanding of who was responsible for "this kind of undeclared warfare," combined with "direct pre-emption or retaliation" against terrorists groups.

Cline said there had been a "serious decline" in U.S. intelligence capability under the Carter administration, but said Reagan and CIA Director William Casey had "done a heroic job in making clear that... secret responses to secret attacks may be needed."

"Straight Talk About Lesbians"

This slide-tape is a powerful and moving exploration of lesbian lifestyles. The film includes conversations with lesbians of many different class and racial backgrounds as well as parents and children of lesbians. Used extensively by teachers, librarians, and mental health professionals to combat misinformation about lesbians, the tape is an excellent educational tool.

Merits of liberal arts

It's always good to be reminded one more time. As finals press in and the job search nears for many UI students, Howard Laster, former dean of the UI College of Liberal Arts, displayed a certain bravery by standing in front of a crowd of only about a dozen last Thursday and defending a well-rounded education in the liberal arts.

Laster's bravery should be noted not only by students, but by those who try to find funds for this university. Laster related an old story in which academics cut the legs off a grasshopper, one-by-one. After all the legs are gone the student sets off a loud noise and finds that the grasshopper fails to hop. The conclusion? Amputation causes deafness.

This misapplication of information, the former dean says, shows a perversion of liberal education.

An analogy can be drawn between this crippled grasshopper and the crippled reputation of liberal arts at the UI. Administrators, noting the state's interest in economic development, appealed to lawmakers this year not on the grounds of preserving liberal arts. Rather, they appealed on the grounds of aiding high technology business development in Iowa.

Since liberal arts couldn't jump to the occasion, the university seemed to write the college's handicap off to inadequacy in today's increasing mechanized world. In actuality, as Laster stressed, liberal arts is not useless. In fact, just as for the ancient Greeks, the ideal of a liberal arts education can continue to be equated with living a good, rewarding life.

Vicious cycle

Whenever President Reagan is challenged about the fairness of his budget, he insists the social safety net remains intact. A new study by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities reveals the lie behind the soothing rhetoric.

The Pell Grant is a major college aid program for the poorest college students. In 1982 the administration tried to cut $1 billion from the $2.8 billion program. Congress refused to accept actual cuts, but the program was reduced because it failed to keep pace with inflation.

In 1974 the maximum grant was $1,600. It is now $1,900, but to keep up with inflation it would have to be $3,000. Congress authorized an increase for next fall to $2,100, but the administration is lobbying Congress to withdraw most of that modest increase.

The effects of such cuts in college aid can be seen in another set of painful and disheartening figures. In 1982, 29 percent more blacks and 38 percent more Hispanics graduated from high school than did in 1975. But 1982 college enrollment was down 11 percent for blacks and 16 percent for Hispanics, according to The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Other programs which are directed to the very neediest, like college work-study, have also suffered cuts: the maximum amount a student may earn is down and only token amounts are available for summer school students.

That means a student, working part time in a federal job program at the City University of New York, whose parents annually earn $13,280, is now eligible for a Pell Grant of $1,425. If the administration's proposal is accepted that student's grant would be cut to $660.

College financial aid for the poor, especially minorities, is a crucial way of breaking the cycle of poverty and joblessness. It offers such students — and equally important, their children — a chance at the middle class American dream. Cuts in such programs wrongly affect not only the poor of this generation, but of generations to come.

Convicted rapist freed

Only Gary Dotson and Cathleen Cromwell Webb know for sure what happened July 9, 1977.

Webb claimed she was raped by Dotson, who was subsequently convicted of the rape and sentenced to a 25- to 30-year prison term. Six years after his conviction, Webb recanted her testimony; claiming that she had lied about the rape because she feared she had become pregnant by her boyfriend.

Although Illinois Gov. James Thompson Sunday said he is "satisfied ... beyond a reasonable doubt" that Dotson raped Webb, he commuted Dotson's sentence to time served. The rape conviction stands, but Dotson is now free.

More than a few questions remain unanswered. Did Webb tell the truth in 1977? Or in 1985? Is Dotson guilty? If so, why is he now free?

If the courts appear content to release convicted rapists who have served only a small fraction of their sentences, traumatized rape victims can only be more discouraged from reporting rapes.

The most serious implication of the case is for victims who might now face renewed skepticism that they were, in fact, raped. The circus atmosphere and extensive publicity surrounding the Dotson case will only hinder the future prosecution of rapists.

At a time when a public effort is being made to make it easier for rape victims to testify, the Dotson case has provided yet another setback for prosecuting such cases.

The court system should use extreme caution in accepting recanted testimony as the truth since there is always the possibility that bribery or other pay-offs might have been used to encourage the victim to change testimony.

It will probably be several years before all the ramifications of the case will be seen. There will always be questions surrounding the Dotson case — questions about his guilt or innocence and whether he should now be allowed back on the streets.

Webb has to live not only with the lies she has told at one time or another in court, but with the knowledge that her actions may now make it more difficult for rape victims to come forward and testify against their attackers.

Nicaragua remains Nicaragua

WASHINGTON — I think I will send my son to Congress for the summer. There, he could learn how to stage photo opportunities, vote one minute to support the president's budget and the next day to gut it and, when it comes to Nicaragua, deal with it always with the touching innocence of a summer romance.

The latest person to send Congress a Dear John letter was none other than Daniel Ortega himself. The president of Nicaragua ran off to Moscow after the House of Representatives voted to give his enemy, the contras, nothing — not $14 million of any kind of aid, lethal or non-lethal. Some in Congress thought the Moscow trip was no way for Ortega to show his gratitude. "He embarrassed us, to be perfectly truthful," said House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, D-Mass.

Poor Tip. But where, exactly, did O'Neill and the rest of the Congress think Ortega would go? Moslems go to Mecca, Catholics to Rome, Jews to Israel, Marxists to Moscow. Ortega is certainly more of a Marxist than he is a Catholic and so his eventual destination should never have been in doubt. It is not for nothing that portraits of Karl Marx race the public buildings of Nicaragua.

BUT SO WHAT? Ortega did not come back from Moscow with missiles capable of reaching Tampa, Fla. He did not get MIGs. He got, instead, something like $200 million in assistance from probably the only country that will offer it — the Soviet Union. As if to underscore that point, the United States imposed trade sanctions while Ortega was in Moscow. Yes, we will import no more Nicaraguan bananas.

Have pity on these members of Congress. Like most of their colleagues, they tend to see the United States and its Congress as the center of the universe. Just as some congressmen think the United States ought to be able to dictate what sort of government Nicaragua will have, others think the Sandinistas ought to at least pretend to be something other than uppity Marxists while they're being discussed on the floor. This is Congress at its self-centered worst. Aid to the contras should have been rejected as a matter of principle — because we do not topple governments — regardless of Ortega's travel plans.

Richard Cohen

The contras ain't freedom fighters and the Sandinistas ain't members of the National Organization for Women.

THE PROBLEM IS that both in the congressional debate on Nicaragua want to turn the Sandinistas into something they either never were or have no intention of being. Some want them to be liberals in fatigues while others insist they are bitter-end communists with an allegiance to Moscow that transcends anything else. Even the contras have been brushed with the same fairy dust. They have been called "freedom fighters" by the president who, in a moment of epic bad taste, sainted them with the three-cornered hats of the Founding Fathers. Almost no one wants to deal with the situation as it is.

But the contras ain't freedom fighters and the Sandinistas ain't members of the National Organization for Women. Whatever the Sandinistas are, however, is what they have the sovereign right to be. It's the same right the administration does not question when it comes to South Africa (how about sanctions there?) or Chile, and it's a right we ought to respect unless the Sandinistas endanger our security. They are a long way from that, though. Nicaragua remains Nicaragua — a terribly poor, small country where, by proxy and to the horror of most of Latin America, we are killing people and once again attempting to overthrow a government.

TO SOME MEMBERS of Congress, it might follow that because Ortega went to Moscow, Nicaraguans ought to be killed by the contras — or even the other way around. But to many others, not to mention the next of kin, the logic of that leaves something to be desired. With the possible exception of a German military cemetery, a head of state ought to be able to go where he pleases — Moscow or Capistrano.

If Ortega embarrassed Congress it was only because Congress, in its perpetual adolescence, longed for him to be something he's not — always dependent. Ortega went to Moscow for reasons having nothing to do with Congress. He went for aid. He went because he's a Marxist. But he also went because the contra aid bill was no longer before Congress and it was time to move on. The summer, in effect, was over.

Constructive alternative

To the Editor:

A recent movement has been for anti-apartheid groups to call for the divestment of stocks from companies that have ties with South Africa. The stance against apartheid has merit. Those inspired to take action should be admired. There is, however, a much more effective way to stop U.S. corporations from indirectly aiding apartheid.

Let's review the effects of divestment. First, it makes a statement. Second, it may lower the stock prices of those companies. This is supposed to make the corporations pull out of South Africa.

One can hardly argue that calls for divestment do not make a statement. However, it may be that divestment is not an effective way of sending messages to corporations.

Firstly, if those who are against apartheid sell all of their stocks, that leaves the ownership of companies, and the power, in the hands of those who care little about South Africa. The stockholders own and run the company. Thus the voice we might have in the company's policies, the voice gained by partial ownership, is lost. It's kind of like handing a raving maniac your bullets: If they fit his gun, you can't expect him not to shoot someone.

Also, stock prices probably would not even fall. Why? If they were to fall, the stock would become cheaper for other investors. In short, theory says that stock prices depend only on their expected future stream of dividends — not on whether we sell them off in political protest. Profits of the company determine stock prices, not vice versa.

So, instead of selling the stock in companies involved in South Africa, we should try to gain controlling interest. I understand that some groups are already quietly doing just this.

Not to say that it would be easy. But if everyone opposed to apartheid banned together, purchased stocks and voted as a bloc, it could be done. (A controlling interest in many companies constitutes only 5 percent to 10 percent.) Then we could put someone on the board of directors and have a strong voice in company policies. It would take extraordinary commitment and organization. But it's a constructive alternative.

Divestment is like yelling at something you don't like, then walking away without changing anything: The statement is made but it doesn't change who is running the show.

Abortion analogy

To the Editor:

I was under the impression that ever since the beginning of the great war on abortion, way back in the 1970s, any argument based solely on "ethical and moral grounds" was to be dismissed immediately.

But now it seems there is a group of people angrily demanding divestment from South Africa on — can it be? — "ethical and moral grounds." And they expect to be heard! Haven't they learned from the anti-abortionists that arguments based on morality or ethics are going to be shouted down?

Now don't get me wrong: Apartheid is utterly wicked. And it is high time that we, as a nation and a university, spoke out and acted against it in the strongest possible terms.

But, in this fair city, where the moral conscience of the community finally seems to have been pricked, how long would demonstrations and sit-ins be tolerated at, oh, say, the Emma Goldman Clinic or UI Hospitals? Would we then hear another patronizing dump truck load of b.s. about how "we can't legislate morality" and "we can't force our moral and ethical decisions on others"?

Sikh terrorists suspected in attack

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Two suspected Sikh terrorists shot and seriously wounded a politician and his son only two days after a bombing wave blamed on Sikhs killed 75 people in northern India, a news agency said Monday.

In New Delhi, troops patrolled the streets and police fired bullets into the air to stop mobs from striking in a protest over the blasts, the Press Trust of India said.

Parliament held a special debate on the weekend bombings, with several ruling Congress (I) Party politicians charging that Sikh terrorists backed by the United States were being trained in Pakistan.

"There is (foreign) involvement," Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi told the lower house of Parliament. "You know it and I know it."

Gandhi did not specify a foreign power he believed was involved in the bombings. However, he and his mother, the late Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, repeatedly have accused the CIA of a role in efforts to break up India.

In Gurdaspur, a town in Punjab state about 250 miles northwest of New Delhi, two suspected terrorists from the Sikh religious sect fired several shots at Tirath Ram and his son Sunday night as they walked home from their shop, the Press Trust said.

RAM, A WORKER for the Congress (I) Party, suffered six bullet wounds, the domestic news agency said. His son also was wounded.

It was the fifth attack on Hindu politicians in Punjab since late March. On May 10, the Press Trust said Sikhs shot and killed a top Hindu politician in nearby Hoshiarpur, touching off anti-Sikh rioting that killed one person.

Sikhs, a minority sect in India, are fighting for autonomy in the mainly Sikh state of Punjab.

The shooting Sunday night came after police arrested more than 1,000 people, mostly Sikhs, in connection with a wave of bombings Friday and Saturday that police believe were the work of Sikh extremists.

The Bharatiya Janata Party, a Hindu nationalist party, Monday called a general strike in New Delhi to protest the blasts, which party President Atal Behari described as a "monumental failure" of the police and intelligence agencies.

Police fired warning shots at Bharatiya Janata supporters who were trying to stop buses from running in east Delhi, the Press Trust said. But most buses, shops and offices operated as usual despite the strike call.

Troops patrolled areas where the worst anti-Sikh rioting occurred after Gandhi's mother was assassinated by two Sikh bodyguards last October. The riots left more than 2,400 dead.

Election defeat stirs Kohl to action

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl, reeling from a crushing rebuff in a weekend state election, said Monday he is considering quick action to cut into the jobless rate.

"It was a grave defeat. I can't talk around it," Kohl told a news conference his Christian Democratic Party called to discuss the results of Sunday's election in North Rhine-Westphalia.

Former Chancellor Willy Brandt's opposition Social Democrats, campaigning among jobless workers on the theme of "the new poverty," rolled up a daunting 52.1 percent of the vote in a state that contains the depressed Ruhr industrial region and is home to nearly three out of 10 West Germans.

Voters re-elected the state's popular Social Democratic premier, Johannes Rau, now a potential challenger for Kohl in the next general election in February 1987.

"We are considering a list of measures for improving the situation on the job market," Kohl said. "That was always my aim. It's not that we got this idea from the state election, but it strengthened our intention."

KOHL ACKNOWLEDGED voter dissatisfaction with his national government's policies on bread-and-butter issues of pensions, agriculture and unemployment, which exceeded 10 percent last winter. He said 800,000 potential voters abandoned his party on Sunday.

The change in policy represents a rejection of the economic policy advocated by President Ronald Reagan during his recent European tour.

The Christian Democrats, with Bernhard Worms heading the state ticket, sank to 36.5 percent of the vote from 43.2 percent four years before. Brandt's party boosted its voting strength for 48.4 percent while the anti-NATO Greens failed to get the 5 percent vote needed for representation.

Kohl renewed his criticism of Brandt, who on Sunday lost his temper, pounded the table and accused the chancellor of lying to the public as the two took part in a tumultuous, televised post-election panel discussion.

Promise to mother kept Ewing away from NBA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Future New York Knick Patrick Ewing said Monday a promise to his mother kept him in college for four years, postponing a multi-million dollar NBA contract.

Ewing, the 7-foot center who is considered one of the fiercest defensive players ever to play in college, will be wearing a Knicks' uniform next season after New York won the NBA's unprecedented draft lottery Sunday.

"I promised my mother before I came (to Georgetown) that I'd graduate in four years," Ewing said at a news conference Monday, flanked by Hoyas Coach John Thompson and agent David Falk.

"I've grown a great deal through those four years. I'm more mature than I was (entering college)."

HE RANKED HIS promise to his mother as more important than his Olympic gold medal and NCAA title.

Ewing said he watched the Knicks draw the right to draft him from the campus gym along with Thompson.

"I was very excited and anxious to get it over with," he said. "I wasn't rooting for any particular team."

"When it was all over," Thompson said, "I just jumped up and hugged Patrick."

"I'm very happy that I'm staying in the East and playing in a Big East town," Ewing said.

Ewing was shielded from the media during most of his college career, during which he led the Hoyas to three appearances in the NCAA title game and one championship. He believes he can handle the pressure of playing in what might be the toughest media city in the nation.

"I THINK I'M capable of handling any pressure that will arise anytime in the future," Ewing said. "I don't think I've been sheltered. If I were going to take out time every day to sit down with every one of you, I wouldn't have had time to graduate."

Ewing said he looks forward to hooking up with NBA scoring champ Bernard King, assuming King is able to return from a severe knee injury.

"I think I'm going to enjoy playing with Bernard King ... I think we'll be able to complement each other on the court," Ewing said.

Ewing, who some have already compared to the greatest centers ever to play in college, said he does not know what impact he will have on the NBA. But Thompson was willing to speculate.

"AS FAR AS what he'll do for the league, look at what he did for the Big East," Thompson said. "I think Patrick has proven he makes a contribution anywhere he goes. I see no reason why he can't make a major contribution (in the NBA)."

Falk said it's too early to estimate what Ewing's services will cost the Knicks but said the seven-team lottery that decided where Ewing will be playing increases his value.

"Any time you make an asset more scarce, you make it more valuable," Falk said.

"I never had a lot of money," Ewing said of the million he will earn. "It will provide both me and my family with security."

Arbour to continue coaching Islanders

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Al Arbour, citing the challenge of regaining the Stanley Cup championship, announced Monday that he will return for his 13th season as New York Islanders coach.

"I'm not ready to be packed in mothballs and stored away," Arbour said. "I'm looking forward to the challenge of blending our existing players with the quality players we have coming up. I couldn't see myself on the sidelines."

Arbour coached the Islanders to four Stanley Cup championships from 1980-83 and advanced to the finals against Edmonton last year. This season, the Islanders finished 40-34-6 — their worst record since Arbour's first year as coach in 1973-74. They were eliminated by Philadelphia in the Patrick Division finals.

UP UNTIL LATE last week, Arbour had been expected to resign as coach. He had hinted that he would like to step down as coach some time soon and with the Islanders failing to reach the Stanley Cup finals this season after five straight trips, this seemed like the right time.

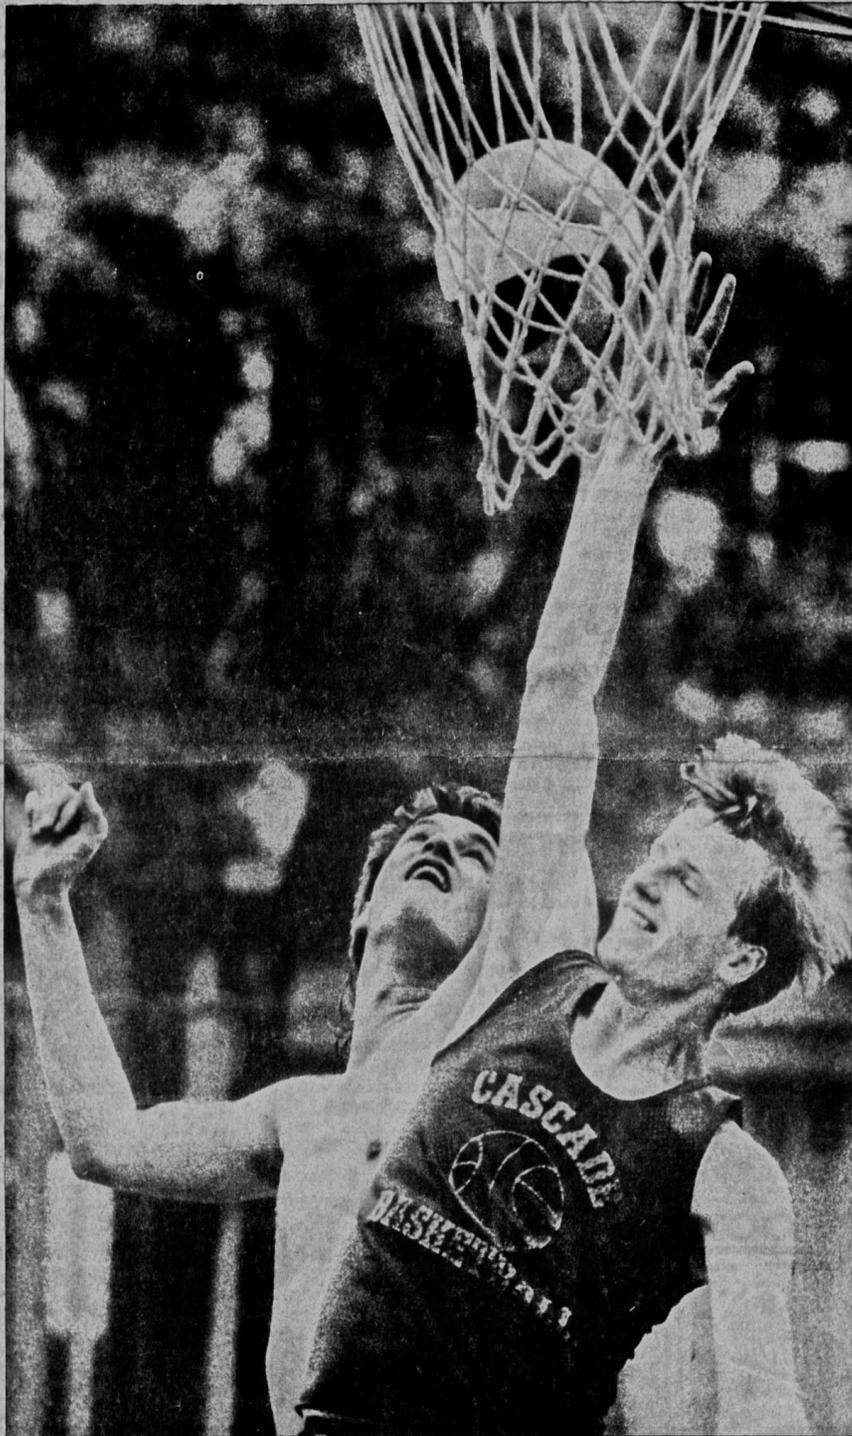

General Manager Bill Torrey has never swayed in his desire to keep Arbour as coach.

Arbour's 12-year reign with the Islanders is the longest stretch with one team of any current NHL coach. He has a 513-288-157 record with the Islanders and a 555-328-182 career mark, including his two-plus years with the St. Louis Blues. His regular-season record is the third best in NHL history.

SINCE ARBOUR BECAME coach, the Islanders have failed to reach the post-season only in his first year. The 52-year-old former defenseman has coached 113 Stanley Cup playoff victories, one less than the all-time leader Scotty Bowman, who served as Arbour's mentor in St. Louis.

This year, with the nucleus of those Stanley Cup champions growing old, the Islanders fell to third in the Patrick Division.

After pulling a stunning turnaround against the Washington Capitals in the opening round of the playoffs by becoming the first team in league history to rebound from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-five series, the young Philadelphia Flyers outskated the Islanders in the Patrick Division final and eliminated them in five games.

Banks terms Iowa season successful

By Jeff Stratton
Staff Writer

The obvious measure by which any athletic team is measured is its win-loss record, and using this yardstick the Iowa baseball team had a successful year.

Iowa's season ended last weekend in Evanston, Ill., as the Hawkeyes split a four-game series with Northwestern to end the year with a 40-20 mark, and a 9-7 record in the Big Ten. "We had a heck of a year," Iowa Coach Duane Banks said. "It is too bad we couldn't have won one more game and made the playoffs."

The Hawkeyes did miss out on qualifying for the Big Ten playoffs, which is the goal of every conference school at the beginning of the year.

SECOND BASEMAN Randy Frakes said it best: "Overall we had an outstanding year. Anytime you win 40 games that is great. We pulled out a lot of games that many teams couldn't have won. Our luck just ran out on us."

Iowa needed to take three out of the four games with Northwestern to make the playoffs, but what cost the Hawkeyes dearly was losing three of four games to Minnesota the previous weekend at home.

The Hawkeyes were in the drivers seat for a playoff berth heading into the series with the Golden Gophers, but split the opening games of the series, before dropping both games of the finale, 11-5 and 8-5, to hurt their chances of making the playoffs.

"MAKING THE PLAYOFFS is what it is all about," Frakes said. "You don't get too many chances at that. It was disappointing. It was too bad the way we played against Minnesota."

Iowa returns much of its talent for next season, and Frakes thinks the Hawkeyes will be able to take advantage of what they learned from this season. "Everybody is unhappy with the way things turned out this year," he said. "But nobody should feel bad about it. We will learn from what happened this year."

The Hawkeyes had one dominant strength on this year's squad — hitting, and one glaring weakness — lack of solid pitching.

Iowa's 20-5 whipping of Northern Iowa earlier in the year provides the perfect example of its hitting prowess. The Hawkeyes erupted for 15 runs on 11 hits in the fourth inning to blow out the Panthers.

Duane Banks

Baseball

AS GOOD AS Iowa was with the bat this year, the Hawkeyes pitchers often needed every run their teammates could give them. In the last game of the Northwestern series — a must game for Iowa — four Iowa pitchers gave up 16 hits and the Hawkeyes dropped the game, 12-6.

"We were just a bit short on pitching," Banks said, "and it caught up with us. The pitchers will get better. We just didn't have enough numbers this year."

Iowa returns the bulk of its offensive firepower for next year, and Frakes said the Hawkeyes are already looking forward to next season. "We can't wait for next year," he said. "I hope the coach can get a couple more pitchers and we should have a better season next year."

FRAKES WAS PLEASED with his own play this season, but feels there is room for improvement with his fielding. "Anytime you bat over .300 you have to be happy," he said. "I'm pleased, but I do need to improve my consistency in my fielding."

Lottery allocates tickets for NCAA wrestling finals

By J.B. Nass
Staff Writer

The lottery; it's the thing to do. And wrestling has followed the lead.

Monday was the day, as Bob Kopsnisky, the chairman of the NCAA games committee, began selecting envelopes from the red, white and blue barrel in the press room of Carver-Hawkeye Arena for the best tickets to the 1986 NCAA Wrestling Championships to be held at the arena next March 13-15.

The purpose of the lottery, according to Kopsnisky, was "that if Mrs. Jones in Pennsylvania wants to come to the NCAA meet, she may not have a snowball's chance to get tickets. With this, everybody has equal opportunity to get tickets. There can be no complaints from anyone across the United States that they did not have a chance to buy tickets. We spent a lot of time on this."

IF YOU FAILED to apply for the lottery, don't fret yet.

Many of the participating universities — particularly the big name wrestling ones — have been granted tickets in blocks inside the arena.

Wrestling

For example, Iowa has been granted approximately 900 tickets in a block. Also, after the lottery tickets are fulfilled, applications which come into the Iowa athletic department will be considered. Contact the Iowa Athletic Department for further information on tickets — they are $60 dollars for the whole package.

"We try to let fans sit together," Kopsnisky said. "We know the Iowa fans want to sit together."

"I THINK THE wrestling world is very excited about this NCAA Championship," Kopsnisky, who also works at the University of Missouri, said. "Financially, attendance-wise and everything."

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable, who was on hand Monday, said, "I feel it is an honor for the University of Iowa to host the NCAAs. I think it's appropriate, considering the past."

While Gable is pleased about the chance to win his ninth-consecutive title in Iowa City, he has some reservations. "Anytime you host something, it can water down something you are trying to do as a coach at the expense of the athletes and I don't want that to happen."

"WHETHER WE WANT it back here or not we'll know that sooner or later," Gable added. "Right now I think it will work out fine. I think it will be a very good thing. One of the goals for me, besides my athletes, is to put on the best tournament possible and that's only going to happen if the fans show up."

Gable will have some experience help on answering the numerous questions that are sure to occur about the second NCAA tournament in Iowa history — the first was in 1959.

Enter Iowa assistant athletic director Gary Kurdelmeier, former Hawkeye coach and present tournament director. "I usually peak at the right moment," Gable said. "He (Kurdelmeier) peaked a year in advance," as Kurdelmeier has been working on this project for about a year.

For the record, Jerry Wood of Leroy, Ill. had his envelope picked first. Besides his tickets, he will receive a sweater with an NCAA wrestling championship logo.

According to Kurdelmeier, the arena was designed for an NCAA Wrestling Championship as far as floor space is concerned. Eight mats go at once during the tournament. The added expense was between and quarter and half a million dollars for the extra space.

Nov. 1 is a deadline for the participating universities to return unused tickets or revenue. After some redistribution to schools that need extra tickets, there is a chance tickets will be put on sale to the general public, possibly by session.

Oklahoma State and Oklahoma requested 750 tickets each. However, it appears Oklahoma will use only 500. Penn State and Iowa State received 750 apiece as well.

Approximately 500 envelopes were in the barrel. It is estimated this will eat up about 2,000 tickets.

It was also announced that in 1987, the University of Maryland's Cole Field House will host the championships and in 1988 Iowa State's Hilton Coliseum will be the site.

The Daily Iowan/Rodney White

Bob Kopsnisky, chairman of the NCAA games committee, begins selecting ticket applications Monday morning for the 1986 NCAA wrestling championships to be held at Carver-Hawkeye Arena next March 13-15.

Kennedy signs recruit to join Iowa

Dana Hayward of Elgin, Ill., has signed a national letter of intent to attend Iowa, women's swimming Coach Peter Kennedy announced last week.

As a senior at Larkin High School, Hayward was conference champion in the 100-yard butterfly her junior and senior seasons.

Hayward also participated in track for four years at Larkin and captained the squad her senior year.

Three Hawks on softball academic squad

Marty Pump of Rockford, Iowa heads a list of three Iowa softball players recently named to the 1985 Big Ten Conference all-Academic Team.

Pump was named to the league's first team while Carol Bruggeman of Charter Oak, Iowa and Tracy Langhurst of Cedar Rapids were named to the second team.

Pump, a senior majoring in political science, carried a cumulative grade point average of 3.59 into the 1985 spring semester. Pump played shortstop for the Hawkeyes in the recently completed 1985 season.

Bruggeman, a sophomore in pre-business, entered a spring semester with a cumulative grade point average of 3.58 in the spring semester. Bruggeman played third base for the Hawkeyes; Langhurst was a member of the Iowa pitching staff.

Iowa's Wisniewski, Nicola named all-Big Ten

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (UPI) — Two Iowa Hawkeyes, along with four players from Big Ten softball champion Northwestern topped the 1985 all-conference squad selected by the league coaches, the conference office announced Monday.

Senior outfielder Mary Wisniewski, who was among the top five in the league in hitting, and junior second baseman Lisa Nicola were the two Hawkeyes named as first-team choices.

Northwestern pitcher Lisa Ishikawa, 1984 Big Ten women's athlete of the year, was joined by first baseman Sue Koopman, third baseman Karen Lemke and catcher Meg Haller as the Wildcats' representatives to the first team.

Indiana placed three players, outfielders Karleen Moore and Tammy O'Connor along with pitcher Amy Unterbrink on the team. Michigan shortstop Lisa Panetta and Minnesota designated hitter Ann Flis round out the squad.

Giant hurler Garrelts wins NL award

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Francisco Giants reliever Scott Garrelts, who had two victories and two saves last week, Monday was named the National League Player of the Week.

Garrelts, 23, pitched 6 1-3 innings during the week ending May 12, yielding one hit and no runs. Garrelts struck out 10 batters in the stretch and lowered his ERA for the season to 1.64.

San Diego Padres first baseman Steve Garvey, who hit .500 in seven games, New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling, who was 2-0, and Cincinnati Reds second baseman Ron Oester, who hit .421, also were considered for the honor.

Boston's Armas named AL Player of the Week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boston Red Sox outfielder Tony Armas, who registered a slugging percentage of 1.100 and a batting average of .450, Monday was named the American League Player of the Week.

Armas, 31, cracked four home runs and a double for 22 total bases during the week ending May 12. Armas knocked in seven runs, including two game-winners, and had an on-base percentage of .476 in the stretch.

Chicago White Sox pitcher Floyd Banister, with two victories, a shutout and 21 strikeouts in 15 1-3 innings; and Minnesota third baseman Gary Gaetti, who hit .500 with eight RBI, also received consideration for the award.

Strawberry's hand surgery termed successful

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Mets right fielder Darryl Strawberry underwent successful surgery Monday to repair ligament damage on his right thumb but is still expected to be out for eight weeks, a club spokesman said.

The one-hour surgery was performed at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital by hand specialist Dr. Richard Eaton and team physician Dr. James Parks. Strawberry will be discharged from the hospital Tuesday and the doctors said there will be no long-term damage.

Strawberry's right hand will be in a hard cast for four weeks. He then will begin hand exercises. In approximately six weeks, he will begin swinging a bat.

Strawberry tore the ulna ligament in his right thumb Saturday diving for a fly ball hit by Philadelphia's Juan Samuel.

In 25 games this year, the 1983 NL Rookie of the Year is hitting .215 with a team-leading six homers, 12 RBI and six stolen bases. He was placed on the 15-day disabled list Sunday and outfielder Terry Blocker was recalled from Tidewater of the International League (AAA) to replace Strawberry on the roster.

Chicago shuts down rugby club

By John Gilardi
Staff Writer

Games with little or no scoring are not exciting for the spectators to watch. Just tell that to any of the fans or players watching the Iowa-Chicago women's rugby match Saturday in Chicago. Chicago won 4-0.

"It was a very exciting game," Trudy Grout said. "There was a lot of defense, but that was still exciting for the fans to watch. Of course, the players also had fun. They got lucky on a break away and the player just scraped over the line."

Iowa had lost to Chicago 11-0, in the National Qualifier tournament two weekends ago here in Iowa City, but last weekend it was different. "The game was a hard-fought battle," Grout said. "We played exceptionally well, even considering we were missing some experienced players and we had one who was playing in her first rugby game."

THE TEAM WILL finish out their season at home this Saturday against Chicago-Lakeshore and Madison after finishing third in the qualifying tournament. Chicago and Minnesota will represent the Midwest in the national finals May 27-29 in San Francisco.

The men's and women's novice crew teams made it to the finals in the Waterloo Regatta last weekend, but thunderstorms cancelled the meet earlier than expected. The finals were not run. Summer crew will be starting this Sunday and there will be five meets this summer. For more information, contact Ed McCormick at 351-1941.

Final season awards were recently given out at the Lacrosse Club banquet. Greg Galloway was awarded the most valuable player trophy and Rick Schreuder was given the best attacker award.

THE BEST DEFENSE award was given to Ed Conrad, best midfielder award went to Steve Fairclough and the most improved went to Tom Castles. The most improved rookie award went to Chris Gibbs and Tom Green received the best graduate award.

The Kayaking Club will still be meeting to plan summer trips. For more information, contact Sara Felt at 353-6017 or at 354-0064.

The Hawkeye Soccer Club will be playing in their last game of the season Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. against West High at the Hawkeye soccer fields.

Thrown smoke bomb may have started fire

BRADFORD, England (UPI) — A group of youths was seen throwing a smoke bomb inside the Bradford soccer stadium just minutes before the wooden grandstand erupted in flames, killing 53 people, police said Monday.

Assistant Chief Constable John Domaille confirmed reports about the smoke bomb but said he could not be sure if it set the fire that rapidly engulfed the grandstand Saturday with its 3,500 spectators.

The death toll in England's worst sporting disaster rose to 53 overnight with the death in a hospital of a 75-year-old man from burns. Fifty-eight of the 211 people injured were still hospitalized Monday.

AMONG THE SURVIVORS, according to personal accounts appearing in British newspapers Monday, were a 15-year-old girl who was trapped in a tea stall at the back of the grandstand and a man who abandoned his elderly father to save his son.

Domaille said the bodies pulled from the wreckage were burned beyond recognition. Another four people were still missing and some bodies might have been consumed in the inferno, he said.

Police and forensic experts searched the rubble for jewelry and other scraps of identification, as well as for clues to the cause of the fire.

Ian Trueman, a reporter who was covering Saturday's soccer match between Bradford City and Lincoln, said he saw a group of youths throw a smoke bomb from a stand adjoining the stadium's main building.

"I SAW THE bomb's trail of smoke. I saw it land at the exact spot where the fire exploded," he wrote in his newspaper, the Daily Star.

Police confirmed the fire started where Trueman saw the device land, but Domaille noted that smoke bombs were also thrown without incident at a game a week earlier.

In Parliament, Home Secretary Leon Brittan announced a high court judge will hold an inquiry into the Bradford fire. The same inquiry will deal with violence at a soccer game in Birmingham Saturday that killed a 15-year-old boy.

Brittan said the judge will be asked to recommend steps to improve safety and crowd control at sporting events.

Gerald Kaufman, a spokesman for the opposition Labor Party, criticized the decision to order a single inquiry into the Bradford disaster and the Birmingham violence.

"Our reaction is one of astonishment and disbelief," he said.

The Bradford City Council said it warned the club last July the timber grandstand was a fire hazard, but soccer club officials said they never received the letter.

The only exits at Bradford were at the rear of the stand and accessible only from an eight-foot-wide corridor. The doors were locked to keep non-players out.

Litter that accumulated beneath the bleachers was another fire hazard.

Banks is already looking forward to next season. "The kids gave a tremendous effort day in and day out," he said. "Not one day did we get cheated on the effort they gave us. When you look at what we have coming back next year, with the exceptions of Mike Darby, Vance McKinnon and Jeff Kuepker, we can't wait for next year."

The highlights for Iowa this season were numerous, and one of the biggest had to be Banks breaking the Iowa career record for coaching wins. The Hawkeyes' 16-15 win over New Mexico Highlands on their spring trip gave Banks his 441st win, and the Iowa coach ended the season with 471 career wins.

Another bright spot for Iowa was the home run hitting duo of Frakes and Jeff Gurtcheff. Frakes hit 14 home runs of the year, breaking Bryan Jones' record set in the 1975 season while Gurtcheff hit 13 home runs this season before being sidelined for the year with a broken leg.

Fiber exhibit at museum shows cultural blending

The Museum of Art is exhibiting two works by fiber artist Naomi Schedl in a show entitled "Imaginary Protections." The exhibition will continue through June 9 in the museum's Members Lounge.

Schedl, a member of the UI Home Economics faculty, combines a reverence for nature and traditional forms with a desire to speak to contemporary culture by blending current materials.

Her pieces are based on the cradle form. The cradle evolved into the blanket, found in South Africa as a covering and carrier for a child.

The museum is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Springsteen weds in secrecy

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (UPI) — Rock star Bruce Springsteen, giving the slip to reporters, sneaked 50 people into a Catholic church in the middle of the night and married a 25-year-old actress Monday in a private candlelight ceremony.

Springsteen, 35, married Julianne Phillips shortly after midnight at Our Lady of the Lake Church in the fashionable Portland suburb of Lake Oswego.

"It was a beautiful ceremony, but it was a little like a Robert Ludlum spy novel," said Barbara Block, a friend of the Phillips family who attended the wedding.

"We got a phone call telling us to meet in a parking lot at a quarter to midnight. Then we drove with a police escort to the church where the lights had been dimmed. There were 12 cars in all."

The Rev. Paul Peri officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by Springsteen's parents and family, members of his band and the Phillips family. Afterwards, Springsteen and his bride left town for a honeymoon at an undisclosed location.

SERVING AS SPRINGSTEEN'S best man and ushers were Steve "Little Steven" Van Zandt, former guitarist for the E Street Band; manager and co-producer Jon Landau and sax player Clarence "The Big Man" Clemons. It was not known which was best man.

Springsteen was best man at Van Zandt's wedding.

Springsteen met his bride backstage at a concert six months ago in Los Angeles when they were introduced by their agents. She is the youngest of six children of William and Ann Phillips of Lake Oswego. She worked as a model for several department stores in the Northwest before moving to Los Angeles in 1983 where she appeared in several TV movies.

It is the first marriage for both.

THE WEDDING WAS originally planned for Wednesday, but was moved up when word leaked out and reporters and fans began calling the Phillips home and staking out both the home and the church.

"The children wanted to get married without all the confusion," said the bride's mother.

"Everybody was really concerned about it becoming a circus," added a brother, William Phillips Jr. "Bruce was concerned."

So a decision was made Saturday to move up the wedding date and hold it in the early morning to keep it private.

Block said Springsteen wore a dark suit. The bride wore an ankle-length white lace dress and old-fashioned, high-topped, buttoned shoes. The church was filled with flowers and the chapel lit by candlelight, she added.

Lead singer Kevin Cronin, center, is flanked by the other members of R.E.O. Speedwagon. The group will appear at the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

R.E.O. to bring rock show to the Five Seasons Center

R.E.O. SPEEDWAGON and Cheap Trick, two veteran Illinois bands that have had their share of ups and downs, will perform together at the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The members of R.E.O. Speedwagon began playing together in Champaign, Ill., in 1970, gradually working their way up rock's ladder of success. They started out as local favorites, later evolving into one of the state's most popular bands, then finding success across the Midwest. Eventually, the group moved out to Los Angeles, where they hit the big time nationally.

The group found their most commercial success in 1981, when it sold over 18 million LPs and singles worldwide. The band's 10th album Hi Infidelity was No. 1 on the Billboard charts for nearly five straight months and yielded the major hits "Keep on Loving You" and "Take It on the Run."

THE GROUP'S FOLLOW-UP album, Good Trouble, went platinum, but compared to the chart-busting success of Hi Infidelity, it was viewed as a commercial failure. Therefore, the band was seen as having made somewhat of a comeback when "Can't Fight This Feeling," the second single off the group's latest LP, Wheels Are Turnin', spent three weeks on the top of the charts earlier this year. Although the band has never been a critical favorite, R.E.O. Speedwagon has been especially reviled since releasing Hi Infidelity. Recent criticism has centered on the band's tendency to concentrate on maudlin ballads by vocalist Kevin Cronin rather than more rock-oriented numbers like "Ridin' the Storm Out" and "Roll with the Changes."

CHEAP TRICK, a group which got its start in Rockford, Ill., will open the show. Cheap Trick reached its commercial and artistic peak during 1979 when it released its fourth album, Live at Budokan, featuring the hit single "I Want You to Want Me." Starting with its next record, Dream Police, the group began selling fewer and fewer records, and gradually transformed its sound from Aerosmith-styled rock to Utopia-styled pop. Beatle producer George Martin was even brought in to supervise the group's All Shook Up LP, but it did not help the effort commercially.

At its peak, Cheap Trick was rather highly acclaimed by critics, with Dave Marsh calling the band "a heavy metal highlight of the late 1970s" and awarding the Live at Budokan LP a maximum five stars in his Rolling Stone Record Guide.

Tickets for the concert are general admission, and they cost $13.50 in advance and $14.50 the day of the show. Tickets can be purchased at the Iowa City Record Bar or at the Five Seasons Center.

At the Bijou

Lola Montes. Martine Carol and Peter Ustinov star in this 1955 film about a New Orleans circus performer and her effect on various men. This was the last film Max Ophuls directed before his death, and his distinctive camera stylings are quite evident. At 7 p.m.

Day of Wrath. Filmed during the height of the Nazi occupation of Denmark, this monumental 1943 Carl Dreyer drama looks at witchhunts, faith and human passion in a 17th century European village. At 9 p.m.

Television

On the networks: The Peanuts gang celebrates a score of years as video stars on "It's Your 20th Television Anniversary, Charlie Brown" (CBS at 7 p.m.). Opera star Placido Domingo goes "Stepping Out with the Ladies" (ABC at 9 p.m.) on a musical special that co-stars Patti LaBelle, Marilyn McCoo, Susan Anton, Leslie Uggums, Maureen McGovern and Stefanie Powers. Wayne Rogers plays a Vietnam vet who discovers he is a daddy 10 years after the fact in "The Lady from Yesterday" (CBS at 8 p.m.). And "Remington Steele" (NBC at 9 p.m.) winds up its year with a cliffhanger.

On cable: For viewers who like their fare short and sweet with a kicker at the end there is A Big Hand for the Little Lady (Cinemax-13 at 7 p.m.) starring Joanne Woodward, Henry Fonda and Jason Robards in a clever little comedy about a big poker game in a dusty little western town.

Theater

Auditions for the University Theatres original production Home Stretch will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in Mable Theatre. Five to six actors in the age range of 40 to 90 are needed for the production, which will be presented in eight performances beginning Sept. 18.
